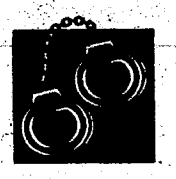
Woman describes brutal attack



A badly bruised woman who says she was brutally attacked and nearly raped in a Westland field testified Thursday against the man accused of being her assailant. Judge Gail McKnight ordered the defendant bound over for trial in Recorder's Court.

A Westland woman testified that she was "beaten to a pulp" by an assailant who not only tried to rape her but warned her not to worry about AIDS because she "was going to die anyway."

Eleven days after she was attacked at night in a southern Westland field, the 27-year-old woman's left eye remained badly bruised when she testified Thursday during a hearing in 18th District Court.

The woman's testimony convinced District Judge Gail McKnight to or-

Hurricane swimmers double membership

BY LEONARD POGER
EDITOR

The Hurricanes Swim Club, organized this spring, has more than doubled its membership in its first five months, according to founder and coach Jim McNellis.

The group, which now has 75 members, is taking registrations for new members with tryouts scheduled for mid-September, he said.

McNellis expects even more interest in the new team since Plymouth Canton school district voters rejected a millage increase last week that would have prevented cuts in the district's swimming program.

The coach/manager, 30, has been directing swimming teams for 11 years. He was previously the coach of the Stingrays team at the Wayne-Westland Family Y.

The Hurricanes are co-sponsored by the Westland parks and recreation department and Garden City Public Schools' adult education department.

Summer swimming was at Westland's Bailey Center outdoor pool. In the fall and winter, the Hurricanes will move inside to the Garden City High School Community Pool.

Registration forms are available at Garden City's Cambridge Adult Education Center, 28901 Cambridge. Call 422-7198 for information.

Tryouts will be from 5:30-6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 14; Wednesday, Sept. 15, and Friday, Sept. 17, at the Garden City High School pool, 6500 Middlebelt. People who can swim one pool length will be eligible for the Hurricanes, he said.

The team is made up of youngsters between 5 and 17 from Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Canton Township, Dearborn Heights, Inkster and Belleville, McNellis said.

An important part of the Hurricanes, he stressed, is the volunteer parent group which is active in fund-raising, communications and purchasing.

McNellis may be contacted at 981-7678.

Girl, 12, testifies neighbor fondled her

BY DARRELL CLEM

A 12-year-old Westland girl, crying as she took the witness stand, testified Thursday in 18th District Court that a neighbor made sexual moves against her on two occasions.

The girl, who regained her composure as she testified, accused Chester Jerome Vincent, 49, of touching her breasts and her groin this summer when she went to his Bay Court residence, southwest of Merriman and Palmer.

The girl's family, who moved to Bay Court in December, had considered Vincent a friendly neighbor, and the girl testified that her father even bought a bicycle from Vincent for her.

The youngster's testimony resulted in Vincent being ordered by Judge Gail McKnight to stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court on two counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct. He could face up to 15 years in prison if convicted.

The girl, a Jefferson Elementary School student, testified that the first incident occurred while she and Vincent were standing on opposite sides of a fence at his residence, carrying on a conversation.

Under questioning, the girl accused Vincent of reaching across the fence and fondling her breasts with both of his hands.

The girl said the second incident occurred when the girl went to Vincent's house to return a "Walkman" radio headset that she had earlier borrowed from him. Vincent touched her "private area" with his left hand while she was standing in the kitchen of his residence, near the front door, she testified.

"I went home and I told my mom," the girl said, adding that her mother later confronted Vincent and then contacted the Westland Police Department.

Vincent's court-appointed attorney, Thomas Strauch, tried to raise questions about how much the girl remembered of the alleged incident. At

Party dispute ends in man's death

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A dispute that began at a Garden City party spilled into Westland and became deadly Saturday night when a 25-year-old man was killed by a rifle blast in the driveway of his residence on Wayne Road between Ford and Hunter, police said.

Robert John, 25, died after he was hit in the chest by one of three shots fired in front of his residence at 6085 N. Wayne Road, Westland police Lt. Al George said.

A suspect is in police custody and is expected to be arraigned today (Monday) in 18th District Court on charges stemming from the killing, George said this morning.

The shooting occurred about 10:50 p.m. Saturday after John had returned to his residence on the west side of Wayne Road, near Stacy Street, from a birthday party in Garden City where a dispute had erupted, George said.

George described the initial dispute as "a squabble between two families" and said John was followed home by "a bunch of people" in a car. The cause of the argument — like the killing — remains under investigation, he said.

"Some threats were made and some shots were fired, and somebody's dead," George said.

Although George indicated that two families were involved in the dispute, John was the only victim of the shooting, he said.

In another weekend incident, a 33-year-old pedestrian died after he was hit by a car shortly after 3 p.m. Saturday on Middlebelt, north of Ann Arbor Trail, police said.

The death of Joseph Andrew Huot, 33, of Livonia marked the second pedestrian fatality in Westland this month. A 70-year-old woman died Aug. 6 while crossing Merriman near Van Born.

der Aric Channing Trotter, 30, of Westland to stand trial on a charge of assault with intent to commit criminal sexual conduct.

The woman testified that she met up with Trotter about 1:30 a.m. Aug. 8 while she was strolling with a friend and drinking beer on a walking path in the Norwayne neighborhood. She said she was returning to a nearby party that Trotter also had attended near Palmer and Venoy.

"I asked Aric for a ride to the store," she said. Later she said she had known him for about three years because he used to date a former neighbor.

The woman testified that Trotter asked her to walk with him to his nearby residence on Lydia Street so that he could get his car. But when they arrived and the woman saw that no car was parked at the house, she said she left on her own and began walking across a Norwayne field.

The woman testified that she didn't know she was being followed until "Aric came up behind me and grabbed my jacket. He wrestled me to the ground."

The woman said she mentioned the fatal disease AIDS but said

■ The woman said she mentioned the fatal disease AIDS but said Trotter told her, 'It doesn't matter. You're going to die anyway.' Trotter hit her 'eight or nine times' in the face and began ripping off her clothes, she said.

Trotter told her, "It doesn't matter. You're going to die anyway."

Trotter hit her "eight or nine times" in the face and began ripping off her clothes, she said.

"I screamed rape because when he laid on top of me, he was working at my clothes. He ripped off my bra," she testified.

"He covered my mouth to shut me up, and I bit him," she said. Trotter bit her in return on her left wrist, she said.

"I just kept on kicking and fighting back, and when I pushed him off of me, he got up and ran," she testified.

The woman said she ran to a nearby residence for help and that a tenant phoned Westland police, who came to the scene. The woman said she told police where Trotter lived and that police officers also used a tracking dog to lead them to his home.

The woman told police that Trotter had scratches on his face and a bite mark on his hand, "and that's how they identified him," she said in court.

At one point, Trotter's court-appointed attorney raised questions about whether the woman could identify her assailant, noting that the alleged attack occurred at night in the field. But the woman responded that lights from nearby streets helped to illuminate the area.

"I could see his face so vivid," she testified. "His voice is like nobody else's."

After Thursday's testimony, Judge McKnight ordered Trotter to stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court on a charge of assault with intent to commit criminal sexual conduct. He could face up to 10 years in prison if convicted.

Trotter is still in the county jail in lieu of a $50,000 cash or surety bond. He has been scheduled for an arraignment in Recorder's Court on Sept. 2.

mains at large, police Sgt. Michael Terry said Friday.

The woman, 35, was coming home to her Glenwood Orchard apartment about 2:45 a.m. when the attacker approached her in the parking lot, dragged her to a grassy area on the east side of the complex and raped her at knifepoint, Terry said.

The complex is located on the northeast corner of Newburgh and Glenwood.

The attack occurred near an apartment building that has been unoccupied since it was virtually destroyed during a massive fire in March, the woman told Westland police.

"He threatened her with a knife," Terry said. "She suffered some bruises aside from the obvious trauma of being raped."

The rapist was hiding between two cars in the Glenwood Orchard parking lot and seized the woman while she was walking to her apartment building, Terry said. The woman did not know the identity of her assailant, the sergeant said.

The attack marked the second of at least two attacks against women in Westland this month, but police said the two are not related. The other attack occurred Aug. 8 when a 27-year-old woman was attacked in a field near Venoy and Palmer. A man has been arrested in that case and remains in custody, awaiting trial.

The Glenwood Orchard rape has prompted police to beef up patrols around the complex, amid efforts to enhance security in case the rapist should try to strike again.

Police were working on a composite sketch of the rapist on Friday for newspaper use.

Anyone with information about the rape is asked to contact the detective bureau, 721-6311, or 722-9600.

In addition to the other descriptions, the man was described as wearing a dark baseball-type cap with the logo CAT on it. He also wore a blue jean jacket and blue jeans, Terry said.

one point, he asked her how many chairs were in Vincent's kitchen.

Assistant prosecutor Michael Cox objected, and Judge McKnight concurred.

"We're not going to count chairs," she said.

After McKnight ordered Vincent to stand trial, Strauch asked for a reduction of a $20,000 cash bond that has kept the defendant in jail since his arrest two weeks ago.

Strauch argued that Vincent has been a longtime local resident who has a family, and said the defendant is unemployed and does odd repair jobs to earn some money.

"I don't think there's a likelihood of flight," Strauch said.

But Cox responded that Vincent poses "some threat to the community."

McKnight noted that Vincent had suggested during an earlier court proceeding that he wouldn't stay away from Bay Court, as the judge had insisted. But Vincent said Thursday he promised to stay away and would live at his mother-in-law's house.

McKnight decided that she wouldn't consider reducing his bond until the court could verify that Vincent could — for certain — stay with the relative.

Westland man, 20, found dead after inhaling Scotch Guard

A 20-year-old Westland man who apparently inhaled the contents of a can of Scotch Guard was found dead Thursday evening in a basement on Burlington Street, northeast of Palmer and Merriman, police said.

James Michael Brown, 20, was found when his mother and stepfather, Barbara and Douglas Dowling, returned home from a vacation and discovered the body shortly after 5 p.m. Thursday, police reports said.

Brown was found lying on the carpeted floor in the family's basement, with a pool of blood by his body, the reports said. A can of Scotch Guard — with the cap removed — was found nearby, along with a yellow and gold rag, police reports said.

Brown had been dead for 10 to 12 hours when his parents found him, police said. The parents had gone to the basement to ask Brown to help them carry in their vacation luggage, police reports indicated.

The family could not be reached for comment on Monday.

The parents had last talked with Brown on Aug. 15, four days before his body was found, the reports said. They talked with him about 6 p.m.

When they found the body, the parents went to seek help from an out-of-state emergency medical technician from Tennessee who had been visiting a neighbor, but Brown was dead, police reports said.

The parents told police that Brown had been a heavy drinker, that he smoked marijuana and that he had been depressed because a friend of his was going into the U.S. Air Force, the reports indicated.

A neighbor told police that he had last seen Brown about 5 p.m. on Wednesday when Brown came home from work. The neighbor indicated that Brown's car was not moved the following morning, when he would normally have gone to work, the reports said.

Brown, an employee of Crusader Entry Systems in Redford Township, was last seen at work about 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday, police reports said.

A planned carjacking in the Wonderland Center parking lot unraveled earlier this month thanks to a reluctant victim and nearby police presence, according to court testimony Thursday.

Danielle Makky, 17, told the court that although she was scared and "couldn't breathe" after being forced into her father's 1987 Dodge Shadow at gunpoint, she jumped out, handed the gunman her purse and refused his orders to get back in the car with her 19-year-old sister and the other gunman.

Makky then "ran to the middle of the lane and started to scream" for help, she testified.

The gunmen raced off holding Hoida Makky hostage, but were confronted by plainclothes Livonia Police officers at the mall exit.

Defendants Raymond Cornelius Robinson and Rubean Rhodman will stand trial on armed robbery, car theft and felony firearms charges stemming from the botched, Aug. 6 incident.

Robinson, 18, and Rhodman, 22, both of Detroit, were bound over by 16th District Judge James R. McCann following a 45-minute hearing.

Friends, family mourn teen killed in shooting

■ 'We'll never forget the tragedy both of them went through. Nick was the most unselfish person you would want to meet. He would give up anything for his friends. I want to say goodbye, but deep down I know I'll keep talking to him forever.'

Mark Stackpoole
Churchill senior

Cries of anguish from a grieving family swept over Plymouth's Riverside Cemetery Thursday as a young Livonia man — who friends and family said trusted too much and who never stopped loving — was buried.

In their native Greek language, Dimitrious and Sofia Kavalos cried their goodbyes to their youngest son, Nick, in a graveside ceremony overflowing with Nick's friends and peers from Churchill High School.

Kavalos, 18, a 1993 Churchill graduate, was shot and killed Aug. 15 in a northwest Detroit neighborhood where he had gone with a friend, Daniel Deckard, to sell his truck.

Deckard, 17, and a Churchill senior, also shot, was listed in good condition Friday in an area hospital.

The young men and women from Churchill, their faces smeared with tears, encircled Kavalos' casket, clutching and hugging each other for support.

Wearing small blue ribbons, they stared ahead in disbelief as a black-and-gold-garbed Greek Orthodox priest performed the final graveside rites for their friend. Each in the large circle of mourners placed a flower on the casket, and Kavalos' casket was then slowly lowered into the ground.

'One of the nicest kids'

For these young people, it was a lesson in the ugly reality of violence.

Friends said Kavalos was a hard-working Churchill graduate who worked long hours at his dad's gas station in Detroit so that he could buy the blue GMC Jimmy that was stolen from him when he was shot.

Kavalos had outgrown the Jimmy and wanted a new car — a Cutlass Supreme Convertible, friends said. Having lined up a possible buyer for the Jimmy, he and Deckard went to make the deal.

"He's gone and it's over a car," said Todd Senczyszy, a Churchill senior. "It's a tragedy to lose someone like that. He'd help any one of us if we were in trouble."

The ribbons meant something different to each of his friends.

"He was one of the nicest kids; he never hurt anyone; he trusted too much," said Jeff Mangrum, a 1993 Churchill graduate. "I trusted him with all my heart."

Mangrum was one of the last friends to see Kavalos alive. Along with Deckard, Kavalos visited Mangrum Aug. 15 at the gas station where Mangrum worked.

Saying goodbye

For Churchill senior Mark Stackpoole, the blue ribbon signified love, love for both Kavalos and Deckard.

"We'll never forget the tragedy both of them went through," Stackpoole said. "Nick was the most unselfish person you would want to meet. He would give up anything for his friends.

"I want to say goodbye, but deep down I know I'll keep talking to him forever."

Jason Hebert, 1993 Churchill graduate, had been friends with Kavalos since the ninth grade.

"No one hated him; everybody liked him," Hebert said. "He would do anything for his friends. He was too trusting; that is why everybody liked him. The blue ribbon signifies the way this tragedy has brought us all together. Seeing him for the last time, it really hurts so bad."

"He was the one person I could count on at all times," Baranowski said.

For Kevin DeHority, a 1993 Churchill graduate, the blue ribbon was as close as he could get to Kavalos' smile.

"He had the best smile; he always was smiling," said DeHority, who was not a close friend of Kavalos' but still admired him.

Baranowski described Kavalos' smile as one that "lit up a room."

"When he was happy, he made us happy," Baranowski said.

Senseless tragedy

Mangrum, Stackpoole, Hebert, Baranowski, DeHorithy and Senczyszy were among the scores who stood by Kavalos' grave Thursday, silently asking themselves: Why did this tragedy have to be?

But at the graveside Thursday, there were no answers, only small, final gestures of love.

One young man dropped his blue ribbon onto Kavalos' casket. Another dropped a flower. They turned to each other, young men and young women united in a senseless tragedy, and cried and hugged.

"We don't understand," Senczyszy said. "No one has any answers."

Shooting suspect arraigned

A 23-year-old man faced six charges in Detroit's 36th District Court Saturday in the Aug. 15 shooting of Livonia teens Nick Kavalos and Daniel Deckard.

Court records gave no address for James Lee Kendall, who was charged with first degree murder, assault with intent to murder, armed robbery, unlawfully driving away a vehicle, a felony firearms charge and arson. He was arraigned before Judge Robert Costello.

Kendall is charged with killing Kavalos, 18, a 1993 Churchill High graduate, and shooting Deckard, 17, a Churchill High senior. The shootings took place late Sunday evening in northwest Detroit, where the two teens had gone to sell Kavalos' GMC Jimmy.

Deckard is still hospitalized.

Kavalos' stolen GMC Jimmy was recovered in Detroit. It had been burned.

The shootings occurred near the corner of Shirley and Buena Vista, near the I-96 Expressway.

Area man to be charged in drunken driving death

■ If tried and convicted, the man could face up to 15 years in prison.

A 36-year-old Garden City man is scheduled to be arraigned in Westland's 18th District Court today (Monday) amid charges he hit a 70-year-old Westland woman with his car and killed her while he was driving drunk.

Agnes Harb, 70, died on the night of Aug. 6 after she was hit on Merriman Road north of Van Born while she was crossing the street to go to a nearby McDonald's restaurant, Westland police said.

Harb, who lived at the Leisure Village nursing home across the street from McDonald's, had crossed four of the five lanes on Merriman when she was struck by the car and died after rolling 51 feet, Westland police officer Steven Frazer said.

Harb suffered multiple injuries during the 9:30 p.m. incident.

The Wayne County prosecutor's office has approved a warrant charging the Garden City driver with causing a death while operating under the influence of liquor, Frazer confirmed Friday.

The man is expected to be arraigned today in 18th District Court and will be scheduled for a preliminary hearing, which will determine whether there is probable cause that he committed the crime and should stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court.

If tried and convicted, the man could face up to 15 years in prison, Frazer said. The man was legally drunk at the time of the accident, registering above the blood-alcohol level of .10 that is considered legally drunk, the officer said.

Harb may have contributed to the accident by failing to cross Merriman at a traffic light, Frazer said. The nearest traffic light is about a quarter-mile south of the site of the accident, he has said.

Harb also was wearing dark clothing at the time, Frazer said.

But Westland police and the prosecutor's office believe the accident could have been avoided if the Garden City man hadn't been drinking alcohol.

"That's my position, and that's the position of the Wayne County prosecutor's office," Frazer said Friday.

Huge holiday light show planned for Hines Park

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County Parks officials got a green light last week to set up a huge annual holiday light show in Hines Park this winter, but some county commissioners are seeing only red lights.

County Executive Edward McNamara and nine out of 15 county commissioners have agreed to borrow $250,000 from the county's Extended Lease Financing Program to buy lights and decorations from Bronners Christmas Decorations of Frankenmuth to adorn 4½ miles of Hines Drive for 60 days from mid-November to mid-January.

They have amortized the loan over five years and expect to raise $300,000 in the first year alone by requesting a $5 voluntary donation from every carload of folks who show up to see the display.

Objecting commissioners included Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton, and Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Referring to himself as "the Grinch," McCotter said there's no way he could support such a thing. "With an $11.75 million deficit (so far), now is not the time to be purchasing Christmas lights."

McCotter also wondered about the cost of set-up, maintenance and storage of the decorations, not to mention the liability cost to the county if someone were to get hurt and sue.

Amann agreed. "It's the equivalent of buying a new pair of shoes, then you have to buy a new outfit to go with it," he said.

■ Among the decorations the county will buy are four eight-foot elves, two waving snowmen, an 18-foot toy soldier, a 15-foot waving Santa Claus, two nine-foot golfers, 11 six-foot snowflakes and one seven-foot fishing penguin.

The original idea came from Hurley Coleman, the county parks director, who said he wants to generate revenue for the parks because the parks budget may be cut for 1994. "We've done enough research to know that it's not frivolous," Coleman said. "This is government trying to do something that makes good business sense." Similar projects have been launched in Ann Arbor, Flint, Oglebay Park, W.Va. and Decatur, Ill.

But McCotter said that "if this was such a clear-cut case of making money, some entrepreneur would have done it already."

Also opposing the light show were commissioners Susan Hubbard, D-Dearborn, and Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe, who don't often find themselves on the same side of an issue.

Area commissioners who supported the light show are Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford, and Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City.

In a written statement, Plawecki said she supports the light show because budget cuts are almost inevitable later this year. "It's very likely that we will be facing a deficit, and that some programs will suffer budget cuts as well as the possibility of elimination," she wrote. "Therefore, I supported the 'Festival of Lights' program because it is designed to be a revenue generator."

McCotter was mad enough to issue his own written statement in the form of a press release. "I've had residents of Northville and Plymouth Townships ask the county to improve public services, but never to install Christmas lights," he wrote. "This issue sends taxpayers the clear message that the county has seriously misplaced it's priorities."

The parks department is also expecting to pay $60,000 for personnel and $5,000 for promotion of the light show. Detroit Edison has agreed to increase the electrical capacity of the park for free, a $40,000 value. Additional donations are being sought.

Among the decorations the county will buy are four 8-foot elves, two waving snowmen, a 20-foot ice fountain, an 18-foot toy soldier, a 15-foot waving Santa Claus, two 9-foot golfers, 11 6-foot snowflakes and one 7-foot fishing penguin.

Governor promises 'net tax cut'

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Gov. John Engler is determined that Michiganians will get a net tax cut, even after new taxes are imposed to pay for schools.

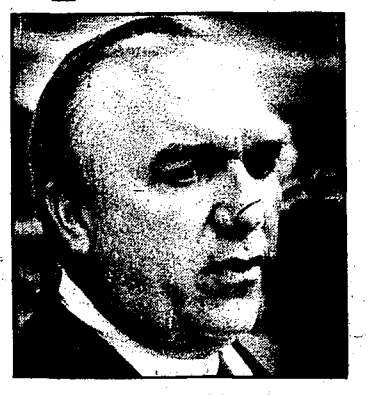
But Engler said he has seen nothing to "open the door" to raising the state personal income tax to pay for the $6 billion property tax cut he signed into law Thursday.

Asked if he had set a figure for a net tax cut, he said, "There will be a net tax cut, but no numbers have been set."

Meanwhile, the Michigan Federation of Teachers, representing Detroit and a few suburbs, filed suit in Wayne Circuit Court to halt the property tax cut because the state has found no replacement revenue.

State treasurer Doug Roberts, an Engler appointee, said the governor might seek again to have voters raise the 4 percent sales-use tax as a major replacement source. Polls have shown the sales-use tax is the least unpopular of all taxes in Michigan.

Engler went to Greenfield Village in Dearborn Thursday, to the 1861 Scotch Settlement School that Henry Ford attended, where he signed Senate Bill 1 to cheers from a mainly Republican audience. It repeals $6 billion in operating property taxes for public schools and intermediate (county) districts. The state still supplies $3.5 billion in school aid.



■ 'This fall I want to see significant reforms passed by the Legislature and on my desk.'

John Engler
Governor

Plans floated

Here's how the 1994 school finance picture is taking shape:

- Republicans talked of a net cut in taxes of $500 million to $2 billion.
- Engler touted "schools of choice," in which parents would choose which public schools their kids would attend, although state grants for that program will be ended as of Oct. 1.
- Many lawmakers are talking about restoring school districts' ability to levy "enrichment taxes." There was little agreement, however, on whether those would be a restoration of part of the property tax or a local income tax.
- Engler and GOP lawmakers showed little interest in consolidating small, fiscally weak school districts. Michigan has 562 districts, many with only a few dozen pupils.
- Despite stiff resistance from teachers unions, Republicans will seek "cost containment" laws to cut school costs.

"This fall I want to see significant reforms passed by the Legislature and on my desk," Engler said.

The audience cheered his references to weeding "mediocrity" and "bureaucracy" out of education. Citing the $9 billion cost of Michigan public schools, Engler said, "We are already paying for a world class education. Now it's time to deliver one" — to more applause.

Engler repeated his call for "schools of choice" within the public school system but wouldn't endorse consolidating small districts. He said he would rather free local districts from dealing with finances and let them concentrate on teaching.

Last year the Legislature put up money for "choice" plans within counties, said Robert Schiller, superintendent of public instruction. "But they were planning grants. The program did not get under way," he said.

This year there is no money for planning "choice" programs. Nevertheless, Schiller said the State Board of Education is committed to encouraging districts to provide such programs.

Some cost cuts

Many legislators at the ceremony saw no need to replace all the lost $6 billion.

"There will be a net tax cut," said Rep. Willis Bullard, R-Milford, chair of the House Taxation Committee. "We'll eliminate some tax expenditures (tax breaks). We'll cut state spending. And we'll do cost containment.

"The governor seems to want to put a sales tax proposal on the ballot," added Bullard, whose panel would handle such a proposed constitutional amendment.

The Legislature's job is eased by the fact that the property tax cut law also eliminates an $850 million item from the budget — income tax rebates for homeowners who have paid property taxes beyond 3.5 percent of income.

"I don't see $6 billion in replacement taxes," said Rep. Jerry

Folk art crafters delight collectors

Folk art collectors tend to be savvy shoppers. They must exhibit an uncanny knack for being the first with the hot idea, the first to discover the underappreciated and undervalued.

Of course there's more to collecting than merely amassing a large number of reasonably priced items. True collectors only buy pieces that have meaning to them. They look for handcrafted quality, a sense of history and a personal connection. They fall in love first and worry about the financial value later. Often, the best pieces find them.

Kathy Bricker of Backdoor Gallery in Farmington defines folk art as something that is handcrafted and passed down from generation to generation. "It could have a functional use in addition to its art form," she says. With this in mind, she and her partner Kath Lathers opened a gallery of contemporary doll art. They exhibit non-traditional doll creations, each expressing a unique personality. The artists use fiber, wood, earth, metals and found objects to craft these extraordinary sculptures.

Personality plus

Lathers grew up in a small town and learned to sew at her grandmother's knee while the older woman spun memorable tales. Today, she imagines her own stories and expresses them through the dolls she makes. "I always leave room for the owner to personalize the doll," she says, explaining the simplicity of her storylines. Pictured is "Dreamsweep" — she sweeps away broken dreams to make room for new ones. Lathers' dolls are elf-like beings draped in exquisite fabrics. "They are crafted from the soul," she says, "very internal pieces."

Carol Styles of Jackson creates mythological figures, mostly goddesses woven of unusual, beautiful fibers. Grace Forrest's essential beings feature plaster guaze heads and hands, and each comes with a story. "They're wisps of a spirit," says Bricker.

California artist Olga Cinnamon's dolls are designed so that every person sees something different in each one. They are richly embellished with beads, exemplifying the fact that we are all made of different colors and textures.

Bonnie Penet of Ypsilanti uses twigs, bones, shells, feathers and other found objects to create her papier mache "Black Madonna."

Legendary heros

The work of Wendy Ellertson "inspires family legends," says Bricker. Her dolls are intricate, fantastical beings. And Marion Drougalis of Ypsilanti combines paper clay faces with painted fabrics to craft imaginative, legendary Native American figures. "A Light Heart" symbolizes the ancient adage that "to get to heaven, one's heart must be as light as a feather."

"We're really creating a new form of folk art," reasons Lathers. "It's the story aspect of our pieces that is so important to retain."

Visit this new and enchanting gallery at 37220 Eight Mile Road. Open Thursday and Friday, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Saturday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Santa Fe is a mecca for folk art collectors and we can enjoy some of the best of the west at Mesa Arts Gallery, 32800 Franklin Road in Franklin. Folk artist Mark Kluck intricately carves Sioux warriors on horseback, complete with authentic tribal costumes ($2750). The gallery also features his whimsical weathervane ($385) and a wonderful Noah's Ark inhabited by giraffes, bunnies, armadillos and elephants, among other creatures ($600).

Maria Cash carves colorful Hispanic religious figures. "Harvest Lady", dressed in a festive painted skirt, carries a basket of dried flowers ($925). The urban fetishes, worked in clay, of sculpture artist Alice Seely, depict Good Weather, Fertility and a Water Carrier, all in gorgeous Southwest colors. She also creates a collection of masks.

Follow your heart to the folk art collectible of your choice.

Fall fashion pays a tribute to the past

Fall fashions are inspired by history and the theater this season, making them classic purchases to be worn year after year. The dilemma for the shopper becomes: What era suits me?

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

After the shock wears off, you begin to realize that this year's fall fashions are really fun.

They are very definitely about "looks," attempting to replace the Corporate, Preppy, Grunge, and L.L. Bean looks of the '80s with '90s looks inspired by the classics of other eras like Indochine, Edwardian, Russian Immigrant, Medieval and Funky.

Indochine fashions mean beautiful, rich-hued sheaths that slit Suzy Wong-style as high as you dare to go. Indochine includes Nehru jackets over skinny pants and sarong skirts.

The Edwardian Look features romantic ruffled blouses with ruffled cuffs, patterned vests, jodhpurs, cutaway jackets trimmed with velvet or leather collars, slim-legged trousers and lace-up boots.

The Immigrant Look is upscale Russian, with wool coats trimmed in fur with fur hats and leather boots, "deconstructed" jackets and trousers, long slim skirts topped by oversized tunic sweaters and suspendered trousers with peg-legged pants.

The Medieval Look translates into hooded capes and robes, empire-waisted dresses, jewel-toned velvet skirts, jackets and slacks, brocade vests, gowns in fluid crepes and chiffons.

The grand finale is the '60s-flavored Retro Look bringing back the platform shoes, granny glasses, fringed and crocheted vests, bell-bottom slacks and chain belts, shoppers may still have in the back of their closets.

Saks Fifth Avenue reports in its Fall Folio catalog that "The new rules are no rules. Be romantic one moment. Cutting edge the next. Juxtapose day with night. One decade with another. Classicism with modernism. Let your personal style reign." Saks calls it "The New Realism."

M. J. Burns, Hudson's fashion director, suggested that each beautiful piece aside, what's really important this season are the accessories that make each look definitive and special.

"Chokers with pendants, pucci prints, tie-dye hosiery, hats, ankle boots, jewelry with peace signs, the short contrasted with the long, that's the key to fall dressing," she said. "Velvet is the essential fabric, whether it's crushed, soft or combined with lycra, or just used to trim jackets, or hats."

Janice Hayes fashion director at Jacobson's stressed the architectural element in fall dressing.

"Each look has an architectural quality to the style," she pointed out. "It's a very debonair season. From the beautiful simplicity of the monastic styles in black on black, to the long, over-long looks in ribbed knitwear. The new classics are inspired by the-

Extra money needed

Dems say education should cost more

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Democratic legislators and their friends say improving public schools may take more money — not less, as Gov. John Engler and Republicans contend.

"Education is under-funded now, even in Southfield," Dr. Marlene Davis told a visiting House Democratic Task Force last week. She is superintendent of Southfield shools, third biggest spending district ($9,300 per pupil) in Michigan.

"Senate Bill 1 (which eliminates school property taxes) took away $6 billion," said Rep. Ted Wallace, D-Detroit. "Maybe we ought to decide what we need and then come up with the money, which, from my perspective, may be more than $6 billion."

"Michigan is obsessed with how cheap we can do it," said Penny Shanks, former president of the Rochester PTA Council, agreeing with Wallace that state school funding is "definitely inadequate."

Leonard Brozozowski, a Farmington Hills resident who is president of Robotron Corp. in Southfield, said he has spent $250,000 in teaching many of his 130 employees basic skills. He said the manufacturer of electronic tools for heat treating firms must spend money on drug rehabilitation, employee turnover, and teaching math and problem solving.

Asked if he would be willing to spend more tax money on education, Brozozowski said yes. "I'm paying 'em anyway. If I can spend more up front in taxes and less later, I'd be ahead," he told the task force.

■ State Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, chaired a public hearing Thursday about what should be done to pay for schools now that the property tax has been wiped out.

Chaired by Rep. William Keith of Garden City, the Democratic task force met in Southfield's Civic Center a few hours after Republican Gov. John Engler signed into law a $6 billion cut in school operating property taxes. Although most lawmakers agree replacement taxes will be needed, Engler and Republicans are eyeing a net tax cut.

New curriculum

Keith was elated when Southfield's Davis echoed some of his pet ideas on changing the curriculum. She advocated:

■ Teaching reading, technical writing, speaking and listening with less emphasis on literature.

■ Emphasizing "applied physics — where the jobs are." Currently Michigan schools teach biology, chemistry and physics, "but very few take physics."

■ Shifting the math curriculum to probabilities and statistics rather than traditional algebra, geometry, trigonometery and calculus.

Parents resist change, Davis said. "They'd just as soon we do things the way they did so they can help their kids."

Shanks of the Rochester PTA blistered Gov. Engler's "schools of choice" plan. If it were adopted, she said, schools immediately would pour money into public relations and marketing to attract good students. "We don't need more overhead," she said.

"There would be no guarantee parents would have adequate information to make choices," Shanks said.

Job skills needed

Brozozowski said he found local job applicants poorly prepared. "Seven out of 10 couldn't spot six and five-eighths inches on a tape measure," he said.

Although his business is international, Brozozowski said just five of his 130 workers know a foreign language — three because they are immigrants who learned English as a second language.

Although Robotron has a computer for every two employees, he found that less than 25 percent of the workforce learned typig in school.

"Our culture focuses on individual performance instead of team performance. We (public schools) don't teach the skills of problems solving," he said.

Brozozowski advocated a longer school day and year, noting foreign high school graduates have spent an average of 3.2 years more in class than Americans by the end of 12th grade.

Jim Warner, vice chancellor for curriculum of Oakland Community College, said 74 percent of U.S. colleges must offer remedial work because high school graduates are so poorly prepared for college.

Dearborn Heights mother Kathy Gross said her daughter learns more in a private school for $900 a year than in public schools funded at $4,200 per pupil a year. "You've been putting in large numbers of tax dollars. But money doesn't solve it," she said.

"Public schools take all comers," countered Rep. Maxine Berman of Southfield. "If you can't make it in private schools, you're out."

Added Rep. Wallace: "It's interesting everyone seems to feel that in government we can get more for less. But in every other part of life, we believe you pay for what you get."

atrical and historical fashions."

Hayes said she expected all forms of the white blouse to be a bestseller for Jacobson's this season. Whether tailored, ruffled or dandified, most looks are built around the white blouse. Knitwear will also sell well, according to Hayes, whether it's sheer, flat knitwear or the bulkier ethnic handknits.

If there ever was a year to buy a new winter coat, it's this year all fashion leaders agreed. The coats have never been so highly styled, fancier buttoned or carefully trimmed. Patterned after military, equestrian and Edwardian looks of the past, the coats and hooded capes are sure to please and uplift many a dreary Michigan winter morning.

Taylor Holiday of Troy was shopping at Hudson's in the Oakland Mall for something to wear to her husband's class reunion next month. She selected a black, Suzy Wong-styled sheath which she planned to rewear come New Year's Eve.

"I saw a movie on cable where the actresses all wore dresses like this," she said. "They looked so glamorous. I feel the same way. Can't gain a pound though, or the elusion is shattered."

This shopping season, when retailers don't expect too much because of the uncertain tax plans and slow-bounding economy, the designers have given shoppers something to think about.

NOW comes to life

Beginning in September, the Western Wayne County Chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW) will change the focus of its one-hour monthly membership meetings.

The focus will shift from business to feminist programs featuring Metro area activists and legislators, said Tracey Martin, chapter president.

The Sept. 8 program will feature Jeff Montgomery, president of the Triangle Foundation and a longtime activist in the effort to secure full civil rights for lesbians and gays.

In Michigan, he is spearheading the Michigan Campaign for Human Dignity, formed to stop the imposition of state-sponsored homophobia in Michigan. NOW is a member of the campaign coalition, Martin said.

Montgomery also will speak on whether women's rights are safe if rights for lesbians and gays can be taken away.

The Oct. 13 program will feature Renee Chelian, owner of the Northland Family Planning Clinics. She will speak on the future of Operation Rescue and its impact on abortion. Her theme is, "Us, Them and the Future of Reproductive Rights."

All membership meetings, held at 7 p.m. on the second Wednesday of each month at Hoover Elementary, 15900 Levan, are open to the public.

Lawmakers explain education strategy

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

To fix an educational system they said had broken down, three state lawmakers came to western Wayne County Thursday for a town hall meeting to get ideas on how the system should be rebuilt.

"We understand the gravity of what we have done," said Rep. Lyn Bankes, a Republican who represents parts of Livonia and Redford Township. "But the system could not have been any worse."

Armed with ideas generated locally and throughout the state, Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, promised the new system built by the end of 1993 will be much better than the old.

"We have the opportunity to address such issues as quality, accountability and equity," Vorva said. "I'm optimistic about what's taken place."

Sen. Robert Geake, a Republican who represents parts of Redford Township and Livonia, called the property tax system the worst possible way to finance public education in Michigan.

"We could change it, or do nothing," Geake said. "That's what your legislature has done these many years. It became obvious we had to remove the option of doing nothing. We tried and got nowhere for years."

The town meeting came hours after Gov. John Engler signed legislation that repealed the use of property taxes to fund public school operations beginning September 1994.

Praise and criticism

Some who spoke Thursday criticized Michigan lawmakers for their historic and controversial action.

"Bankes said we had to do something," said Bryan Doyle. "But it's like being on the Titanic and putting another hole in the boat just to get the water out."

The lawmakers' action outraged Redford resident Martin Hansen, who said he usually agreed with Geake, but not this time. "Not having another plan in place will create a crisis. That's not an appropriate way to solve the problem."

Other speakers applauded the lawmakers for their action. One proponent is Thomas Goebel.

Goebel said Michigan lawmakers now have the chance to change Michigan's education system to the point where costs can be cut. "If there's no real savings, what you're doing won't work. You have to operate at less money. The teachers' union will destroy the state if they don't offer some kind of compromise."

One Livonia teacher questioned whether the lawmakers could succeed by the end of 1993 in the "mindboggling" task of coming up with a new way of funding education in Michigan.

Redford Union School District Superintendent Ken Johnson said he had "great reservations" about changing the system without first having a new one in place.

But the current "flawed" system is "severely damaged," Johnson said, and needs to be changed.

■ 'We understand the gravity of what we have done. But the system could not have been any worse.'

Lyn Bankes
state representative

No to 'Robinhoods'

In devising a new system, Johnson urged lawmakers not to take money away from the richer school districts.

"Don't bring quality districts down; bring Redford Union up," Johnson said.

In putting together the new system, Bankes said "everything is on the table." Two trends now emerging from legislative committee meetings, she said, are regional negotiation of teacher's contracts and a minimum per student grant of at least $4,500 that could be taken to either a public school of choice or a charter school (a regional school created for a specific reason).

"But nothing has been decided yet," Bankes said. "We're now deciding the outline we'll work with."

Some speakers asked that private schools be funded under the new system.

A mother who teaches in a private school said parents should have the right to choose a private school and have the schooling paid for by the state.

"If they can choose their spouse or their home, they should be able to choose their school, too," she said.

Michigan residents must change the state Constitution to spend public tax dollars on private schools, Bankes said.

Former Livonia school board trustee Marjorie Roach said she opposed spending public money on private schools.

Suggestions offered

She said the state should continue to reward communities that promote business and industry in return for a strong tax base.

While consolidation of districts can cut costs, the larger they get, the more wasteful they become, Roach said.

Patricia Hansen said the state should devise an alternative form of education for students who are troublesome.

Speakers asked the lawmakers to take the following ideas back to their colleagues in Lansing:

- Consolidate districts and cut the number of superintendents and other school administrators.
- Seek a 5 cents sale tax instead of the 6 cents (Proposal A) rejected by voters last spring.
- Create one bargaining unit for the state's teachers.
- Launch a voucher system, wherein students can take their state grant to the school of their choice.
- Make business and industry pay their fair share, recognizing that the costs of doing business vary around the state.
- Maintain local control of school districts.
- Make both school districts and parents more accountable.
- Pay good teachers more money.
- Stop financing sports and extra-curricular activities with taxpayer dollars.
- Increase the income tax.
- Allow a "local enrichment tax" beyond the funding guaranteed by the state.
- Speed up passage of the 1993-94 school aid bill, which all Michigan school districts are anxiously awaiting. The bill is now two months overdue.

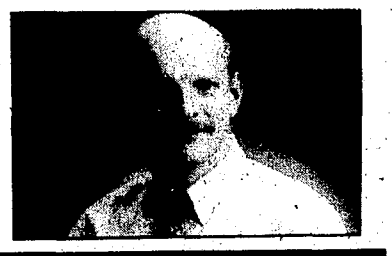
Smoke-eater Bill gets fired up over assignment



BILL COUTANT

It's about 7 p.m. and Lt. Tom Shurtleff is showing a group of mostly new volunteer firefighters the floor plan of a house that he's just sure will go up in flames this very evening.

That's because Shurtleff will help make sure it does, so these paid-on-call firefighters can learn from one of only two "training burns" the department has been able to arrange this year.

"We used to have as many as 11 of these a year," Farmington Hills Fire Chief Richard Marinucci tells the group during the pre-fire briefing at Station 3 in the Olde Town section of the city. "We only have about two a year now. So pick up as much as you can."

Actually, many fire departments don't do training burns at all. There are just too many concerns about liability and safety.

Shurtleff tells the group to make sure and refill their air packs and to "rehydrate" or drink water as often as possible.

Within about a half hour, an old, abandoned house on property to be developed as a new subdivision on Nine Mile near Averhill, becomes the training subject for the firefighters. For some it is their first fire. For me it is.

Hot day; heavy clothes

The temperature is in the mid-80s and the air is as heavy as an overcoat. On go the boots, heavy protective pants, coat, hood, helmet with mask and an air pack — about 65 pounds that feels like a ton by the time it's on.

"Is it (the air) on?" asks Lt. Mike Garr, a veteran firefighter who specializes in fire prevention and is my guide through this inferno. I can hear him through our two masks, but it's like we're in a fish tank. Garr says that when he first used an air pack, many of his fellow firefighters snickered, as if he were less than a true firefighter for using one. Now they are standard, required equipment.

I inhale and it's like air conditioning in my mouth — the only cool place in my body. But the momentary enjoyment of that small oasis gives way to the oppressive heat, as if I'm going through an old-fashioned washer ringer and all my energy is being squeezed out. I'm on fire and we haven't even seen flame one.

It's 8 p.m., time to head into the burning building. Those bulky boots don't lift that easily as we climb a small stairway to two upstairs bedrooms, all the while staying low and pulling a heavy fire hose. Fire marshal Steve Hume starts the fire and it quickly goes out.

"I guess it's against our nature to start fires," quips Garr.

Later I ask why they don't use gasoline or starter fluid — like when you fire up the charcoal grill out back.

What, no gasoline?

Shurtleff quickly reminds me of the training fire in Milford in October of 1987 that claimed the lives of three firefighters when accelerants "flashed over," cutting off their path of escape.

Hume tries again, this time successfully, and the flames quickly climb the wall from the pile of newspapers and pallets meant to duplicate furnishings. Then the flames fan out over the ceiling, like outstretched fingers, greedily consuming all before them.

The new firefighters pull off their gloves to get an idea how hot the fire has already become. I do the same and lean against the wall to brace myself before realizing that protective clothing only goes so far — Ouch!

Watch that airpack!

Then a bell rings. Somebody's air pack is within five minutes of being empty so it must be refilled at one of the specially equipped fire trucks. But that is an improvement from a time when the air packs had to be refilled at the fire station.

After two upstairs fires, even the younger firefighters are feeling the heat and camping around the water, lemonade and Gatorade coolers between trips into the house.

Chad Lyon, one of the newer firefighters, grabs some water and admits that the heat has burned off any adrenalin he had going in, unlike his first fire — a real one in February, which claimed a resident's life and totally burned down a two-story house.

"I went through three tanks (30 minute air packs) before I even took a break at that one," he says. "I had so much adrenalin going."

We go back in the house to fight another fire when I come to another depressing realization — call it a lack of vision on my part. Garr had asked me if I would feel claustrophobic in all that gear. "No," I had told him. "Just as long as I can see what I'm doing."

Wrong answer! I quickly find that once the smoke gets going, I'm lucky to see anything. Then I remember deputy chief Pete Baldwin telling me about a time when he walked up stairs onto a landing and became disoriented.

"Every firefighter who does this very long has at least one of those type of experiences," he says.

MIKE GARR

Smiling and sweltering: Reporter Bill Coutant is happy that he's about to get out of some hot duds and take a cool shower after a recent training burn in Farmington Hills.

House is a maze

There will be several more fires throughout the old house, which because of many additions, is like a maze, even though firefighters know the floor plan. Most times firefighters aren't that lucky.

"It would be like me taking you into my house blindfolded," Garr says. "You don't know where anything is and you can't see. And nowadays, the bedrooms in a house can be downstairs, or anywhere. So finding people inside can be tricky."

Garr tells me that people outside can often tell as much or more about where things are and what the fire is doing than those inside, which is why the officer in charge stays outside.

"I was once going up some stairs," Garr says. "They (firefighters outside) told me not to, so I came back down. When I got outside, I could see that the stairs had been burned away. But because of the smoke, I couldn't see that."

I leave the scene before 9 p.m. to get a cold shower back at the station and head off to another assignment. The firefighters don't finish their training fires until about 10:30 p.m. Putting away the equipment and cleaning up the site takes them well past midnight.

There is another entire set of problems firefighters face in the winter months. But I try not to think of that now. Besides, I'm too hot and too tired.

Bill Coutant is a reporter for the Farmington Observer.

Vorva, R-Plymouth. "It will be significantly less. A $2 billion savings would be wonderful. It's possible, though I'm not overly optimistic."

"There will not be a (restoration of the) property tax for schools," said Rep. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester. "There will be restructuring of the budget."

"There will be a combination of taxes and reduction of costs," predicted Rep. Tom Middleton, R-Ortonville. "I see a half-billion to one-billion-dollar cost reduction."

Middleton would like to see other local units of government allowed to collect more property taxes so that the state could get rid of its revenue-sharing program with cities, townships and counties.

Middleton said allowing schools to collect a local income tax was a possibility.

That made Wayne-Westland school board member Laurel Raisanen shudder. "Right now these local elections are tearing our districts apart. These millage elections are ugly," she said.

Dec. 31 deadline

One of the few Democrats attending was Sen. Debbie Stabenow, the only candidate for Engler's job who voted for the massive property tax cut.

"The schools will be funded in 1994," the senator from Lansing said. "We had to create a deadline."

Stabenow predicted the Legislature would enact replacement taxes by Dec. 31. If it fails to do so, any taxes enacted in 1994 would require a two-thirds majority, under the constitution, so they could take effect the same year.

As for intraparty criticism she has received, Stabenow wrote it off as "election year politics."

Sales tax base

One idea discussed very quietly in Lansing has been expanding the base of the sales tax — applying it to more items without raising the 4 percent rate.

"I don't think we're going to do that. I'd rather increase the rate (requiring voter approval). We also could eliminate exemptions on the income tax. That would raise $1 billion. Each 0.1 percent increase in the single business tax raises $85 million," Bullard said.

Protests

Teachers unionists picketed the entrance to Greenfield Village. One Detroit school activist shouted during the ceremony that "some of us aren't applauding you, governor."

In general, unionists would have preferred to levy replacement taxes before eliminating the property tax as the source of two-thirds of public school revenues. The Michigan Education Association called the bill signing ceremony "a day of catastrophic consequences."

Taxes drag down recovery - expert

The advance economic barometer, a Comerica Bank index that forecasts business activity six months into the future, rose to 2.4 in July, representing a 0.7 point improvement over a downward revised 1.7 level in June.

"These readings are not terribly impressive," said David L. Littmann, first vice president and senior economist with the bank in Detroit.

Except in June, this bellwether index of economic direction has averaged 1.4 since March, suggesting real gross domestic product gains averaging 1.5 to 3.0 percent for the economy during the rest of 1993.

"During the economic recoveries of 1971-73, 1975-76 and 1983-84, the barometer registered levels of strength between 5.0 and 9.0 for protracted periods. In those instances, the economy followed suit within six to 12 months, exhibiting quarterly real growth rates between 5 and 10 percent," Littman said.

Littman blamed "the fiscal drag exerted by tax increases."

"The advance economic barometer is performing at levels nearly a full point lower than last fall, meaning that the Michigan business activity index will be less vigorous in January 1994 than it was at mid-year."

The advance economic barometer combines inflation-adjusted money growth, yield curve spread, and the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators to produce an economic indicator.

I used to wear glasses and contacts...

until I had RK (Radial Keratotomy) at the Vision Institute of Michigan!

Meet Michelle of Lake Orion.

Like many other people, Michelle used to wear glasses and contact lenses to correct her nearsightedness. Then she discovered RK -- a brief (3 -5 minute) office surgery which permanently eliminated her dependence on corrective lenses.

Michelle chose to have her RK at the Vision Institute of Michigan. She liked the success rate -- 96.4% of patients reach vision of 20/40 or better.* And she liked the fact that Dr. Novetsky, his wife, mother, brother, and many of the Vision Institute staff have all had RK.

"Dr. Novetsky having the surgery really impressed me. I figured if he had it, he'd be really sensitive to my feelings. The staff was wonderful, too. Going to the Vision Institute of Michigan for my RK was the best thing I've ever done!"

CHEF LARRY JANES

Pig roast delicious way to feed a crowd

When the Janes Gang throws a party, watch out! Everyone loves a party, and as we near the traditional end of summer, the Janes Gang is no different.

Momma has a simple guideline that was instilled in all the kids — "when you throw a party, never run out of food."

So as Labor Day weekend fast approaches, and with it thoughts of ending the summer with a party to beat all parties, I thought it might be helpful to offer a few tips on how to roast a pig; kind of a "pig primer."

Folks who might attempt a pig roast have two things in common: They love good pork, and they have a multitude of friends. Roasting a whole pig to serve a large group can be done by several methods. It goes without saying, a pig roast should be well planned.

To achieve tasty results, it's best to keep several points in mind. First off, the party planner should have a good source for whole pigs, should know how to beg, borrow or steal a rotating spit device or have access to a good pit, and lastly and most importantly, should be aware of proper cooking procedures.

When it comes to locating a whole pig for roasting, your best bet is to contact a reputable butcher. Small suckling pigs, varying in weight from 12 to 35 pounds, and can be roasted in a standard oven or large covered grill with minimum fuss.

Larger pigs, escalating in weight to upwards of 125 pounds are fairly common, but need sophisticated equipment, and someone with a fairly good understanding of pig roasts.

There's nothing worse than having 75 of your closest friends stand around for hours waiting for the pig to graduate from rare to medium well done. If your butcher can't offer a good source, contact your local 4-H Club or call a large meat broker in the Eastern Market area of Detroit. (Yours truly gets his pigs from Allied Provision in the Eastern Market area.)

Expect to pay about $1.89 per pound for a whole dressed pig, with head intact. To ensure adequate portions, allow at least 2 pounds of dressed pig (head on) per person. If you don't know anyone with a pig roaster, your best bet is to rent one from an agency.

Motorized pig spits start at $75 to rent and escalate in price as the pig escalates in weight. If you have a big back yard, and don't mind digging a hole three feet deep, 30 inches wide, and of sufficient length to accommodate the pig (figure on at least 4 feet in length for a larger pig) you can pit roast.

To pit roast, the cook must build up hot coals at least 1½ feet deep, and then cover them with pea gravel about 2 inches deep. The pig is placed on a grate of welded wire and then immediately covered with galvanized roofing and a foot or more of dirt.

Pit roasting is popular with cooks who want to entertain while the pig cooks because this method requires about 12 hours of cooking time for an 85-100 pound pig.

Both methods will require about 200 pounds of good hardwood or charcoal.

Lastly, anyone who knows about roasting pigs will tell you that a good chef always has a meat thermometer within arm's reach.

Whole dressed pigs require minimal additives to make the meat succulent and tasty. Speaking from experience, I have rubbed the entire pig, inside and out with grenadine, a sugary syrup available at party stores, that induces a subtle sweetness while the pig cooks.

Stuffing the cavity with bunches of fresh herbs — rosemary and sage — also offers a tasty alternative. Salt and pepper are de rigeur and other than that, the most important ingredient is time. Not the herb, but the hours needed to make for a memorable meal.

Having done both a rotating spit and a pit roast, I prefer the rotating spit method for cooking simply because the person in charge has more control over timing and doneness.

The only obstacles I can recall from spit roasting a pig include careful observation of the pig, especially during the last few hours. During the last few hours of cooking, the juices begin to run rampant and can turn a pig roast into a pig fire in seconds. Also, as the pig cooks, it must be securely fastened to the spit so that it will not flop around and possibly break.

A drip pan is a must to catch the drippings and after securely attaching the pig to the spit, I then wrap the pig in chicken wire so that it will not break apart.

If you have an oven thermometer, the roasting temperature should stay at a constant 200-250 degrees for optimum results.

A relatively enclosed spit will maintain this temperature and can cook a 125 pound pig in about 6 hours.

Tropical treat: The tangy taste of key lime pie is available in Michigan from many area bakeries and restaurants, including the Whistle Stop in Birmingham.

THE PIES HAVE IT:

key lime's a slice above

Key lime pie is tangy and sweet at the same time. Most people sample it for the first time in Florida. But you don't have to wait. Whistle Stop, Key Largo and Baker's Loaf are known for their scrumptious Key lime pie. Find out why.

BY GERI RINSCHLER
SPECIAL WRITER

If you travel to the southernmost point of the continental United States, you will surely happen upon a most heavenly dessert. And once you taste this tropical delight, you'll undoubtedly return to Michigan craving more.

Why is it that most of us have to travel to the Florida Keys to discover a treat that's been here all along? I can't answer that question, but after sampling a few slices of Key lime pie from three local experts, I can say, there's no need to travel to the Keys for Key lime pie.

When John and Frank Camileri took over ownership of the Whistle Stop restaurant in Birmingham a few months ago, they didn't think Key lime pie would become one of their signature desserts. Whistle Stop provided the pie that was photographed in our Livonia studio for this story.

"Key lime pie was on the menu when we assumed ownership and has been on the menu for many years," said John Camileri.

"Many of the recipes we're following were established by the restaurant's founder Kathryn Griffith, and we're dedicated to maintaining the integrity she established, and the collection of her original recipes."

It's hard to say what the original Key lime pie recipe looked like when Floridians discovered the Key lime. If you travel throughout the Keys today, you'll encounter pies made mostly with a graham cracker crust, and a few made with a butter pastry crust.

Most recipes for the filling incorporate sweetened condensed milk, egg yolks or whole eggs, and lime juice. Some fillings are baked, others are thickened with gelatin and refrigerated. Some are topped with meringue,

Couple battles high cholesterol

LAURA LETOBAR

High fat diets have a definite relationship to certain kinds of cancer. One is breast cancer. This is what led Marie Schiete of Livonia to switch to low-fat cooking. Schiete who is recovering from breast cancer surgery, is "cleaning up her act."

Both she and her husband Richard are also battling high cholesterol.

They are keeping a careful watch on their daily fat intake by following low-fat diet recommendations by the American Cancer Society and American Heart Association. They've also begun walking daily.

Schiete said she believes that "life goes on" even after a bout with breast cancer. That is why she is taking an active role in modifying her family's diet.

She submitted a recipe she obtained from her daughter's mother-in-law for Lentil Sausage Casserole and asked for a "makeover."

Marie and Richard said they enjoy the casserole because it is comfort food. But due to the pork sausage, it was extremely high in fat.

I replaced the pork sausage with ground turkey. If you notice, I also increased the amount of tomato sauce from 8 ounces to 15 ounces. This is due to the low moisture in ground turkey breast.

The pork sausage adds quite a large amount of liquid to this recipe. This is due to the fat from the sausage liquefying and mixing with the other ingredients.

A rule of thumb is to increase the liquids when replacing a high fat meat with a low-fat one. Otherwise, your recipe will be very dry.

The amount of liquid will be something you must adjust per recipe. Just remember that the lower the fat content of the replacement meat, the more liquid you will need to add. I usually choose a liquid that will also add flavor to the recipe. This is

Lentil-Sausage Casserole

ORIGINAL RECIPE

1/2 pound dried lentils, washed
1 teaspoon salt
1 pound ground pork sausage
1 medium onion, chopped
1/2 cup green pepper, chopped
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
1/4 cup molasses
1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
1/2 cup (2 ounces) shredded cheddar cheese

Put lentils in a large saucepan with 2 1/2 cups water and salt. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, for 30 minutes or until tender. Do not drain lentils. Brown meat and drain on paper toweling. Reserve one tablespoon meat drippings. Place sausage in a 2-quart casserole dish. Saute chopped onion and green pepper in reserved drippings. Add tomato sauce, molasses, Worcestershire sauce and dry mustard to cooked lentils and mix thoroughly. Add lentil mixture to casserole dish and mix thoroughly with meat. Bake, uncovered, in 350 degree oven on center rack for 1 hour. Sprinkle with cheese and bake, uncovered until cheese is melted (about 3 minutes). Makes 6 servings.

KEY LARGO'S KEY LIME PIE

2 large eggs, separate yolks and whites
16 ounces condensed milk
2 ounces Key lime juice
⅓ ounce natural gelatin
⅓ ounce very hot water
1 9-inch graham cracker pie shell

Add yolks to mixer bowl. Using the whites, brush them lightly over the graham cracker crust shell. Bake crust in a 350 degree oven for 2 minutes or until golden brown. Set crust aside to cool while preparing the filling.

Whip the yolks until they are light and lemon in color. In a separate bowl, dissolve gelatin in the hot water. When dissolved very slowly add to mixing bowl. Then, slowly add condensed milk. Stir well blending in lime juice.

Pour filling into cooled crust and refrigerate for 4-6 hours. Serve chilled garnished with whipped cream and thin fresh lime slices.

KEY WEST LIMEADE

1 cup Key West lime juice
1 cup sugar
1 cup water
Club soda

Prepare a sugar syrup by mixing the sugar and water in a saucepan until dissolved. Remove from heat and pour in lime juice. Refrigerate mixture. To serve use 1 part lime syrup to 6 parts cold club soda.

KEY LIME PIE

1 9-inch graham cracker pie crust
1 14-ounce can sweetened condensed milk
8 ounces non-dairy topping (Cool Whip)
¼ cup fresh lime juice
¼ cup fresh lemon juice

Mix condensed milk with non-dairy topping until blended. Add lime juice and lemon juice to mixture and blend well. Pour into graham cracker crust. Refrigerate 3 hours before serving. Top with whipped cream (optional).

NORMAN VAN AKEN'S KEY LIME SNOW

2 envelopes Knox unflavored Gelatine
½ cup cold water
¾ cup sugar
½ teaspoon grated Key lime or lime peel
½ cup Key lime or lime juice
1½ cups boiling water
4 egg whites

KNOX GELATINE

Refreshing dessert: Key Lime Snow created by chef Norman Van Aken of Miami Beach, and taste tested by the Knox Kitchens, is a midsummer night's dream.

In a large bowl, sprinkle unflavored gelatine over cold water; let stand 5 minutes. Stir in sugar until blended. Add boiling water; stir until gelatine is completely dissolved, about 3 minutes. Add lime peel and juice. Chill until slightly thickened, about 15 minutes.

In a medium bowl, beat egg whites until stiff. While beating, gradually add gelatine mixture; beat until soft peaks form. Spoon into 8 dessert cups or a serving bowl; chill until firm about 2 hours.

Garnish, if desired, with twisted lime peel. Makes about 8 servings.

because fat is a natural flavor enhancer. When you remove the fat, the flavor may also be decreased.

This recipe also calls for ½ cup of shredded cheddar cheese. It is a good habit to learn to visualize the amount of a package you will need before you start measuring. For example, with shredded cheese, 2 ounces is equal to ½ cup. But, if you pack the cheese into the cup you can actually have twice the amount the recipe calls for.

This is where "hidden fats" can ruin a good low-fat recipe. So always try to visualize the amount of the total product you will need. Cheese usually comes in an 8-ounce package, you would only need ¼ of the package for this recipe.

Here's a great barbecue sauce recipe. It makes enough for a crowd.

BARBECUE SAUCE

Two 15-ounce cans tomato juice
1 cup dill pickle juice
1 cup honey
½ bottle (about 1 cup) Worcestershire sauce

Combine all ingredients and mix well. Serve with a roasted pig. Makes 1 quart.

most are garnished with whipped cream.

At the Whistle Stop, John Camileri improvised the traditional graham cracker crust a bit by adding chopped pecans and walnuts. The nuts add a nice crunch to the crust texture, and also balance well with the tangy Key lime filling.

I guess you should really expect a restaurant named Key Largo to feature Key lime pie on its menu, and you're right. Not only is it on the menu, it's been the best-selling dessert since the Walled Lake restaurant opened in 1987.

The technique used for the Key Largo pie filling is very similar to many found in the Keys. The filling — whole eggs, lime juice and sweetened condensed milk — is thickened with natural gelatin. It's then poured into a baked graham cracker crust and refrigerated 4-6 hours before serving.

According to Chef Matthew Jaguch, the secret to Key Largo's success starts with the use of authentic Key West lime juice which is ordered in gallon containers from Key West.

"Not only do we use the lime juice in our pie filling, but we also use it in a number of our tropical seafood entrees and salsas," he said.

Chefs at Whistle Stop and Key Largo agree that Nellie and Joe's Key West lime juice makes all the difference in their Key lime pies.

If you read Key lime juice bottle labels carefully, you'll notice a variety of descriptions for what's inside the bottle. Nellie and Joe's product is labeled, Key West Lime juice. Others call their product Key lime juice. If you travel to that southernmost part of Florida, you'll have difficulty finding an authentic Key lime tree.

And if you go to a produce market such as the Waterfront Market on Williams Street in Key West, they'll tell you that key limes are available only at certain times of the year. If you inquire further, they'll explain that it all depends on when an elderly Cuban man named Joe (we think he's the same Joe as the founder of Nellie and Joe's) delivers them in a small basket.

According to Rod Millar present owner of Nellie and Joe's, there has not been a commercial production of lime juice made exclusively with Key limes since 1946.

The Key lime trees which grow in Florida are very limited in number, "mostly because they're difficult to grow," he said. They grow on a small fragile tree which is easily injured by the winds and needs to be in a well-drained location.

Nellie and Joe's Key West lime juice is a blend of limes grown in southern Florida. What makes their product different is in the percentage of acidity formulated or blended to resemble the flavor of an authentic Key lime.

Before you pass judgment on the Key Lime pies in Birmingham and Walled Lake, you should venture to Southfield and try the pie at the Baker's Loaf on Northwestern Highway.

Here you'll find yet another version made with a graham cracker crust and a filling of sweetened condensed milk, Rose's lime juice and egg yolks which is baked and then topped with meringue. This popular pie is made year-round.

Owners Duane and Paula Christ have been making Key lime pie since they first opened their shop in 1977 according to shop/restaurant vice president Chuck Christ. "They've always been a good seller," he said "but it's incredible how the interest in this dessert continues to grow." So, if you've been looking for authentic Key limes to make a pie you should give up your search. But, when you're in the Florida Keys, look for Joe carrying a basket filled with limes that are a greenish-yellow in color and have a thin rind.

Now, if you want to take the easy way out, buy a bottle of Key West lime juice found at most gourmet shops including the Merchant of Vino in Birmingham, Southfield, and Troy, and in the Marketplace at Hudson's.

Rochester cook is runner-up in contest

Eleanor Froelich of Rochester, was named a runner-up in the 1993 Bays English Muffins "High Tea on the High Seas" National Recipe Contest for her original creation, "Pepper Saute with Grilled Cheese Muffins."

In this original snack recipe, Frolich's vegetarian melt sandwich combined a colorful array of sauteed peppers and was accented with fresh rosemary and balsamic vinegar.

Froelich's recipe was selected from more than 3,000 entries nationwide. She was awarded a gift pack of Bays English Muffins and a Bays gourmet apron in recognition of her delicious winning entry.

Contest rules required entrants to develop an original dessert or snack recipe using English muffins. Judging was conducted on the basis of taste, imagination, appearance, practicality and appropriateness for the dessertnack theme by food editors from Lady's Circle, Chicago Magazine, Parent's Magazine and Redbook.

Karen Durrett of Portland, Oregon won first place for her original recipe, "Bays Blueberry Crumb Cakes."

Here are the winning recipes.

BAY'S BLUEBERRY CRUMB CAKES

- 1 (8 ounce) package cream cheese, softened
- ¼ cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 3 Bays English Muffins, lightly toasted
- 1 cup frozen blueberries thawed or fresh
- Crumb topping:
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 2 tablespoons flour
- ¼ cup packed brown sugar
- ¼ cup quick-cooking oats

In medium bowl, beat cream cheese, sugar, egg and vanilla until smooth. Place about 2 rounded tablespoons of cream cheese mixture on each muffin half. Evenly arrange blueberries on top of cream cheese.

Make crumb topping. In a small bowl, with pastry blender, cut butter into flour until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Stir in brown sugar and oats.

Sprinkle one to two tablespons crumb topping over each muffin. Place muffins on a cookie sheet; bake in a preheated 350 degree F. oven, 20 to 25 minutes. Cool 30 minutes before serving. Serves 6.

PEPPER SAUTE WITH GRILLED CHEESE MUFFINS

- ¼ cup olive oil
- 2 medium onions, thinly sliced
- 2 medium red pepper, cut into ¼-inch strips
- 1 medium yellow pepper, cut into ¼-inch strips
- 1 medium green pepper, cut into ¼-inch strips
- 1 fresh rosemary sprig
- 1 tablespoon balsamic or red wine vinegar
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 3 Bays English muffins, lightly toasted and buttered
- 1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Swiss cheese
- Chopped parsley (optional)
- Snipped chives (optional)

In large skillet, over medium-low heat, add oil, onions, peppers and rosemary. Saute until onions and peppers are crisp-tender, about 15 minutes. Stir in vinegar, salt and pepper. Set aside. Arrange muffins on a baking sheet.

Sprinkle muffins evenly with shredded cheese. Broil 2 to 3 minutes, or until cheese is melted. Top muffins evenly with pepper mixture. Garnish with parsley and chives. Serve immediately. Serves 6.

BAYS ENGLISH MUFFINS

Winning recipe: "Bays Blueberry Crumb Cakes" placed first in the 1993 Bays English Muffins "High Tea on the High Seas" national recipe contest. Winner Karen Durrett used English muffin halves as the base for her blueberry cheesecake mixture, topped with a crunchy crumb topping and baked until golden brown.

Smoothie appeals to kids

AP — Few kids would argue that a visit from the ice cream man is about as good as it gets on a hot summer day. But kids can enjoy making their own frosty treats at home.

Red, White & Blueberry Smoothies take advantage of summer's fresh strawberries blended with blueberry yogurt, ice cold milk and a dollop of honey. With a little help from mom or dad, youngsters of all ages can create their own frozen sweets.

Begin by filling an ice cube tray with milk. Place it in the freezer until solid. In a blender, combine six frozen milk cubes with the rest of the ingredients; mix until frothy and smooth. Garnish with a fresh strawberry, if desired.

To make frozen pops, pour the mixture into an ice cube tray and cover with plastic wrap. Stick a toothpick into each cube and freeze until solid.

RED, WHITE AND BLUEBERRY SMOOTHIES

- 6 milk cubes (recipe below)
- 1 cup low-fat blueberry yogurt
- 1 cup sliced strawberries
- 1 cup extra-light 1 percent milk
- 2 tablespoons honey

To make milk cubes, pour extra-light milk into ice cube trays; freeze. Remove cubes from trays. Store in a plastic freezer bag or covered freezer container.

For the smoothies, combine six milk cubes and the remaining ingredients in a blender. Blend on high until smooth. Pour mixture into four tall glasses. For ice pops, pour mixture into pop molds and freeze, or fill ice cube trays, cover tightly with plastic wrap, stick a toothpick into each cube and freeze. Makes four 8-ounce smoothies or 30 ice cube tray pops.

Salsa cookbooks fiesta for the senses

AP — Salsas are virtually fat-free. Colorful and brightly flavored, a well-prepared salsa is a fiesta for the senses. And if you're ready to set aside that familiar bottle of ketchup for a flavorful new condiment, two new books offer a variety of recipes: "Salsas, Sambals, Chutneys & Chowchows" by Chris Schlesinger and John Willoughby (William Morrow, $20) and "Salsa" by P.J. Birosik (Collier Books, $10).

RED ONION RELISH IN THE LATIN STYLE

2 red onions, diced small
1 teaspoon minced garlic
5 tablespoons lime juice (about 2½ limes)
1 jalapeno pepper, chopped, or 1 teaspoon dried red pepper flakes
1 teaspoon ground cumin
1 teaspoon chili powder
Salt and freshly cracked black pepper, to taste
2 tablespoons chopped cilantro

In a medium-sized bowl, combine all ingredients. Mix well. Cover and refrigerate, up to one week. Goes well with grilled pork chops, black beans and rice. Makes 1½ cups.

Recipe from: "Salsas, Sambals, Chutneys & Chowchows" by Chris Schlesinger and John Willoughby. William Morrow. $20.

BANANA-LEMON-GINGER CHUTNEY

1 tablespoon peanut oil
1 onion, thinly sliced
1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger
4 almost-ripe (but not green) bananas, cut into 1-inch-thick rounds
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup fresh lemon juice (about 1 lemon)
¼ cup red-wine vinegar
¼ cup orange juice
Pinch each of ground mace, ground nutmeg, ground cloves and ground cinnamon
Salt and freshly cracked black pepper, to taste

In a large saute pan, heat the peanut oil over high heat until hot but not smoking. Add the onion slices and saute, stirring occasionally, until translucent, about 5 to 6 minutes. Lower the heat to medium, add the ginger, and saute an additional 1 minute. Add all the remaining ingredients, bring to a simmer, reduce heat to low and cook until the liquid is about as thick as ketchup, about 10 to 15 minutes.

This chutney will keep, covered and refrigerated, about 2 weeks. Goes well with roasted or grilled game such as rabbit, duck or quail. Makes about 3 cups.

Recipe from: "Salsas, Sambals, Chutneys & Chowchows" by Chris Schlesinger and John Willoughby. William Morrow. $20.

DRUNKEN SALSA

6 fresh New Mexican long red chilies, roasted, peeled, seeded, cut into ¼-inch pieces
6 fresh New Mexican long green chilies, roasted, peeled, seeded, cut into ¼-inch pieces
4 green onions (scallions), diced
2 large tomatoes, seeded and cut into ½-inch cubes
½ small yellow onion, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1½ ounces tequila
1 tablespoon fresh lime juice
½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
½ teaspoon chili powder

Mix all ingredients well in a medium bowl; serve immediately. It can be stored for only one day in the refrigerator. Makes about 3 cups.

To roast chilies: Place one or more chilies, as needed, on a grilling rack and broil about 4 inches away from heat until the top side is toasty brown. Turn the pepper over and repeat the process; the skin will blister and split. Remove the roasted skin entirely before preparing salsa by peeling, using rubber gloves, under cold water. Some people prefer to place roasted chilies inside a sealed plastic bag or in a plastic-coated bowl and let them "sweat" for 15 to 20 minutes prior to remove the skins by hand. You can also roast chilies by spearing them on a metal skewer and exposing them to an open flame until the skin darkens, then peel as described above.

Recipe from: "Salsa" by P.J. Birosik. Collier Books. $10.

Fuss-free blueberries summer treat

AP — One of the most uncomplicated fruits of summer, blueberries come in their own neat little package. No pitting, coring or peeling needed. They'll remain fresh 10 to 14 days if refrigerated at 32 degrees F to 35 degrees F. All you have to do is rinse them thoroughly just before eating or using as an ingredient in ice cream, chutney or sauce.

BLUEBERRY ICE CREAM

2 pints fresh blueberries
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup water
1 lemon, juice and zest
1 quart whole cream
2 egg yolks, beaten
Salt
Ice
Rock salt

Pick through blueberries to remove any stems; puree.

In a pan, heat sugar, water, lemon juice and zest to 125 degrees F to make a simple syrup. In another pan, heat the 1 quart whole cream to 100 degrees F.

Add the pureed berries to the syrup mixture while the syrup is still 125 degrees F. Continue to heat until the mixture is bright blue but not cooked.

In a large mixing bowl combine beaten egg yolks and a pinch of salt. Slowly add the heated cream mixture to the yolks, whisking constantly. Add the blueberries to the cream mixture. Place in the refrigerator about 45 minutes to chill. For best results, use a 5-quart ice cream maker with an electric motor top and a wooden bucket. Chill to about 45 degrees F with lots of ice and rock salt. Makes 12 half-cup servings.

BLUEBERRY CHUTNEY

4 cups fresh blueberries
1 large yellow onion, finely chopped
¼ cup white-wine vinegar
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup raisins
2 tablespoons minced fresh ginger
2 tablespoons minced garlic
2 tablespoons Madras curry powder
½ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons chopped fresh mint

In a medium-size, noncorrosive saucepan, combine all chutney ingredients except the mint. Bring to boil over medium heat. Reduce the heat and cook gently until the onions are tender and the chutney has thickened, about 25 to 30 minutes. Stir often to avoid scorching. Remove from heat and allow to cool before adding the mint. Serve as a sauce over grilled fish, poultry or pork.

Nutrition information per 1-tablespoon serving: 17 cal., 0 g pro., 0 g fat, 4 g carbo., 15 mg sodium, 0 mg chol.

Recipe from: Greg Higgins, executive chef, Heathman Hotel, Portland, Ore.

BLUEBERRY SAUCE

2 cups fresh blueberries
¼ cup orange juice
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
¼ teaspoon grated orange zest
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
Dash salt

Combine all ingredients in a saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat 4 to 5 minutes or until thickened. Serve on pancakes, waffles, blintzes, ice cream, pudding, angel food cake or pound-cake. Makes about 2 cups.

Nutrition information per 1-tablespoon serving: 20 cal., 0 g pro., 0 g fat, 5 g carbo., 1 mg sodium, 0 mg chol.

Recipe from: Oregon and Washington Blueberry Commissions.

Flavorful no-cook pasta sauces simple

Discover one of the age-old culinary secrets of the Italians. For centuries, they have been tossing hot pasta with no-cook sauces of chopped raw ingredients, olive oil, herbs and seasonings.

"Uncooked tomato sauces, in Italian salsa di pomodoro crudo, are delicious and popular summer fare in Italy," said Marie Simmons, widely-known culinary expert, and author of "365 Ways to Cook Pasta."

"The concept of tossing hot pasta with a room-temperature sauce is fairly new to Americans, but these sauces are surprisingly simple, fresh-tasting and healthful."

If you are looking for suggestions for summer menus, what could be more appealing than chopped ripe tomatoes seasoned with ricotta, fresh basil, red onion, garlic and olive oil?

These sauces are another great idea from the Mediterranean area where people have long enjoyed the helath and flavor benefits of olive oil.

In the following recipes from Marie Simmons' book, you can use any of the three varieties of olive oil available at supermarkets.

For full flavor, choose Filippo Berio Extra Virgin Olive Oil. If you prefer a more delicate olive oil taste, try Filippo Berio Pure — with a subtle flavor and golden color. And, for just a hint of olive oil taste, choose Filippo Berio Extra Mild, which, as its name implies, is very mild-flavored.

FRESH TOMATO, BASIL AND RICOTTA SAUCE

3 cups chopped ripe tomatoes
½ cup chopped fresh basil
2 tablespoons minced red onion
1 garlic clove, chopped
1 cup ricotta cheese
¼ cup olive oil
Salt and freshly ground black pepper

Combine the tomatoes, basil, onion, garlic. Stir in the ricotta, olive oil, salt and pepper to taste. Toss hot pasta with the sauce and serve at once.

Yield — 3 cups, or enough for 1 pound pasta, such as rotalle, fusilli, ziti, penne or tubetti.

Another no-cook pasta sauce is the following variation of the proverbial favorite, pesto. This sauce freezes well if the cheese is left out, then added once the sauce has thawed and is ready to use.

WALNUT PESTO SAUCE

½ cup broken walnuts
1 large clove garlic, chopped
2 cups packed fresh basil leaves
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup packed Italian flat leaf parsley
¾ cup olive oil
⅓ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Finely chop walnuts and garlic in a food processor; add half the basil and soft; coarsely chop. Add remaining basil and parsley.

With the processor running, add oil in a slow steady stream through the feed tube until mixture is thoroughly blended.

Transfer to a bowl: fold in cheese. Remove ½ cup of the pasta cooking liquid before draining the pasta. Toss hot pasta with sauce and reserved cooking liquid. Serve at once with additional cheese, if desired.

Yield — 1½ cups, or enough for 1½ pounds pasta

Make it simple: Toss hot pasta with a room-temperature sauce when it's too hot to cook.

Schoolcraft announces culinary course offerings

Schoolcraft College in Livonia is accepting registrations for the following culinary arts classes that begin in September.

■ European Bread Making: Learn to make European style breads, including yeast doughs, sourdough breads, quick breads and rolls. The two week course will meet 8 a.m to 1 p.m. Saturdays beginning September 18. The fee is $85.

Prevent accidental poisoning

With so many food items that look like other household products, cleaning supplies, cosmetics or even medicines, extreme care must be taken to prevent accidental poisoning.

So cautions Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

"One of the most dangerous things you can do is to transfer household cleaners out of their original containers," she said.

Sometimes containers appear so similar in color or shape that they can be accidently mistaken for one another. Food items should never be stored with household chemicals and medicines need to be either locked up or completely out of reach of young children.

Here are some tips to prevent poisoning by look-alike items:

■ Keep original labels on all foods, household medicines, cleaners and other items.

■ Never give or take medication in the dark.

ON WATCH FOR AMERICA

On ships, planes and submarines, in locations around the world, the men and women of the United States Navy are on watch. They re putting their training to work in jobs that make a difference, while developing skills they ll need for a successful future. Just as important, they re doing it for their country. They re Navy people, working hard for America. And that makes us proud.

CHEAP EATS

BY LISA RUDY
SPECIAL WRITER

The Allen Park Bar, at Allen Road and the Southfield Freeways, may look like your average beer and burger joint from the outside, but to anyone who's been there before, this little hole-in-the-wall eating and drinking establishment is anything but average.

As far as the outside appearances go, there's not much to comment about. It's . . . uh . . . brown. But inside, this place is jumping. During the day the clientele is made up mostly of business lunches and locals. At night, sports fanatics crowd in for a burger or sandwich and a beer and mainly just kind of hang out.

The long and narrow interior sports five TVs, a few pinball machines, a pool table that converts into a dining room table during peak times and an electric dart game. (Watch it! It's right by the front door.)

As far as entertainment goes, no pasttime in this place could hold a candle to that magical and eventful moment when "first timers" are presented with their food order. It's a whole lot of fun to watch somone innocently order a Reuben sandwich. As a matter of fact, try to sit next to someone who does when the waitstaff gets to the table with the order.

The Reuben sandwich is big . . . huge . . . colossal . . . unbelievably awesome. It's what sandwich lovers would call as a major "sammich," the kind that should be eaten over the kitchen sink.

Close to two pounds of corned beef (maybe more if the grill person has an audience), cheese, Russian dressing, sauerkraut and about six inches of pumperknickel bread make up this monstrous masterpiece. And somewhere next to it is a tasty kosher dill pickle.

So there you are, seated behind a 12-inch high Reuben. Your only ammunition — the ever increasing questionable size of your stomach, a stack of paper napkins and plastic fork and knife.

Hee, hee! I dare you . . . and so does everyone else! Go ahead, call home and tell 'em you're going to be a little late. This is going to take you awhile.

One of your first instincts might be to try and order something else. Don't bother. Everything the Allen Park Bar makes is big. Half-pound hamburgers are topped with cheeses, huge amounts of ham and bacon, and the "Fat City" burger is smothered in chili, cheddar cheese and fresh cut veggies.

The Macho Nacho is offered on the menu with the warning "large portion" next to it. Take heed. The Italian Stallion is a foot-long Italian sausage smothered with sauteed onions, green peppers and tomato, and the giant stacked ham sandwich is a major feast for a mere $5.50. (Rumor has it that anyone who can eat three of these in a 45-minute time frame gets $1,000.)

Consider the benefits of some well-spent time at the Allen Park Bar — nothing on the menu exceeds $6.25, unbelievable amounts of great food, some unique entertainment and a shot at winning $1,000 for packing away six pounds of Virginia smoked ham.

If you're tired of the trendy restaurant/bar scene and find yourself hankering for a road trip, Waltz, Mich., is just the place to head for.

Waltz — population 600 (and that's pushing it) — offers one of the most quaint, down-home restaurants around. You can call for directions and when you do, you're liable to get something to the tune of "take 275 south, swerve to your right, scoot along, dip and then you're here, The Waltz Inn."

Located on Waltz Road (where else), the inn looks like a Cape Cod retreat. The outside features a large front porch, perfect for stargazing or lazing around in the afternoon.

Inside is a full service bar, plenty of booths and several old-fashioned wooden tables to accommodate families as well as a few romantic tables for two.

Homemade soups are offered daily for both lunch and dinner. Fried jumbo mushrooms the size of baseballs are also featured right along side escargot. Helen's Homemade Clam Chowder is served every Friday.

Daily specials include real down-home cooking — chicken ala King with fresh homemade biscuits, seafood in one form or another, steaks, chicken. It's always a surprise and it's always good. For a small town place, the Waltz Inn offers big town variety.

State Fair has star-studded lineup

If you're looking for stars, the place to be is the Michigan State Fair. The Ramones will be the opening act, a great lead-off for the likes of Kris Kross, Bim Skala Bim and plenty of other music-makers.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

The Ramones have played in many situations but gigging at this year's Michigan State Fair has Joey Ramone especially anxious to play.

"I'm especially looking forward to the livestock area," he said from his New York home.

Although being facetious, Ramone enjoys playing fairs and has done plenty of them in the past.

"I know in the past we've done Summerfest in Milwaukee; we've done state fairs from time to time," said Ramone who plays on Aug. 27. "We've done all kinds of situations. We just played four festivals in four separate countries in four days."

The fair will also give the Ramones a chance to play songs from their forthcoming album, "Acid Eaters," which includes covers of old '60s psychedelic tunes. On it, the band courts special guests like Pete Townshend, who sings with Ramone on "Substitute," and Skid Row's Sebastian Bach on the Stones' "Out of Time." Labelmate Traci Lords harmonizes with the band on Jefferson Airplane's "Somebody to Love."

Playing with Townshend was exciting for him.

"I've always been a big Who fan."

Joining the Ramones on the State Fair bandshell stage this year as headliners are Laughing Hyenas on Aug. 28, Bim Skala Bim on Sept. 3, Chaka Khan on Sept. 4, Kris Kross on Sept. 5, and Lorrie Morgan on Sept. 6.

Opposite to the Ramones, Kris Kross's U.S. tour is comprised mostly of fairs and state fairs because of their family appeal. Part of that is the reason the rappers were hired to be Sprite spokesmen.

A boy of few words, the 14-year-old Chris "Mac Daddy" Kelly has a keen business sense about all this.

"We try to do all we can to get as much exposure as possible," Kelly said.

The duo — which also includes Chris "Daddy Mac" Smith — is touring to promote its latest album, "Da Bomb." Although they are tutored everday 9 a.m.-noon, the duo is quite happy with their early teen lifestyle.

STREET BEATS

"What kid wouldn't be happy," Smith said. "Have your own tutor and just do interviews everyday and look at people and do shows and then have money, wouldn't you be happy?"

Somewhat older but also happy is the ska band Bim Skala Bim who headline the Ska Fest '93. Like Kris Kross, Bim has never played a state fair.

"I like the idea of the atmosphere at a fair," drummer Jim Arhelger.

Plus, he said, their addictive music is also family fare.

"I think we can get their attention. We have fun on stage and I think if they're (audience) in the right mood, they can hopefully pick up on that . . . especially the loud trombone that sort of sounds like fan fare.

"We're danceable to people in any mood."

Bim captured the essence of their live shows with the album "Live At The Paradise," which is due in stores on Aug. 31. It includes live hits as well as several rare and unreleased cuts. While they're in town, the group is doing three other shows: Sept. 1 at Rick's Cafe in Ann Arbor, Sept. 2 at Rick's Cafe in East Lansing and Sept. 4 at Rick's Cafe in Kalamazoo.

Percussionist Rick Barry explained why his band's live shows are legendary in their hometown of Boston.

"Most bands go at their live shows song by song," he said. "We start with a lot of pumped-up energy and squeeze several short songs out in quick succession. We try to create an ebb and flow that brings the crowd up and down, without ever stopping the music."

Commentator goes on road in 'Scholar'

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

■ MOVIES

■ 'All my life I had two claims to fame. I was born in Transylvania and I didn't drive a car. The first fact made people naturally assume that I didn't need to drive because I could always use a bat — like a vampire.'

Andrei Codrescu

Some might say that Andrei Codrescu already discovered a large chunk of the American dream before even pulling out of the driveway.

After all, the National Public Radio humorist and social commentator couldn't even drive when he was asked to make a movie about a cross-country road trip. And yet here he is, looking quite comfortable behind the wheel of an obscenely long, screaming red 1968 Cadillac convertible.

"Road Scholar" chronicles Codrescu's trip from New York's Ellis Island to San Francisco, with a lengthy stop in Detroit, and it's an engaging 82 minutes. Directed by Roger Weisberg, it plays this weekend at the Detroit Film Theatre.

"All my life I had two claims to fame," Codrescu says. "I was born in Transylvania and I didn't drive a car. The first fact made people naturally assume that I didn't need to drive because I could always use a bat — like a vampire."

Codrescu emigrated to Detroit in 1966, where he resided in the artistic community around Cass Corridor. His return to the Motor City involves taking his steel and chrome tail-finned monster to its birthplace at a GM factory, where he wisely notes that they don't make Caddies like they used to.

Aside from touring the Detroit Institute of Arts and the Motown Museum, he also visits former neighbor and artist Tyree Guyton shortly after demolition of his controversial Heidelberg Project. He also stops by the Kowalski sausage factory in Hamtramck, which he calls "hell for vegetarians."

The trip takes him farther west, where "Road Scholar" begins its fascination with groups on the edge of the social fringe. He visits Chicago's Holy Rollers, for instance, which performs rousing gospel music while circling a local roller rink.

He sarcastically calls Santa Fe "the land of enchantment," where he is literally bombarded by crystals from a New Age healer and later tours what the proprietor calls "a spiritual supermarket."

Just as Michael Moore let Flint boosters show their inanity in "Roger and Me," the stone-faced Codrescu simply lets the camera roll as people ramble on about their bizarre interests. He doesn't flinch, for instance, when the crystal healer explains that a 10-foot blonde spirit named Ariel has joined them in the room.

Codrescu also makes this a thoughtful and sentimental journey. He visits Haitians squatting in New York City and talks about the ability to speak freely in America and not in his native land. He concludes that the country's diversity only adds to its unique spirit, leaving us with a more or less hopeful message.

For his part, director Weisberg keeps things simple behind the camera, though he does indulge in arty neon reflections off the Cadillac's glossy red finish. Don't expect the typical scenic montages, since much of the journey was filmed in the grayness of late winter.

In a nutshell, "Road Scholar" accomplishes exactly what the New Orleans-based Codrescu has done on radio for the past decade. It mixes the sentimental and sarcastic observations of an outsider both befuddled and fascinated by the ever-changing American landscape.

Junk Monkeys aim for record success

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

In the late 1980s, the Junk Monkeys were part of a lineup at St. Andrew's Hall which included a few little-known bands — Soul Asylum and Soundgarden. Reflecting on the show, vocalist/guitarist David Bierman has one prediction about it.

"We're going to be the next band off that bill to make it big," he said with a smirk.

Seriously, however, the band is working on that. Since then, the Junk Monkeys were signed to Warner Bros.' Metal Blade Records. They've also toured with Tommy Stinson's Bash & Pop, the Goo Goo Dolls and Lunachicks. Touring, he said, is nice because fans take the Dearborn-based band more seriously out of town.

"We've got a different reputation in Detroit than we do elsewhere. When people come, it's a different attitude. People have seen us here quite a few times. We get a little more attention out of town," said Bierman whose band's current album is "Bliss."

The Junk Monkeys have gotten attention in town for their notorious onstage antics. Bierman said band members just get antsy on stage.

"When we're playing the same songs (at every show) there's gotta be an unlit bomb somewhere on stage."

Bierman knows too that some silliness may be more memorable.

"I know that these people will be talking about this show on Monday if I take off my clothes . . . I've never had any club give me a hard time about it," he said.

For their upcoming show this Saturday at Lili's in Hamtramck, the band is bringing the local band Breech and a friend of Bierman's — Magic Bob — to open the show.

"He's a big hit with the 4-8-year-old set. He switched his act around for the sophisticated crowd who comes to see us," he said.

The group's Lili's show is their last until early winter. The band hopes to go into the studio and record their next album. The follow-up to "Bliss" will be a departure for the band. It will include more outside musicians like pianists, organists, and horn section.

But, he said, he's adding the musicians so he'll sell more albums. After all, that's not why the Junk Monkeys are in the business.

"It's not the money that's important to us. A lot of people think it is . . . We like to play, put out music. That makes us happy."

Junk Monkeys, with special guests Breech and Magic Bob, perform at Lili's, 2930 Jacob, Hamtramck. Cover is $6. Only those aged 21 and older will be admitted. For more information, call 875-6555.

"Road Scholar" (USA — 1993), 7 and 9:30 p.m. Aug. 27-28; 4 and 7 p.m. Aug. 29. Transylvania-born and now New Orleans-based Andrei Codrescu takes off in an obscenely long Cadillac on a 4,500-mile journey across the country. The insights of Codrescu, whose regular radio commentaries can be heard on National Public Radio, translate well to the screen.

■ HENRY FORD CENTENNIAL LIBRARY
13671 Michigan Ave., Dearborn. Call 943-2330 for information. (Free)

"The Gorilla" (USA — 1939), 7 p.m. Aug. 23. Bela Lugosi teams with the Ritz Brothers in this likably low-budget mix of comedy and horror.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE CAFE
22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Call 544-3030 for information. ($3)

"Tribute to Rocky and Bullwinkle," 8 p.m. Aug. 26. The most irreverent episodes from the popular '60s TV cartoon show will be featured, along with vintage toy and cereal commercials.

■ MICHIGAN THEATER
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668- 8397 for information and show times. ($5; $4 students and senior citizens)

"American Friends" (Britain — 1993), 9:30 p.m. Aug. 23-24; 7 p.m. Aug. 25-26. Monty Python's Michael Palin makes his dramatic film debut as a 19th-century Oxford professor who forsakes his career and social standing to wed an Irish-American commoner.

"Heavy Metal" (Canada — 1981), 11:45 p.m. Aug. 27-28. Animators from around the world contributed to this series of sexy sci-fi vignettes, most set to rock music.

"Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory" (USA — 1971), 2 p.m. Aug. 29. Gene Wilder plays the title character, who takes children on a tour that proves both fantastical and dangerous. Roald Dahl wrote the screenplay, based on his story. (Admission $1 adults, 50 cents kids as part of a special summer Sunday matinee series.)

■ RABBLES COFFEEHOUSE
22010 Harper Ave., St. Clair Shores. Call 779-0707 for information. (Free)

"Rare science fiction trailers and shorts," 10 p.m. Aug. 23. The title says it all in this collection of oddities curated by Bill Greenshields.

■ REDFORD THEATER
17360 Lahser, Detroit. Call 537-2560 for information. ($3.50)

Charlie Chan double feature — "Charlie Chan at the Opera" (USA — 1936) and "Charlie Chan at Treasure Island" (USA — 1939), starting at 8 p.m. Aug. 27; 2 and 8 p.m. Aug. 28 (organ overture begins a half hour before show times). Two of the best entries in the popular mystery series. In the first, Warner Oland stars as the Oriental super sleuth, battling Boris Karloff. Sidney Toler takes over in "Treasure Island," assisted by magician Cesar Romero. Great fun.

'Innocent Blood' works — sometimes

BY LEANNE ROGERS

■ VIDEO

■ The film begins with an interesting premise about the mores of a vampire and how such a creature deals with its existence, living isolated among what would at one time been its friends and family.

Looking out from the window of her Pittsburgh apartment, Marie sadly reflects on the state of her life. She is lonely and hungry. To the dark-haired pixish creature, people — by that she apparently means men — fall into two distinct categories that never overlap, food or lovers.

In the 1992 film "Innocent Blood," French actress Anne Parillaud ("La Femme Nikita") portrays Marie, a vampire who has moved to the urban jungle and learned to use her environment to cover her hunt for human blood. Reading about warfare between local gangsters gives her an idea about where to find some likely victims.

The local mob families are waging a territorial war amongst themselves. It provides a perfect cover for a vampire not wishing to attract any attention. One of the hoods, actually an undercover police officer, played by Anthony LaPaglia, bumps into the vampire first. He's polite but it's his sad eyes that keep him from becoming Marie's next entree. One of the other hoods isn't so lucky. A horny, churlish lout, he ends up as the vampire's main course in his car to the strains of Sinatra, naturally, singing "Witchcraft." Quite appropriate.

The film begins with an interesting premise about the mores of a vampire and how such a creature deals with its existence, living isolated among what would at one time been its friends and family.

Marie always takes the extra steps needed to make sure her victim is dead and not going to head out as a newly created vampire. Problems arise for Marie when the mob boss, played to the thuggish hilt by Robert Loggia, doesn't stay dead. Instead he starts organizing a new mob family, one consisting of the undead.

"I swear on my mother's eyes he was dead and this ain't no improvement," one perplexed thug comments on his damaged but still moving boss.

It's about this point that the movie starts lapsing into the usual John Landis film, relying heavily on car chases and throw-away jokes when some suspense and plot development are required. The film becomes very reminiscent of Landis' earlier "An American Werewolf in London."

Some of the plot problems are inconsistencies which become annoying. Our vampire heroine rapidly recovers from being shot but the other vampires are killed pretty easily by the same method.

The actors can't be faulted for their efforts. Parillaud is interesting as the vampire who takes a shine to the understandably nervous LaPaglia, who does a nice job with a male version of the girlfriend role. There are some bits that strangely enough work, like Don Rickles as the mob lawyer and a cameo by director Sam Raimi as a meat packer whose late night lunch break is interrupted by a vampire looking for a dark place to take a nap.

"Innocent Blood" is available on tape at local video stores. If you have a question or comment, call LeAnne Rogers at 953-2103 or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Patrons can drink an imported beer from Holland at the Waltz's crowded bar, or sip a Spanish coffee out on the front porch. And while they're enjoying their relaxing drinks, locals supply the entertainment by recounting endless stories about the inn, dating back to its early beginnings.

Desserts are rotated on a weekly basis and feature such goodies as "Chocolate Suicide" (definitely to "die for"), apple cobbler and "Snickers" pie. The Waltz dinner entrees are quite filling, but make sure you save some room for dessert — even if you have to share. It's worth it!

So grab your partner, jump in the car, take a train, or go by horseback . . . or if all else fails, Waltz Inn. It's a jaunt — but it's worth every extra step.

Ex-pupil sings St. John's praises

New Redford Catholic Central hockey coach Gordon St. John was talking the other day over the phone about his coaching career, which began, ironically enough, with another team called the Shamrocks.

Turns out that one of his players on the 1959 AAA Junior team which played in the old Detroit Olympia League was Matt Mulcahy, who currently coaches at Livonia Stevenson.

Wait a minute, I thought.

Mulcahy is 49 years old. How old does that make St. John?

About 70?

"No," laughed St. John. "Matt was about 17 and I was 23 or 24."

St. John recently turned 56, and after meeting him the other day over coffee and breakfast I found out he's as organized and full of energy as anyone half his age.

Mulcahy remembers St. John as an intense coach who rewarded those who worked the hardest.

He also rewarded those who skated the hardest.

Back then, ice time cost about $20 per practice, according to Mulcahy. St. John would collect $1 per player prior to each practice; then, at the end of each session, those who won the last sprint race would get the dollar back.

Mulcahy usually went home with a dollar in his pocket.

"Gordie would play those that worked the hardest, and I found that out early because I got a ton of ice time from him," remembers Mulcahy. "He's my kind of coach."

St. John had two stints as an assistant coach at CC under fired head coach Jack Gumbleton. In between, he coached at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook, where he won a Class B championship.

St. John wasn't CC's first choice, but it's no shame to be second behind Birmingham Brother Rice coach Mike Brown, a CC graduate who chose to stay at Rice. Brown has won a Class A championship at Rice and was successful before that at South Lyon. Brown's practices also are as smooth as the ice they're held on — just ask some of the state's best coaches who walk into the Oak Park Arena on occasion to take notes on the way Brown runs a practice.

St. John will be a great addition at CC, and his job will be easier if some players would wake up and start playing high school hockey instead of seeking more games and competition in the Junior or Midget ranks.

It must have killed former CC goalie Mike Brusseau to watch the Shamrocks get the headlines and march to the Class A final last year when he was playing Midget hockey in a cold arena far away in front of a handful of fans.

Livonia schools don't lose as many players to Junior or Midget hockey, but it sure would be nice to see Mulcahy's best player, goalie Daryl Chamberlain, return as well.

If they even have sports in Livonia.

World Cup instruction

Players from the Michigan Hawks Girls Soccer Club were among great company last week.

About 70 Hawks spent every day at Livonia's Jaycee Park getting instruction from former and current Women's National Team members, including camp director Linda Hamilton. It was appropriately called the Michigan Hawks World Cup Camp.

Hamilton, who lives in Farmington and plays currently for the Women's National Team, brought in retired teammate Carin Jennings-Gabarra and current teammates Sarah Rafenelli and Saskia Webber.

Another featured instructor was Ragen Coyne, a Stevenson graduate and former Hawk who stars at Notre Dame.

Hamilton, who graduated from the University of North Carolina, had a couple noticeable wounds on her knees and got razzed throughout the week about it by campers.

She got them while falling off in-line skates.

"It's amazing," said Hamilton, a Michigan Hawk coach. "I can play at the top level of the world in one sport and can't stand on my feet in something else. It's been the object of discussion many days."

Other discussion centered on fundamentals, 4-on-4 games played on smaller fields, and even a game of tag on Thursday night that amazingly got players from ages 11-17 happily involved.

Hamilton said 4-on-4 games are worthwhile because the players touch the ball more times than an average game of 11-on-11. It's been proven that some players touch the ball only a total of three to four minutes in a 90-minute game, she said.

"All the coaches make it fun," said Angie Sijia, who will be a freshman at Stevenson in the fall. "We're lucky to have them here."

C'ville grid plans change for '93

Dave Young will try to make the most of a challenging situation as Livonia Clarenceville football coach.

Clarenceville named Young as interim coach in place of Chuck Donaldson, who is still recovering from a serious car accident in late June.

The Trojans must keep playing, although it's hard for some who played for Donaldson last year on the junior varsity to realize he won't be coaching.

"He was probably the best coach I ever had," said John Rose, a 6-foot-2, 165-pound sophomore tight end. "I was hoping he'd be back. He had this big plan and we would have done well."

Young was the assistant varsity coach last year at Clarenceville and prior to that had stints at Walled Lake Western (varsity assistant), Novi (junior varsity head coach), and Farmington (freshman head coach) high schools.

Young was asked to take over at Clarenceville two weeks before practice started. He applied for the job last spring when Russ MacKenzie announced his resignation.

"I felt sorry for Chuck and I said, 'Yeah, I'll take it for the kids' sake," said Young, who has had to rush to form a coaching staff.

Young's assistant coach is Brian Mahoney, and the junior varsity head coach is Kevin Dalka, with assistance from Dave Flores.

The small Trojans coaching staff has only 35 players to work with and there's a possibility no JV team will be fielded, according to Young.

Clarenceville finished 4-5 last year.

The Trojans have inexperience on the offensive and defensive lines, but Young has a lot of confidence in his four captains: tailback/defensive back Mark Juncaj, tight end/defensive back Mark Kalaj, quarterback Lou Lucaj and two-way tackle Jason Nizich.

Juncaj, a 6-foot-1, 170-pound senior, should battle for Metro Conference first-team honors, and Kalaj will be a prime target for the strong-armed Lucaj, who was a backup in 1992.

Nizich, who is 6-2 and weighs 215 pounds after losing about 35 in the off-season, will clear the most holes for the Trojans.

"He's our best lineman by far," Young said. "My four captains are real fine players. Juncaj goes pretty small through holes, is wiry and can't get hit that well. No one on our team can catch him.

"My goals are at least to get Kallaj, Juncaj and Nizich into college. I believe in fighting for my kids to get them in college."

The Trojans also have an established junior, Jesse Lynd, a 6-3, 175-pound linebacker who made first-team Metro last year and leads the 6-2 defense.

Ray Kastl, a 6-foot, 170-pound junior is the other starting linebacker. Ricardo Bell, a 5-10, 200-pound senior, will play defensive tackle and offensive guard and 5-9, 160-pound jun-

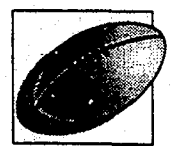
Warriors have Faith in winning season



Lutheran Westland welcomes back most of its lettermen from a year ago in hopes of making the 1993 season a success.

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

One thing is certain about the 1993 Lutheran Westland football team: Coach Dennis Tuomi will have Faith in his lineup.

The Warriors lost only five players to graduation and return 5-foot-9, 168-pound senior Steve Faith, who plays tailback on offense and safety on defense.

Faith gained more than 700 yards rushing and added another 400 yards receiving for the Warriors. Faith, an all-division choice in 1992, is a three-year starter.

"My freshman year coach (Tuomi) thought I was a cocky son-of-a-gun. I think he likes me now," Faith said before Thursday's practice. "With all his years of experience, 50 years, 40, whatever, he's a wise man."

Tuomi hasn't coached that long, but he's been around long enough to spot talent.

"Competitiveness is Steve's biggest asset," said Tuomi, who has coached the Warriors since Lutheran Westland opened in 1987. "He wants to be a star. He should bring leadership, too."

Whether Tuomi can keep the faith and have the Warriors improve on last year's 3-6 record remains to be seen. Lutheran Westland has 60 players on the varsity and junior varsity roster, more than any of the previous six seasons.

The Warriors lost defensive end/receiver Kent Wattleworth, but most of the offensive and defensive linemen return, and points won't be as hard to come by with quarterback Andy Manthei, fullback Kjel Skov and Faith returning in the offensive backfield.

Ends Chris Duetemeyer (5-11, 166) and Jeff Lichtner (6-2, 190) are two of Manthei's targets. Jim Hoeft, a 5-9, 134-pound senior, is the backup quarterback.

Lutheran Westland, which has had one winning record in six seasons, runs a flexible slot offensive.

"We're shooting for it (improvement), anyway," Tuomi said. "It's a good group to work with. They don't complain and are enthusiastic."

Skov not only opens holes as a fullback for Faith, he also fills holes at linebacker. Also back at linebacker is Troy Smith, who led the Warriors in tackles and was an All-Metro Conference choice. Smith doubles as an offensive guard.

Among the two-way linemen are senior tackles John Caltabiano (5-6, 180); Marty Hodge (5-9, 195); guard/nose guard Jason Brasgalla (5-7, 156); junior center Jason Bayush (5-9, 200); and center/defensive end Robb Reister (5-11, 137).

Junior brothers Ted Schaefer (6-2, 178) and Dan Schaefer (5-10, 172) also will see action on the offensive line.

Jelani Kyles and Jon Smolka will play in the Warriors' secondary and as halfbacks on offense. Tuomi said a handful of sophomores could get a look as well.

"If you keep a sophomore, he better be a good one," Tuomi said.

Shamrocks hire former assistant as coach

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Redford Catholic Central has named Gordon St. John as its new hockey coach, CC athletic director Bob Santello said.

St. John replaces Jack Gumbleton, whose contract was not renewed after coaching the Shamrocks the last 15 years. St. John, 56, was an assistant coach under Gumbleton for several years at CC (including 1991-92) and he also has been a head coach at Detroit Country Day and Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook.

St. John

St. John, born and raised in Hartford, Conn., won a state championship at Cranbrook in 1988. He started the Country Day program in 1961 and also has a wealth of experience as a coach at the Junior and Midget levels.

"Gordie fits the profile of the kind of coach we're looking for," said Santello, who had about 20 applicants. "He knows the school, the tradition and will work out real well. After the many meetings we had, he's already starting to go to work. He touched all the bases he needed to touch."

St. John, who is chief executive officer of Bosquett & Co. General Insurance in Detroit, doesn't look forward to much free time.

"It'll be hockey and business for me the next nine months and nothing else," he said. "I've always thought really highly of the school, they play by the rules, encourage development of the kids and put hockey in perspective with the rest of life."

St. John played hockey and graduated from Colby College in Maine and also learned discipline as a member of the Marine Corps. As CEO of a large corporation, organization also is a priority, he said.

Shortly after being offered the CC job, St. John said he wrote letters and sent an off-ice training program to all prospective CC players.

■ 'Gordie fits the profile of the kind of coach we're looking for.'

Bob Santello
CC athletic director

"I defined what I thought were reasonable goals," he said. "I'm highly disciplined and believe in developing the basic skills and capitalizing on our strengths. I'm death on dumb hockey. At the high school level, the lack of skills and not good thinking causes more losses than anything in the game."

CC reached the Class A final last year before losing to Alpena. The Shamrocks lose players most years to Junior or Midget hockey teams but St. John said he already has gotten a commitment from star forward Jon Heady to return for his senior year.

He also is waiting to hear about forward Frank Novock's plans and whether goalkeeper Mike Brusseau will return after skipping last year to play Midget hockey.

"Change is difficult for some people," St. John said. "I just try to make it as positive and exciting as you can and hope you'll attract some players."

St. John said he has gotten to know a lot of college coaches over the years, including several on the East Coast, and while at Cranbrook he started a tradition of writing college coaches and encouraging them to come watch his players. He plans on doing the same at CC.

"Not everybody is able to play Division I, some will play Division III," he said. "It's real important to place a kid in a situation where he's capable of performing. That's a function of a coach and it's critical in helping a kid."

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Items for the Sports Roundup must be submitted by noon Tuesday (for Thursday edition) and noon Friday (for Monday edition). Items run once only.

■ FALK RECORD

Mandi Falk of Livonia Stevenson broke a meet record at the 1993 National YMCA Long-Course Swimming Championship Aug. 3-6 in Nashville, Tenn. Falk's time of 1 minute, 14.24 seconds took first place in the 100-meter breast stroke.

She also was a member of the first-place record-breaking 400-meter medley relay team. Jacqui McRae, Falk, Kristen Olson and Kelli Lutz finished in a time of 4:30.65.

Falk also placed second in the 200 breast stroke (2:42.55), third in the 200 individual medley (2:28.14) and ninth in the 200 butterfly (2:29.89).

Steve Reinke of Livonia and Redford Catholic Central placed sixth in the 200 butterfly (2:14.39), 16th in the 100 butterfly (1:00.61), 13th in the 200 IM (2:18.23) and 16th in the 400 IM (4:58.84).

Falk and Reinke are members of the Oakland Live-Y'ers Swim Team in Rochester, which took first place in the team standings. This was the Live-Y'ers second championship in the last three years. More than 100 teams and 1,100 swimmers qualified.

■ SOFTBALL SIGN-UP

The fourth annual Michael Vincenza Memorial Softball Tournament is scheduled for Sept. 17-19 at Garden City Park (Cherry Hill and Merriman).

Rosters are required. Only two non-roster players will be allowed. For more information, call 522-6653.

■ GOLF TOURNEY

The third-annual Boys Hope Open Golf Tournament and Sports Auction will be held Monday, Aug. 30 at the Tournament Players Club of Michigan (One Nicklaus Drive, Dearborn). Registration and lunch are at 11 a.m. and tee time is 1 p.m. Dinner and a sports auction hosted by Tom Wilson, CEO of the Detroit Pistons and honorary chairman of the Boys Hope Open, follows the tournament.

Funds generated by the tournament will enable Boys Hope to continue its work of responding to the desperate needs of the youth in metro Detroit. For information, call William W. Tandy, Executive Director of Boys Hope Detroit at 862-0707.

■ SOCCER TRYOUTS

The Wayne-Westland Soccer League is looking for players for an under-19 team. Anyone born between April, 1974, and August, 1977, is eligible. For information, call 458-7786.

The Livonia Youth Soccer Club is accepting registrations for the following: Boys under-12 (born Aug. 1, 1981 through July 31, '82); Girls under-12 (Aug. 1, '81 through July 31, '83); Girls under-12 (Aug. 1, '81 through July 31, '83).

For information, call 525-0238.

■ WHEELS IN MOTION

The Detroit Wheels, a newly-formed professional soccer team, will play in the United States Inter-Regional Soccer League beginning in 1994, team officials announced earlier this month.

Livonia, Troy, Rochester and Birmingham have been mentioned as possible sites for the Wheels to play. Schoolcraft College assistant dean of athletics Midge Carleton said on Friday that "the Wheels have never approached her," about playing at Schoolcraft.

■ CARNES SCHOLARSHIP

Wayne's Dave Mitchell, 19, was one of two winners of the 1993 Neil J. Carnes Memorial Scholarship Awards, announced at the Michigan National Hockey League's 1st annual Golf Outing.

Mitchell, who graduated from Livonia Churchill, attends Western Michigan University. The goalie's MNHL playing career spans eight years, including the last two with the two-time league, state and national champion Little Caesars Midget AAA team.

Mitchell had a combined two-year Midget division record of 24-1-3 with a goals against average of 2.12. He was selected as the alternate goalie for the U.S. Junior National 17 team.

David Sass, 21 of Fenton, is the other scholarship recipient.

■ KELEMAN 7TH

Livonia's Kate Keleman took seventh place in women's air rifle competition at the 1993 U.S. International Rifle & Pistol Championship in Colorado, Springs, Colo.

Keleman scored 876.8 points out of a possible 909. First place went to Elizabeth Bourland of Wichita Falls, Tx., who unseated two-time national champion Ann-Marie Pfiffner of Dubuque, Ia. Bourland scored 889 and Pfiffner finished with 888.7.

Competition continued through Sunday.

SOFTBALL

Daly ends 2-2 at national tourney

The Daly Restaurant women's fast-pitch softball team took 13th place in the Class A Nationals held earlier this month in Reno, Nev.

Daly won two and lost two and finished the season with a 35-13 overall record. Daly beat a pair of teams from Pennsylvania — Northampton, 6-0, and Sports Plus, 4-1.

Daly started the tournament with a 10-4 loss to the eventual tournament champion Southern California Jazz, led by three recent college All-America players from NCAA champion Arizona.

After falling behind 4-0, Daly pushed across a run in the fourth inning after Paula Harms walked, moved to second on a walk and scored on Pam Ossenheimer's single.

Cris Wasserman had a two-run single in the fifth and an RBI single in the seventh.

Daly starting pitcher Kelly Forbis suffered the loss.

Daly pitcher Jennie Smith pitched a three-hitter, en route to a shutout win in the second game over Northampton. Daly had 11 hits, led by Ossenheimer, Alicia Seegert and Michelle Silver with two each.

In the next game, Daly broke a 1-1 tie in the bottom of the sixth leading to a 4-1 victory over Sports Plus. Angie Fielder's leadoff double was followed by Ossenheimer's infield single. Schrader's double drove in both runners for a 3-1 lead. Schrader scored on an error for a 4-1 lead.

Forbis was the winning pitcher.

Daly was eliminated in a 7-4 loss later that day to the Redwings. Seegert had a two-run homer and Wasserman added a solo shot for a 3-0 lead. Daly added another run in the fifth but the Redwings scored seven unanswered runs off Smith for the victory.

Seegert had four hits and finished with a tournament-best .615 average. Seegert failed to win the batting championship, however, because she was one plate appearance shy of the minimum.

Demilio chars foes

Demilio & Sons clinched the championship of the Plymouth Modified Men's Fast-Pitch Softball League with a 10-1 victory in its final game Wednesday.

Al White pitched a two-hitter, and Rick Sisler and Mike Culver had two hits each. Sisler hit a two-run double and Culver a triple.

Demilio also won the Bellaire Tournament in July and will compete in the Major Modified national tournament on Labor Day weekend in Marietta, Ga.

The team roster includes Jim Leukanech, Curt White, Bob Worden, Al Worden, Sal Demilio, Steve Dawson, Dave Welch, Chris Sisler, Ken Godard, Keith McManaway, Kevin O'Connor, Rodney Shellenberger and Eric Cunningham.

Softball sign-up

The Canton Parks and Recreation Men's Fall Softball League starts Tuesday, Sept. 7. The fee is $200 per team, which includes a $28 refundable forfeit fee.

Each team must pay $14 per game for the umpire prior to each game. Each team plays a doubleheader once a week for a total of 10 games.

Teams that played in the Canton summer leagues can register Monday through Thursday, Aug. 23-26. New team sign-up starts Friday, Aug. 27. There are no residency requirements. For information call 397-5110.

Fall leagues still seeking new members

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

Bowling is very much alive and well.

The fall season is ready to go and many new leagues are forming.

Any league officers who have not yet received their supplies (ABC rule book, score sheets, money envelopes, yearbook, scheduling charts, etc. . .) may still do so at the final meeting Wednesday at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park.

There are openings in many of the leagues around town and it's best to check with the local lanes in your area. There are leagues for everyone from bantams to seniors, beginners to experts, fun leagues or big-money leagues, mixed leagues and company leagues, some that bowl on alternate weeks, and of course for a real challenge — traveling leagues.

■ Speaking of seniors, the newly-organized "Seniors Classic" will begin its inaugural season at 10 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 15.

It still has openings for senior men (55 and up) with a minimum average of 170. For further details on the league, call Ozzie Hovsepian at 277-1249.

Among other openings:
The Greenfield Mixed League (Country Lanes, 6:30 p.m. Fridays) still needs couples or individuals. Call Mildred Weed at 348-2096.

Inter-Lodge can use a few good men (Sunday 9:30 a.m. at Country Lanes). Call Dan Topper at 471-6487.

Westland Bowl has openings in the newly-formed Tuesday Nite Ladies Trio, for individuals and teams, starting at 9:30 p.m. The Wednesday Night Men's league at 9:30 and the Thursday Night Men's, also at 9:30 have openings; Sunday night mixed leagues both every week and every other week need players, as do every-other Mixed on Sunday afternoons and the Monday 9:30 Mixed Fun League. Every-other Saturday Nite Mixed at 8:45 p.m. also has openings.

Thunderbird Lanes in Troy has openings in the Thursday Night Men's League at 6 p.m. for 10 more teams, with plans to expand the league to 20 teams.

■ During sommer league play at Woodland Lanes in the Senior's No-Tap league, Olga Kwasniuk of Livonia rolled a 300 game, using her trusty old reliable "Black Beauty" ball. Her series was 163-203-300/666.

ior Steve Parks joins the defensive secondary.

A couple of backups from last year — 5-9, 160-pound junior guard Kyle McSorley, and 5-7, 160-pound junior fullback Steve Spisz — will battle for starting spots.

The Trojans play a scrimmage game Friday at home against Ecorse.

"We can finish better than last year, at least 5-4," Young predicted. "Lutheran West (Sept. 10) will be our toughest game and if we win that one, and against Centerline St. Clement (Sept. 3), who knows?"

MHSAA to air public concerns on PASS-TV

BY MARTY BUDNER
STAFF WRITER

If you're at all concerned about the state of high school financing — specifically regarding sports — stay tuned.

The Michigan High School Athletic Association (MHSAA) is staging a town-hall type teleconference titled "Future Funding for School Athletics." The teleconference was set up to address questions regarding the growing financial problems facing state high school athletic programs.

The teleconference, which will be carried unscrambled on PASS by a number of cable stations throughout the state, airs from 1-4 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 24.

It is clearly a program that everyone — not just sports fans — should be aware of, according to Norm Quinn, director of health, education and athletics in Bloomfield Hills.

"Anyone who's interested in the financing and funding of public schools and the whole tax issue should be attuned to this program," said Quinn. "From my role as an administrator in athletics, this is a very significant issue right now.

"Anytime you can bring information in front of people so that they can make more intelligent decisions, it's important," he said.

The teleconference will originate from the studios of TCI Cablevision in East Lansing and will be divided into two segments.

The program's first two hours will involve a panel discussion in front of a small studio audience.

The panel members include Jack Roberts, executive director, MHSAA; Anne Johnson, consultant, physical education and athletics, Lansing Public Schools; Melvin Atkins, director of athletics, Grand Rapids Public Schools; John Fundukian, athletic director, Novi Community Schools; and Robert VaderLaan, chairman, Governmental Consultants Inc., Lansing.

Warren Reynolds, sports director, WOOD-TV, Grand Rapids, will be the moderator.

The second hour is a question-and-answer format where selected audience members will ask questions, and MHSAA member school administrators who have pre-registered for the conference will call in on a toll-free telephone number.

The audience will consist of various school administrators, coaches, booster club representatives and student/athletes. Quinn, along with Jim Feldkamp, director of athletics for Troy Public Schools, and Jerry Murphy, assistant football coach and boys tennis coach at Rochester High School, will be audience members from the Observer & Eccentric coverage area.

"I just think this is an excellent idea. The objective is to attempt to communicate the various implications of future funding to the public," said Quinn. "This is important. The implications of this are broader than just athletics.

"I think the users know the value of high school sports, but the general populace doesn't know what the value really is. It's been proven that people involved in high school sports generally experience a high degree of success later in life.

"I don't feel that we've done a great job of selling our product (prep athletics) to the public," he said. "It's unfortunate that we have to do it under a crisis situation, but better late than never."

The following cable companies from the O&E coverage area are scheduled to carry the program: TCI Cablevision (Channel 63), Auburn Hills; Booth Communications (Channel 3), Beverly Hills, Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Bloomfield Township and Franklin Village; Omnicom Cable (Channel 8), Plymouth; TCI Cablevision (Channel 63), Rochester and Rochester Hills; TCI Cablevision (Channel 63), Troy; and Continental Cablevision (Channel 11), Westland.

Booth Communications is one company that will unscramble its signal, according to program director Tim Funk.

Interested viewers should call their local cable programmers to find out whether those companies intend to carry the program and/or unscramble their signals.

Plymouth-Canton sports need board's help

DAN O'MEARA

There is still hope for saving co-curricular activities in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, and that hope lies with the school board.

It has the power now to preserve that part of school life, and I believe it should act to do so when it meets tonight.

The call for such action is not done without regard for the complexity of the current situation, the many financial issues the board must tackle as it tries to manage one of the state's largest school districts.

For the record, taxpayers agreed to a millage renewal in June but twice defeated a proposed 4-mill increase. The outcome was to result in the elimination of 87 employees and co-curricular activities, the reduction of other programs and limited building use.

I don't believe people should have voted no, but I don't live in the district and can't condemn them for doing so.

Taxes always tough sell

You don't have to be a history major to know taxation was an issue in this country long before public education was institutionalized, and a lot of things have contributed to an ill mood among the electorate.

A lottery that was supposed to solve these problems but didn't, uncertainty over a new federal tax plan, high property taxes in Michigan, federal deficit spending and a social security surplus that everyone knows doesn't exist have contributed to an erosion of public confidence in elected officials.

Apparently, the local school board is not exempt. The decision to ask for 4 mills — a chunk of which was to be used to build the reserve fund — in times of tight budgets was not a good political move.

The school district was a victim of circumstance, too. Between the millage votes, the state legislature took the bold action of eliminating property taxes as the means of funding public education.

Feeling like a burden had been lifted, taxpayers were not in the mood to accept more taxes, and the 4-mill increase then smacked of a last-chance money grab by the district.

The youth get overlooked

Having said all that, I'm beginning to lose sight of the purpose of all this, which is exactly what happens when the issue is funding public education: the youth who attend these schools.

Everyone says 'It's for the kids.' But the kids are usually the ones most affected and sometimes least considered.

In making tough decisions, the board is to be commended for making scholastic skills a priority. But there are many other school functions that are important and beneficial to young people. These come under the heading of co-curricular activities, which schools have traditionally offered and made to be part of a vibrant school life.

Sports is a major part but not solely. Every other is just as important and meaningful to those who participate. Perhaps this part of the educational process won't be there a year from now.

But the issue is 1993-94. Now is when it's time for those concerned to do it for the kids. The school board, by its election to such high standing in the community, has been given that charge to the highest degree.

Politics must leave debate

The board said there would be no co-curricular activities if the millage failed. It was understandable and even OK to play politics with the taxpayers before the vote. But that game is over.

Those with the power to do so should do all they can to see the Plymouth-Canton youth, the powerless in this situation, are not denied. The noble action would be for the board to step down from its previous position and, for this year until Michigan can get another system in place, preserve for the youth all that a school can offer.

The board has before it a plan that would accomplish this. Most of the money would come from a one-year deferral on wage increases for teachers and administrators. Administrators have agreed to the proposal, but the board must decide on the plan and give it to the Plymouth-Canton Education Association for a vote.

As a member of The Newspaper Guild, union concessions are not spoken of lightly. But my point again and the purpose in all this is that 'It's for the kids.' Let the teachers vote, at least. If they agree, the board should not play politics any longer with the issue and enact the plan.

More to think about

There is something else to consider, too. It affects the pride and stability of the community, something that also should concern the board.

As stated here previously, the district arguably has the most successful high school sports program in the state, and the band is among the best there is. Trivial in terms of the big picture, you say? It's important to the youth and to them it's part of the total package.

Furthermore, many of the athletes who play a fall sport have been hard at work for more than a week and much longer when you consider their year-round training.

I doubt if any district has more dedicated and quality coaches than Plymouth-Canton does. They don't want to lose this year, either. It's not the pay; they enjoy what they do. In many cases, the time they devote to coaching far exceeds their compensation on an hourly basis.

Athletic Director Paul Cummings said he does not foresee Plymouth-Canton recovering from such a setback during his lifetime should it lose co-curricular activities.

Board members, who are entrusted with safeguarding more than just the money, should bear this in mind and do the right thing for the kids.
