MARGARET, the 4-year-old cat dropped off at the home of Ann Settle in Westland, got her wish and is spending the holidays with her new adopted family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Gayle of Plymouth.

Settle also reports that as a result of the story in the Dec. 16 edition of the Observer, several kittens also have found homes with interested callers.

Unfortunately, O.T. wasn't as lucky. O.T., which stands for Old Timer, was a 10-year-old black Labrador left at the Humane Society's Kindness Center in Westland after his owner became ill.

Before he could be adopted, O.T. became seriously ill from heart failure last Wednesday and had to be put to sleep.

SENIOR ADULTS belonging to the Tuesday and Wednesday clubs sponsored by Wayne-Westland Community Schools celebrated the holiday season with parties recently at the Dyer Center. More than 550 members gathered for dinner and entertainment provided by the Senior Adult Chorus, Art LaFrance, Jack Frost, Mary Esser and the BanJoes and Jills.

The festivities marked the end of the 1982 program at the senior center.

SIX MEN have been added to the Westland fire department, replacing others who have left during the last 15 months. Training was provided by Assistant Chief Robert Mulligan of the Westland department and Battalion Chief Myron Herzog of the Dearborn department at the Dearborn Fire Academy.

According to Chief Ted Scott, the group is one of the best-educated groups selected. Three of the men are licensed emergency medical technicians, one is a registered nurse and two have a college degree. Those who aren't trained in EMS work will attend school in January for state certification.

The six are Dennis Wysocki, 30, Ronald Francis, 32, Richard Stanke, 33, Kenneth Leftwich, 31, David Carignan, 24, and Kevin Riley, 22.

STUDENTS WIN more than awards and scholarships when they participate in the VFW Voice of Democracy Scholarship Program, according to Helen Stevens of the VFW Post Auxiliary in Westland.

"One of the greatest benefits to young people who take part in the program is that by thinking, writing and speaking up for their country, they gain a better appreciation of their obligation to maintain our nation's heritage of freedom," she said.

Winners from John Glenn High School are Steve Whitehead, first place, $100 and trophy; Garry Mull, second place, $75 and plaque and Dawn Smithpeters, third place, $50 and plaque.

MEMBERS OF two youth leagues at Oak Lanes on Middlebelt in Westland were really on the ball Dec. 11. Participating in the first Jerry Lewis Bowl-a-thon at the establishment, the Saturday youth leagues raised more than $1,400 for persons with muscular dystrophy.

Top prize, an AM/FM cassette recorder was awarded to Robert Sieczkowski of Garden City, who raised $190. Second prize went to Lisa Mastrolonni of Detroit and third prize to Kelly Swindell of Livonia.

Other top fund-raisers included Rob McGraw, Keith Postler, Bob Biegański and Jenny Maynard.

A representative from the bowl-a-thon will be on the Jerry Lewis Telethon in September.

City deficit may force program cuts

By Sandra Armbruster
editor

Layoffs and possible cuts in service face Westland in 1983 as the city tries to cope with a budget deficit that may reach $600,000.

Mayor Charles Pickering blames city council actions and loss of state revenue sharing for the deficit.

A "token" reduction in the millage rate and lower than recommended increases in street lighting assessments are two areas that Pickering said the council has "deliberately attempted to create a deficit in this budget.

"They're selling our city short," Pickering added.

Pickering and the city council have been feuding since the mayor took office. Pickering twice vetoed budgets approved by the council, which finally overrode his veto.

He also accused the council of "taking advantage of the fact that citizens are concerned" about taxes and the deficit.

Last June the city council approved an operating millage levy of 7.16 mills — a reduction of one-half mill in the tax rate levied last year. Pickering said that amounted to about $10 less in taxes for average homeowners in Westland. The half-mill represents a total of about $325,000 for the city.

Taxes still increased, however, due to a higher value placed on property in the city. The city's total tax rate is 14.45 mills.

Pickering said that council approval of a 6 percent increase in street lighting assessments, instead of the overall 8.5 percent he requested, amounted to another $75,000 in the deficit.

He said that state funding cuts would amount to more than $200,000.

TO COPE WITH the deficit, the mayor recently held a "brainstorming" session with city employees asked to offer ideas on how to save money. The mayor's assistant, Joe Hawrylak, who also serves as personnel director, is now evaluating about 50 ideas submitted.

Some ideas concern increasing fees for permits and inspections, the disposal of city-owned property and unused equipment and others that are more long-range in nature.

"The goal was to examine every possible idea (to save money) without impacting the work force," explained Pickering. "The deficit is so huge, we're facing layoffs after the first of the year.

"We can't continue with a deficit. We thought we would be able to use 18-month (revenue) projections for balancing the budget, but we didn't anticipate the state revenue loss and the street lighting assessment being low."

Another concern is whether the Reagan administration will continue to allocate the $700,000 the city receives in federal revenue sharing funds.

CONCERN OVER the budget deficit is forcing Pickering's administration to consider a "major adjustment in services" offered to residents. He said that total programs may have to be eliminated.

"We're doing a hard study on what programs are needed," continued Pickering.

To be given first priority are those programs and services which affect the health and safety of residents. Such services, Pickering said, would include police and fire protection and road maintenance.

Equipment failure becomes burning issue for facility

Local rubbish will be buried instead of burned starting next week.

The reason is a long-standing dispute over whether locally owned rubbish incinerators meet Wayne County Air Pollution Division standards.

Because equipment which cost $3 million failed to meet those standards, the county told the Central Wayne County Sanitation Authority to close its three furnaces by Jan. 1.

The authority, organized 20 years ago by Garden City, Westland and three adjacent cities, will be forced to layoff nearly half its work force sometime in January, said Virgil L. Eller, executive director of the authority for most of its lifetime.

He said one supervisor and 13 hourly employees will lose their jobs although he hopes that changes in air-pollution equipment on one of the three furnaces will be able to meet county standards and resume burning.

But Eller said that that could take at least five to six months and possibly a year.

When the furnaces close down next week, contractors which collect local rubbish will continue to use the authority's equipment on Inkster Road between Michigan and Van Born in Dearborn Heights to transfer the rubbish to area landfills for burial.

Eller said that using landfills instead of incinerators is more expensive but feels that there would be no additional charges levied against the contractors which in turn are transferred to the cities using the furnaces and then to their users.

Using land fills instead of incinerators is more expensive, but additional charges aren't expected to be levied against the users of the facility.
— Virgil L. Eller, Executive director Wayne County Sanitation Authority

ELLER EXPLAINED the problem, which began about 12 years ago when the county told the authority to bring its air-quality standards from its then-two furnaces up to county standards.

The authority, after its third furnace was completed 10 years ago, began planning the improvements for its newest furnace. If the improvements were successful there, they would be installed on the older two units.

The dispute ultimately involved the county air-pollution division, federal Department of Energy, and the designer and manufacturer of the equipment installed on the newest of the three furnaces.

The director said the Peabody Co., which designed the equipment, and Barton Malow Affiliates, which installed it, promised it would allow the furnace to meet county air-pollution standards.

But after numerous tests and changes, it didn't, Eller said.

The sanitation authority is suing Barton Malow with a trial expected to be held early next year.

Peabody now wants to come in "at about the 11th or really 12th hour" and make more tests which it hopes will allow for equipment changes to meet the air-quality standards.

Eller said that in the late 1970s, the authority received preliminary approval from the federal energy department for $25 million in loan guarantees which would help the suburban agency get $35 million for air pollution and other equipment.

But when Ronald Reagan was elected president, he put a hold on all such loan guarantees.

The authority also tried to get private financing but after getting two proposals it concluded that it was too expensive based on the rubbish tonnage reported at the incinerator.

ELLER TALKED WITH pride about the incinerator authority which was formed long before it was popular to burn rubbish instead of burying it in land fills.

Some of its customers have been the Michigan State Lottery Bureau, post office, Ford Motor, General Motors and numerous banks which have to burn confidential records and paper work.

The authority has burned more than 3 million tons of rubbish, more than any other incinerator agency in the country, Eller said.

These smokestacks at the Wayne County Sanitation Authority facility in Westland have become a burning issue with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). Although the smoke looks like steam, it fails to meet EPA standards on air pollution.

Curriculum policy allows chance for equal learning

Go to any of the 22 elementary schools in the Wayne-Westland district, and you'll find the same curriculum being taught. That's not how it was five years ago, when there was no agreement among the staff on what to teach at each grade level.

Since then Dr. Clarice Stafford, assistant superintendent for curriculum, and the district's teaching staff have developed a policy book that outlines objectives to be taught, offers suggestions on resources, establishes procedures for testing and reports to parents.

A similar project is now in its second year for secondary schools in the district.

"With the tremendous shifting of staff and change in grade assignments due to declining enrollment, teachers now know what they are expected to achieve and where to go for additional resources," explained Patchin School principal Phil Buerk, who helped work on the project.

The inches-thick book is set up "as simple as can be" in outline form. Pages can be easily removed to keep the book current. By the end of this school year, all teachers will have a "working knowledge" of the book and its policies will be in place, according to Buerk.

"WE FELT A need to define our programs more clearly," said Stafford in describing the process.

Building administrators and teachers worked with the curriculum department in deciding which subject areas would be considered priorities, in writing goals, arriving at a concensus and selecting teaching materials.

"There was some resistance at first, but then teachers wanted us to go ahead with the math objectives before we were ready for it," Stafford continued.

Stafford said the project sold itself when the district's new reading series was adopted. Different books and their accompanying tests were evaluated, results were collected and suggestions were acted upon.

"Every teacher in the district had more than one opportunity to give input and that brought credibility and

The Cambridge Community Education Center held its first annual open house last week, with demonstrations of the various activities held there.

The center was open 11 hours to allow persons to visit classrooms and see demonstrations and entertainment.

An upholstery class taught by Frank Kimberline was open for visitors throughout the day. In the class were various chairs and sofas, some of them antiques. The display was valued at more than $10,000.

There were stained glass demonstrations in the Artist Alcove, the items made by leisue time teachers; aerobics in the gym, children exercise classes, demonstrations of wrestling techniques along with clowns who roamed throughout the building. The high-school art class also offered demonstrations.

The center was opened 1½ years ago when the Garden City school board closed the building previously used as a junior high school. In addition to the adult education program, the center provides a day care facility for young children.

When the board and administration decided to put a high priority on increasing adult education enrollments to generate more state revenues, they hired Chery Willett as adult education director.

In the 2½ years since her appointment, adult education enrollment has increased from just over 100 to more than 800, generating nearly $1 million in additional state funds.

CHANGING YOUR FACIAL CONTOUR
Although the human body continues to change throughout life, changes in the adult occur much more slowly than in the child and are called "maturing features". In most people, the middle, autumn and later years of life are characterized by a thinning and sharpening of the facial contours. During these years, the support provided by intact teeth is critically important in maintaining a symmetrical and pleasing facial appearance.
The teeth, especially the front teeth (incisors) and the eye teeth (canines), provide direct support to the shape of the lips, corner of the mouth, and front part of the cheeks. If these teeth are not replaced immediately, their loss can cause or accentuate folding, drooping and hollowing of the facial tissues resulting in facial features that can be unattractive and downright unpleasant.
In the older person, loss of the bicuspids and molars (back teeth) accentuates the hollow configuration of the cheeks and deepens the natural lines and wrinkles. You only have one face. Don't let negligence keep it from looking as young as you are for life. Replace any missing teeth now!

Auto sales outlook: 10 percent increase

Next year should bring some recovery to the U.S. auto market but not to the degree needed for a real boom.

That's the prognosis of the Automotive News World Outlook in the publication's "Forecast '83" section. It predicts sales of new cars in 1983 will total 8.6 million units, some 10 percent more than 1982's estimated 7.8 million.

Reason for the listless outlook: the anemic U.S. economy, which has deferred a recovery through all of 1982.

THE WORLD Outlook, a joint venture between Automotive News and Data Resources Inc., projects that the 1983 auto market recovery will be gradual.

Annual sales rate will be less than 8.1 million units in the first quarter, nearly 8.4 million in the second quarter, but not cracking the 9-million barrier until the industry achieves a 9.2-million-unit car sales rate in the fourth quarter.

Interviews with the U.S. auto company chairmen indicate they are far from unanimous about the sales outlook.

"We're reasonably confident that a year from new we should be running at an annual (industry) rate of travel of 14 million cars and trucks," General Motors Chairman Roger Smith is quoted as saying.

Says Ford Motor Co. Chairman Philip Caldwell: "After a miserable 1982, following a not very good 1981, to me 1983 will be better . . . I'm not looking for a barn-burner next year, but a 10 or 15 percent improvement would be welcome."

CHRYSLER CORP. Chairman Lee Iacocca says: "For prudent budget planning, I'd say if it (1983 new car sales) goes up 10 percent to 8.5 million, we're lucky. The first three months of '83, I don't see any quick turnaround. We have to have a boom the last six months of '83 to make 8.5."

American Motors Chairman W. Paul Tippett predicts "there will be a modest improvement in the industry as we move through 1983 . . . nothing meteoric or dramatic, but uphill rather than downhill."

UAW President Douglas Fraser declined to make a sales forecast because the economy is too unstable. But he believes a trend to forecasting reality has begun among perenially bullish auto executives, "(Roger) Smith still flies off the reservation predicting possible sales of 14 million cars and trucks in 1985."

Ford tests 6 groups

Ford Motor Co. is listening to individual consumer groups in an approach it calls "contemporary marketing," according to Darryl Hazel, the automaker's marketing programs and strategy manager.

He said Ford has identified six major contemporary markets: Hispanics, women, blacks, mature, youth and affluent consumers. And within these markets, the company recognizes sub-groups such as professional working women.

Addressing the National Hispanic University conference in San Francisco, Hazel said "it's the consumer who ultimately should be directing our decisions regarding what Ford does in production, styling, selling and all our communications, as well."

OBJECTIVES are developed and extensive research is undertaken "to determine how the company and its products are perceived at present, how the target market perceives the competition and their products, and what the target market feels the most important aspects of the product are," among others, he said.

"It's the willingness to make the investment into these market segments that represents the change in today's marketing psychology," Hazel said.

David Dunigan places the two millionth call to "Miss Dig," the utility information service, from the Dunigan Brothers construction trailer in Gull Lake near Kalamazoo. About 57 miles of sewer construction will be completed, and close cooperation with utility companies and governmental units is necessary to prevent damage to underground and overhead utility facilities.

Sally Heaton, facilities record clerk for Michigan Bell in Kalamazoo and her supervisor, Marilyn Kennedy (standing), engineering associate, have received a teletype from "Miss Dig" headquarters in Royal Oak. Here they examine records to see if any underground telephone cables are located where Dunigan Brothers will excavate.

At a work location where sewers are to be laid, David Dunigan and utility service men start down the road to begin determining where stakes will be placed marking utility services. From left: Michael French, installer-repairman for Hickory Telephone Co.; Edward G. Jordan, service technician, Michigan Bell; Dunigan and Daniel D. Crandall, gas linesman, Consumers Power Co.

'Miss Dig' fields 2 millionth call

"Miss Dig" has saved hundreds of lives and millions of dollars in property damage since she began operating in Michigan 12 years ago.

"Interruption of utility service has been avoided in countless instances," said Michael Digon, executive secretary of the program.

"Prior to the 'Miss Dig' program, public and private utilities experienced frequent service interruptions caused by excavators striking pipes and cables," he added.

This week the "Miss Dig" program passed a milestone by fielding its two-millionth call. Here is how the program works:

ANY CONTRACTOR or private property owner who is planning to excavate, dials "Miss Dig" at least 48 hours before beginning an excavating job. The contractor gives the operator pertinent information about the planned job, including exact location of the job.

The information is entered into a computer and teletyped to all utilities serving the location.

Those utilities then stake out their lines with color-coded markers, sometimes meeting with the contractor on large jobs to discuss excavation plans.

Assistance may also be provided by an electric utility if equipment is to be used near electric overhead lines.

Five Michigan utility companies — Michigan Bell Telephone, Detroit Edison, Michigan Consolidated Gas, General Telephone and Consumers Power — started "Miss Dig" in November 1970. They have administrative responsibility of operating the system.

Earlier this year Consumers Power established a subsidiary to take over operations.

"MISS DIG" began with a pilot program in four townships bordering Detroit and spread rapidly throughout the state.

There are now 450 participants in the "MISS DIG" program. An average of 1,000 calls are received each day at the call center in Royal Oak. Fourteen operators have 19 phone lines open.

The original telehone number spelled MISS DIG, but the toll free number 1-800-482-7171 was added to accommodate the entire state.

At first, only underground telephone, telegraph, gas, electric, water sewer and storm lines and drains were of concern, Digon said. From 1977-79, "MISS DIG" added coverage of overhead electric lines throughout the state. Recently, "MISS DIG" began taking responsibility for underground television cables.

State law vs. charter on sheriff's appointment

By Mary Klemic
and Tim Richard staff writers

It seemed to be over within minutes.

By a 2-1 vote Tuesday, a three-member committee appointed Deputy County Clerk Robert Ficano to succeed William Lucas as sheriff of Wayne County.

But there's more to it than that. A controversy has erupted over who should appoint Lucas' successor.

LUCAS, WHO will become county executive Jan. 3, was quick to attack Ficano's appointment, calling it "an affront to the will of the people," "premature" and "unfair."

Lucas contends the new county charter gives him, as county executive, authority to name the new sheriff. He declared he would appoint current Undersheriff Loren Pittman as sheriff "immediately upon taking the oath of office for Wayne County executive."

The Ficano appointment was made by a selection committee composed of County Clerk James Killeen, chief Probate Judge Joseph Pernick and Prosecutor William Cahalan. That panel was estabished by a 1954 state law governing counties generally.

AT THE OUTSET of that committee's meeting Tuesday, Clerk Killeen distributed copies of state and county law and a written opinion from state Attorney General Frank Kelley.

Killeen said the statutes and attorney general's opinion clearly give the committee — not the executive — authority to name the sheriff's successor.

The attorney general's opinion noted "the Charter County Act therefore does not confer upon an elected county executive . . . the power of appointment or the filling of a vacancy. . . ."

"This is the way it is, has been and the attorney general says it will be," Killeen stated. "Nobody has said to me this would be challenged."

THE CHARTER, section (2.212) cited by Lucas says the chief executive officer may appoint someone to fill the vacancies in the offices of prosecuting attorney, sheriff, county clerk, county treasurer, register of deeds and drain commissioner, "if permitted by law."

But Kelley's written opinion cited by Killeen said a 1980 amendment to the 1966 charter county act provides that "the duty and responsibility of an elected county executive . . . shall include the power of appointment and at pleasure the removal of heads of departments . . . except elected officials.

"The charter county act therefore does not confer upon an elected county executive . . . the power of appointment, or the filling of a vacancy; of the prosecuting attorney, sheriff, county clerk, treasurer or register of deeds," Kelley wrote.

Generally, state law takes precedence over a county or city charter.

Sheriff-designate Ficano office vs. official

BUT GEORGE WARD, the Detroit attorney who chaired the Wayne County Charter Commission in 1981, said, "We intended the appointment to be made by Lucas. We think it is permitted by law."

When the post of sheriff is filled by an elected person, Ward said, the executive has no authority over him. But when the post is vacant, the executive can make the appointment, Ward argues.

Ward's reasoning: The law distinguishes between an elective "office," such as the post of sheriff, and an elected "official." Since there will be no elected "official" in the post of sheriff in 1983, Ward said, County Executive Lucas can make the appointment.

"I think the odds are Lucas will be sustained (in court)," Ward said, adding, "I may live to find out I was wrong."

A DIFFERENT is taken in the Killeen-Ficano camp.

It holds the Charter Commission in Sec. 2.212 gave the executive appointment power for the sheriff in anticipation of the day when the law would be changed. But that day hasn't come.

The Charter Commission, in its deliberations, had no intention of overriding the state law giving the appointment power to the three-member committee, in their view.

LUCAS DIDN'T attend Tuesday's meeting and was unavailable for further comment Wednesday afternoon.

His press secretary, Bill Johnson, would only read a prepared statement calling the panel's action "premature inasmuch as I intend to remain sheriff until January."

Lucas also attacked Ficano's qualifications. Ficano had served in private practice and as Westland assistant city attorney.

Lucas said that Pittman has a "distinguished career in law enforcement spanning 35 years." Pittman is a former River Rouge police chief and has been Lucas' undersheriff for 13 years.

PERNICK, HOWEVER, pointed to Ficano's "broad management experience in the office of the county clerk and his knowledge of state and county government." He dismissed any charges of "cronyism" in Ficano's appointment.

Ficano taps Livonian

Novak is undersheriff

Richard M. Novak will move a step closer Jan. 1 to his 33-year dream of being sheriff of Wayne County, even if he's in the middle of a legal-political controversy.

Novak, 55, of Livonia, will be promoted to undersheriff when — and if — Robert A. Ficano, 30, takes the oath of sheriff. (See related story this edition.)

"I've worked under five sheriffs appointed by the system," Novak said Thursday when Ficano, currently a deputy county clerk, announced his planned appointment in the conference room of County Clerk James Killeen. "There was never any question who had the power (of appointment). There is no place to go but in the door."

NOVAK'S DREAM was born when he joined the sheriff's jail division in 1949 after serving four years in the U.S. Marines in Guam, China, Japan, Tinian, Cuba and Puerto Rico. He returned to duty for a year during the Korean conflict.

Rising through the ranks, Novak was promoted in 1975 to senior inspector — highest ranking uniformed person in the department. On an organizational chart, he and the head of the jail division report to the undersheriff.

Novak's name was in consideration when a three-man county committee considered candidates for sheriff earlier in the week to replace Sheriff William Lucas, who will be sworn in Jan. 3 as county executive.

Lucas, however, wants to appoint his current undersheriff, Loren Pittman, as sheriff.

Asked what will happen to Pittman, Ficano would say only that he would "stay on to effectuate a smooth transition."

FICANO SAID Novak is "well-respected by the deputies in hhs command, police chiefs and others in the law enforcement community.

"I had several conversations with police chiefs. The one name that kept recurring was Dick Novak."

The news conference was held in the conference room of County Clerk James Killeen, Ficano's boss until Jan. 1. The room was packed with senior sheriff's officers, police chiefs and Novak family members, who loudly applauded the announcement for television cameras.

Novak introduced his son, Mike, a Michigan State University graduate (criminal justice) who will join the U.S. Treasury Department's Secret Service Jan. 10.

UNDERSHERIFF-designate Novak said he had supported Livonia Mayor Edward H. McNamara for county executive in the Aug. 10 Democratic primary.

"I supported McNamara eight months before Lucas approached me," said Novak, adding he didn't think Lucas is the type of man who would bear a grudge.

As undersheriff, said Ficano, Novak will be second in command and "can do anything I give him power to do."

Ficano said he saw the department as being headed by "a unique blend of my administrative ability and his law enforcement background. It is my intention to lay to rest any speculation about my appointment. I do not want any employees of the department to be used as political pawns."

Signs of stress

Divorce tough on kids, too — prof

The stress on parents undergoing divorce often blinds them to the signs of stress in their children, according to a Michigan State University professor.

"When parents are on that slide toward divorce, constant tension tends to drive them inward so they sometimes become insulated from their children's problems," says Anne Soderman, assistant professor of family and child ecology.

Soderman says children typically conceal their stress. But alert, caring parents can interpret the signals.

"Really young kids are firmly attached to their parents," she explains, "so they quickly develop a fear of being abandoned. The mother might tell the child, 'Daddy and I don't love each other any more so we're going to live apart,' but the child might think, 'If she can leave daddy, she can leave me, too.'"

YOUNGER CHILDREN, Soderman notes, experience a "depressive reaction" which they often manifest through regressive behavior.

"A child who hasn't wet the bed in a long time wets the bed. One suddenly wants a bottle even though he's given it up. They watch a lot of TV, lose interest in their toys and start hanging around the house to be wherever the parent is."

Soderman says typical reactions in middle childhood (roughly ages 6-12) are sadness and guilt. "They wonder why they can't keep their parents together and often feel it's their fault that their parents are breaking up," she says.

Another reaction is anxiety about having to move away, leave their friends, change schools. "It's different for younger kids because they don't really care where they live as long as it's with their parents," Soderman explains.

ADOLESCENTS, she says, think more about the future — what they'll have to do to get money, how they'll go to college, whether or not they too will end up divorced.

A further problem occurs when parents who have separated begin working out their hostilities by manipulating the children.

"A lot of parents can make the break legally but not psychologically," says Soderman. They're angry, bitter, hurt and they play 'pain games' with their ex-spouses, using the kids to spy on and manipulate one another.

"For example, the wife says, 'You didn't send the alimony check this week so when you come to pick up our son this weekend, forget it, he won't be ready.'"

After a while, the children learn to manipulate the parents, too.

"They see they can satisfy some of their own needs by using the parents the way the parents use them," Soderman says. "They'll say, 'Mom, I like going to dad's better. I get to stay up later, go to movies, and I don't have to do housework. It's more fun there, and he doesn't yell at me the way you do.'"

TO AVOID this, parents should present "a united front," Soderman advises.

"Parents have to be above this sort of behavior themselves before they can stop the kids from doing it. They have to learn to support one another when talking to the children, avoid badmouthing each other and apply similar rules at both residences.

The children usually want to be with both their parents, so parents shouldn't force them to take sides. "The loyalty conflicts are very painful for children, and they tend to keep it inside themselves. It's emotionally wrenching," she says.

Also, parents should remember that their behavior sets examples for their children.

"They're teaching their kids how to react to stress situations and to relationships," Soderman says.

Josef Sommer plays George Bynam, an antiquities expert for a prestigious auction gallery who turns up as a murder victim in "Still of the Night." Assistant Meryl Streep is the chief suspect in the movie which is rife with references to its spiritual master, Alfred Hitchcock.

the movies

Louise Snider

'Still of the Night' copies Hitchcock without arty story

"Still of the Night" (PG) is a white-knuckle movie from the startling opening to the tension-filled ending. It is also something of a miracle because it bristles with suspense even though the story deals with two dull and foolish characters.

Robert Benton directed it from his own screenplay, and took more than a page or two from the notebook of the master, Alfred Hitchcock. The movie is awash with references to, or quotes from, Hitchcock movies, including "Spellbound," (a dream sequence), "Rear Window" (a peeping-Tom view into an apartment) and "Vertigo" (a narrative description of a fall from a bell tower). Even one of the principal settings, an auction gallery, calls to mind a key scene from "North by Northwest."

In addiiton to such distinguished precedent, Benton has the advantage of Nestor Almendros' shadowy, mood-filled photography and the high-powered presence of Meryl Streep and Roy Scheider.

This should add up to the "psychological thriller" the publicity leads us to expect. Instead we get a movie in which the psychology has little to do with the suspense — created by superb use of sound, lighting, photography and editing. The story is disappointing.

SCHEIDER PLAYS a psychiatrist whose patient (Josef Sommer) has been found murdered. When the victim's lover (Meryl Streep) shows up at the psychiatrist's office, the recently divorced doctor finds himself attracted to her. His interest is undaunted, or maybe even excited, by police suspicions that the murderer is a woman.

From what the psychiatrist learns as he reviews tapes of his sessions with the murdered man and from what the police theorize, everything points toward Streep. Is the doctor in love with a killer? Why is he attracted to her? Is it all that nervous twitching and the kinky behavior?

Streep's character would put off anyone except a mental-health professional. However, Scheider's interest seems more than professional. I say "seems" because both these characters are so cold, when they kiss it's like two icebergs sliding against each other. There is no warmth there. They don't click as a couple, and they don't fare much better as individuals.

Streep is so edgy and jittery that we can't believe she actually is employed in a fine-arts auction gallery where she handles precious and delicate objects. And Scheider's character does nothing to disprove folk wisdom that says certificates and diplomas have nothing to do with common sense.

Every time he makes a move, he puts himself in jeopardy. You can't expect an audience to sympathize with characters who are just plain dumb, and that's the way the psychiatrist is in "Still of the Night." If there is a dark, dangerous and isolated place, trust him to find it.

THIS FOOLHARDINESS extends to walking through Central Park at night. Now that's stretching things beyond all credibility. Even foreign tourists know enough to avoid the park at night.

The only minimally interesting aspect of the character is his relationship with his mother (Jessica Tandy), also a psychiatrist. They get together and chat about dreams. He gives one interpretation, she another.

The other worthy part of the film is the inside look it gives us of the operations of a major auction house, probably modeled after Sotheby-Park Bernet. Now if the characters were of some interest, I'd make a bid for this move. As it is, I can only admire Benton's expertise in creating suspense out of such thin stuff.

Roy Scheider plays the victim's psychiatrist, a man singularly lacking in common sense. He seems to take every opportunity to needlessly expose himself to danger — such as taking a midnight stroll through some of New York City's more dimly lit streets.

Based on the regular season, it was a very good year for four area prep girls' basketball teams.

Plymouth Salem, the Western Lakes champs, and league runners-up Livonia Bentley were both ranked in Class A the entire year by a statewide coaches poll.

Those two teams, however, registered disappointing results in post-season play, being eliminated in district action.

Bentley fell to eventual state champ Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy while Salem was upset at home by Westland John Glenn.

Livonia Ladywood, rated No. 2 all year in Class B while going unbeaten, won the Catholic League A-B crown, but dropped a state quarterfinal match to St. Joseph.

Another unbeaten team during the regular season, Redford St. Agatha, rolled in the Catholic League's C-D tourney, but was ousted in regional play by Armada.

The setbacks in state tournament play, however, fail to detract from the quality displayed by area competitors. Players from Salem, Bentley, Ladywood and St. Agatha are well represented on this year's All-Area team. The four schools combined to garner nine of the 15 All-Area berths.

Ten of the area's 14 coaches gathered recently to select the top players. This year's squad is listed alphabetically.

FIRST TEAM

Missy Aiken, center, Plymouth Canton. The 5-foot-10 senior transferred from Stevensville-Lakeshore a year ago and quickly fit into the Canton lineup.

She averaged 12.2 points per game and grabbed 11.3 rebounds per contest.

"Missy is an extremely hard worker who is very coachable," said Canton coach Phyllis Cunningham.

Kim Archer, forward, Livonia Bentley. The area's premier athlete, Archer again was the catalyst for another fine Bentley season.

Excelling in all phases of the game, the 5-10 Archer averaged 17 points, 14 rebounds and six assists per game. She also averaged five steals and shot 52 percent from the field.

Archer was named to virtually every all-star team in the state of Michigan. One scouting service rated her the state's second best player behind Okemos' Sue Tucker, but one area coach remarked after seeing both play: "It's hard for me to say she (Archer) isn't the best."

Sophie Castonguay, guard, Westland John Glenn. The junior was Glenn's most consistent scorer, averaging 10 points per game.

Castonguay also grabbed 106 rebounds this season and came up with 78 steals.

"Sophie is a strong shooting guard who is going to be an outstanding senior," said Glenn coach George Sommerman.

Mona Clor, center, Redford St. Agatha. The 6-0 senior was a four-year starter for the Aggies.

This season, Clor averaged 18 points, 19 rebounds and shot 65 percent from the field. She had high games of 33 points and 30 rebounds.

Clor was also named to several Class C All-State teams, not to mention metro and All-Catholic honors.

The Agatha center is being highly recruited by several schools.

Laurie Day, guard, Livonia Bentley. A junior, Day's role was to be the playmaker although she averaged 11 points, five assists and four steals per game.

According to coach Tom Lang, the most import-

Cougars fall short—Barely

basketball

Don't ever count Garden City out of a basketball game. Not even when the deficit is 21 points late in the third quarter.

The Cougars, who have been rallying for victories all year, almost pulled off another gem Wednesday night, but Sterling Heights Stevenson escaped with a 55-49 win in the finals of the Dearborn Heights Annapolis holiday tourney.

Garden City appeared to be out of its league for most of three quarters as the Titans, an intimidating club, had things going pretty much their way.

Stevenson led 13-3 after one quarter and 42-21 with 3:09 to go in the third period.

That's when Garden City coach Bob Dropp finally had to alter his game plan out of necessity.

"The only thing we really did was move into a man-to-man defense," he explained. "We spread them out and it caused them some problems."

Stevenson, looking awesome at times, went sloppy in the final quarter as Garden City made its run.

THE COUGARS chipped away at Stevenson's lead as guards Tom Ferrell and Brett Emery, along with 6-foot-4½ junior Scott McCloskey, began to find the range.

McCloskey's basket just off the free throw line pulled GC to within one, 50-49, with 2:05 to play. Sterling Heights then worked the ball as Dave Cooper drew a foul with 1:16 remaining. He hit one free throw to give the Titans a two-point cushion.

Garden City followed by making its costliest turnover of the night just eight seconds later when a pass sailed out-of-bounds.

Stevenson took possession of the ball and proceeded to wind the clock down. Bruce Wichlacz was intentionally fouled with 21 seconds left and he made good on both free throws to give Sterling Heights a four-point advantage and the title.

"This game helped us an awful lot," said Stevenson coach Craig Morris, whose team is now 4-1 overall. "When games get tight, you find where you're at.

"We hung in there well down the stretch and did a couple of key things.

"We lost the lead because our big people were not putting the ball in the basket and that made it tough."

ONE STERLING HEIGHTS player who could shoot from anywhere was 6-3 sophomore Jeff McCool, who displayed a deadly left-handed touch. He finished with 23 points. Guard Ray Borkowski, the tournament MVP, added 16.

"We hit only one for 16 (shots) in the first quarter and that spelled the difference," said Dropp, whose team is off to a 5-2 start. "It was a good ball club we lost to, but I was glad we showed some spirit coming back."

Senior center Craig Dimaya led the Cougars with 14 points and McCloskey added 10. Ferrell and Emery scored eight each.

"Garden City could have quit," said Morris, "but they came right back.

"They never stopped playing."

Joining Borkowski on the All-Tournament team were McCloskey, McCool, Tim Spencer of Livonia Clarenceville and Steve Whitcomb of Annapolis.

Josef Sommer plays George Bynam, an antiquities expert for a prestigious auction gallery who turns up as a murder victim in "Still of the Night." Assistant Meryl Streep is the chief suspect in the movie which is rife with references to its spiritual master, Alfred Hitchcock.

'Still of the Night' copies Hitchcock without arty story

"Still of the Night" (PG) is a white-knuckle movie from the startling opening to the tension-filled ending. It is also something of a miracle because it bristles with suspense even though the story deals with two dull and foolish characters.

Robert Benton directed it from his own screenplay, and took more than a page or two from the notebook of the master, Alfred Hitchcock. The movie is awash with references to, or quotes from, Hitchcock movies, including "Spellbound," (a dream sequence), "Rear Window" (a peeping-Tom view into an apartment) and "Vertigo" (a narrative description of a fall from a bell tower). Even one of the principal settings, an auction gallery, calls to mind a key scene from "North by Northwest."

In additon to such distinguished precedent, Benton has the advantage of Nestor Almendros' shadowy, mood-filled photography and the high-powered presence of Meryl Streep and Roy Scheider.

This should add up to the "psychological thriller" the publicity leads us to expect. Instead we get a movie in which the psychology has little to do with the suspense — created by superb use of sound, lighting, photography and editing. The story is disappointing.

SCHEIDER PLAYS a psychiatrist whose patient (Josef Sommer) has been found murdered. When the victim's lover (Meryl Streep) shows up at the psychiatrist's office, the recently divorced doctor finds himself attracted to her. His interest is undaunted, or maybe even excited, by police suspicions that the murderer is a woman.

From what the psychiatrist learns as he reviews tapes of his sessions with the murdered man and from what the police theorize, everything points toward Streep. Is the doctor in love with a killer? Why is he attracted to her? Is it all that nervous twitching and the kinky behavior?

Streep's character would put off anyone except a mental-health professional. However, Scheider's interest seems more than professional. I say "seems" because both these characters are so cold, when they kiss it's like two icebergs sliding against each other. There is no warmth there. They don't click as a couple, and they don't fare much better as individuals.

Streep is so edgy and jittery that we can't believe she actually is employed in a fine-arts auction gallery where she handles precious and delicate objects. And Scheider's character does nothing to disprove folk wisdom that says certificates and diplomas have nothing to do with common sense.

Every time he makes a move, he puts himself in jeopardy. You can't expect an audience to sympathize with characters who are just plain dumb, and that's the way the psychiatrist is in "Still of the Night." If there is a dark, dangerous and isolated place, trust him to find it.

Based on the regular season, it was a very good year for four area prep girls' basketball teams.

Plymouth Salem, the Western Lakes champs, and league runners-up Livonia Bentley were both ranked in Class A the entire year by a statewide coaches poll.

Those two teams, however, registered disappointing results in post-season play, being eliminated in district action.

Bentley fell to eventual state champ Farmington Hills Our Lady of Mercy while Salem was upset at home by Westland John Glenn.

Livonia Ladywood, rated No. 2 all year in Class B while going unbeaten, won the Catholic League A-B crown, but dropped a state quarterfinal match to St. Joseph.

Another unbeaten team during the regular season, Redford St. Agatha, rolled in the Catholic League's C-D tourney, but was ousted in regional play by Armada.

The setbacks in state tournament play, however, fail to detract from the quality displayed by area competitors. Players from Salem, Bentley, Ladywood and St. Agatha are well represented on this year's All-Area team. The four schools combined to garner nine of the 15 All-Area berths.

Ten of the area's 14 coaches gathered recently to select the top players. This year's squad is listed alphabetically.

FIRST TEAM

Missy Aiken, center, Plymouth Canton. The 5-foot-10 senior transferred from Stevensville-Lakeshore a year ago and quickly fit into the Canton lineup.

She averaged 12.2 points per game and grabbed 11.3 rebounds per contest.

"Missy is an extremely hard worker who is very coachable," said Canton coach Phyllis Cunningham.

Kim Archer, forward, Livonia Bentley. The area's premier athlete, Archer again was the catalyst for another fine Bentley season.

Excelling in all phases of the game, the 5-10 Archer averaged 17 points, 14 rebounds and six assists per game. She also averaged five steals and shot 52 percent from the field.

Archer was named to virtually every all-star team in the state of Michigan. One scouting service rated her the state's second best player behind Okemos' Sue Tucker, but one area coach remarked after seeing both play: "It's hard for me to say she (Archer) isn't the best."

Sophie Castonguay, guard, Westland John Glenn. The junior was Glenn's most consistent scorer, averaging 10 points per game.

Castonguay also grabbed 106 rebounds this season and came up with 78 steals.

"Sophie is a strong shooting guard who is going to be an outstanding senior," said Glenn coach George Sommerman.

Mona Clor, center, Redford St. Agatha. The 6-0 senior was a four-year starter for the Aggies.

This season, Clor averaged 18 points, 19 rebounds and shot 65 percent from the field. She had high games of 33 points and 30 rebounds.

Clor was also named to several Class C All-State teams, not to mention metro and All-Catholic honors.

The Agatha center is being highly recruited by several schools.

Laurie Day, guard, Livonia Bentley. A junior, Day's role was to be the playmaker although she averaged 11 points, five assists and four steals per game.

According to coach Tom Lang, the most import-

Bentley's Kim Archer (54) was a standout on the court for four years and, according to coach Tom Lang, was perhaps the best athlete in the Bulldogs' history.

Cougars fall short—Barely

basketball

Don't ever count Garden City out of a basketball game. Not even when the deficit is 21 points late in the third quarter.

The Cougars, who have been rallying for victories all year, almost pulled off another gem Wednesday night, but Sterling Heights Stevenson escaped with a 55-49 win in the finals of the Dearborn Heights Annapolis holiday tourney.

Garden City appeared to be out of its league for most of three quarters as the Titans, an intimidating club, had things going pretty much their way.

Stevenson led 13-3 after one quarter and 42-21 with 3:09 to go in the third period.

That's when Garden City coach Bob Dropp finally had to alter his game plan out of necessity.

"The only thing we really did was move into a man-to-man defense," he explained. "We spread them out and it caused them some problems."

Stevenson, looking awesome at times, went sloppy in the final quarter as Garden City made its run.

THE COUGARS chipped away at Stevenson's lead as guards Tom Ferrell and Brett Emery, along with 6-foot-4½ junior Scott McCloskey, began to find the range.

McCloskey's basket just off the free throw line pulled GC to within one, 50-49, with 2:05 to play. Sterling Heights then worked the ball as Dave Cooper drew a foul with 1:16 remaining. He hit one free throw to give the Titans a two-point cushion.

Garden City followed by making its costliest turnover of the night just eight seconds later when a pass sailed out-of-bounds.

Stevenson took possession of the ball and proceeded to wind the clock down. Bruce Wichlacz was intentionally fouled with 21 seconds left and he made good on both free throws to give Sterling Heights a four-point advantage and the title.

"This game helped us an awful lot," said Stevenson coach Craig Morris, whose team is now 4-1 overall. "When games get tight, you find where you're at.

"We hung in there well down the stretch and did a couple of key things.

"We lost the lead because our big people were not putting the ball in the basket and that made it tough."

ONE STERLING HEIGHTS player who could shoot from anywhere was 6-3 sophomore Jeff McCool, who displayed a deadly left-handed touch. He finished with 23 points. Guard Ray Borkowski, the tournament MVP, added 16.

"We hit only one for 16 (shots) in the first quarter and that spelled the difference," said Dropp, whose team is off to a 5-2 start. "It was a good ball club we lost to, but I was glad we showed some spirit coming back."

Senior center Craig Dimaya led the Cougars with 14 points and McCloskey added 10. Ferrell and Emery scored eight each.

"Garden City could have quit," said Morris, "but they came right back.

"They never stopped playing."

Joining Borkowski on the All-Tournament team were McCloskey, McCool, Tim Spencer of Livonia Clarenceville and Steve Whitcomb of Annapolis.

Glenn's Greg Gill (10) cradles the ball in an attempt to keep it away from Howell defender Greg Spraggins (15).

Howell tops Glenn

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

What proved to be Howell's tonic doomed Westland John Glenn last Thursday.

The Highlanders lost a pair of games earlier in the season before getting point guard Greg Spraggins back just prior to the John Glenn Christmas Tournament. That's all they needed — the super-quick Spraggins was responsible for ending the Rockets' five-game win streak in a 74-64 victory in the tourney finals.

"(Spraggins) was the difference," admitted Glenn coach Dan Henry after witnessing his team fall to 5-1 for the year. "We tried everything against them: man-to-man, press, trap (defenses).

"They're a very well-rounded team."

PART OF THAT well-roundedness was Spraggins' merry-go-roundness, as the 5-10 senior weaved his way through the entire Rocket team. Spraggins wasn't afraid to challenge Glenn's big men, 6-foot-5 Jack Walker and 6-8 Paul Grazulis, either. He finished with 20 points, many on drives to the basket.

It was a tight contest until late in the first half, when Howell rattled off nine straight points, four by Spraggins, to take a 32-25 lead.

Todd Jennings broke the skein with a basket with 58 seconds left, but Spraggins again went to work with two more buckets and the Highlanders left the floor at the half ahead 36-29.

Glenn twice cut the deficit to a pair in the third quarter after guard Greg Gill scored the first five points of the half. But midway through the period, Howell again went on a point spree, taking advantage of a cold-shooting spell by Glenn to build a 51-39 lead.

THE ROCKETS trailed by 10 going into the fourth quarter and got to within five on three occasions behind the offensive power of Walker (seven points), Grazulis (six points) and Gill (six points). But Howell's Phil Weiss also heated up, hitting five of six floor shots to keep his team in control.

Mark Redinger topped the winners with 21 points, with Weiss netting 14. Gill was high scorer for the Rockets with 23 points, followed by Grazulik's 15 and Walker's 12.

Gill, Spraggins, Redinger, Tony Bass of Wayne Memorial and Mark Merriman of Inkster Cherry Hill were named to the all-tournament team.

In Wednesday's opening round, Grazulik pumped in 16 points, with Gill adding 15 and Walker 14, as Glenn romped past Cherry Hill, 64-42.

Best dribblers anywhere around ant stat going for Day is that she averaged only two turnovers per game.

Day, an All-Lakes Division choice, had a high point output of 24.

Sherry Evans, center, Livonia Stevenson. Evans, a 6-0 senior, came on strong for the Spartans during the second half of the season.

She averaged 11.8 and 8.2 rebounds per game while shooting 48 percent from the field.

"Sherry more than held her own against the area's best in the last two years," said Stevenson coach Jim George. "She's our most improved player with her best basketball still ahead of her."

Ann Glomski, forward, Plymouth Salem. An electrifying player with extraordinary jumping ability (33-inch vertical leap), Glomski played best in the big games.

The Rocks' co-captain averaged nine points per game, and was the team leader in steals and rebounds.

"Ann's a very aggressive player who never gives up," said Salem coach Bob Blohm.

Debbie Jurczyszyn, forward, Livonia Stevenson. The 5-7 senior was Stevenson's MVP as she averaged 13 points and 7.3 rebounds per game.

Jurczyszyn was an excellent shooter, making 70 of 105 free throws for a 65 percent average.

"Debbie is very coachable with a very serious attitude toward the game," said Stevenson coach Jim George. "She was our best outside shooter and the girl we went to in the clutch."

Mary Kellow, guard, Redford St. Agatha. Also a four-year regular, Kellow provided leadership for the Aggies.

She averaged 17.8 points, 11 rebounds and hit 77.4 percent from the free throw line.

The senior was a first-team All-Catholic C-D pick and is one of four All-Observer repeaters.

Laurie Mack, forward, Redford Thurston. The 5-10 senior was the Eagles' leading scorer despite being hobbled by torn knee ligaments and sprained ankles. To combat the injuries, Mack wore a specially made, $1,000 brace. She missed four games.

Mack averaged 11 points per game while hitting 63 percent of her shots from the free throw stripe.

Jacque Merrifield, forward, Plymouth Salem. The word "winner" comes to mind when talking about this four-year standout.

Merrifield played in 100 games, starting 95 of those, as Salem won 80 percent of its games.

"Jacque is an outstanding defensive player who knows what needs to be done for the team to be successful," said Salem coach Bob Blohm. "She's a very positive person whose leadership, hard work and consistency helped Salem receive statewide recognition."

Merrifield averaged 12 points per game, hitting primarily from 12 to 17 feet.

Pam McBride, forward, Plymouth Salem. The junior is a three-year varsity performer who became a dependable offensive scorer for Salem this season.

At 5-6½, McBride played inside and was an excellent ball-handler and perimeter shooter for the Rocks.

"She usually had the job of guarding the best post player from the opposing team and she did an outstanding job," said Blohm.

Kathy Storvis, center, Redford Union. An All-Northwest Suburban League first-team pick, the 5-9 senior center averaged 10 points and 14 rebounds per game.

The RU MVP also averaged three assists and two steals per game.

"Kathy's abilities are very strong," said RU coach Terri Anthony. "She is 5-9 and only 130 pounds, but is a team leader and plays with great desire."

Emily Wagner, guard, Livonia Ladywood. Only a sophomore, Wagner played with the cool and poise of a senior.

She averaged 12 points, five assists and three steals per game. Her shooting was even more impressive — 46 percent from the field and 75 percent from the line.

The 5-9 point-guard started 19 games last year as a freshman.

"She has a very bright future," said Ladywood coach Ed Kavanaugh. "She just seems to get better."

Lavetta Willis, center, Livonia Ladywood. Willis, an All-Observer repeater, rolled up some impressive statistics during her senior year.

She scored at an 18 points-per-game clip and averaged 12 rebounds per game while hitting a phenomenal 64 percent from the floor. She scored a career-high 31 points in a regional final win against Saline.

The 5-11 center was named to several All-State teams.

The Trojans won the consolation game, holding off Annapolis down the stretch.

Clarenceville is now 2-5 overall. Annapolis slipped to 0-6.

Larry Weigand and Tim Spencer, Clarenceville's post players, scored 20 and 19, respectively.

Annapolis got 16 points from Steve Whitcomb and 12 from Bill Smith.

The first half spelled the difference as Clarenceville jumped out to a 31-29 halftime advantage.

But in the third quarter, Annapolis got back in the game as Weigand and Spencer both sat the bench for a lengthy period because of foul trouble.

The Trojans, however, maintained their slim lead by making four critical free throws in the waning minutes.

Bright, warm colors, festive mariachi music and fragrant flowers will help to create the perfect atmosphere for your Mexican-style buffet.

Plan a look of joyous spontaneity, yet utmost practicality around your holiday buffet table. Choose dishes that may be prepared ahead of time and set out just before the guests arrive. Make sure the dishes are easy to serve and will hold up for second helpings.

Choose foods that are easy to carry and eat. Also, try to imagine how they will look on individual serving plates — offer a good variety of color, textures and both hot and cold selections. Be sure individual serving plates are large enough to hold the foods attractively.

Arrange the buffet table in an easily accessible area. Do not crowd the table with serving dishes. Space should be allowed for guests' plates to rest when serving themselves. Make sure there are plenty of plates, flatware and napkins as well as glasses and ice for beverages.

If this is your first venture into Mexican cuisine, you'll be pleased with the ease of preparation and use of inexpensive, yet familiar and readily available ingredients. Mexican dishes include avocados, ground beef, lettuce, tomatoes, ripe olives, Cheddar cheese, tortillas, refried beans and chilies. And, you can determine the degree of "hotness" by the types of chili pepper and sauce you choose.

Complement the atmosphere of your buffet with food selections that provide color, freshness and a unique taste sensation.

The Avocado Holiday Spread is all of this and more. Cream cheese is flavored with bottled taco sauce and spread over a serving plate. It is topped with a layer of golden-green avocado cubes and served with additional taco sauce and tortilla chips. With only three ingredients, available year 'round in your local market, and so simply assembled, this dish is perfect for even spur-of-the-moment gatherings.

For a fresh and light buffet item, Gazpacho Molded Salad is low-cal as well as delicious, which is a welcome change during the traditionally "high calorie" holiday season. Tomatoes and green chilies, and chopped green chilies, are combined with seasoned gelatin, cucumber and onion and served with guacamole made with California avocados. Much to the surprise of many, avocados are low in calories, yet high in vitamins and minerals.

Variety and a sense of balance are keys when selecting your buffet menu — remember to prepare one or two hot hors d'oeuvres as well as cold. Warm up your guests with hot Sombrero Stacks. Prepared chili with beans, chopped green chilies, shredded cheese and Mexican-style corn are mixed together, layered with corn tortillas and heated through. Just before serving, they are garnished with California avocado slices, shredded lettuce and tomato cubes and served with sour cream and bottled taco sauce. Offer both mild and hot sauce to please the reserved as well as the more adventurous palates.

Most of all, take time to enjoy yourself and your guests — experience a Mexican holiday — it's glories, festivities and delightful food. FELICIDADES!

AVOCADO HOLIDAY SPREAD

1 package (8 ounces) cream cheese
1 bottle (8 ounces) Hot or Mild Taco Sauce, divided usage
1 California avocado, seeded, peeled and chopped
1 to 2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 box (7-1/2 ounces) Tortilla Chips

Whip cream cheese with 3 tablespoons taco sauce; spread in a circular form on a large platter. Sprinkle chopped avocado generously with lemon juice to prevent browning; place on top of cream cheese. Drizzle with additional taco sauce and serve with tortilla chips. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

GAZPACHO MOLDED SALAD

2 cans (10 ounces each) tomato juice
1 can (10 ounces) Tomatoes and Green Chilies
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/3 cup red wine vinegar
1/3 cup olive oil
1 clove garlic, pressed
1 large cucumber, peeled and finely chopped
1/2 cup finely chopped onion
1 can (4 ounces) Chopped Green Chilies
2 California avocados, seeded, peeled and mashed
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon seasoned salt
Dash hot pepper sauce

Combine tomato juice and tomatoes and green chilies in a saucepan; sprinkle gelatin over tomato mixture to soften. Place over low heat until gelatin is dissolved, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat and stir in vinegar, olive oil and garlic. Set saucepan in a bowl of ice, stirring occasionally, until mixture is the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. When tomato mixture thickens, fold in cucumber, onion and chopped green chilies. Pour into a 6-1/2 cup mold. Refrigerate 3 hours or until firm. Unmold and refrigerate until serving time. Just before serving, combine mashed avocados with lemon juice, salt and hot pepper sauce. Fill the center of the mold with the avocado mixture. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

SOMBRERO STACK

1 can (15 ounces) Chili with Beans
1 can (12 ounces) Mexican-style corn, drained
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese, divided usage
1 can (4 ounces) Chopped Green Chilies, drained
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 can or package corn tortillas
Cooking oil
2 California avocados, seeded, peeled and cut into crescents
Bottled taco sauce
Sour cream (optional)
Chopped tomato (optional)

Preheat oven to 350°F. Combine chili, corn, half the cheese, green chilies and salt in medium bowl; toss lightly to mix. Dip tortillas, one at a time, in hot oil for a few seconds on each side until limp. Drain on paper towels. Spread chili mixture over top of a tortilla; top with another tortilla and sprinkle with cheese. Repeat with remaining tortillas. Heat in oven for 10 minutes or until heated through. Top with avocado crescents and taco sauce. Garnish with sour cream and chopped tomato, if desired. Makes 6 Sombrero Stacks.

To microcook chili mixture, cook on full power for 2 minutes or until heated through.

HOT AVOCADO DIP

2 California avocados, seeded, peeled and chopped
1 can (4 ounces) Chopped Green Chilies
1/2 cup (2 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt

Combine avocado, green chilies, cheese, mayonnaise and garlic salt in a small oven proof casserole. Gently mix and spread top smooth. Broil 10 minutes or until top is lightly browned. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

To prepare avocados, cut lengthwise around the pit. Rotate the halves in opposite directions. One half will always keep in the pit. To remove the pit, either slide the tip of a spoon gently underneath and lift out or carefully whack the pit with a sharp knife embedding the knife in the pit. Rotate the knife to lift the pit out.

TACO SALAD

1 pound ground beef
1 envelope (1-1/4 ounces) Taco Seasoning Mix
1 head lettuce, torn in bite-size pieces
1/2 cup sliced ripe olives
1 large tomato, cut in wedges
1 small onion, thinly sliced and separated in rings
1 can (15 ounces) Garbanzo Beans, drained
1 California avocado, seeded, peeled and sliced
2 cups (8 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
Tortilla chips, coarsely broken
Taco sauce

Prepare ground beef according to directions on taco seasoning mix package. In a large bowl, layer lettuce, meat, olives, tomato, onion, garbanzo beans, avocado slices, cheese and broken tortilla chips. To serve, toss well and top with taco sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

LAYERED PARTY DIP

1 can (16 ounces) Refried Beans
1 can (4 ounces) Chopped Green Chilies, well drained
1 envelope (1-1/4 ounces) taco seasoning mix
2 small ripe California avocados, seeded and peeled
1 tablespoon lemon juice
Taco sauce to taste
1 cup sour cream
Shredded lettuce
1 tomato, chopped
Shredded Cheddar cheese
Ripe olives, sliced
Tortilla chips

In a small bowl, mix together refried beans, green chilies and the taco seasoning mix; spread mixture out on a serving plate. Blend the avocado, lemon juice and taco sauce until smooth; spread over the refried bean mixture. Top with sour cream and sprinkle lettuce, tomato, olives and cheese over all. Serve with tortilla chips. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Ham glazed with a rich champagne sauce becomes a memorable feast on the holiday table. The simple touch of elegance is yours when you offer your guests champagne, whether by glass or as an ingredient in your favorite recipe.

Champagne: Elegant way to transform the ordinary

As the clock strikes midnight on New Year's Eve, millions of Americans will usher in 1983 by toasting with champagne, the traditional beverage for festive occasions. But there's no need to limit your festivities to New Year's Eve. Instead, continue celebrating the holiday with a special New Year's Day dinner that features luscious entrees made with champagne.

Champagne adds an elegant touch to any celebration whether it is enjoyed by the glass or used to create interesting variations on existing recipes. A sauce made with sparkling wine can transform a simple ham into a memorable main course. Duckling, another traditional holiday dish, becomes a special treat when it is basted with champagne orange jelly to create "Canard a l'Orange au Champagne."

In addition, champagne can be enjoyed as an aperitif before a holiday meal and, for an extra special touch, can even be served with the main course and with dessert.

To enjoy champagne during the holiday season, there's no need to spend a fortune searching for vintage dates and French lables. American champagnes, which often sell for less than half the price of imports, are comparable in quality to their European counterparts. One of New York State's oldest wineries, the Great Western Winery of Hammondsport, has been producing award-winning sparkling wines since the 1860's.

Domenic Carisetti, Winemaker at Great Western Winery, recommends Naturel or Brut Champagne for New Year's Eve toasting, as a perfect aperitif and as an excellent complement to almost any main course.

According to Mr. Carisett, "Naturel is bone-dry, elegant and crisp and has a classic champagne flavor while Brut is dry with a slightly fruity aroma and flavor."

Extra Dry Champagne, a slightly mellow sparkling wine, is excellent with cakes, cookies and other sweets.

To create a festive holiday dinner, begin by building your meal around the elegant entree recipes that follow. Remember that "Baked Ham with Champagne Glaze" and "Canard a l'Orange au Champagne" are equally fitting for Christmas or New Year's Day dinner or any special dinner. And by following the tips below, you can enjoy your holiday champagne to its fullest.

BAKED HAM WITH CHAMPAGNE GLAZE

Place a ready-to-eat ham (preferably with bone or semi-boneless) on a rack in a covered roasting pan. Bake at 325° approximately 10 minutes per pound.

Remove from oven; raise oven temperature to 425°. Set ham on foil to cool slightly. Pour fat from roasting pan. Snip ham skin and pull completely off. Place ham fat side up into roasting pan. Score fat with sharp knife in straight symmetrical strokes to form diamond-shaped cuts. Stick a whole clove into the center of each diamond. Brush ham liberally with Champagne Sauce and place uncovered into a 425° oven for 20-30 minutes, or until well glazed. Baste once or twice again during last stage of roasting. Slice and serve with Champagne Sauce.

CHAMPAGNE SAUCE
⅓ cup light brown sugar
2 tsp. grated orange rind
1 cup fresh orange juice
2 cups extra dry or brut champagne

Combine brown sugar, cornstarch, orange juice and rind in a saucepan. Heat, stirring constantly. Allow to boil at least one minute. Remove from heat; stir in champagne. Heat but do not boil — serve.

CANARD A L'ORANGE A LA CHAMPAGNE

1 4-5 lb. duckling
2 oranges unpeeled and quartered
Salt
1 cup Champagne Orange Jelly

Wash and dry duckling inside and out. Stuff cavity with orange quarters. Sprinkle with salt; tie legs together. Place on rack in roasting pan. Cover and roast 2 hours in a 350° oven. Uncover and baste every 10 minutes with champagne jelly for 1 hour or until well done and well glazed. Untie legs, discard orange quarters. To carve, cut lengthwise then crosswise to make 4 servings.

Salmon sounds superb

The festive holiday season is a favorite time for entertaining relatives, friends and neighbors. Salmon Cheese Pate, made with convenient canned salmon from Alaska, is a delicious appetizer that is easily prepared. In addition, it can be made well in advance of serving, leaving no last minute preparation for the host or hostess.

Delicious canned salmon is mixed to a smooth consistency with cream cheese, zesty blue cheese and selected seasonings. Chilling the spread for several hours develops its superb blend of flavors.

Versatile, ready-to-use canned salmon makes the preparation of party foods and family meals a quickly accomplished task. This nutritious seafood also makes a welcome addition to a holiday gift basket or Christmas stocking, especially for the person living alone.

SALMON CHEESE PATE

1 can (7¾ oz.) salmon
1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup crumbled blue cheese
1 tbsp. grated onion
2 tbsp. chopped parsley
1 tbsp. lemon juice
⅛ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Dash garlic powder
Parsley sprigs

Drain and flake salmon. Blend cheeses with salmon and seasonings until smooth. Mold in small bowl lined with plastic wrap. Chill several hours. Unmold; garnish with parsley sprigs. Makes about 2 cups pate.

Serving Tip: Serve with crackers, toast rounds or thinly sliced rye bread.

The subtle taste of amaretto will make this Banana Almond Coffeecake the star of your New Year's brunch.

Flavor is subtle

Your New Year's Day Brunch will be remembered when you serve Banana Almond Coffeecake. Deliciously moist, the cake has an added tantalizing plus. . .the subtle flavoring of amaretto. And to toast the New Year. . .Champagne Kir. Pour ½ oz. creme de cassis, or ½ oz. of cranberry cordial, into a tulip champagne glass. Add champagne.

BANANA ALMOND COFFEECAKE

1 cup sugar
½ cup shortening
2 eggs ½ tsp. vanilla
¾ cup sour cream
1 cup mashed ripe banana (3 medium)
¼ cup amaretto or amaretto & cognac
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. baking soda
¼ tsp. salt

Heat oven to 350°. Grease rectangular pan, 13x9x2 inches. Beat first four ingredients in large bowl on medium speed, scraping bowl occasionally, 2 minutes. Mix sour cream, banana and amaretto. Beat in remaining dry ingredients at low speed, alternating with sour cream mixture. Spread batter in pan. Bake cake until done, about 30 to 35 minutes. Frost with Cream Cheese Frosting, when cooled. Refrigerate any remaining cake.

CREAM CHEESE FROSTING

1 pkg. (3 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 tbsp. butter or margarine, softened
¼ tsp. vanilla
1½ cups powdered sugar
1 tbsp. amaretto or amaretto & cognac
1 to 2 tbsp. milk

Beat first three ingredients until smooth. Beat in remaining ingredients until frosting is smooth. Top with almonds and/or maraschino cherries.

Sausage appetizers will disappear fast

Let these easy and delicious sausage appetizer suggestions from the National Live Stock and Meat Board help you with your holiday entertaining.

Sure to disappear quickly are sausage rollups made by wrapping strips of biscuit dough around miniature smoked sausage links or miniature frankfurters. Bake until the dough is golden brown and serve with a spicy mustard sauce.

Or tempt guests with a yuletide log made by combining braunschweiger or liver sausage with finely chopped celery and a small amount of mayonnaise; shape into a log and chill. Roll the log in chopped nuts or snipped parsley and serve with assorted crackers.

Sliced salami or summer sausage can be the start of several quick and easy hors d'oeuvres. For example, spread the sausage slices with softened cream cheese that's been flavored with horseradish and grated onion. Stack five slices to form a cylinder, then top with a sixth unspread slice. Chill and cut into wedges to serve. Or cut the slices of salami or summer sausage in half. Spread each half with the cream cheese mixture and roll to form cornucopias. If desired, insert an olive or piece of pickle in each cornucopia and secure with a wooden pick.

Departing ARC director still will help retarded

By Sherry Kahan
staff writer

The timing was perfect a little more than four years ago when Margaret Olesnavage signed on as the first paid executive of the Association for Retarded Citizens/Northwest Communities.

The association of active members, most of them parents who had elected to keep their mentally retarded children with them at home, were delighted to welcome a capable organizer who understood their special needs.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Margaret Olesnavage has resigned as director of the Association for Retarded Citizens/ Northwest Communities, but will continue to work with the retarded.

And while saddened by her departure last week, these parents have the satisfaction of sending her off to another job that will keep her working with the mentally retarded.

Olesnavage resigned the full-time work with ARC to be able to spend more time at her home in Clarkston with the two brothers she and her husband John have adopted.

She will be working part-time for SCAM, a summer camp administered by the Clarkston school district for children in special education programs. She will coordinate volunteers and work on public relations and raising funds for the agency.

Assistant director Debbie Koltunchik Bartnick will take over her Northwest Communities work on a pro tem basis. The local ARC plans a party for Olesnavage 4-7 p.m. Friday, Jan. 7 at the Wayne County ARC workshop, 32229 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

WHEN OLESNAVAGE came to work at the Redford-based ARC, it was a time when the whole picture was rapidly changing for the mentally retarded.

Poor treatment of mentally retarded persons at Plymouth Center for Human Development was front page news, and the public was beginning to see the developmentally disabled as persons in need of society's attention.

Professionals were increasingly convinced that needs of the mentally retarded would be served best in a homelike community setting, so group homes were being established and controversy over the location of these homes was mounting.

More laws were being passed offering the mentally retarded more protection.

"Probably the best thing that ever happened to our ARC was hiring her as director," said Sylvia Kloc of Redford, president of the organization at the time Olesnavage was selected. "She has good administrative skills, ability to meet people and speak competently and comfortably in public. Many ideas originate with her, ideas that blended with ours."

Kloc added that sometimes when a volunteer organization hires professional staffers, the volunteers fade away.

"Margaret has the ability to continue to keep people interested in volunteering," said Kloc.

When Olesnavage arrived on the scene there were about 100 active volunteers. Today there are 150-200. Membership rose from about 400 families to close to 600.

THERE WAS ONE point that gave the ARC board a moment of hesitation before hiring her. Olesnavage had been jailed for burning draft records during the Vietnam War. She was later told that one ARC board member sought a minister's counsel about this. This person was told that if Olesnavage was that committed to an ideal, she would be good for ARC.

"It's been an excellent job," said the former director.

She said she will miss most her work as an advocate "on the front lines for the rights of mentally retarded." Her job has taken her to Lansing to testify in their behalf, and to demonstrations in Lansing and Washington, DC with mentally retarded people who are worried about budget cuts.

Would she also miss her 28-hour dancing stint with her husband when the ARC raised $3,160 with a dance-a-thon last year? Probably not, she admitted, but added that the results were worth the swollen ankle.

DURING HER TENURE, she and ARC volunteers established a training facility for adults who are mentally re-

Try 4-H rabbits for a real soft touch

By Margaret Miller
staff writer

Rabbits offer a multiplicity of reasons for being the focus of a 4-H club.

"They're nice pets," said Patricia Smith, for 10 years the adult leader of 4-H youth interested in rabbits.

"But they also are a food animal," she noted. And besides that, Smith pointed out, rabbits have fur that can be turned into soft coats or spun into even softer wool.

Rabbit clubs are popular in the 4-H, said Connie Testorelli, a program assistant in the 4-H division of the Wayne County Extension.

"They're good for kids who are interested in farm-type animals but live in suburban areas and can't work with cows or horses," she said.

Because rabbits aren't strictly pets, Pat Smith makes sure the young animal-raisers know about their commercial value.

"We have slaughtering clinics and tanning clinics every year," she said.

And on a recent rabbit club evening at Holmes Junior High in Livonia, Donna Pacheco came to show everyone how to spin rabbit hair into wool.

AN ANGORA RABBIT named Snowbird and owned by Garnet Patten turned out to be the star of the evening, but other breeds came to the meeting

Many hands helped draw the soft angora fur fibers from Snowbird, a very fuzzy rabbit owned by Garnet Patten.

Then Donna Pacheco showed the 4-H members how to spin the rabbit hairs.

Staff photos by Craig Gaffield

'Angora is easy to spin because you don't have to do anything to the fiber. You can mix it with wool to make it go farther. But it's the softest wool there is.'

tarded. Called Cambridge Club, this restaurant was close to the hearts of parents who want to see their children achieve some kind of independence through having a job.

The project ran out of runds and is now closed, but its board of directors hope to reopen it.

Olesnavage's time with ARC has seen several other innovations.

A Youth ARC was founded, made up of area high-school students who help mentally retarded teens by accompanying them to cultural and social events and training them for the Special Olympics.

People for Independence was also begun. Its members are adults who are mildly retarded. They elect their own officers and board of directors. The group has its own bank account, newsletter, mailing list and volunteer adviser.

"Its treasurer, Theresa Smith, now sits on the board of directors of Northwest ARC," said Olesnavage. "She is one of the most vocal and active board members. That says what ARC is all about.

"About 70 percent of the people with mental retardation can be self-supporting and speak for themselves. We started that kernel 2½ years ago, and now it's growing."

A TROOP of Boy Scouts came into being, although some parents were certain their retarded sons could not do various Scout tasks.

"John Stowe, the leader has taken them miles; it's really a Boy Scout group," said Olesnavage. "The same with the baseball team. A parent might say Bill can't hit a ball. But Bill is now catching and fielding in addition to hitting the ball."

Genetic screening has been sponsored by ARC. Its main thrust is to let parents of a retarded child know if there is something in the parents' genetic makeup that might cause them to give birth to a second retarded youngster.

"One family found they had the 'fragile X syndrome'," said Olesnavage. "They found they can do preventive things so future children are not born retarded."

ARC donates funds to research. Olesnavage noted that half of the birth defects involving retardation are preventable.

MARGARET AND JOHN Olesnavage have moved to the Clarkston area because he is director of a northern Oakland County day-care program for the mentally ill.

Recently they became instant parents, adopting two brothers — Curtis who is 12 and Mickey, 7. Both had lived in a succession of foster homes.

"Though they are natural brothers, they didn't live together for five years," said Olesnavage, who has discovered that "family life is just really neat.

"It's become clear to me in the past year that a family is an important part of marriage," she said. She then explained that their new house on Lake Whipple has an extended family in the form of ducks, rabbits and a dog.

Long hours at work, plus evening meetings have kept her away more than she wishes from these two boys, whose greatest happiness lies in the times the whole family is together.

Curtis and Mickey have also put in a request for a little sister, which their parents are taking seriously.

Renee Jamison brought her pet rabbit, a French Lop, to the 4-H rabbit club meeting.

Also on hand for the spinning demonstration was Kerri Volpe and her Netherlands Dwarf rabbit.

Leighanne Zaharia's pride and joy is a black and rust rabbit known as as Tan.

to watch with their owners.

Pacheco took the unprotesting Snowbird and showed the club how the long hairs can be combed out and then carded so it is ready for the spinning wheel.

"You don't clip angora rabbits," she said. "Spinners don't want clipped hair; there are too many short ends."

She said an angora like Snowbird can be combed several times a year and the hairs stored in a paper bag. When she had some of his coat combed out, she began pumping her spinning wheel and turning the fur into soft yarn.

"Some spinners just put the rabbit on their laps and start the wheel going," she noted. "I don't do it that way, though."

She twisted her fibers as the wheel turned. "Angora is easy to spin because you don't have to do anything to the fiber," said Pacheco. "You can mix it with wool to make it go further. But it's the softest fiber there is. Merino is the finest wool you can spin, and it's not anything like angora for softness."

WHILE PACHECO was letting some of the club members take their turns at the spinning wheel, Smith talked about the group she heads.

A psychiatric nurse, she has been with the rabbit club since her own daughters were in 4-H and raised rabbits.

The 30 or more youngsters who show up for monthly meetings range in age from 10 through high school.

"They're in the club for different reasons," Smith said. "Some have one rabbit and it's a pet. Some have angoras and sell the wool. Some have show rabbits, French lops or tans or Netherland dwarfs.

"And some are raising meat rabbits."

All members attend the slaughtering and tanning clinics, she added, and other 4-H club members come for those events. "It's important to all rabbit owners to know about slaughtering," she said. "Then when you have a litter you can't sell you can slaughter them and eat them."

The club also puts on its own show each year and joins in 4-H shows at the Belleville fairgrounds. Steven Hatyps is the current president.

The club show used to be in Smith's Livonia back yard, but this year it will be in the barn on the Wayne County Extension complex in Wayne.

Palombo-Gates

Debora Ann Gates, daughter of Reginald and Evelyn Gates of Hemingway Street, Redford, became the bride of Carmine Palombo of Livonia in a concelebrated mass in St. Gemma Catholic Church of Detroit.

The bridegroom is the son of Adolfo and Anna Palombo of Larkshire Street, Farmington Hills. Officiating were the Rev. E. John Hilgert and the Rev. P. Larry Siroskey.

For the ceremony and reception for $50 in Roma's of Bloomfield, the bride wore a gown designed by Ilissa and featuring high neckline with re-embroidered alencon lace, bishop sleeves and chapel train. A lace cap held her veil and she carried a colonial bouquet of silk flowers.

Ursala Syrowik was maid of honor and the bride's attendants were Sharon Gates, Teresa LaRosa, Gerry Oldenski and Cathy Stewart. They wore taffeta dresses with chiffon overlays and chiffon capes, the maid of honor's in sky blue and the others in rainbow pastels. Each carried a colonial bouquet of carnations and daisy pompons to match her dress.

Assisting the bridegroom were Tony Palombo as best man and Tim Cummings, Russ Gates, Jim LaRosa nd Mike Surma as attendants.

The couple honeymooned in Hawaii and are living in Livonia.

The bride is a 1971 graduate of Rosary High School and has two degrees from the University of Detroit, a bachelor's in French and Spanish and a master's in guidance and counseling. She also has studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and is employed by Divine Child High School as a guidance counselor.

The bridegroom graduated from Catholic Central High School in 1970 and from U-D in 1975 with a degree in civil engineering. He works for the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

You can learn to jump start your car safely by following the steps outlined at in the drawing at left and in the story below.

Read this before trying to jump start your car

Jump starting a car can be dangerous if proper procedures aren't followed, warns the Automobile Club of Michigan.

Before attaching booster cables, make sure both cars are in park and do not touch each other. Turn off the ignitions and all electrical accessories.

Connect one end of a cable to the positive terminal of the healthy battery (Step One in drawing) and attach its other end to the positive terminal of the disabled battery (Step Two).

Then connect one end of the other cable to the negative terminal of the healthy battery (Step Three) and attach the last clamp to the engine block or generator mounting bracket of the disabled car, as far from the battery as possible (Step Four).

Start the healthy car's engine and let it run for several minutes before starting the disabled car.

To remove the cables, reverse the order.

If the battery has water cell clamps, remove them and place a damp cloth over openings before jump starting.

Some batteries have small screws on their sides instead of conventional terminals. There are side-mount clips (approximately $2 per pair) designed for boosters which snap onto a ridge of the screw.

To weather winter

Vinyl tops need extra care

Now is a good time to wax your car to protect its finish from the harshness of winter, according to the Automotive Information Council (AIC).

At the same time, the car's vinyl top should be treated, but you should not use regular car wax for that job, the AIC says. Specifically formulated coatings for vinyl are available at auto supply centers and at car dealerships, and only those should be used.

Many car owners believe vinyl tops need no attention, but that's not the case.

About 25 percent of new cars sold have vinyl tops, many of which end up being neglected. If not treated properly, they grow dull, discolor and even crack.

Car owners are advised to apply a dress coating when the car is fairly new, before dirt and grime settle into the top's texture. Regular washing also is recommended.

The vinyl top should be re-coated whenever water fails to "bead up" on the surface, just as the car should be waxed when that condition occurs. Old wax should be removed with a vinyl cleaner before a new coat of wax is applied.

Do not use abrasive materials such as kitchen cleansers, which remove the protective surface coating.

Without proper protection, the aging process of a vinyl top can be rapid because, being on top of the car, it is exposed to the full effects of sun, rain, snow, ice and dirt.

This option is an extra-cost item, so an owner should care for it as an investment by spending two or three dollars for the special wax.
