Board closes 3 schools, calls for new study

By Sandra Armbruster
editor

Board members have agreed to close three elementary schools in the Wayne-Westland district at the end of this school year. The three scheduled for closing are McKee, Washington and Tinkham elementary schools.

The decision to close the schools came Tuesday in a split vote that ended nearly 4½ hours of public discussion during the final hearing on the issue.

Voting in favor of all three closings were board President James LeDuc, and trustees Kathleen Chorbagian, Mat McCusker and Sharon Scott. Joining them in voting to close McKee was trustee Dewey Combs.

Opposing the closings, but calling for a study of declining enrollment, were board members Fred Warmbier and Dave Moranty.

In a direct reference to those who opposed the closings, McCusker said, "The hottest places in hell are reserved for those who do nothing."

Superintendent Timothy Dyer tells the board that McKee, Washington and Tinkham schools must be closed or programs will have to be cut to balance the budget.

SENSING OPPOSITION to the closings, Superintendent Timothy Dyer implored board members to approve the administration's recommendation.

"If schools aren't closed, programs will have to be reduced," said Dyer, noting the district must operate with a balanced budget. "You could fire me and every other administrator and still not have $1 million.

"I'm telling you, this isn't child's play. This is no business for fiscally irresponsible people."

After a two-year study, the district's building utilization committee recommended the closing of Washington and Tinkham due to declining enrollment. Administrators recommended also closing McKee because of low enrollment and the poor economy.

Subsequently, three public hearings — one at each school to be closed — were held.

URGING THAT SCHOOL closings be delayed, Warmbier and Moranty called for a study that would review the neighborhood school concept and the district's administrative organization.

In the interim, Warmbier suggested closing a portion of schools and putting "as many schools as possible on the market."

"We may have to revise some of our thinking," he added. "I realize this is costly, but we have to buy additional time."

Agreeing with Warmbier that school closings will be necessary, Moranty called for closing four or five schools in September 1984.

"We cannot address closings and consolidations in the same manner we have," Moranty said.

A junior high school may have to be closed in 1985-86 and a high school in 1988-89, according to Moranty's study of declining enrollment.

Moranty and Warmbier said they were concerned that closing McKee would leave no schools in the northern part of the Wayne-Westland district.

Moranty called for immediate reactivation of the building utilization committee, which would report to the board on a regular basis. He urged board involvement in the study to draw up a plan through 1990 and assess the cost effectiveness of all buildings in the district.

LEDUC AGREED that the committee should be reactivated, but added that it would be "irresponsible and detrimental to the welfare of all the children in the district" to keep the three schools open.

"For the public record, I resent the political posturing for those who would be candidated for the board of education," he said.

The last board member to comment on the closings, LeDuc made a reference to the board split, which had become obvious by then.

"No one wants to wield the club of power politics. It saddens and grieves me to no end to have to," he said.

Chorbagian said she was concerned about quality education and promised she would "get alignments from top to bottom. Everyone's going to share in this."

Excerpts from her report to the board showing birth rates for the area were made available to the audience.

Combs said he was disappointed no study session was held by the board to discuss Chorbagian's report. He could support closing only McKee.

Combs agreed with Dyer, who earlier had said "The only thing that would be different if we chose other schools for closing would be another audience. We'd still be yelled at, screamed at and booed."

CONCERNS EXPRESSED by district residents included transportation and safety of students, accuracy of the district's figures and whether the northern end of the district was being unfairly singled out.

"The only thing ahead of education is safety," Tinkham parent Joe Williamson told the board.

"If ever the health and safety of students is in jeopardy, you call me," responded LeDuc, adding that he would act as an advocate to resolve those questions.

Sue West explained the feeling expressed by many parents at the meeting.

"Most feel that you (the board) already

Church trees become artwork

By Mary Kiemic
staff writer

When Neil McNeill was a small boy in Liverpool, England, he liked to whittle tiny pieces of wood.

What was, at first, just something to pass the time has developed into a serious hobby that is with him today in Westland, but on a larger scale.

Three years ago, McNeill, now 38, carved tree trunks, felled by a storm at Westland's Kirk of Our Savior United Presbyterian Church, into faces of the Three Wise Men. And now he is planning on sculpting other art works out of dead trees at the site to enhance a proposed park there.

It's somehow fitting to have such "natural" works of art near a church, McNeill said.

"IT'S A PART of nature. The trees were nature, and it's nice to leave a part of it here," he said. "Most people would cut the wood up and burn it. I hate to burn it."

The work at Kirk of Our Savior will start in April and will be done without charge to the church, McNeill said.

"I like working," he said. "It's good to get out and get some fresh air. The wife is at work, and the kids are in school, I can just come down and chisel away."

The idea for the Three-Wise-Men carving came when McNeill was helping clear the church area after a severe storm. The sculpture, which stands an estimated 10 to 11 feet tall, took McNeill four months to complete, working three hours a day.

MCNEILL'S ORIGINAL sculptures, done mostly by chisels and hammers from pieces of dead trees or old wood, fill his home. The pieces include a figure of an old man, carved out of black walnut for his son and inspired by memories of Liverpool.

Other figures are more abstract.

"The wood itself dictates what it is going to be," said McNeill, who has a bachelor of fine arts degree. He held a carving of an uplifted face to demonstrate. "This was a yoke, with two branches coming out. You look at it, and you see a face looking up. Michelangelo said the image is in the material, and the sculptor has to get it out."

Neil McNeill carved heads of the Three Wise Men from tree trunks damaged during a storm at Kirk of Our Saviour in Westland.

McNEILL, WHO works in the catering department of British Airways at Metropolitan Airport, has other interests and talents, including photography, painting and cooking.

McNeill's interest in photography began when he took pictures of his family, including his wife, Donna, an instructor, and their children, 12-year-old Heather and eight-year-old Andrew. He later took photography classes at Eastern Michigan University.

The entire McNeill family is artistic. Last year a painting done by Heather went on a tour of Lansing and later to Washington, D.C. Donna, Heather and Andrew play the piano while McNeill plays classical guitar.

McNeill said he plans to continue with his artwork.

"It's a thing I can fall back into," he said. "I do this as a hobby for relaxation but someday it will become another career."

Hard times draw many to area church services

The effects of the current nationwide recession may leave more people thinking about God than the Easter Bunny when one of religion's major holy days occurs on Sunday.

Local church officials, noting a recent increase in attendance, report that today's hard economic times are apparently turning more people toward religion.

"I think (hard times) very definitely has an effect (on religion)," said H.A. Wingar, pastor of Warrenwoods Wesleyan Church. "When the chips are down and people can't do things for themselves, there's nowhere to go but up.

"I went through it during the Depression. I know what that did to many psychologically."

"People have found they need something besides themselves," said Pastor Jack Spitza of New Hope Baptist Church. "We went through an affluent time there, like in the 1960s, when people didn't need God too much. Things were booming, people were making money.

"Now they're finding they don't have it."

FRED BATES, pastor of the Church of the Nazarene, estimated a 10 percent increase in attendance there this year. Spitza said his congregation has recorded 115 "first-time visitors" in the first three months of the year.

"We have a good number of people walking in," he said.

Frustration and discouragement about employment and the economy have drawn many people closer to religion, church representatives say.

"There's a need to pray," said Rev. Andrew Nieckarz, pastor of Sts. Simon and Jude Catholic Church. "When there's a dire need, you go to the Lord.

Assessment dip lowers revenue

Livonia Public Schools is faced with raising its millage rate or cutting its budget — two options that have emerged as the district presents an expense budget before the Wayne County Tax Allocation Board.

The preliminary 1983-84 budget of $62.26 million is $111,373 less than what the district is projecting to spend on operations and programs this year, said James Carli, the district's superintendent of business.

Even with the reduction in spending, however, Carli said, the budget could not be funded under the district's current operating millage rate of 35.27 mills. He said the school board would either have to cut the new budget or raise the millage rate to meet the budget expenses.

The situation arises from an expected but in recent years unusual decline in Livonia's property assessments, Carli explained. (Property tax dollars, used to fund public education, are based on property assessments times local millage rates).

Based on Carli's projections, the district's overall assessed value has dropped by $50.5 million since 1982. The assessed value of the district in 1983 is projected at $1.63 billion, as compared to $1.68 billion in 1982. Actual figures will not be confirmed until later, he said, but based on these projections it appears the assessments have dropped by 2-5 percent.

"The critical part is what's happening with the base (assessed property value)," he said. "If the base goes down by 5 percent than the rate will have to go up by 5 percent to generate the same dollars."

Conversely, Carli said, school property taxes could go down by that amount.

CARLI SAID that the board could raise the millage rate by as much as 1.5 mills, which would bring it to its legal limit of 36.79 mills. A public hearing on the budget process will be scheduled sometime in May, he said. A budget for the upcoming school year must be approved in June.

The proposed budget, based on an enrollment decline of some 1,200 students, calls for the same level of programming as last year, but with 53 fewer teachers and six fewer non-certified employees, Carli said.

The budget also calls for a "wage have your minds made up. This is just a burial service," she said. She complained that Schuman, the road some children must walk along to their new school, is dirt and has deep ditches and few houses for children to turn to in case of trouble.

Washington School PTA President Heli Malkowski said that while Washington is the oldest school in the district, the capitol buildings in Lansing and Washington, D.C., are even older.

"OLD ISN'T NECESSARILY decrepit and a reason," he said.

Dyer said closing the three schools was based on the declining enrollment of the entire district — not just a particular school, the school's location, age of the building, assimilation into a new school and the cost effectiveness of the school.

Attendance jumps but donations down

When you're up in the money and doing well, you forget the Lord. And that's human."

But while the recession may have attracted many, it has also hurt contributions. Spitza estimated that, at one time, donations dropped off by several hundred dollars a week.

"People do come to church, they just don't contribute to the support as much," Nieckarz said. "We're holding our own pretty well."

THE RECESSION is also making itself felt in other areas. Bates, who is also zone director for Nazarene pastors in the Detroit area, said he knew of churches that cut back on their staff. And counselors have reported more cases involving marriage and family problems related to the economy and unemployment, according to Bates.

"The counseling load has gone up quite a bit," he said.

Pastor Ralph Fischer of St. Matthew Lutheran Church was one representative who didn't think the recession affected his congregation.

"Attendance has been good all the way through it," he said.

Wingar said he couldn't be sure how much the economy affected his church's increased attendance because of the congregation's diversified nature, and because it draws members from several communities.

"If our congregation was heavily weighted on the side of the factories or construction workers, naturally we were going to be affected," he said.

Spitza added that the apparent movement toward the church isn't as great as it might have been some 25 years ago because of changing American attitudes, what he terms a "spiritual falling away."

"That's what made America strong, that faith in God," he said. "The recession could be good for the nation spiritually. I hope so."

Armed gunmen rob city shoe store

Three men, two of them armed with blue steel revolvers, took about $455 and an employee's $200 black leather jacket, and tore out phones, in a holdup of a shoe store Saturday evening.

Two workers at Pic-Way Shoes, 954 S. Wayne Road, told police they were straightening shelves in a center aisle at 6 p.m. when one of the robbers entered, wearing a dark ski mask with red trim and pointing a gun at them.

The three robbers men were described as black, 19 or 20 years old and about 5-feet-7-inches in height.The first gunman had a stocky build and dark complexion and wore dark blue, gas station type coveralls, according to police. The second gunman was described as having a medium build, dark complexion and wearing a navy pea coat with some sort of hood.

The third man was described as having a medium build and wearing a green and yellow plaid shirt, blue jeans and a dark ski mask.

POLICE SAID the first gunman ordered one employee to the front of the store and the other to the back as his two accomplices entered. While they went to the back of the store with the one worker, the first robber demanded and was given all the money from the cash register. He ordered the employee to open another drawer. When he saw it was empty, the robber reached across the counter, opened a small drawer and emptied its contents on the floor.

The robber then asked where the phone was and tore the receiver off, police said. He ordered the worker to go to the back, followed her there and waited for the other robbers outside a back room.

Police said the second gunman asked for all the money, saying, "I know where all of it is, because I used to work here." An employee gave him $50 from his pocket and about $4 in rolled coins.

Another worker entered the store and walked to the back room when the second gunman stuck what the employee thought was a gun in her back. He ordered her to "show me where the money is," according to police.

EMPLOYEES rounded up an estimated $400 in cash and gave it to the robber.

Police said the third robber entered the room and told the second gunman to kill one employee because he didn't like him. The two then left the room.

On the way out, the second robber reportedly grabbed the worker's jacket and disconnected a phone. Holding up the jacket, which had fur lining and cloth wrists and waist, he told the other suspects, "I got what I wanted."

Police said the trio left through the front door. Two men headed south while the third went north.

freeze." Currently, district negotiators and district employee unions are in the midst of contract talks.

"No adjustments have been made for increments nor steps on any salary schedule but, rather, the wages paid during the current year have simply been moved forward into 1983-84," Carli wrote in a statement to the board this week. He noted that despite the reduction of nearly 60 employees and the proposed wage freeze, the district has only trimmed $100,000 in expenses from 1982-83 to 1983-84.

Carli told the school board this week that the price tag for even a 1-percent rise in salaries would be $500,000.

As an out-of-formula school district (one which does not receive state aid), the district relies on local tax dollars for 94 percent of its revenues.

The preliminary expense budget to the county must be submitted each year at this time to insure that the district receives its share of unvoted millage administered by the county. The county allocates 15 unvoted mills — provided by order of the Michigan Constitution — among the county, local school districts and the intermediate school districts.

It didn't take long for Westland resident Paula Sedlarik to glide across the arena.

Redford resident Jenny Woods trys out a free-style quick spin for the judges.

Seemingly all alone in the Eddie Edgar Arena is Brandy Maniko of Livonia.

Hospital to hold health tests

Residents may take a first step toward better health April 27 at Annapolis Hospital in Wayne.

The hospital will participate in Project Health-O-Rama, a free health screening co-sponsored by WXYZ-TV, Blue Cross/Blue Shield and the United Health Organization.

The screening will be at the hospital, Annapolis and Venoy, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Anyone over 18 years of age may participate.

The screening will offer an assortment of free tests, including height/weight, blood pressure, vision and hearing, glaucoma, pulmonary function and blood tests (for which there is a $7 fee).

Also available will be health hazard appraisals, health history checks and counseling and referrals.

The screenings are part of a growing "wellness" movement in health care, a philosophy that stresses early detection and prevention of illness.

The health-o-rama tests are designed to detect disease in its first stages so that early treatment can help prevent serious illness. The screening tests search for high blood pressure, diabetes, liver disease, sight loss, glaucoma, kidney disease and other conditions.

"WE ARE eager to participate in the health-o-rama this year," said Gilbert Skinner, Annapolis cardiopulmonary manager and project coordinator.

"Except for the blood test, the screening offers between $75 and $150 worth of free health tests. It's an excellent opportunity for people to safeguard their health.

"The best treatment for illness is to prevent it," he said.

Annapolis is one of five units in the Peoples Community Hospital Authority, a public organization partially supported by a small property tax in Garden City, Westland and 22 other suburbs.

New sheriff's pact brings deputies back to Hines

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A new tentative agreement between Wayne County and its sheriff's deputies will put more officers back into suburban Edward Hines Parkway and fewer in unpopular jail duty, said Sheriff Robert A. Ficano.

"They get to get back into law enforcement," said an elated Ficano.

He wants to work out scheduling plans with suburban police departments, which have been using their own officers on overtime to handle warm-weather behavioral problems on the 22-mile county parkway.

County officers ceased patrolling the parkway more than a year ago when 270 patrol and investigation unit officers lost a prolonged court battle to avoid layoffs. The result has been that many senior officers have been reduced to serving as jail guards, a duty they find onerous.

Robert A. Ficano

Richard Novak

KEY TO THE deal, said Ficano, is a new jail guard job classification called "police officer I."

In salary and benefits, a PO-I will earn $25,600, nearly $19,000 less than the $44,000-plus cost of a deputy, who will be classified as PO-II.

When a new jail is opened later this year, he said, the savings by using PO-I personnel will be nearly $19,000 times 234 guards — an annual savings totalling $4.4 million.

He said the savings will allow the county to move deputies now being underutilized as guards into two other kinds of jobs:

- Patrolling Hines Parkway, where 47 could be used.
- Replacing Detroit police officers guarding Recorders' Court, a move which, under state court reorganiztion, is scheduled for Sept. 30. Eighty-three deputies could be absorbed in that work.

The contract runs from April 1 to the end of November 1985 — two years and eight months.

THE EXECUTIVE board of the deputies union — Local 502 of the Service Employees International Union, AFL-CIO — has approved the contract. County Executive William Lucas will recommend that the County Commission ratify it.

Unveiling of the contract had been scheduled for April 4, but Lucas's office leaked the news late Tuesday.

Negotiations were accomplished by three parties rather than the traditional two, Ficano said. They were Lucas's office, Local 502 and Ficano, aided by Undersheriff Richard Novak.

"It was actually worked out in Dick Novak's basement," said Ficano, although Lucas's announcement didn't mention Novak's and Ficano's role.

"When he was sheriff, Lucas used to complain that he wasn't consulted by the labor board in negotiating contracts," Ficano said. "So as executive, he is letting other officials have some input in the process."

REPRESENTING LUCAS'S office was Jamil Akhtar, a former president of Local 502 and still a member. Akhtar worked in consultation with Dennis Nystrom, former Local 502 attorney now working under contract as chief of staff for Lucas.

The new contract gives the union no wage increases but requires no concessions and no cap on its cost of living allowance, Ficano said.

Other unions renegotiating contracts have been asked to make concessions and to forego COLA — and they are balking.

But the deputies were considered to have made a major concession in creation of the PO-I job classification, the sheriff said.

FICANO SAID in an interview he still hasn't been inside the official office of the sheriff although he has won a Circuit Court case upholding his appointment to that post.

Judge Paul Teranes ruled two weeks ago that County Executive Lucas lacked power to appoint Loren Pittman, his former undersheriff, to the post. Lucas, Pittman and former County Charter Commission Chairman George Ward are appealing the ruling to the state Court of Appeals. Ficano, meanwhile, is seeking a further court order to put him in office immediately.

Ficano, a 30-year-old Livonia attorney, was previously deputy county clerk. He was appointed sheriff under a state law giving appointment power to the county clerk, prosecutor and chief probate judge.

Civil Service panel picked by Lucas

Wayne County Executive William Lucas named a new Civil Service Commission this week, saying the three members "represent a diverse collection of professional talent which will enable us to develop one of the finest programs in the nation."

Lucas's nominees — including one Republican — must be confirmed by the County Commission.

Under the new reorganization, the former autonomous commission, which hears employee grievances, will be absorbed by the Human Resources Department, whose staff chief will be a Lucas appointee. Previously, civil service was headed by a county board-selected panel.

LUCAS NOMINATED:

- Levi A. Jackson, retired urban affairs manager for Ford Motor Co., for a six-year term and to be chairman. Jackson is president of PRIDE, Inc. and the Dearborn Rotary Club, a member of the board of trustees of Children's Hospital and the Board of Ethics for the City of Detroit.
- Former Civil Service Commissioner Henry A. Kozak, for a four-year term as vice-chairman. Kozak served on the commission from 1975-82. A former state senator, he is the owner of Kozak Distributors, a beer and wine wholesaler.
- Barbara Gattorn, former vice-chairman of the Wayne County Charter Commission's personnel committee, which drafted the Civil Service section of the reorganization document. She will serve a two-year term. A Republican, Gattorn, of Grosse Pointe, twice made unsuccessful bids for a seat on the county board. She is a former administrative assistant to the vice-president of personnel and purchasing at Michigan National Bank.

Civil Service Commission members are paid $60 per meeting. The panel meets at least once a month.

Former vocational students surveyed

Garden City Public Schools will ask about 300 former students for their opinions and other information concerning the vocational programs in which they were enrolled last school year.

Daniel Quinn, director of vocational education, said the survey questionnaire will ask them to report what they are doing and how well they feel the school served their needs.

The annual survey, conducted in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Education, provides information for planning more effective local and state educational programs.

"Contacts with former students will be by mail and telephone between now and April 15," Quinn said.

He urged former students to answer and their relatives to help by locating them if necessary "so that as many as possible can be represented in improving the school's programs."

He emphasized that the identity of those who answer the questions is kept confidential and is used only for planning purposes and to provide services to students.

Brent Ragon saved a life with Red Cross CPR. Could you?

Fifteen-year-old Brent Ragon had no idea how soon he'd be using CPR to save someone's life when he completed his Red Cross training at a Youth Safety Seminar.

But, while Brent was riding the train home from that seminar, a man collapsed two rows behind him.

"He wasn't breathing, and I couldn't find a pulse," Brent recalls. "I wasn't scared. I didn't have time to be scared. I knew what to do and I did it."

If you were in Brent's place, would you know what to do?

Great Lakes states join political forces

By Tim Richard
staff writer

"We've got a lot of problems in common," said Jack Licate as he gave southeast Michigan businesspeople their first look at the Great Lakes Economic Policies Council.

Licate, once a faculty member at Wayne State University and the University of Michigan, will be chief staff man of the organization set up by chambers of commerce in Detroit, Buffalo, Chicago, Cleveland and Milwaukee.

Top priority, he said, will be the "urban infrastructure" — streets, public transit, bridges, water and sewers in the major, older urban centers.

LICATE (pronounced LI-cott) spoke Friday to a government relations roundtable of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce in Troy. As acting executive director, he will work out of the Cleveland Growth Association office, which provided the thrust for the Great Lakes group.

Other regions of the country for years have been successful at developing agendas of regional needs and working in Congress to get them, Licate said.

He cited the Northeast, which went after Amtrak service and public transit; the Southern Growth Policies Council, which has brought home lucrative defense contracts; and the West, whose most serious need — water — has been aided by federal reclamation money.

The South gets $1.10 of federal spending for every $1 of taxes it sends to Washington, the West $1.06, the eight Great Lakes states 79 cents, he said.

Among individual states, he said, energy-rich New Mexico receives $1.72, oil-rich Alaska $1.58, Ohio 77 cents, and Michigan 68 cents.

"WE WANT to lobby for the doable," said Licate, emphasizing building friends to win specific regional goals. Among specific goals:

- Appropriating defense dollars to areas of high unemployment.
- Retaining the right to issue industrial revenue bonds.
- Winning investments in infrastructure of cities.

Added Frank E. Smith, president of the Greater Detroit Chamber: "Of concern to the council is the basis of federal funding, eligibility for funding, formulas, flexibility for administration and the future of funding grant programs for community and urban development."

Licate reported the Great Lakes governors agreed to hold an "economic summit" in Cleveland the last week of May. They will concentrate on short-term measures to revitalize the regional economy.

Joblessness dips as some quit looking

Unemployment dropped in nine of Michigan's 13 major labor market areas during January, according to estimates by S. Martin Taylor, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission (MESC).

In February, MESC announced that Michigan's January jobless rate was 17 percent, down from 17.2 percent in December. The number of unemployed in January fell to 725,000, a drop of 16,000 during the month. This week's release breaks out the statewide data for January.

Taylor explained the drop in joblessness among the nine areas resulted largely from unsuccessful job seekers leaving the labor force. Many of these job seekers had entered the job market in December seeking holiday employment.

The Jackson area and the Upper Peninsula had the largest drops in unemployment during the month, as both areas saw their jobless rates fall by 1.7 percentage points.

6 states find

More drunks face arrest

Michigan's new drunk-driving laws should increase arrests while reducing alcohol-related deaths, if other states' experiences hold true, the Automobile Club of Michigan reports.

Six states surveyed by the Auto Club showed an increase in drunk-driving arrests and fewer alcohol-related fatalities within the first year of implementing new laws.

Michigan's new statutes took effect March 30. A "per se" law makes it illegal to drive with a blood-alcohol concentration (BAC) of 0.1 percent or more. The use of preliminary roadside breath tests are allowed. Harsher driver's license sanctions are provided for drunk-driving convictions or refusing to take breathalyzer tests.

INCREASES in arrests ranged from 1 percent in California to 45 percent in Maryland. California law provides mandatory minimum jail terms, while Maryland raised its drinking age from 18 to 21 and allows roadblocks known as "sobriety checkpoints."

"The most encouraging news is the first-year reductions in alcohol-related traffic deaths," said Robert Cullen, Auto Club's safety and traffic engineering manager. "They ranged from 11 percent in California to 24 percent in Maine."

Oregon, which began its drunk-driving crackdown in 1971, had a fatality-rate drop of 35 percent in the 1970s, despite a 62-percent increase in the number of registered vehicles.

The six states studied were California, Maine, Iowa, New York, Oregon and Maryland. A seventh state, Tennessee, reported increased arrests, but death statistics were unavailable.

STATES WITH administrative authority to suspend a driver's license have had the greatest success in cracking down on drunk drivers, Auto Club said. That provision, pioneered in Minnesota, allows for the immediate administrative suspension of the license of a drunk driver.

The automatic license suspension is one of several legislative recommendations contained in the Auto Club's 1982 study "Under the Influence."

"That sanction is an important step in controlling what the study shows as the real villain of drunk driving — the repeat offender," Cullen said.

Covington rich in history

Cincinnati's 'south side' is an unexpected delight

IRIS SANDERSON JONES

Main Strasse Village is a restored part of the old German-American city of Covington, Ky. The village's streets are the site of many city festivals, including the Maifest and the Oktoberfest.

COVINGTON, KY. — They call it "the south side of Cincinnati." If you fly into the Cincinnati area, you will certainly pass it, because the Greater Cincinnati Airport is over here, a few miles south of the Ohio River.

If you merely drive by on your way to the Queen City, you might notice a remarkable number of grand church spires in the Covington skyline, but you probably wouldn't even notice Main Strasse Village, and you couldn't see any of the interesting restaurants tucked into bends of the river on this side of the state line.

There's a moral to this story: Slow down, and you'll find interesting travel experiences in unexpected places. The first surprise is in the airport itself, where Marriott-Host Hotels have established the Greater Cincinnati Gallery in a well-lighted contemporary setting that also holds a mini tourist information center.

The red telephone in the Gallery connects you directly to an events hotline; another phone to the Greater Cincinnati Convention and Tourist Bureau. A five-minute stroll around the exhibits gives you a small taste of area history, old and new: photos of the old city streets, exhibits of the Cincinnati Fire Museum, the city arts events, the industrial community, a model steamboat, a glimpse of the Reds and the Bengals, and a pictorial history of the Cincinnati Worker Murals.

The murals were created for the old Union Railway Terminal in 1933, saved when the terminal was demolished in the 1970s, and are hanging now in the concourses of the airport.

WHEN YOU EXIT Interstate-75 at Covington, you are close to the Northern Kentucky Convention and Visitors Bureau, in a restored house at 605 Philadelphia Street, at the edge of Main Strasse Village.

1-of-a-kind traveler Iris Jones contributing travel editor

The village is a restored part of this old German-American city; it runs from the Bell Tower at Goebel Park down Sixth Street and north and south along Main Street. The many city festivals, including the Maifest May 14-16 and the Oktoberfest Sept. 10-12, are held on these streets. The festivals are a happy explosion of costume, carriages, song and beer.

Main street is known for its antique shops and other interesting restored shopping facilities. Locals buy potato bread and pies at Guenther's Goodies, and watch quiltmakers like Bonnie Dennie at work across the street at Kentucky Anna. You'll find Lynne Finch presiding over wonderful antique-but-wearable clothes from the 1930s, '40s and '50s at Garbo's.

There are several antique shops on Main Street, many of them owned by Gerald Deters, a founder of Main Stresse and owner of the Drawbridge Inn. You'll also find the Kennedys making and repairing stained glass in their studio at the end of the street.

Covington is a national center for stained glass because of the many magnificent churches built by the early German and Irish communities here. The Germans and the Irish didn't always get along, but their mutual urge to build bigger and better churches is a great advantage to the tourist.

I have never seen quite so many beautiful and impressive churches in such a small city. The most famous are the Basilica of the Assumption, patterned after Notre Dame, and the twin towers of Mother of God Church a few blocks away.

A replica of the Lourdes Grotto can be found in St. Aloysius, and the world's smallest church Monte Casion on the campus of Thomas More College. You'll also find the Garden of Hope on a nearby hill and the 65-foot hand-carved altar of Sacred Heart Church downtown.

A SURPRISING NUMBER of Cincinnati-area restaurateurs also live on this south side of the river. Drive down to the historic riverfront section, where Covington was founded at the junction of the Ohio and Licking rivers, and you will see Ben Bernstein's riverboats, ready for dinner cruises up the river.

The Bernsteins also own El Greco, where Ben keeps a priceless collection of pre-Columbian Ecuardorian art behind glass in one of his dining rooms, and Mike Fink's Riverboat with its popular raw bar.

The Schilling brothers own January's and Oodles in Cincinnati and soon will open a new restaurant called The Islands on this side of the river. Larry Grouse, who has a huge house high on a hill overlooking the river here in Covington, is the owner of the popular Conservatory restaurant.

The place that has caused the most excitement around here, however, is David Hosea's International Catfish Ranch. There's a three-hour wait at the height of the summer season, but people happily fill all the indoor and outdoor bars while waiting to eat the fish being raised in those pools you can see out the window.

You can have your catfish fried or broiled, or you can eat more exotic food in an adjacent dining room.

Getting there: Republic and Delta fly daily nonstops to the Greater Cincinnati Airport; Comair and Wright airlines also fly this route. By road it is 250 miles due south down Interstate 75.

IRIS SANDERSON JONES

Jennifer Kennedy works on a stained-glass piece in her studio at the end of Covington's Main Strasse. Covington is a center for stained glass because of the many magnificent churches built there by Irish and German immigrants.

Travel notes: New ferry bound for Mackinac duty

A crew from the Mackinac Island Passenger Service, better known as the Star Line, is on its way up the Mississippi River with a new 65-foot passenger ferry destined for St. Ignace. The ferry will carry 150 passengers on the St. Ignace to Mackinac Island run starting in the summer.

Also new this year are scenic Mackinac Bridge cruises for groups. Free parking is now available for Star Line customers.

The House of Ludington, an historic hotel that is one of the most famous landmarks in the Upper Peninsula, has reopened under new ownership in Escanaba. The hotel is a state historic site.

The restaurant public rooms have undergone a complete renovation. The 45 guest rooms will be renovated soon. The dining room there is considered one of the best in the UP.

The Mackinac City Travel Information Center, one of several operated by the Michigan Department of Transportation, offers free telephone reservation service for motels, campgrounds, restaurants and attractions in the state. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. during the summer and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. the rest of the year.

Clara and Bob Herman of Birmingham recently discovered a little-known Caribbean experience: camping in St. John, in the U.S. Virgin Islands. They spent five days at Cinnamon Bay Campground in the Virgin Islands National Park.

The park is run by the National Park Service, but the campground is run by a private concessionaire.

The Hermans, who have camped in several parts of the United States and Canada, took their own camping gear but discovered that it wasn't needed. The park has 40 cabins, 40 tents and 10 base-camping sites.

"It is very civilized camping," Bob Herman said. "We had a platform tent with a canvas floor, three beds with comfortable mattresses, a stove, picnic table, utensils and bedding."

This camping experience, which is limited to a maximum of 14 days, costs $32 a day complete. It is so popular that campers must usually reserve space six to eight months in advance.

The Hermans were lucky: They called one day before departure and found space because of a cancellation. They were impressed with the beach, snorkeling, windsurfing, sailing, guided tours and especially with the weather. Jitney cabs or rented jeeps are available if you want to tour the rest of the island.

For information, contact Caneel Bay Inc., (a private concessionaire that runs the campground) at Cinnamon Bay Campground, P.O. Box 120, Cruz Bay, St. John, Virgin Island 00830. Reservations can be made by mail up to 12 months in advance. You can call them at (809) 776-6330 for last minute information, if you want to pay long distance charges to the Virgin Island's.

More Michiganians heading south in '83

More Michigan residents are expected to travel to Florida for Easter week than any time since 1975, the Automobile Club of Michigan said.

Despite the poor economy, most airlines are reporting brisk holiday ticket sales from Detroit to Florida and other warm-weather locations.

"Requests from our members for Florida routings are up nearly 18 percent so far this year over 1982," Auto Club Travel Operations Manager James Drury said.

Last year, Florida routing requests fell 4 percent during the same pre-Easter period when compared with 1981.

Drury attributed much of the increase to the opening of Disney's Epcot Center near Orlando.

Reagan's arms policy: deterrent or paranoid?

by Carol Azizian
staff writer

Is President Reagan's new strategic defense proposal a "vision of the future that offers hope" for peace or a paranoid idea designed to escalate the nuclear arms race?

That question was been debated by analysts visiting Oakland County after Reagan gave his defense policy address last week. The president's new proposal calls for the United States to move away from a 20-year-old doctrine of retaliation against a Soviet nuclear strike and develop a multibillion-dollar 21st century weapons system to destroy incoming enemy missiles.

Two experts — one from Washington, D.C. and the other from the Detroit area — gave their views on Reagan's proposal last week before a standing-room-only crowd in the Southfield Civic Center. The program was sponsored by the League of Women Voters of the Metropolitan Detroit Area.

COL. OTIS Bryan, deputy director of the Air Force Issues Team at the Pentagon, called the proposal a "thoughtful and necessary" step on the road to peace.

Maurice Waters, a political science professor at Wayne State University, said it was a dangerous idea espoused by a president who continually has maintained a "myopic and paranoid outlook on world affairs."

Bryan, after outlining the history of the nuclear arms buildup, said the president painted an "accurate picture" of the U.S.-Soviet arms race.

Although the United States has a "strong military force," it still lags behind the Soviets, Bryan said.

The Air Force officer called the new defensive weapons "a helpful deterrent to nuclear war."

SOVIETS AND Americans both have "very strong development programs which will permit us to use lasers as weapons," he said.

But, he added, "we're at least 20 years away from being able to perfect those as operational weapons.

"We already have demonstrated the capability to shoot down an airplane or guided missile with a laser. That was basically a laboratory demonstration.

"However, it is a far different problem to try and shoot down — from the ground or from space — an ICBM (intercontinental ballistic missile) that is 5,000 miles away, coming at you at 18,000 miles an hour."

These space-age weapons won't be the "ultimate" weapons," Bryan said. "There's no such thing as an ultimate weapon. But they will be tools we can use."

The U.S. has 'a strong military force' but lags behind the Soviets. Reagan's defensive weapons are 'a helpful deterrent to nuclear war.'

— Col. Otis Bryan

WATERS CRITICIZED development of space-age weaponry as just another means of "continuing the arms race."

"Some say we can use this as a bargaining chip to force the other side to back down. However, when we begin to build new devices and use outer space as a way of controlling another country, we can be sure the other country will do exactly the same thing."

Reagan's new proposal, Waters said, must be examined within the context of the president's views on world affairs.

"When the president looks at the world, he cites the Soviet Union as the source of all evil. He has a myopic and paranoid outlook on world affairs.

"How then can he enter into meaningful negotiations with the Soviets? My hunch is that he can't because he really doesn't want to.

"I think the president regrets we are no longer the dominant world power that we were in the 1950s and 1960s, and he longs for a return to that time."

'How can he enter into meaningful negotiations with the Soviets? My hunch is that he can't because he really doesn't want to.'

— Prof. Maurice Waters

BOTH BRYAN and Waters agreed the president should be working toward negotiating an arms control agreement.

"If we can get the Soviets to agree to substantial arms reduction, it has to be equitable," Bryan said. "That means neither side can gain an advantage with what's left.

"We have to make sure they won't cheat on the agreement," Bryan added. "Let's get a treaty that serves the interests of both sides. For example, the ABM Treaty (the 1972 U.S.-Soviet agreement to limit anti-ballistic missile sites) is a good one."

Waters agreed but expressed reservations about the Reagan administration's desire to work toward that end.

"Reagan campaigned against the Salt II agreement. He dragged his feet during the first two years of his presidency. None of his proposals seemed to provide for a real negotiating stance. Now it seems we've lost the possible advantage we would have had."

Busiest interchange carries 543,000 daily

The Southfield and I-96 freeway interchange ranks No. 1 on a list of the 10 busiest interchanges in southeast Michigan.

According to data compiled by the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG), some 543,000 vehicles travel through that western Detroit interchange in a single day.

SEMCOG drew that conclusion from a 24-hour count of vehicles entering and leaving the interchange.

THE OTHER nine busiest interchanges are:

I-96 and Telegraph, Redford — 486,400 vehicles traveling through daily.

I-96 and I-94, central Detroit — 464,000.

I-75 and I-94, Detroit — 462,700.

Northwestern and Telegraph, Southfield — 415,300.

I-94 and Lodge, Detroit — 403,500.

I-94 and Southfield, western Detroit — 350,900.

I-75 and Lodge, Detroit — 334,500.

Southfield and Eight Mile, Detroit-Southfield border — 303,100.

Lodge and Eight Mile, Detroit-Southfield border — 278,500.

SEMCOG also compiled data on the 10 busiest surface route intersections in the region.

The Ford Road-Telegraph intersection in Dearborn Heights is the busiest, with a peak hour volume of 12,000 vehicles entering and leaving.

Peak hours can vary from day to day and from intersection to intersection. Generally, it is 4-5 p.m. or 5-6 p.m.

The other nine locations and their peak hour volumes are: Eight Mile and Van Dyke, 11,300; Eight-Mile and Mound, 11,100; 12 Mile and Van Dyke, 11,000; Six Mile and Telegraph, 10,800; Eight Mile and Dequindre, 10,200; Eight Mile and Livernois, 10,000; Eight Mile and Gratiot, 9,900; Plymouth and Telegraph, 9,500; Telegraph and 12 Mile, 9,400.

Closing cracks shell of old Nankin Mills area

WHO AMONG US can ignore the eloquent plea of Emily Gnacke, a McKee Elementary School parent who spoke at Tuesday's public hearing on the closing of three schools?

With a breaking voice, Gnacke pleaded with the board to "use your power properly. Give people enough time to adjust themselves."

"McKee is the center of our life. I realize that the north end is sheltered and needs to grow, but the notice was too short.

"I'm not requesting that you keep McKee open, but there are some things I would like. I hope you can guarantee a better education and better teachers so my daughter will be really enthused when she goes into the sixth grade next year," she continued.

UNLIKE Washington and Tinkham elementary schools, which were recommended for closing early last year by a building utilization committee, McKee's closing was an administrative recommendation made several months ago.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Wayne-Westland board members listen intently as residents question why McKee School, the last school in the northern area of the district, is being closed.

It is the last school from the old Nankin Mills district that still operates a regular educational program. That district was split up with the Livonia and Wayne-Westland districts both absorbing portions.

Residents in that area have never really recovered.

Those from Nankin Mills in the Livonia district feel they are poorly regarded by the rest of that district, and those in the Wayne-Westland district repeatedly asked at Tuesday night's hearing why they were being singled out.

Superintendent Timothy Dyer said that both Livonia and Wayne-Westland are baffled by enrollment declines that have been steeper in the old Nankin Mills area than elsewhere. Dyer added that he hoped no one thought that area was being picked on.

WELL, THAT'S what residents really seem to believe. Whether that perception is unjust is beside the point.

Both school districts ought to join with the city of Westland in renewing efforts to make that area feel a part of the school and civic community. If allowed to continue, their perceived isolation could one day affect the stability of neighborhoods in that area.

How can they be brought out of their shell?

Certainly there are several things that can be done. Give the area a focus for its community life. Whether its at Whittier in the Livonia district or the old Nankin Mills Junior High in Wayne-Westland, the north end needs a focus similar to that offered by the Dorsey Center in the southeast.

The area can be helped to grow by recognition of its contributions to both districts and by seeking out residents' participation in their committees and activities.

There are times when the hard-boiled business of school operations must be sensitive to what Gnacke called the human part of all of us.

Writer opposes abortion views

To the editor:

I must disagree with the views expressed by Gloria Steinmen in a story published in the March 17 Observer. Mention is made of reproductive freedom, which means abortion.

This freedom destroys one third of all the babies conceived in the U.S. every year. Only 4 percent of these abortions are because of rape or danger to the health of the mother.

Since 1979, a minor can even have an abortion without permission of the parents. The U.S. Supreme Court interpertation of the Constitution has taken away the rights of the parents over their minor child and their grandchildren. It also denies the father the right to appeal the abortion of his child.

From the moment of conception, a process of wonders, created only by God, begins that results in a baby being born. By the second month of pregnancy, the fetus has all the human life systems already developed and also has eyes and 10 fingers and 10 toes. Unborn babies such as these are aborted every day throughout the world.

Many people may be ignorant of just how the little fetus resembles a human. People feel sorry for the mother, so do I, but I can't approve killing the little unborn child, regardless of circumstances.

Adoption agencies need babies of all kinds, healthy or not, they are wanted by couples who have no babies, and no babies for adoption are usually available.

Every baby will grow into a child that the mother and father can be proud of, regardless of the circumstances when the baby was first conceived. A mother never regrets giving birth, never.

IF A WOMAN has a problem pregnancy, she can contact Birth-Right at 27766 Schoolcraft in Livonia 48150; call 422-3220 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily, or she can contact her pastor of her church, or the nearest Catholic church, which are all against abortion, but rather seek to help the mother with money, counseling, shelter, and adoption agencies if necessary.

What is thought to be an unwanted baby may be a source of joy, grandchildren, and a beautiful service to God in caring for one of His little ones.

Thank you and may God bless you. Somebody cares.

Detroit area impresses Democrats

Nick Sharkey

MEMORIES CAME flooding back last week when the Democratic Site Selection Committee came to metropolitan Detroit for a three-day inspection. They were looking at sites for the 1984 convention. Detroit is one of five cities bidding for the event.

Several suburban hotels — including the Holiday Inn, Hilton, Northfield Hilton and Somerset Inn in Troy — were visited Friday by the inspection team. Staffs spent many hours sprucing up hotel appearances in preparation for the site committee.

IT WAS LESS than three years ago that we celebrated "Detroit Loves a Good Party." That was the slogan for the Republican Convention held in Detroit in 1980. It was a clever turn of a phrase for a GOP (Grand Old Party) convention.

And what a party we gave. Many delegations stayed in hotels in this area. They included: Massachusetts in Plymouth Hilton; South Dakota in Farmington Hills Holiday Inn; Virginia, Alabama and Florida in Troy Hilton; Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa in Somerset Inn, Troy; Kentucky and Mississippi in Northfield Hilton in Troy; Utah in Holiday Inn in Southfield; Montana in old Northland Inn in Southfield; and Ohio and Pennsylvania in Michigan Inn in Southfield.

Delegates not only stayed in local hotels, but they were also entertained at numerous suburban parties and events. Suburban hosts became sponsors of delegates and took them on excursions to places like Greenfield Village and the Detroit Yacht Club.

In short, we tried to be perfect hosts for our guests. And it paid off.

Typical of the responses after the convention was that of Rep. Carroll Campbell, head of the South Carolina delegation.

"When they said we're going to Detroit for the national convention, everyone went, 'Ohh,' " he said. "After having come here, we have a totally different attitude. I've been to a number of national conventions . . . . This far exceeds the others, not only in the facilities but in the attitude of the people."

DELEGATES DID everything except spend money. They didn't have to.

The Massachusetts delegation in the Plymouth Hilton was typical. The hotel gave an arrival party that included free food and drinks for all delegates. Delegates attended a free band concert at Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth. More receptions and parties were held throughout the week.

On Monday night, the Troy Hilton offered a buffet and five-piece band in the ballroom for $10 per person. Only 19 persons showed up, and it was cancelled for the rest of the week.

At the same time, suburbanites worried that their favorite restaurants and bars would be crowded with delegates. Thus, they decided to stay away for a week.

The combination meant that local bars and restaurants had few customers that week.

AH, WHAT A GOOD time we all had during that week in July 1980. I hope that the Democratic site committee gives Detroit the favorable nod for 1984. Even if predictions of delegates' spending are exaggerated, it's great for the image of this area to host a national convention.

But I don't expect that to happen. A Democratic convention is several times larger than a Republican convention. Unfortunately, this area may be unable to provide the 20,000 required hotel and motel rooms.

From all reports, San Francisco is front runner. But that can't stop us from hoping. Before they left, members of the Democratic committee said they were favorably impressed. They will announce their decision April 21.

Who knows? Maybe in a few weeks we will be planning for a larger party than we had in 1980.

Tax result: dramatic but inevitable

Tim Richard

WATCHING THE Michigan Legislature last week pass a state personal income tax increase was much like watching Shakespeare's "Hamlet" — one knows how it's going to end, but it is still an absorbing drama.

There was much of the inevitable about the battle over a major tax increase. Anyone watching the revenue numbers knew, absolutely, that an increase was coming. The fact that a year ago Gov. William G. Milliken proposed an income tax increase, then backed off in favor of a six-month hike, only underscored the inevitability of it all.

Listening to Democratic candidate James Blanchard discuss the situation last fall, one had to know he would propose some kind of major increase. And so he did — 0.25 percent to pay off the accumulated debt, 1.5 percent to cover current shortfalls, $225 million in expenditure cuts beyond the billion or so Milliken had cut.

The editorial board of this newspaper warned of the inevitability of a tax increase. Around the nation, more than half of the other states are facing deficits that already have required, or shortly will will require, tax transfusions.

THE NAIVETE of the anti-tax protestors was touching.

They scheduled a rally on the State Capitol Building steps March 1, and the House of Representatives responded by passing the increase one day later.

They scheduled a headlights and candle-burning event for March 25. The Senate responded by passing its version of the tax increase March 24, and the House concurred March 25.

They roared, waved flags, chanted threats of recalling Blanchard. It is doubtful Blanchard will lose five seconds sleep over it.

For the political fact of life is that the anti-tax folks didn't have an experienced politician among them. I talked with as many as I could buttonhole and failed to find a party precinct delegate, a county chairman or a former candidate among them. Even Bob Tisch didn't bother to show up.

THE REPUBLICANS at first talked of developing a $600 million "hit list" of expenditures they would propose for cutting.

As the session wore on, they suddenly fell silent about reducing expenditures, much the same way a pond full of spring peepers stops croaking when a human clomps by.

In the House, the Democrats simply rolled over the Republicans, 58-50, without a single Republican voting yes.

In the Senate, the situation was somewhat more tense. Democrats held a bare 20-18 majority. One Democrat, Gilbert DiNello of East Detroit, was a firm no, and there were question marks behind the names of Patrick McCollough of Dearborn, Joe Mack of Ironwood and John Kelly of Detroit.

Republicans went so far as to report a majority of its caucus would support a tax increase if 1) it would be phased out sooner and more definitely and 2) the single business tax burden on small firms were reduced.

For a spell, it looked as if a major caucus-to-caucus deal might be struck. But the Democratic leadership found one yes vote among the Republicans — Harry DeMaso of Battle Creek, a veteran of two dozen years in the Legislature, a man with a conservative streak a mile wide, a liberal streak a mile wide, and a streak of stubborn Dutch independence three miles wide.

DeMaso did what had to be done. He joined the 19 Democrats to support a slightly scaled-down verion of Blanchard's proposal, and the whole affair was over within a day.

It was inevitable.

Despite courts, U.S. prisons 'bursting at seams'

Second of three parts
By Carol Azizian
staff writer

Denmark's Ringe prison looks more like a modern condominium or apartment complex than a correctional facility.

There, young men and women who have committed violent crimes walk freely from cell to cell, buy their own food and do their own banking. Each cell unit has its own kitchen and dining room.

Prisoners are paid for carpentry work in a factory. Neither prisoners nor guards wear uniforms. Male and female prisoners are allowed to live together, even marry and have children.

Although prisoners have relatively great freedom inside the prison walls, they are well aware of the limits of this freedom. The maximum security prison is virtually escape-proof.

AMERICAN prison officials may learn a valuable lesson from the Ringe model, according to Alvin J. Bronstein, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union National Prison Project.

"I've been to Ringe, and it's working as a decent, humane place to house inmates. I think that kind of thing is possible in the United States," Bronstein told participants at a recent conference on "Victims and Inmates Rights." The conference at Mercy College, Detroit, was sponsored by the American Jewish Committee.

American prison officials and courts, however, are just beginning to come to grips with problems of overcrowding, unsanitary conditions and inhumane treatment, said Bronstein, a pioneer in prisoners' rights litigation.

That's because, until 20 years ago, there was "no concept of prisoners' rights," he said. The courts espoused a "hands off" doctrine which virtually gave administrators a free hand in running prisons.

AFTER THE civil rights movement gained momentum, courts began intervening in cases involving prisoners' rights.

During the late 1950s and early 1960s, courts focused on narrow issues or specific cases, Bronstein said.

"Courts addressed religious rights of prisoners, such as the right of an Orthodox Jew to have a pork-free diet. They dealt with specific cases of cruel and unusual punishment, such as attaching exposed wires of the so-called Tucker telephone to a prisoner's genitals as a method of shock treatment."

As a growing number of professionals, legal aid societies and prisoners' rights organizations pushed for broader reforms, more sweeping changes were made.

"Courts began to take into consideration the totality of conditions — prison violence, inadequate mental health care, environmental health and safety and overcrowding.

"If attorneys could show that prison conditions were actually debilitating people, then the courts would consider that a violation of Eighth Amendment Rights."

SINCE THE 1970s, courts across the country have been ordering prisons to reduce overcrowding and improve conditions. Last year, court orders were issued in some 31 states.

The jails in both Wayne and Oakland counties have been hit by suits from inmates. Court orders now govern inmate populations, exercise, physical and mental health care and classification of inmates.

Colorado courts have taken the most dramatic step toward guaranteeing Eighth Amendment rights to prisoners, Bronstein said. Cruel and unusual punishment, under that court ruling, must be eliminated by ensuring that all prisoners engage in productive activity, have sufficient cell space and adequate treatment for mental and physical health problems. Guards must not be overworked in order to avoid potentially stressful or violent encounters between staff and inmates.

Despite the numerous court rulings, American prisons are still "bursting at the seams," Bronstein said.

He called Michigan a "fortunate exception" because of a state law requiring early release of less dangerous prisoners when prison populations become too high.

CONDITIONS were so bad that, in 1981, riots broke out at prisons in Michigan, Iowa, Florida, Tennessee, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Texas and North Carolina.

"We lock up more people per capita (250 per 100,000) than every other country in the world with the exception of South Africa and the Soviet Union," Bronstein said.

Prison sentences are longer in the United States than in any other country. In the U.S., the average sentence is three years. In Great Britain and Canada, it's one year.

Some 37 states have mandatory sentence laws which require that certain classes of felons be given long prison sentences with little or no chance of parole.

BUT THERE is no correlation between longer prison sentences and reducing the crime rate, Bronstein said.

roll call report

Dems' House muscle changes Reagan's budget

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 17-23.

HOUSE

BUDGET: By a vote of 229 for and 196 against, the House approved a fiscal 1984 budget blueprint that sharply contrasts Democratic and GOP priorities in areas such as defense, taxation and social spending. It goes to the Senate.

The victory margin showed that House Democrats now can effectively challenge President's mastery of Capitol Hill on fiscal issues.

The $863.5 billion Democratic-drafted budget projects a $174.5 billion deficit, $14.3 billion less than Reagan's budget envisions. It calls for $30 billion in additional tax revenue, probaly through cancellation of the final year of the administration's three-year supply-side tax cut.

It cuts the president's defense request by $10 billion, and it raises spending for food stamps, welfare and many other social programs the administration wants to cut.

The measure (HCR 91) is a master plan to guide later work on individual spending bills.

Supporter Jim Wright, D-Tex., said, "The American people in opinion poll after opinion poll have indicated that . . .they would prefer to forego the third year of the tax cut."

Opponent Ed Bethune, R-Ark., said any member voting yes is "a 100 percent, full-blown, unadulturated practictioner of national liberal Democratic policies which mean more and more central government and more and more economic planning."

Members voting yes favored the Democratic budget. Voting yes: Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit, William Ford, D-Taylor and Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

TARGET: By a vote of 132 for and 277 against, the House rebuffed Senate attempts to target less jobs money to areas of highest unemployment.

The vote came during debate on HR 1718, the anti-recesssion bill that appropriates $4.6 billion for hurry-up public works construction and other projects aimed at creating hundreds of thousands of jobs in upcoming months.

On this vote, the House stuck by its plan to target some $1.8 billion to areas situated mostly in the Midwest and Northeast.

For example, the House wanted most of the $389 million earmarked for U.S. Army Corps of Engineers projects to be spent in the most destitute areas rather than in the sunbelt.

On a later, non-record vote, the House kept much of its targeting but accepted part of the Senate plan to spread a large chunk of the jobs money evenly throughout the country. The bill, which also provided money to help certain states pay unemployment benefits, was sent to the White House.

Members voting no wanted to target a large share of the jobs outlay to areas where unemployment is highest. Voting no: Hertel, Pursell, Ford and Levin.

Not voting: Broomfield.

Voting yes: none.

SENATE

BANKS: By a vote of 54 for and 43 against, the Senate shelved an amendment to delay from next July 1 until Jan. 1 the date on which financial institutions are to begin collecting for the Treasury 10 percent of the interest and dividends paid depositors.

The vote removed the issue from the Social Security rescue bill that later was passed and sent to the White House.

Senators voting no wanted to delay or repeal the withholding provision. Michigan's Democratic senatos, Carl Levin and Donald Riegle, voted no.

Opposed by millions of complaining constituents and such lobbies as the American Bankers Association, the new withholding law is to be debated again by the Senate in mid-April.

It is a tax collection device aimed at raising an estimated $4 billion now lost to tax cheaters. It would cost the average saver liquidity of about 50 cents for every $1,000 in a savings account.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., who voted to shelve the delay attempt, said the banking lobby "ought to lay out the facts and should not try to deceive the American people. They should not say it is a tax when it is not a tax."

Opponent John Melcher, D-Mont., said, "People feel it is harassment. People feel it is just some more red tape. People do not really believe . . it nets out to much revenue gain. I agree."

COVERAGE: The Senate rejected, 45 for and 50 against, an amendment dealing with whether new federal employes should be required to join Social Security.

Most senators voting no were opposed to including new federal workers in Social Security without first legislating a supplemental civil services retirement plan. Levin and Riegle voted no.

The amendment was opposed by federal workers' unions and other lobbies that want civil servants to keep their present retirement system, which is partly funded by all taxpayers.

The amendment advocated mandatory Social Security for federal workers hired after the beginning of next year. But in a bow to civil servants, it let them defer contributions to the existing civil service retirement system until Congress has replaced the latter with a new supplemental pension system.

HOW TO MAKE A TAX DEDUCTIBLE CONTRIBUTION TO YOURSELF.

Open a Standard Federal IRA plan.

Every working person with earned income from performing personal services is now eligible for an Individual Retirement Account. Contributions to this account are TAX DEDUCTIBLE each year and earnings are also TAX DEFERRED until retirement (age 59½). A working person may contribute up to a maximum of $2,000.00 per year. A husband and wife who are both working may EACH contribute up to a maximum amount of $2,000.00 (total $4,000.00). A working person with a non-working spouse may contribute up to $2,250.00 per year.

You actually save money two ways:

1. Tax Deduction

A $2,000 annual contribution to your IRA can mean real savings right NOW.

For example, even though an actual cash contribution has been made in the amount of $2,000, it will cost the tax payer (in the 40% tax bracket) only $1,200 in actual dollars because of the $800 tax savings incurred.

TAX BRACKET	20%	30%	40%	50%
IRA ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000
ANNUAL TAX SAVINGS	$ 400	$ 600	$ 800	$1,000
YOUR ACTUAL YEARLY NET CONTRIBUTION	$1,600	$1,400	$1,200	$1,000

2. Tax Deferral

Current rate

3½-year certificate account — 10.00% per year—paid and compounded quarterly — 10.38% effective annual yield

A $2,000 annual contribution to your IRA also means tax-deferred savings until retirement when tax brackets are usually lower. Here's what you'll earn with our 3½-year fixed rate certificate at 10.00% if reinvested at the same annual interest rate.

YEARS OF CONTRIBUTION	10	20	30	40
IRA ANNUAL CONTRIBUTION	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000	$2,000
FUNDS AVAILABLE AT RETIREMENT	$35,833.61	$132,049.13	$390,393.95	$1,084,066.29

Many other savings plans are also available for IRA.

Call or visit us today to learn how Standard Federal Savings can help you save TWICE for retirement.

Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal from certificate accounts, and withdrawals from your IRA prior to age 59½ may result in tax penalties. When you withdraw the money in your IRA Account at retirement after age 59½, your withdrawals will be taxed as ordinary income at a time when your tax rate is likely to be lower.

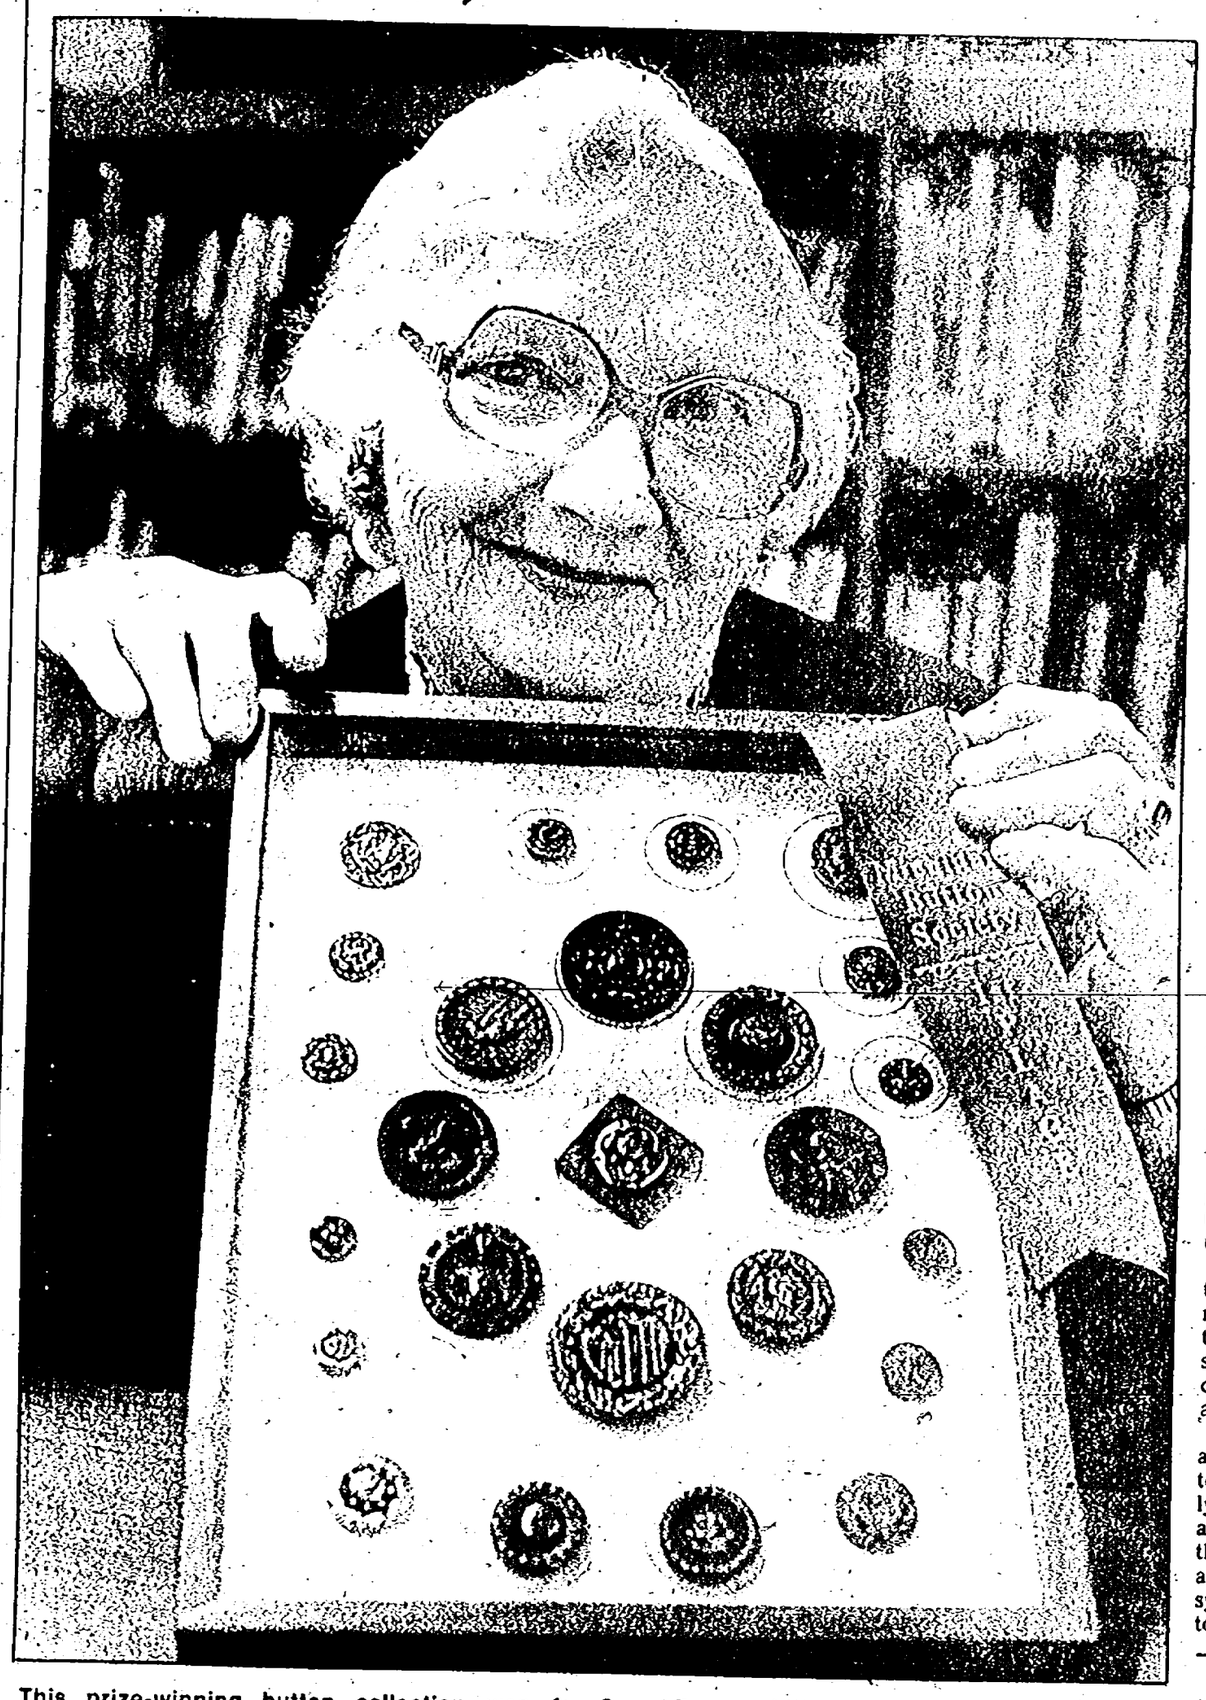
Button, button — who's got the button?

Grace Brown, that's who



This prize-winning button collection won for Grace Brown of Westland a State Fair prize from the Michigan Button Society. It is one of many blue ribbons she won through her hobby.

Learning the history of these heads of seven gods (above) and the Geisha girl (below) make button collecting intriguing for Grace Brown. They are based on porcelain buttons produced in 15th and 16th century Japan.

By Sherry Kahan
staff writer

It was a little, black, glass button with a gilt potato bug in the center that helped turn Grace Brown of Westland into a button buff.

The button was given to her by her grandmother. Like the rest of her buttons, it is the kind that is sewed onto cloth.

Since childhood she has gathered in thousands of others, traveled many miles collecting and learned that button making is an art form. In fact, considering the enormous variety of her collection, the invention of the zipper almost seems regrettable.

Consider this. In 16th-century Japan, artists were painting pictures on buttons made from clay that was especially adaptable to making porcelain. They are called Arita buttons after one of the cities where they were made. The artists were proud of their work; a symbol on the back of each is believed to be the artist's signature. In 1960 buttons in this style were brought to this country, and Brown purchased some of them. She has a set of seven, each of which contains the head of a different god.

She also owns several Satsuma buttons, one of them with a handpainted geisha girl on it. This style dates back to the 15th century when a prince from Satsuma invaded Korea and carried off some Korean potters. He put them to work creating pottery, from which Satsuma buttons were later derived.

IT DOESN'T take long, when talking to Brown, to appreciate that button collecting is more than dropping into the local sewing emporium. It brings in history, art and familiarity with gem stones like jade and coral, and the many materials used in their creation. These would include silver, gold, wood, rubber, cork, copper, brass, fabric, pewter, glass, shell, acorns and ivory.

"You have no idea of the artistry that is in buttons," said Brown in an interview at Tinkham School where she volunteers her time in the grandparents VIP (Voluntary intergenerational Program). "It's a learning experience."

A learning experience for Brown means the same for the students at this elementary school in the Wayne-Westland school district. An exhibit of many of her buttons was recently on display in the school hall.

In between helping the children with their reading or math, Brown often seizes a few moments to talk about her buttons.

She brings in the ones that will be of special interest to youngsters, like buttons from uniforms collected by her late husband George.

The students can hold these decorative objects worn by railroad conductors and firemen. There is even a French uniform button worn in the time when the French had forts at Grosse Ile around 1812.

NATURALLY, THEY are gently advised to be careful when they pick up buttons that are miniature glass paperweights. And how about a blackout button worn during the London blitz of World War II? It can be seen at night, a fact that might cause a child to muse briefly about wartime living conditions.

Did Napoleon have a son? The children who have listened to Brown know he did. A button called the little Eaglet carries the head of a small boy who was Napoleon's only son.

Buttons in honor of people and events have been popular down through the years. Sarah Bernhardt was so honored as was Queen Victoria, the present Queen Elizabeth and Nefertiti, an Egyptian queen of the 14th-century BC.

Buttons of the 18th and 19th century were worn on the vests of the fashionable men of the time.

"It's history for them and they really enjoy it," she said. "The children have never seen things like this."

IN HER QUEST for additions to her collection. Brown has visited button shows in Michigan, Illinois and Ohio. She shows up regularly at antique stores, flea markets and garage sales.

"You'd be surprised at that you find," she said. "I have found nice jewel buttons at garage sales.

She's gone on a lot of "wild goose chases," some of which have turned out well.

"Once we went out to an old ramshackle house where there were cats all over the place. "The man kept his

Sticker pals parted, but hope continues

By Marie McGee
staff writer

Scott Grandinett isn't worried about his pal, P. J. Dragan, anymore.

"He's in heaven with my grandpa," the 6-year-old says. "And now his legs work."

But he is worried about P. J.'s "sticker" book. He doesn't want anything to happen to it.

The story of the two youngsters' friendship is one of love and concern. It goes far beyond their weekly meetings at Children's Hospital where they traded stickers and played while they spent two or three hours awaiting treatment in their battle with leukemia.

It was their common illness and the problems and frustrations therein that led their parents to establish a support group, along with three other couples. The group is called Leukemia Research Life Inc. and is dedicated to the elimination of all childhood cancers through research.

P. J. lost his battle with the disease several weeks ago. He died two days after reaching his 8th birthday — something he wanted to achieve very badly. And for several weeks before his death, the plucky youngster was confined to a wheelchair — no longer able to race down the hospital corridors with his pal Scott.

ALL OF THAT was a bit disconcerting for Scott who began asking questions like: How come P. J.'s medicine didn't work and is his (Scott's) still going to help?

Unlike his chum, Scott has been doing well since an Observer story a year ago. He is in his second period of remission and has more pep and vitality than he did a year ago. He was nearly bald then but now has a full head of thick, curly hair.

The Livonia Buchanan Elementary School kindergartner also had a bout with pneumonia recently. The outcome left his doctors pleased.

"His bone marrow responded by increasing the white cells to fight the infection," said Scott's mother, Janie. "They felt this was a healthy response."

One of the reasons the Grandinetts and the Dragans, who are Detroit residents, decided to form LRL was because of the lack of research that was being done in the area of childhood cancers.

"WE'D HEAR ABOUT some kind of research, then the next thing we knew it was dropped because there wasn't any money to continue with it," Mrs. Grandinett said. "We felt we could best serve children by doing something to help get research going again. The cure will only come through research."

In the 19 months that the support group has been active, $56,000 has been raised through a series of fund-raisers.

A proud moment came in February when the research group presented Children's Hospital with a check for $17,140 for the purchase of a high pressure liquid chromatography system.

What the system will do is test toxicity levels of the various drugs used on leukemia patients.

"The machine will do the initial testing, rather than our children's bodies," Janie Grandinett explained. It should help eliminate the painful side effects that many of the children go through until the correct level of dosage is determined.

For example, in Scott's case, those side effects brought on severe vomiting attacks, often left him listless and caused the loss of his hair.

THE MACHINE WAS purchased on the recommendation of the LRL's medical advisory board, composed of staff doctors as well as members.

"They felt this was the best expenditure of our money," she added. There are very few places in the country where this kind of research is going on, she said. Part of the reason it can be done here is because of the facilities available to them at nearby Wayne State University, she said.

Leukemia, Research, Life Inc. will holds its "II Annual Evening of Hope" on Saturday, April 23, at Fandango Hall, on Eureka Road at I-275, Taylor. Tickets at $20 per person are now sale. Call 464-4226 or 527-7253 for further information.

Madonna art exhibit

A reception for Madonna College's Student Spring Art Exhibit will be held 2-4 p.m. Sunday, April 17.

The reception will kick off the week-long exhibit in the main foyer of the college.

It will consist of drawings, paintings, sculpture and commercial art, completed by Madonna students. There will also be an exhibit of artwork done by graduating seniors.

The reception is open to the public. There is no charge. Refreshments will be served.

For more information about the exhibit, call 591-5000. Madonna is located at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Button collecting saves work of past artists buttons in a can, and he threw them on the table. He wouldn't sell them separately so I took them all.

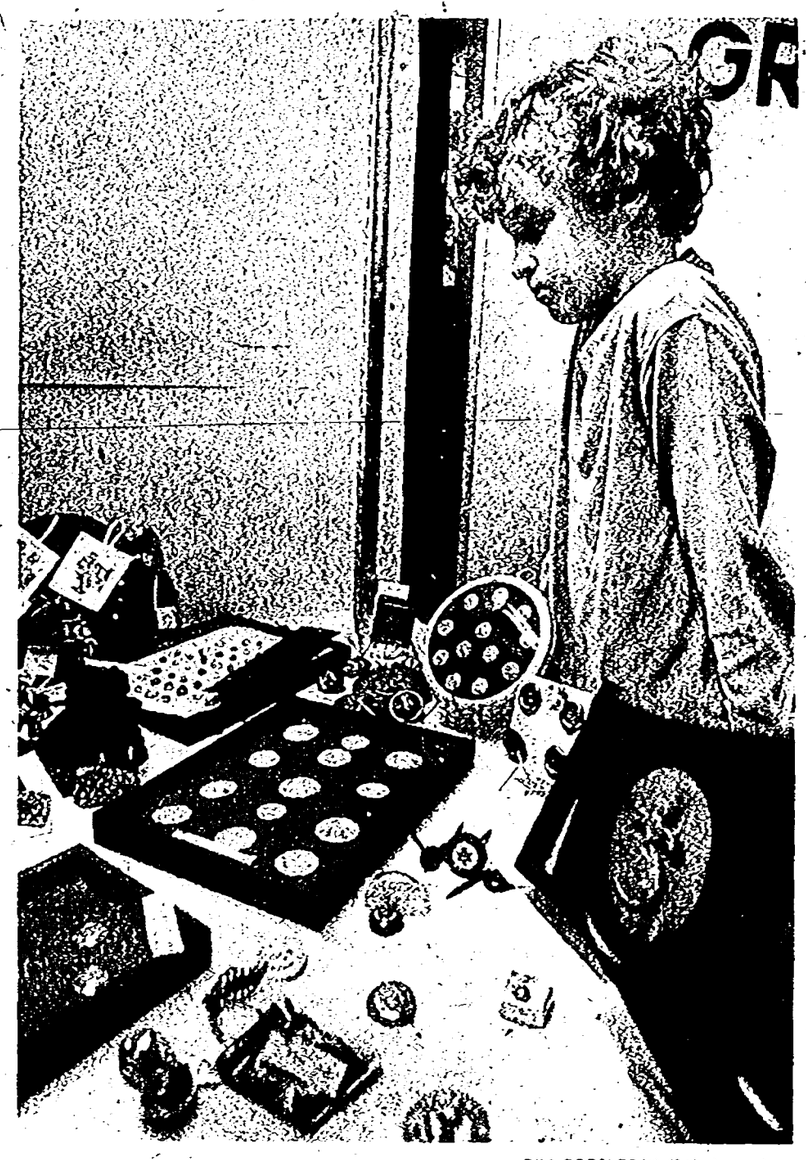
"I began rubbing them down on the way home and found some of them were old silver-coin buttons, dated 1304 to 1312."

Even though she looked carefully through her button books, Brown has not been able to identify them further.

The artistic productions of the button industry are mostly a thing of the past, Brown said. They have left the field to the cheap metal and plastic materials of today.

And while she knows this makes her buttons more valuable and historically interesting, she would like nothing better than to have fashion a la button sweep once more over the fashion industry.



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Tinkham School third grader Jason Gillespie of Westland tries to pick a favorite from the Brown buttons.

Some of the money will go to pay the salary of the technician who will operate the machine.

The Dragans will continue to be active with the group. Paul Dragan is president of the board of directors.

"To show you how dedicated they are," said Mrs. Grandinett, "P.J.'s funeral was on Monday and on Tuesday we had a general meeting and they were there. They feel this is their son's legacy. They refuse to let him die in vain."

THE SUCCESS OF the grass roots organization has been surprising to Janie Grandinett, her husband David and Eric and Sandy DeVore, the other Livonia couple who helped found the support group.

"People have a hard time saying no to us," smiled Janie Grandinett. "They know our hearts are in the right place."

Several area groups have helped them in their fund-raising efforts. Last week the Livonia Newcomers staged a fashion show, proceeds of which will be split between LRL and the Family Y campership program.

The Livonia Jaycees and Jaycettes have also been big boosters. The Jaycettes, for instance, held a "Breakfast with the Easter Bunny" benefit planned at Newburg United Methodist Church last weekend.

Also lending support are Stevenson High School students who have held dance marathons for the past two years.

THIS YEAR THE high school students raised $2,000 and have $7,000 more in pledges.

Most of the success of the group comes because of the hustle of the 40 or so active members. Because the membership is so diverse, covering many sections of Detroit, the Livonia area as well as the down river communities, mini-LRL fund-raisers are occurring all the time in all areas by different members.

The largest moneymaker is a raffle now under way titled "A Weekend for Life," in which 10 weekend trips are given away. Included are a Las Vegas holiday for two, a weekend at the Grand Traverse Hilton, the Niagara Falls Holiday and the St. Ignace Georgian House.

But the real fun comes at the "II Annual Evening of Hope" dinner dance April 23 when the membership and friends sit down and break bread together in a common bond of friendship.

It's a little like the feeling that existed between Scott and P. J. when they sat in the hospital waiting room swapping stickers. Only their common bond wasn't as much fun.

'We felt we could best serve children by doing something to help get research going again.'

Cathy Liddane of Livonia, volunteer chairwoman of the American Cancer Society's daffodil sale, holds a bouquet of the spring blooms that will be on sale this weekend at Livonia Mall and also at Wonderland Center's Eaton Place.

Daffodil sale symbolizes rebirth

The American Cancer Society is counting on people in these parts going daffy over daffodils.

From Friday to Sunday, the cancer society will be conducting "Daffodil Days," the annual fund-raising event that features beautiful, fresh-cut daffodils. The three-day event signifies the beginning of Cancer Control Month in April.

Being the first flower of spring, daffodils are a welcomed sight that symbolize hope. This particular flower was selected by the American Cancer Society because it wishes to communicate this same message of hope in the fight against the disease.

FUNDS RAISED FROM Daffodil Days are used to support American Cancer Society programs of research, education and service. Less than 10 percent of all dollars raised is used to support administrative costs, and this is only possible because the ACS has 900 volunteers for each staff person.

Daffodils will be sold at $3.50 per bouquet. Buckets of 100 flowers are available for a donation of $35. Orders of more than 50 flowers will be delivered.

Flowers will be available on 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday at Livonia Mall and Eaton Place in Wonderland Center. They will also be available from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Western Wayne County office of the American Cancer Society at 6227 Inkster Road in Garden City. For more information, call 425-6830.

Vintage Ford takes Bombachs to party

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bombach of Livonia drove in 1933 style to their 50th anniversary party in the Hillside Inn.

In transportation arranged by Marie Bombach, sister of Victor Bombach, they rode in a Ford made a half century ago in 1933, the year they were married in St. Anthony Church, Detroit.

The dinner was hosted by their children and their spouses, Shirley and Irwin Brink, Thomas and Sharon Bombach and Richard and Patricia Bombach. Also attending the event were eight of their nine grandchildren and their three great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Bombach lived in Detroit until they moved to Livonia in 1941. They remember picking blackberries in a field where the Observer is now located, and walking through the woods behind it. They also recall the number of cars that used to get stuck when spring turned Levan from a dirt road into a muddy one.

Mr. Bombach is a retired foreman of the Ford Motor Co.

Furnishing a future

"This place looks like Florida, and I hope you're not going to make it look like Michigan."

Our daughter, who had joined us for the first few retirement days we spent in the South, was looking over our apartment with its white walls, white-painted furniture and well-tracked but pale carpeting.

We had just visited the apartment of some neighbors who recently had imported Oriental rugs and dark upholstered furnishings. That place didn't look like Florida.

Actually, the matter of how our home would look when we had moved in had been argued — make that discussed — on several occasions during the year that had passed since we decided to head for Florida.

My husband, being probably pretty typical of his gender, was less attached to things from the old life and more ready to go for new furnishings.

I, probably equally typically, held out for continuity with past. I also felt sure he would be aghast at the cost of replacing some of our furnishings.

SO, WITH LISTS of spaces and measurements in hand, we packed and had stored a number of our belongings.

There was my grandfather's bookcase and my aunt's desk. A dining table I stripped and refinished with the help of a long-ago neighbor and a chest he refinished for us, working through a stressful time in his life with some furious sanding and rubbing.

Also there was the china cabinet we bought secondhand early in marriage, the big old desk that has been a central part of our lives nearly as long, the wooden box built by our son-in-law, the comfortable couch that cost much more than we could afford 'way back when, the coffee table about which the same can be said.

We found new homes for some other furnishings, notably an antique bedroom set made of dark, carved wood, and we dispatched truckloads to the church rummage sale.

AND DURING the months we lived in temporary quarters, I became convinced that the things we were moving did indeed have high value to me. I missed them, and I was glad we'd be meeting again.

I even found myself, after arriving in the South, wishing for visitation rights while we repainted, recarpeted and otherwise prepared the apartment to receive them.

I can report how they all arrived in good shape and have found thir niches in our home and lives. The big pieces even made it through rather narrow spaces with less trouble than we feared.

Ehrling, Rampal excel in concert

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

Feelings and emotions usually run high where Sixten Ehrling is concerned. Having been music director of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra for 10 years, 1963 to 1973, the Swedish-born maestro has acquired his share of fans as well as detractors.

Whatever one's feeling about Ehrling might be, one has to admit that his formidable presence can't be dismissed or ignored. This season he is scheduled here as a guest conductor for two programs.

The first of these, presented last week, turned out to be impressive. It featured celebrated flutist Jean-Pierre Rampal, who played the solo part in the seldom-performed Nielsen Flute Concerto.

ONE PECULIAR aspect of this program was that it featured exclusively 20th century compositions, without some of the negative feelings normally associated with that period by many classical listeners.

The reason for the successful acceptance was that the two other works on the program were the "Fountains of Rome" by Respighi and the Symphony No. 3 by Rachmaninoff, which are two well-liked orchestral masterpieces of our century. In addition, the high quality of the peformance matched the quality of the musical content.

The "Fountains of Rome" is a well known symphonic poem, depicting four of the fountains of the city with which the composer was so fascinated. While most listeners might have heard it through the many available recordings, few of these, if any, can match the impact of this performance.

The various moods and atmospheres of these fountains were so authentically depicted, that one could almost envision their actual shape. This, however, doesn't imply the rejection of an actual trip, if offered.

review

The Nielsen Flute Concerto, better known among professional flute players, is certainly not part of the standard repertoire for listeners. Following this listening, it became evident that this is indeed a substantial composition for the instrument.

There are, of course, some of the better known flute concerti that I would consider musically more profound. But if one wishes to get away from the handful of the standard outstanding works of that form, this was indeed an excellent choice. Moreover, when, Jean-Pierre Rampal happens to be the soloist; then the performance is bound to be hard to surpass.

RAMPAL CAPTURED rather well the conflicting moods of the concerto. His playing ranged from sombre, contemplative passages to delightful and charming presentations, never sacrificing musical depth to mere virtuosity.

The orchestra was equally adept. In the duel between the flute and the trombone, which is one of the features in this composition, the audience came out the winner.

The profound orchestral scope of Rachmaninoff's Third Symphony is, of course, a well established fact. Presenting the work convincingly, however, is a formidable task that can never be taken for granted.

Maestro Ehrling and the orchestra proved to be equal to the task, turning in a most impressive and pleasing performance. The orchestral sound was balanced, rich and encompassing. The buildups from the tender, nostalgic phrases to the forceful, resolute peaks was inspiring.

Ehrling is scheduled to appear here with another program on April 7 through April 9 featuring works by Haydn, Barber and Dvorak.

"The Amorous Flea," a musical version of Moliere's comedy "School for Wives," will be performed by the Fairmount Theatre for the Deaf on April 10 at Madonna College in Livonia. Both voice and American Sign language will be used to communicate with the audience.

Theater for deaf does musical

Broadway director Word Baker joins with the Fairmount Theatre for the Deaf to present the musical "The Amorous Flea" at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 10, in the Activities Center at Madonna College, I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Tickets at $3 can be purchased at the door or by calling 591-5131 or 591-1023.

The production, featuring both deaf and hearing actors, is a musical comedy. The actors will communicate with the audience through voice and American sign language. For the hearing audience, actors who use only signs work alongside performers who sing and speak with them.

The musical is co-directed by Baker and his protege, Roderic Kates. Baker was the director of the original production of "The Fantasticks," the world's longest-running musical, now in its 23rd year at the Sullivan Street Playhouse in New York City.

HE RECENTLY directed "I'm Getting My Act Together and Taking It on the Road," starring Connie Stevens. He first directed it for producer Joseph Papp at New York City's Public Theater and then on a national tour.

"The Amorous Flea" is a musical comedy version of Moliere's "School for Wives," written in 1662. The plot concerns a middle-aged man who fears finding a trustworthy woman. To solve the problem, he decides to rear a young woman, ignorant of the ways of the world, until she is old enough to become his wife.

Madonna has a large deaf-student population and offers a sign language/interpreting program. It serves as a regional training center for interpreters.

Ken Rust, chairman of the Sign Language/Interpreting Department at Madonna, said the production will be a good opportunity for the public to learn more about sign language.

"It will be a fun experience for members of the audience, and at the same time familiarize them with deaf culture," he said.

The Fairmount Theatre for the Deaf is based in Cleveland. The performance will be partially funded by the Cleveland Society for the Deaf.

Violinist tackles difficult works

The next concert in the "Music for a Renaissance City" series will take place at Orchestra Hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday. It will feature series founder, Misha Rachelevsky, violin, assisted by pianist, Michelle Cooker, and guitarist, Chris Birg.

A special aspect of this program is that all of the compositions were written by some of the great violin virtuosi of the last 300 years — Tartini, Paganini, Vieuxtemps, Wieniawski, Sarasate, Ysaye and Kreisler.

These performers/composers, legends in their own time and for generations beyond, helped popularize the violin. Their own compositions, often extremely diffiult, served as a vehicle for displaying their virtuosity.

Tickets, $3, will be available at the box office.

Moon's phase determines Easter

By Raymond E. Bullock
special writer

The phase of the moon in March determined that Easter Sunday would fall on April 3 this year.

Easter Sunday is always the first Sunday after the first full moon that occurs on or after March 21. The March full moon was on the 28th, a Monday, so the following Sunday, April 3, is Easter.

On the Saturday morning before Easter, before sunrise, look for the moon in the southwestern sky. The bright "star" very close to the moon, less than one degree away, is the planet Jupiter. Below the moon is the star Antares, in Scorpius.

Last quarter moon is on April 5.

On the evening of April 8, Mercury is 1.4 degrees north (right) of Mars. Look low on the western horizon after sunset. Mercury will be brighter than Mars, but both objects will be difficult to see in the glare of twilight. Binoculars will help in finding them.

THE BRILLIANT "star" to the upper left of Mercury and Mars is Venus. On the evening of April 12, Venus is 3.5 degrees south (left) of the Pleiades star cluster in Taurus. The reddish star to the upper left of Venus is Aldebaran, the "eye" of Taurus. In 10 days Venus will be seven degrees to the upper right of Aldebaran.

New Moon is on April 13. On the 14th the crescent moon will be six degrees south (left) of Mercury. Look low in the west after sunset. By the 15th, the moon has moved closer to Venus. That planet will be four degrees above the moon. On the 16th the Moon is above Aldebaran.

The moon moves through Taurus and into Gemini over the next few days. On the evening of April 19 the moon is in line with Castor and Pollux, the "heads" of Gemini. Pollux is to the upper right of the moon, Castor is to the upper right of Pollux.

The moon is at first quarter on April 20.

Mercury reaches its maximum eastern elongation from the sun on the 21st. This means that Mercury appears at its greatest angle east (left) of the sun. It will be 20 degrees from the sun, visible about 16 degrees above the west-northwest horizon after sunset. Mercury never gets far from the sun and this elongation has Mercury at its most favorable evening appearance for 1983.

Also on April 21, Saturn is at opposition. It appears in the opposite part of the sky as the sun, so it rises as the sun sets and is visible all night.

Venus is seven degrees north (upper right) of Aldebaran on April 22.

The Lyrid meteor shower reaches maximum on the morning of April 23. The meteors, or "falling stars," appear to radiate from the constellation Lyra, which rises in the northwest after midnight. About 15 meteors per hour can be expected to be visible.

THE MOON forms a triangle with Saturn and the star Spica, in Virgo, on the evening of April 25. Spica is to the lower right of the moon and Saturn is below the moon. Look in the east-southeast after sunset.

The moon is full on April 26, now located to the lower left of Saturn.

On the morning of April 29, the moon is right of Jupiter. On the 30th it has drifted to the left of Jupiter, which is 5.5 degrees above Antares.

The observatory at Cranbrook Institute of Science is open 8:30-10 p.m. every Saturday evening for those who want to have a look at objects in the evening sky. For information, call 645-3200.

The author is coordinator of the planetarium and observatory at Cranbrook Institute of Science.

Esser, Bredius together open in 'Hotel Brel'

"Hotel Brel," a musical revue created by Phil Marcus Esser, will open April 8 at the Book Cadillac Hotel in downtown Detroit.

The show starring Esser and Barbara Bredius will feature a selection of Jacques Brel songs never before heard by American audiences, translated from French to English by Esser.

There will be two shows each Friday-Saturday evening. A dinner show will include dinner at 7 p.m. and show at 8:30. Tickets are $18.50 per person, plus tax and tip. A cabaret show will have seating at 10 p.m. and show at 10:30. Tickets are $5. For reservations, call 961-1403.

Esser first started singing Brel almost 10 years ago, with his long-running production of "Jacques Brel Is Alive and Well and Living in Paris." Since then, he has written and produced more than 10 other musicals, returning to the Brel shown in 1978.

"Hotel Brel" is a new show, but the voices of Bredius and Esser may make it seem like old times, as they take audiences through an emotional experience, just as they did in 1973. That year more than 30,000 people came to see their shows in a basement room at Mercy College in Detroit.

Melikin Puppets perform in show on Peter Rabbit

"Peter Rabbit's Easter Basket Revue" will be performed by Chicago's Melikin Puppet Theatre for Detroit Youtheatre's "Wiggle Club" families at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday in the Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium.

Tickets at $2.50 for children and adults, $1.75 each for groups of 10 or more, may be purchased at the art institute ticket office and at the door. For more information, call 832-2730.

WHAT'S IT WORTH?
A ratings guide to the movies

Bad	$1
Fair	$2
Good	$3
Excellent	$4

"Barabbas" (1962), 1 tonight on Ch. 4. Originally 134 minutes.

Anthony Quinn kicks off Easter week as Barabbas, the criminal Pilate released instead of Christ. The movie follows Barabbas' life after the reprieve and is actually better than might be expected, thanks largely to veteran director Richard Fleischer — better known for such action yarns as "The Vikings" and "Tora! Tora! Tora!" — who keeps the film rolling along. Jack Palance, Ernest Bornine and Arthur Kennedy also star. It was an epic year for Kennedy, who also co-starred in "Lawrence of Arabia" in 1962.

Rating: $2.90.

"Francis of Assisi" (1961), noon Friday on Ch. 9. Originally 111 minutes.

Michael Curtiz ("The Adventures of Robin Hood," "The Sea Hawk") directs "Francis of Assisi," but he brings with him none of the vigor of those earlier films. Granted, St. Francis, the 13th-century priest who founded the Franciscan Order, was hardly a Captain Blood, but this film certainly could use more swash and less swish. Delores Hart and Stuart Whitman co-star.

Rating: $2.

"The Song of Bernadette" (1942), 11:40 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 9. Originally 156 minutes.

Jennifer Jones made a smashing film debut as Bernadette, the peasant girl who experienced a vision of the Virgin Mary near Lourdes, France, in 1858. Jones won a best-actress Oscar for the role, a feat that represents the Motion Picture Academy's faith in Jones, who was 24 when she portrayed the 14-year-old Bernadette. Jones is good, though, as is the film, directed by pioneer filmmaker Henry King and co-starring Charles Bickford, Vincent Price and Lee J. Cobb.

Rating: $3.10.

"Jesus Christ Superstar" (1973), 1 Monday night on Ch. 7. Originally 103 minutes.

This Broadway rock opera is deftly transformed to film by director Norman Jewison, whose pictures always have a certain glow about them. From the innocuous "Forty Pounds of Trouble" to "The Thomas Crown Affair" and "Rollerball," Jewison manages to blend eye-opening cinematography and pulsating action. In "Superstar," the opera that tells the story of Christ in 1960s rock-musical terms, plot, pacing and performances all are perfectly adapted for the big screen. Ted Neeley and Yvonne Elliman star.

Rating: $3.15.

"To Catch a Thief" (1955), 12:30 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 2. Originally 106 minutes.

It's not an Easter film, but it's one of Hitchcock's best, Grant's best and Kelly's best. That's Alfred Hitchcock, Cary Grant and Grace Kelly, of course, the latter of whom met her real-life Prince Charming during production of the film in Monaco. Jessie Royce Landis even holds her own as Grace's mother — not an easy task given the co-star competition.

Rating: $3.25.

In its only Detroit-area concert this year, the 32-voice Pennsylvania Boys' Choir will perform music ranging from classical to popular April 16 at Village United Presbyterian Church.

Boys' Choir to sing in Redford

The Pennsylvania Boys' Choir, whose members range in age from 10-14, will appear in concert at 8 p.m. April 16 at United Presbyterian Church, 25350 W. Six Mile, between Telegraph and Beech-Daly in Redford.

Tickets are $4 for adults, $2 for children younger than 12. Checks should be made payable to ticket chairman Richard Genge and mailed to: Boys' Choir, 17336 Glenmore, Redford 48240. A self-addressed, stamped envelope should be included.

For additional information, call 535-5357.

The concert will consist of three 30-minute segments with two intermissions and will feature sacred, classical, semi-classical and modern music, under the direction of Dr. Bernard Schade.

THE 32-VOICE choir has performed with symphony orchestras and in summer festivals in 37 of the American states, as well as England, Wales, Mexico and Canada.

This summer, the group will tour Korea.

The choir recently sang two performances at Wolf Trap in Washington, D.C., and four performances with the National Symphony Orchestra at Kennedy Center. Its appearance at Village Church will be the choir's only concert in the Detroit area this year.

College presents reading by poet Richard Wilbur

American poet Richard Wilbur will read his poetry at 8 p.m. April 13 in the Waterman Campus Center at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

General admission is $4, and $3 for students.

Richard Wilbur won a Pulitzer Prize and a National Book Award in 1957 and has received numerous other prizes for his poetry and translations.

His books of poetry are "Beautiful Changes," "Ceremony," "Things of This World," "Poems 1943-56," "Advice to a Prophet," "Poems of Richard Wilbur," "Complaint," "Walking to Sleep," "Opposites," "Seed Leaves" and "The Mind Reader — New Poems."

Wilbur also has translated from the French and edited other works. He has published prose and a children's book, "Loudmouse."

AFTER GRADUATING from Amherst College in 1941, the poet enlisted in the Army and served as a noncommissioned officer with the 36th Infantry Division at Anzio and Cassino. Wilbur later earned his master of arts degree at Harvard and became a member of its English faculty for seven years. Subsequently, he taught at Wellesley College, Wesleyan and Smith.

Schoolcraft will be one of only five appearances Wilbur has accepted this year. The college is on Haggerty between Six and Seven Mile, just west of I-275. For further information, call the Office of Cultural and Public Affairs at 591-6400, Ext. 218.

It's high time you stopped 'eating chalk'

WELL, ANOTHER baseball season is almost upon us, and the voice of the Homer is heard throughout the land.

Be it known that, when I speak of Homer, I'm not talking about Henry Aldrich's best friend, the wide spot north of U.S. 12 on the way to Coldwater or that famous Greek.

No, the Homers I'm hearing and reading these days are telling me how great the Detroit Tigers are going to be this season. Homers are sports writers and broadcasters who swoon and moon over the local teams no matter what the quality of play.

Get the picture? If not, just open the sports section of your Detroit daily newspaper, or tune in to a local TV or radio sportscast. I think you'll find the town's just lousy with Homers. Even if they're not actually promising Tiger or Lion or Piston or Red Wing greatness, they're hinting at it by their kind coverage.

Homers invariably

. . . root, root, root for the hooooome team,
If they don't win, it's a shame. . . .

Actually, they don't win much, and there is indeed a lot of shame connected with professional sports in Detroit.

SO, WHAT GOT me going on the quality of Detroit sports and its coverage by the big media shooters? Well, I was sorting out some newspapers for later use by my cairn terrier puppy the other day (Woofer just loves doing business with the sport pages of one of America's largest afternoon dailies), and this headline caught my eye.

"It's true: Tigers will win East!" the headline screamed.

By God, now you've gone too far, I muttered.

Here is Homerism to the nth degree. It absolutely approaches infinity. This columnist, who is old enough to know better, has predicted that the Detroit Tigers will win the American League East.

He says so in so many words: "The Tigers will win the American League East in 1983."

Now, if you'll remember, the Tigers finished far out of it last season. And, since the management seems to be dead set against spending the big bucks to purchase quality players, our stand-pat Tigers can be expected to finish far from respectability again this season.

The writer mentions five players — Jack Morris, Dan Petry, Kirk Gibson, Alan Trammell and Chet Lemon — who are "capable of having big years." I maintain that, if past performances are any indication, Jack, Dan, Kirk, Alan and Chet couldn't lead Detroit to the championship of the American Association.

SO, WHY THE media hype beyond all reason? I mean, how many fans read that column and believed it. And how many will pay to enter Tiger Stadium because of it?

Now I know why the Tigers draw more than a million fans every year to a crumbling ball park in a dangerous neighborhood to pay top prices to see an out-of-it team.

It's simple: the Tigers have some big media shooters doing PR for them.

Had enough baseball? Let's talk hockey. Let's talk Red Wings

. . . my Reeeeed Wings,
c'mon Wings, let's DIE!
c'mon, c'mon, c'mon, let's DIE!

And die they did. By losing 4-0 to Chicago last Sunday, the Wings officially took their trip to the tank, missing the playoffs for the 12th time in the last 13 seasons and thus strengthening Detroit's hold on the Sports Gag Town title.

And the hockey playoff system is deliberately set up to allow awful teams like the Red Wings to make it. I mean Cranbrook or Catholic Central probably would make the playoffs if they were members of the Norris Division of the Campbell Conference.

Why am I bringing up the Wings' sorry story? It's just that, several years ago, during another losing Red Wing season, a newspaper columnist positively piddled after the Wings had won several games in a row. "Hey, 1954 (a Stanley Cup year for the Wings) was never like this," I remember him writing.

That was just Homerism.

But now, if Channel 2's Stu will provide the appropriate hand gestures, I'll write the fitting words, the only words Detroit's sports teams will ever really need.

Red Wings . . . OUT!
Pistons . . . OUT!
Tigers . . . OUT!
Lions . . . OUT!
Panthers . . . OUT!

He scores!

Offensive-minded All-Area team

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Looking for a high school hockey team that has speed, strength, puck-handling ability and raw talent?

Five area coaches gathered recently and came up with a squad that would be pretty hard to beat.

They selected two goaltenders, four defensmen and 10 forwards.

Redford Catholic Central, a state Class A finalist, leads the way with five All-Area members. Livonia Franklin follows with four. Both Bentley and Stevenson claim three each, and Churchill is represented by one player on this year's dream team.

Here is this year's All-Area team:

John Bebes, Redford Catholic Central, goal. The 6-foot-2, 170-pound senior made his only year of high school hockey a memorable one as he allowed only 1.76 goals per game. He also posted six shutouts.

"A team needs good goaltending to win games," said CC coach John Gumbleton. "John was steady and he worked hard. He was always agreeable and pleasant."

Mike Vasilco, Livonia Franklin, goal. The senior had a lot of pucks come his way as he made 474 saves (87.6 percent average) during the year.

"Mike is very quick and agile," said Franklin coach Terry Jobbitt. "Mike was a great asset to the Patriots, won games and kept us in many others.

"He will be missed next year."

Eric Socia, Redford Catholic Central, defense. The 5-10, 170-pound junior played a variety of roles on the Shamrocks.

He was the team captain, killed penalties and was on the ice regularly for the power play.

"He was the backbone of our defense," said Gumbleton. "Eric works hard, doesn't complain and gets the job done with a minimum of mistakes."

Socia scored five goals and added seven assists this season.

Dave Cox, Livonia Stevenson, defense. Cox helped Stevenson to a second place finish in the Suburban Prep Hockey League (SPHL) by picking up the scoring slack at the blue line.

Cox scored 27 goals and added 14 assists for the season.

The three-year letterman always performed well in the big games. He had a hat trick in a season-ending tournament loss to Trenton.

"He led by example," said Stevenson coach Jerry Kestner.

Scott Boos, Livonia Bentley, defense. The team MVP and captain was the mainstay for Bentley's defense.

The All-SPHL pick scored five goals and added 20 points in his final year.

His coach, Gord Anderson, believes he can make the transition to the collegiate ranks.

John Chmielewski, Livonia Franklin, defense. The 6-3, 190-pound senior finished third for the Patriots in scoring with 15 goals and 19 assists. He took a regular shift on power plays. He was 13th in league scoring.

"He's a real leader on and off the ice," said Jobbitt. "John was always giving the team 200 percent, often playing in 75 percent or more of the games. John will be hard to replace."

Scott Summers, Redford Catholic Central, forward. The 5-9, 135-pound senior "showed great courage and competitiveness," according to his coach.

Summers, a two-year starter, scored 12 goals and added 13 assists for 25 points. He also took a regular turn on the power play and killed penalties.

"Scott showed his willingness to be a strong, quiet leader," Gumbleton added. "He showed great intensity and had very good hockey skills."

Dave Morse, Redford Catholic Central, forward. The 5-5, 140-pound junior scored 14 goals and added 13 assists despite his lack of size.

Described as a "sparkplug and catalyst," Morse killed penalties and was always out on the power play.

He was particularly effective in state tourney play, scoring six goals and adding four assists.

"Dave is a hard worker," said Gumbleton. "He pays the price and never quits."

Joe Hamway, Redford Catholic Central, forward. The 6-0, 180-pound junior was called a "total team player who played with energy and enthusiasm," by coach Gumbleton.

The CC alternate captain scored 10 goals and added 13 assists.

"Joe never quit working," said Gumbleton. "He was 100 percent cooperative and never complained."

Hamway's brother, Mark, is a top-notch scorer at Michigan State.

E.J. Perrault, Livonia Stevenson, forward. Perrault, a 6-3, 185-pound senior left winger, has been Stevenson's main offensive weapon up front for the past two years.

He is big, strong and can put the puck in the net as evidenced by his 31 goals and 25 assists, tops in the area and the SPHL.

"E.J. was a very productive player," said Kestner. "He had only 16 penalty minutes this year."

Erik Strom, Livonia Stevenson, forward. The senior standout played in the shadow of Cox and Perrault, but still managed to scored 11 goals and add 15 assists, fourth best on the team.

Strom took just three minor penalties all season and was a "solid player for us and worked our power play," said Kestner.

The three-year letterman played center for the Spartans.

Paul Marderosian, Livonia Bentley, forward. The Bulldog standout played 21 games and led the team in scoring.

He had 15 goals and 17 assists.

A hard worker, the versatile foward picked up 40 minutes in penalties during the 1982-83 season.

Dave Moore, Livonia Bentley, forward. The All-SPHL forward was one of Bentley's top offensive threats.

The senior center led the team in assists with 20 and added 10 goals during the year.

He was penalized just 18 minutes.

Ed Zajdel, Livonia Franklin, forward. A junior, Zajdel led the Patriots in scoring with 20 goals and 21 assists to finish eighth in the SPHL point race. He paced the league in short-handed and power play goals.

Zajdel, a two-year letter winner, notched two hat tricks during the season and tallied five points in one game.

The right winger should be "the pride of the Patriots in '83," according to his coach.

Scott Williams, Livonia Franklin, forward. The senior captain was the first student in Livonia Public School history to earn four varsity hockey letters.

Williams was second on the team in scoring with 16 goals and 19 assists. He was 13th in league scoring.

Besides playing center, Williams killed penalties and served on the power play.

"Scott was a great team player," said Jobbitt.

John Bartle, Livonia Churchill, forward. A senior captain, the 6-1, 190-pound center was the "main hub of Churchill's wheel," according to coach Rudy Vavari.

"He was a great leader on and off the ice," Vavari added.

Bartle scored 23 points on 12 goals and 11 assists. He also served on the power play and killed penalties.

Northwest Suburban thinclads chasing Raiders

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The Northwest Suburban League (NSL) boys' track season is shaping as a wide-open affair.

Most coaches agree that defending champ North Farmington has a well-rounded unit and rates as a pre-season favorite. They caution, however, there could be some surprises in store for the Raiders.

Here is a rundown of the five area schools:

REDFORD UNION

The Panthers, coached by Bob Ouellette, appear to be strong in two areas — distance and field events.

"We have some decent distance runners who are seniors and sophomores," Ouellette said, "but we're weak in the sprints. We have no sprint depth.

"We have quality in field and distance. It's been the same the last three years."

Senior pole vaulter Bob Johnson already is off to a roaring start. He captured the Huron Relays title last weekend at Eastern Michigan with a leap of 14 feet, topping his best of 13-8 last year.

"He will be a true 15-foot vaulter if he pays attention to what he's doing," Ouellette said.

RU's cross country team was strong and that will carry over this spring as veterans Craig Sickmiller, Keith Schwanz, John McElwee, Jeff Larrabee, Mark St. Aubin and sophomore David Adkins are expected to make big contributions.

High jumper Brian Gustafson, a junior, also returns. He cleared 6-1 last weekend, placing seventh in the Huron event.

GARDEN CITY

Coach Clayton Kelley welcomed 45 candidates, and the prospects look good.

"We'll be contenders — I think," Kelley said. "We should be better because we have more depth — something we haven't had before."

The Cougars are strong in the sprint events with the return of Pat Mulcahy, Phil Kamm and Chris Biegalski. Senior Bob Burlingame, running track for the first time, also will help, Kelley said.

Steve Gerrard amd Dave Homann, meanwhile, lead the distance runners.

"We're thin in the field events except pole vault, where we have Bob Nutt and Jon Lamarsh back," Kelley said. "We lost all of our high jumpers and long jumpers."

LIVONIA FRANKLIN

"We have a large team, but we have a lot of spots to fill," said coach Bob Holmes, now in his 15th season. "We'll be kind of green. We'll need to fill in the gaps to be competitive."

The Patriots last won the league in 1978. This could be their year.

Franklin should be competitive in the sprints. The Patriots' league champion 400 relay squad remains intact. Tom Lucas, Frank Dudek, Scott McNabb and John Sewruk reeled off a best clocking of 44.9 last season. They are joined by Randy Hurst, who also should figure into the sprint relay events.

Joe Karcher and Dennis Berke, meanwhile, return in the hurdles with Matt Kean picking up the slack in the 400.

Sasho Filipovski is the top returnee in the shot put and discus and Gerry McDougall has some experience at long distances (mile and two mile).

"I'm expecting that North will be the team to beat," Holmes said. "They're the defending champs, and John Glenn will be in there, too.

"RU will dominate in the distances."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Ernie Righetti becomes the Rockets' fourth coach in four years, taking over for Rance Teeple.

Righetti, the athletic director at Roeper School in Bloomfield Hills, coached previously at Wayne Memorial (eight years) and Wayne State (two years).

"We're hurting in the middle distances, field events and relays," said Righetti, who is working with 27 candidates. "I don't know if we have the depth to be a factor.

"We'll be competitive, and we've worked hard. I'm optimistic, but our lack of depth will hurt."

Glenn is strong in the long distances with the return of All-Area cross country performers Jay Hunt, a sophomore, and Tom Gibson, a senior.

Meanwhile, Frank Meffert and Todd Stockwell are ready to take over in the 800 with Tony Wilson, Frank Shelly and Tom Evanoff hoping to shore up the 400 dash.

Jeff Meixner, a sophomore, appears to be Glenn's strength in the hurdles, and senior Brian Dye is the team's top sprinter.

The only returning field event performers are Ron Fellows (pole vault) and John Schlichter (discus).

REDFORD THURSTON

Coach Glenn Davis, now in his fourth season, is plagued by a low turnout.

"We started with 30 kids, and we have less than 15 now," Davis said. "We lost several good sprinters. We're hurting all over. It puts us in a bad position in our league."

Thurston may be hard-pressed to win a dual meet. The Eagles won just one last year (against Dearborn Heights Annapolis).

Davis does have seniors John Enright (long jump and 400) and Steve Munson (sprints and hurdles) to work with.

"We'll have trouble in the 800 and above," Davis said. "Our kids have no experience.

"We don't have any experience either in the shot put or discus."

Davis, however, does expect good things this season from pole vaulters David Thomas, a junior, and Ray Johnson, a sophomore.

Brian Grassel returns for Westland John Glenn in the high jump and sprint events. The Rockets hope to contend for the Northwest Suburban League boys' track crown under first-year coach Ernie Righetti.

Churchill girls rout GC in soccer opener

Livonia Churchill, expected to make a run at this year's Class A girls' soccer crown, opened its 1983 season impressively Tuesday with an 8-0 triumph against Garden City in a non-league match played at Garfield School in Livonia.

The Chargers scored four goals in each half against the Cougars, who made their varsity soccer debut.

Terry Groap led the winners with three goals and Amy Brow chipped in with two. Dorene Dudek, Jessie Miller and Dorothy Brown added solo goals.

Churchill, coached by Ed Dudek, returns several veterans from last year's 16-2-1 squad.

Price seeks new success, Chargers take aim at title

By Brad Emons
staff writer

track

It's a brand new boys' track season for three Livonia schools with the scenario changing slightly.

Churchill, Stevenson and Bentley will be a part of the new 10-team, two-division Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA).

"It's going to be different because more teams will be coming at you," said Churchill coach Fred Price, whose team dominated the old Western Six League for years.

Churchill is again the front-runner in the Western Division of the WLAA, but taking another league title is not a sure lock with Stevenson and Plymouth Salem challenging from the Lakes Division.

All 10 teams will compete in the WLAA meet June 1 at Farmington.

Here is a preview of the three Livonia teams:

LIVONIA CHURCHILL

"In our case — to be honest — we have good depth," said Price, "but nobody stands out. It makes for an interesting season.

"We could be stronger than we've been in the last couple of years. That's why I'm looking forward to this season."

The Chargers competed in Saturday's Huron Relays at Eastern Michigan and Price was encouraged by his team's showing.

"It's hard to say where we're at, but I was pretty pleased overall," he said. "The good weather (earlier this month) has helped us, I feel."

Steve O'Hara, who cleared 6-feet-4-inches last year in the high jump, returns to the Churchill lineup. He was sixth at the EMU meet.

Churchill's shuttle hurdle relay team of Keith Opalach, Matt Blais and O'Hara took seventh place last weekend and should be a force this season.

The Chargers appear to be strong with the return of distance runners Don Miller, Al Clemens; Brian Boston, Paul Swartz and Doug Plachta.

The middle distances are well fortified with the return of veterans Larry Blais (under two minutes in the 800 meters), Paul DeFlorio and Bob Thomas. Erik Hansen, an All-State soccer player from Denmark, has also been impressive in early workouts.

Bill Crawford, meanwhile, is the top sprinter.

In the discus and shot put, Churchill will rely on the experience of Tim Luch, Mark Juodawlkis, Vic Leon and sophomore Dave Mize.

Pole vault is Price's biggest concern as the top man, Brian Luallen, graduated. That leaves Stu Jones, John Lock, Tony Brosky and Mike Shinozaki to fill the void.

LIVONIA STEVENSON

The Spartans and new coach Vic DeFlorio have some top individuals to work around.

Stevenson scored 11 points at the Huron Relays, mainly because of a fourth place finish by junior Ken Dubois in the 1,600-meter run.

The All-Observer standout ran 4:25.7 in his first outing and then teamed up with veterans Karl Hill, Mike Milligan and Dennis Bagley to gain fourth in the distance medley relay with a clocking of 10:53.2.

"Karl and Mike will run all over for us," DeFlorio said. "They're our co-captains and our strength along with Ken."

Dubois, Bagley, Steve Beyer, Dave MacIntyre and Eric Pence form the nucleus of a respectable distance crew.

The field events are a question mark, but Matt Jurczyszyn looks good in the pole vault. Steve Potok and Chuck Moretfield (transfer from Romulus), meanwhile, anchor the high jump.

"It's early to say anything about the field events," said DeFlorio. "We'll be young in the shot put and discus."

Potok and Moretfield join Tim England and Steve Sitler in the hurdles events. They also could be a factor in the sprint events along with Tim Potoniec and Mark Mueting.

"We haven't got any of our relays down," said the new coach, who replaced Tom Bills. "We're emphasizing diversity. We'll have these people compete in a number of different events."

LIVONIA BENTLEY

First-year coaches Milan Emanuele and Don Smith were greeted by 60 candidates, an encouraging number.

"We had a decent turnout," said Emanuele. "I'm in the (Bentley) building this year so I've done some recruiting."

Bentley's top returnee is senior pole vaulter Ken Matthews, who should clear the school record of 13-5, according to Emanuele.

The Bulldogs have experience in some of the field events — Scott Boos (discus), J.J. Chendes (shot put) and Steve Gregor (pole vault).

Emanuele, however, is concerned about scoring points in the long jump and high jump.

"We need quite a bit of work in those areas," he said.

Other top returnees include Keith Percin (sprints), Monty Horn (hurdles) and Kevin Sari (distance). Freshman Todd Walker could also be a factor in the distance events.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

The word has been relayed that Livonia Churchill should be a strong contender in the Western Lakes Activities Association (WLAA). Coach Fred Price turned out numerous Western Six League champions.

Special Olympians nail down cage spot

A girls' basketball team from Livonia will represent Michigan this summer in a special national tournament.

That's because the team proved itself last weekend in a special state tournament.

Last Friday and Saturday, the squad played to a Michigan Special Olympics basketball championship in Grand Rapids. In July the team will travel to Baton Rouge, La. to shoot for the national title.

Team members range in age from 11 to 22. They're sponsored by the Livonia Jaycees, and are coached by Paula Lepping.

The team includes Karen Ajlouny, Molly Forkin, Liz Scarr, Anne Munn, Debbie Bennett, Lori Henry, Holly Babka, Judy Brashares and Beth Covington.

IN GRAND RAPIDS the girls cruised to a Special Olympics gold medal with 28-22 and 36-18 wins. Meanwhile, the boys' team easily won their first contest, 30-4, but lost a close championship game, 18-14.

Another Livonia competitor, James Yaworsky, placed third in the Run, Dribble and Shoot competition.

The Livonia girls were among 15 winning teams at Grand Rapids. At the closing ceremony on Saturday, the team was chosen to represent the state at the International Summer Games July 11-18 in Baton Rouge.

Ex-Glenn AD gains football honor

By Dan Bodene
staff writer

Don Domke used to leave early from his teaching duties at Wayne High School during the football season. As coach, it was his job to start fires.

His players thanked him for it; they knew it was the only way to get a hot shower after practice.

Domke has come a long way from making sure his players had hot water. The Michigan High School Football Coach's Association knows it, too. On April 9 the association is inducting Domke into its Hall of Fame.

The recognition follows a coaching career dating from the 1940s, spanning leadership of football teams from the Phillipines to Westland John Glenn.

A native of Detroit, Domke graduated from Denby High. He attended the University of Detroit for a year and played on the football team. He also coached the Denby Tars for 2 seasons, but World War II interrupted that budding career.

AFTER HE was drafted, Domke was assigned to duty in the Phillipines. He said his most successful coaching record was established there, when he led the U.S. Army 86th "Blackhawk" Division team to a 10-0 season in 1946.

"It was like 'MASH,'" Domke said. "The commanding general asked me what I needed to put together a team. 'You WILL beat the Air Force,' he told me. I told him what I needed, and he got me 17 All American or honorable mention football players. It was the easiest coaching job I ever had."

After mustering out, Domke enrolled at the University of Michigan (U-M) on the GI Bill. "I figured as long as I had the money, I should go to the best educational facility possible," Domke said.

DOMKE PLAYED fullback and quarterback for U-M, so there's an added meaning to the upcoming Hall of Fame ceremony at Crisler Arena. "With Bo Schembechler as master of ceremonies, it makes me that much more happy about the whole thing," Domke said.

After graduating from U-M in 1951, Domke went to work at the old Wayne High School building on Michigan Avenue. Coaching specialization was rare then. Domke supervised football, basketball and baseball for grades 4 through 12.

Teaching and coaching in those days also meant a few unusual duties. Stoking the hot water fire was one. Patrolling Michigan Avenue after school hours was another.

Shortly after Domke began his teaching career, the "new" Wayne High opened and stoking and patrolling became a thing of the past. Domke's talents at coaching became all the more evident.

DURING HIS association with the school, the track team compiled a 97-13 record. The baseball team was state runner-up twice. Although Wayne High's football team record wasn't tremendously outstanding, Domke said his players certainly were.

"It was unbelievable how good those kids were," Domke said. "The team's successes were because of the caliber of the kids. So many are working and coaching in the Wayne-Westland district now."

One that Domke particulary remembers is Bill Hawley, now Wayne High's athletic director.

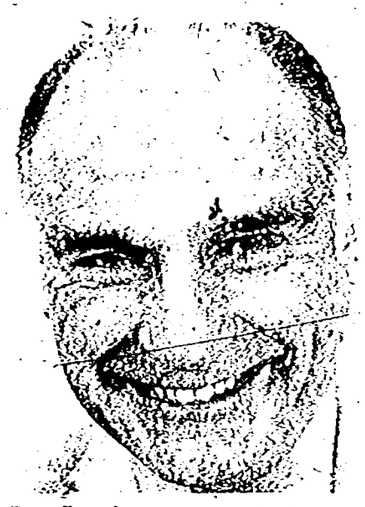
"Bill was my quarterback in a game we played against Monroe," Domke remembers. "After a penalty was called he asked for a time out. He talked to the official and actually got him to change his mind!"

WHEN JOHN GLENN High School opened in 1964, Domke took a job there as athletic director and assistant football coach. It was during the years at John Glenn that Domke said he accomplished the most.

Building the fledgling Glenn teams in the old Northwest Suburban Activity Association, Domke enjoyed an astounding level of success. A trophy for best overall sports program in the association sat in the John Glenn display case for eight of the nine years it was awarded. Last year, Domke was rewarded by being named Michigan Athletic Director of the year.

Domke and his wife still live in the house at John Hix and Cherry Hill they bought 30 years ago. Domke is quick to point out the home is three and a half minutes by car or a seven minute jog from John Glenn High. "I jog slow," he admits.

RETIREMENT holds only one drawback: "My wife ('Mac') is a golf widow," Domke said. Until the recent winter weather, Domke had been enjoying life on the links with 3 golf partners, all former educators and all named Don. There's also been time for traveling.



Don Domke
Hall of Famer

"I've been having a ball since I retired," Domke said. "I don't know when I ever had time for work, there's so much to do."

Doesn't that sound like a Hall of Fame coach?

Behn enjoys Bonanza times in city tourney

in the pocket
by W.W. Edgar

Penny Behn and her Bonanza team mates moved in to top place in the four regular divisions of the women's city tournament over the past weekend at Yorba Linda Lanes and staked out a strong claim to a sweep of the titles.

Several weeks ago the team look over first place with a 2802 count. Then over the weekend Leona Obuchowski moved to the top in the singles with 669, Behn shared the doubles with Gerry Ritter at 1249 and Obuchowski took over the all events lead with 1916. Her best showing came in the singles where she linked games of 212, 189 and 268 for 669.

There are only a few more teams left to bowl in the regular division so the Bonanza group is favored to sweep all the maybe titles.

WHEN THE delegates to the American Bowling Congress annual convention voted to increase the weight of the pins recently it was a move intended to help battle the high scoring that threatened to make a mockery of the game.

The delegates approved four ounces of additional weight to make the minimum three pounds, six ounces. This should curb all scoring, especially in the women's ranks.

SCORING IN the all-star classics took a dip during the past week and only four new members were admitted to the 700 Club.

Two of them were inducted at Bel-Aire Lanes when Steve Miller had a 279 in 760 to pace the classic and Dennis Unuatowski was right behind with a 258 in 724.

The others to gain admission were Bob Kleinbrookwith 707 at Garden Lanes and Keith Swafford with a 270 in 756 at Westland Bowl.

WOODLAND LANES: Tim Pobur, a 12-year-old went to the top of the junior honor roll with a 581 series that included a 209 opener. Chris Mood had high series among the men with a 602.

Westland Bowl in the Thursday men's league Jim Jimmerson was top man with a 277 in 682. His nearest rival was Sam Griffith with 288 in 653.

GARDEN LANES: Marion Sanders showed the way in the women's classic with 641, Don Rossler paced the Wayne County Road Commission loop with 649.

MERRI-BOWL: Joe Dallucarea closed with a 268 game for 641 series to lead the men's league. Meanwhile Ron Rogowicz had a 277 closing game in 597 in the Garden loop.

Our '82-3 winter was like Seattle's

By Lem Mesce
outdoors writer

We had a Seattle-type winter.

Altogether, southeastern Michigan had little more than a foot of snow in the winter of 1982-83, half of it after March 21. We had the usual amount of precipitation, but it came as rain rather than as snow.

Here are typical precipitation (total rain and snow) and snowfalls for several towns you may know:

- Detroit — 31 inches of precipitation, 31.7 of snow. (It takes about 10 inches of snow to equal the precipitation in an inch of rain.)
- Grand Rapids — on our latitude but on the west side of the state, the Furniture City averages 31.2 inches of precipitation but a whopping 80 inches of snow.
- Marquette — on the coast of Lake Superior, this port gets less precipitation than we do, 28.3 inches. But it records 105 inches of snowfall in an average winter.
- Seattle — the principal city of Washington records somewhat more total precipitation, 38.9 inches, but only 15.7 inches of snow, which is close to what we had this past season.

I had lunch recently with a former Seattle resident who described the winter this way: "The rain doesn't just pour down. It's a heavy mist, and it takes all day to drop what you in metro Detroit get in a few hours. We rarely wore our coats in the 'rain.'

"But it's grey and depressing. In Seattle for several months, you'll see the sun one day a month. Lotta suicides in Seattle."

EIGHT AREA dogs won best of breed ribbons and points at the recent Detroit Kennel Club show in Cobo Hall.

Dogs owned by Mrs. John E. Satter of Bloomfield Hills won BOB in both the long-haired and smooth dachshund categories.

Other BOBs and their owners:

Whippet — Roberta R. Russ and Kathy Lieblich of West Bloomfield.

Bull mastiff — Barbara Brant of Livonia.

Bedlington terrier — Carl J. Ushinsky of Southfield.

Bulldog — Julie A. Garcia of Southfield.

Shih tzu — Dollias J. Mussleman of Canton Township.

Irish water spaniel — Joan Hanawalt of Westland.

Best in show was a Norwich terrier owned by David Powers and Ed Flesch of Fylmar, Calif. Only group winner from southeast Michigan was a St. Bernard (working group) owned by Charles A. Rickman of Utica.

TAX TIME TIPS
A few reminders on Deductions that will benefit you. The Experts listed herein can answer your questions and be of great help to you in preparation of your taxes. Call now for an appointment. They are experienced in Corporate taxes, large and small businesses, individual taxes, accounting services, consultations, data processing, etc.
ALIMONY. Spouse who pays it deducts it.
ALL-SAVER INTEREST. All 1982 tax forms include a special place for deducting All-Saver interest from interest on which you pay taxes.
AUTOMOBILE SALES TAX. If you bought a new or used car in 1982, deduct the sales tax listed on your bill of sale. Take this deduction in addition to the general sales tax you deduct in accordance with tables supplied by the IRS for your state and income level.
BOATS. Sales tax on this is usually deductible also in addition to general sales tax. See discussion of automobile sales tax above.
DRIVING EXPENSES. Deduct 20 cents a mile if driving to see your banker or stockbroker, also in driving done in connection with job hunting, or if you have 2 jobs and drive from one to another. You can also deduct 09 cents a mile for driving done in connection with charitable work, such as Boy Scouts or Red Cross, or for driving for medical treatment.
FURNACE UPGRADING. Some expenses, such as flue opening modification, qualify for Residential Energy Credit on line 47, Form 1040.
REMEMBER: You must have receipts and proof of all deductions if you take advantage of any of these items.
Watch TAX-TIME next week for more hints.
