Judge drops weapon, assault charges

Charges against a Belleville man accused in the Feb. 8 freeway shooting of a co-worker from Westland were dismissed Wednesday by 14th District Court Judge Thomas Shea.

The judge dismissed one count of assault with intent to commit murder and one count of possession of a firearm in the commission of a felony against Steven Smith, 21, after the complaining witness, Kenneth Locke of Westland, failed to appear at a preliminary exam.

Because the complainant failed to appear, the prosecution was unable to proceed with its case, Shea ruled.

Prosecuting attorney Lynwood Noah said Thursday he "didn't know" why Locke failed to appear. Attempts to reach Locke were unsuccessful.

Smith was arrested Feb. 9 by State Police.

Police said Locke, 29, was shot in the shoulder as he drove on the east-bound M-14 freeway in Superior Township.

Smith and Locke were co-workers at Johnson Controls Inc. in Whitmore Lake. A company spokeswoman Thursday said Locke was no longer an employee.

The victim drove to the Westland police station after the incident and told officers he thought he had been shot while on his way home from work. Locke was taken by a Westland EMS crew to Westland Medical Center, where he was treated and released for a minor shoulder wound.

Three bullet holes were found in Locke's car, a 1989 Pontiac, by state troopers.

Rick Hamrick, one of four defendants, is accompanied by his wife, Sally, at the opening of the preliminary examination.

Statute of limitations enters case for defense

Attorneys for three defendants involved in the Wayne-Westland school district's enrollment fraud dispute will argue two key motions April 6 that could decide the case.

Judge Gail McKnight, of the 18th District Court, ordered defense attorneys and the prosecuting attorney to file briefs by March 28 so they can argue two key questions at the motions hearing scheduled for 8:30 a.m.

If the preliminary exam which began March 9 continues after the motions hearing, testimony will be Friday, April 14, Monday, April 17, and Tuesday, April 18.

The key motions to be filed by defense attorneys Richard Clark and Marvin Blake and argued by Robert Sheiko, assistant prosecutor, involve a six-year statute of limitations and whether the defendants were formally charged under the right state law.

The issue surfaced during testimony Friday.

Blake and Clark claim that the statute of limitations prohibits evidence or testimony before Nov. 3, 1982, or six years before the four defendants were formally indicted by the Wayne County grand jury.

EXAM TESTIMONY has included information and records dated in October 1982.

Sheiko argued last Friday that the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled in a federal case that a "statute of limitations ends when the conspira-

Confronted while altering adult education attendance records, a Wayne-Westland Community Schools administrator allegedly said it was "no big deal" and that other school districts made similar changes, a former district employee testified Monday.

Juanita Barton Wilson, who worked for the district from 1969 to 1988, said that she confronted then adult/community education program director Holbert (Rick) Hamrick and three or four other unidentified people about the allegedly fraudulent changes in a conference room at the Ford Vocational/Technical Center one morning in October 1982.

"Mr. Hamrick and these individuals were writing excused absences for people in the night (adult education) program," Wilson testified. "I said (to Hamrick) this was wrong . . . you should not do these things for people."

"Then he said, 'This is done by everybody else. It's no big deal.'" a preliminary examination for three district employees and one former employee charged with falsifying enrollment records so the district could get more state aid.

The exam was adjourned late Tuesday morning and will resume with a hearing on several key legal motions at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, April 6. (See related story.)

Judge Gail McKnight, who is presiding over the exam, is expected to rule then on whether some testimony and/or evidence will be disqualified based on claims by defense attorneys that it falls outside a six-year statute of limitations on the charges and whether the defendants have been properly charged.

Charged in addition to Hamrick, who is currently an assistant principal at the Ford center, are Kathleen (Kay) Lyons, director of special projects and executive director at the Tinkham Center; Barbara Blanton, part-time adult and community education teacher; and Phyllis (Rode) Roderick, a former adult education supervisor.

Statement puts teen at pizzeria fire

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

Domilac's pizzeria blew up in a 17-year-old delivery boy's face just after he doused the floor with gasoline, according to court testimony Monday.

The teen, Robert Salwa of Detroit, was bound over for trial in Wayne County Circuit Court by 18th District Judge Gail McKnight on one count of arson of a business.

Salwa has pleaded not guilty to the charge. The charge is a felony with a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison.

Salwa is free on a $10,000 personal recognizance bond.

He will be arraigned in circuit court 8:30 a.m. Monday, March 27.

Pizzeria owner Anthony Nerkowski is also charged in the incident.

Salwa was hospitalized with second-degree burns following the Feb. 18 incident, which destroyed the pizzeria and four adjacent businesses on the 28900 block of Warren Road.

SALWA, wearing gauze bandages on his wrists and ointment on his face during Monday's district court preliminary examination, detailed his role in a statement given to Westland police the day after the explosion and fire.

McKnight admitted the statement into court records, despite what she said were possibly valid objections by defense attorney Keith Moore. McKnight said the statement could be challenged and removed from the record "down the line (when the case moves to circuit court)."

According to the statement, Salwa told police he went to the pizzeria with his employer and parked across the street shortly after 1 a.m. Nerkowski told him to take a 5-gallon can of gasoline from behind the building and spread it around on the pizzeria floor, Salwa said.

Salwa told police a third, unidentified person was supposed to come by later to light the fire.

"It (the building) blew up before I could get out," Salwa told police.

A witness Monday testified he saw Salwa across the street from the pizzeria immediately after the explosion.

DONALD ALLEN, a Garden City resident, told the court he was parked in a self-service car wash at 1:15 a.m. when he saw a green Mercury Monarch pull into the next service bay.

"As (the car) was pulling in I heard what sounded like a crash or explosion," Allen said. "About 30 seconds later I heard somebody running from the direction of the (former) Leather Bottle (now the Eagle's Nest restaurant) and saw a guy get into the (car) on the passenger side."

Allen told the court he looked over and saw "the pizza place in flames after the car took off."

He identified the man he saw running to the car as the defendant.

Another witness, a fellow employee, identified the car as one that belonged to Salwa.

Michael Sobleski also said he and Nerkowski cleaned up the pizzeria and closed it about 11:30 p.m. Sobleski said the store's floor was "uncluttered and he didn't see any kind of container inside the store."

Police and fire officials testified that they found the remains of numerous cardboard pizza cartons spread across the floor of the pizzeria and traces of an accelerant used to start the fire.

"We found traces of a flammable liquid and 80 percent of the floor had these types (caused by gasoline) of burns," said Westland Fire Marshal Robert Perry.

Stepbrother charged with 2 slayings

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

A Westland man was arraigned Monday for the weekend murders of his stepbrother and a Garden City woman.

Gary Joseph Galindo, 44, was arraigned on two counts of first-degree murder and one count of possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony.

Galindo stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered for him by 18th District Judge Thomas Smith.

Smith remanded Galindo to the Wayne County Jail without bond. A preliminary examination was set for 9 a.m. Monday in 18th District Court.

If convicted on either murder charge, Galindo faces a maximum sentence of life in prison.

Galindo is charged with shooting Arthur Andrew Novack, 45, and Sharon June Sahaydak, 44, to death in a house on the 37100 block of Norene late Friday or early Saturday.

The house was shared by Galindo and Novack, police said.

Police said the three were acquaintances, but couldn't confirm published reports of a romantic relationship involving either Novack and Sahaydak or Sahaydak and Galindo.

PRELIMINARY POLICE reports indicated that victims each died from one shot to the chest with a .22-caliber rifle. A report from the Wayne County medical examiner was incomplete Monday.

Galindo was arrested Saturday morning by St. Clair County Sheriff's deputies in Port Huron after they spotted him near a 1988 Ford Taurus matching the description of one sought by Westland police.

The car belonged to Novack, police said.

Westland police Detective Sgt. Jerry Wright said Monday that police had recovered a small-caliber rifle which they believe was the murder weapon. The rifle, along with the car's stereo, was apparently stolen and later recovered from Novack's car while it was in Port Huron, Wright said.

Detective Sgt. Robert Barthold told the court Monday that police were tipped off about the case by an acquaintance of Galindo. He said Galindo called the woman and told her to call the police and tell them about the killings.

Galindo told the woman "it's done" and that he would leave Detroit and wouldn't be found by police, Barthold testified.

 sify school records and one count of willfully falsifying school records. All have pleaded not guilty to the charges.

Each charge is a high misdemeanor, punishable by up to two years in prison and/or a fine of up to $2,500. In addition, the trial judge could impose an additional fine of up to $10,000 on any of the four upon conviction.

A defendant, if convicted, could also lose his teacher certification for a minimum of five years.

Wilson said she was a special-needs counselor for handicapped and English as a Second Language students that fall. Now retired and living in Perry, N.C., Wilson testified Monday that two secretaries, Sarah Wronlasky and Charlene O'Neill, were present in the outer office during the confrontation. O'Neill is the wife of Wayne-Westland Superintendent Dennis O'Neill.

In other testimony Monday, a Wayne County school administrator gave further examples of enrollment and attendance documents that appeared to be altered illegally.

BEVERLY NULER, manager of the Wayne County Intermediate School District's compliance and reporting unit, was recalled to the stand to testify about discrepancies found during WCISD audits of Wayne-Westland records for the 1982-83 and 1983-84 school years.

Nuler identified numerous attendance records that included contradicting information on the original form filed by the teacher and copies that were forwarded to the county.

For example, she said she found attendance sheets for six students from one adult education class at the district's Dyer Senior Center that were marked "no show" by the teacher and appeared to have been changed to "E" (for excused absence) by someone else.

THE "E" MARK would have permitted the district to receive state funds for that student but a "no show" mark wouldn't, Nuler testified.

Nuler said a number of the questioned attendance forms were marked with the initials "K.L."

Lyons was a supervisor for the district's adult education extension centers at the time, Nuler testified.

During Tuesday's morning testimony Nuler reported that she deducted 154.97 full-time equivalent students from the school district's total because of the unusual numbers she encountered.

But the state Department of Education later reinstated all by 10 of those students for state aid reimbursements, she said.

She also testified that one attendance sheet had the initials "B.B." and "K.L.", referring to Blanton and Lyons.

Under cross-examination by attorney Richard Clark, representing Hamrick and Blanton, the county official testified that there were several letters from her supervisor and the state education department on fast-changing interpretations on how local schools should treat excused absences for purposes of counting students for state reimbursement.

The state ordered a change in student accounting rules March 17, 1982, that would require students to be in class on a specific county day (the fourth Friday after Labor Day) to qualify for state aid payments.

But the state rescinded that change two months later, she said.

The charges against the school officials were the result of a year-long investigation by a Wayne County citizens grand jury into adult education enrollment records for the two school years.

Volunteer thinks corps work will be 'invaluable'

By C.L. Rugestein
 staff writer

It may not pay much, but Tim Goddard of Westland thinks serving as a Peace Corps volunteer for two years will be an invaluable experience.

"I view it as an educational grant," said Goddard, 28.

He will leave for Chicago, and ultimately Botswana, Monday, March 20.

Goddard, who works for Zantop Airlines at Willow Run, laughed when asked why he decided to join the Peace Corps.

"That's a good question — a lot of people ask that," he said. "I always wanted to travel and learn about another country."

IT WILL also give him the opportunity to learn more about his profession, he said. He currently works as a programmer-analyst for Zantop. But Goddard has his bachelor's degree in business administration, majoring in business computers, from Eastern Michigan University.

"I don't want to be just a programmer," Goddard said. "I'd like to do the whole range of the B.B.A."

He'll be working as a business adviser to various government vocational production facilities, he said.

"One day I'll be in meetings with people, the next day I might be changing a radiator on a truck," he said with a laugh, in anticipation of various jobs he'll be expected to do.

Actually, his responsibilities will include working with supply networks, pricing systems and product development for the government.

THERE WAS no family connection with Goddard's decision to join the Peace Corps, with no one in his family involved in volunteer work, he said.

"I had wanted to serve in the military," he said.

But another thought that may have influenced him was that "the whole society is now changing to an international scope," he said.

And the more people you deal with, the more you benefit from the experience, he said.

GODDARD FIRST thought about joining the Peace Corps approximately a year ago, in April. And, he said, once he applied, the usually long, drawn out process moved quickly. It involved a thorough check of references Goddard had to furnish.

He had to provide at least half a dozen, he said, including college professors in his major and minor studies and at least two bosses.

The average age of Peace Corps volunteers is 28, Goddard said.

"That was very interesting for me," he said.

He assumed the majority of volunteers were younger, approximately 21 or 22, just out of college and out for experience before settling down in their professions.

One reason the average age of Peace Corps members is increasing is because more retirees are volunteering, he said.

GODDARD WORKED through high school and college at Zantop, rising through the ranks to work at six different jobs over 11 years. When he goes into the Peace Corps his income will probably be reduced considerably.

Corps volunteers get a readjustment allowance of $5,400, free medical/dental care and graduate education opportunities. All for the privilege of two intensive months of language school and enculturation training — for starters.

"I've been told — jokingly — that it's rather demanding, 10 hours a day seven days a week (for two months)," Goddard said, laughing. "English is the official language, but 50 percent of the people speak Setswana."

AND IT all begins after a two-day orientation meeting in Chicago on March 20. After that Goddard flies to Gaborone, Botswana, to begin his volunteer opportunity.

His parents, Leigh and Betty Goddard, were a little apprehensive for him at first. After all, it's not like going to Kansas. Botswana is a long way away.

 volunteer

"My mother acknowledged the fact about three weeks ago," Goddard said, after learning more about the country to which he'll be going.

Goddard can hardly wait.

"I've known about it since September," he said. "I received the assignment real quick after I passed everything."

And he's looking forward to what he considers "a learning adventure."

"Anytime you take a tool box of information that you've gained, and go to a new world to apply it, you've got the ability to learn a great deal," he said.

cy is complete" and that the "conspiracy continues until the conspirators received their payoff," he said in summarizing the court opinion.

The prosecutor claimed that the defendants gave directions to clerical employees on how to fill in attendance records and that the work "went on for months."

Blake claimed Friday that the defendants weren't charged under the appropriate state law.

The defense attorney said that the appropriate law that covers the charges is a 1979 state school-aid law which contains a penalty clause for a "simple misdemeanor."

But Sheiko charged the defendants under a 1948 law which was later repealed and contains a more severe penalty than the 1979 law.

Kids tune in to nationwide concert

THE HALLS are alive with the sound of music." That variation of a song from the popular musical, "The Sound of Music," could have been adopted by the Wayne-Westland school district last week when students took part in what was billed as the "World's Largest Concert," a musical extravaganza from Washington, D.C., telecast in classrooms throughout the United States.

The concert was produced by the Music Educators National Conference and co-sponsored by McDonald's Corp.

The nationwide telecast was timed to be part of the conference's "Music in Our Schools" monthlong celebration.

A conference representative said from 3 to 8 million students were expected to watch the concert, whose theme was "All Together Now."

In the Wayne-Westland district, students in 22 elementary schools convened in their own school assemblies Thursday to watch the performance on multiple TV sets and join in the singing.

Richard Alder, the district's elementary music director, said earlier: "We're going to get the kids excited about music, revved up about taking part in something like this."

Alder and Charles Heard, the district's expressive arts coordinator, directed the local participation in the program.

The idea for a special music month originated in New York in the early 1970s and was expanded into an annual nationwide concert in 1985.

This is the TV monitor scene shown to students taking part in the national music education program.

Series about teen problems starts with student drug use

(This is the first in a series on what parents can do to find solutions to social problems experienced by teenagers. It was written by James Couillard, counselor/student assistant program director at Adams Junior High School. Parents' questions may be addressed to him at the school or through the Westland Observer.)

During the 1960s and early '70s, student drug use was confined to an identifiable subculture. Long hair, bell-bottoms, peace symbols and hallucinogenic drug use was the hallmark of this counter-culture.

The 1980s, however, has marked a dramatic turnaround in the proportion of drug/alcohol users among the student population.

If one takes into account the number of students who use alcohol and drugs and the number of students who are from families impacted by chemical dependency, drug use is not something committed by a subculture within our society.

Unfortunately, it is mainstream. Students who do not use drugs or alcohol are now the subculture.

The National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism reports that 93 percent of seniors have tried alcohol; 71 percent have used it in the last month; and 6 percent use alcohol daily.

Sixty-six percent reported some illicit drug use; 46 percent reported marijuana as their drug of preference. Thirteen percent of graduating seniors reported using cocaine in the past year.

Depending on whose estimates you want to use, one of every four or five students is from a family where one or both parents are chemically dependent. Moreover, the U.S. has the highest rates of teen drug use of any industrialized nation — 10 times greater than in Japan, for example.

Take a look, moreover, at the number of teen pregnancies and abortions experienced by our children each year. Combine that with statistics on teen suicide.

Consider also the rampant use of violence as a method of problem-solving by today's teens. When all factors are considered, it's amazing that any modern teens survive to become healthy adults.

IT IS with these concerns in mind that the Wayne-Westland school district is starting a student assistance program to help kids cope with life in modern society.

Through the use of student support groups, prevention curricula, intervention programs and referral to outside agencies, it is hoped that we will be able to provide help for students in the only setting where many of them feel safe: the schools of our community.

As a part of the Outreach Component of the Wayne-Westland Student Assistance Program, the Westland Observer will print a question and answer series to address concerns and to answer questions readers may have about teen drug/alcohol use, violence, suicide, pregnancy, peer pressure, school problems, or related topics.

These questions will be discussed with me. I am a school counselor at Adams Junior High and have worked with students for 19 years.

I will also enlist the aid of authorities in specific areas of concern to provide answers to all questions asked by our readers.

(Readers may direct questions to Student Assistance Program Q and A, c/o Westland Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150 or by calling Couillard at Adams Junior High, 595-2381.

Easter egg hunt on Saturday

Westland youngsters will look for colorfully-decorated Easter eggs Saturday morning in an annual event sponsored by five community service groups.

The hunt is open to children 13 and younger and is scheduled for 10:45 a.m. in the City Park Pavilion, directly behind Bailey Center, on Ford between Wayne Road and Newburgh. In case of rain, the hunt will be moved inside the Bailey Center.

Check-in time is 10:30 a.m. After the hunt, refreshments will be served at 11 a.m. in the nearby central fire station.

There will be prizes for four age groups with surprises hidden in brightly colored eggs.

The event is co-sponsored by the Westland Jaycees, Civitans, Cultural Society, Kiwanis, and Rotary Clubs in cooperation with the Westland parks and recreation department.

A WESTLAND man, 30, told police he found two intruders in his home.

He fought with one before escaping while his companion also fled.

The homeowner told police he got a 25-pound pull bow from his closet and shot a hunting arrow at the fleeing man, but didn't know if it hit him. The resident described one intruder as 6 feet 6 inches tall with light hair, wearing a light coat and blue jeans.

Police believe the two men broke into the house through a broken window in the door, which had been taped over. Police took the Westland resident to Westland Medical Center for treatment of facial cuts he suffered during the fight. The resident couldn't describe the second man.

AN ARMED robber made off with $51 Sunday night from a Dairy Mart on Warron Road near Venoy. A clerk told police the robber pulled the gun partially from his pocket and demanded money from the register. The clerk gave him the money with the gunman escaping on foot, she told police.

A RESIDENT of Waynewoods Apartments on Wayne Road reported that thieves broke into his home during the weekend. Reported missing were a portable radio, chandelier, light bulbs, and loaded tool box.

1st birthday

Hospital celebrates anniversary of birthing center

A year ago this month, Annapolis Hospital opened the doors to a newly renovated birthing center designed to provide a more comfortable, convenient way for women to experience the birth of their child.

Since that day, an estimated 1,000 babies have been delivered at the birthing center to the delight and satisfaction of new parents, according to Bevis Richardson, the center's Lamaze childbirth coordinator.

The new unit features special birthing rooms for those women who want to experience labor and delivery in the same bed, said hospital spokeswoman Mary Tenniswood.

All rooms have been decorated with comforting, homelike touches, as have the waiting room, nurses station and nursery.

An increased flexibility for mother-baby visits, special arrangements for fathers and liberal visiting hours for siblings and grandparents have also been extremely well-received changes, she said.

"The biggest change for mothers is not having to move from a labor room to a delivery room before delivery," said Richardson.

"Those who have had a baby both ways have really liked the new birthing rooms," said Richardson who noted that the traditional labor and delivery rooms are still available.

So, early in 1988, Annapolis Hospital undertook an extensive renovation project that would soon transform the second floor of the hospital into the center.

Rooms were redesigned to meet the comfort needs of new moms, from larger patient room space to specially designed showers and bathrooms. New birthing beds, which can be positioned in a variety of ways to make labor and delivery more comfortable, as well as oak-accented furniture and the newest obstetrical equipment, were purchased.

Not only did the center look different, but the way nursing care was provided changed too. The Birthing Center now features mother-baby nursing care, where the same nurse takes care of mom and baby.

"In the old days, separate nurses took care of the moms and babies," said Richardson.

"This made it difficult for moms to ask questions about their individual needs as well as baby's needs. Now one nurse cares for both mom and baby, making that nurse the expert on the care and education needs of each family. The moms and dads really appreciate this kind of care."

THERE ARE 40 employees on the second floor unit, with a combined 254 years of health care experience. Thirteen nurses have worked at the hospital eight years or longer.

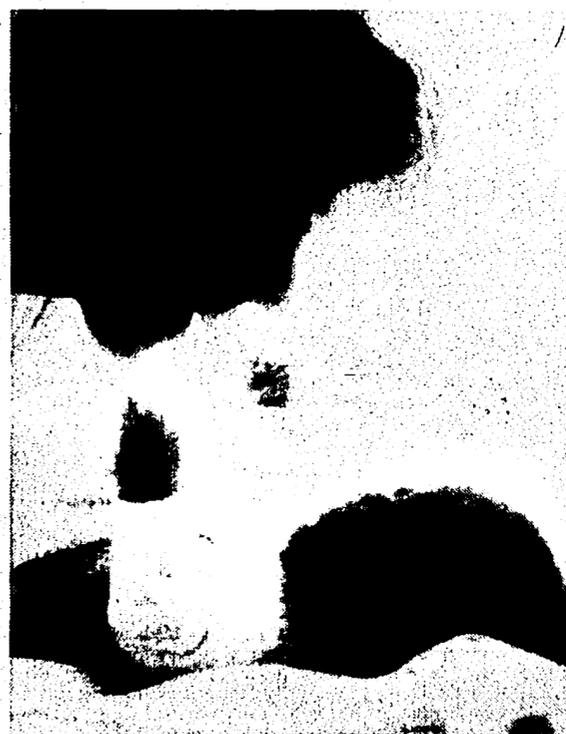

To celebrate the one year birthday of Annapolis Hospital's birthing center, the hospital is inviting the community to tour the center with one of the center's nurses.

A look at the new birthing rooms, the new nursery, patient rooms, and an explanation of the features of the center will be offered, Tenniswood said.

Tours are held at noon every Saturday. Individualized tours at other times can also be arranged by calling the center at 467-4570.

Hawthorn programs to continue

By Tim Richard and Wayne Peal staff writers

The local mental health care center expects to have a major part of its programs restored, but others are still complaining about cuts to the state's mental health budget.

Money will be restored for outpatient services at Hawthorn Center, a state mental health facility based in Livonia.

"WE ARE restoring the money because it serves a lot of people in our area," said state Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville. "But right now, that's the only thing we've decided."

Geake, whose district includes the cities of Livonia and Plymouth and the townships of Canton, Plymouth and Redford, is chairman of the Senate Sub-committee on Mental Health Appropriations.

Hawthorn Center officials said they were pleased outpatient services could be restored. "That would be marvelous," center director Dr. Harold Wright said.

The full Senate is expected to begin discussion of mental health programs after its return from Easter recess, Geake said. The House has already begun discussing the issue.

Hawthorn provides services to children and teenagers.

Center officials said program cuts would affect those least able to afford services.

"We conducted a study and it showed 24 percent were on ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) or some other form of public assistance," Wright said.

Mental health services provided by community agencies throughout the western Wayne and Oakland County area are at risk.

"IT'S TRAGIC," said Dorothy McQueen of the Alliance for the Mentally Ill, Southfield.

"There are 16,000 people waiting for services they're not going to get."

Cuts in outpatient, respite and dental care as well as elimination of a planned expansion in mental health programs for children will occur, McQueen said, unless the Legislature takes action.

"This is a total reduction of $42.7 million and it will cost us $7.9 million in federal funds," she said.

Mental health care providers said cuts to community programs come at a time when mental health patients are no longer being housed in state hospitals.

"There are more people we're trying to help but there is less money to help them," said Paul Gezon, president of Family Service of Detroit & Wayne County, the regional agency boasting six mental health clinics, including one in Livonia.

"After eight years of Reagan-style nonsense, our people are literally being raped."

Area mental health professionals made their concerns known last week during a mental health open house at the Wayne County Intermediate Schools, Wayne and in Bloomfield Hills.

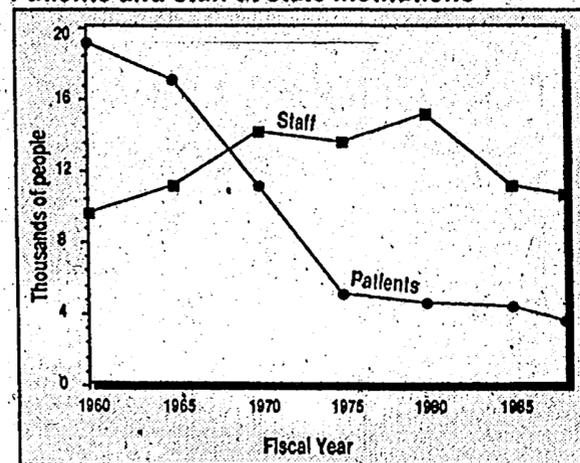

On paper, Gov. James Blanchard's budget seems to contain a 7 percent increase for mental health. Even allowing for inflation, there is a 2½ percent dollar improvement.

But not according to mental health care providers.

Several said they would like to see taxes raised — if need be — to restore programs.

"Some things are worse than raising taxes, and one of them is making other human beings suffer," said Albert Ascher, executive director of Jewish Vocational Services, who spoke at the meeting in Bloomfield Hills.

Michigan's mental health system: Patients and staff at state institutions

Source: 1990 Budget Message of the Governor

Michigan has moved thousands of clients from state mental hospitals to community settings over the last three decades. But hospital staffing has continued to increase.

Blanchard: State continues shift

Here are excerpts from Gov. Blanchard's budget message on mental health:

During the 1980s, 30,000 patients were cared for each year in state institutions with patients staying an average of several years.

A concerted effort to change mental health policy has succeeded in serving many patients in community treatment alternatives. Today there are only 5,000 patients in state facilities with an average stay of only 200 days.

I am proposing we expedite the movement to a high-quality community-based mental health system in the 1990s through a number of initiatives:

- Funding for 40 Assertive Community Treatment programs to keep severely mentally ill patients out of institutions and closer to their families and support systems. We will also explore alternatives to hospitalization within the private sector.

- Improving staff training... $250,000 in state resources and a federal grant of $125,000 will be provided in FY 1990.

- Phase out the operation of two state facilities. The patients will be transferred to community mental health programs... Staff who are laid off will be provided with job retraining and placement assistance

Wearing the green

St. Patrick's Day offers honorary Irish status to one and all

By C. L. Rugestein
staff writer

They'll not only be wearing green Friday for St. Patrick's Day, but eating and drinking it as well at restaurants and pubs.

Many celebrants of the popular Irish saint's feast day will flock to pubs like Malarkey's and Paddy's for green beer (really Miller's), green eggs and ham (at Paddy's) and green wine. They'll also have the standards — stew, corned beef and cabbage, and Guinness stout on hand, with lots of Irish coffee.

Paddy's pub, on Wayne Road south of Ford, will open at 10 a.m. and carry on till at least 2 a.m. with bagpipes, a best Irish-dressed contest and D. J. Robin playing Irish songs, said manager Alan Olszewski.

Malarkey's, on Wayne Road, south of Warren Road, has held St. Patrick's day party for seven years, said manager Victor Gregory. Usually the turnout is "unbelievable," he said.

"It's the best (business) day of the year by far," he said. "It probably triples every day we have all year — hopefully it'll quadruple this year."

Malarkey's will also have contests, but Gregory doesn't know what. One of their biggest draws should be the Irish spring (after the soap?) band called Michael Brendan Bailey Hume. They'll also go the stew and corned beef route, gastronomically speaking. Malarkey's will open at 7 a.m. and blarney till 2 a.m.

HOWEVER, MANY Irish-Americans will observe the day in true "old country" fashion by attending mass first.

"In Ireland it's a religious holiday," said executive Lt. Michael Frayer of the Westland Police Department. "The bars usually close and they go to church — it's a holy day of obligation."

Frayer, whose maternal grandmother Byrnes hailed from County Cork, visited her village of Glendalough last Sept.

"Over there they have cabbage and ham" rather than corned beef, he said and smiled. Corned beef and cabbage is an American phenomenon, Frayer noted. "They switched during immigration because corned beef was a cheaper cut of meat."

Local celebrants will carry on the traditional observation by going to mass, then parties at the three Irish cultural clubs in the metro area — the Gaelic League and Ancient Order of Hibernians in Detroit, and the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Warren.

The Friendly Sons will have a mass at the hall at noon, then jig and cell dance to the music of the Irish Wake and Wedding Band, according to Livonia resident Roger McCarville. Another authentic celebration will be at the Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall at 1801 Farmington Road, between Seven and Eight Mile Roads, in Livonia.

That's where cell dance teacher Kitty Heinzman and family will go after mass at Detroit's Holy Trinity Church, former center of Irish culture in the city.

And they'll celebrate in grand style, from what Heinzman said. "We have a limo that picks us up to go to Monaghan," she said. "It's the biggest authentic Irish party" around.

HEINZMAN, now of Livonia, came to America at the age of 16 from County Mayo, Ireland. The former Westland resident ("all my children were born there," she said) teaches cell, or traditional Irish set dances, to adults. She began teaching in 1976, she said. "Other teachers were teaching children," Heinzman said, but she wanted to teach adults the set dances because they were "more folksy."

"Each dance tells a story," she explained, from the time when the Irish were forbidden by law to pass on their history or traditions.

The dance, Walls of Limerick, tells the story of a battle fought after the first treaty with Britain was signed in 1691, by William of Orange. There's also one called the Harvest-Time (or Haymaker's) Jig.

Heinzman's Adult Ceilidh dancers will only be one of the attractions at the Monaghan party.

Also dancing, singing, and piping will be the Irish Eoin Ceilidh Band from Toronto, singers Shane Holden and Sean Tyrrell from County Clare, the Scotsaire Pipe Band (of Highland, not Irish, bagpipes — there is a difference) and Brendan McNulty, also known as the "Belfast Balladeer," said Ann Gavin of Redford.

TICKETS to the grand event ("All the Paddys go there," Heinzman says with a laugh) are available at the door for $5. The event stretches into two days when it moves (pipes, dancers and all) down to the Gaelic League on Michigan Avenue in Detroit on Saturday. Tickets for the St. Patrick's Day second inning are also $5, but persons buying both get them for $9.

Interested persons may call Ann or Mick Gavin at 537-3489.

2 Democratic groups merge

Two Westland Democratic groups have merged, said John Franklin, president of the reorganized Westland Democratic Club.

The group's first membership meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 28, in the Wayne Ford Civic League Hall, 1661 N. Wayne Road.

School lunches are safe area cafeteria chiefs say

Concern over Chilean fruit was the second food problem in as many months for area school districts.

Districts had already been gathering information on American-grown apples after a federal report linked domestic apples with a suspected cancer-causing agent.

But area food service directors said neither situation posed a problem for students.

"We haven't purchased any fresh fruit for the past two weeks," said Joan Steele of Redford Union Schools. "We don't use a whole lot of fresh fruit this time of year." Though fresh fruit was to have been provided at a teacher function tomorrow, Steele said it now won't.

"WE HAD one case of grapes from Chile, but it's being sent back to the supplier," said Lori Adkins of South Redford Schools.

Cyanide traces had been discovered in two Chilean-grown grapes Sunday during a federal Food and Drug Administration investigation. (See related story for details.)

Apples have been another source of concern since last month, when a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency study linked Alar, a substance used to regulate apple growth, to cancer in laboratory animals.

Since then a number of individuals, including actress Meryl Streep, have called for a ban on the use of the substance.

THEY SAY it poses a special danger to children, who traditionally eat more apples than adults.

Apple growers, however, have countered with full-page newspaper advertisements that claim Alar is used on only a small percentage of the nation's apple crop and that persons would have to eat "28,000 pounds of Alar-treated apples every day for 70 years" to match exposure levels in the EPA report.

"It appears children would have to eat an inordinate amount of apples over the course of a lifetime for it to have any effect," said Dr. Marjorie Harrington of Wayne-Westland Schools.

Students in Livonia Schools, face no danger from either fruit according to food service director Mike Howard.

"We use Michigan apples and they don't use the stuff here," he said.

Grapes also pose threat. "We also don't use grapes — not for any health reasons but because kids tend to throw them around."

UPI's Helen Thomas to speak

Helen Thomas, UPI White House correspondent, will address the Society of Professional Journalists regional conference next month at the Omni Hotel in downtown Detroit.

Thomas, a Detroit native and Washington press corp fixture through several administrations, will be speaking at a luncheon on Saturday, April 28.

Charles Stough, creator of the New York Times News Services the Bong report, a humorous column syndicated to 455 outlets worldwide, will be the Saturday evening dinner speaker on board the Star of Detroit.

More than 125 journalism professors and students from Region IV — which includes Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky, West Virginia and western Pennsylvania — are expected to attend the two-day conference. The theme is "A New Decade, A New Presidency, and a New Past."

James Plante, national past president of NBC News, also is scheduled to speak at the conference.

On Saturday, eight panels will feature veteran newsmen addressing a variety of topics ranging from alternative press in the 1980s to TV news in the next decade.

Panelists include Howard Simon of the American Civil Liberties Union on freedom of information, Ruth Seymour, director of the Minority Journalism Workshop of Wayne State University on minorities in the newsrooms, and Marc Gunther, of the Detroit Free Press, on TV news in the '90s.

A panel which includes spokesmen from the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research, WDIV-TV and Market Opinion Research will discuss how public relations affects political campaigns.

Another session is devoted to new opportunities for journalists entering the job market in the '90s. Other sessions will examine the future of investigative reporting and the trends journalists will be chasing as the century draws to a close.

Program co-chairwomen Nancy Cain and Cindy Kyle are looking for volunteers to assist with a variety of projects. Cain can be reached at 338-1514. Kyle is at 547-1878.

Registration deadline is April 21. Cost for student members is $45, for professional members $50 and for professional non-members $65.

Why conifers stay green all year long

IN FALL we admire the many kinds of broad-leaf trees that turn amazing colors. Even during summer, their many shades of green make the landscape lush.

In winter, the green of coniferous trees adds contrast to the neutral earth. They are our Christmas trees because they brighten our rooms and spirits with their everlasting color.

Only one coniferous tree in our area does not stay green all year — the tamarack. Though it may not stay green all year, its fall finale more than compensates for its unusual habit. In fall, golden needles of tamarack weave a tapestry that adorns the forest edge.

SPRUCE TREES planted by many homeowners to add color to their yard stand out prominently against winter's white palate. A thick, waxy exterior protects needles from desiccation.

If you look at the yews in your yard, you will see the top side of the leaf is darker than the bottom. Since the top is exposed to the penetrating rays of the sun it must have a thicker protective coating.

A close look at the bottom will reveal a lighter color. Junipers and hemlocks display two very light stripes on the underside of their leaves. These two stripes are concentrations of cells that allow the leaf to breathe.

GREEN PLANTS produce sugar and oxygen through a process known as photosynthesis. Oxygen and carbon dioxide are exchanged through these openings.

Not only do leaves have openings from which to breathe, but the little darkened irregularities on the bark of a beech or birch tree serve as openings for gas exchange also.

Dense foliage of evergreens is also a good place for night roosting birds. They provide protection from predators and the cold. In order to maintain what heat they have, birds roost closer together as the temperature drops.

Evergreen leaves have a thick, waxy exterior to protect them from drying out. The top side is darker than the bottom.

Throughout history, and especially Michigan history, evergreen trees have played a major role. White pines that grew prominently in the east were used for masts of sailing ships. Today, evergreen trees are still being used as a major source of lumber.

Donald Blouin of Livonia, Judge Patrick Duggan of Livonia and Anita Herman of Farmington Hills are now adjunct associate professors.

Named adjunct assistant professors were James Karagon of Farmington Hills, F. Michael Koch and Reginald Sobczak, both of Livonia.

Audubon honors columnist

Timothy Nowicki, nature columnist for Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, has been selected by the Michigan Audubon Society as its environmentalist writer of the year.

He will receive the award April 8 at Audubon's annual meeting in Traverse city.

"Our members have watched Nowicki's columns with interest for many years and have been pleased at the overall coverage of environmental issues by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers," said James P. Ludwig, vice president and chairman of the society's awards committee. The competition was statewide.

"Nowicki's consistent production of quality nature columns, his appearance on WJR routinely and many other activities in southeastern Michigan all were considered by the committee when making its award."

NOWICKI, of Livonia, is a staff naturalist at Independence Oaks, a major Oakland County park. He has taught nature appreciation courses at Schoolcraft College. He has two degrees in biology from Central Michigan University and has done post-graduate work at the University of Minnesota.

He is the second O&E columnist to receive the award. Penny Wright, then a freelancer, was honored two years ago for her Our Land features.

"Quite frankly, Nowicki is a hot property," said Tim Richard, Oakland County editor of the Observer & Eccentric, who handles the nature column and nominated the writer.

Timothy Nowicki 'hot property'

"His topics are animals, birds, insects and plants. Now, it's easy to write about nature in northern Michigan, but he concentrates on topics in the urban and suburban area, driving home the point that nature is all around you, daily, not just for vacations.

"HIS INFORMATION is reliable.

"But more importantly, he writes to parents, teaching them how to help children discover nature for themselves. His columns are several cuts above textbooks that merely describe.

"Frequently he writes about parenting. From these pieces, human parents and their young'uns can absorb ideas on how they can be better parents themselves. By showing how animals adjust to an environment, he shows how humans, too, can adjust to an environment."

Limits sought for radioactive waste sites

By Wayne Peal staff writer

It's no longer a question of whether Michigan will have low level radioactive waste disposal sites.

But how many of the waste disposal sites will be scattered throughout Michigan and other Midwestern state remains an issue.

Michigan is assured of having disposal sites by being the largest waste producer among the Midwestern Compact — a seven-state group that formed to develop regional disposal sites for low-level radioactive waste. Area Congressmen say it's unlikely the inter-state compact would be changed.

"THERE'S A consensus in Congress about compacts," said U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth. "It's as close to 100 percent as anything I've seen."

Waste material to be involved includes clothing and filters used at nuclear power plants, or at facilities used in researching and developing nuclear medicine. Nuclear fuel and weapons, as well as uranium by products aren't involved.

Despite that, experts say the phrase "low level" is a misnomer. "It doesn't really tell the public much of anything," said James Martin, a professor at the University of Michigan School of Public Health. "It makes no reference to the concept of whether the material will decay rapidly or slowly."

The compact, however, had been a burning state issue. Gov. James Blanchard initially opposed a Michigan site, but changed his position once other governors accepted joint liability for any potential accident involving the site.

It was also an issue in last fall's 2nd District Congressional race between Pursell and state Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor. During the campaign, Pursell took 15 sites — each one an accident waiting to happen. Plus, these sites will be moving over time, that's 15 more sites, and these sites are extremely costly to build."

Pursell suggested creating a panel to screen sites, but said regional sites were a better alternative than "50 sites in 50 states."

Other congressmen believe the regional system is the most cost-effective.

"If the state chooses to pull out of the agreement, it will have to create a site at full cost to Michigan taxpayers," said U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor.

Pursell also cited a recent survey that predicted side effects from low-level waste disposal would cause less than three fatalities over the next 1000 years.

"The radiation dose rate to an individual near the site anytime during 1000 years would be less than 1 millirem per year, which is one-twenty-fifth that permitted by federal and state requirement for radioactive waste sites," according to a study compiled by the Great Lakes Chapter of the Health Physics Society.

Pollack to task for introducing state legislation that would have removed Michigan from the compact which also includes Indiana, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Pollack's bill calling for Michigan to opt out of the compact faces an uncertain future. It is still tied up in committee.

"Frankly I don't think the committee chairman (Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids) is very sympathetic," she said.

While she still favors having Michigan handle its own waste only, Pollack said limiting the number of sites has now become her "number one priority."

"THE WAY we're doing it now makes no sense economically or environmentally," she said. "There are

Utility warns consumers of rebate scams

Detroit Edison is warning consumers to beware of a common springtime scam that could have dangerous effects.

The scam, an Edison spokesman said, involves two people who visit homes claiming to be Edison employees bearing a rebate check for the homeowner.

The object is to gain access to the home, the spokesman said. One partner distracts the homeowner, while the other robs the home.

"Several elderly persons have been victimized by that scam," Edison security director Richard Dungey said.

The utility advises homeowners its employees always carry identification and rarely travel in pairs.

To avoid being victimized, the utility offers these tips:

- Ask for identification before letting any stranger into your home. Edison employees carry identification badges bearing their photos. Badges are clearly labeled as Detroit Edison identification.

- Call Detroit Edison if you aren't sure of an employee's identification. The toll-free number is listed on monthly Edison bills.

- Be aware rebate checks or other Edison communication is never delivered in person. All transactions are handled through the mail.

Key lessons Let's teach job hunting skills

LOCAL SCHOOL districts have mounted ambitious vocational/technical programs in the past decade. The goal was direct and admirable: give students and older adults the necessary skills to get a job or career.

While there are many success stories, there are a few details which schools should make sure their students have mastered.

Specifically, they should learn how to market themselves, set short-range and long-range career or job goals, learn how to prepare a resume and how to manage their time effectively in hunting for a job.

While most adult education departments generally do an effective job, a series of experiences at a recent career fair held by Wayne County Community College's western campus in Belleville showed there is an apparent problem on how students are trained to look for jobs.

An Observer editor was invited to take part in the fair and shared a table with a Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. employment and job placement manager.

Within the first 30 minutes, the two both learned of loopholes in the information and techniques given students or the way they are using the material from school.

AT THE SAME time, we both learned that older men, mostly in their 40s, were desperately looking for jobs. They went from one display table to another asking if the companies needed warehouse employees.

While the unemployment rate is at its lowest since the early 1970s, there are still a large number of able-bodied people looking for work and unable to find it.

The career fair was clearly promoted in advance as a chance for college students to explore job opportunities in general and talk with representatives from companies in different fields to learn more about what type of skills and education are needed.

Students and adults at a career fair clearly didn't know how to job hunt.

But many of the visitors to the Observer/MichCon table wanted to fill out job applications. At the same time, they didn't have a clear idea of what they wanted to do.

In most cases, the resumes submitted at the program looked like they were copied from a library book or a classroom text on the topic — but without the information most personnel directors want and need.

ONE RESUME contained a goal which made it look like the job candidate was interested from any position ranging from an entry-level filing clerk to chief executive officer.

The young people were well intentioned. They had a goal — to submit job applications to numerous companies — but didn't know specifically how to go about it.

The lack of focus is sad because the students probably have the skills for a specific job with a specific company.

But a lack of learned job-hunting techniques is blocking them their chances.

As one personnel manager once said: "Looking for a job is a job in itself."

We hope that adult education directors will review their own programs on job hunting and, if necessary, refine the directions given to their students.

We also need to realize that not all high school graduates take vocational skill courses before getting a diploma, and may want to consider whether a half-semester course in resumes, interviews and other job-hunting techniques should be required.

Reickel leaving sends message

THIS WEEK'S departure of Wayne County Parks director R. Eric Reickel was greeted with sadness by many area residents who have used the parks over the past few years.

That's understandable. In his four years on the job, Reickel tried mightily to return the county system to its "family parks" status.

Along Edward Hines Drive in western Wayne County, in particular, the litter has diminished, grassy areas are mowed, picnic tables have been repaired and families have reclaimed the park.

Reickel however, was unsuccessful in his key goal — securing more money for county parks. Budget cuts, as well as the lack of a countywide park tax, were a continuing source of frustration and the primary reason he chose to leave the county for a new job heading up the Lansing city parks.

Soon, Wayne County executive Edward McNamara will announce his own plans for the parks. The executive envisions a gradual return to the clean, well-attended county parks he used to enjoy as a boy.

Nonetheless, Reickel's departure should serve as a warning.

A better-tended, more inviting Wayne County Parks System is a dream we all share. But it's going to take money to make that dream a reality.

Recall A tool for grass roots protest

RECALL — just saying the word makes elected officials quiver. Actually being the target of one is a politician's worst nightmare.

And we think that's a good thing. In the last two decades, recalls have taken a lot of heat from establishment figures who, many times, would rather be left alone to conduct the people's business.

They have painted this constitutional, and very legal, process as something akin to a blasphemy against democracy. Sometimes the public has been fooled into believing it.

That's why we want to take a minute to say a few good things about recalls. We think the process has gotten a bad rap — mainly because it's always easier for those in power to get out their message as the credible one while leaving the disgruntled recall advocates looking foolish and sometimes evil.

Admittedly, when the framers of our most recent state constitution sat down in the early '60s to spruce up the 1908 version, little did they realize the impact that Section 8 of Article II would have on communities which at that time were in their infancy.

RECALL, originally was intended to "throw the bums out of city hall," meaning officials who mostly were on the take. But politics, being the evolutionary animal that it is, transformed recall into quite another process.

In short, recall has become a very effective tool for grass roots political protest. Now, hardly a suburban community around Detroit has gone unscathed. Every kind of elected official from school board trustee to city council member has been given the bums rush. And every elected official up to the governor lives under the threat of recall.

Democracy is never easy. It takes time, patience and much discussion.

The more liberal politicians hatched the idea and, ironically, they are the ones today who are the most upset with its use. Certainly, conservatives have generally taken more advantage of the process.

But every inch of the political spectrum has been touched.

FOR FAR too long arrogance has been the rule rather than the exception in local politics. Those bringing legitimate protest to government chambers have too often been rudely dismissed. Those who have shown a concern for their children's education have been shunted aside.

Now those in protest may have been right or wrong, but that hardly is the issue. Their right to an answer and a participatory role in their own government is a concern.

Too often persons have walked away from a government meeting feeling disenfranchised. Elected officials, in general, must shoulder the responsibility for the recall reaction.

Democracy is never easy. It takes time, patience and much discussion. It takes the participation of everyone who wishes to be involved — even when elected officials and hired government hands would wish otherwise.

While we abstain at this time from endorsing or casting aspersions at any particular recall movement, we applaud those who at least take their valuable time to challenge the arrogance of power and make our elected officials more accountable.

Basketballs will bounce and integration counts

FOR THOSE of us who believe in racial integration, the outburst by Rev. Jim Holley against the Auburn Hills Detroit Pistons is somewhat disconcerting.

The civil rights activist has threatened a boycott against advertisers who sponsor the roundball team, saying that the Pistons' move to Auburn exploits black players and abandons black fans.

"The game they're playing... is plantation basketball, black people performing for the amusement of upscale whites," said Holley, Detroit president of PUSH (People United to Save Humanity).

To alleviate this problem Holley urges Piston management to hire blacks for management positions and contract with minority-owned concessions at the Palace.

Not bad, so far. Pretty standard stuff. Most folks can agree with those aims. After all, the team is a business and, as such, has an obligation to fair hiring and contractual practices.

But Holley's argument goes astray with his other demands.

He believes it's important that Piston players be role models for city youth. The Piston organization can further that aim, he said, by setting up basketball clinics in Detroit, having players make appearances in Detroit schools and by letting black children attend games at reduced admissions.

Well, as much as I'd like to jump on the Reverend's bandwagon, I'll pass up this trip.

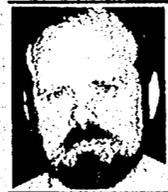

Certainly, Holley's heart is in the right place, but he should rethink his argument.

For too many years, this society has mistakenly relied on sports figures as role models for children. Children, black or white, should be urged to seek out people involved in other, more worthy, pursuits as role models.

SPORTS, professional or otherwise, is simply trivial. It's good old-fashioned mindless entertainment. Most of us enjoy it. But what an athlete does really isn't all that important to improving the world condition.

Sports is a business to the owners and a very profitable game to the players. And the few black professional athletes there are in this country have little in common with the children of the streets.

Athletes have little to offer as role models. Just review some of the stories you've read recently about athletes. Bob Probert, Wade Boggs,

Steve Barnaby

Steve Garvey — not much to follow in their examples.

Our children really need to set their sights on much loftier goals than being sports superstars.

The real answer to Holley's grievances is an integrated society. Until we integrate — in the workplace, in the subdivision and in the home — the problem of racial discrimination will haunt our every move.

While we must appreciate one another's racial, ethnic and cultural backgrounds, in a sense we must strive toward becoming color blind.

As Jesse Jackson often says, we must keep the eye on the prize. And that prize is building a better, freer and more just society through integration — not a basketball franchise.

Police handled incident badly

(An open letter to Chief of Police, Livonia Police Department)

It is with much disappointment that I am compelled to write this letter concerning an incident my husband and I experienced on Feb. 7, 1989, with the Livonia Police Department.

We were traveling east on Joy Road, had stopped for the traffic light on Joy at the I-275 overpass at approximately 7:30 p.m. on Feb. 7. Another vehicle hit the back end of our car while we were stopped at the light. While the impact was not "severe," it was hard enough that we pulled over to the side of the road to see if any damage had resulted.

Unfortunately, the car that hit us kept going. We pulled back out onto the road to follow the vehicle that struck us, hoping to at least get a license plate number, in the event that we did have damage to our car.

It did not take long to realize the driver of this car was either drunk or had a problem as this car was weaving back and forth and in and out of the oncoming traffic lane causing several oncoming cars to swerve and blow horns. We realized we had to get this car, and driver, off the road before they, or someone else, became seriously injured.

From our car, we dialed 911. They in turn, gave us the number of the Livonia Police. At this point, the car in question, made a left turn off Joy onto northbound Hix from the right lane, cutting off several cars. We continued following the car, flashing our brights and blowing our horn, in an attempt to get the driver to pull over.

During this time, my husband was explaining to someone at the Livonia Police Department what was happening. He requested that they send someone to get the driver off the road. While we were on hold, the car in question turned off of Hix onto Grandon and stopped. We pulled alongside the car and saw an elderly woman with her head down on the steering wheel. Not knowing if she was ill, I approached her car while my husband was still on hold with the police department.

Upon opening this lady's car door, the odor of liquor was so potent that I had to close the door. My husband then informed the officer on the phone that we had gotten the driver over to the side of the road and that she was in fact intoxicated. The woman did not know where she was nor did she realize that she had hit our car. Fortunately, there was no damage to our vehicle.

My husband, who was still on the phone with your department, proceeded to tell your officer that there was no damage to our car, but inquired as to what should be done about the driver of the other vehicle.

The response was that if we did not wish to report an accident, they would not send a patrol car out. We were then advised that even if we wanted to report an accident we should call the Canton Police since that is where the entire fiasco began. It did not matter that we were in Livonia, according to the Livonia Police Department.

The woman driver, who was blatantly intoxicated, was adamant about driving herself home. She apologized to us for hitting our car and stated that she would "never do it again." She admitted to having been drinking, at which point we confiscated her keys for we knew that she should not be driving and did not want her to get hurt or injure someone else. We tried convincing the desk officer to please send a car as we did not want to let this woman drive. He apologized but had no recommendations.

The point I am making, is that with all of the publicity expounding "don't drink and drive," I cannot believe that the Livonia Police Department was so unconcerned and unhelpful. Had a Livonia Police car seen an individual weaving all over, cutting cars off, rear-ending vehicles at stop lights and then taking off, it goes without saying that the individual would have been pulled over, given a Breathalyzer, been taken to jail, and have been charged with drunk driving.

We, as citizens, cared enough about the woman and about other innocent people, that we detained her from driving and made sure that she got home safely. It was obviously too unimportant for the police to bother with. What does it take, a serious accident or possibly even a death, to get the police department to respond and send out a squad car? Sounds to me like we live in a very hypocritical society where the preaching is not practiced.

I am writing with the confidence that this letter will reach someone who can take notice and action about similar events which may occur. We all know what the statistics are of accidents involving drunk drivers. Is it the Livonia Police Department's contention to enable these statistics to rise, or to prevent them from rising? The actions exhibited by your department, or lack thereof, on the night of Feb. 7 would indicate an indifference to drunk driving issues and consequently facilitate the rise of drunk driving statistics.

Students get inside look at government

For more than 150 students from Plymouth Canton and Salem High Schools, months of selling candy, calendars, granola bars and juice, washing cars and hosting bowlatlions paid off last week.

Students spent seven days in the nation's capital, taking part in a Close Up program.

Close Up is a non-profit national foundation dedicated to enhancing knowledge about government through hands-on learning.

Students visited their congressmen, toured the Capitol, monuments, museums and the FBI.

One group of students ran into Barbara Bush at the Library of Congress and visited with her. Others were admitted to the Ollie North trial, committee hearings on terrorism and Senate hearings on the nomination of John Tower as defense secretary.

Students spoke with Eastern airline strikers and walked the picket lines with them.

They saw the homeless, living in makeshift tents above subway grates.

By week's end, worries about squid roommates and lost luggage were long forgotten.

Friendships had been forged, as had the realization that government is as close to us as we want it to be. They'd seen history in the making.

"People were crying. They didn't want to leave," said Matt Stoelt, a

M.B. Dillon

Canton sophomore. Stoelt plans a return visit to Washington, where he's been invited to stay with his Close Up instructor.

Another student plans to visit a new friend in Boston over spring break.

"I can't even explain it," said Stoelt. "You come back feeling like you've left your family."

"Government is grand and great — you see these senators all over and think these guys are like gold, you can't touch them. But you can. You're part of it," he said.

For Salem's Shelley Rodgers, who hopes to become a congressional lobbyist, visiting Washington was exhilarating.

SHE ESPECIALLY remembers the eternal flame at President Kennedy's grave, visible from the Lincoln Memorial at night. "It's really little but really neat. You know what it is," said Rodgers.

What Rodgers liked best was Washington's atmosphere, "because it's all really fast-paced, and you can feel it," she said. "Everywhere you look, you see the history" of the nation reflected.

Bob Thams, who taught at Centennial Educational Park and is now retired, started the district's Close Up program with six students in 1978. Bill Gretzinger of Salem and Mike McCauley of Canton have picked up where he left off, raising more money and taking more students to Washington every spring.

Over the years, their students have roomed in D.C. with blind and deaf students from metropolitan Detroit and elsewhere, Puerto Ricans and students from numerous states.

McCauley and Gretzinger, who team teach at the high schools, believe that this program is for everyone — special education and honors students alike.

They washed as many as 300 cars in a day and even sold Tupperware to prove it.

"We feel the kids are worth every nickel," said McCauley. "How can you put a value on meeting Barbara Bush or Ollie North?"

Together, McCauley, Gretzinger and their students raised about $75,000.

"Government truly is of the people," said Gretzinger. "It's what you put into it. I'll always remember what Hubert Humphrey told a group of Close Up students years ago. He said, 'I encourage you to dissent. You get out your bar of political Ivory soap, and you clean it up or you shut up.'"

Crimes tax schools

What's going on in suburbia, anyway?

An inspection team from the U.S. Department of Education is visiting suburban schools to see if they qualify to be honored as national exemplary high schools. It's not true that the team is working under a cloud; it just seems that way.

Last week the team was at Rochester Adams High School just in time to hear the news that the school's student council president was charged with selling LSD and carrying a concealed weapon.

This week the team visits Southfield High School, which resumed classes Friday after recovering from a fire that is believed to be arson. Two former students have been charged with the crime, including a star of last year's state championship track team.

If this keeps up, this might be the only exemplary award that principals will wish upon their worst enemies.

David Honigman, a bright legislator from West Bloomfield, doesn't like the proposed-but-dying school financing reform package. He has a lot of valid points, but he also complains that "it doesn't provide that much property tax relief for my area, where they desperately need it."

Rich Perlberg

Ahem. If you live in the West Bloomfield School District, the plan would have reduced the tax rate by nearly eight mills (nearly $600 if you own a house selling for $150,000). If you live in the Walled Lake district, your property tax rate would have been reduced by 11 mills ($825 for the owner of a $150,000 house).

Despite those property tax cuts, each school district would get more to spend per student than they presently do because of the proposed 2-cent sales tax increase. It's hard to figure how relatively wealthy districts can ask for much more.

Here's a couple of crime notes from West Bloomfield High School that are offered without comment.

A 14-year-old had his jacket stolen at the school. The jacket was worth $300. In the jacket was an eelskin wallet valued at $150 containing $110 in cash. The same day another student also had his wallet stolen. He was carrying $380 in cash.

Much has been made about affluent Birmingham voting down a $45 million repair and maintenance bond issue for its beloved school system. The size of the bond, the second largest in Michigan history, obviously played a role in the defeat. Other dissatisfactions also doomed the proposal.

But the most curious argument was from no-voters who insist that they already have proven they strongly support their school system because of the high taxes they pay. If someone pays high school taxes in Birmingham, it is because they own an expensive home, not because of high tax rates.

Birmingham schools levy about 30 mills in taxes. In Plymouth-Canton, the levy is about 37 mills. Wayne-Westland school district homeowners pay a school tax rate of more than 40 mills. Both of these school districts receive less to spend per pupil than does Birmingham.

When you get down to it, the percentage of household income that supports the local school system isn't any higher in Birmingham than in school districts with lesser prestige.

Rich Perlberg is the assistant managing editor in charge of Oakland County editions of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

School staff top priority

Q: If you were to start a new school district right from "scratch," what would be the most important issues for a successful educational program?

A: The most crucial element would be the selection of teachers and administrators. Considerable time and energy would be spent using all known and proven interview and research methods to determine who will be superstar teachers and administrators. When great teachers and administrators are present you will have a fine educational program.

The second element would be a quality staff development program. IBM spends two to three percent of its total budget for staff development, and of course, IBM is one of the top performing companies in the country.

Dynamic staff development is a for both new and tenured teachers.

Doc Doyle

Indeed, although most teachers have received a sound foundation in both subject areas and teaching methods in college, an ongoing staff improvement program to maintain, hone and improve skills is an absolute necessity. Failure to have such a program will result in teacher isolation from each other and mental stagnation.

The third major issue which probably overlaps with the first two elements is a sound instructional program. A program that has a strong basic skill component, hands-on activities in the early elementary for science and math, higher level thinking skills and problem solving activities for children, an advanced placement component, enriching activities (art, music, physical education) and be in a district that has high expectations for administrators, teachers and children.

A fourth element would be active parent involvement. Parents must be included because they will eventually become involved one way or another. To only include parents when you need them, i.e., a millage issue, is not in the best interest of the school district.

Dr. James Doyle is an associate superintendent in the Troy School District. The answers provided here are the opinions of Doyle and not the Troy School District. Questions for this column should be sent to Doc Doyle c/o the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Rotary honors 2 SC students

Schoolcraft College students Patrick Lindberg and Carol Lynn McIntyre were awarded Livonia Rotary scholarships for winter semester.

Schoolcraft College and Rotary Club President Richard McDowell hosted the students at the Jan. 30 club meeting.

Lindberg, a 1987 John Glenn High School graduate, is an education major. He plans to teach high school students. His goal is to bring enthusiasm to the classroom and let students know that he cares about them as individuals.

"I want to excel in my chosen profession to ensure that future students receive a quality education," Lindberg said.

McIntyre, a 1980 high school graduate, is enrolled in the college's applied marketing and management program. She has worked in the business field and her work experiences confirmed her career choice.

McIntyre's goals include "earning a bachelor's degree, gaining additional experience in sales and marketing, and eventually owning my own business."

Last year's Rotary scholarship recipients, Livonia residents Julie Andree and Erin Andrews, earned high grade point averages while at Schoolcraft and were given scholarships by their transfer universities.

March 12 has special meaning for Audrey Hollandsworth and her son, Robert. That was the day in 1984 when doctors transplanted a healthy kidney, donated by her son, into the Livonia resident.

A son's gift Family is still celebrating 5 years after transplant

By Sue Mason
staff writer

Audrey Hollandsworth, her husband Ronald, their sons and daughters-in-law and grandchildren got together Sunday for a christening. And so did thousands of other families. Just a typical Sunday in America.

But for Audrey, the party had a special significance. It was a milestone of sorts. The Livonia resident was celebrating her fifth anniversary of a life saving transplant operation.

You see, Audrey in 1984 gave the gift of life to her son Robert. In 1984, Robert reciprocated and gave the gift of life to his mother. The gift was one of his kidneys.

"I've never felt better in my life," Audrey said. "But then I didn't know what feeling good felt like until my operation. My cousin told me to taste life to the fullest and make it a masterpiece and that's what I'm doing."

"I'm happy to be around, really happy," Audrey's saga started in 1971 when they family lived in Westland. She was diagnosed as having Wegner's Granuloma, a rare disease in which small amounts of dead cells pile up in organs. In Audrey's case, they settled in her kidneys. She didn't have any problems for 11 years even though she only had 50 percent use of her kidneys.

But in 1982, things took a turn for the worse, and eventually she was on dialysis twice a week. But Audrey was among a group of patients who can't tolerate the blood cleansing treatment. She was "sick all the time and threw up constantly." She was so weak she "couldn't get out of bed or off of the couch."

DESPITE THE discomfort, she continued the treatments for 1 1/2 years. By 1985, she weighed a mere 113 pounds and couldn't get out of bed or off of the couch.

"I never really thought I was going to die, but I knew I was real, real sick," she said.

After nine months of dialysis, it became apparent Audrey needed a kidney transplant. Her three sons meet with her doctors; they "wanted to know what was going on, what was going to happen to me and what I needed."

'I've never felt better in my life. But then I didn't know what feeling good felt like until my operation. My cousin told me to taste life to the fullest and make it a masterpiece and that's what I'm doing.'

— Audrey Hollandsworth

Audrey said. That's when doctors brought up the subject of a transplant. The sons agreed, but, according to Robert, they waited until Audrey made the decision.

"She had to be certain the dialysis wouldn't work, then she asked for the kidney transplant," Robert said.

Her husband offered one of his kidneys for the transplant, but her three sons were the likely donors because of their blood relationship with their mother.

Testing narrowed the donor down to her youngest son, Thomas, whose blood type matched that of his mother's. Preparation for the transplant began with blood transfusions. It was during those transfusions that doctors discovered Audrey's immune system was building antibodies, an indication that she would reject the new kidney.

"It went right up to the 11th hour," said Robert. "They were transfusing his blood into"

At K mart, chic is checking in HIGH fashion at K mart. Sound like an oxymoron?

Not anymore. K mart is joining other discount stores in offering chic styling at low prices.

"We're giving the customer what she wants — terrific fashion looks at a great price," said Debra Grafton, vice-president and general merchandise manager of ladies and girls apparel for K mart Corp.

They recently showed off their hot 1989 fashions at the corporate headquarters in Troy.

Consider the Beverly Hills Blues collection, exclusive for K mart. Bermuda shorts, oversized T-shirts, and capri pants in fluorescent brights with black.

Or Jaclyn Smith's summer collection. Hot tropical prints — yellow, bright red, turquoise and black; capri pants; walking shorts and soft blouses and skirts.

Her transitional line debuts in June — batik prints in navy, red and black also reflect soft dressing.

Jaclyn Smith's fall jackets are shown in hot pink, emerald and cobalt blue with black wool pants or skirts and soft print blouses. The ultimate in tailored career wear for the working woman. Debuts end of August.

Weathered Blues, the ladies denim line, features off-the-shoulder white tops with a multi-layered tiered skirt. Once again, capri pants are making a big hit.

In the Riverstone line, the safari look takes a departure from khaki. Red/white/black travelwear; loden green pants with a red sweater. Simple Addition's knitwear blends knit tops with capri pants in purples, hot pinks, jade and black/white.

Shelly Michaels' two-piece dressing shows chalcals prints in bright colors with fall earthen tones.

Paisley and floral skirts paired up with cotton sweatshirts or tissue faille polyester blouses are a hallmark of Greenwich Square's career clothes.

And, in the more sporty lines, Cancun Club offers tank tops, camisoles and shorts in muted madras plaids and solids.

ONE OF K mart's fastest growing departments is bodywear, according to Grafton. Once again, blacks with neon citrus colors — pinks, limes and turquoise are popular.

K mart's Stroke of Midnight lingerie got a big round of applause and whistles. There were teddies with tails in red, black and bright colors, some with satin trims.

Men's fashions also have been making strides. "We've been working on making a fashion statement for 3-3 1/2 years," said Bob Moore, vice-president and general manager of men's, boys, infants and fashion accessories.

"The young men's dressup look has come on strongly in the past eight to 12 months in the mass market. Prior to that, we stayed away from it and concentrated on sportswear and traditional lines."

In the casual wear, Private Club makes cotton sweaters and Limited Edition designs sweaters with leather trim.

For younger men, there are Eisenhower jackets and double-breasted unconstructed jackets made of polyester/nylon in blacks, greys, whites and blues. Surface interests are woven into the fabrics to give a variation of color and texture.

Neon looks are in for surf gear — black and grey backgrounds with bright colors. Bermuda shorts, jam lengths and tank tops and muscle shirts are making a splash.

Bomber jackets in leather, crinkle or washed nylon are trendy. "The motorcycle look is coming back," Moore said.

In casual pants, bugle boy looks are popular — fuller seat and hip, narrow cuff with trims and pocket treatments.

Dear Lorene Green,

I am 37 years young and am right-handed. I have always been interested in handwriting analysis and have been wondering if you could help me put some things in proper perspective. This last year and a half I have been going through many changes; career, appearance and the attitudes of my children and husband seem different.

Thanks in advance for your consideration.

A.F., Westland

Dear A.F.,

With all the changes occurring in your life, I'm quite certain changes are also occurring in your handwriting. However, without being able to see past handwriting samples for comparison, I am unable to make further comments.

This handwriting tells me you are gifted in the use of words. You have many modes of expressing yourself. Whatever the situation calls for, you are verbally ready.

Well-developed tact and charm shine forth. Other times you are frank and open. A humorous touch can make you quite social and entertaining. Your quick wit can bring out the cutting critic at times.

I think you could excel in any field of endeavor where words and communications are important. You also appear to have an aptitude for making money in investments or dealing with money in some manner.

Your world is often viewed through rose-colored glasses. I can almost hear you and Annie harmonizing on "The Sun Will Come Out Tomorrow."

You seek a harmonious atmosphere in your relationships. And a high priority on inner peace is yours. Still, a tad of jealousy is noted here.

AMBITIONNESS can be found in your handwriting. You have a need to be outstanding and probably don't shun the center of attention. Having your own way is welcomed.

There are many things which you desire to call your own. And there are possessions to which you cling. You may not find it easy to give of yourself freely, without expecting something in return.

Now for the part of your handwriting, which seems contradictory and may be representative of the changes you mentioned.

It seems possible you are going through a period where you seek to maintain some distance between yourself and others. Perhaps you do not wish to be influenced by another's thinking and/or actions.

Your objectivity has been developed at the expense of spontaneity. You are intellectualizing rather than feeling. Although well organized, you will assume those involvements you can readily complete.

Before starting, you consider all aspects so you will not be overwhelmed at a later time by the unexpected. You appear to be more at ease with things which you can control, than with people who are often unpredictable.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Complete signature, date of birth and handedness are all helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Even making meals is a pleasure for Audrey Hollandsworth, who five years ago found herself literally bed-ridden because of kidney failure brought on by Wegner's Granuloma disease.

hers when her antibodies began attacking his blood."

After more testing, Robert was selected as the donor.

"IT SEEMED like they spent forever with those tests, but they wanted to be very cautious and protect the donor," he said. "Once you take a kidney out, you can't put it back."

The fates were with the Hollandsworths on March 12, 1984. Audrey got her new kidney, which started working immediately. She remained in the hospital a month as the result of a bladder infection she developed.

"I could feel I was getting better as soon as I came to," Audrey said.

Audrey doesn't recall much about the pain. Her doctors believe she has blocked it out of her memory. It's a case of "as time goes by, the pain is easy to forget," she said.

Other than the discomfort of the surgery, Robert "hasn't missed a beat" since leaving the hospital, although he admits he "was miserable while I was in there."

"It hasn't hindered me in any way, shape or form," he said.

Robert is modest about the transplant. He doesn't see himself as any more courageous than his brothers. It was, he said, "just a matter of which son had the right chemistry."

"When you see your mother go from a strong and healthy woman to 100 pounds . . . it really wasn't much of a decision," he said. "No one of us was anymore courageous than the other."

A March 12 hasn't gone by that Audrey, Ronald, Robert and his wife Lorraine haven't observed the anniversary. They've gone out to dinner and even to Hawaii to celebrate.

Today, Audrey is enjoying life. She travels with her husband and spends plenty of time with her grandchildren.

"I TAKE extra pleasure in seeing them grow up, that's why I like to be around them," she said. "I've been at death's door, so that's why every day is so great."

She feels blessed with each new day and thanks to the transplant, she has been able to dance at her son's wedding and watch her family grow with the addition of five more grandchildren. (She had three grandsons at the time of the surgery and within four months' time had three granddaughters.)

She has a message for people needing kidney transplants. It's just one word — hope. Never lose hope for a transplant or hope that it'll work, she said.

ADA: 'Take charge of your health'

The American Diabetes Association has a simple request of you. On Tuesday, March 21, it would like you to "take charge of your health."

The association has picked Tuesday for its second annual American Diabetes Alert. The awareness campaign aims at alerting Americans who are at risk of developing diabetes and locating those people who may already have the disease and are unaware of it.

"Despite the success of last year's alert, there are still millions of Americans with diabetes who don't even know they have it," said Dr. Jose Goldman, president of the American Diabetes Association, Michigan Affiliate, and a diabetologist at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. "Therefore, we are stepping up our efforts to find the estimated five million 'hidden diabetics.'"

In Michigan, 460,000 residents have diabetes. About 180,000 of these people have diabetes and don't know it, Goldman said.

A special alert is being made this year during the alert to reach American Indians, blacks and Hispanics. The rate of diabetes among these people is much higher than average, Goldman said.

DIABETES IS a chronic disease whereby the body doesn't produce or properly use insulin, a hormone that is needed to convert sugar, starches and other food into energy. The resulting high blood sugar can severely damage the heart, blood vessels, kidneys, eyes and nerves. If left untreated, it can lead to death.

During the alert, written diabetes self-assessment quizzes, — "Put Your Health to the Test — Take Charge of Your Health" — will be distributed to the public by ADA chapters, participating businesses — Perry Drug stores, General Motors and Meljers — service clubs and hospitals.

Test scores will help people determine if they are at a low or high risk of developing diabetes.

Copies of the quiz and more information on diabetes are available by calling the ADA Michigan Affiliate at 1-800-525-9292.

Year later Assemblies look ahead

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In one year, the Assemblies of God church was left with two black eyes. And the local church was often left holding the ice bag.

Shock and dismay was the first reaction to both the Rev. Jim Bakkers and the Rev. Jimmy Swaggart's fiascoes. A year later, leaders of local Assemblies of God churches can assess any ripple effect.

"I think (the church) hasn't totally recovered yet, myself," said the Rev. Phil DiMusto, who is youth pastor at Tri-City Assembly of God in Canton. "The most visible way was in attendance. There were some people turned off by the whole affair. I can't blame them really."

"THEY FELT betrayed and hurt. Many people believed in what those people stood for."

Yet while DiMusto reports a 2-3 percent drop in attendance at his 300-member church, other Assemblies of God pastors present a happy face. Most said the scandals had little or no effect on their places of worship.

Some have even said it has strengthened their church. One of those is the Rev. Jack Williams, whose United Assembly of God Church in Plymouth has 300 members.

"I think there has been a return to the local church and more of a commitment to the local church," said Williams, who's been pastor at United Assembly of God Church for 10 years. "Sometimes as pastors, we feel we've had to compete with these flamboyant preachers. I think it caused a bit of a stigma."

The Rev. Richard Williams of Garden City Assembly of God echoed similar sentiments. He said there has been no loss of membership at his church.

But as people became disenchanted with televangelists, they have turned to their local church. Money that used to go to the Swaggarts and Bakkers is staying home.

The Rev. William Leach is district superintendent for Lower Michigan of the Assemblies of God Church. He said things are "business as usual."

IN FACT, the Assemblies of God Church is gearing up for "Harvest 1990," a movement designed to increase church growth nationwide. The goal is to have 5,000 new Assemblies of God churches in the United States, 100 in Michigan alone.

"I think (scandals) has had very little noticeable impact on us," said Leach, whose district includes 245 Michigan churches with 60,000 members. "It didn't interrupt any programs or affect church attendance in any way."

"If anything, it recognized the need to get back to basics."

Back to basics for many pastors means that people are putting more faith in God instead of any one evangelist. Said Richard Williams: "In the Assemblies of God, the focus is not on man, but Christ himself."

Also, the scandals have allowed pastors to reassess their role in the church. Many say there is a closer eye on them, which they believe is good in the long run.

"Where there is no accountability, man tends to take advantage of that," said Jack Williams. "We pastors have to tighten our belts. We are watched to make sure we're accountable to the church board and to the people."

That's something apparently the fellow pastors on the television pulpit had forgotten.

National Day of Prayer to be observed May 4

The 37th consecutive observance of National Day of Prayer will be Thursday, May 4. Although days of prayers are found throughout our history and the National Day of Prayer has been in existence since 1952, this is the day's first year as a specific calendar date.

After unanimous action of both house of Congress, former President Ronald Reagan signed the bill making the National Day of Prayer the first Thursday of every May.

The National Day of Prayer Task Force and its parent, the National Prayer Committee, urge all Americans to become personally involved in the observance.

"Now that the National Day of Prayer is a specific day that can be anticipated and found on our calendars, we trust that many more Americans will join thanking God for His many blessings upon this land and in prayer for the future of our nation," said Vonette Bright, who is co-chairman along with entertainer Pat Boone of the National Day of Prayer Task Force.

The National Day of Prayer Task Force is responsible for coordinating and distributing information and materials to interested people around the country. Its goal is to help make people aware of their right, privilege and responsibility to pray for our nation, its leaders and its people on this day.

moral perspectives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

A goal of perfection can leave us short

Human perfection is considered to be a goal of existence. Yet, it is possible to become so obsessed with the grand ideal of human perfection that we lose sight of lesser goals. The striving toward perfection can sometimes become an impediment to a meaningful life.

We often hear people say, "If I cannot do it 100 percent, then I will not do it at all." Little do they realize how much of a delusion that attitude is, and how precious years can waste away succumbing to the myth of total perfection.

Perfection can, of course, be a noble goal, but when it prevents us from making any progress at all, and when it keeps us from even starting on the road to personal improvement or achievement, then it becomes our master and we become enslaved.

To demand total perfection out of life is to be unrealistic. When a repairman comes to a home, he gives only an estimate of what the job will cost. No homeowner will demand a perfect accounting of cost before the job is completed.

The Salk vaccine proved effective on 99 percent of the original testing. What would have happened if the researchers had insisted on a 100-percent effectiveness before they permitted the vaccine to be issued to the public? Many lives would have been lost.

JUST BECAUSE one can't be an Einstein doesn't mean that one should not pursue the study of mathematics. Just because one can't be a saint, doesn't mean that one should not try to be a better person.

There is no place in our world for the attitude "all or nothing" because there would be no progress at all, if we insisted on maximal standards.

All of this, of course, does not imply that we must cease striving for ultimate greatness. We should labor zealously toward the realization of our highest ideals. But we should also realize that a partial goal is deeply rewarding and valuable.

PROGRESS IS often made by means of small satisfactions along the road of life. Sometimes an interim or provisional achievement encourages us to keep up our struggle for improving.

An ancient legend declares that when God made the world, he left it in an unfinished state. God did not create a perfect world, according to this explanation, but left it for man to improve.

In this way, man becomes a partner with God when he strives to bring the world toward its ultimate perfection — when wars will cease and poverty will be abolished, sickness cured and hatred overthrown.

Man must struggle for this in the imperfect world, but he dare not surrender just because he cannot clearly envision the ultimate perfection.

EVERY LITTLE accomplishment adds to the ultimate harmony and perfection of the universe. Inevitable partial fulfillment, every achievement, no matter how limited, is vital in this struggle for perfection.

Man can only narrow the gap, he will not complete the task, but at least he should constantly try.

Perfection is the end of the journey. The tool will not start out the fear of not reaching the end. The wise person will travel all day, all his life.

Household batteries require safe disposal

Q. We've just had the first wave of battery replacement on Christmas toys, etc. I'm wondering if these old batteries are safe to throw in with my household trash.

A. Several environmental groups are working on this issue of discarded batteries — including one in Grosse Pointe — because there are two major environmental concerns with putting these batteries in with the household trash:

• If discarded batteries are burned in incinerators, the heavy metals may end up as toxic pollutants or as toxic substances in the resulting ash.

• If batteries are landfilled (and most are), the heavy metals may leach out and contaminate underlying groundwater.

In the U.S. some two-and-one-half million batteries are discarded each year. These batteries range from the fat 'D' type to the tiny button-type batteries used in hearing aids and watches. Annual sales are growing at an 8 percent rate.

Eight major metals are used in household batteries: mercury, cadmium, lead, lithium, manganese dioxide, silver, nickel and zinc. OSHA (Occupational Safety & Health Act) has set workplace exposure limits for these metals because of their highly dangerous characteristics.

Tests run in different part of the country by Signal Environmental Systems found high concentrations of metals, such as mercury, cadmium, nickel and zinc. They determined that consumer household batteries were a prominent source of these heavy metals.

All household batteries contain four main components: anode, cathode, electrolyte and casing.

The anode or negative electrode is made up of toxic heavy metals such as zinc or lithium. The anode gives up electrons to the surrounding electrolyte, a non-toxic liquid. The electrons pass through the liquid to the cathode (positive electrode) which is made up of metallic oxides such as manganese oxide. Thus, the electric current is made. Most batteries contain some mercury which is used to prevent the various metals from reacting with each other. The battery casing also contains some metals.

Alkaline batteries made up primarily of manganese dioxide and zinc are currently the number one seller with predictions that these batteries will control 75 percent of the market by 1990.

What can the consumer do to reduce pollution from these household batteries? There are three options:

1. Not use them. However, that means getting rid of a lot of appliances and toys that require batteries for use.

2. Buy rechargeable batteries. These are most often made up of nickel/cadmium or lithium. They cost more than non-rechargeable batteries and require the added expense of a separate recharger. However, these batteries can be recharged up to 1000 times and the nickel and cadmium can be reclaimed which results in less pollutants into the waste stream and environment.

3. Work to start household battery recycling. Several battery recycling projects have been started on the East Coast. A Vermont/New Hampshire group has collected 10,000 pounds of batteries in one year through a drop-off collection program. The drop-off sites are located in stores that sell batteries. These batteries are then sorted by type and returned to the manufacturer for recycling or disposal in a hazardous waste landfill.

Frostbite is a problem for older people

Dear Jo:

Are older people, because of their age, more susceptible to frostbite? What are the symptoms, and how should it be treated?

Mr. B.D.
Dryden Resident

Dear Mr. D.:

With aging, we all become more susceptible to frostbite. The reasons are many and complex — there is a decrease in the subcutaneous fat lying just under the skin that acts as an insulator against the cold; there is a decrease in muscle mass, so less heat is generated through exercise; also, with age, there is a decrease in the basal metabolic rate, another producer of heat. Older people do not sense cold as easily as younger people and their ability to regulate body temperature is reduced. Heat loss for those in this age group can occur rapidly — frostbite can often lead to hypothermia and, in some, even to death.

Frostbite is divided up into three categories, ranging from mild to serious — frostnip, superficial frostbite, and deep frostbite.

Frostnip can come on so slowly that one may not even be aware that it is occurring as the extremities may already feel cold and somewhat numb. The first hint of frostnip is numbness, followed by a whitening of the skin. The best treatment is to get out of the cold, then provide direct application of warmth (not intense heat) to the affected part. For example, if your nose is frostnipped, cover it with your warm hands; if it's your hands that are cold, place them in your warm armpits. The warm application will cause the skin to tingle and it may even burn. With this immediate and easy treatment there should not be any lasting injury.

Superficial frostbite, which is more serious, requires medical treatment: The affected area will appear very white, and will feel hard on the surface. First aid treatment involves getting in out of the cold and warming the area, preferably by placing the part in warm (not hot) water. Avoid dry or uncontrolled heat such as a campfire or a radiator. Do not massage the area or rub it with snow.

Reduce risk by diversifying

Financial Position

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participant's resources and goals. This month's profiled couple, Bob and Sharon Bell, are progressing well toward their financial goals, but they realize there is room for improvement. Bob, 40, and Sharon, 39, both have secure administrative positions with large companies. Their combined income is $83,000 per year.

FAMILY FINANCES

One of their primary goals is an ambitious program to save for their retirement. Bob and Sharon would like to retire with an inflation-adjusted income equal to their current combined income. Although they both have good retirement plans through their employers, they must personally save a great deal between now and their retirement to meet this goal.

Two factors weigh in their favor. First, they do not intend to retire until they reach age 62 to 65, providing them with 22 to 25 years of growth and compound interest on their investments. Second, they are saving significant amounts of their combined gross income each year (10 to 15 percent).

The Bottom Line

Financial strengths

- Steady employment and good incomes
- Automatic savings plans in place
- Relatively little debt outstanding
- Good insurance coverage

Financial weaknesses

- High tax liability
- Collectibles not adequately insured
- Portfolio unbalanced - too much stock

Learn the 'trade' of speechwriting

By Peggy Aullino staff writer

Alan M. Perlman writes speeches for a living, but last week it was his turn to face a crowd from behind the podium.

The occasion was a luncheon meeting of the Detroit Chapter of the International Association of Business Communicators. Perlman, a speechwriter on the public relations staff at General Motors, used humor and catchy phrases to make his points.

But the first rule of thumb he offered — that a speaker should not start out with a quote about public speaking because "they're so damned negative" — was one he found necessary to break.

"What orators lack in depth," he recited, "they make up for in length." For the next 30 minutes, he told the audience of about 90 how to avoid being shallow and long-winded.

The speechwriter's product should be "a warm, living, human piece of communication," Perlman said. But he told the group at the Radisson Plaza Town Center in Southfield that before creating the speech, the writer needs some tools of the trade.

FOR PERLMAN, a West Bloomfield resident, the tools range from the obvious to the obscure. The tape recorder he showed the group is used while gathering information from the person who will be giving the speech. But the next thing he held up was a utility knife, an item more likely to be found on a carpenter's belt than in a writer's desk drawer.

"Think of it as your hunting knife," Perlman said, explaining that he uses it to clip idea-inspiring articles from periodicals.

Perlman is the author of a soon-to-be-published book, "Write Choices: New Options for Effective Communication." He has a doctorate in linguistics and is a former university professor.

"My goal is to help you follow some old advice: Don't learn the tricks of the trade. Learn the trade," he said.

Perlman also recommended using sports metaphors in speeches. "There are a lot of parallels between corporate life and sports."

But some audience members said later they are not always comfortable using — or hearing — sports metaphors.

"If I use something about boxing, some of the men may get it, but I have totally just blown away my female audience," said Roger Watkins, a management systems specialist at General Dynamics. "One of my prerequisites is consider your audience."

Kimberly Welch, special projects coordinator at MVP Communications in Troy, said she has "been at places where I've been offended" by sports-related remarks.

"Maybe because I'm a woman I don't relate to sports metaphors much," said Welch.

She suggested that Perlman peppers his speeches with references to sports because the people for whom he writes — GM executives — usually speak to primarily male audiences. Perlman agreed with the assessment.

He also said he is "not a great sports fan" but his work forces him to "remain conversational" in the sports arena.

"I could just as well pick something from Homer and have GM be the Greeks and Ford be the Trojans, but that wouldn't fly," he said.

Etkin marks 50 years as general contractor

By Mary Rodrigue staff writer

By night Alex J. Etkin was an architectural student at the Detroit Institute of Technology. By day he worked in the newly constructed Brewster housing projects with plumbing and heating and electrical contractors.

"I like architecture but I didn't like the functioning and design," said Etkin, who today presides over one of the top general contracting companies in southeastern Michigan.

Armed with his architectural degree, Etkin admits "I never practiced a day in my life. I've done everything but since then."

Etkin's appreciation for good design remains intact. On the wall of his Farmington Hills office are two large photo reproductions of sketches of the Lafayette Towers under construction. They are signed by Mies van der Rohe, who designed the twin towers east of downtown Detroit. Etkin had asked the world famous architect for the original sketches, but they were already willed to the Museum of Modern Art in New York.

"After that job, we could do anything. We earned our merit badges," said Etkin, who as general contractor put up risk money to ensure the architect would get paid.

"During construction, I visited him regularly in Chicago. He was one of my favorite architects. This was his only Detroit project."

The two 22-story towers were erected almost 30 years ago. But Etkin's career started two decades before that.

FROM A MODEST two-person office above a drugstore near Livestock and Davison, Etkin built his company on jobs ranging from the Herman Gardens housing projects on Detroit's westside to airport paving at Selfridge Field.

"When I actually got started in business for myself, an electrical contractor asked me to put in all the underground work for him — foundations for lighting, cable. He originally put up the money. He thought I should be able to do it in three months.

"I did it in two months. I had the work men and the organization. I made $1,700. From then on, I was a contractor."

Through the 1940s Etkin worked with electrical contractors in auto plants, then mostly did steampipe distribution work in housing projects.

After a four-year stint in the U.S. Army during World War II, he spent four years constructing air bases in northern Michigan, including Wurtmuth in Oscoda and Sawyer near Marquette.

In the metro Detroit area, his work is everywhere. Following Lafayette Towers, A.J. Etkin Construction Co. built the Pontchartrain Hotel, Terminals at Metro Airport, the Oakland Mall in Troy and the Northland Mall enclosure followed.

Etkin is especially proud of the Metro Airport terminal.

"It's one of the better reinforced concrete buildings in the country. Six columns support the whole thing," he said.

ETKIN'S REVENUES have exceeded $100 million annually for the past three years. A business publicaplan with his employer, using after-tax dollars. The contributions are not tax-deductible, but the money is not taxed unless it is withdrawn.

Because their effective marginal tax bracket (the tax they pay on the last dollar they earn) is 37 1/2 percent, including state income tax, the Bells could save significant taxes if Bob elects to participate in his company 401(k) plan instead. Bob could defer $7,427 in 1989 from his salary on a tax-deductible basis.

There is almost no advantage to the regular (after-tax) stock savings plan over the 401(k) because of the changes brought about by recent tax legislation. Prior to 1987, any withdrawals made were first considered a return of the employee's after-tax contributions and thus it was often possible to "withdraw" significant amounts from the plan without any current taxation.

Withdrawal of contributions made after 1986, however, will likely result in taxation of at least a portion of the withdrawal, as well as an excise tax penalty of 10 percent if Bob makes his withdrawal prior to age 59 1/2. The 401(k) is a good vehicle for Bob to save for retirement, especially because his employer matches a percentage of his elective contributions.

THE BELLS inherited $30,000 in shares of the Dreyfus Fund, a diversified stock mutual fund. Currently the dividends are reinvested automatically.

"Would it be wiser to take the dividends in cash and invest them elsewhere?" Bob asked.

For growth-oriented investors, we believe it is usually best to reinvest dividends so that the growth can be compounded automatically. The only exception to this rule would be an instance where it was felt that too much was invested in that particular investment fund already.

Bob and Sharon are concerned about the policies of companies whose stock is bought by their mutual fund.

"We do not wish to make any investments in companies doing business in South Africa or in any companies known to be adversely affecting the environment or animal lives."

They are looking for what is commonly referred to as "socially responsible investments."

Dreyfus has a fund specifically oriented toward such investing — the Dreyfus Third Century Fund. It is a growth fund that evaluates companies in areas of environmental protection, proper use of natural resources, occupational health and safety standards, consumer protection and equal employment opportunity.

After they have reviewed this portfolio to determine the reasonableness of such an investment, they could transfer their money currently with Dreyfus into this fund. The transfer would be a taxable transaction, and any gain on the Dreyfus Fund would be taxed in 1989.

A CAUTIONARY NOTE: The Bells' portfolio is heavily weighted toward the stock market. Not only is the mutual fund fully invested in stocks, but Bob's stock savings plan and some of their IRAs are invested in the stock market as well. This adds up to approximately 70 percent of their portfolio and leaves them exposed to significant losses in the case of a major downward movement in the stock market.

We believe they should cushion this risk by reallocating Bob's stock savings plan. He has five investment options from which to choose, including a guaranteed interest option. A portion of his plan should be directed into this fixed income option to provide an anchor for their portfolio.

The Bells appear to have sufficient life, disability, health and auto insurance coverage. But they own approximately $20,000 in collectibles (art, antiques, coins) for which they have not bought special insurance coverage. Each of these items should be separately appraised and covered under their homeowners policy as "listed property" on a rider attached to their policy.

Should a loss occur without obtaining the separate "listed property" coverage, the normal insurance policy would cover only a small portion of the value of these collectibles. Purchase of the rider to their homeowners policy can add full coverage for these valuable items.

BOB AND Sharon have recently updated their wills but are concerned they may not have done enough.

"Should we have executed a trust as well?" they asked. Under Michigan law, a properly executed will is sufficient to state to whom property of the decedent is to be distributed at death.

The will is part of the probate process. Probate involves the winding up of the decedent's affairs by inventorying the assets, filing documents with the probate court in the county where the decedent lived, and eventually distributing the assets pursuant to a probate court order.

To the extent that Bob and Sharon want to avoid probate, a revocable or living trust can do this, while still offering total control and flexibility for both of them during their respective lifetimes. Any assets transferred to the trust prior to death avoid probate because they are titled in the name of the trust and not in the decedent's name.

The trust can also be used to declare "final takers," those parties or entities to whom Bob and Sharon want their property to go upon their joint deaths. Depending upon the size of their gross estate, a trust also might be useful in reducing or eliminating federal estate taxes.

BOB AND Sharon plan to buy a new car within the next two to three years. Bob is considering borrowing against his stock savings at an interest rate of 2 percent below prime instead of taking a conventional car loan.

We would suggest that he start saving now for this major purchase by setting up an "escrow" account — a separate account at a bank or money market, fund into which monthly contributions are made.

In this manner, the Bells can accumulate the bulk of the money needed to buy the car, and any borrowing should be minimal. Even if the money from his stock savings plan can be borrowed at below market rates, Bob is losing the earnings that money could be generating within the plan.

Many of the pieces of the strategy required to meet Bob and Sharon's financial goals are in place. With some modifications to their portfolio and investment vehicles, their goals are easily reachable.

tion pegs Etkin as the fifth leading general contractor in southeast Michigan, a listing Etkin doesn't dispute.

A second office was established in Denver almost a decade ago. A current project, Cherry Creek, will be the largest shopping center in Denver when completed. Local projects under way include a 300,000-square-foot office research facility in Auburn Hills and Harbortown Phase II in Detroit. Etkin expanded operations west when his son, Bruce, was an engineering student at the University of Colorado.

Bruce and Etkin's other son, Douglas, an attorney, are partners in Etkin Equities, a major real estate development firm concentrated in the Farmington Hills, Southfield and Troy area.

"They like developing better than construction. I prefer construction," he said.

A massive color glossy panoramic view of the Detroit skyline from Windsor hangs over Etkin's desk in his plush Farmington Hills office, accented with black leather furniture. Another smaller print, a watercolor of downtown Detroit by a Wayne State art department chairman, is also displayed. Near the van der Rohe sketches, there's a caricature of the 70-year-old Etkin, huge Havana cigar in hand, dressed in a suit topped with a white hard hat. The cigar is a trademark, although he admits he has cut down from four to one a day.

JUST A FEW weeks ago, Etkin Construction hosted an open house at the new headquarters on Northwestern Highway near Middlebelt to celebrate the beginning of its 50th year of operation.

"We are extremely proud that many clients call on us repeatedly for their construction needs," he said.

Etkin said his firm has been successful because of high professional standards, workmanship and outstanding people. The willingness to take risks also played a big part.

"Nothing scared me. I thought I knew what I was doing. At Lafayette Towers, we brought in the first Swedish equipment — elevators and new types of cranes. I was never afraid to take a chance. My theory was, as long as I had good health, I could do anything. I was also always fortunate to have good people." There are more than 100 permanent workers employed by the firm today.

Etkin also prides himself in a continuing good relationship with the labor force. "We've always cooperated with labor," he said.

Etkin is a past president of the Associated General Contractors local and a life director of the national association, which has more than 8,000 contractor members.

He is also on the board of governors of Technion-Israel Institute of Technology in Haifa.

Annuities help ease retirement

Employees of hospital, educational and other qualified institutions are allowed to participate in a retirement program called the tax-sheltered annuity. Here are the key changes affecting TSA brought about by the passage of the New Tax Law, which has been compiled by a leading insurance company.

BEGINNING Jan. 1, 1989, you will not be permitted to make withdrawals before you reach 59 1/2 unless you: (1) die, (2) become disabled, (3) separate from service with your employer, (4) prove financial hardship, (5) make a permitted TEFRA loan, or (6) roll over your policy to another TSA or an IRA. Financial hardship withdrawals may be made only from your contributions to your policy.

The new withdrawal rules do not apply to your pre-1989 policy value. You may continue to make withdrawals under your policy as you have in the past from such funds.

It is your policy value at Dec. 31, 1988 and is shown on your year-end annuity statement. It will not include any increases (premium payments or interest credits) in your policy value after Dec. 31, 1988.

Although regulations which clarify the "financial hardship" exception for TSA policies have not been issued by the IRS, regulations released by the IRS for other qualified plans require a determination according to certain objective standards made by the employer before such withdrawals are permitted. The IRS is likely to apply similar rules to TSA policies.

Withdrawals before age 59 1/2 (except due to death or disability) are subject to a 10 percent premature withdrawal penalty tax.

YOU MAY STILL take out loans from a TSA policy. The maximum loan amount is the lesser of (1) $50,000 or (2) one-half of the policy value (but not less than $10,000). The maximum loan amount is subject to the loan provisions under your policy.

The loans must be repaid within 5 years (except for loans to acquire your principal residence). Loans must be amortized in substantially level payments made no less frequently than quarterly over the term of the loan.

Loans used to acquire your principal residence must be repaid within a reasonable period of time with substantially level quarterly payments amortizing the loan over the repayment period.

BEGINNING Jan. 1, 1988, individuals who attained age 70 1/2 during a calendar year after December 31, 1987 must satisfy minimum distribution requirements.

The post-1986 policy value is used to calculate the minimum distribution requirements. Your entire policy value is used to determine that the minimum incidental death benefit requirements are met. The post-1986 policy value includes all premium payments and interest credits to your policy after December 31, 1986.

The post-1986 policy value must be distributed over one of the following periods: (1) your lifetime, (2) the lives of you and your beneficiary, or (3) a period not extending beyond your life expectancy or the joint lives of you and your beneficiary.

Life expectancy is determined under IRS regulations and may be recalculated annually.

The distribution requirements for the pre-1987 policy value (your policy value at December 31, 1986) have been interpreted to require a distribution method under which the present value of all payments to you had to be at least 50 percent of the present value of all payments to be made under the distribution method. So, in effect, the distribution rules for the pre-1987 value have been grandfathered.

Everything old is new again

If you are the type who remembers snowstorms when you were a child in which the snow came up to your chin, Jim Wren is the type who reminds you that it was because you were just three feet tall.

Wren supervises the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association patent library, a job that, among other things, means he takes calls from auto engineers who think they invented something, and determines whether it had been invented before. It always was.

After 30 years or so rummaging through all the harebrained ideas ever inspired by the automobile, Wren is certain everything has been done before. The only question is when.

For example, he traces four-wheel steering, an esoteric idea only put on the road last year by a few avant-garde Japanese manufacturers, back to the late 18th century.

Yeah, I know. You didn't even know there was a car built in the late 18th century, let alone a car with four-wheel steering. You don't argue with Wren on these subjects. More important, you don't bet against him. BUT IT IS on the subject of cultural history, rather than technical tire tracks left on the sands of time, where Wren excels.

auto talk

Wren collected a few of these cultural oddities in a paper called "The Automobile, the Unwanted Child," which somehow slipped into the usual assortment of technical papers at this year's Society of Automotive Engineers convention.

It's an intriguing vision of an inventive America in conflict with the status quo, a reminder that progress is not necessarily good for everybody all of the time. More important, Wren reminds us that much of our inventiveness was promoted by discomforts long since forgotten.

If you thought auto emissions are part of the technological fallout of the mid 20th century, Wren reminds you that the average horse produced 22 pounds of manure per day. That's an emission problem.

Cars, in fact, were, at one time viewed as an environmental savior, at least until gasoline superceded the relatively clean power sources, electricity and steam.

THEN PROBLEMS set in.

Cars scared horses, despite Pat. No. 30551, issued in 1899 for a car body disguised as a horse's head. Speeding was a problem as well, and in lieu of radar, police strung ropes across the road to stop the reckless.

Pat. No. 1,122,742, in 1914, was a giant pair of scissors mounted on the front of the radiator to cut the rope. Radar detectors were for sissies.

Ah, but things were at least more peaceful then, right? No maniacs shooting at cars on the freeways?

How about irritated farmers, who had a habit of taking potshots at passing motorists, scaring their horses? Pat. No. 645,764, in 1900, was a rotary bullet deflector, a fan-like device that rotated paddle-like shields in both the front and rear of the car, to sort of brush away the bullets.

Demoted automotive genius may have peaked with the introduction of the 1926 "Honeymoon Special" built by the Cleveland Motor Sales Co. of St. Louis. The coupe featured a Pullman bed for two that took a minute to set up; a radio set with an extra speaker mounted above the bed; a full medicine cabinet; and a full-size showerbath fitted in the trunk.

Wren's reminiscences can be disconcerting if you think things always are getting better, comforting if you think things always are getting worse. In fact, this thing called progress seems to be a kind of circular thing, which means in the long run the greatest comfort of all is that we get a second chance.

Dan McCosh is automotive editor of Popular Science Magazine.

HOW MUCH DID YOU LOSE LAST YEAR ON NON-DEDUCTIBLE INTEREST?

UNLESS YOU ACT QUICKLY, THIS YEAR COULD BE WORSE.

As you know, Congress is steadily phasing out interest deductions on most consumer loans. An exception is a loan secured by your home.* Which makes it a great time to apply for a home equity line of credit at First of America Bank.

A Special Offer— All Closing Costs Waived.

When you sign up for a home equity line by May 31, 1989, we'll waive your closing costs—a savings of up to $400. But you must act by May 31.

Put The Deduction Back In Your Interest.

The Federal tax laws allow you to use your home equity line of credit for any purpose you want. And in most cases, on loans all the way up to $100,000, you still get to take a 100 percent tax deduction.

You also may pay a lower interest rate along with those lower taxes.

Take Advantage Of Your Tax Break.

Get your tax break with our home equity line of credit. You can use this line instead of other loans that are no longer fully tax deductible.

You can also access your credit line simply by writing a check. And the payment schedule is flexible, too.

However, using the equity in your home is not something you should do without careful consideration. Furthermore, there are some items—like normal living expenses, for example—for which a home equity line of credit is definitely not appropriate.

So stop by your nearest First of America office, or call 1-800-544-6155 for more information. We'll provide you with a free information brochure and an application. We'll also help you determine if a home equity line of credit is right for you.

In no time, we can have your good credit working in your favor.

Weak management threatens business

By Mary DiPaolo
Special writer

"The first problem you see in a troubled company is an absolutely unrealistic management... the owner can't bring himself to see the truth."

So says Abraham Getzler, a New York-based "turnaround" consultant who has helped more than 150 companies "save themselves from going bust" over the past 20 years.

Nationwide there are approximately 200 independent consultants that do turnaround work on a full-time basis, according to the North Carolina-based Turnaround Management Association.

"THERE AREN'T as many crisis consultants out there as are needed, but our industry is definitely growing," Getzler said.

He boasts that 60-70 percent of his clients return to profitability, the majority of which are small businesses. His fee runs about $2,000 per day, with the complete service running from $25,000 to $500,000.

"Although the service is expensive, compare it to the cost of losing a business."

"Relying on a turnaround consultant is a situation no one wants to find themselves in," said Brenda Orlando, a small-business CPA in Oakland County.

"But when a firm has major problems, it's even sadder to see management turn its back rather than facing up to the inevitable—that the business will fall if things don't get turned around—and fast."

GETZLER SAID that for those who have been forced to liquidate, sell or file for protection under Chapter 11, "a lot of them end up on the vodka and Vallum syndrome—and sometimes they just cry."

Industry experts say there are many problems that lead to business failure, but they generally center around the owner/partner.

"Owners pick unsuitable partners or may themselves be the worst person to manage anything, let alone a business," says John Henke, professor of marketing at Oakland University.

HENKE ADDS that business owners who do not focus on customer needs are setting themselves up for trouble.

"Customer markets are like the weather—they're always changing. One must constantly be aware of what's happening in his or her markets."

For additional information regarding turn-around consultant services, call the Turnaround Management Association at 1-919-967-1724.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

Irish, non-Irish ready to celebrate St. Patrick's Day

What's happening during the high holy days? Got a few minutes? Here's a sampling.

• 6 p.m., Thursday, March 16 — the Majestic Theatre presents a Paddy's Eve Party at the Gnome Restaurant at 4124 Woodward Ave. in Detroit. Entertainers will include the band Dooneen from County Clare, the home of traditional music in Ireland; the Kitty Heinzman Celi Dancers; and Fanore, the popular traditional Irish music group.

Lebanese leprechauns will serve culinary delights and a full selection of Irish beers and spirits.

• Noon, Friday, March 17 — the Sharin' o' the Green Mass at Most Holy Trinity Church at Porter and Sixth Streets in Corktown.

The annual liturgy honoring the patron saint of Ireland is occasion for Detroit's Irish to help the hungry and poor who always find an open door at Holy Trinity.

Last St. Patrick's Day, $81,000 was raised. Holy Trinity was built by the Irish 155 years ago and became the first English-speaking Catholic parish in the city. It now ministers to Irish, Mexican, Maltese and Puerto Rican families.

• 4 p.m., Friday, March 17 — the Monaghan K of C Hall will host the fourth annual St. Patrick's Day Festival of Irish Music and Song at 19801 Farmington Road in Livonia.

Performing will be Dooneen, traditional Irish musicians from County Clare, Ireland; champion Highland piper Steve McNell; Belfast balladeer Brendan McNulty; Cape Breton fiddler Jim McNell; Fanore, the Kitty Heinzman Celi Dancers; the Inisheoin Celi Band, and the Scotsaire Pipe Band. Corned beef and cabbage dinners will be served. Admission is $5.

• 8 p.m., Friday, March 17 — the Plymouth Community Band hosts a St. Patrick's Day Concert in Canton High School's Little Theater. Featured will be pieces based on Irish folk melodies as well as marches with Irish themes.

Resident Irishman Kevin Albaugh will solo on the pennywhistle.

The band also will perform the Euryanthe Overture with Eldon Scott as guest conductor, and the Overture to "Candide" by Leonard Bernstein, led by band director Carl Battishill.

The concert is free.

• 8 p.m., Saturday, March 18 — A Feast of Irish Music is on tap at the Gaelic League/Irish-American Club at 2088 Michigan Ave. in Detroit.

Performing for a rousing good house party will be Toronto's Inisheoin Celi Band, and Fanore. Admission is $5. There is a lighted, guarded parking lot.

• 6 p.m., Friday, March 17 — traditional Irish entertainment is featured at the Gnome restaurant in Detroit. Performing will be the Irish folk group Innisfree. There will be Irish food, imported beer and spirits, and secured valet parking.

• 8 p.m., Wednesday, March 22 — the world-famous Chieftains, premier interpreters of traditional Irish music, will perform in Ann Arbor at the University of Michigan's Hill Auditorium. Singer Maura O'Connell will make a guest appearance. Tickets are $5, $8, $10 and $12.

• 7:30 p.m., Friday March 17 — the Ann Arbor Council for Traditional Music and Dance will present its second annual "Celi: an Evening of Authentic Irish Tunes, Tales and Dance."

Pat McDunn and the Irish Gaels play before a crowd at the Hurling Green in Rochester Hills, where they perform on Friday nights. They also appear regularly at the Four Green Fields in Royal Oak. On St. Patrick's Day, the band will host the state's largest St. Patrick's Day party, at Roma's of Bloomfield.

Pat McFun Musical merriment from Irish Gaels

By M.B. Dillon

PAT MCDUNN WON'T be surprised if friendships born or rekindled at his St. Patrick's Day party blossom into a marriage or two.

It's happened at least 185 times since Pat McDunn and the Irish Gaels formed their band.

"This is our ninth year and we've been averaging three marriages a party," said McDunn, who chairs the English Department at Birmingham Brother-Rice High School in Bloomfield Township.

McDunn met his own wife one night while playing at the Hurling Green in Rochester Hills. And fellow band member Dr. Eugene Zwolak of Rochester Hills met his future wife while performing at Filthy McNasty's pub not so long ago.

From 7:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday, March 17, McDunn and the Gaels will host the state's largest St. Patrick's Day party — expected to draw 3,000 Irish and Irish-at-heart to Roma's of Bloomfield in Bloomfield Township.

REVELERS IN Roma's main ballroom will be treated to, as the Irish say, "a good crack." There will be food and drink, dancing, and "Irish love songs, rebel songs, immigration songs, nonsense songs, and the most popular of all, the Irish drinking songs," said McDunn, known in some circles as Pat McFun.

Appearing with McDunn, who is a kazoo maestro and a born bandleader, will be a host of talented musicians and singers.

Jim Perkins of Redford does it all. He plays guitar, the pennywhistle and the harmonica. He is equally at home with Irish songs, comedy and folk music.

Chris Buryta of Ferndale has been with the Gaels for close to 15 years.

Buryta is a whiz on the accordion, a staple on stage when it comes to Irish music.

Marty Burke of Ann Arbor plays 12-string guitar and has a repertoire as vast as the Irish Sea.

Merriment reigns with Irish Gaels

'For me, St. Patrick's Day is the high point of the whole year. It's a positive, happy day. It's a day where Irish heritage and Irish culture are honored. The Irish came to America and made great contributions. I never realized how much so until I got into Irish music.'

Dennis Panars of Pontiac plays guitar and harmonica and stars as "our harmonizer," said McDunn.

Zwolak plays the fiddle and does a foot-stompin' rendition of the Appalachian hit tune, the "Orange Blossom Special." It's big with the dancers. (Accounting for the group's ethnic diversity, McDunn explains, "You have to have a good Polish musician in an Irish band to stabilize things.")

GEORGE FOGGO plays the banjo. A former Detroit policeman, he joins McDunn and the Gaels every St. Patrick's Day.

Droves of the faithful have followed McDunn and the Gaels from pub to pub since their debut in the 1970s. Fans pack Four Green Fields in Royal Oak where the band performs every Saturday, as well as the Hurling Green in Rochester, where the Gaels have played every Friday since the pub opened 14 years ago. McDunn is an ace at remembering names and patrons' favorite songs. And he has fun with his fans. It's typical of him to introduce the local police chief as the owner of a massage parlor in Madison Heights.

For McDunn, there's more to it than just shenanigans.

"Our parties are like reunions," said McDunn, who is 100 percent Irish.

"For me, St. Patrick's Day is the high point of the whole year. It's a positive, happy day. It's a day where Irish heritage and Irish culture are honored. The Irish came to America and made great contributions. I never realized how much so until I got into Irish music."

Roma's is just north of Square Lake Road on the east side of Telegraph Road. Tickets for the St. Pat's Day gala can be purchased at Four Green Fields and at the door. Tickets are $5 in advance, $8 on St. Patrick's Day.

The group Fanore will be among local musicians and dancers featured at the fourth annual St. Patrick's Day Irishfest at the Monaghan K of C Hall in Livonia. Special guest artists from Ireland and Canada also will perform for the evening of traditional Irish music.

Caucus Club

The Birmingham Celtic Pipe & Drums will perform during Caucus Club hours on St. Patrick's Day at the restaurant in downtown Detroit, and there will be a special appearance by Jim Buckingham. The Caucus Club will serve its own Irish Lamb Stew with Steamed Dumplings and Brisket of Corned Beef and Cabbage with horseradish sauce, potatoes and carrots, and hot cross buns.

Auction dinner

Winning bidders in the seventh International Wine Auction recently were served a dinner at Machus Red Fox in Bloomfield Township. Certified Master Chef Leopold Schaeff prepared the dinner, which went for a winning bid of $1,500. On the menu were such courses as Breast of Falsan Stuffed, with glaze chestnuts; Tenderloin of Beef Wellington Bernaise and Truffel Sauce, with fresh vegetable bouquets and mushroom potatoes. Dessert was Souffle Glace Grand Marnier with Toblerone Sauce. Fine wines accompanied each course. The group was led by Donald Bailey of Bloomfield Hills and his guest, Cherie Hadde.

ington at Ninth Street, in Ann Arbor. Tickets are $5 for adults and $2 for children under 12. Emcee Bill O'Connor will welcome the popular Michigan group Just Friends. Cecelia Webster and Lori Cleland of Just Friends will perform on the Irish harp and hammered dulcimer. Also featured will be County Washtenaw's folk trio of Marty Somberg, Chris Rietz and Jon Babela performing on the wooden flute, fiddle and Irish bodhran (goatskin drum.) A storyteller with wild tales from the Emerald Isle will complete the evening.

'Your Own Thing' needs more of something

Dinner theater performances of "Your Own Thing," presented by the Schoolcraft College Theatre Department, continue through Saturday, March 25, on campus in Livonia. For ticket information, call 462-4400, Ext. 5091.

By Bob Welbel
special writer

Schoolcraft College's production of the rock musical "Your Own Thing" is long on enthusiasm and energy but comes up a little short theatrically.

Bob Welbel

The show has its moments. Too often, however, the performers are singers who happen to be characters, instead of fully developed characters who sing to advance the plot. Which is too bad, because "Your Own Thing" has the right stuff for an ideal college production. Its key performers are young adults. And it has plenty of '60s humor that pokes fun at the establishment, takes a few shots at authority, makes anti-war statements, has fun with sexual innuendos, and observes that one must be truthful to your ownself, because one day the world will need you.

For good measure, it is loosely based on one of Shakespeare's most joyous comedies, "Twelfth Night."

IN "YOUR OWN THING" the brother and sister (who are musicians) end up in New York. Viola, played by Shelly Behler, dresses as a man to get a job with a rock band (the Apocalypse).

The band has a theatrical agent. And guess what? His name is Orson, played with an engaging personality by Jeffrey Parletta.

Robin McSurley creates the most fully developed character, a high-spirited Sebastian. He also displays a most pleasing singing voice. To complete the plot, he works for Olivia, the owner of a discotheque where the band plays.

Beth Anderson as Olivia has a nice singing voice but often seems to be reading from a script instead of speaking as a character.

As the story progresses, a variety of characters (projected on the rear wall) make humorous comments. They include Buddha (who gives advice to Viola and Sebastian), John Wayne (who makes moral judgments for the audience), Humphrey Bogart, Shirley Temple, the Pope, Queen Victoria and Shakespeare himself. This was often the best part of the show.

MORE ENERGY from the band would improve the show. Doug Meadows, Leonard Miller, Gregory Gdaniec and Glen Josefson play OK, but they seldom get out of their backup mode. The show could use a few hard-driving riffs. We're not talking heavy metal, just a few moments of real rock.

Bob Welbel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

Jesus Christ Superstar' — it's electric, eclectic

Performances of "Jesus Christ Superstar" continue through Saturday, April 1, at Varner Studio Theatre on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. (Three performances have been added because nine performances sold out.) For ticket information call 370-3013.

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

Energy and sound ricochet off the walls in Oakland University Center for the Arts' electric production of "Jesus Christ Superstar," a musical written by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice.

Players materialize from darkened corners, thunder across upper balconies and clatter down fire escape stairways to overrun the small theater and make it reverberate from floor to ceiling and from wall to wall.

Action refuses to be confined to the conventional central stage in much the same way as the story of Jesus could not be confined to his 33 short years on earth.

An eclectic mix of costumes leaps from age to age and makes the musical recreation of Jesus' ministry and death a story, not for any one age, but for all time. Nobody wears stereotypical biblical robes and sandals.

Jesus Christ burst from his historical perimeters to mark every era of Western history since his death, and the rock musical in his name pulses with vitality.

Director Michael Gillespie's splendid staging engulfs people in the audience with action and sound and makes the audience feel party to the tumultuous, violent times in ancient Galilee when Jesus of Nazareth lived and died.

MSU swimmers eye NCAA finals

By C.J. Rieck
staff writer

Everything seemed to come together for Michigan State's women's swim team this season. That was evident at the Big Ten championship meet last month.

The Spartans, eighth in the league a year ago, catapulted to fourth. And attitude had a lot to do with it, according to senior standouts Mary Schoenle, from Livonia (Stevenson), and Kelly Smyles, from Rochester (Adams).

Now, what both Schoenle and Smyles want to do is carry that new, improved attitude over to what very likely will be their final swim competition: the NCAA championship meet in Indianapolis Thursday through Saturday.

"Our team was really close this year," said Smyles. "Everyone really supported each other, more than previously."

"It felt like everyone on the team wanted me to do well, and I wanted everyone on the team to do well. It wasn't always like that."

Schoenle, a team captain, put it in direct terms. "It was a fun season," she said. "We have a new coach."

Whether Bill Wadley's replacing Jennifer Parks is the reason for MSU's rejuvenation is debatable. "I don't know why (it's more fun)," said Smyles. "It just came out that way."

ONE THING that has made the season enjoyable is improvement, which the Spartans have done — particularly Schoenle and Smyles.

For Schoenle, her final season of swimming will be remembered as her longest. She qualified for the 1988 Olympic Trials and spent last summer training. She didn't make the team, and she got little time off between Olympic and MSU training sessions.

"I had about four weeks off," she said, "then I was back in the pool."

That means swimming about three hours a day, then lifting weights. The team's all-for-one attitude helped, as Schoenle put it, "I got faster in some events, and it's nice to go faster as you get older."

Her best event remains the 100-yard breaststroke. At the Big Ten championships Feb. 16-18 at University of Michigan, Schoenle bested the U-M pool record in the prelims, going 1:03.08. The time also qualified her for the NCAA meet. In the final, she went 1:03.83 and placed third.

SCHOENLE WAS also second in the 50 freestyle (23.50) at the league. She'll swim that and the 100 free at the NCAA meet, as well as the 400 medley relay, with Smyles.

But her best will be the 100 breast. "I wanted to go 1:02 in my breaststroke," Schoenle said. "I'm pretty close to that. I can still do it."

"I'll be seeded about sixth, so if I do my best time I should get into the finals."

While Schoenle has had a long and tiring year of almost constant training, Smyles is enjoying her final season so much she's having a difficult time accepting that her collegiate career is nearly over. "I still don't feel like I'm going to be done with swimming," she admitted.

That happens when everything jells, like it has for Smyles. "This is definitely the best I've done," she said. Smyles qualified for the NCAAs in both the 100 butterfly and 200 butterfly. Her chances of reaching the final eight in either are long, but it's reachable.

"(My improvement) had a lot to do with my training," she explained. "I always thought I could go faster."

THE 100 FLY — she placed second at the Big Ten meet in 55.59 — is still her best event. Maybe.

"This year I think it was the 200 (fly). I cut three seconds off my time, which I think is pretty good."

Smyles was third in the 200 fly at the league meet in 3:00.69, also an NCAA qualifier. Her goal is apparent: break the two-minute barrier.

"I feel really positive about (the NCAAs)," she said, then added, "as soon as my exams are over."

Her NCAA chances are difficult to figure. "A lot of girls made their cuts in December, so they were able to rest for the meet," she said.

Smyles' seeding doesn't concern her. "What your seeding going in doesn't matter. It's where you're at coming out."

If the season follows the momentum MSU gained at the Big Ten meet, both Schoenle and Schoenle may come out of the NCAAs with the best swims of their collegiate careers. And that's not a bad way to go out.

Salem's Orris touched out; Chargers' Papierski stars

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Spring came early for Troy High School swimmer Dave Whinter. He nurtured the dream of being a state champion throughout the long winter season and Saturday it reached full bloom.

Whinter devoted himself to that goal and was prepared when the time came, winning the 100-yard backstroke title in the Class A meet at McCaffree Natatorium in East Lansing.

"I was looking toward this race through all the practices," Whinter said. "When I didn't feel good and the alarm went off at 4:30 to go to morning practice, I had to think about this day to get me through."

Whinter was the lone individual winner from the Eccentric area, and the honor of best team performance went to Bloomfield Hills Andover, which moved up one place from a year ago to finish fourth in the 48-team field.

East Kentwood, the pre-meet favorite, dethroned Ann Arbor Huron as the state champion. The Falcons had 118 points and the River Rats 83.

HOLLAND WAS third with 80 followed by the Barons with 77½. Birmingham Seaholm finished 11th, Birmingham Brother Rice 12th and Kalamazoo Central for 17th.

"It wasn't matter how we finish if the kids swim well," Andover coach Mike Lane said. "We swam great."

"Every kid we brought to this meet scored and went his best time. I could go through and name all of them. They were super."

For coach George O'Brien's team at Rice, its final place filled a void that remained from the Catholic League meet. The Warriors left that event thinking they were second only to learn later they had won it.

"We came here wanting something to celebrate," O'Brien said. "In terms of having something to celebrate, we really did well. We had a lot of lifetime bests, and that's a good way to end the season."

Whinter not only edged area contender Kevin Byrne of Adams in the backstroke final but unseated defending champion David DeWitt of Holland.

He won the race with what he said was a "slow" time of 53.47. Whinter had qualified at 52.66. Byrne went 53.65 in the final, third-place DeWitt 53.78.

"I WAS JUST tired today," said Whinter, who captured eighth place in the butterfly, too. "I was trying to swim too fast and lost my rhythm and slowed down."

"Everybody must have been tired today. DeWitt won it last year and went faster (52.83)."

Byrne, a senior who was 10th in the IM, had lost twice to Whinter earlier in the season and had a poor start Saturday. But he recovered and nearly pulled out a victory.

"He beat me pretty bad both times, but today I was shaved, tapered and really psyched up," Byrne said.

RANDY BORST/staff photographer
Mark Papierski of Livonia Churchill finished sixth in the backstroke at the state Class A finals Saturday in East Lansing.

"I was kinda out of it after the first 50, but I had a lot left. I saw his feet but I didn't turn and went after him. I just fell a little short."

Byrne added it was a great swim for him, having been seeded fifth after the prelims on Friday. He dropped 2.45 seconds off his seed time to beat out DeWitt and Seaholm's Paul Wilson, who was fourth.

"Nobody thought I had a chance to win it," he said. "Everybody was looking at Whinter and DeWitt. I swam a smarter race (on Saturday) and it paid off — but not as much as I would have wanted."

BY MOST standards, Andover senior Furio Rossi had an excellent state-meet performance, taking a pair of fourth places and helping the Barons to runner-up honors in the freestyle relay, but it was a bit-tersweet day for him.

Rossi went 1:43.88 in the 200 freestyle and 4:42.40 in the 500 freestyle, but Lansing Eastern's Alec Mull won both events. Furthermore, the competition included Plymouth Salem's Ron Orris was in the 200 and Novi's Jon Cohen in the 500.

"I went slower than I did last year (in the 500)," said Rossi, adding the results were "a lot less than I expected." He was third with a 4:38.29 a year ago.

"I was just unlucky today. I want to win this year. We'll see (what happens) in college. I've enjoyed high school swimming. I've had good placings; I'm satisfied."

Rossi's career, and for Andover the meet, almost ended with one last hurrah as the Barons nearly overtook first-place East Kentwood in the freestyle relay. The Falcons finished in 3:11.66, the Andover quartet of Mike D'Errico, Sam Kim, Marty Rea and Rossi 3:12.07.

The Barons were 2.25 seconds better than No. 1-seeded Salem. Andover dropped 3.62 seconds off its qualifying time and would have finished second in the team standings if it had won the relay.

"All four of them did a great job," Lane said. "Everyone of those kids went his best time, and Furio almost caught (East Kentwood)."

LANE SAID he understood Rossi was disappointed with his individual showing, but he added a broken arm suffered last summer and the subsequent rehabilitation absorbed much of Rossi's time and energy.

"He couldn't train and spent much of the time just getting back to where he was last year," Lane said. "He had high expectations and is proud of him. I'm proud of all of them."

Others who made the championship round included Rice's Brian Bushon and Peter Biglin, both of whom were sixth, in diving and the 100 freestyle, respectively. Seaholm's Matt Gray, Andre Frotter, Greg Stark and Paul Wilson were fifth in the 200 medley relay, and the Rice foursome of Joe Deighan, Scott Mayotte, Carlos Bustos and Biglin was sixth in the freestyle relay.

"I never placed in the state meet before," said Biglin, reflecting on the significance of the moment. "I think it's great. I'm all-state and I'm real happy with the way I swam."

Also scoring points for Andover were Mark D'Errico, who was seventh in the IM and eighth in the 500 freestyle; Kim, who tied with Biglin for eighth in the 50 freestyle; Mike D'Errico, eighth in the 100 freestyle; Don Perella, 11th in the 500 freestyle; and the 10th-place medley relay team of Kim, the D'Erricos and Rea.

Seaholm's Stark was 11th in the butterfly and 12th in the 200 freestyle and Ryan Downey seventh in diving. Bloomfield Hills Lahser's Dan Mumbree eighth in diving, and Matt Pawlick and Mike Dobrovic were seventh and 12th in the breaststroke. Vince Wiltsie of Troy finished 10th in the butterfly and West Bloomfield's David Notarius 12th in the 500 freestyle.

Preparing for the start of the 1989 thoroughbred racing season at Ladbroke DRC takes some early morning practice. Ladbroke opens again on Friday with some new wrinkles to its program.

Ladbroke lifts starting gate

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

Along the backstretch at Ladbroke DRC, hope springs eternal — at least this week it does.

With good reason. Friday is opening day for DRC's 1989 season. And jockeys, trainers, owners and horse race fans have winning on their minds. Odds being what they are, many won't, but that's another matter.

Friday's program is a rite of spring, really, and optimism is in the air at Ladbroke, Michigan's only thoroughbred race track. The day's racing begins at 1:30 p.m., and includes a race simulcast from Aqueduct Race Track in New York.

"You know that saying, 'Winning isn't everything?'" asks jockey Therese Powers of Westland. "Bulls—. Winning is everything."

Powers was DRC's top female jockey last year and she aims to finish in the Top 10 among more than 50 DRC jockeys in 1989.

HORSE RACING may be a man's world, but Powers, who has been riding at DRC since 1980, said that doesn't matter. About 10 percent of the regular DRC jockeys are female.

"Everyone knows me around here and I'm established," she said, surveying the crowded race track kitchen.

Larger racing fields are hoped for, with DRC's tote board being expanded from 12-to-14 slots over the winter. More horses mean handicapping will be tougher and carryover purses likely will be larger on DRC's popular Super Trifecta races, which commonly draw 12 or more horses.

"Makes it a little tougher to bet," said DRC President Bill Bork.

To win the Super Tri, bettors have to pick the top three finishers in the fifth race and top four in the sixth, all in order of finish.

Last year's Super-Tri pot reached $484,000, said track publicist Bob Raymond.

horse racing

"WHEN WE generate a pool over $100,000 . . . it helps our attendance and handle (money wagered). It's our answer to the lottery," Raymond said.

Many trainers, horses and jockeys arrived recently in Livonia from warm weather tracks in the south or west. They have spent the last few weeks preparing for the DRC season, which runs through November.

Trainer James Jackson, who spent the winter at Tampa Bay Downs in Florida, was watching his horses work out one morning this week at DRC.

Jackson's horses claimed 97 races last year, making the 42-year-old Lexington, Ky., native the second-leading winner among trainers. He brought 35 horses to DRC this year, including "some nice two-year-olds," he said.

"They all are fit and ready to run. And I run 'em. I got owners that want to see 'em run," Jackson said.

Jockey Ronnie Hirdes, beginning his fourth season at DRC, exercised nine horses Monday morning. Like most jockeys, Hirdes has an agent, Marty Combs, who lines up rides for him by negotiating with trainers.

HIRDES, A 110-pound "natural lightweight," said he had no trouble keeping his weight down. He tallied more than 90 wins last year at DRC, and wants to double that this year.

"I'd like to be a leading rider," Hirdes said. "I'd like to win 200 races if possible. That's what I'm shooting for."

Hirdes, 27, began riding at age 11 and turned pro in 1978.

"I think everyone would like ride to be in New York or California, but you gotta go where you can make a decent living," he said. "I can make a decent living here."

But other states can offer off-track and inter-track betting, neither of which is legal in Michigan. OTB allows bettors to wager at places other than race tracks — grocery stores, for instance. ITB allows bettors to wager only at race tracks on a second track's program.

Ladbroke officials believe OTB is needed to make the sport more profitable and to bring it to a wider audience.

The issue is tied up in the Michigan Legislature, partly because of opposition from harness horsemen. ITB is given better odds of passage than OTB.

BUT BORK IS optimistic about both passing. "I really believe we'll have something this year. Don't ask me when, but we really have to," Bork said.

"We just can't sit back and watch," Bork added, referring to Pennsylvania, Wyoming and Illinois, all of whom have approved OTB or ITW.

OTB and ITW probably wouldn't help DRC's crowds. Attendance fell about 1 percent in 1988 from the previous year, after three years of gains, Bork said.

He said Michigan's main harness tracks — Hazel Park Raceway, Swartz Creek and Northville Downs — suffered declines of 6-16 percent in handle and attendance last year.

This is the last year of a five-year agreement between Hazel Park and DRC in which the tracks' owners agreed to stick to standardbreds and thoroughbreds respectively.

Bork said Ladbroke has no plans to bring trotters to DRC, but may consider applying to the state to offer year-round racing.

"We could run thoroughbreds year round given the mildness of the winter here, but I'm not saying we will," he said.

Favorable verdict Glenn gymnasts headed for state finals

By Steve Kowaleki
staff writer

It's anyone's guess who will win the 12-team state gymnastics meet this weekend at Troy High School.

But the favorite in Saturday's individual finals has to be Westland John Glenn's sophomore sensation Wendy Minch.

She brings a 37.70 all-around average into Friday's team competition and will be the one to beat Saturday at the individual finals.

The Rockets earned a trip to the team finals by finishing second last Saturday at the Plymouth Canton regional. Also advancing into the final was Jackson County Western, which won the regional with 133.25 points, and the host Chiefs, who finished third at 132.65. The top three teams from four regionals advance to state.

Canton coach John Cunningham said defending champion Midland Dow, Troy Athens and Rockford all have a chance to win the team title. Individually, Cunningham gives the nod to Minch.

"She's two or three clicks ahead of the rest," Cunningham said. "She deserves all the accolades she gets. Natalie Leich and Melissa Miller (both of Athens) are very good, but Wendy

WHERE: Troy High School
WHO: Twelve teams, including Plymouth Canton, North Farmington and Westland John Glenn. The top three teams from last weekend's four regionals were invited, but defending champion Traverse City did not qualify. Troy Athens, Rockford and Midland Dow are among the favored teams. Glenn's Wendy Minch is favored to win the individual crown, while teammate Deb Williams and North Farmington's Heather Kahn figure to challenge.

would need a bad day for them to get close to her."

Plymouth Salem finished a distant 10th place at the Canton regional, scoring 121.30, and none of its performers qualified for the finals.

The top eight performers in each event Friday will meet Saturday to decide individual honors.

Minch won the all-around title at the regional, scoring 37.00 in winning three of four events. She was brilliant on the bars (9.70), but fell off the beam twice and was penalized .20 on the event because of a short routine to finish with a season-low 8.05.

Glenn coach Pam Yockey said Minch's dose of bad luck on the beam may have cost the Rockets a regional title. She hopes Minch gains a sweep of the four events Saturday.

"SHE HAS A good chance at the state title," Yockey said. "She concentrates well, is a good competitor and has no weak events. She's a very efficient machine. She's quite a talented young lady and she's fun to watch."

Five Rockets will compete at the state meet, including senior Deb Williams, who was third on the all-around at the regional with 35.15. Minch and Williams will be joined by Christine Prough, Nicky Combs and Buffy Schuch.

Williams is one of the Rocket captains and the team's elderstatesman. She was second to Minch in both the vault (9.15) and floor (8.85) at the regional.

"Deb's a good backup to Wendy," Yockey said. "I really feel she'll have a good chance to finish in the top 15 all-around. She's averaged 34.7 all-around so she's pretty consistent."

"She's performed well and she and Wendy complement each other. They work well together."

Canton placed ninth last year at state, and Cunningham expects similar results Friday.

Six members of Canton's team, led by sophomore Heather Murphy, earned a trip to the finals with their performances at the regional. Murphy placed 15th at state a year ago on the beam.

"WE'LL BE some place from seventh to 12th place (at the state)," Cunningham predicted. "This isn't like football or basketball where any team can defeat any other on any given day."

"We can add one or two points and get to about 135 but I'm still not there, because you have Troy Athens, Midland Dow and Rockford who will finish with about 142."

Dawn Clifford, who was sixth in the all-around, and Johanna Anderson, who was 10th, will compete in every event for Canton. Murphy, who placed 13th in the all-around, is entered in every event but the vault.

The others scheduled to compete are Danielle Mirto (vault, floor), Sandi Sherwin (vault), Shannon Connell (bars) and Anals Yoon (beam).

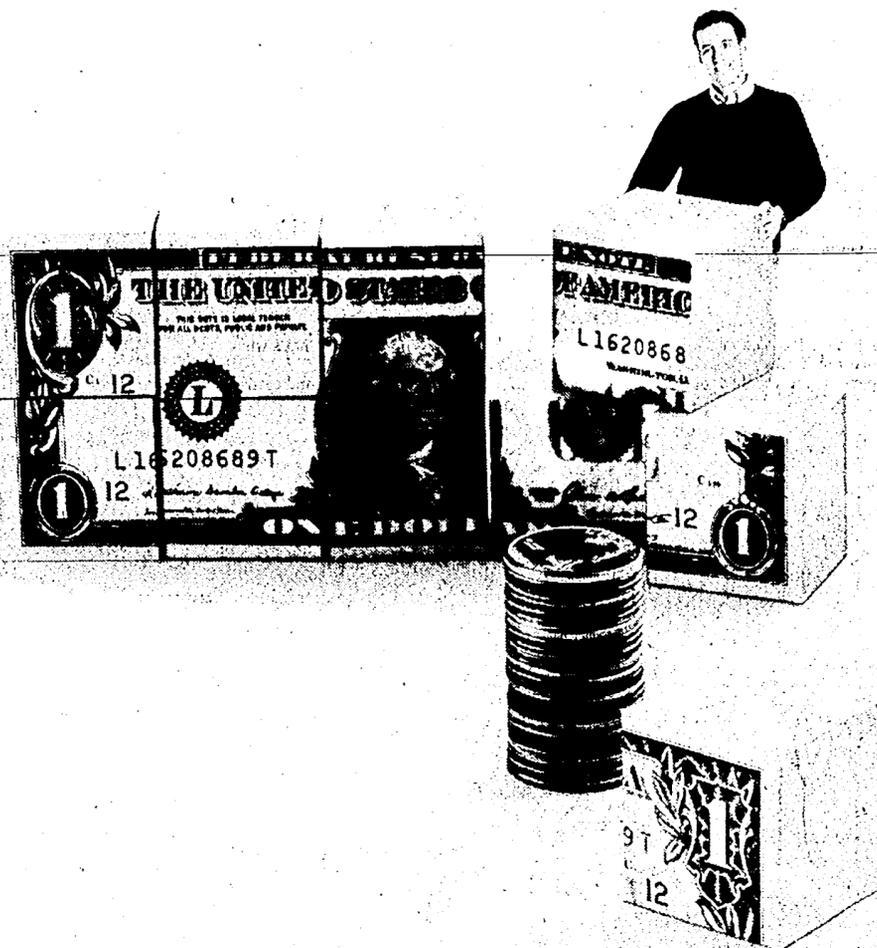

The beam and floor exercise are Canton's top events, and the Chiefs showed that at the regional, finishing first on the beam (33.45) and second on the floor (34.25).

House bill would outlaw bypass device on boats

A bill to outlaw bypass mechanisms on boats which allow the dumping of raw sewage into the Michigan lakes passed the state House of Representatives, according to Rep. Judith Miller, R-Birmingham.

Miller, a co-sponsor, said House Bill 4245 would strengthen the Watercraft Pollution Control Act by making it illegal for boats to operate the bypasses. The bill goes to the state Senate.

"Underwater dumping of sewage from boats has been illegal in Michigan for almost 20 years, but people continue to do so," Miller said.

"Since the law requires the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) to catch boaters in the act of discharging waste before they can be cited, it is almost impossible to stop those who are determined to pollute our waters with human waste.

"By disabling the mechanism which allows direct discharge, we will be able to force these people to properly dispose of their waste by pumping out their holding tanks at designated marina facilities."

HB 4245 also would allow the DNR to inspect Michigan boats once a year and certify that the vessel does not have an operable bypass mechanism. In addition, it provides for pump-out facilities at marinas.

Miller also has sponsored a concurrent resolution which calls for uniformity of law regarding discharges into the Great Lakes.

Michigan's heritage preserved for all time

"Polaris," a sculpture by David Barr of Northville, commands attention in front of the new Michigan Library and Historical Center in Lansing.

By Corinne Abalt
staff writer

A TOUR OF THE new Michigan Library and Historical Center in the Capitol complex in Lansing revives a strange, long-forgotten feeling — something called pride.

Here in this building, the scene of a five-day opening celebration last week, is the story of our state. It is preserved through books, records, archives, artifacts, film, photographs and the impressions of a number of outstanding Michigan artists.

The state's historical collections, archives and library are housed and showcased in this five-story, limestone-clad 312,000-square-foot building the size of a city block — 325,000 square feet counting the courtyard. The entire site on West Allegan Street, west of the Capitol, covers two city blocks.

THE ARCHITECTS, William Kessler and Associates of Detroit, designed a building that is awesome from the outside and decidedly manageable and easily negotiable from the inside. In many ways, it reflects the state. Beyond the obvious — the blue and green interior theme, the huge wall relief of Michigan, the pictures, the art and the 45-foot white pine, the state tree in the center of the glass-enclosed rotunda — the architecture itself speaks of Michigan.

Materials such as the exterior limestone and the copper of the central courtyard walls are native. The glass-domed atriums that soar 93 feet bring the great skies up north to mind. The clearly established relationship between the inside and the outside and the strong emphasis on natural beauty echoes how residents feel about their state.

When the sculpture pool at the base of the white pine is installed, there will be an even stronger link. This sculptural art by Glen Michaels of Troy will depict the upper and lower peninsulas and the waters of the Great Lakes in 98 shades of blue and green glass. A $500,000 grant from the Kresge Foundation made it possible.

Four major works of art are already in place. These were selected by the Commission on Art in Public Places and funded by $250,000 set aside for art from state-appropriated funds. This is the first building to take advantage of the art legislation and related legislation that allows acceptance of gifts for art from private sources.

"POLARIS RING," a magnificent sculpture by David Barr of Northville, at the south entrance, combines references to Michigan's past, present and future in painted steel columns and massive stones quarried in Marquette. The North Star (Polaris) can be sited from the tallest stone through the space in the tallest columns.

The huge oil painting of Michigan's forests by Richard Kozlow of Birmingham is a vibrant tribute to one of the state's greatest assets. It can be seen and enjoyed from all levels of the building.

The 12 bas reliefs by Sergio DiGiusti are in four niches for seating in the central rotunda. The niches are in the back wall of the circle (already nicknamed "The Donut") around the 50-foot-in-diameter enclosed fountain pool with the white pine in the center. DiGiusti's handsome wall reliefs, too, contain elements of Michigan landscapes.

On both sides of a free-standing wall at the entrance of the archives reading room are striking, colorful metal collages by Al Hinton of Ann Arbor. One side depicts the urban scene, the other, the rural. Together they represent Michigan's two major industries, automotive and tourism.

Still to be hung in the fifth floor board room are two large tapestries by Gerhardt Knodel of Bloomfield Hills, funded by a gift from the J.L. Hudson Foundation.

The Michigan Historical Museum is open 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free and parking is available at the Washtenaw Street entrance.

Visitors admire their state from a completely different angle. The wall relief is in the corridor by the entrance to the Historical Museum.

Be prepared for unexpected

In most of my columns, I've talked about planning photographs, studying the composition, determining the depth-of-field, expressing a single idea — in short, thinking it out in advance.

Sometimes, however, a picture just happens. And if you and your camera are ready, you can capture the moment on film.

How often have you been caught without your camera when a rainbow suddenly arched across the sky or a setting sun cast vibrant colors? Or perhaps your youngster looked at you with that unforgettable expression and your camera was packed away out of reach.

Many well-known photographs, even Pulitzer Prize winners, were obtained only because someone was there at the right time with a loaded camera.

BE PREPARED and those exciting moments won't escape your lens.

You never know when that special picture will come up, so begin by disciplining yourself to have a camera with you at all times. Make sure it's loaded with film and that the ASA dial is properly set.

When traveling, put your traveler's vision in gear and be ready for the unusual.

On a trip last summer to eastern Canada, I was on a ferry about to arrive in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. The morning had been very foggy and visibility on the water hardly existed. Yet, my camera was loaded and ready for the unexpected. As we approached Yarmouth Harbor, the scene shown here opened up like magic in front of my eyes. A row of docked fishing boats engulfed by circling seagulls suddenly appeared out of the mist. Had I not been prepared, I would have lost the shot.

You may only have a few seconds before the rainbow vanishes, the cloud pattern changes or the facial expression is lost.

By taking a few simple steps to prepare your camera and yourself, you'll be able to preserve those magical moments on film and treasure them for a lifetime.

Artistic success often is act of your own will GAINING mastery of anything, be it sport, hobby or art, is most often work. Sometimes a work of art is 90 percent perspiration and 10 percent inspiration.

Often when I see one of my students laboring over a drawing, I try to break the tension by jokingly saying, "Just keep saying to yourself, art is fun," but of course art is not always fun.

Although art is rarely an effort of muscle or exertion, it is exhausting, and, coupled with the physical act of making the expression visible, can be unbelievably trying. Indeed, a creation of art is not just the "doing" or "showing," but it is also the "saying" or "expressing." So art is the combination of our entire makeup.

The body works to make visual the thought of the mind and the expression of the spirit. And if problems arise in this effort, it is especially frustrating. For new students of art, "hard times" and "work times" can be especially devastating.

OVER THE years I have heard many expressions of almost defeated art students. Some will say, "I guess I've just been fooling myself, I'm no artist," or "Well, I guess that's it. Nothing's turning out any more."

Without help, the defeated students soon stop even attempting and eventually fail. But always remember that failure is your own decision. No one can force failure upon you. And likewise success is your own decision and no one can give it to you. You must work hard for success in your art.

So if you struggle at times, remember the "A" in art means "attempt it." The "R" means "re-attempt it" and the "T" means "try it again."

David Messing

At the art store, we have hundreds of students a week come to class for art instruction. Of that number are several dozen students whom I would consider "gifted." It is a pleasure to introduce them to the many techniques and watch them as they easily master most of the media.

BUT IT is a particular pleasure to work with those average students with an above-average interest. Their interest drives them to look past any singular failure toward a goal of relative mastery of most media. As a matter of fact, I have seen average students catch up even to pass gifted students.

Gifted students often tend to coast with the talents they already possess, where average students constantly strive for that which is commonplace to the gifted. Ironically, those gifted can willingly fall to the common ground while those average, by reason of their effort, rise above.

Make success in art a decision and an act of your will. That way you will be less likely to be discouraged when a particular subject or medium requires you to dig deep and work hard to master it. Strange as it may seem, your weakness will one day become your strength.

Fine arts competition seeking entries

The Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association is planning its eighth annual Michigan Fine Arts Competition. The event, which awards $3,250 in prizes, represents the works of artists throughout the state in various media such as painting, weaving, sculpture, photography and ceramics.

This year's competition will be juried by Patterson Sims, associate director of the Seattle Art Museum, who is also an author and lecturer and a recognized authority on American art.

AN OPENING RECEPTION will be held 2-5 p.m. Saturday, April 8, with the awards ceremony at 3:30 p.m.

In addition, Sims will conduct a workshop and discussion of the works selected for the show and also his role as a curator in the art world from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, April 1, at the BBAA. The workshop is open to the public with a $22 fee for BBAA members and $26 for non-members. To register, call 644-0866.

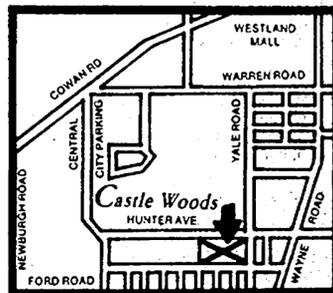

The exhibition will continue through Saturday, May 13.

Put glamour to work in bath

IF YOU ARE looking for glamour in your house, save it for your bathrooms.

If you have looked at model homes or apartments, you probably noticed a good deal of concentration has been given to that area.

For me, nothing is drabber than a white-painted wall in the bathroom. Whatever the size, you can make a bathroom as bright as you like.

If you have a window in your bath and don't need privacy from that window, glass shelves with cache pots filled with African violets make for a charming look. Using wallpaper with matching or correlating fabric as a shade for the windows is another look you may consider. The bath/shower should be treated as a window — tie backs and a valance to hide the shower pole.

You can be more daring in the powder room. Since this room tends to be small, mirroring should be your spacemaker. In the master bath, be as lavish as you like. In a bathroom that is used by youngsters, practicality becomes priority. Vinyl paper can be both practical and good looking.

A FAUX marble finish is an exciting look for the master bath or powder room. Because it takes a very special painter to accomplish the look, the cost may seem prohibitive. But, if you designing ways

add the cost of wallpaper and the labor to install, you will be very close to the price of the faux marble.

Vertical blinds with matching paper is another option to consider for hiding the bath/shower.

If you aren't working with an interior designer, become a designer yourself. The wallpaper books are filled with options. Study them and see how creative you really can be.

I received a letter from a reader who is interested in my design course. It is given at the Grosse Pointe War Memorial beginning May 2, twice a week for 7 1/2 weeks, a total of 15 lessons. The course is limited to 24 students and each class has approximately that number. I am now on my third class.

For information, call the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, 881-7511.

'Women in America' in spotlight

Whoever you are — Miss Bomber Plant of 1943, prizes are awaiting you at Henry Ford Museum this weekend.

From the fields to the factory, from gracious urban avenues to the dusty trail West, the stories of women from all walks of life come together to form a special look at this nation's past.

That happens this Saturday and Sunday when the Henry Ford Museum celebrates the everyday-life experiences of common women with a special weekend, "Women in America: Ordinary Women, Extraordinary Lives."

Visitors will meet women behind the wheel of a 1922 Detroit electric car and over the counter of a 1950s diner. They can even try their hand at ordering "diner style" — slash of moo, anyone?

They'll learn about the struggles of life on the westward trail and the sadness of life for a slave woman and her family.

Rosie the Riveter will be on hand to share the excitement of winning the 1942 Miss Bomber Plant trophy, members of the Ladies Temperance League will enlist the public's support for their cause at a march and rally. Even life in the kitchens of four different time periods will be explored.

TOPPING OFF the activities each day will be a live fashion presentation, "The Lifestyles that Set the Style."

Visitors will view the outfits of an 18th century farmwife, fashionable ladies of the 1830s and the 1880s, a turn-of-the-century office girl and immigrant laborer, and a 1850s Bloomer girl.

What it was like to be laced into these clothes and what might have happened to the women in them also will come up for discussion.

Somewhere out there exists the lady who won the 1943 Miss Bomber Plant trophy pictured here. The trophy, and fictional character Rosie the Riveter (as Miss Bomber Plant), will be featured at Henry Ford Museum's Women in America weekend, Friday and Saturday.

Museum officials are hoping the mystery lady will attend the weekend and identify herself. They want to learn more about the unusual item donated to the museum years ago. It is believed the prize was awarded at Ypsilanti's Willow Run Bomber Plant. Other clues provided on the trophy are the winner's name, "DAW-CIO Local 50" and "Dept. 947."

Miss Bomber Plant, if you're out there, let the folks at Henry Ford Museum know by visiting March 18 or 19 and telling them your name. They've got a special gift and a lot of questions waiting for you.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."
 "I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And—luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."

A light, springy step owes a large debt to whimsical shoes, and this season there is a lot to look forward to, according to Nancy Boas, footwear and hosiery editor for Glamour magazine.

ergence of the long skirt.

Chanel looks make a strong showing, as do flowing wide-leg pants that have a decidedly feminine appeal.

AND IF YOU BUY just one pair of shoes this spring, the look you want is ethnic. Batiks and sari skirts and African-inspired sarongs demand notice. The footwear that completes the look is exotically chic.

Lavish details complete the ethnic feel: Scroll ornaments, stitching in metallic threads, and coin-and-bead embellishments make for exotic excitement.

Our own Western look is a subdivision of ethnic. Silver and turquoise jewelry, inspired by American Indians of the Southwest, graces denim and fringed-suede clothing comes straight from John Wayne westerns.

The shoes to go with the western look? Classic suede and beaded moccasins, more simple leather sandals or the surprise shoe of the season — cowboy shoe-boots — sawed-off boots that are easy to wear with pants because you don't have to worry that the boot top is too wide for your pant leg.

Spring is all about

Personal Style

By Rustle Shand
special writer

Una Vandenburg of Farmington Hills has long been the epitome of personal style. She has always invested in contemporary classic clothing that carries season to season, year to year. And she is a well-known collector of wearable art.

Vandenburg is a former president of Hattie Inc. and is also a former accessory buyer and merchandise manager for Claire Pearone. Together, they brought the coveted look of European elan to our area.

When we asked her to show us how to achieve an artless yet artful look for spring, she began by pulling her hair back into a small-head look and applied pale, matte makeup — both important harbingers of the spring season, she said.

FROM HER CLOSET, SHE pulled soft classic separates from past seasons and added a cotton gauze shawl by Sonia Rykiel from a 1987 collection which she would later wrap as a sarong.

Out of her vast collection of exquisite accessories spilled such things as bright primitive African pieces, pearls, cameos, lace and Indian and Far East silver jewelry. She added new "Morning Glory" pieces from her favorite contemporary designer, Rafael Sanchez.

Pulling together a distinctive look is as easy as 1-2-3 for this expert, whose bent is making people look, as she says, "wonderful." Buit you can do it, too, she pointed out.

"The elements of personal style begin with personal polish. You must look as if you care about your appearance. It starts with meticulous grooming, goes on to well-fitted, becoming and simple clothing and ends with artful but never overwhelming accessorization. Think of yourself as a blank canvas and then go on to create a wonderful artwork," she advises.

Although Vandenburg invested in classic separates by such designers as Sonia Rykiel and Giorgio Armani, she says the Gap is a great source for basic separates that can help us with our basic canvas so we can achieve the same look of relaxed yet polished perfection.

The accessories shown are available from Una Vandenburg and other sources listed. You can reach her by calling 855-3349.

CLOTHES may not make the woman, but they are certainly covering her very nicely this spring and giving her many choices. It's a season for individuality.

Clothes are more flattering — often featuring narrow waists, softened shapes and sheer fabrics. Graphic and floral patterns bloom on a range of cloth for all hours and menswear mixes mean serious business.

Off-hours are anxiously awaited as a time to get into what Ralph Lauren calls "rough gear" — the kind of clothes you can be your ultimate self in — when appearance is only half the game and the rest is for comfort.

The latest looming fashion column as you may have guessed is pants — all lengths and any shape — for all day and all night.

IN THE FASHION news for spring are such things as navy blues, polka dots and stripes, prints and chiffons. On the other hand, there are blacks and whites, seascape colors, vibrant brights and sunset-over-the-desert hues. There are leathers, traditional menswear fabrics, poplins, piques and linens.

In other words, this season of choices allows expression of individuality which is key to the season's best looks. Just as we make choices on how we spend our time, we will have many choices of how we want to spend our clothing allowance.

• Favor the time-honored Chanel look with its gold buttons, chains and contrasting color-tipped shoes?

• Eager for the soft, feminine, flowing looks?

• Corporate minded and headed for the top?

• Certainly. We're with you.

• Spend Monday through Friday biding time, waiting for the weekend?

• We're so relaxed.

• Eager for spring cocktail parties?

• We're ready with olive and a twist of lemon.

• Anxious for a slow boat to anywhere?

• We're on ship's rail. Boats are hot this year.

• Florals turn you on?

• Flower power abounds.

• Love spots before your eyes?

• We're certainly dotty enough.

• More interested in getting real?

• We're with you there.

As spring seems to — greening the environment and igniting the ground with colorful blooms — our bodies collectively breathe big sighs of relief and lean toward the lighter side of clothing. And the stores are ready for us.

— Rustle Shand

Go ahead — nail it down!

PICK A NUMBER, any number — make that a large number and you could be $20,000 richer.

It's the popular "House of Nails Contest," returning to the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 at Cobo Hall.

The plexiglass House of Nails, which is 20-by-26-inches wide, 24 inches tall, with a 12-by-12-inch wide, 17-inch tall addition, is filled with various size nails.

The house is on display at the Builders Show, to give the public a chance to brush up on its estimating skills.

Attendees register their estimate of the number of nails contained in the house. The person estimating closest to the correct number of nails in the house wins $20,000.

Internationale

Biggest Builders Show yet is ready to open

THE 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show has expanded to include more than 800 booths featuring exhibitors from all over the United States and Canada and has become the largest home show in the world, all under one roof.

The show, will cover the entire top floor (500,000 square feet) of the newly expanded Cobo Hall.

"The Builders Show has become an international show with exhibitors from all over Canada, including Unilock, headquartered in Toronto, the largest manufacturer of interlocking concrete paving stones in North America," said James S. Bonadeo, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

"Over the past 71 years, the Builders Show has evolved into a living exhibition, as our participants feature anything and everything for the home," he added.

"THE METRO DETROIT Cadillac Gold Key dealers are sponsoring a pictorial display, from the Smithsonian Institution, titled 'Remaking America,' which showcases new uses for historic buildings. As part of the exhibit, Cadillacs from the past and present will be on display," Bonadeo said.

In addition to the Smithsonian exhibit, other interesting and unusual exhibitors include:

- Invisible Fencing System of Birmingham, Mich., which specializes in "invisible" dog containment systems that safely keep a dog in the yard without a fence. The fencing system consists of a thin wire buried in the ground, a small radio transmitter (usually installed in a garage), a lightweight leather dog collar with a transistorized radio receiver and a conditioning program for the dog. The system has been tested and proved to be harmless to animals and has been approved by the S.P.C.A.

- Pella Window & Door Co. will feature the latest in wood windows, sliding glass doors, French doors, skylights, sunrooms, and a new oak entrance door with Warguard laminated construction.

- Art Van Furniture will exhibit a full line of furniture for the home and is sponsoring a relaxing walk-through garden.

- Home Planners Inc. will display plan books, blueprints and planning devices for building single-family homes. More than 2,500 home designs will be featured.

- Vacation Villas of Collingwood, Ontario, offers vacation homes at various resorts in Ontario.

- Kavanaugh's Kwarters is a custom builder of Deltec circular panelized homes. These homes are energy efficient, cost effective and are suitable for a variety of purposes including homes, cottages, offices and multiples.

- Lindal Cedar Homes is the largest manufacturer of cedar homes in the world, and has been in the custom home business, internationally, since 1945. They will feature many different home and sunroom designs.

- Sportfishing Charters with Captain Steve Jones offers fishing charters on Lake Huron and Lake St. Clair, with the largest and best-equipped charter boats on the Great Lakes.

- Gavin Design Limited will display portable Sundance spas, which feature the most effective filtration system, quiet operation and luxurious beauty.

- Pierson-Gibbs will feature quality custom-built homes that the owner finishes himself with Pierson-Gibbs' assistance and materials. The company also offers low-interest con-

Contests galore add excitement to the Builders Show. For instance, win flowers for a year, courtesy of Allied and FTD-4D florists.

The florists will award a year's worth of holiday bouquets, six arrangements per year, to one person each at the Builders Show. The grand prize is a dozen roses per month for one year. To enter, just drop the entry blank attached to the box office ticket in the entry box at the florists' area.

SHOW VISITORS WILL have an opportunity to register to win one of six free daily "Treasure Chest" prizes.

"Treasure Chest" coupons are distributed at the door. To register, the visitor need only fill out the coupon and drop in the "Treasure Chest" boxes scattered throughout the show.

Six valuable prizes will be awarded each day.

UNILOCK, manufacturer of decorative paving stones, is sponsoring the Paver contest. One 100-square-foot package of paving stones will be given away each day of the Builders Show. One of the nine winners will also win an additional 300 square feet of paving stone. To enter, drop entry coupon at Unilock booth.

TENNIS anyone? Or basketball, or volleyball, shuffle board, or hopscotch, or soccer, or baseball? Sport Court of America has a sport court that adapts to all of these games — right in your backyard.

Sport Court is a tennis court that accommodates just about any family sport. This innovative sports center will be on display at the Builders Show. Tennis players will be on hand to demonstrate the quality and versatility of this new home recreational center.

BACK BY popular demand at the Builders Show is Standard Federal Bank's "Waterfall Garden," designed and created by Jack Zendt of Zendt Landscaping.

The garden features a waterfall over a boulder wall, which flanks a planting pocket filled with flowering trees and flowers. A gazebo overlooks the pond and waterfall, and a flagstone path allows visitors to view the pond and garden in more detail.

But the main reason for Standard Federal's appearance at the Builders Show, of course, is to distribute information on the many products and services they offer potential home buyers. Incidentally, Standard Federal was the leading home mortgage lender in

Variety of manufactured homes

THE BUILDERS Show is once again the host for a variety of manufactured homes. Attractive, cost efficient, durable, practical — all describe the manufactured houses featured this year. Manufactured houses provide an alternative for those who want to build a new house suited to their needs and desires.

Manufactured houses are built in a controlled factory environment, then shipped in two pieces to the homeowners' lots.

- Rapid River Rustic offers a beautiful cedar log house.

- The designer at Timber Frame Construction specializes in underground design, solar energy efficiency, timber frame and masonry heater design.

- All American Homes, featuring Pfent Homes, all of which include the highest quality in materials, provide a house selection of floor plans.

- Active Homes is introducing its latest in manufactured modular houses. The ranch-style house has three bedrooms and two full baths.

- Riverbend Timber Framing presents a unusual idea in traditional-timber frame houses — no nails are used, and large oak beams replace the usual 2x4's.

- More than 300 dealers worldwide represent Lindal Cedar Homes. The dealers offer a 10-year structural warranty available even to the do-it-yourself builder.

- Kavanaugh's Kwarters specializes in Deltec Circular Homes. These panelized houses are energy-efficient, cost effective and suitable for cottages, offices and multiple housing as well.

- Pierson-Gibbs Homes provide yet another alternative: a quality custom built house that the owner finishes himself with the assistance of Pierson-Gibbs.

Quality Homes will build a 1,392-square-foot house by Victorian Homes. The house will include a French door entrance, parquet floors, a fireplace, a studio/den and modern appliances.

The opportunities and advantages of manufactured houses are endless. Since they are manufactured indoors, all materials are protected against harmful weather and vandalism.

In addition, the cost to build these houses is approximately 25 percent less than if built on a lot.

All of these elements combined make the trend of manufactured houses more and more attractive.

Marketing Plaza has over- the-counter items in 1 area

THIS YEAR marks the premiere of the Marketing Plaza at the Builders Show. Here, a showgoer can find all the items that can be sold over the counter in one place. In the past, these exhibitors have been scattered throughout the show.

Some of the interesting items that are in the Marketing Plaza include brass items for the home, silk flowers, pots and pans, clothing, computer software, woks, blenders, knife sets, car polish, eye glass cleaner, not to mention the handwriting analysis machine. And fur coats — a new addition by Champagne Furs.

If you are looking for a better mousetrap, Whole Systems Design has come up with just that: the X-Terminator Mousetrap. This mousetrap is a new solution to an old problem.

THE INVENTOR, Hueng Y. Ha, became increasingly concerned by the large number of yearly deaths of dogs, cats and even small children due to the poisoned bait used in most mousetraps. So he spent 20 years the X-Terminator.

The X-Terminator uses a spring-loaded door with a treadle release. A small amount of bait is placed at the rear of the trap.

The mouse enters the trap to reach the bait, stepping on the treadle and closing the door. The mouse is contained in the trap, making it possible to dispose of the entire unit without ever touching the mouse.

The traps may be emptied and reused, and the mouse may be released unharmed.

ANOTHER CLEVER and innovative item in the Marketing plaza is the Heat Solution. The Heat Solution is a hand warmer that is a clear nylon pouch round disc.

When the disc is bent back and fourth, it triggers a response that causes the liquid to change to a solid — a solid at 130 degrees. It heats to this temperature in a matter of seconds and stays hot from 30 minutes to 1 hour.

The hand warmer ranges in size from 3-by-4 inch to 8-by-18 inch. It is a solution for winter protection for the outdoor sportsman, and it is completely non-toxic and safe for all living creatures.

The "Handwarmer" made its debut on national television during the Chicago Bears vs. Washington football game at Soldier Field. This game was played in extremely cold weather, but the Chicago Bears used the Heat Solution Handwarmers.

THE TV play-by-play announcers even held up a handwarmer and activated it to show the viewing audience how it worked.

It's a good idea to keep a few in the glove compartment in case of emergency. This type of hand warmer can be reused by dropping it into boiling water and leaving it there until the water has cooled.

Big Boy Restaurants will again be displaying its successful line of trendy Big Boy sportswear. Their sportswear line has expanded to include a whole new line of children's clothing, ranging from bibs and rompers to short set and sweatsuits.

ALSO NEW to the line are all-leather Big Boy sneakers for men and women, which complement the complete line of men's and women's Big Boy Sportswear.

The line will still include Big Boy sportswear favorites such as Big Boy bun warmers, Big Boy varsity jackets and the Champion reverse-weave sweat sets.

Items in the line range from $4.50 to $79 in price and are made of a variety of high quality, colorful and durable materials.

Low-cost loan program explained

THE MICHIGAN State Housing Development Authority will discuss a low-cost loan program, which is designed to help Michigan homeowners make repairs and improvements to their houses, during workshops to take place at the Builders Show March 23 3-4:30 p.m. and 7-8:30 p.m.

Participating in the workshop is Lon Grossman, Detroit Free Press home improvement columnist, along with Michigan State Housing Development Authority officials and representatives from several major banks.

As part of Grossman's involvement in the state housing authority workshops, $1,500 will be donated to the city of Detroit to buy smoke alarms for lower-income families in Detroit.

The first workshop will cover home-improvement possibilities and benefits for lower- to middle-income families. Because many home improvements can increase the value of the house substantially, homeowners must learn to think of home improvements as an investment — not just a luxury.

This workshop also will inform homeowners of low-cost home improvement loans available to families with modest incomes. Interest rates on these loans are 1 to 9 percent, depending on the borrower's household income. Loans can be made up to

THE SECOND workshop will concentrate on methods for lower- to moderate-income families to buy their first house. Subjects covered will include low-cost financing and methods to find just the right house.

About 35 percent of the people who borrow from state housing authority to make home repairs are senior citizens.

Most of the permanent improvements can be made to houses that are at least 20 years old. In newer houses, state housing authority loans can be used for energy improvement, to increase physically handicapped accessibility, for repairs of serious hazards to health and safety, and for repairing damage from a natural disaster.

Applications are made through a statewide network of participating lenders and local governments. In some communities, households with very low incomes can obtain a grant for all or part of the home repairs.

STATE HOUSING authority loans are intended to help homeowners with modest incomes — those with an adjusted annual income less than $20,000. (Adjusted annual income means the household's gross annual income minus $750 for each member of

The Balian Eye Center Sightmobile is offering free eye screening from 1-4 p.m. daily at the Builders Show.

Balian personnel will perform glaucoma and cataract screening in front of the Sightmobile. Showgoers are welcome to tour the Sightmobile during the show. The Sightmobile is fully-equipped with state-of-the-art testing equipment including the Humphrey Lens Analyzer, which reads the prescription of the patient's present eye glasses; the non-contact tonometer, which measures the patient's intra-ocular pressure to check for glaucoma; and the Humphrey Auto-Refractor, which helps determine if prescription changes would provide the patient with better vision.

Arts-crafts adds to overall fun

NOT ONLY does the Builders Show arts and crafts area include many unusual creations from all over the United States, but two child artists are featured.

Twelve-year-old caricaturist Dan Scanlon, who will draw caricatures of Builder Show attendees during the show, has become famous in the Detroit area for his caricatures of famous people.

His caricatures have earned him letters from such celebrities as former President Ronald Reagan, Johnny Carson, Wayne Newton, George Burns and Dick Purtan. Scanlon designed the cover for the Warren chapter of Parents Without Partners' newsletter and has had his drawings appear in a coloring book whose proceeds went to the Easter Seals Society.

Scanlon started his career as a caricaturist at 2. He is working on a comic book, which he plans to publish himself.

ALSO IN THE Builders Show is 12-year-old artist, Nikolas Trendowski.

Trendowski practices the art of Ukrainian Easter egg decorating, called pysanky.

In pysanky, the eggs are decorated in a very complicated process whereby melted bees wax is applied to the egg with a hot stylus.

The artist can draw a variety of designs on the egg with the bees wax, then use special dyes to color the egg after the bees wax has hardened, leaving a white drawing on a brightly colored background.

The art of pysanky has been handed down through generations of Trendowski's family.

Each design is typical of a region of the Ukraine or has a folklore message.

Trendowski, who lives in Detroit, has been decorating the Ukrainian Easter eggs since he was 4.

OTHER ARTS and crafts exhibits in the 15,000-square-foot area include a blacksmith, glass dishes, beveled glass suncatchers, leaded glass, sculptured

The friendly rivalry between quilters Dian Smith and Ken Taddia that started several years ago at the Builders Show will continue this year — and again for a good cause. The two artisans will make separate quilts that will be raffled off to benefit the Detroit Shriners. Smith owns a quilt shop in Plymouth. Taddia is one of her students.

Moldings making a subtle comeback

AP — Decorating fashions run in cycles, and every cycle is slightly different, incorporating the style and the materials of its time.

In room décor, moldings are coming "in" again, but their use is subtle, in keeping with the color-consciousness of our time. And, they come in a variety of materials, although wood is still the consumers' No. 1 preference.

In our grandparents' day, moldings were big, ornate, and usually dark (like the paints and wallpapers of the day). The pendulum swung, and for many years minimal room accents were the style. Door and window frame trims became simpler, while chair rails and crown moldings (the trim that separates — and integrates — ceiling and walls) went out of fashion altogether.

As today's do-it-yourself decorators turn once again to decorative moldings to top off their rooms, they're choosing lighter moldings in less intricate patterns. The most popular trims are traditional in style, but modern in size, simplicity and hue.

CONTEMPORARY MOLDINGS are less bulky and much less intricately profiled than those of grandma's time. But the selection of designs is as varied — if not more so.

"We make more than 40 patterns of oak moldings alone," said Mike Fara of House of Fara, which manufactures solid hardwood moldings and trims. "Almost all are between two and three inches high and less than 1 inch in thickness. We do make larger moldings — up to four and three-fourths inches with more intricate profiles, but they're used in exceptional houses — usually older, restored homes."

Natural-finished light-toned hardwoods are the biggest sellers, outstripping by far the darker natural woods and somber stains. They are often installed with a simple sealant and a clear finish, for a light, bright look.

Painted moldings also tend to be light in color. One stylish technique to subtly highlight trim is to paint moldings a shade lighter than walls: white molding on cream walls, cream with beige, etc.

VIRTUALLY EVERY home or apartment has molding trim around doors and windows, and as "kickboards" where walls meet floor. Changes in style have rarely been so extreme as to eliminate these practical conveniences.

Crown moldings top off walls and tie them to a room's ceiling with a flourish. The accent added to a wallpapered room in this way helps create a warmer, cozier feeling by "bringing down" the ceiling — joining it visually more closely to the walls.

A chair rail molding divides a room, circling it at a height of about 32 inches, usually at the top of a wainscot panel or between wallpapered and painted portions of a room. Chair rails are usually thicker than other moldings, but match the crown.

Using moldings as decorations — as finishing touches to a room — creates an opportunity to accent the main decor with an additional touch of color and a distinctive visual flair.

For a gracious traditional look, a do-it-yourselfer can create panels of wallpaper within painted walls by setting off areas with molding. Corners can be cut with a simple miter box and saw.

Special effects, such as rounded or cut-out corners, can be achieved with pre-shaped products sold in most home centers.

There are two sources for buying moldings: lumber yards and home centers. Lumber yards carry large pieces of unfinished, unsanded molding (often up to 20-foot lengths) that the do-it-yourselfer can cut to size, sand and finish. Warning: getting the longer lengths home and up and down stairs may be the most difficult and frustrating part of your project.

THE SECOND SOURCE — home centers — stock some unfinished molding material, but also pre-cut, sanded and sealed moldings. These are hardwood moldings cut to six-, seven-, or eight-foot lengths, sanded and shrink-wrapped for protection, ready for installation and finishing.

Even for a novice do-it-yourselfer, installing molding is more a matter of care than of craftsmanship. Measure carefully, cut exactly. Check the setting on your adjustable miter box before each cut. Work slowly. And, don't forget to use a level.

Paint and wallpaper first, if your crown or chair rail molding is new. If it isn't, paint or finish the molding first, then paint or paper the wall up to it.

Hardwoods can be amazingly tough to nail. If you're working with oak trim, for instance, you'll be wise to drill nail holes in it before installing it, to save yourself a lot of bent nails and/or split wood.

Fire safety house is feature at show

IN AN EFFORT to reduce the number of fire-related injuries among children, the Southfield Fire Department has designed and built the "Children's Fire Safety House," which is a featured exhibit at the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 at Detroit's Cobo Hall.

In the "Children's Fire Safety House," firefighters will instruct children on how to escape smoke-filled rooms. Firefighters will be on hand to conduct tours and give safety information.

The exhibit will include live demonstrations of fire emergency situations and a fire safety video, which will run continuously throughout the show.

More than 200 children were injured in Michigan house fires in 1988 — many probably would have escaped uninjured if they had had an escape plan.

"THE SOUTHFIELD Fire Department and various Mr. Build contractors have joined forces to build the "Children's Fire Safety House," said Southfield Fire Inspector Randy Fryfogle.

"The 8-by-26-foot-long house is a down-sized mobile replica of a two-story house equipped with a bedroom and a hallway on each floor.

"In the future, the house will be transported to elementary schools to teach children two emergency methods of escaping a burning house during an actual fire drill," he said.

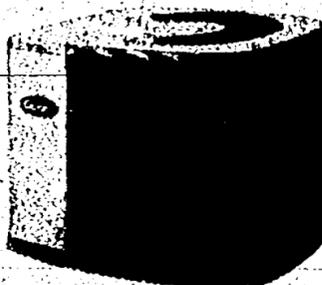

The house is constructed of donated materials by volunteers of both the residential contractor industry and the firefighters.

Blooming treats takes tricks

IT'S NO WONDER THAT perennials are a favorite flower with most folks.

Not only are they ever-bloomin' beautiful, but they require much less maintenance than annuals.

Because perennials are self-perpetuating, they bloom year after year, and have a lower long-run cost than annuals. Although perennials are fairly simple to care for, they do require a certain amount of effort to keep them beautiful every year.

On that score, here's a word of advice from master gardener Carl Krauss of Auburn Oaks Nursery, Rochester Hills:

For good soil preparation, always use peat moss and make sure to rototill the flower bed.

For the many perennials that pop up at the Builders Show, Krauss noted: "We actually trick the flowers into blooming, just in time for the show. Because perennials are accustomed to blooming at the same time every year, we must speed up the normal process of environmental changes they experience each year."

"First the plant must be left in a below-freezing climate for more than 30 days. Then when they are brought into the greenhouse, they are given gradual increases in the amount of daylight hours to simulate the changing of the seasons. They are also given gradual increases in heat and moisture."

But not all perennials bloom at the same time of the year in nature, he continued, so this process varies from plant to plant. The forcing process starts earlier in the year for some varieties.

"But when the Builders Show begins, all these confused perennials will stand at attention all at once," said Krauss.

Breath-taking gardens create

THE International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show would not be complete without miles of breathtaking gardens, and this year is no exception. "We're very excited about the many new gardens featured in the Builders Show this year," said landscape architect James Scott, who designs and oversees construction of the many gardens seen at the Builders Show.

Stroll the gardens and pause by the pools is the invitation again this year at the builders show.

ergreens, including rhododendron, azaleas, flowering dogwood, and much more. These varieties adapt well to Michigan weather as long as they are planted with the proper protection.

"The public can stroll through the gardens and examine the many featured varieties.

"Also new is the garden of poodle-cut evergreens, sponsored by Muellers Sunrise Nursery. These ornamental trees, along with a variety of flowering bulbs, will surround a lighted fountain and a gazebo."

"A REAL TREAT IS the tropical garden, which spans 1,000 square feet. The 50-by-20-foot oasis is divided into three sections: an orchid display with a variety of exotic orchids; a tropical display complete with a live banana tree with actual fruit; and a cactus assortment of flowering and exotic shaped cacti," said Mike Colasanti of Colasanti Tropical Gardens in Ruthven, Ontario. Colasanti is the designer of the tropical garden.

"Also featured are the patio garden, sponsored by the National Bank of Detroit, the waterfall garden, sponsored by Standard Federal Bank, and the pond garden, sponsored by First Federal of Michigan.

"Art Van Furniture, new to the flower show, will sponsor the main entry garden.

"The Detroit Parks and Recreation garden is back by popular demand, along with the Florist Association's exhibit and many more beautiful gardens.

"The Builders Show is famous for tricking annual flowers into thinking its spring, but this year, perennials will be forced to bloom also," Scott said.

"This is an extremely technical process, whereby growers simulate spring with bright sunlight and a gradual increase in greenhouse temperature.

"The flowers bloom just in time for the Builders Show."

NATIONAL BANK of Detroit is the sponsor of a breathtaking patio garden at the Builders Show.

A fountain, 15 feet tall, will bring animation to the colorful garden filled with flowering bulbs, such as daffodils and crocuses.

Visitors are invited to sit and relax in the garden, which will include a winding walkway, made of interlocking paving stones, and park benches.

NBD is also proud to be a part of one of the show's great traditions. The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and NBD share the common goal of providing cost-effective ways for new buyers to acquire homes and for existing owners to upgrade their homes.

Today, having so many types of mortgages to choose from can make it difficult to determine what product best suits a person's particular needs.

The choice depends upon many factors — monthly income, monthly debt obligations, housing payments, home value, long-term financing needs and amounts owed on other loans.

NBD, WITH ITS combination of many mortgage options, extensive expertise and in-depth review of each borrower's needs and resources, can recommend the best choice from the variety of mortgage products available.

Today's market, for example, includes many home buyers who wish to build equity in their home as quickly as possible.

NBD has responded by introducing a new, bi-weekly mortgage plan that reduces the term and total interest expense and speeds up the equity building process, and by offering short-term mortgages.

IN ADDITION, new tax structures

Here it comes — computer landscaping

THE LATEST in video technology has come to the landscape industry. Homeowners can actually see a video image — not just a rendering or drawing — of proposed landscape improvements before the ground is ever broken.

New Image Inc. of Warren will feature the New Image Design System at the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 in Cobo Hall.

The New Image Design System eliminates the misunderstandings that can occur between landscape architect and client. Homeowners will know that landscaping will make their property look like.

The system includes a 80Mb hard disk, computer terminal, high-resolution color monitor, graphics adapter, drawing tablet, video cassette recorder, video camera and landscape design software.

AFTER THE BLUEPRINT is complete, the landscape architect shoots as many views of the bare property as necessary with the video camera, which is later plugged into the computer.

With a stylus and drawing tablet, any landscape elements in the data can be called up and incorporated into the video image.

The computer imaging system was adapted from a highly successful program being used in the beauty salon industry.

Granted, the similarities between the personal-beauty industry and the landscape industry are few. However, the resemblances in the computer imaging concept are many.

Since New Image can successfully depict how a person would look with a new hair style, new makeup, or even plastic surgery, company founders John Halloran and Kirk La Mar reasoned that they should be able to show how a property looked with new landscaping.

Michigan distributor is Sherry Durkee, 294-3979.

Mr. Build shares talents to help kids

FOR THE fourth year, the Detroit area Mr. Build Team of Independent Contractors will be participating in the Builders Show.

The team of Mr. Build contractors have donated their time and services to the Southfield Fire Department to construct the "Children's Fire Safety House" which will premiere at the show this year.

The house, which is designed to teach children how to survive a house fire, will tour local elementary schools after the show.

ALL OF THE WORK done for the Builders Show and the Children's Fire Safety House typifies the Mr. Build ideal — a network of property service people banding together to provide a complete selection of services that consumers can truly rely on. The Mr. Build Team is made up of reliable, professional "user friendly" companies, each of which stands behind the work they do. With over 30 different property trades represented (including plumbing, remodeling, general contracting, electrical services, carpentry and more), Mr. Build is the one to call when you need a service professional.

Premiering at the Builders Show is the new Mr. Build MasterCard. This is an actual MasterCard that offers special Mr. Build privileges to cardholders. Bonus points can be earned toward Mr. Build services by using the card anywhere.

When the Mr. Build cardholder signs up, they receive 500 bonus points and another 250 points the first time the card is used. After the first purchase, every dollar spent equals one bonus point. Every time the cardholder accumulates 2,500 points, they receive $25 in free Mr. Build services. The Mr. Build MasterCard includes special low finance rates and 25-day interest-free credit. Cardholders can obtain approval just two hours after application. All Mr. Build franchisees and employees are pre-approved for the card.

MR. BUILD organization, headquartered in Windsor, Conn., was founded in 1982 by Art Barlett, the originator of Century 21. The franchise organization is comprised of skilled technicians and craftsmen around the country who possess solid reputations in their communities.

In order to qualify as a franchisee, a tradesman must have a sound financial and work record, be skilled and experienced, fully insured and licensed and have the desire to grow and be a leader in his field. Only 10 percent of contractors providing the same service in one given area are accepted as Mr. Build franchisees.

ing and enjoyable.

"I know a particular man who runs a very large company. He says he loves to get his hands in the dirt and enjoy his garden as often as he can. Gardening can be appreciated by anyone, no matter what their position in life may be," said James Scott, president of James C. Scott and Associates Landscaping. James C. Scott and Associates is designing and constructing all of the gardens at the Builders Show.

"ONE THING THE beginning gardener must remember is to keep it simple. Many times the amateur will plant an elaborate garden with many different varieties. Then, he won't understand why so many of the plants die," Scott said.

"Flowers and plants require many different levels of care. For instance a plant that needs sunlight should not be mixed with plants that need shade. The same goes for soil and watering needs."

To have a successful, yet therapeutic gardening adventure, follow these tips from James Scott:

- Don't be too hard on yourself. Don't plant too many varieties. Instead, use just four or five varieties.

- Plant each variety in a large section, instead of mixing varieties together. This design, called drift planting, gives the garden a more naturalistic look. Don't plant one of this, one of that. Spotted planting is risky because most plant types require different care.

- Have a plan and draw it out on paper. Gardening is not a game of chance — it should always be planned. Just as you would decorate the inside of your house with careful thought, your property deserves the same consideration. Take this plan to your nurseryman and ask his opinions and suggestion.

- Do your ground work. Remove sand or clay from garden bed and replace it with well-drained top soil. Poor soil preparation is one of the most common faults of the average homeowner. Without proper soil, most plants will not thrive.

- Most varieties require specific moisture levels. Each variety should have its own watering schedule.

See what's cooking at Jenn-Air exhibit

SAMPLE delicious food cooked in front of your eyes in the Jenn-Air exhibit at the Builders Show.

"We will be cooking a variety of dishes including Chinese stir-fry, barbecue and pastries, just to mention a few. Jenn-Air food economists will be demonstrating how easy and delicious it is to cook with our gas and electric ranges, woks, and convection baking and conventional ovens," said Michael McKimmy, director of builder sales, Jenn-Air Corp.

"Our convection baking ovens have a fan that circulates hot air throughout the oven. This process makes it feasible to cook some foods up to 33 percent faster and some at lower temperatures. The circulation process cooks the outside of the food while leaving the inside still tender. For instance, baked goods are flaky and crisp outside, but soft and fluffy inside," he added.

"JENN-AIR IS THE pioneer in down draft cooking, which eliminates overhead exhaust systems. Air is pulled down into the range which allows people to barbecue inside. In addition, Jenn-Air has a unique feature called "flavor rocks" which are located directly under the grill. These rocks absorb the juices, which drip down from the meat; the juices then evaporate up to the meat and are reabsorbed. This process leaves the meat tender, moist and flavorful.

"Not only do Jenn-Air products make food taste better than you had ever imagined, they happen to be about 10 times more cost efficient than conventional ovens and ranges, when you consider the energy saved and the food that is not wasted due to shrinkage. We estimate that a family can save the equivalent of at least a week's worth of groceries a year if they cook with Jenn-Air products.

"Jenn-Air is not just a range or an oven — it's the cooking system of the 21st century," said McKimmy.

Cadillac dealers sponsor 'Remaking America' exhibit

REMAKING America: New Uses, Old Places" is an exhibition which traces through vintage photographs and explanatory text of the successful rescue of old buildings from destruction and decay.

The exhibition, which is sponsored by the metro Detroit Cadillac Gold Key dealers, will be on display at the Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show to be held March 18-26 in Cobo Hall.

Barbaralee Diamonstein, a leading authority on historical preservation, is the exhibition's curator and organizer. The exhibition travels under the authority of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service (SITES).

The past decade has seen an increase in the efforts by builders, developers and cities to reclaim old buildings. "Remaking America" is a look at the adaptive re-use movement — a program which finds appropriate purposes for buildings other than what the original designers planned.

INSTEAD OF TEARING down old buildings, developers are being encouraged to renew buildings which seem to have outlasted their original uses — old warehouses, market places, railroad stations — and transform them into modern spaces for working, playing, shopping and living.

"Remaking America" recounts with 48 "then" and "now" photography panels the redevelopment of once grand buildings into art museums, shopping malls, law firms and even low-income housing. It also illustrates how changing economic and social conditions affect who participates in re-use projects, how the projects are financed and the diverse nature of the finished projects.

Also included in the display is a quilting area where Dian Smith and Ken Taddia of Plymouth will be quilting. Their two quilts will be later raffled to benefit the Detroit Shriners.

Within the arts and crafts area is a section of 16 antique exhibitors. The section will include demonstrations of antique furniture restoration as well as many forms of antique items ranging from furniture to antique lace.

The Michigan Nature Association is fighting for the lives of rare trees in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

The association is raising money to save hundreds of virgin white pines near the MNA Estivant Pines Sanctuary in the UP.

If association does not raise $100,000 by April 28, the owner of the 80 acres, where the pines now stand, will cut down all of the rare trees.

The association has raised more than half of the money needed to buy the land, thus permanently preserving the pines.

The association hopes to spread the word at the 1989 International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, March 18-26 in Cobo Hall.

THE MICHIGAN NATURE

Association, a non-profit citizens' conservation group, is the most active land preservation organization in Michigan.

In its 36 year history, the association has established 114 nature sanctuaries in 42 counties of Michigan. These 5,500 acres of selected natural areas permanently protect examples of 50 percent of Michigan's endangered, threatened and rare species.

All association lands are open to the public without charge for non-destructive uses such as nature study, hiking, photography and bird watching.

The association's accomplishments have been achieved by unpaid volunteers, using money raised through donations — no government money is used.

See Us At the Show!

THE REAL BEAUTY OF A HOW HOME IS WHAT YOU DON'T SEE.

Lots of kitchen cabinets, crown molding, and extra-large closets are things you can appreciate the moment you see them in a new home.

But the intangibles—things like security and peace of mind—take a little while longer to surface. That's why more and more new homebuyers are insisting on a home protected by the Home Owners Warranty 10 year protection program.

They know they're getting the best protection money can buy. Good for 10 years, and even transferable to the new owners, should you sell your home during that period.

And even though the odds are slim that something will go wrong, it's good to know you're protected against workmanship and material defects the first year. Defective wiring, ductwork, and piping in the second.

And your home is protected against major structural defects that vitally affect the use of your new home for the full 10 years*. Your builder can give you all the details, including the reasonable exclusions.

So when you look for a new home, look for the HOW symbol.
