Neighbor: Borrowed rifle used on couple

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

A .22-caliber, single-shot rifle borrowed from a neighbor to kill "a stray dog," was allegedly used by a Westland man to kill his stepbrother and his stepbrother's Garden City girlfriend, according to court testimony Monday.

Christopher Demeter said he reluctantly loaned the rifle, which belonged to his stepfather, to Gary Joseph Galindo shortly after 7 p.m. March 10.

Galindo, 44, was bound over for trial Monday by 18th District Judge Gail McKnight. He is charged with two counts of first-degree murder and one count of possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony.

"He told me about a stray dog. He said he wanted it to shoot the animal," Demeter testified. "I refused at first. I said he would have to ask my stepfather."

"He mentioned it again (about 45 minutes later) and I refused again. But I finally gave it to him."

Demeter said the rifle wasn't loaded when he loaned it to Galindo. He also said he didn't give Galindo any ammunition.

Galindo, who pleaded innocent at his March 13 arraignment, is being held in the Wayne County Jail without bond. He is scheduled to be arraigned in circuit court 8:30 a.m. Monday, April 3.

He is charged with shooting to death Arthur Andrew Novack, 45, and Sharon June Sahaydak, 44, in a house on the 37100 block of Norene late March 10 or early March 11.

The house was shared by Galindo, his mother, Lucille Galindo, and Novack, according to court testimony.

GALINDO WAS arrested March 11 in Port Huron by St. Clair County sheriff's deputies, who also recovered the apparent murder weapon. Police found a .22-caliber shell casing in a car — registered to Novack — being driven by Galindo.

If convicted on either murder charge, Galindo could be sentenced to life in prison.

An autopsy report by the Wayne County Medical Examiner listed the cause of death for both Novack and Sahaydak as a single gunshot wound to the chest. Police testified Monday that they recovered two empty .22-caliber shell casings and one spent .22-caliber bullet from the home.

MCKNIGHT REFUSED Monday to grant a request by defense attorney Ron Strong to reduce the charges to second-degree murder. Strong argued that there wasn't anything introduced into the court record surrounding the exact circumstances of the shootings that would "indicate premeditation."

The judge however, citing the defendant's alleged actions in the hours before and after the shooting, said there was "no excuse or justification to reduce the charges."

Strong also asked witnesses repeatedly whether Galindo appeared to be under the influence of alcohol or medication March 10 or 11. But witnesses acknowledged that although Galindo has had previous problems with alcohol, he appeared to be "sober" and sounded "normal" over the telephone.

A family acquaintance testified that Galindo telephoned her early March 11 and admitted killing Novack and Sahaydak.

"He called about 6:30 a.m. and asked if I would do him a favor," said Rita Cruse. "He said to call the Westland police department and tell them there's two dead bodies in the house on Norene."

LATER IN the conversation Cruse said Galindo "told me he did it (the murders)."

"I asked him why and he said: 'It doesn't matter. It's done.'"

Cruse testified that the two stepbrothers were "extremely close" and that Novack and Sahaydak were romantically involved. She said she wasn't sure what kind of relationship, if any, Galindo and Sahaydak had.

Prosecuting attorney Frank Bernackl, in a statement to the court, said that the relation-

Hearing postponed in pizza parlor fire case

The preliminary examination for a man charged with hiring someone to burn down his Westland pizzeria was adjourned Monday because the man is in a Bay County jail awaiting sentencing on two felony charges.

Judge Gail McKnight of the 18th District Court rescheduled the exam for Anthony Nerkowski, 24, of Dearborn for 9 a.m. Monday, April 24.

Nerkowski pleaded guilty in federal court to charges of illegal possession of a firearm and conspiracy to deliver marijuana, according to prosecutor Andrew Telek. He is to be sentenced on those charges "in a few weeks," defense attorney Barry Reanck told the court Monday.

Nerkowski is charged with one count of arson of real property in connection with the Feb. 18 explosion and fire that destroyed Dominick's pizzeria and four adjacent businesses on the 28900 block of Warren Road, east of Middlebelt.

The pizzeria owner, who pleaded innocent, could receive a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison if convicted on the arson charge.

ROBERT SALWA of Detroit has also been charged in the pizzeria arson. Salwa, 17, was a delivery boy for the pizzeria.

Salwa was ordered to stand trial in Wayne County Circuit Court following a March 13 preliminary examination.

Salwa, who suffered second-degree burns on his body and face in the explosion, detailed the incident in a statement given to police the following day. The statement was admitted into court records.

According to the statement, Salwa went to the pizzeria with Nerkowski and parked across the street about 1 a.m. Feb. 18. Nerkowski told him to take a 5-gallon can of gasoline from behind the building and spread it around on the Pizzeria floor, Salwa told police.

Salwa was to return to the car and a third, unidentified person was supposed to come by later to light the fire, according to the statement.

But the gasoline apparently touched off an explosion before Salwa could leave the building.

Retiree advisor to retire

By C. L. Rugenstein
staff writer

After 12 years of helping senior citizens enjoy their retirement, Polly Malaney will get some free time to enjoy her own.

Malaney, the Wayne-Westland school district's senior adult program director, will retire in November after 25 years as a school employee.

During an interview in her Dyer Center office, it was a time to remember beginnings, review accomplishments and look to future plans.

Homemade dolls, ceramics, wooden plaques and wall decorations, and a carousel horse-coat rack she decorated herself, surrounded her. They were all items for the upcoming bazaar, an event Malaney started as a fund-raiser for the center.

The bazaar is only one of Malaney's accomplishments since she came on board as the program director in 1977.

In the first years in the job, the program operated out of an office in John Glenn High School. Several years later, the Dyer Center was built and housed the program.

"We had about 200 people when the program started," Malaney said. There were a few classes, high school completion and what Malaney called "leisure," like the exercise classes.

"We kept adding classes, innovating to interest seniors," she said.

FINALLY, about four years later, the program's population had grown to around 1,000 seniors.

City man gets probation for hitting boxer with car

By Bill Casper
staff writer

A 22-year-old Westland man, who drove his car into retired Detroit boxing champion Milton McCrory, was sentenced March 9 by a Detroit Recorder's Court judge to two years probation.

Gary M. Kingins, who was convicted last month of felonious assault with a motor vehicle, also was ordered to pay a yet undetermined amount of money in restitution to McCrory, plus $380 in fines and court costs.

Judge Richard Hathaway, who found Kingins guilty of the charge after a one-day bench trial last month, handed down the sentence.

KINGINS, WHO had pleaded not guilty to the charge, was facing a maximum penalty of four years in prison and a $2,000 fine for the felony offense that stemmed from a Sept. 28, 1988 incident in which McCrory was hit by a car in front of a restaurant in Redford Township.

The assault on McCrory, 27, followed a rock-throwing incident behind Club Mayhem, a Redford bar on Telegraph north of Joy that was destroyed by fire on Dec. 11.

McCrory suffered cuts and bruises after he was hit by the car driven by Kingins but the former boxer was not seriously injured, Redford police said.

He was taken by ambulance to Redford Community Hospital, where he was treated and released, police said.

McCrory, who retired from professional boxing with a 31-4 record, fought as a welterweight out of Detroit's nationally prominent Kronk Gym. He was the World Boxing Council's welterweight champion in 1983.

MCCRORY WAS hit by Kingins' car in front of the McDonald's Mini-Mack restaurant on Telegraph north of Joy, police said.

Thieves damaged walls and made off with about $2,000 in cash when they broke into five shops in a mall on Newburgh and Cherry Hill Roads Sunday night.

Police believe the thieves kicked in the glass door of Guardian Medical Supplies at 983 Newburgh, then broke through the walls of each shop before reaching a vacant store at the south end of the mall.

Police said they questioned suspects in the break-in, but hadn't made any arrests as of Tuesday.

Dan Shafer, manager of Danilo's Italian Pizza shop thought the overall damage estimate to the buildings would be about $5,000. He believes Danilo's was the thieves' main target.

"This is the second time this has happened," he said. "They burrowed through every wall and destroyed every wall in our place."

Shafer believes the thieves were looking for cash from sales. "The places they tore out of here were places we used to keep money," he said.

A broom handle may have been used to batter the walls in Danilo's, police believe, but a fire extinguisher was used on the walls of the Trans Action Transmission shop.

"The fire extinguisher was in the front of the shop," said Shirley Wright, mother of Trans Action owner Sheila Picard.

Wright said the intruders knocked three holes in the south wall to get into the pizza shop.

"They tried in the bathroom," she said, "but the pipes possibly stopped them."

The thieves also made off with $1,350 in cash, police said.

ROBERT Barrows, manager of Guardian said they took about $300 from a petty cash box in the shop after smashing the front door.

"They hammered the hell out of the walls," he said, "took big chunks out."

Police discovered the break-in early Sunday morning and called the shop owners said Frances Keyanchuk, owner of Franco's Beauty Shop.

Part of Keyanchuk's ceiling also fell in, due to the beating her walls took when the thieves broke in, she said. She also lost a large, chair-type hair-dryer.

"Somebody stood on the dryer to break through the wall," she said. "They went through to the video store (the last shop on the south end of the building.) Why, we don't know because it's vacant."

Keyanchuk said they then came back through the wall and broke a double screen door in the rear of her shop to escape.

According to police, the wife of Danilo's owner Brian Harrison saw a truck at the rear of their location Saturday evening.

District's senior citizen program chief to retire retirees, is less than a mile away.) They also have a large number who come in from Wayne, Garden City, Plymouth, Canton and Livonia, she added.

She described the program as serving not only as an educational service but also a social one.

Leisure classes have been expanded to include arts and crafts, as well as exercises. Occasionally they'll have a speaker in for a special program of interest to all. And the money also went toward hiring buses for trips.

But funds for the program, secured by former school superintendent

Timothy Dyer (for whom the center is named) through U.S. Rep. William Ford, didn't cover other things like an occasional dinner-dance and speakers.

This was after a year or two into the program, Malaney said.

"The people needed to do some fund-raising on their own for programs," she said. Malaney said her reasoning on the matter was that it wasn't fair to the taxpayers to depend entirely on them.

"So we tried crafts," Malaney said.

THEY GOT a few people together and formed the Tuesday Club and the Wednesday Club for artsy-craftbyfans.

They built up an inventory and had a bazaar. It's since grown into an annual event at Westland Mall.

"I didn't know much about fund-raising," at the start, she said, "but in thinking about it the other day, how much we've made," it's been about $70,000 since she's been on the job.

Malaney said she was probably more surprised than anybody that she got the job 12 years ago. She had worked off and on for the school district, first as a secretary at Wayne Memorial high school while her children were growing up.

She'd also attended Wayne State

University's College of Lifelong Learning and Madonna college studying gerontology because, she said, "I just always liked older people."

But while the appreciation of the seniors is one of the joys of the job, finding new sources of funds is a major frustration, she said.

The Dyer Center is funded by the school district, because of the high school completion classes they offer. It's separate from the city-run Friendship Center for seniors.

Fewer seniors are coming in to complete their high school education, thus reducing school district support. There are a couple of reasons for this, Malaney said.

"When we first started we were getting a lot of depression-era seniors," she said. "That group for the most part was non-high school graduates."

Growing up in the depression they'd had to drop out of school and get jobs to help their families.

Now, however, seniors growing up about the time of World War II have had the opportunity to graduate.

THAT IMPACTS funding because the only money allotted to the program is for the high school completion program, not for the special leisure programs, Malaney said.

"Each semester seems just a little more desperate," she said. "What are all these people going to do if they close the program?"

The bazaar is one means, but Malaney said they're starting to explore other avenues for funding.

A 30-year resident of Westland, Malaney and her husband, Jack, are looking forward to their retirement.

They're having a house built in Florida, which will be ready "about the time we are" in November, she said.

"I'm going to hate to leave, I'll miss it," Malaney said. But her three grown sons and grandchildren will still be here to visit. "It's just been happy years here."

ship between Novack and Sahaydak was apparently a source of family friction.

Cruse said Galindo also asked her not to tell his mother, who was staying at another brother's house, about the shooting.

Cruse, who said she has known the Gallardo family for about 10 years, testified that Galindo told her he was in Detroit and that police wouldn't find him.

Galindo was arrested after St. Clair County Sheriff's deputies spotted him near a 1988 Ford Taurus matching the description of one sought by Westland police.

The car belonged to Novack, police said.

Man must pay boxer he attacked

The assault on McCrory stemmed from a rock-throwing incident around 2 a.m. behind Club Mayhem after Kingins and three other men were denied entrance to the bar because they could not produce driver's licenses at the request of a bar employee checking for proof that they were of legal drinking ages, police said.

The men returned to Kingins' car parked in a lot behind the bar, where they began throwing rocks and sticks at a few bar customers, including McCrory and his two friends as they were leaving around closing time, police said.

McCrory ran after one of the assailants but gave up the chase in front of the Mini-Mack, police said.

Shortly afterward, Kingins drove his car off Telegraph and onto the sidewalk in front of the restaurant, where he hit McCrory, police said. The former boxer was knocked into the air and landed on top of the car, then rolled off the back, witnesses told police.

Teens caught shoplifting at mall

Three teenagers were caught shoplifting at Westland Center's Hudson's store Saturday when they tried to walk out with about $200 worth of clothing.

The teens, two of whom were 17 and one 16, were reported by police to have taken two pairs of jeans and shorts worth about $50 each to a dressing room in the junior department. They concealed them under their clothing and in a bag one of the teens was carrying, police said.

Hudson's security officers stopped them before they could leave the store and called Westland police. The two 17-year olds were issued ordinance violations and ordered to appear in court for arraignment. The 16-year-old was turned over to the juvenile division.

Lindsay Price, 4, wonders if there's going to be a prize inside her plastic eggs.

The action was fast and furious as approximately 1,200 youngsters joined the "hunt."

Indoor hunt is egg-stra fun

The annual Easter egg hunt was more of a scramble after freezing rain forced it indoors Saturday.

I'm sure we would've had complaints if we held it outside in the wet grass," she said.

But the estimated 1,200 youngsters on hand didn't seem to mind.

Jones said the event drew triple the number of participants compared with 1988, which caught organizers by surprise.

So the colorful eggs were scattered across the gym floor at the Melvin Bailey Recreation Center instead of being hidden among the bushes in the nearby Central City Park.

But she said everyone seemed to leave in the holiday spirit, especially the children who walked away with prizes hidden inside some of the plastic eggs.

So what? There were still numerous dives — and a few friendly shoves — as the competition to see who could gather the biggest booty heated up.

Refreshments — soda pop and cookies — were provided by the Westland fire department.

"It was very congested, but people were patient for the most part," said Marybeth Jones, parks and recreation supervisor.

Other groups that co-sponsored the event were the Westland Jaycees, Civitans, Cultural Society, Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs in cooperation with the parks and recreation department.

Candidates have yet to file for Wayne-Westland board

By Kevin Brown

Livonia school district board members may face challenges June 12.

Two newcomers have filed to challenge incumbents Patricia Sari and Diane "Pat" Tancill for seats on the school board.

In the Livonia Public Schools, which includes part of northern Westland, two four-year seats on the board will be contested.

In the Wayne-Westland school district, no one has filed petitions yet for the two openings. Incumbents Andrew Spisak and Kenneth Barnhill Jr. are expected to file petitions for re-election by the Monday, April 10, deadline.

No challengers have announced their candidacies.

In the Livonia district, candidates who are circulating petitions include Sari, board secretary who was appointed to a vacancy nearly six years ago. She was elected to a four-year term in June, 1985.

Others petitions are out for Tancill, co-owner of a retail business, appointed to fill a vacancy on the board in February 1988, then elected to a three-year term in June 1988; Andrew Lendrum Sr., real estate developer; and David G. Cameron, a former two-term school board member who is in financial services.

To vote in the June election, voters must register by Monday, May 15.

Levin: Deficit hurting programs

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Slashing the national deficit by raising taxes is the key to a healthier economy with better services, explained U.S. Sen. Carl Levin to a western Wayne County audience Tuesday.

Environment, education and a health care system that Levin called shameful are major concerns.

But the unwieldy $2.8 trillion deficit puts all national programs in jeopardy, he said in his Canton Library talk.

"We're papering over the deficit," said Levin, who was invited to Canton by state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton.

"Something has to give somewhere," Levin said. "Basically we're ducking the issues. We're not addressing the issues that threaten the economy, which is the deficit."

THE TIDE will turn, he said, by increasing cigarette taxes, imposing fees on imported oil and applying a higher tax rate to wage earners with annual incomes of $150,000 or more.

Someone earning $20,000 annually shouldn't pay the same tax rate as someone earning $1 million, said Levin.

"There's no painless way to reduce the deficit and no line item called waste in the budget," according to the 10-year congressional veteran.

Levin attacked money spent on warheads.

"All you can use them for is to threaten," he said. "We have enough warheads 100 times over to blow up the Soviet Union."

Too much money is dumped into defending allies and bringing troops home will cut federal expenses, he added. "We're spending more money to defend Europe than Europe is to defend Europe."

But a deadlock between the president, who promised not to raise taxes, and Congress, which said it wouldn't take the lead in imposing taxes, paralyzes either from taking necessary action, Levin said.

If the deficit is ignored, basic federal commitments, especially Social Security, will fail, he added.

"Social Security may not be there when we need it," he said.

The government has to build the money supply for the year 2003, when more money will be drawn out of the retirement payment system than what is deposited.

"We're pitting seniors against other programs," Levin said.

A NATIONAL crisis in solid waste disposal sites has been especially evident in Canton, one of a group of Wayne County communities considered for a landfill to handle much of Wayne County's solid waste.

"I'm not sure we're (Congress) doing a whole lot in solid waste," said Levin, adding that most solid waste regulations have been imposed by state and local governments.

"The federal government has not stepped in here," Levin said. "We're looking at possibly having the Pentagon use recyclable paper to get a bigger demand for recyclables."

The environment is one of many pressing issues in Canton that are reflective of areas that have to be addressed nationwide during the next decade, said Kosteva.

SHIRLEY POLING said she was disappointed more residents failed to show for the open meeting.

"People want to say elected officials are out of touch," said Poling adding that few voters take advantage of open meetings to "get in touch."

Dale Smith said it's ironic the president claims there are no new taxes. But when he filled out his income tax forms this year he learned he had fewer deductions compared to last year.

"I just wanted to come out and hear what he had to say," said Bob Birch, of Canton. "Just to let him know we're alive."

Kohl's opening draws record crowds Sunday

Kohl's specialty store in Westland opened to the largest crowds in the company's history, said store manager Holly Smolinski.

There were long lines at all cash registers most of the day Sunday, the grand opening of the store which replaced MainStreet at Westland Center after a corporate buyout in late 1987.

Playing at the opening ceremony Sunday morning were musicians from Churchill High School who also stayed on as temporary part-time employees.

Store Manager Holly Smolinski said that there were 210 workers on hand for the first week of business as Kohl's with the normal workforce being 132.

She said there were few complaints of long waits by customers.

On hand to handle the crunch were management representatives from the company's corporate office in Brookfield, Wis., said Smolinski.

Obviously pleased with the Sunday crowds, the manager commented that it was a "wonderful opening and absolutely great."

MainStreet opened in October, 1987, shortly before it was bought by Kohl's. Under new ownership, the specialty store will add more brand clothing brands, small electronics, and an expanded home furnishings department, the company said earlier.

Accusations fly at abortion lecture

The auditorium may have been "packed" in more ways than one Tuesday afternoon during a lecture on the Supreme Court decision on abortion.

An Oakland University administrator was accused of leading an audience with pro-life supporters and prodding them with questions to ask the pro-choice speaker.

The speaker was Sarah Weddington, best known as the lawyer who successfully argued the Roe vs. Wade case to the U.S. Supreme Court, granting women the constitutional right to continue or terminate an unwanted pregnancy.

"I'm upset because an administrator, David Strubler, was seen by several of us standing outside the auditorium and handing out slips of paper with well-prepared questions," said Rebecca Warner, assistant professor of sociology.

"I'm an employee of the university, and I don't think it's appropriate for me to provide my students with questions."

STRUBLER, MANAGER of Employment and Staff Development at OU and an ardent pro-life supporter, would not comment on the charges.

"Abortion is a very controversial issue," he said. "For that reason, I think that accusations will be made on both sides."

Strubler admitted he was disappointed that only one side of the issue was represented at the forum.

Paul Franklin, chairperson of the student life lecture board which arranged the program, said he didn't think it was necessary to bring in a speaker with the opposing viewpoint.

"This is not an election issue," Franklin said. "We've had pro-life speakers before, and we've had both sides debating together."

But she (Weddington) is one of a kind. She's the only person to win an abortion case in the Supreme Court."

In her speech, Weddington said she thought the U.S. Supreme Court may eventually grant states the right to regulate abortion legislation "more broadly."

But she maintained her position that "tright to make the final decision, not the state."

Veteran Schoolcraft trustee stepping down

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Rosina Raymond is a walking history of Schoolcraft College. Names, dates and events from the college's first quarter century come tumbling out in a conversation with the long-time Schoolcraft College trustee.

Any details she can't quite remember are there for ready reference in five notebooks and countless file folders filled with campaign fliers, board proclamations and articles clipped from long-ago newspapers.

Raymond, a board member since 1971, will be seeking re-election this spring after completing her third successive six-year term.

"I'VE LOVED my time on the board but six years is a long time," she said.

Even though she's leaving the board, Raymond will be maintaining ties with the college.

"I'll be serving on the Schoolcraft Foundation (a non-profit group that finances scholarships for area students)," she said. "I'll still be keeping an eye on things."

IT'S A relationship that goes back to Schoolcraft's beginnings. Raymond campaigned for the college's creation back in the early 1960s and was a candidate in the college's initial trustee election in 1961.

"It wasn't easy," she said of the campaign to create Northwest Wayne County Community College (Schoolcraft's pre-founding name).

That the Redford Union and South Redford schools failed to join the Schoolcraft district is still a disappointment, she said.

"There was a newspaper out in Redford that was campaigning against us, saying all kinds of things," she said. "That's probably the primary reason why the two Redford school districts didn't join us."

IN 1965, she faced incumbent trustee Sam Hudson of Plymouth in a one-on-one campaign she said was her most exciting.

"Because there were just the two candidates, I think it focused attention on the race and on the college," she said.

Hudson called the race a water-mark for the fledgling community college in "Reaching Out," his 1983 Schoolcraft history.

AT THE time, Hudson wrote, the Schoolcraft board was dominated by Plymouth-area residents, most of whom were elected by district. Raymond's candidacy was seen as building Livonia interest in the college.

Though a subsequent court case opened the way for at-large representation for all seats, swinging the balance to Livonia, Raymond continued to press for greater representation from all five school districts included in the Schoolcraft district.

Even though she narrowly lost the 1965 election, she and Hudson became friends. Among her prized possessions is a hand-signed copy of Hudson's college history. The late Hudson made several references to Raymond in the volume.

In one he recalls her determination in the light of the early election defeats.

"At that point, many a person would have given up trying," he wrote. "But Rosina didn't and her tenacity paid off."

TENACITY HAS marked Raymond's career on the board, whether it's fighting for liberal arts programs or women's rights.

"She's always been right in there fighting for the cause," board president Mary Breen said. "She's been a fine friend to Schoolcraft College."

In the early 1970s, Raymond participated in a Washington, D.C., "fly in" among nationwide Equal Rights Amendment supporters and was active in the creation of Schoolcraft's Women's Resources Center.

"That is one of the things of which I'm proudest," she said. "That center has helped many, many people over the years."

CREATION OF the Seven Mile Crossing office complex on college-owned property was a major recent highlight, she said.

"That will allow us to get the Women's Resource Center and all the other offices out of those little houses along Haggerty and into a space on their own on campus," she said.

Though several former trustees used their Schoolcraft positions as a springboard to city or state office, Raymond said she never harbored such ambitions.

"I'm interested in politics but probably not as interested in it as my husband (former Livonia Councilman Jerry Raymond)," she said.

RAYMOND, HOWEVER, has been active in numerous community activities and is active in the city's library programs. In 1980, she was selected Livonia First Citizen in an annual community recognition program co-sponsored by the Observer Newspapers.

She raised four children before receiving her bachelor's degree. She received a master's-in-teaching-college speech and language from Wayne State University and later worked toward her doctorate at the Detroit-based university.

Raymond began her education career as a junior high school teacher. She later served on the faculty of Madonna College. Fluent in German and Spanish, Raymond was also a part-time member of the Wayne State University speech department. At various times, she also taught community education classes in genealogy. That subject is a personal favorite.

"I'm working on an anecdotal history of eight families of my relatives," she said. "I've been back and forth over Europe several times looking at records that go back as far as 1654."

"Sometimes, information is hard to find, but I'm not one to give up."

Four seats available in SC election

Four seats will be available on the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees in this spring's election with at least one new trustee assured of election.

Rosina Raymond of Livonia, the board's senior member, announced she wouldn't be seeking re-election.

Raymond's six-year seat is open. Seats held by board president Mary Breen of Plymouth Township and board members Harry Greenleaf and Jack Kirksey, both of Livonia, are also up for election this year. Candidates have until Tuesday, April 25, to file for the seats, said Schoolcraft director of institutional advancement Sandra Florek.

At this point, no incumbents have filed, though Florek said that wasn't unusual.

In all, three six-year seats and one four-year seat will be decided.

Candidates must live within the Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Garden City, Clarenceville or Northville public school districts. Residents living in a small portion of the Novi public school district are also eligible.

Nominating petitions can be obtained at college president Richard McDowell's office in the Grote Administration building on the school's main campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

The board usually meets the fourth Wednesday of each month. Trustees serve without pay.

Group works for 'chemical-free' roommate choice

By Susan Rosiek
staff writer

An ad hoc committee is urging State Rep. David Honigman to re-introduce a bill allowing students at all state colleges and universities to request roommates who don't drink alcoholic beverages or take illicit drugs.

The push for a new state law comes despite a voluntary pledge from 13 of the state's 15 public colleges and universities.

"I'm glad they're doing something positive, but I'm skeptical," said U.S. District Judge Bernard Friedman, leader of the ad hoc committee lobbying for the "chemical-free" option.

"The problem that I have not doing it by legislation is they (colleges and universities) can discontinue it any time they want," said Friedman, whose committee has backed the proposal for the past two years.

In a letter to Honigman last week, Friedman said legislation is needed to "ensure continuation of the chemical-free option."

"The only thing that will guarantee it year after year is legislation," agreed committee member Lorna McEwen, a publicist for the chemical dependency programs at Henry Ford Hospital-West Bloomfield.

Both Friedman and McEwen point to Western Michigan University's "experimental program" that offers students an option to live in non-smoking, non-alcohol and limited-visitation dorms beginning in the fall.

Both praised the WMU administration's efforts but noted that the program is experimental.

HONIGMAN'S proposed bill would also require the state's 44 private colleges to give students the choice of a non-drinking roommate, as they now offer the option of a non-smoking roommate.

Honigman introduced the bill last year, but it never made it out of committee after the public and private educational institutions announced their opposition.

Dr. Glenn Stevens of the Council of College Presidents, representing the state's 15 public schools, has said previously that the issue is more complex than a mere check-off on a housing application.

"It's a complicated issue. The university is entering into a contractual agreement with students," Stevens said in an earlier interview with the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. "What controls can the university reasonably implement to enforce such a contract?"

Council members oppose the legislation, he said, because compliance is best left up to the individual school administrations.

Friedman, however, said the issue involves students' rights.

"A student has a right to be in a chemical-free environment," Friedman said, noting he handled many alcohol-related cases as a 48th District Court judge.

Honigman, R-West Bloomfield,

'A student has a right to be in a chemical-free environment.'

— Bernard Friedman
U.S. District Judge

met with representatives from 13 of the state's 15 public institutions Feb. 24 at Oakland University. The representatives, vice presidents for student affairs, agreed to include the chemical-free housing option on their schools' applications forms, according to OU student affairs vice president Wilma Ray-Bledsoe.

REPRESENTATIVES of Michigan State University and Northern Michigan University were absent. Last month Northern officials said beginning this fall they plan to offer students an opportunity to select roommates who do not use alcohol by checking off that option on the housing application.

But Robert Underwood, the director of student housing at MSU, is unsure whether MSU housing applications will offer students the option.

"There are lots of problems connected with it," said Underwood. "Housing operators are totally at the mercy of the person filling out the form. Habits change. Conflicts arise. Then the university is held in low esteem. It's not an easy thing."

Robert Hughes, director of student housing at the University of Michigan, was unaware of state legislation to get the option placed on housing applications, but said U-M will begin offering students a choice come September.

"We will give students an opportunity to choose a chemical-free roommate," Hughes said. "It has nothing to do with legislation. This is just something we are going to do."

Deborah McNish, associate director of auxiliary operations and housing for Eastern Michigan University, served on a state task force a year ago that addressed the issue.

"Sure we will comply," McNish said. "People have already started signing up about a week ago. It looks like a big hit. That's positive."

Schoolcraft's College Radcliff Center will register students for the spring term, which includes a new course in allied health education and management.

Mail registration will be accepted, April 3-14 with a special walk-in sign-up scheduled for 1-7 p.m., Wednesday, April 26, at the center on Radcliff, just south of Ford and east of Wildwood.

The spring term opens May 8. The center had 3,000 students last semester enrolled with most coming from Garden City and Westland.

A new class is a one-hour credit for allied health education, offered to high school students and older adults.

The course provides a wide prospective and overview of the college's allied health career programs to help students pick a specific major, said Stuart Baker, assistant dean/college centers.

One goal for the class is to provide allied health professionals with a better understanding of related positions in their organizations, said Baker.

Another goal is to give high school students a "preview of coming attractions" for the allied health field.

THE NEW class covers current trends and changes in health care facilities, including acute care hospitals, specialty hospitals, nursing homes, health maintenance organizations, hospices, and home health care.

More information is available by calling Pat Rubio, professor in the medical records technology program, at 482-4400, Ext. 6025.

The quality management course, begun a few months ago, was launched in response to "quality mandates from manufacturers and suppliers," Baker said. It's aimed at preparing quality management specialists in manufacturing or service fields, and is designed for people in those fields.

Students learn to determine the quality and reliability of products using testing and inspecting techniques, evaluating statistical data, and interpreting engineering drawings, diagrams and formulas.

A THIRD new course added to the Radcliff Center, collegiate skills, is planned to help students who need study skills and note taking skills, Baker said.

Brochures listing the spring programs are available at Radcliff Center, open until 10 a.m. weekdays.

Baker said there are still openings in the medical transcription program. He said the average salary for entry-level medical transcriptionists is just under $18,000. Students entering the program must have a minimum typing speed of 50 corrected words a minute, English usage competency equivalent to a high school graduate, spelling competency of a high school graduate, a normal hearing level and ability to listen with comprehension.

Thirty-one credits are required to complete the one-year course.

Students warned about stranger

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Officials at Fiegel Elementary School in Canton are warning students not to talk to strangers following reports of a man exposing himself to girls.

Elementary school girls in Canton say they were approached by an unidentified man naked from the waist down.

The man approached the two 9-year-old girls and asked for directions as they were walking on Honey Lane in the Honeytree Apartment complex at Joy and I-275 in Canton.

The girls were on their way to Fiegel Elementary School on Joy Road in Plymouth Township at 8 a.m. on Monday, March 20, when the incident occurred, according to Dave Boljesic, Canton police spokesman.

"When they approached, they noticed he had no pants on and was masturbating," said Dave Boljesic, Canton police spokesman.

THE GIRLS fled. The man was described as being in his late teens, with blond hair and clean cut. He was driving a gray Ford Fairmont with a black stripe.

An hour later at 9 a.m. two 11-year-old girls were approached by a man with blond hair in the area of Bart and Holly, in Holiday Estate subdivision, which is the first subdivision east of the apartment complex and across the street from Fiegel Elementary School, Boljesic said.

He asked for directions to Deer Street.

As the girls walked toward the car they noticed he was wearing a white T-shirt and nothing else. When they saw he was masturbating they turned and ran away, Boljesic said.

The man was driving a white car. Police patrols were increased in the area, Boljesic said.

Barbara Young, Fiegel principal, made announcements in school and sent letters home explaining what happened.

"We told them not to talk to strangers and not to listen to anyone asking for directions," said Young, who applauded Canton and Plymouth Township police for their quick response to meet with school officials and the added patrols.

"We want people to be aware," said Dick Egli, district spokesman. "But we don't want anyone to panic."

William O'Connor, a school social worker, said the experience can be traumatic for children involved, but less serious emotionally if contact were made or violence was included.

IN A separate case March 15, a man was spotted in the woods near Walker Elementary School on Michigan Avenue east of I-275 in Canton.

He was watching the children in the playground and ran when a lunch aide approached, Boljesic said. The following day a school custodian said he heard a shot gun fired from the wooded area.

Patrol cars also were increased in this area, Boljesic said.

"I think it's good that parents are concerned about the situation," said Lucian Domin, a social worker at Walker Elementary School, which is in the Wayne-Westland School District.

"I think there's also a great over-reaction," he said adding that the man may have been a neighbor walking in the woods.

Stories about Ninja warriors and men with axes circulated in the schools, Domin said.

School finance reform

Why pols forge ahead with new plans

By Tim Richard
staff writer

More sorting it out on school "finance reform."

Q. Well, your prediction was off base. The state Senate didn't put the school tax reform plan on the May 16 ballot. Any alibis?

A. None. As reported, the votes were there. Democrats didn't want to be saddled with the blame if voters rejected the plan, so they wouldn't put up 13 votes unless the Republicans put up 13. So two or three Democrats withheld their votes, and the plan got 24, two votes short.

Q. Why won't some people take "no" for an answer and let this "reform," which is really a tax increase, die? Why are both Blanchard and lawmakers continuing to work on new proposals?

A. Outstate and rural school districts still perceive they're being drastically short-changed when they have $2,200 per kid to spend and the metropolitan suburbs have $6,000 or more.

They want either much more aid from the state or a piece of the metropolitan industrial tax base, or both. Conservative Republicans and the school lobby liberals are united on that.

Most people in the southeastern Michigan metropolitan area have no notion of how some parts of the state feel they're hurting. There's a lot of ferment going on in the Detroit area don't appreciate.

The Oakland County Taxpayers' Association is holding a "tax revolt" meeting at 7:30 tonight in the American Legion Post 108 Hall, Drahnner Road east of M-24 in Oxford. Their flyer says their first priority is high property taxes. This issue isn't dead, even if HJR B is.

Q. What does Gov. Jim Blanchard figure he can do by convening leaders of the Municipal League, Townships Association, Association of Counties, Manufacturers Association, UAW, Chamber of Commerce and all those groups? Haven't we had enough meetings?

A. Blanchard is a total political animal — he keeps both eyes on the polls before advocating anything. His reasoning goes like this:

The 1987 Runkel Commission recommendations were made by people trying to do good for schools; the late Nye-Oxender plan (House Joint Resolution B) was designed by the education lobby and two rural Republican representatives.

But Blanchard says the plan needs to be designed by the people who actually will sell it to voters. Business managers do this when they invite marketing people's input into product design. Remember, Blanchard got a master's in business degree before he got a law degree.

Q. We hear Senate Majority Leader John Engler of Mount Pleasant is passing around still another plan. What's in it?

A. Like HJR B, the Senate plan calls for cutting property taxes and raising the sales tax for a net increase of $239 million a year, then pumping $413 million in additional money for schools.

Q. That doesn't add up. How do they get $413 million more for schools from $239 million of new taxes?

A. The trick is to capture all new growth money. Engler says this "compromise" will:

- Increase the sales tax to 6 percent from 4 percent, raising about $1.6 billion a year.

- Provide about $1.5 billion in property tax relief by cutting assessments for school operations from 50 percent of cash value to 27.5 percent on residential and agricultural property and to 40 percent on businesses. In other words, cut the tax base. The other plan called for cutting tax rates (millages).

• Guarantee each school district a minimum of $3,300 per pupil a year. No district would receive more than a 15 percent increase in any year. The aid increase would be linked with economic growth rather than with cutting other portions of the budget.

Q. The kids are going to be on spring vacation. Any point in taking them to Lansing to see the Legislature in session?

A. Sorry. The Legislature took off Wednesday for spring vacation. They'll be back April 4.

Q. Why such a cushy deal?

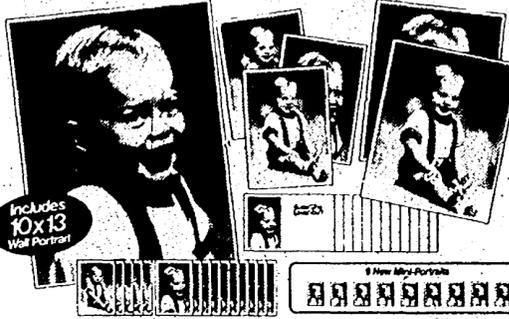

A. Don't complain. There's a sign in the Press Room with that old quotation: "No man's life and liberty are safe whenever the Legislature is in session."

Q. Got your point. Now why was May 16 such a magic date for a ballot proposal?

A. That was the last possible date for a special election for a constitutional amendment to take effect July 1, when school districts start their fiscal year. Elections officials need two months to prepare the ballots. Thus, the Legislature had to act by March 17. It failed to do so.

County applauds success of area youth programs

Throughout Wayne County, youth assistance programs offer young offenders an alternative to juvenile detention homes.

Recognizing the success of youth assistance programs, county Executive Edward McNamara has declared this week Youth Assistance Week in the county.

"The program has a very high success rate, strong community involvement through volunteer counselors and strong support from the police departments," McNamara said.

An awards presentation at McNamara's downtown office launched the week's activities. Some honorees were major contributors to the program, including the Skillman Foundation, Hudson-Webber Foundation and Kellogg Foundation.

Program directors receiving honors included Sue Jimenez, Livonia; Tom O'Connor, Redford Township; Joe Goodrid, Garden City and Sue Davis, Plymouth-Canton.

More than 250 people, including community leaders, parents, youths and directors were invited to the program. Juvenile Judges Frances Pitts and Y. Gladys Barsamian were guest speakers.

Initiated seven years ago in Livonia, youth assistance now has programs operating in 19 Wayne County communities, including Livonia, Redford Township, Garden City and Plymouth-Canton.

Youth assistance moves delinquent youths through a series of activities designed to alter their behavior and permanently divert them out of the juvenile justice system.

"That is the basic idea behind the Youth Assistance programs in Wayne County," said McNamara. "The objective is to identify the youth who is headed for trouble, get him and his parents into counseling and try to redirect his life."

Program activities include behavioral contracting, one-to-one counseling with a volunteer, life skills classes, work service and specialized services like tutorial assistance, job placement and court visitation.

Family members actively participate in the program through group sessions on parenting skills and drug and alcohol education.

— Edward McNamara
Wayne County Executive

Program services are voluntary, free and confidential.

The elements of early intervention and family involvement in treatment, as well as the extensive involvement of the community, have resulted in a high success rate for youths who complete the Youth Assistance Program.

More than 80 percent of Livonia's youthful offenders who have been in the program have not returned to the criminal justice system. This success rate has remained constant since the program began in 1982.

In 1983, the city of Livonia initiated the Training Center to assist surrounding communities in duplicating the Youth Assistance Program. Both the Redford and Garden City programs were established in 1984. Plymouth-Canton launched its program in January 1986.

The state of Michigan, through the Department of Social Services, has provided funds to the Michigan Training and Resource Center to initiate youth assistance in six additional Wayne County cities.

Program development is currently underway in Wayne, Wyandotte, Lincoln Park, Riverview, Southgate and Trenton.

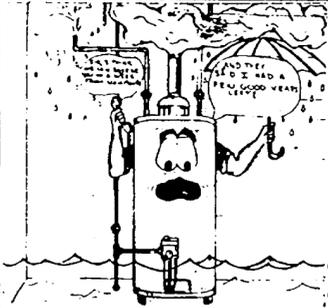

Detroit programs are under the supervision of the Wayne County Juvenile Court. All other programs have local autonomy, local control and local funding. Community involvement and a high success rate are factors which result in long-term commitment and local financial support, according to program directors.

The Youth Assistance program directors and the Michigan Training and Resource Center staff recently established a coordinating council. Working together, this group has joined in a countywide effort to bring coordinated services to Wayne County's juveniles.

Long term plans include establishing Youth Assistance programs in every community in Wayne County, thus providing families throughout the county with access to this community based service.

Citizens with questions about the program, or who want information about initiating the service in their communities, should contact their local city hall or the Michigan Training and Resource Center.

Foster care panel seeks members

Volunteers are needed to review foster care in Wayne County.

The State Court Administrative Office seeks volunteers to serve on one of the county's eight foster care review boards.

Board members meet each month to review cases of children placed in foster care homes, as the result of abuse or neglect. Reviews determine if appropriate efforts are being made by the Michigan Department of Social Services, juvenile court and private child care agencies to find a permanent homes for the children.

A cross section of volunteers is sought, though applicants must live in Wayne County. Employees of the DSS, juvenile court or private child care agencies are ineligible. New board members will attend two days' training in Lansing. Meeting expenses are reimbursed.

Those interested in volunteering can write: Michigan Foster Care Review Board, Plaza Building, 1200 Sixth St., Suite P-150, Detroit, Mich. 48226.

Applications must be received by Monday, April 3. Additional information is available by calling 256-1540.

Marshmallow drop planned for Friday

A blizzard of marshmallows will greet participants during Wayne County Parks' annual "Great Marshmallow Drop," Friday.

A county tradition since 1978, the annual Good Friday event will be held 11 a.m. in Hines Park. Children will gather at the Nankin Mills Picnic Area, Hines Drive and Farmington Road, Westland. Marshmallows will be dropped from a helicopter hovering over the park at an altitude of 200 feet.

Children are encouraged to gather marshmallows and exchange them for a prize-filled Easter egg. Children will be divided into age groups to give each child a fair chance at marshmallow gathering.

The event will also be held 9 a.m. in Elizabeth Park, Trenton. The rain date is Saturday, March 25.

The marshmallow drop is the kick-off for spring activities in the parks.

SPRING PARK activities continue with the first "Saturday in the Park" event, May 6. From then through Sept. 23, six miles of the Hines Drive will be closed to motor traffic between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. to provide greater park access for bicyclists, joggers and strollers.

Hines Drive will be closed from the Warrendale Picnic Area, west of Outer Drive, Dearborn Heights, to the Nankin Mills Station, near Ann Arbor Trail, Westland. Parking will be available at the Helms Haven, Warrendale, Merriman Hollow and Nankin Mills picnic areas.

Other spring events include Mud Day and the Nursery School Olympics.

Mud Day allows youngsters the chance to play in a specially-created mud pool. The event is highlighted by the crowning of Mr. and Ms. Mud. The annual event will be held 11 a.m. Saturday, May 13 at the Nankin Mills Picnic Area. The event is co-sponsored by Tubs and Tumbler Coin Laundry.

The Nursery School Olympics are designed for children age 3-4. Events include (very) miniature golf, marshmallow shot put, paper plate discus toss and Big Wheels grand prix. All children are awarded a commemorative ribbon for their participation. The event is co-sponsored by the Greater Detroit Cooperative Nursery Council.

Additional information on spring parks activities is available by calling recreation and special events manager Vic Chiasson at 261-1990.

The 4th R Let's limit graduation parties

HIGH school graduations may seem a long way off with residents still battling winter weather. But it's never too early to start thinking about heading off the planned drinking parties.

Unfortunately, seniors want to graduate with a memorable experience — and we don't blame them for that.

Completing their high school education is a major milestone in the life of a teen-ager and it should be marked by more than just a dinner at a family restaurant with parents, siblings, and grandparents.

While many seniors take a nip or two at graduation parties, we feel there is a growing number of graduates who planned to get bombed just for the sake of it.

There are a lot of mixed messages from adults and society about teen drinking and many 18-year-olds don't have the experiences to consider the consequences of living "for the moment" and not thinking ahead.

There are a lot of ways to fight the problem and save lives.

One is a local ordinance, commonly called the "party host ordinance," which makes the adult occupants of a house or their teenage sons or daughters responsible for any illegal drinking in their homes.

We strongly urge the Westland City Council to adopt such an ordinance.

Current ordinances on the books in other communities address the problem by having adults prosecuted for contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

But city, school leaders, and police officers can always use another tool — the party host ordinance.

It was pioneered nearly four years in nearby Farmington Hills where Police Chief William Dwyer told the Observer that it has been very effective and a great deterrent.

His department has made from 15 to 20 arrests since the ordinance was adopted with the defendants ranging in age from 17 to the mid-40s. The penalties are a $500 fine and/or 90 days in jail.

Now is the time to push for a host party ordinance to control the drinking problem.

The seriousness of the problem can also be seen in the 1987 Michigan State Police reports, which show that drivers in the 24-and-younger age are involved in a disproportionate share of fatal car accidents.

The police said that 35.3 percent of drinking drivers in fatal crashes are 24 or younger, said a Wayne MADD spokesperson.

WHILE a host party ordinance may not be a solution to all liquor problems, it will go a long way to tell parents and young adults that allowing drinking by persons under 21 is a serious problem that can cost persons convicted money, a potential jail term, and potentially a large civil judgment.

Under some party host ordinances, parents are held responsible for illegal drinking in their homes, whether the parents are home or not.

We admit that teens face plenty of outside forces, such as peer pressure, the feeling that "everyone else is doing it," and the need to fit in with classmates.

But there are plenty of medical reasons to avoid liquor before it becomes a problem, either at graduation time or anytime.

While parents can be more responsible with their own sons and daughters, graduates must also face up to their own actions and avoid taking risks.

One constant reminder to both groups could be widely-distributed photos of destroyed cars and mangled bodies found by police officers after an accident involving liquor.

School officials have spent a lot of time, energy, and money to see that students master the three R's. Maybe the fourth R should represent "responsibility" for parents and teens.

Alcohol-free Students must have a choice

IT'S EXCITING that starting this fall nearly all of Michigan's public colleges and universities will give students the option of alcohol-free rooming.

It appears the only holdout is Michigan State University. MSU officials say they're still unsure whether to allow students to request non-drinking roommates. That's too bad, because MSU's dormitory system is by far the largest of any institution of higher learning in the state.

We urge MSU officials to join their public college and university counterparts before fall term housing applications start pouring in.

That issue aside, credit is due those other institutions of higher learning who have adopted the alcohol-free option and to people who urged them to do so.

It's a diverse lot, with members ranging from West Bloomfield High School senior Eric Worley, who testified before a state legislative committee that it was his right to have the choice of a roommate who didn't use alcohol, to federal Judge Bernard Friedman, who was disturbed at the number of young people who came before him for alcohol and drug-related offenses.

Documentation that students recovering from substance abuse problems must have a safe place to live was provided by representatives of Maplegrove Youth Treatment Center in West Bloomfield.

In the end, it took two responsive legislators to put enough pressure on the colleges and universities to get them to agree that students should have the same right to choose a non-drinking roommate, as they now have to choose a non-smoking roommate.

STATE REP. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, drew up the proposed legislation, while state Rep. Burton Leland, D-Detroit, when he was chair of the House Committee on Colleges and Universities, agreed to delay action on the bill before the committee, giving the universities until this spring to respond and ward off the legislation.

Honigman previously had insisted on total compliance from public colleges and universities. He plans to meet with area members of an ad hoc committee to discuss the next move. It's unfortunate that it took the threat of legislation to get public schools to make a commitment. Honigman has had no response from the association that represents private colleges.

We hope that private colleges will follow the lead of their public counterparts.

Although initially aimed at providing a safe haven for college students recovering from substance abuse problems, the alcohol-free room option is now much broader.

Although initially aimed at providing a safe haven for college students recovering from substance abuse problems, the alcohol-free room option is now much broader. It's an acknowledgment that students have made a lot of choices about their lives.

It's an acknowledgment that students have made a lot of choices about their lives.

It will also aid students who come from homes where alcohol has been a problem, students whose religion doesn't allow them to drink and students who simply don't want alcohol-related parties in their rooms.

IT MAY even lead to an overall reduction in college-age drinking.

Rather than weakening their position on in loco parentis (charged with a parent's rights, duties and responsibilities), the schools have taken a further step toward increased student rights. Students have another opportunity to determine the kind of lifestyle they want.

We urge parents to take the first step in separating from their college-bound students and allow them to fill out their student housing applications for themselves.

That what's happening at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, which this fall will have a wing for students who chose not to drink or use drugs for any reason.

Making the decision to choose a roommate who doesn't smoke or who doesn't drink must be the student's choice, for it will be the student who must enforce it.

The state's public institutions of higher learning can take pride in the example they are setting for the rest of the nation in stepping up to the fact that drinking is a choice, not a necessary part of college life.

We hope that the public schools will live up to the spirit of their voluntary, verbal agreement, and we call upon MSU and the state's private colleges to make it unanimous.

Listen up lawmakers to these wise words

NOTHING is more important than hearing from the reader — especially when your comments have to do with an issue of overriding social significance.

Lately we've been reading a lot about education, its financing and its effectiveness in educating our children. A while back, you may recall, a concerned teacher wrote to express disgruntlement with academia. Because of its importance, education is always a welcome subject in this column.

Now, a student has written in to express his concerns. I know you'll find the remarks by Hans Wild compelling. Hans, a student at Stevenson High School in Sterling Heights, saw a copy of the other column via teacher Marie Brown.

This is what Hans has to say. "The system is going downhill rapidly, and several groups of people are to blame.

"THE ATTITUDES of a portion of the students are totally wrong. As the teacher in the previous article stated, children and teens see school as a "place to come and socialize," and this is very true.

"These students are often the same ones who are late for class. Also, a lot of students declare that a certain class, or just school in general, is impossibly hard. However, these are, more often than not, the students who do not apply themselves; they don't try to do well. These are the students who have the

"Also to blame for the failing educational system are the administrators. Administrators are very naive when it comes to what goes on in the classroom. They do not see the bad attitudes of the teachers and the students. They do not know what real 'school life' is all about. They live in their own 'office' world.

"When it comes to disciplinary actions, the administrators are much too easy, and therefore, repetitious offenders are common.

"It is time that the administrators come down to earth and find out what really goes on in their schools. And when they find out the problems, they must do something to correct them."

It's nice to see a student with such deep concern. Thanks, Hans, for taking the time to write. Maybe the politicians in Lansing will stop messing around and get down to business once they learn what you already know.

wrong attitude.

"I feel that the acquiring of this attitude should not be blamed solely on the student, but also on the student's parents. All parents should push their children to develop good homework and study habits.

"There are also a few teachers who have the wrong school attitude. These are the teachers who hand their students a textbook, assign a few questions or problems each day, read off the answers the next day and give a test every other week.

"This is not teaching. "A teacher must know more about a subject than just what is in the textbook. A teacher must teach. He should help students with problems, answer questions, and lecture, in-depth on material that a student can not get out of a regular textbook. This, in turn, is teaching.

Store lacking good security

To the editor:

My husband and I were shopping at a major discount/catalog store. I was standing near the exit door waiting for him when I noticed two women leaving the store with merchandise. I thought it was unusual, because every purchase had to be picked up at a desk.

A few minutes later, there was a male, with what appeared to me had a large item hidden in his jacket. He went to a van in the parking lot, where I thought the two women had also gone. As we were leaving the store, I said to my husband, "I think three people have just walked out of the store with stolen goods." We went to our car and watched the people in the van. A few minutes later, the same male got out of the van and went back into the store.

I told my husband, "I can't let this happen again." I followed him into the store and went to a store employee and told them of the incident. She did not seem alarmed. At that point, the male was coming out of the store with merchandise visibly showing in his coat. Much to my chagrin, she informed me that the store did not have security. She then called the police. They could not send a car at that time because they were all busy. My husband gave her the license plate number and the description of the car and we all watched them drive away. Nothing was done.

First of all, I could not believe the store didn't have security. Secondly, that a person would have the gall to take something that did not belong to him and come back again. You and I are paying for this incident with increased prices. Don't these people have a conscience? How can they take something that does not belong to them?

I wonder if they are the same people standing in line for a free hand-out or milking the system for every dime they can get. I guess the joke is on us, the poor fool who has worked for every dime and tries to get through life by doing what is right.

Boycott those who censor

To the editor:

That's Show Biz. I have suggestion for all you people who are upset by the wife of the president of the company (Walbridge Aldinger) in Livonia, who's trying to get "Married With Children" off the air, boycott the advertisers' products that didn't have the guts to stick it out with (WKBD-TV) Channel 50.

Mrs. Rakolta, somehow this doesn't surprise me; that's just like a Republican to pick on the little guy. Don't you have anything better to do with your time? Why don't you worry about your family and leave TV to the pros? You're playing with fire and you will get burned!

To Channel 50, the producers, cast and crew of "Married with Children," always keep one thing in mind, "Life's battles are not always won by the ones with the most power and wealth but by the ones that say I can." I hope all you people in the entertainment field, and you readers, keep one thing in mind: this is the United States and in the Constitution it states we have the freedom of choice, which many have died for.

Jerry P. King, Livonia

Watch capitol shell game

To the editor:

Here we go again with another Lansing shell game. We'll take care of your schools. It will only cost you 50 percent more in state sales tax. We will give you a 37 percent cut in school taxes on your property.

When are the people in this state going to wake up? The recent increase in equalized value will still mean higher property taxes in spite of the 37 percent cut. State sales tax is no longer deductible on your federal income tax return; this is a tax cut? How much of the state-controlled tax increase will go to our suburban school systems?

I see this new tax as a cloaked attempt to bail out the failing Detroit school system. It is not a tax cut. Will Livonia get its fair share, will it stop escalating property taxes if voted into law by the voters? I would look at this tax increase very carefully before voting yes. Which shell is the tax cut really under? None!

Baseball relieves stress

THERE ARE many important issues weighing heavy on your minds and those issues are very pressing. They are also depressing.

My mind for a day hasn't room for such thoughts. It's too busy drifting back to the stands behind first base at a stadium where palm trees cast shadows over the right field fence. Only a week ago that wandering mind was joined by a body. If you've ever seen spring training baseball, you know why it's hard to leave it behind.

This game was played at the winter home of the New York Mets, which, according to spring training guides, is in Port St. Lucie, but according to promotional brochures and billboards is actually in West St. Lucie, or maybe it is West Port St. Lucie. I get confused.

PORT ST. LUCIE is not your household word. As I prepared for Florida, no one I talked with knew where it was. I told friends it was near Port St. Ricky Ricardo and generally got in return that type of look you get when people think you really do need a vacation.

Port St. Lucie has been in Florida a long time. There is even a Club

Rich Perlberg

Med there. But the area recently has taken off. The couple we traveled with could document the rapid growth of housing developments, shopping malls and commercial strip developments.

There are now two Port St. Lucie daily newspapers. Can a Port St. Lucie JOA be far behind?

But the Mets are not in Port St. Lucie. They are west of the river in West Port St. Lucie, which, near as I could tell, consists of a baseball park, a golf course and hundreds of acres of flat, grassy land with periodic signs saying, "Site of New MegaMall."

ALL OF this is immaterial. I don't care to talk today about the malling of America, the paving of pastures or even the use of government money to build baseball parks to lure major league baseball teams from one Florida city to another. That is what is happening in Florida, where a monument stands in front of the Mets' Florida stadium in appreciation to county taxpayers whose money built the park in 1988.

I don't care about these things, just as I don't care that I was watching the New York Mets, probably the only team I dislike more than the New York Yankees. I even wore a Mets cap.

You really cannot dislike anything at a spring training game. Even the hoots for pouting millionaire Darryl Strawberry were good-natured. In a world of oranges and grapefruits, there is little room for serious raspberries.

BASEBALL IS a wonderful sport. There is not the aggression, the taking of turf that marks other sports. How many other sports do you know where the defense gets the ball?

In baseball you get the full measure of your opponent. There is no stalling in baseball. No holding the ball until the clock runs out. The other team always gets its last bats. It ain't over 'til it's over.

As good as the game gets during the season when lazy summer days turn into tension-packed, late-inning rallies, there may be no better time and place for baseball than in Florida in March.

The grass is green, the sky is blue, the sound of the bat on the ball is loud and true. Young men are playing a child's game while children of all ages bask in both the sun and the dreamed-of glory.

Lawmakers quietly reach 'Potty parity'

VERY QUIETLY, Michigan has made progress toward achieving "potty parity" — somebody else's nickname for a 2-1 ratio of women's to men's toilets in public buildings.

I wouldn't have known about it except that state Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, walked over to the Capitol press box where I was valiantly trying to prop open my eyelids one morning last week, and briefed me.

"There will have to be a 60-40 ratio now," said Pollack. She had read my column about Virginia's new 2-1 potty parity law, local crusader Penny Wright and the difficulty of amending Michigan's plumbing code in a similarly progressive fashion.

IT HAPPENED very quietly because the change didn't occur in the usual legislative arena.

Pollack and Rep. Judith Miller, R-Birmingham, are the first two women in a long time to serve on an obscure body called JCAR (pronounced "jay car"), the Joint Committee on Administrative Rules. Unless you're a fan of the Michigan Constitution, you couldn't have known it existed.

On JCAR, five senators and five representatives review rules being hatched by various administrative agencies such as the Plumbing Board.

As Pollack relates the late-1988 series of JCAR meetings: "I asked the ratio of bathrooms. They said 'we have it equal.' I said this is not good enough."

Her staunch ally was Sen. Ed Fredricks, R-Holland, one of the Senate's crustier conservatives. But allies are where you find them.

EFFECTIVE ALREADY, the new

rules require in workplaces a 3-2 ratio of women's to men's water closets for smaller places, 4-3 for slightly larger and 5-4 and 6-5 ratios in still larger workplaces.

In theaters, sports arenas and stadiums, the ratios are 3-2, 4-3 and so forth, until the occupant load passes 300.

In nightclubs, bars, cocktail lounges and restaurants, the 3-2 ratio is a little stiffer.

The rule for exhibition halls, libraries, recreation centers and passenger terminals also is improved.

It's not 2-1, like Virginia's law, or 2.5-to-1, as Penny Wright and I advocate, but the 1989 code is an improvement.

AT THE OUTSET, I said this was done "very quietly."

Pollack, who likes to be known as an environmentalist, confessed twice: "When I got up here, I said I wouldn't do potty press." (To "do press" means to send out news releases.)

It seems women still avoid complaining, in mixed company, about the long lines they must stand in to use a restroom. It's not funny. It takes women twice as long to use the restroom. Men's and women's systems are different, and when women

"hold it" they are more susceptible to infections, cancers and other bad things than men are. That's the way God made us, and architects ought to have brains enough to recognize it even if the state Plumbing Board is slow.

MICHIGAN'S PLUMBING code still is inadequate. Moreover, it applies only to new construction, not to buildings already in place.

It is my sad duty to report that Detroit's new, expanded, modernized, renovated, spruced up Cobb Hall is worse than the old one in this regard. Or so women tell me.

Take the March 12 Detroit Kennel Club show. There are no intermissions, so people can use the restrooms at will. Yet there were line-ups of 30 or so outside the door of the women's room.

For the dogs, they had fenced piles of wood chips and sawdust. The dogs had shorter waits than the women did. It led at least one woman to contemplate invading the dogs' restroom.

Sen. Pollack reports women are invading the men's sanctuary when nature becomes unendurable. A 29-year-old female relative confirms that report in the case of the dreadful Joe Louis Arena.

That's all right in an emergency, but a kinder, gentler nation should double the water closets in women's restrooms.

Some women's group needs to grab this issue.

School's prepping

Q: I have been told my son should be placed in kindergarten. What is kindergarten and is it good for my son? Is he stupid?

Doc Doyle

A: Kindergarten, developmental kindergarten or pre-kindergarten is for those students who are old enough to attend regular kindergarten but who need the luxury of another year of schooling before entering the mainstream.

It does not mean that your child is stupid. Assuming appropriate testing has been given, it could mean his fine motor development, hand-eye coordination, language and communications skills or social or emotional level requires some special attention prior to going into regular kindergarten.

Research has clearly indicated that some 5-year-old children, especially boys, who enter kindergarten may not be ready and can have problems in school because of the lack of readiness.

Allowing trained teachers to work with such children in a developmental kindergarten setting can pay positive dividends.

The developmental kindergarten concept takes into consideration the fact that children are different — some walk sooner than others or talk sooner than others, and some are not necessarily ready for kindergarten just because they are 5 years old.

A major problem to many school districts is cost and space. It requires additional teachers, space, materials, transportation and supervision.

Another problem is that the pre-kindergarten population usually continues to grow in numbers. In one school district, the percent went from 6 percent to 34 percent in three years. Some districts put a "cap" on the number to be admitted.

What is really needed is a revised curriculum that is driven less by textbooks and dittos, and more by a developmental approach that allows students to progress in hands-on activities in a cooperative learning environment, which takes into consideration the social, emotional and academic readiness of the child.

Dr. James Doyle is an associate superintendent in the Troy School District. The answers provided here are the opinions of Doyle and not the Troy School District. Questions for this column should be sent to Doc Doyle c/o the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

African American unit: a help or hindrance?

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The state Senate's vote to create an African American Affairs Commission left Sen. Jack Faxon shaking his head.

"It looks better on paper than in terms of actual functions. We should enforce the civil rights laws . . . provide better social services . . . use it on the African American Museum in Detroit," said Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

He joined four Republicans in opposing two bills to create an African American Affairs Commission and an African American Intergovernmental Council within the administration. Senate Bills 198 and 199 were passed 32-5.

All other Observer & Eccentric area senators voted yes but took no part in the debate.

"I would like to remove my name as a co-sponsor," said Sen. Doug Carl, R-Utica, who voted no. Carl said his change of heart was due to "our impending fiscal problems and our inability to deliver on property tax reform."

FAXON WAS a member of the 1961 Constitutional Convention, which created a Civil Rights Commission to achieve compliance with anti-discrimination laws.

The 25-year legislative veteran said the CRC is underfunded, and the new African American Commission will only drain off $250,000 to $300,000 for per diem, travel, staff and office expenses, according to a Senate staff analysis.

Freshman Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit, saw the issue as one of achieving respect for people whose cultural roots are in Africa. "We've never had cultural recognition. We have never been compensated for 200 years of bondage," said Smith, relating stories from "Roots" about the 50 percent death rate aboard slave ships.

— Sen. Jack Faxon,
D-Farmington Hills

"We're proud we helped build this country for free — and still have not been compensated."

The sponsor, Sen. Phil Arthurhultz, R-Whitehall, said the AAAC would "review trends in our society . . . review state public policy, existing actions, housing, employment, justice."

IF THE HOUSE also passes Arthurhultz's bills, a 15-member AAAC would, according to a staff analysis:

- Stimulate the study of the status of African Americans.

- Develop unified policies to serve their needs.

- Advise elected officials on state policies concerning African Americans, particularly in employment, civil rights and political rights.

- Review and approve federal, state and private grants administered by an Office of African American Affairs.

- Promote African American entrepreneurship.

- Cooperate and coordinate activities with the Indian Affairs Commission, Michigan Women's Commission and Commission on Spanish-Speaking Affairs.

- Strengthen home life by directing attention to critical problems confronting African Americans in single-parent households.

The second body, a 16-member AAA Intergovernmental Council, would consist of state department heads or their designated staff members. With no additional budget, it would be charged with developing the annual report of the AAAC.

FAXON ALSO deplored what he saw as a fad of changing the minority's name from Afro-American to colored to Negro to black to African American.

"It used to be, when people of that background were referred to as Afro-Americans, they took exception. They said, 'we've been Americans for hundreds of years.'

"What about East Indians, who are very black in color but are not African Americans?" Faxon said. "This concept of hyphenated Americans is outdated."

Replied Smith: "We've had plenty of names over the years. We've never had the respect we deserve."

Patients seek life after HPV

By Barbara G. Cassani
special writer

All diseases take a physical and emotional toll on the patient, and that's especially true of Human Papillomavirus infection.

Depending on the type of virus, an HPV infection not only carries the threat of the possibility of cancer, it also carries, at least from the patient's viewpoint, the stigma of a sexually transmitted disease.

"I feel dirty" is a common statement patients make about themselves, according to Lisa Rutledge, a social worker at the Richard Reid Foundation for Cervical Cancer Research.

"They (female patients) have been raised with a 'not that kind of girl' idea about themselves and the infection makes them feel insecure," she said. "They can develop a poor self-image because of it."

Rutledge serves as a patient educator. She explains what the HPV infection is, how it is transmitted, the high risk versus low risk types of HPV and in general, tries to allay a patient's fears about treatment as well as current and future sexual relationships.

"They're really concerned about who they got the infection from," Rutledge said. "They want to know how long they've had it, so they can trace it back to a certain partner. I can't tell them that."

"They're also insecure about whether they should tell a past or future partner about the infection. I don't like to say 'yes, you should do this, or no, you shouldn't do that.' I try to give them enough information about the infection itself. I help them analyze their own particular situation, to present the possibilities that pertain to their own cases and let them decide for themselves."

AN HPV infection can strain even the strongest relationships, married or single. It isn't uncommon for couples to experience periods of abstinence while adjusting to the physical and emotional changes the infection can bring, Rutledge said.

Singles, especially, often experience a setback in their dating habits. "A lot of them break up with a partner because of the infection, or they stop having sexual relations with this partner," Rutledge said. "Others stop dating altogether, not wanting to place themselves in a situation where sex might occur."

"They also feel, somehow, that they should give up sex, although we don't tell them that they should."

Laura (not her real name), a 36-year-old art broker, said she and her fiancé broke their engagement when both were diagnosed as having an HPV infection after a more than two-year monogamous relationship.

"It wasn't the virus itself — you can handle someone getting an illness — but I was told I had the infection long before my fiancé was diagnosed with it," she said. "When I told him about my infection, he went to his family doctor who told him that

The silent epidemic

New diagnostic technique helps identify viral strains

By Barbara G. Cassani
special writer

In the shadow of the current AIDS crisis lurks an equally tenacious virus.

It's infecting the national population at epidemic levels, yet evading the limelight of public recognition.

Its name is Human Papillomavirus, or HPV.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease estimates that the virus afflicts 8 million Americans annually. However, three Seattle doctors put the infection rate at more than 12 million in a recent study published by Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health.

Even that figure assumes current standard testing procedures detect only 50 percent of the infections caused by the virus.

Research began in the 1960s, when the virus was found in abnormal Pap smears, a cancer screening test for women. More recent research has produced even stronger evidence linking the virus to cancers of both male and female reproductive systems. It also can cause respiratory and laryngeal problems in children whose mothers have passed the virus to them at birth.

Despite almost three decades of research, there is an alarming public ignorance about this quiet yet common virus.

A group of specialists in the suburban Detroit area are shedding some much needed light on HPV.

Working on HPV and its relationship to genital cancers are Richard Reid, a medical doctor and director of the Cervical and Vulvar Dysplasia Clinic of Sinai Hospital in Detroit; Samuel Rosenberg, a medical doctor with the departments of urology at Harper-Grace Hospitals, and Mitchell Greenberg, a medical doctor and clinical coordinator of the Richard Reid Foundation for Cervical Cancer Research, and Histopathology Associates, P.C., a pathology laboratory dealing extensively in HPV cases.

There are 56 known strains of HPV; only six have been implicated in cancers of the male and female reproductive systems. The relationship of HPV to cervical cancer in women has recently become even more clear.

"HPV is found in 95 percent of cervical cancers and the other 5 percent most likely are HPV types we haven't discovered yet," Reid said.

Although cancers of the penis and scrotum are still relatively rare, in the cases that have occurred, two HPV types were present in 50 percent of the tumors biopsied. And even though the risk of HPV-related cancer is greater in women, the virus also poses a very real risk to men as well, Rosenberg said.

"We have seen cancer of the penis and one case of cancer of the scrotum in which we think HPV might be the cause, so it is a danger for a man to have an HPV infection, especially if they have a cancer-causing type of virus," said Rosenberg.

Although an HPV infection is presently incurable, not everyone who contracts an HPV infection will progress to cancer. In fact, few will.

Gilbert Herman, a medical doctor and director of Histopathology Associates, said HPV has become one of the prototypes in studying the relationship between viruses and cancer.

"THE MORE WE learn about HPV, the more we understand how cancers are initiated and promoted," he said.

"HPV seems to be an initiator. It gives a cell the potential to become cancerous."

"Whether it actually goes on to become cancer might take other fac-

HPV: A few things you should know

By Barbara G. Cassani
special writer

Who should be tested for Human Papillomavirus (HPV)?

Doctors say if you or your partner have no obvious signs of an HPV infection, and both of you have had only one sexual relationship in your lifetime, odds are that neither of you have been exposed to HPV.

But they also say if either of you have had multiple partners, the odds for HPV exposure increase significantly.

What is HPV and why is it important to know if you're a carrier?

A lot of attention is focused on AIDS, but HPV is also a significant virus from the standpoint of cancer of the cervix — which is more likely to kill a woman than the AIDS virus.

What are the symptoms of HPV?

The infection at the obvious stage may appear as raised, genital warts. They can be pink, brown, white or gray. Left untreated, they may become cauliflower-like in appearance.

Oral and anal HPV warts can be spread during sexual contact. Oral warts can occur in the lower lip and cheek area, with bumps that can be seen and felt. Symptoms of hoarseness can be an indication of HPV warts and anal warts can be mistaken for hemorrhoids.

What type of examination is needed to determine the presence of HPV?

Comprehensive screening and diagnostic techniques are important in the diagnosis, treatment and containment of HPV infections. In males, regular urological examinations to properly screen for HPV infections is crucial.

Many men who don't know they're carrying the virus can transmit it to a woman, according to Dr. Samuel Rosenberg.

During a urological exam, obvious genital warts may be tested to detect the presence of the inobvious HPV infection. It also may be necessary to perform a urethral smear to rule out HPV involvement of the urethra.

The urethral smear is similar to the Pap smear for females, although it's not done routinely.

"THE KNOWLEDGE about male HPV infection is still in its infancy," said Mujtaba Husain, a medical doctor who studies the cellular changes in disease for Histopathology Associates Inc. in Southfield.

"In the male, the most likely reservoir for (HPV) infection is the urethra," Husain said.

Screening for HPV infections in women is equally stringent, if not more so. The National Cancer Foundation recommends a Pap smear, the first step in HPV detection, at least annually.

But with the high potential for false-negative results (between 30 percent and 50 percent) from a Pap smear, any woman with multiple sexual partners and/or a history of HPV exposure should have a Pap smear at least once every six months.

False negative Pap smears are, as the term implies, results which are deemed negative when, in fact, they may be positive.

Additionally, colposcopy — an examination which enables magnification of the cervix and vagina — should be performed along with ViraPap (see related story) testing and, possibly, additional viral typing.

Mission Unity's aim: To ease racial tension

A YOUNG white female, who's a junior at Oakland University, reprimands a black freshman for discharging a fire extinguisher in the dormitory.

She identifies him to the dorm's floor supervisor. He lashes back with a stinging retort: "How do you know it was me? After all, we all look alike."

"He assumed she was prejudiced and that really hurt her," recalled Debbie Stocking of Troy, an OU student and member of Mission Unity, a student organization formed recently to ease racial tension.

Although there have never been any blatant racial incidents at OU, the underlying tensions have raised an important question among OU pupils and faculty.

How can they head off racial problems? They've come up with a few answers. Last October, students founded Mission Unity in an effort to increase awareness and encourage interaction between minority and majority populations.

Following a fall conference, faculty members and administrators discussed the possibility of launching a required course on racism. Recently, the University Senate, a faculty governing body, appointed the Committee on Human Relations to set goals for avoiding racial conflicts.

"This is not in response to allegations of racism," points out Brian Murphy, director of the Honors College and an English professor.

"But we're concerned with anything that impedes educational goals — intolerance, stereotyping."

"Education is the only solution to those problems. A course on racism is one possibility."

THE NUMBER of minority faculty members has stayed relatively constant for a decade, despite efforts to increase it, Murphy said. According to 1987 figures, there were 13 blacks and 37 other minorities (Hispanic, Asian, American Indian) among 364 faculty members.

The student population also remains predominantly white. Out of a fall enrollment of 12,254 students, there were 638 blacks, 26 American Indians, 238 Orientals and 120 Hispanics. That's 8 1/2 percent of the total.

It's the highest minority population since 1977, when those figures were first compiled by the university.

'Blacks think all whites are prepared to go to college. And whites feel blacks don't want to learn. That's why we have tension.'

— Jennifer Ashford Westland

The exception is black students. There were 684 in 1988 and the figure dropped to 560 in 1987.

Students want to change not only numbers, but attitudes.

"I'm concerned with insensitivity," said Chris Trevino, a Hispanic student who grew up in a low income neighborhood in Flint.

"The majority of white students don't know about poverty and crime (first-hand). They had a better chance of getting into school because their families encouraged them to go to college."

"My family didn't know anything about college. My high school counselor suggested I find a job. I didn't have any incentive."

AFTER working menial jobs for a year, Trevino decided he wanted to pursue higher education. His grade point average was low — 2.3 out of 4.0. But, thanks to the Academic Support Program at OU, he was able to fulfill his dream.

The eight-week summer program helps the economically disadvantaged, handicapped and first-generation college students (neither parent has a bachelor's degree). They brush up on skills and get oriented to college life.

"This university gave me a shot," Trevino said.

Although he hasn't experienced prejudice himself, Trevino believes steps should be taken to prevent future conflicts.

"All freshmen see a film called 'Celebrating Our Differences.' But I don't feel that's enough. I think a course on race relations will increase awareness of minority problems."

A 20-member student organization called Mission Unity already is trying to improve relations among minorities and whites. So far, they have staged a coffee house for an integrated audience, presented a video dealing with prejudice, and sponsored lectures/discussions on race relations and neo-Nazism.

"I'd like to see blacks and whites get together socially," said Jennifer Ashford of Westland, an OU freshman and member of Mission Unity.

In the past, most dances were segregated, she said.

Ashford, who grew up in Highland Park, said blacks and whites have formed stereotypical images of one another. "Blacks think all whites are prepared to go to college. And, whites feel blacks don't want to learn. That's why we have tension."

Linda Escott, 27, an OU graduate student and Mission Unity member, noted that innocent comments or actions can be misconstrued as racist.

For instance, she recalls one incident during the summer of 1985 when students from the Academic Support program were staying in the same dormitory as upper classmen. The upper classmen rigged the elevators so they wouldn't stop on the floors where the Academic Support students were housed. (Some students in that program were blacks from Pontiac and Detroit.)

"The Academic Support kids would hold the elevators for their friends." The upper classmen got tired of waiting for the elevators and a few of them retaliated by rigging them.

"But it was misconstrued as prejudice."

Escott believes education will prevent such misunderstandings. "I don't think any of us are so naive to think the problems will be solved in six months."

"But it's a start."

"Choosing David's doctor was easy. I called Mount Carmel."

"I'd heard about Mount Carmel's excellent reputation in pediatrics. So I wanted the doctor I chose for David to be affiliated with the hospital. But I also wanted someone with an office near my home in Livonia. I called the Mount Carmel referral number and the woman who answered the phone put me in touch with several doctors who offered what I was looking for. The one I selected for David is wonderful. I couldn't have found him without the help I got from the referral service."

Researchers link virus to cancer

tors. Smoking, bacterial infections and herpes increases the carcinogenic risk of HPV," said Herman.

Physicians believe the immune system plays an important role in how an HPV infection will "take." People whose immune systems have been weakened from other treatment processes and/or diseases, such as AIDS, diabetes and chemotherapy, will be affected much more dramatically. Pregnant women also are at a much higher risk, according to Reid.

"People have a certain amount of natural immunity toward the virus, according to Herman, who holds a doctorate in research. Biopsies have shown "a very strong host reaction" to the invading virus, he said.

"We see white blood cells and plasma cells there (in biopsies) which implies that antibodies are being made," Herman said. "In other words, the body is fighting off the virus."

But even with an immune system that is in good working condition, once you've contracted HPV, it's yours for life. The active stage of the virus — obvious, raised warts — isn't constant.

'The more we learn about HPV, the more we understand how cancers are initiated and promoted. HPV seems to be an initiator. It gives a cell the potential to become cancerous.'

"WE DON'T know if we can make people non-infectious by treating them," Greenberg said. "We treat people because no one wants warts and because of their malignant potential. You can't cure it, if it persists for life, but we can drive it back into remission."

The specialists are using a new diagnostic tool, ViraPap, recently approved by the Food and Drug Administration. ViraPap is a nucleic acid probe that permits study of the virus' DNA (genetic makeup).

Use of the probe results in a more accurate diagnosis of the presence of HPV in patients who have an inobvious (not visible to the human eye in the form of a wart) infection.

The Johns Hopkins' study reported that an additional 7 percent of HPV infections have been detected as a result of using such DNA probes.

It is believed that the inobvious level of the HPV infection is most likely responsible for the epidemic spread of the virus. Since the infection can't be seen at that stage, people don't realize they or their partner, have it and don't take precautions to prevent its transmission to others.

"On a typical day, we will render a diagnosis on about 30 people who have just walked into either their urologist or gynecologist and found they have the inobvious HPV infection," Herman said.

"This means these people have the potential to develop condylomas (the raised, obvious warts) or dysplasia (a precancerous condition)," he said.

The ViraPap probe is used on patient biopsy specimens taken during urological or gynecological exams to determine if the HPV DNA is present.

THE PROBE was developed at Bethesda (Md.) Research Laboratories Life Technologies under the direction of Attila Lorincz, a chemist who holds a doctorate in research, worked exclusively with Reid. They were able to isolate the virus, then clone it by producing a mirror image of itself — the ViraPap probe.

Explaining how the probe works, Edna Elfont, a cell biologist for Histopathology, said the virus' genetic material is released from the tissue by using enzymes that digest the cells. If the HPV genetic material is present, the matching genetic material of the probe sticks to it. If no HPV is present, the probe washes away.

"The ViraPap procedure is another bit of information the clinician needs to know," Greenberg said. "It screens for the seven most common HPV types. If the ViraPap is positive, viral typing should then be done to specify exactly which HPV type is present."

The basic ViraPap screening costs $50. If viral typing is included, the total cost is $120. Currently, neither the ViraPap or the viral typing are covered by most health insurances.

Depending on the level of infection, the chronic nature of the virus frequently requires treatments, such as weekly applications of a 5-FU (cream), laser surgery for advanced or stubborn warts, or Interferon injections.

With the ViraPap probe, better screening technology for HPV infections is now available. However, some HPV exposed individuals will slip through even this comprehensive screening by ignoring basic preventive measures (use of condoms, limiting sexual partners and exams at regular intervals).

For that group of people, the risk of developing cancer and/or other complications from an HPV infection is much greater.

Who are these researchers:

Dr. Samuel Rosenberg

A native of Mexico City, Rosenberg lives in Farmington Hills with his wife and three children. He is a member of several local and national medical societies and has spoken on the subject of HPV and laser surgery techniques at conferences throughout the United States and Argentina. He is the author and co-author of numerous publications related to HPV research.

Dr. Richard Reid

A native of Australia, Reid lives in Birmingham with his wife. He has two daughters in college and a son living in Australia. Reid has chaired and has been a member of several national and international committees to study HPV. He also is the author and co-author of several publications on the relationship of HPV to cervical cancer as well as laser surgery techniques in the treatment of HPV and cervical cancer.

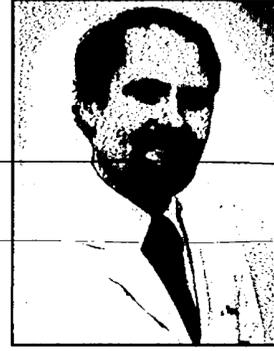

Dr. Mitchell Greenberg

Greenberg lives in Waterford with his wife and daughter. A research associate for the Genital Dysplasia Clinic of Sinal Hospital of Detroit, he attended Wayne State University and has co-authored several publications on HPV.

Edna Elfont

Elfont, who holds a doctorate in cellular biology, lives in Huntington Woods with her husband and daughter. She attended American University in Washington, D.C., Georgetown University and the University of Maryland. She has been an adjunct professor at the University of Michigan since 1982. She is a member of six local and national societies and has authored and co-authored several medical/scientific publications. She also is a published writer of poetry and prose, including "Roar of Thunder, Whisper of Wind: A Portrait of Michigan Waterfalls."

Dr. Gilbert Herman

Herman lives in Franklin with his wife. He graduated from the Wayne State University School of Medicine. Herman is associate chairman of the pathology department at Sinal Hospital in Detroit and is the author of several articles in prominent medical journals. He also belongs to seven local and national societies and is an avid sports enthusiast.

Dr. Mujtaba Husain

Husain lives in Birmingham with his wife and four children. Clinical assistant professor at the Wayne State University School of Medicine and director of cytopathology at Sinal Hospital of Detroit, he is the author of several publications on HPV research and other subjects.

Patients grapple with life with HPV he didn't have any kind of infection. It raised a lot of questions in my fiancée's mind, even though I had assured him I had been faithful to him.

"It caused a lot of tension between us to the point that we eventually broke our engagement."

Laura added that her ex-fiancee recently found out that "these little warts he'd had since his 20s are this virus."

"HE'D HAD the infection long before I even knew him, but he had been told by his family doctor they were nothing to worry about," she said. "It's been an unfortunate thing for both of us..."

Nancy Berman, clinical nurse specialist for the Reid Foundation, said: "I help patients try to maintain a positive self-image and a healthy perspective towards their own sexuality through helping them to keep their diagnosis in perspective."

"I see women who come in with a variety of problems from an HPV infection. I give them as much support and information as I possibly can. With the new probes we're now able to identify high-risk patients and detect the virus even before it's caused abnormalities on the cervix."

Rutledge tries to discourage patients from pointing a finger at their spouses or partners and tries to dissuade suspicion in patients.

"People who have been in monogamous relationships for a long time tend to forget the exact number of past partners they've had," Rutledge said. "The most important thing I try to get across to people is that they could have had this infection — in a dormant state — long before their current partner."

"Once they understand this, they're a lot less likely to place blame or feel guilty themselves for giving it to their partner. They just didn't know they had it," said Rutledge.

Talk about keeping up with the Joneses. The stork did a double drop at a Farmington Road duplex recently, with two boy babies delivered within days of each other. The event prompted both fathers to order stork lawn ornaments to herald their proud arrivals.

Passers-by did a double take. Ryan James was welcomed to the world at 9906 Farmington Road and Nicholas Alan was greeted in at the other end of the duplex at 9910 Farmington Road.

BOTH ARE first babies.

Nicholas is the older of the babies. Born by Caesarean section Feb. 27 at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills, he weighed 7 pounds, 15 ounces and measured 19 inches. His parents are the Beyers — Kimberly, 28, and Barry, 29.

Ryan is the younger baby. Born by natural delivery March 2 at Oakwood Hospital in Dearborn, he weighed 7 pounds, 14 ounces and measured 22 inches. His parents are the Glasers — Bill, 26, and Judy, 28.

"WHEN WE moved into the duplex in September, we found out that Judy Glaser was pregnant, too, and due just about the time I was," Kimberly Beyer said.

Even their pet cats, who both resemble TV's Morris, got acquainted.

Bill Glaser took the idea of similarity still further. At birth, his son, Ryan, was exactly the same weight and length that he was.

"I'm 6 feet, 4 inches now and weigh 270 pounds," Bill Glaser said, laughing. "The way my mother complained about the food bill, I don't know if I want him to grow up."

BOTH BABIES have bright yellow nurseries, but Nicholas has Disney babies while Ryan has bears on his wall.

The Glaser baby has a full head of hair, the Beyer baby has peach fuzz.

"They had to part Ryan's hair in the hospital to take his picture," Bill said.

While both babies are sleeping through the night, the Beyers and the Glasers have noticed one thing — when it is very quiet, especially at night, they can each hear the other's baby, Bill Glaser said.

And sure enough, when one starts crying, the other follows soon after.

Special services planned for Easter

The following churches have special services planned for Easter.

CHRIST OUR SAVIOR

Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church, 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia, will be observing Holy Week and Easter with special services.

To help understand the meaning of the Passover, the congregation will share in a passover meal at 6 p.m. Maundy Thursday. A Communion service will follow at 7:30 p.m.

Good Friday will be observed with a service of the cross at 12:30 p.m. and a candlelight Tenebrae service at 7:30 p.m.

Easter Sunday will be celebrated with a 6:30 a.m. sunrise communion service and festival communion services at 8:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. Six choirs, vocal, instrumental and bells will highlight the worship with special music. Easter breakfast will be served by the men of the congregation from 6:30-10:30 a.m.

ECUMENICAL SERVICE

Seven Livonia churches will gather at noon Friday, March 24, for an ecumenical Good Friday service at St. Matthew United Methodist Church, 30900 Six Mile, between Merriman and Middlebelt roads, Livonia. A combined choir, made up of members from all the churches, will sing. Since 1732, Moravians throughout the world have gathered every Easter morning at a cemetery before dawn. They huddle for a brief service to sing and recite a confession of faith. After a breakfast at the church, the congregation will meet at 10:30 a.m. for the regular Sunday service.

The Moravian Church is a main line Protestant denomination that was organized in 1457 in what is present-day Czechoslovakia by the followers of the reformer and martyr John Hus.

Religious tolerance calls for education

Religious tolerance sounds like a fine idea. It is one with which most of us can agree. However, events of the past few weeks give reason to question the strength on which it stands.

Salman Rushdie and Madonna, regardless of their intentions, have raised a question much larger than a book or a Pepsi commercial.

Tolerance is a rather shaky concept at best. It is only one step away from intolerance. There were not many years between the tolerance for Jews in Germany and the Holocaust. Witness the flimsy peace in Northern Ireland and the predictable flare-ups in South Africa. Today's violence is seldom more than a stone's throw from yesterday's tolerance.

Tolerance based on law has never been a stable arrangement. That, of course, is not to suggest removing the laws. However, it does suggest that we are in need of something that goes beyond laws which do little more than stall or contain disaster. Seldom do they prevent it.

That kind of respect is apparently not present in "Satanic Verses" nor can it be attributed to Madonna's rendition of religion and dance. The issue, however, is much larger than any one author or entertainer. It goes far beyond the concept of freedom of expression on the page or the stage.

THE DICTIONARY defines the sacred as that which is beyond criticism or ridicule. By that definition, we live in a world where the sacred is difficult to find.

Considering the diversity of the human family and the evolutionary nature of understanding truth, an expectation of agreement is beyond reality. But agreement is hardly necessary for respect. I may not understand any more about your religion than the fact that it is sacred to you, but that in itself should be enough to command respect. In fact, only when I can respect what is sacred in your life can I truly appreciate the sacred in my own life.

Perhaps a piece of the difficulty lies in a void of understanding. The media keeps us informed of the shortcomings or various religious groups. Stand-up comedians and talk show hosts alike have made religion their monologues. But as for understanding why this or that concept is sacred to a particular group of people, even our well-educated society falls short.

A friend of mine recently returned from a business trip to Japan. While he was there, he was invited to a service in a Shinto temple. Although he still aspires to his own religion, I rather doubt that he would appreciate slurs against the Shinto religion any more than if they were directed against his own.

BECAUSE HE has a sense of the sacred, even someone else's sacred, he does not need the law of tolerance to give the illusion of respect.

Perhaps we cannot all go to the Shinto temple. But we could do well to think about how we might educate ourselves and our children in our homes and in our schools to a sense of the sacred, their own as well as that of others.

Until then, we will have to settle for commemorations in poor taste, insensitive authors and even death threats that reach around the globe.

Water use down in '80s

PERIODICALLY throughout the year, the Consumer Mallbag does an "Eco-Notes" column where topics of environmental interest are discussed. Recently, three reports have come into the Concern Office about water that I wanted to share with you:

WATER CONSUMPTION:
A five-year survey done by the U.S. Geological Survey shows a drop in water use in the U.S. 1980-85, the date of the last survey.

The report shows a 10 percent decline in both fresh and saline-water drawn from lakes, streams, wells and springs for use in homes, offices, farms, industry and thermoelectric power plants.

However, since the USGS began its survey, water use has more than doubled from less than 200 billion to almost 400 billion gallons per day.

One possible reason for the decline in water use may have been because water removal costs have increased as water levels dropped with increased use in the past.

Another reason may be that more water was being recycled for industry and irrigation while commodity production dropped.

Last summer's drought may show increased water use, especially in areas like Nebraska. It withdrew twice as much as usual from ground-water supplies and began irrigation of crops as month earlier than usual. In Washington, D.C., demand for water during the first half of July was 24 percent above average.

—From a USGS news release WATER CONSERVATION:

Terry Gibb

Western California farmers are participating in a three-year irrigation management project to reduce water use. They are using gypsum blocks to help cut their use by up to 58 percent in some cases, according to INFORM, a non-profit, environmental research group.

These marshmallow-sized, plaster-of-paris blocks were systematically buried at different locations and depths in flood-irrigated fields. Each block contains electrodes connected to insulated wires drawn to the surface.

Twice a week, readings are taken of the electrical conductivity of the blocks by connecting a small battery-powered meter to the surface wires. Conductivity levels vary with the wetness of the blocks which reflects the moisture level of the soil in that area.

Using this information, farmers can determine where crops are being overwatered and adjust irrigation to the correct amounts.

— From an Inform news release

WATER POLLUTION CLEANUP:

The previously polluted Suyong River in South Korea, site of the yachting events in the 88 Olympics, was cleaned and beautified through the use of aeration machines into a river that now supports a healthy fish population. The AIRE-O2 machines use an above-water motor to turn an underwater propeller at the end of a hollow shaft. The propeller pushes water outward away from the shaft, creating a vacuum that sucks air down the shaft.

The oxygen-enriched water get pushed out and distributed throughout the river. This constant motion keeps wastes in suspension and circulates the bacteria that breaks down these wastes. The extra oxygen in the water causes the bacteria to proliferate on a large scale and speed-up decomposition of the wastes.

Following care labels can save clothing

Dear Jo:

As a senior citizen there are some new things that I come across that I find terribly confusing. The latest is the new labeling in clothing that supposedly tells you how to care for the garment. Have you any idea what all those circles and squares mean? If so, could you pass the message on? Thanks.

Mrs. S. E. Eastern Reader

Dear Mrs. E.:

Once clarified, the care labels in clothing are worthwhile. They save time and, if followed, prolong the life of the garment.

Labels for washable garments are marked with a "U" shaped symbol. Inside the symbol are further washing instructions. A hand is pictured if hand washing is required, and, if necessary, the water temperature is given.

If the item can be dried in a dryer, the symbol is a square with a circle inside — It looks just like a miniature dryer. An item that cannot be put in the dryer is marked accordingly — a square with three vertical lines means it must be drip-dried and a square with a curved line that looks like a clothesline means the item should be line-dried.

Some other symbols are: a tiny iron, means ironing is necessary and safe; a triangle means the item can be bleached; and a small circle means dry cleaning is required.

Any of the above symbols that have a large "X" through them means do not use that method.

Since these symbols are worldwide, the temperature settings for washing and ironing items are in metric. Medium hot water is 50 to 70 degrees Celsius and a hot-iron is 200 degrees.

Dear Jo:

What is the best emergency treatment for burns? Mrs. K.L., Senior Homemaker

Dear Mrs. L.:

The best emergency treatment for minor or first degree burns (defined as a burn involving only the outer layer of skin) is cold (not iced) water. For the best effect, the burned area should be immersed in the cold water immediately. The cold water eases the pain and acts as a cleanser.

One of the poorest emergency treatments for burns is the application of butter. Butter does not relieve pain and it may harbor bacteria which could eventually lead to an infection.

Resalers seek a little respect

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Merchants who sell used clothing, furniture, jewelry and toys have a surprise for you: Their stores don't stink.

Resale shop owners are accustomed to being insulted. It's par for the course, they say. But resalers are working to change the notion that their stores smell funny and are only attractive to those who are too poor to shop elsewhere.

Shoppers who venture into resale establishments are likely to have some stereotypes changed, said Victoria Haltom, owner of It Ain't Bloomingdales in Detroit.

"One woman stood in the middle of my store and said, 'Gosh, it doesn't even smell,'" Haltom said.

Another potential customer picked up a new toy and remarked: "They just put these things in their store so people will think they have nice things," Haltom recalled.

"Eventually you have to get a sense of humor about these things," she said.

But Haltom and other area resale store owners are doing more than grinning and bearing it. They have formed the Metro Resale Association to offer each other support, share information and join forces for business purposes.

"If you own a franchise, you have a lot of help, a lot of support. Resalers are by themselves," Haltom said. "People in resale businesses are hungry to talk to each other."

THE METRO RESALE Association was formed last year and has 10 members. Another 12, including owners of suburban Wayne and Oakland county stores, are expected to join before the group's April meeting, Haltom said.

Besides just talking about the difficulties their businesses must face, the local association has done co-op advertising and is investigating the possibility of getting group liability and employee health insurance. Many resalers also belong to the National Association of Resale & Thrift Shops, which sends members a newsletter full of information on legal issues, taxes and other issues relevant to their businesses.

Resale, or second-hand, shops have been around for decades, but the trend really took hold about five or six years ago, Haltom said.

At that time, she said, "garage sales started to be big business, and that really helped the resale business." Haltom described garage sales as "the non-professional approach to what happens when you open a resale shop."

Haltom and others stress the fact that they are professionals who must work harder than their small business peers in order to overcome the negative image resale has had.

Brenda Wallace, whose Born Again Resale Shop is in the Old Village section of Plymouth, blames the negative image on resalers of the past.

"I think resalers were guilty of not putting some earnings back into the shop and not being very careful of the kinds of clothes they sold," Wallace said.

Wallace, who opened her store 2½ years ago, accepts clothing and other items on consignment. She said it's rewarding to help people find a market for things they want to sell.

Boating industry offers bridge over troubled waters

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

People involved in the buying, selling, maintenance and storage of boats will no longer have to say, "I'll see you in court" when a dispute involving recreational craft arises.

The Michigan Boating Industries Association, based in Livonia, is launching an Alternate Dispute Resolution program designed to get the opposing parties to sit down and agree on a solution instead of filing a lawsuit. It will involve volunteers acting as mediators and arbitrators and will cost the parties a fraction of the price of litigation — in terms of both time and money.

"The whole premise behind the program is to take the disputes out of the courtroom and out of the high-priced attorney's hands, bringing it down to a level where two people can very easily mediate a dispute and everybody's happy," said Anne Masterson, MBIA administration executive.

Other industries use alternative dispute resolution programs, but this is the first of its kind involving recreational boating cases, Masterson said. She called Michigan, which has more registered boats than any other state, a leader in the recreational boating industry.

Masterson said the service would be useful in a situation where a boat owner is not satisfied with work done at a marina, for example. Typically, the customer would refuse to pay the bill, the marina would refuse to release the boat and one or both parties might have to file suit.

"THE COST OF litigating has gotten so high that oftentimes you either have to take your lumps and not go to court, or you have to invest a lot of money in a case to try to get some satisfaction," Masterson said.

Under the MBIA alternative program, the parties could meet with a mediator to discuss the issue. The mediator's decision would be non-binding. If the parties are not satisfied with the results, or they do not want to use a mediator, they could present the matter to a three-member panel of arbitrators. The parties can choose from among a group of arbitrators, but both sides would have to agree in advance to abide by that panel's decision.

The MBIA has budgeted about $40,000 to cover start-up costs, Masterson said. The cost to those who use the service has not been decided, but she estimated it will be $200 to $250. That charge is to cover administrative and processing fees.

"Nobody's going to make a profit on this," Masterson said.

The MBIA is seeking volunteers from the small business community to serve as arbitrators. It hopes to have a pool of 20 to 30 volunteers.

The concept of arbitration is not new to the marine industry. Freighters and other commercial craft have been using it for more than 100 years in New York and London, Masterson said.

"It was set up because the courts don't have the technical knowledge to address the problems of the marine industry because it's so specific," she said. "We're trying to take that program and adapt it to the recreational boating industry which, too, is highly specific and difficult to understand unless you are directly involved with it."

The 285-member association is made up primarily of marina operators and boat dealers. The program is expected to be operational in May.

It's all in the family when it comes to selling carpets

By Peggy Aulino
staff writer

Some families pass down jewels or china. The heirloom of choice among the Kramers is a carpet store.

A.R. Kramer Flooring was established in 1925 by Archie R. Kramer, whose son, Alan, came aboard in the 1950s. Earlier this year the business was bought by Alan Kramer's sons, Art and Mike.

The family-owned store, on Middlebelt between Five Mile and Six Mile in Livonia, is a holdout in this age of chain stores and subsidiaries. The Kramers say their continuing independence is based more on a desire to maintain quality control than on any grand scheme on the part of their ancestors.

"We don't have any great desires to get big," said Art. "There's really no value in it for us. You lose basic control over your business to a point."

The Kramer strategy is to be involved in day-to-day operations and stand behind their service. The store sells carpet and flooring that can be installed either by Kramer employees or subcontractors.

"It comes down to service and being able to meet the needs of people," Art said. "My grandfather was always very particular with that. That's really been the mainstay of the business."

THE KRAMERS SAID they have as much faith in their subcontractors as they have in their own employees.

"Sometimes you even have a little better leverage over subcontractors, being that they would like to continue working," Art said.

Mike said chain stores try "to get the customer to think about price rather than quality." And he believes the Kramer sales force is more knowledgeable than the competitors and better able to "make sure the customer's buying the right product."

"In some instances, they might pay a little more (at Kramer's), but they know the finished product is going to be exactly what they want," he said.

Kramer Flooring counts among its larger accounts much of Ford Motor Co.'s North American operations and the University of Michigan.

The store has customers whose grandparents bought carpets from Archie Kramer, Art said.

"Much like we are the third generation of Kramers here, we are on the third generation of their families," he said.

And 89-year-old Manny Eisenberg, hired by the store's founder, is still selling carpets for Archie's grandsons. Eisenberg said he worked in carpet mills before going into the sales end, and Mike called him the best salesman in the business.

THE ORIGINAL Kramer store was on the West Side of Detroit, where as youngsters the current proprietors used to visit their grandfather. The store moved to its present location in 1971. Archie Kramer died two years ago, and Alan Kramer is retired and living in Florida.

"I wasn't really planning on coming into the business," said Art Kramer. "My grandfather felt otherwise. He would give me different things that I would find interesting to do, and the next thing I knew I'm working on a regular basis."

The fact is 35-year-old Art Kramer is the president of the company. Mike, 29, is the vice president, but neither of them places much stock in titles.

Art, who lives in Green Oak Township, handles accounting and operations; Mike, a Farmington Hills resident, does marketing. But Mike summed up the division of duties this way: "I don't know how to do what he does, and he doesn't know how to do what I do."

BESIDES THEIR stores being saddled with negative connotations, those who shop at them are also misunderstood, resalers said.

"We have a lot of customers who are not poor people that can't go anywhere else," said Cookie Koblitz, one of three owners of Bloomfield Keego Resale in Keego Harbor. "Most of them can afford to shop anywhere. They choose to shop this way."

Koblitz's inventory, most of which is also accepted on consignment, includes designer clothing, fur coats, baby furniture and jewelry.

"Everything that we take is in really good condition. We won't take anything that's a year or a year-and-a-half old," she said.

Koblitz once rejected clothing brought in in garbage bags, and the person who wanted to sell the items complained, saying, "People who shop here shouldn't be so picky."

"That's an attitude that we would like to see done away with because that's not true," she said.

The manager of Designer's Den, which has been in existence in Farmington for 40 years, also credits her customers with being "astute."

"I have women who come in here and throw down $300 without blinking an eye, but when they walk away, they walk away with half the store," said Monica Melton. "Everybody, even Donald Trump, wants a bargain."

A Dollar Bill Invested In A Long-Term Deposit At Manufacturers Bank.

Earn Monthly Compounded Interest From Manufacturers Bank.

At first glance, it might seem that both dollars are worth the same amount. Much like the interest earned from two time deposits with the same rates and terms. Well, don't be fooled by appearances. Because not all banks calculate interest the same way.

While some other banks offer you simple interest on your time deposit of one year or longer, Manufacturers Bank compounds your interest monthly. So, instead of just earning interest on your deposit, you earn interest on your interest, too. Month after month.

So even though time deposit rates may look the same, you really can't take them at face value. After all, if your bank doesn't compound interest monthly, they're not giving you your money's worth.

Monthly compounded interest. Just one more advantage of banking where business banks. Before you open your next long-term time deposit, ask your bank to explain how they calculate their interest. Or simply come to Manufacturers and get the advantage of interest compounded monthly. Just visit any nearby branch or call us today at 1-800-642-9910.

Maverick inspires gutsy car — for Japan

Among the legends of the auto business, there is the recurring mythology of the car-crazy street guy, a sort of James Dean type with gasoline in his veins, who comes to Detroit and sells the big guys his idea.

There is some substance to the myth, of course. Carroll Shelby, for one, ex-chicken farmer, ex-race driver in bib overalls ending up at Ford to do the Cobra. Or Big Daddy Roth, California street racer, alter ego to Wolfman Jack, influencing Harley Earl at GM styling in the 1960s.

But not any more in today's CAD CAM-ed, currency-conscious automobile business. The likes of Bob Hall haven't got a chance.

ACTUALLY, BOB Hall doesn't really exist. There is a guy named Hall of some sort, who works at Chevrolet and Mazda, a schizophrenic lifestyle that started the rumor he is actually identical twins.

I first met the Bob half of the Hall brothers in Tokyo, where he was holding an aluminum suitcase in the lobby of the Tokyo Hilton. The suitcase was smoking, leaving a kind of fog floating around his feet.

It turned out somebody had told him that the Japanese really like steaks, so he bought a dozen pounds or so, packed them in dry ice and brought them along. Hence the smoke.

LATER, HALF the Hall brothers

was taking a picture of a car on a mountain road in California, stepped back to get the thing in focus and stepped right off the mountain. Which was his story for the cast on his arm at the time.

Hall kept showing up, whether in a fog or a cast, allegedly because he was an automotive journalist at the time. Not exactly James Dean, but enough of a car guy with questionable credentials to be ignored by GM's 14th floor. Or even the basement.

Like most automotive journalists, Hall was overbearing with his opinion on what kind of car these guys should make if they really knew what they were doing. It was something of zen transformation that Kenichi Yamamoto decided to listen to him. Or maybe he got one of Hall's steaks.

YAMAMOTO IS the legendary engineer who developed the rotary engine for Mazda before he was kicked upstairs to run the company as chairman. Hall was included in a team based in Irvine, Calif., that acts as a listening post and development center for Mazda. Among others on the team is Mark Jordan, son of Chuck, currently running GM styling.

Now half of the Hall brothers is being credited for inspiring the new Mazda Miata, a two-seat roadster that brings tears to your eyes if you ever had the top fly off your old Triumph on I-96 halfway back to Michigan State.

Which is to say that sometimes somebody does listen to an oddball off the street, take at least some of his advice, and make the kind of car that would be made if anybody really knew what he was doing.

ALTHOUGH THE company that listened not only is Japanese, it's a quarter owned by Ford, GM hasn't lost its chance.

I think I saw the ghost of Bob Hall at Chevrolet the other day unless it really is his twin brother. Or maybe he just lost a little weight.

401(k) thrives despite IRS limits

Anyone who has been pouring a lot of money into a 401(k) salary-deferral plan knows that the 1986 Tax Reform Act put a damper on the party. But the hangover may be worse than expected — mainly because of tough new rules that are aimed at making the plans more fair to lower-paid employees.

Reduced contribution

The original idea of 401(k)s, of course, was to let corporate employees build bigger retirement nest eggs by setting aside as much as 10 percent of their salaries in pretax dollars — up to $30,000 a year for an executive making $300,000. Then Congress stepped in and tightened the tax treatment of withdrawals as can be seen from the accompanying table. It also cut the maximum salary deferral to $7,313 for 1988 and $7,627 for 1989.

Tougher restrictions

Since the 401(k)'s inception in 1978, participants have enjoyed tax-deferred growth of their contributions as well as the growth of the matching amounts put in by the employer. Participants would pay taxes when they withdraw money, but they are barred from taking money out until age 59½, quit the job or suffer a financial hardship. It is the last point that the IRS has now defined.

Hardship withdrawal rules

IRS' new 401(k) regulations permit "hardship withdrawals" but only under narrowly described circumstances. Acceptable uses for hardship withdrawals include immediate and heavy medical expenses incurred either by the employee, his/her spouse or a dependent, the cost finances and you

Sid Mittra

Before reform	after reform
Contribute up to $30,000	Contribute up to $7,627
No penalty for early withdrawals	10-percent penalty
Ten-year averaging allowed	Five-year averaging (unless older than 50 before 1986)

of a primary residence and post-secondary school tuition.

However, plan participants must demonstrate that they have made a "reasonable liquidation" of their assets as well as those of their spouse and their dependents before tapping 401(k) savings. A "reasonable liquidation" includes exercising any loan provisions of the 401(k) plan, as well as attempts to borrow from other sources.

Also, even after satisfying various hardship tests, the regulations indicate that plan participants can only withdraw amounts representing their own contributions; employer matching contributions are not eligible.

Finally, 401(k) participants who clear all the hurdles and make a hardship withdrawal face a corresponding reduction in the subsequent years contribution limit. For example, if the participant were limited to a $5,000 annual contribution and withdrew $4,000 this year, he could contribute just $1,000 next year.

Summing up

Proving hardship lets the participant withdraw money from a 401(k), but it does not excuse that person from paying taxes. The cash taken out is subject to income tax plus a 10-percent penalty for early withdrawal. Borrowing from a 401(k) is usually a better idea, since there is no tax or penalty on the loan.

Many plans let the participants borrow at least part of their balance, to a maximum of $50,000, which must be repaid over five years or longer if the loan is for buying a house. And the participants won't have to go through the trouble of proving a hardship.

Business held liable for abuse of drugs

In their recently published book, "Drugs and Alcohol in the Workplace," Druisilla Campbell and Marilyn Graham state that for every 10 employees at least one is impaired by chemical dependency.

The cost to business is in excess of $100 billion each year. These employees take home salaries for working at two-thirds the capacity of healthy workers, receive employee benefits while having four times as many accidents, and are a primary cause of employee-related discipline and morale problems. Regardless of the size or type of business, "polydrug" abuse has been described as "the most serious problem facing American business between now and the end of the century."

In recent years, the legal system has made it clear that employers cannot afford to ignore this problem any longer. A growing majority of companies have been held liable for failure to remove an employee whose substance abuse endangers co-workers. While most managers acknowledge these grim statistics, many are reluctant to provide sources of information and outside assistance to employees, let alone consider the possibility of offering in-house treatment services. The reasons behind this form of "managerial denial" are numerous; many honestly don't know that their business is being negatively affected by employees. Business "losses" may be attributed to the economy, shoplifting, foreign competition, union hassles or seasonal downturns. Other employers deny the problem exists so as to "protect" the image and reputation of their company. This is especially true when the owners/managers are themselves chemically dependent.

"Most everyone in upper management was an alcoholic," says one retired business executive from Grosse Pointe. "And since we were employed in the health-care industry, it's ludicrous to think that several major company decisions were made while management was intoxicated."

Another common reason for managerial denial is a feeling of hopelessness about the whole issue. "She's going through a divorce and supporting three kids. . . . If I were married to him, I'd drink too. . . . his wife just died." These are just a few of the many excuses that serve to encourage abusers to ignore their problem.

Breaking through the denial as business owners and managers is crucial if employers are to take responsibility in helping to control chemical abuse in the workplace. What businesses don't seem to realize is how much clout they have. When the boss says, "Get well or get out," the addict/alcoholic has no choice but to look for help. Next week, we will discuss how business owners and managers can identify a drug-impaired workplace and sources of available assistance.

Cold calling sure can tear up a pair of shoes. You go through miles of walking (and driving) just to make one solid contact . . . if you're lucky. And even if you are fortunate enough to get your foot in the door, you're liable to get a set of crushed toes in the process.

The third annual Greater Livonia Expo puts the shoe on the other foot. Your potential customers will come to you and all you have to do is sell. In three days you'll accomplish the equivalent of weeks of cold calling. But wait, it gets better. All this can be yours for as low as $480!

If all sounds great and you're probably waiting for the other shoe to fall, but there are no hidden costs. Unlike other business shows, everything from your wastebasket to electrical service is free of charge to all exhibitors. In addition, there will be special events and a multimedia advertising campaign to attract decision-making members of the local business community.

So if you'd like to wear in your shoes, call the Livonia Chamber of Commerce at 427-2122. Ask for Mike Cooney. We're sure he has something in your size.

T-bills offer safety and liquidity

What can you tell me about T-bills? Do you have a list of Federal Reserve Banks or can you tell me where I can find one?

Treasury bills, or T-bills as they are often called, are short-term obligations issued by the U.S. government and help set the trend for short-term interest rates. They have appeal among investors because of safety, liquidity and exemption from state and local taxes.

One of the problems for individuals is the minimum investment, which is $10,000. The maturities are three, six and 12 months, and the treasury does not redeem them before maturity. However, T-bills can be sold before they mature through a broker or bank.

T-BILLS PAY no interest at regu-

today's investor

of the National Association of Investors Corp.

lar intervals like most other interest-bearing obligations. Instead, they are sold at a discount from their redemption price, with the difference being the interest payment. The three- and six-month bills are sold at regular weekly treasury auctions, usually on Mondays. The 12-month T-bills are offered at auction just once a month.

While T-bills can be bought through a broker or a bank, there is a fee. To avoid that fee, an individual can buy directly from Federal Reserve Banks or branches. All that is necessary is to complete a form, referred to as a tender and available from Federal Reserve Banks and send it with a check for $10,000.

A PART OF your $10,000 will be refunded to you, so it is as if you bought the T-bill at a discount and it will be worth $10,000 when it matures.

The minimum investment is $10,000, but larger investments can be made at $5,000 multiples.

The bid must be made in person or by mail and arrive in advance of the auction. When an investor buys the T-bills, no certificate is issued. The investor's name is simply recorded in the Treasury Department's books.

Most individuals make a non-competitive bid, meaning they will pay whatever the average market rate is at the auction. That rate will be determined by the competitive bids made by large institutional investors.

AN INDIVIDUAL can submit a competitive bid, but then he runs the risk of paying too much or being shut out if the bid is too low.

Since T-bills are issued by the U.S. government, they are considered as safe as any piece of paper can be.

If you want an application to order directly from the government, call the Detroit office at 961-6880 and tell them you want a tender. You must specify whether you want a tender for a three-month, six-month or 12-month T-bill.

Or you can write to the Bureau of the Public Debt, Department of the Treasury, Washington D.C. 20239 and give them the same information.

Thomas O'Hara welcomes your questions and comments but will answer them only through this column. Broadway lights

They shine for star of 'Les Miz'

By Kevin Teevens
special writer

JOE KOLINSKI can look out his apartment window and see his name in lights — on Broadway.

"I live up the street from the Broadway Theatre, and there I am," said Kolinski, by phone from his New York apartment.

Kolinski, a Detroit Catholic Central graduate and former student at the University of Detroit, is performing in the lead role of Enjolras in the Broadway musical production of "Les Miserables."

The actor, 35, is well known to Detroit-area audiences. He found his calling in high school, when he appeared in numerous musicals at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

Although Broadway is quite a distance from where he started his career, the road trip has been worth it.

"We haven't played to an empty seat in the house since we opened in 1987," said Kolinski.

PRIOR TO APPEARING as Enjolras, Kolinski played the role of Feuilly, another lead in "Les Miz," as it has come to be called.

"It has been a busy time. Life is very concentrated here. You can accomplish a great deal in a short time," he said.

Kolinski has performed on Broadway in "Sunday in the Park with George," "The Three Musketeers," "The Human Comedy" and "Dance a Little Closer." In 1981, he sang the role of the celebrant in the 10th anniversary production of Bernstein's Mass at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C.

From 1974 to 1976 he was a student at the University of Detroit and performed in the Marygrove Theatre program. He had lead roles in many productions including "A Cry of Players," "The Me Nobody Knows" and "Godspell." In 1977 he sang the role of Leo in the Michigan Opera Theatre production of "Regina." His last metropolitan-Detroit appearance was in the 1985 production of "Kumi Leml" at the Birmingham Theatre, in the role of Max.

Growing up and performing in the Detroit area had a very strong impact on Kolinski's career. He said two major influences were Dominic Missimi of the University of Detroit and Larry Teevens, chairman of the music department at Mercy High School.

MISSIMI, WHO currently teaches at Northwestern University, was then acting chairman of the U-D Theatre Department.

"I was working in O'Halloran's flower shop on McNichols, and Dominic came in and said he could get me into the program at U-D/Marygrove. I jumped at it like a shot," Kolinski said.

Joe Kolinski, who performed in musicals at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills, is now on Broadway as Enjolras in "Les Miserables."

English tea

Teatime at the Townsend is a new offering — 3-5 p.m. Tuesdays-Saturdays in the lobby of the elegant, new Townsend Hotel in Birmingham. Pauline Palazzolo, the tea hostess, greets guests who are seated in comfortable, floral-patterned sofas and chairs. She is assisted by the tea server, Francine Line of Australia, in starched uniform.

No reservations are required for teatime. From 16-18 guests can be accommodated at a time, in the cozy, airy setting. Tea is presented in traditional English style, with a choice of seven teas poured into Royal Doulton china cups.

Accompanying the tea are decorative, finger sandwiches including cucumber and cream cheese, Scottish smoked salmon, watercress, egg and chicken. Scones and Devonshire cream, strawberry preserve tarts and miniature pastries also are served. In addition, there's a tiny, tasty cup of soup and a cheese straw.

Tea is $8.50 and no reservations are required, at present.

THE TOWNSEND also has been serving meals in its Rugby Grill dining room. It's open for breakfast, lunch (with sandwich bar) and dinner (including tableside service), serving from noon to midnight weekdays and to 1 a.m. Fridays-Saturdays. More than a half-dozen specials are featured each day at lunch and dinner. The bar is open until 2 a.m. every night.

The Townsend decided not to open a restaurant called Tony's that was planned for the hotel. Instead, the area becomes the Regency Room, seating 250 for private dining. The hotel also has the Hunter Room, seating up to 100 for private dining.

Carol Haskins is executive chef,

Don Palmer the pastry chef. Kirsten Berwick does the tea sandwiches. Lewis Weidemann, maitre d'hotel, was lured away from a Chicago hotel by restaurateur Norman LePage and his wife, Bonnie, who manage the Townsend's dining facilities. Bonnie LePage is also manager-director of the Townsend.

Norman LePage describes his role at the Townsend as "jack of all trades." He said they plan to add more seating in the corridor for gallery dining, overlooking the street. There's no dress code, so guests can drop in to tea in casual or sport attire, if desired.

"I was happy, very happy to help Joe along the way. We all were," Teevens said. "When we do a musical at Mercy, we welcome auditions from all the surrounding communities. The talent is incredible. Our mid-March production of 'Oklahoma!' for example, featured 23 area communities and 16 schools." Among those auditioning and selected for the show was Karl Gallmeyer, a graduate of Wayne State University and a resident of Bloomfield Hills.

"I've sung with the Wayne Jazz Ensemble and the Royal Court Singers," Gallmeyer said. "Mercy offers the perfect opportunity to explore musical theater." Kolinski commented on the great opportunities in Detroit for theatrical training. "In New York they call community theater off-off Broadway. The availability of good community theater in Detroit is fantastic. If you want to get into theater, there is so much to do in the Detroit area to develop and hone your craft. Like anything else, you've just got to get out and do it."

Lack of action slows drama

Performances of the Meadow Brook Theatre production of Athol Fugard's "The Road to Mecca" continue through Sunday on the Oakland University campus in Rochester Hills. For ticket information call the box office at 377-3300.

Cathie Breidenbach

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

South African playwright Athol Fugard has few contemporary peers. The dramatist who wrote the acclaimed "Master Harold and the Boys" weaves together plot, character and language with acknowledged mastery, but in "The Road to Mecca" words — splendid though they may be — can't compensate for the poverty of action.

Terence Kilburn, who directs the Meadow Brook production, does what he can to instill action in the three-character, one-set play that, despite its profound ideas and admitted charm, almost runs aground on the old shoals of too much "tell" and too little "show."

This least political of Fugard's plays unravels a crisis in the life of Helen Martins, an aging Afrikaner woman who "didn't resign herself to being a meek, church-going little widow" when her husband died. Instead she became an artist who celebrates light and sculpts creations the townspeople call grotesque monstrosities.

With sensitivity and a refreshing lack of cliché, Fugard's play challenges conventional ideas about artistic freedom, religion, conformity and aging. The Meadow Brook Theatre's mixed production has moments that shine as brightly, as the theater's very best, but the play's minimal action and the production's sometimes-heavy-handed characterizations of Helen and her young schoolteacher friend, Elsa Barlow, dull the glow of those moments.

ARTISTIC DIRECTOR Kilburn has Barlow wander into the bedroom to change clothes four or five times in the course of an evening. The audience craves action, so why not have Elsa change clothes as often as a teenager? Watching the full-bodied Miss Barlow don and discard clothes offers a pleasing sight in lieu of real action.

Set designer Peter Hicks creates a magical room that blends the rosy colors of a desert sunrise and sets them shimmering with shards of mirrors scattered on the walls like stars in a dawn sky. The room, which Helen the artist created, reflects her vision. Theatrical magic happens when she lights a few candles and the room that is her personal Mecca comes alive with light and a primitive, whimsical wonder. Then, character, theme and set converge for a magical moment of theater not easily forgotten.

Anne Sheldon plays Helen as a Grandma Moses kind of artist facing falling eyesight, arthritic hands and the encroaching frailty of age.

Anne Sheldon plays Helen as a Grandma Moses kind of artist facing falling eyesight, arthritic hands and the encroaching frailty of age. Sheldon's Helen is innocent, sweet and kindly — but not nearly tough enough to have challenged the bigotry of righteous religion or to exercise artistic freedom amidst the provincial prejudices of a small South African town.

The minister, played by William Le Massena with assurance that his white, masculine, majority opinion prevails, tries to persuade Helen she is too old to live in her house among her idolatrous creations. He wants her to move to the town old folks home.

hunched in a chair like a helpless child with no control over her destiny, her feet suddenly pigeon-toed in an overdone picture of abject passivity.

WHICH ARE WE to believe? That Helen really is a heroine with the strength to defy the conventions of a provincial town and its religion? Or that she is the passive old woman thoroughly discomfited by minor frailties of age? Sheldon creates an endearing and lovable Helen. If only she didn't make Helen a wimp as well.

Mary Walworth, as Helen's younger friend Elsa Barlow, projects a tough and angry stubbornness that belies the uncertainties and ambiguities festering beneath her surface.

Cathie Breidenbach of West Bloomfield teaches college writing classes and works as a freelance writer.

Observerland icers glow

By Brad Emons
staff writer

That's the 1988-89 All-Observer hockey team.

Some of the state's top players can be found right in our own backyard.

Among the former All-Area players who have graduated, gone on and made their marks in the college and professional ranks is former Livonia Franklin ace Mike Donnelly (Michigan State and the Buffalo Sabres), ex-Redford Catholic Central standout Walt Bartels (MSU), ex-Livonia Stevenson stalwart Rob Tustlan (Michigan Tech), and another Stevenson product, Brian Cox (Army's captain).

The Observer sports staff selected the players (six each on the first and second teams) based primarily on who they believed played consistent hockey throughout the entire season. Area coaches also gave their input before the selection process was concluded.

Introducing the 1988-89 All-Area hockey team:

FIRST TEAM

Paul Strauch, goalie, Stevenson: The senior formed one of the state's best one-two tandems along with Paul Rice. He played in a majority of the Spartans' tougher games, sporting a goals-against average of 3.46. He was a first-team All-Suburban Prep League pick and honorable mention All-Stater.

Strauch, who played in Sunday's All-Stater Game, is one of the big reasons why Stevenson captured its third straight SPHL title.

Mike Zajdel, defense, Franklin: The senior was voted the Patriots' top defenseman and his play impressed rival coaches.

In 23 games he scored 11 goals and added 30 assists for 41 points.

He is a major reason why Franklin finished the season with a sparkling 18-3-2 record.

Zajdel is a first-team All-SPHL and All-Stater pick. He also played in the All-Stater Game.

Paul Tustlan, defense, Stevenson:

SON: The big senior carried a lot of weight for the Spartans, leading a defense which allowed only 65 goals in 23 games.

He finished the year with three goals and 15 assists for 18 points. Tustlan added 94 minutes in penalties.

His post-season honors include All-SPHL and a berth in the All-Stater Game (South Team).

Charlie Olchanski, forward, Franklin: The senior led the SPHL in scoring and finished the year topping all area teams with 48 goals and 29 assists for 77 points.

The swift skating left winger is a four-year starter who was named team most valuable player.

His post-season awards include All-SPHL, All-State and a berth in the All-Stater Game (South Team).

Scott Lock, forward, Redford CC: The Shamrock senior played unselfishly and became one of Catholic Central's better defenders.

The center also has some impressive offensive totals with 29 goals and 26 assists for 55 points.

He made All-Michigan Metro, All-State and the All-Stater Game (South Team) despite playing part of the season with a bad knee.

Joe Ahmet, forward, Churchill: The senior led Churchill in scoring and finished fourth in the SPHL with 26 goals and 18 assists.

A fiery player, he made All-SPHL, was honorable mention All-State and made the All-Stater Game (South Team).

SECOND TEAM

Jim Dietrich, goalie, Redford CC: A senior, Dietrich saved his best games for the state's best teams.

He made 43 saves in a regional final loss to Birmingham Brother Rice and held state champion Southgate Anderson to three goals in a league game earlier in the season.

His play improved as the season went along.

Chris Frayer, defense, Churchill: The senior was a mainstay on the Chargers' blue line throughout the season.

He made All-SPHL and was voted honorable mention All-State. A top-notch student, Frayer is the All-Observer team's No. 1 scholar athlete.

Jerry Kocis, defense, Redford CC: A blue collar player who made the most of his senior season.

He scored one goal and added nine assists for the Shamrocks while playing in the tough Michigan Metro High School Hockey League.

John Labadie, forward, Stevenson: The junior center paced the SPHL-champion Spartans in scoring with 18 goals and 29 assists for 47 points.

He made All-SPHL and is expected to lead a talented group of returnees for the Spartans next season.

Jeff Pendell, forward, Churchill: His stock rose as the season went along.

He was sixth in the SPHL in scoring with 21 goals and 23 assists for 44 points.

His post-season honors are also impressive: All-SPHL, All-State and a berth in the All-Stater Game where he led the South Team to a lopsided 13-1 win over the North with a game-MVP high four goals and two assists.

Paul Pirronello, forward, Redford CC: The junior was the Shamrocks' No. 1 sniper, leading the team with 34 goals and 17 assists for 51 points.

He collected only six minutes in penalties. Pirronello should join Labadie as one of the area's leading returning performers.

Churchill's Pendell star among stars

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Dick Vitale would have called it "Blowout City."

A.J. Baker called it a mistake.

The South team routed the North, 13-1 Sunday in the sixth annual All-Stater hockey game played before more than 1,000 fans at Redford's Ice Arena. Baker, the game's director, said it was a mistake because this was the first time he divided talent geographically.

In the five previous games, teams were selected regardless of region, meaning some players from Observerland had teammates from the Upper Peninsula.

This time, the South completely outclassed the North, and led 4-0 after one period and 7-1 heading into the third period. Livonia Churchill right winger Jeff Pendell was the game's Most Valuable Player, scoring four goals and adding two assists.

ADAM MITCHELL, formerly a coach at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, guided the South team.

"This year, the people up north spoke to us and thought they had enough talent to warrant a North-South game," Baker said. "Whatever they thought, they were slightly wrong."

Will it happen again? "Absolutely not," Baker said. "It will never happen again. If it does upset them, it's tough luck. We can't afford to have blowouts like that. I knew when it was 7-1 it was the wrong way to go. I like to think this is a pretty neat showcase."

Pendell's performance might have earned him at least a partial scholarship to college. Western coach Tom Scanton, Michigan State coach Ron Mason and Bowling Green coach Ron York were among the coaches who attended the game, Baker said.

"I just wanted to play well, I guess," said Pendell, who scored 24 goals for Churchill. "I didn't do it all myself. I had a lot of help from my linemates (including Churchill teammate Mike Knelding)."

"I DIDN'T HAVE a real big goal-scoring year and we don't get too much exposure, playing in our league (Suburban Prep). I'm not counting on a scholarship, but I think I helped my chances. I want to go to Western, but I haven't heard from them yet."

Southgate Anderson's Jeff Christensen was the game's second star, scoring two goals for the winners. Sault Ste. Marie senior Todd Mapes was third star. Alpena's Wes Gentry tallied the North's only goal.

Scoring single goals for the South were Knelding, Zac Fryer (Birmingham Brother Rice), Tony Thompson (Rice), Charlie Olchanski (Livonia Franklin), Joe Ahmet (Churchill), Scott Stewart (Anderson) and Brian Lindstrom (Anderson).

Baker said fine goaltending by the South contributed to the lopsided score. The three South goalies — Stevenson's Paul Strauch, Trenton's Derek Mento and Allen Park Cabrin's Joe Aho — kicked away 31 of the North's 33 shots. The South fired 44 shots against the North.

"Strauch made some tremendous saves in the first period and that made a big, big difference," Baker said.

Jeff Pendell of Livonia Churchill scored four goals and added two assists en route to MVP honors in the Michigan All-Stater Game Sunday at the Redford Arena.

Grazulis' true-to-life story far better than fiction

THE SCRIPT IS supposed to read something like this:

High school basketball phenom is besieged by dozens of colleges wishing to cash in on his unique talents, finally chooses one but must overcome all sorts of prominent social problems — drugs, sleazy agents and Margo Adams — to reach stardom, a short stint in the pros and a long run as star of a TV cop show.

That's the made-for-Entertainment Tonight version, anyway. The real-life story, as the adage insists, is often stranger than fiction.

It is in the case of Andy Grazulis, to be sure. His life since graduating from Westland John Glenn nearly two years ago would be better suited for a full-length Tom Hanks comedy, considering all the twists of fate.

NOW, IF WE'RE going to do this factually, we should try to avoid embellishment. So it should be made clear that when Grazulis graduated from Glenn, he was not highly recruited. In fact, he and sharpshooting teammate Steve Hawley were hardly recruited at all, even though the Rockets lost but three games their entire senior season.

Both decided the heck with playing Division II, III or NAIA ball. We want the big show; we want NCAA Division I.

So they signed with Schoolcraft College.

OK, maybe their compasses were a bit askew. Maybe they were going in the wrong direction when they decided to play at a junior college (both were excellent students). But sometimes you got to take a step backwards before straightening course and leaping forward. Or so they thought.

Then the coach who signed them at SC, Bob Wetzel, quit a month before the season started after a flap with the administration. Hawley stuck out the season, but Grazulis — loyal to the coach who had signed him — refused to play for SC. He already had a Division I school lined up (Hawley didn't), so he figured why risk it?

SIENA COLLEGE is a dinky school (enrollment: 2,600) located in Loudonville, N.Y., which is a dinky town just outside of Albany. The Saints play in the East Coast Athletic Conference, but — of greatest importance to Grazulis — they play in the NCAA's top division. He quickly grabbed their offer.

Sienna also plays very well. Coached by former Jud Heathcote assistant Mike Deane, the Saints won their regular-season league championship last year (they lost in the conference playoffs and did not make the NCAA tournament).

Grazulis hoped the team could repeat this season, with a notable exception — get into the NCAA show. He also hoped he could, somehow, play a part in all this.

"That year off really hurt me," he admitted. "I got into some bad habits, and I didn't accomplish some of the things I wanted to. But one thing I did do was gain about 30 pounds."

Grazulis was 6-foot-4, 197 pounds when he left Glenn; he is now just under 6-6, and weighs 227.

IF YOU THINK you can figure where this story is headed, guess again. Grazulis, in spite of his rustiness, did not warm the bench as a freshman.

"It went a lot better than I hoped," he said of his first season. "I averaged 13 minutes a game, which was great. Our coach thought I was quicker than some of the other forwards on the team. It was a role that suited me well."

That role was defense. Grazulis was not expected to score. He averaged 2.2 points and 2.3 rebounds.

"When I did score, it was a plus," he said.

The team was playing well. League leaders, once again. Headed for the ECAC tournament as the top seed, again. That's when the epidemic hit.

Measles. A disease most of us endure as kids swept through Sienna's campus in late January. Thirty-eight cases were recorded, including two basketball players.

No, not Grazulis. But the epidemic forced all ECAC games to be played without an audience, in an effort to contain the outbreak. Sienna's last nine games were sans fans, including all three of its ECAC playoff games.

ESPN televised the championship. The Saints won on a last-second put-back after a miss from long range. The Sienna bench emptied, players piled in a heap at midcourt in revelry — and in silence. The only ones watching were journalists and the cardboard cutouts ESPN set up around Hartford's arena, familiar basketball fans like Mick Jagger, George Washington, Moe Howard.

"IT KIND OF reminds you of the days playing Saturday morning CYO ball," said Grazulis. "I didn't like it at all. It was so stupid. I felt dumb; really, cutting down the net."

But it did get Sienna to where it wanted to go — the NCAA show. Last week, the Saints took their 24-4 record to Greensboro, N.C., and proved they belonged by upsetting Stanford, 80-78. Their tournament run ended Saturday with an 80-67 loss to Minnesota.

But their confidence was cemented. "I think we surprised a lot of people," he said of the Stanford upset. "I think it's a big thing for the school. That's the whole thing — get motivated and get back to where we were this year."

Grazulis' playing time was reduced in both tournaments. He plans to change that by next season — "Hopefully, this summer I can improve my offensive skills, become more of a scorer, be more of an impact player" — and move into the starter's role now that Steve McCoy, the player he backed up, graduates.

Remember, Grazulis still has three seasons of college basketball left. Before the first one ended, he had endured a lack of recruiting interest.

HOW MUCH DID YOU LOSE LAST YEAR ON NON-DEDUCTIBLE INTEREST?

UNLESS YOU ACT QUICKLY, THIS YEAR COULD BE WORSE.

As you know, Congress is steadily phasing out interest deductions on most consumer loans. An exception is a loan secured by your home* Which makes it a great time to apply for a home equity line of credit at First of America Bank.

A Special Offer—All Closing Costs Waived.

When you sign up for a home equity line by May 31, 1989, we'll waive your closing costs—a savings of up to $400. But you must act by May 31.

Put The Deduction Back In Your Interest.

The Federal tax laws allow you to use your home equity line of credit for any purpose you want. And in most cases, on loans all the way up to $100,000, you still get to take a 100 percent tax deduction.

You also may pay a lower interest rate along with those lower taxes.

Take Advantage Of Your Tax Break.

Get your tax break with our home equity line of credit. You can use this line instead of other loans that are no longer fully tax deductible.

You can also access your credit line simply by writing a check. And the payment schedule is flexible, too.

However, using the equity in your home is not something you should do without careful consideration. Furthermore, there are some items—like normal living expenses, for example—for which a home equity line of credit is definitely not appropriate.

Hickman bumps, grinds way through frosh year

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Parish Hickman's dunk as time expired in the first half Monday night brought 9,860 Michigan State fans to their feet at Jenison Field House.

Shortly after, Hickman returned to his seat like everyone else at Jenison. But his seat was next to coach Jud Heathcote.

Hickman, a 6-foot-7 freshman forward from Redford Bishop Borgess, spent most of the second half on the bench for the Spartans, who whipped Wichita State, 79-67 in a second-round NIT game.

Hickman's dunk resulted in his only points of the game and gave MSU a 33-30 halftime lead. Hickman played 15 minutes and grabbed two rebounds.

MSU (17-13 overall) played last night at Villanova in a third-round NIT game.

"I THOUGHT I'D get a chance to get loose in the second half (after the dunk)," Hickman said. "My playing time usually depends on how I start off the game. If it takes me a little time to get in the groove, I might not play as much."

basketball

Hickman's first year at MSU has been a learning experience, an up-and-down campaign that included a career-high 11 rebounds last Thursday in a first-round NIT win over Kent State.

Hickman's playing time Monday was limited because of outstanding play by others, including reserve guard/forward Todd Wolfe, who scored a game-high 18 points. MSU also got a strong performance from starting forward Ken Redfield, who scored 12 points in 29 minutes.

"We got a lot of basketball out of a lot of players tonight," Heathcote said. "They all seemed to play at a level higher than normal, guys like Redfield, (Jeff) Casler and Wolfe.

And we got a typical performance from (Steve) Smith (16 points)."

Although Hickman said he has entertained thoughts this winter of transferring to another school, he knows he might not have gotten a chance to play immediately elsewhere. Five freshmen dot the Spartans' roster.

FIVE TIMES Hickman has reached double figures in scoring for MSU, including a 10-point game in an upset at Iowa. Hickman averages 5.2 points and 3.2 rebounds per game.

"I've probably had a better first year than a lot of freshmen, because the team has needed a lot of players," Hickman said. "I've gotten to play and learn at the same time. I thought I could play after getting here, but I thought I was going to play a lot more."

"Basically my role is a rebounder. I'm not a player yet, just a rebounder. I'm a garbage man."

Hickman said he has remained in touch with his coach at Borgess, Mike Fusco. Hickman attended Borgess' Operation Friendship consolation game at the University of Detroit's Callahan Hall last month and he had a chance to talk to Fusco.

Both Heathcote and Fusco have the tendency to yell on the sidelines, but Hickman said he has a different relationship with Fusco.

"It's a big difference," Hickman said. "Coach Fusco is like a friend. He helps me out a lot and talks to me. He told me to keep my head up and things would start coming my way."

"For me, it's a lot of hollering (from Heathcote). I don't like it, but it's the type of thing you put up with in college."

Stanford's Wagner returns

By C.J. Riesak
staff writer

Stanford University has one of the best women's basketball programs in the nation. The Cardinal proved it last weekend by blasting Illinois State 105-77 in a second-round NCAA tournament game.

Emily Wagner, Michigan's Miss Basketball following her 1985 season at Lyonla Ladywood, is part of the Stanford success story. But she isn't an integral part.

Injuries have ruined Wagner's chances for athletic glory. Entering the NCAA tournament, she had appeared in 19 of Stanford's 28 games (the Cardinal are now 27-2; they finished the PAC-10 season a perfect 18-0), averaging 1.4 points, 1.1 rebounds and 1.0 assists.

"Coming out of high school, you think all you have to do is work hard," she said. "Injury never comes into the picture."

Wagner's picture has since been altered.

SHE WAS, without doubt, a star. At Ladywood she averaged 15.3 points, four rebounds, three assists and 2.5 steals a game as a senior. Her team was 88-9 in her four seasons and won a Class B state title.

She signed with Stanford in March 1985. A month later, her athletic career started falling apart.

While trying out for a National Sports Festival team, Wagner tore ligaments in her right knee. The injury was severe enough to keep her from playing her freshman season.

Stanford honored her scholarship. Wagner went to school and, as soon as possible, started rehabilitating her knee. "I was bound and determined to come back and play as a sophomore," she said.

THE FRACTURE was slow in healing. It was the following August before Wagner could rejoin the team.

To say her athletic career has floundered in frustration would be only partially true. The setbacks certainly would test the dedication of any athlete, but Wagner persevered.

While recovering from her foot injury, she rode a stationary bike and lifted weights routinely to stay in condition. When the school purchased an attachment for bicycles, so they could be used in a stationary position, Wagner attached it to her own bike while watching team practices.

"With that injury, there was always the off-chance I could start playing," she said. She had her foot examined every six weeks to check the healing progress.

By the time Wagner could return, the program had changed. Stanford had been below .500 before Wagner's arrival, but the long-time coach, Doty McCrea, resigned. Tara Vanderveer, who was coaching Ohio State, was hired, and the administration put new emphasis on basketball.

LAST YEAR, the Cardinal surprised many by reaching the NCAA tournament. Unfortunately, they had to play No. 1-ranked Tennessee in their first game, and they were beaten.

Wagner played last season, but not much. "I was a bit rusty coming back," she admitted. "I felt I came back as best I could, but I didn't feel I was back on my game until the middle of last year."

The injuries had taken a toll, but as Wagner said, "In some circumstances, you could say the program went beyond me."

Stanford boasts one of the nation's top backcourts in guards Jennifer Azzi, the PAC-10 player of the year, and Sonja Henning.

Wagner might have been a part of that, had fortune smiled on her. She refuses to give in to such thoughts, however. "At times, I think what would it have been like if all this hadn't happened," she said. "But I don't dwell on it. It doesn't do any good. I feel others have had bigger problems."

Stanford's location, outside San Francisco, has helped her withstand her frustrations. "I've liked it quite a bit here," she claimed. "School's been great, the area's nice . . . and basketball's been a great experience, too."

Head steps in, does job for Vols

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

A year ago, Dena Head was named Michigan's Miss Basketball, and her award is prominently displayed in a showcase at Plymouth Salem High School.

"It's gorgeous," said Jill Estey, a former teammate and a senior at Salem. "The plaque has a picture of Dena shooting a picture-perfect jump shot."

Head is now a freshman at the University of Tennessee, where last fall she met senior forward Bridgette Gordon, who owns a gold medal.

It was Head's turn to be impressed.

"We all got to see it when she got back (from the Olympics)," Head said. "It was heavy and it was hers. She has it in a bank vault now, and the whole city of Knoxville is proud of it."

"I think everyone here is either a Miss Basketball or a high school All-American. I'm not the only one with credentials of that sort."

HEAD, ONE of five Tennessee freshmen, started at point guard Saturday when the No. 1-ranked Volunteers (30-2) played host to LaSalle in a second-round NCAA tournament game.

She might not be the main headline maker for the talent-laden Volunteers, but Head is one of the Southeast Conference's rising stars. Head, who scored more than 2,000 points in her high school career, recently was named the SEC's newcomer of the year.

"It came unexpectedly but I was happy," said the modest Head of the prestigious honor.

One of four Tennessee players from Michigan, Head has started the last 12 games because of a season-ending knee injury to Flint native Tonya Edwards.

Head has made the most of her starting opportunity, scoring a career-high 14 points and making four steals in Tennessee's 66-51 win over Auburn in the SEC tournament championship game.

She was a member of the all-tournament team, making only one turnover in three tourney games. She brought an average of 6.0 points, 3.0 rebounds and 3.2 assists into NCAA play.

Tennessee coach Pat Summitt recruited Head as a shooting guard, so she's pleasantly surprised by Head's progress at the point. Because Salem coach Fred Thomann already had a fine ball handler in Estey, Head played nearly every position but point guard for the Rocks as a senior in 1987.

"DENA SAID that playing point guard wasn't exactly what she'd come to Tennessee to do," Summitt said. "I told her that one day she may have to play (point) for this team. She said she'd do what the team needed. As it turns out, she's done an incredible job."

"Dena's handled the pressure well and is her own person. She's not Tonya and I'm not asking her to be."

Head is pleased by her play but gives most of the credit to her teammates, including Gordon and senior Sheila Frost, both of whom were named to the SEC's first-team honor roll.

"It's a big adjustment playing point guard, because when I was at Salem, Jill was the point guard and I was the off-guard," said Head, a pre-medical major. "Right now I feel real comfortable, and the team is playing real well. We have great senior leadership, and when you're playing against great people every day it's a tremendous help."

"The five freshmen are trying to learn something this year to carry on for the next three years."

Tennessee won the 1987 national championship and finished third in 1988. The Volunteers have made three straight trips to the Final Four, and Head's goal is to lead them to the same destination.

HEAD LED Salem to the semifinal round of the Class A playoffs her junior and senior years, and she compares Tennessee's title aspirations to those years.

"I consider it a similar challenge," Head said. "It's similar in that the state tournament is the biggest thing in high school and the NCAA is the big tournament for college."

Thomann, who has watched Tennessee play twice this winter, is impressed by Head but not surprised. Opposing teams know Head is a young player, so they have tried to press and trap Tennessee, hoping to cause turnovers.

"That hasn't happened much."

"She is really playing well," Thomann said. "Nothing that Dena has done in her career has surprised me — after I figured out how good she was going to be."

"Coach Summitt is defensive oriented and likes a very up-tempo offense, and that lends itself to Dena's style."

"Dena can do both those things, and she prepared herself very well to play," he added. "They had the foresight to groom her at two positions."

Stromback on minor league hockey ride

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The hills of Pennsylvania serve as the perfect setting for Doug Stromback's professional hockey career. The climb is never ending.

The six-month odyssey this season has taken the Redford Township native from the training camp of the Detroit Red Wings to the Adirondack (N.Y.) minor league training camp to the Flint Spirits of the International Hockey League. In each place, there were too many players.

Stromback went home and waited three weeks to find a team. Then the Johnstown (Pa.) Chiefs of the East Coast Hockey League called. Finally, things were going to work out. Right?

Wrong. Stromback was on the Pennsylvania Turnpike again. This time landing with the Erie Panthers of ECHL. "I've been all over this year," he said. "Boy, oh boy."

But the miles on the odometer are being matched with points on the ice. Stromback is the fourth in ECHL scoring with 40 goals and 42 assists for 82 points.

The rigors of minor hockey are hardly new to Stromback, who spent four years in such Ontario outposts as Kitchener, North Bay and Belleville.

WITH THE Belleville Bulls last season, Stromback scored 27 goals and added 35 assists for 62 points. He earned Molson Cup honors with the Bulls.

'I'll take it day by day. I want to keep working and get better and better.'

— Doug Stromback
minor leaguer

Then the National Hockey League Washington Capitals, who drafted Stromback, didn't sign him. Stromback was suddenly a free agent.

"Things never really worked out there," said Stromback, who attended training camps with the Caps. "Things never really materialized. I was never really happy there. I always wanted to play for the Wings."

Stromback still does. For the time being, though, he's winning games for the Panthers. Erie is perched atop the ECHL in first place.

The ECHL is in its inaugural season. Teams in the league have no direct affiliation with any NHL clubs, but several players have NHL contracts. Rosters are comprised with players from junior and college ranks.

The circuit is a tough one. The movie "Slap Shot" was filmed in Johnstown, Pa. Apparently, there's not that much separation between cinema and real life.

STROMBACK had 19 penalty minutes with Belleville last season. Already he has 77 this season with Erie.

"I'll tell you, they like the fighting," he said. "If you're a fighter, you're the biggest celebrity in the whole city. I've been in a few fights myself this season."

More than punches, though, Stromback is getting a lot of ice time. He's playing a regular shift on right wing and is killing penalties. He's even seen spot duty as a defenseman.

Once Erie coach Ron Hansis put Stromback on the team's top line, he blossomed into an excellent player.

"I seen him play with Johnstown but I didn't really notice him," Hansis said. "Things weren't working out there. When he called I said, 'Sure, I'll give you a look.' He impressed me right away with his hustle."

Hansis believes Stromback was a victim of the numbers game. The Erie coach thinks the right winger certainly has the speed, toughness and hustle to play in the AHL or IHL, if not the NHL down the road.

HIS ONLY DRAWBACK is said that Stromback tends to be tentative on playmaking. But, as Hansis added, that will correct itself with more experience.

Most would grumble about playing in the lower rung of minor league hockey. Stromback's grateful. If anything, it fuels a dream that hasn't been doused.

His desire of playing for the Red Wings was fulfilled, if only for a few days. Training camp provided enough memories to fill his scrapbook.

"That was the best time I ever had in my life," Stromback said. "It was the dream I had since I was a kid."

What was it like talking to Jacques Demers?

"There were a lot of players and a lot of stuff going on," Stromback said. "He has a lot of responsibility. He doesn't have time to talk to everyone."

Hanging with guys like Steve Yzerman?

"They pretty much stay to themselves," he said. "I stayed with guys who are like myself."

As for next season, the possibilities would appear endless. He could be invited to an NHL training camp where he might be re-assigned to an AHL or IHL club.

Or he could be back for another try with the Wings next September.

Spartan, Bulldog clubs gain state meet medals

The Livonia Spartan Aquatic club scored 916 points to finish fourth in the team standings at the state short course swim championships (ages 13-18), hosted by the Capitol Area Swim League last weekend at McCaffree Pool on the campus of Michigan State University.

The Spartans won 15 individual races and one relay.

Plymouth Salem High School junior Ron Orris was the high-point champion in the Boys 15-16 age division, winning all six events including the 200 and 400-yard individual medleys; 100, 200 and 500 freestyles; and 100 butterfly (state record).

Teammate Scott DeWolf (Boys 13-14) captured four events — 200 butterfly, 400 IM, 500 and 1,000 freestyles. He also took second in the 1,650 freestyle and 100 butterfly.

Also in the Boys 13-14 age division, the Spartans' Matt Martin, Alex Goecke, Ryan Freeborn and DeWolf took the medley relay.

Redford junior follows brother's route

Rich Stromback follows brother

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Doug Stromback must have left a trail of bread crumbs. His younger brother has followed the same path in hockey.

Both played their minor hockey in Redford, and Rich is doing the same tour of duty in the Ontario Hockey League that his brother did. Rich Stromback, 20, has played junior hockey in Ontario cities such as Belleville, North Bay and, currently, with the Cornwall Royals. Doug and he were teammates in Belleville and North Bay.

"It was really hard to leave the family," said Rich Stromback, who like his brother left as a teenager to play junior hockey in Canada. "It helped to have my own brother on the team there the first year."

Stromback is doing all right on his own. With the Cornwall Royals, the 6-foot-3, 195-pound right winger has nine goals and 12 assists for 21 points.

His third season in the OHL has been marked by injuries. He separated his shoulder twice, causing him to miss 20 games.

HE'S ON THE Royals' top line along with snipers Jason Hannigan and Darcy Cahill. His role is not to score goals, but to look after his linemates.

After this season, Rich Stromback will have to look out for himself. Unlike his brother, he wasn't drafted by a National Hockey League team.

So, Rich Stromback can either play as an average junior next season or play collegiate hockey in Canada. He's weighing his options.

The fleeting chance of playing in the NHL still exists.

"It's always in the back of your mind," Rich Stromback said. "Especially when you see guys you played with are in the NHL. Everyone needs a break."

Rich Stromback has no regrets going to Canada to play junior hockey. College scholarships to U.S. universities were scarce, he said.

AAU girls squad takes tourney title

In the Seventh Annual Waterford St. Pat's Tournament, the Wildcats won the 11- and 18-year-old tournaments.

The older team included Birmingham Marian's Jennifer Shasky, Plymouth Salem's Jill Estey and Teri King and Plymouth Canton's Michelle Fortier and Candi Jones.

Shasky, who will play college basketball at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., was named Miss Basketball after leading Marian to the Class A championship last December. Estey has signed to play at Illinois and Fortier at Western Michigan.

The 13-year-old team, led by Christi Parimucha, Yolanda Jackson, Tracy Prybylki and Tracy

Mocon fought its way through the losers bracket to finish second.

At the AAU regional tournament in Sandusky, the 15-year-old Wildcats were beaten in overtime by Flint Northwestern. The Western Wayne roster included Sarah Ruete, Julianne Steslak, Patty Shea, Kelly Austin, Emily Guillani, Mary Barna, Chris Ford and Nicki Glass.

The 16-year-olds lost in the semifinals and finished third. Area players included Susan Ferko and Stacey Thompson of Plymouth Canton and Kathleen Gerigk of Farmington Hills Mercy.

The Wildcats will be host for the 11- and 13-year-old regional tournaments April 21-23 at Salem High School.

The Western Wayne teams are coached by Fred Thomann, Bob Blohm, Larry Baker and Tom Williams.

Shasky headed to D.C.

By Marly Budner
staff writer

Jennifer Shasky is going to Washington D.C. to play basketball. But politics may not be far behind.

Michigan's most recent 'Miss Basketball' award winner, Shasky announced at a press conference last week that she will attend George Washington University on a basketball scholarship.

Shasky, a forward for the 1988 Class A state champion Birmingham Marian-Mustangs, based her decision not on George Washington's basketball program, but on her desire to get involved with international relations. Shasky also considered West Point, Missouri and Arizona.

"One of the main reasons why I chose George Washington was because I'm interested in international relations and they have one of the top programs in the United States there," said Shasky, who has a 3.9 grade point average. "And just the area in general. It will give me a good chance to work in the summer as an intern. I'd like to work in the state department some time, possibly in foreign service."

Even though George Washington's basketball program is not well known, Marian coach Mary Lillie-Cicerone applauded Shasky's decision.

"WE'VE BEEN waiting for (Jennifer) to make her decision all year," said Lillie-Cicerone. "I mean who has heard of George Washington as far as basketball. I know I never had."

"But Jennifer based her decision mainly on academics, and I think, for girls basketball, that's the only way to go. I know that's been one of her goals... to go to school free, then to have a good career, hopefully."

Country Day rips Ishpeming

By Bill Parker

basketball

Detroit Country Day basketball coach Kurt Keener didn't want the 1988-89 boys basketball season to come to an end. After all, his team enjoyed a 25-3 season (including a 20-0 road record) and capped it off last weekend at Ann Arbor's Crisler Arena by winning the Class C state championship. But it wasn't so much the win/loss record that impressed Keener. It was the fact that the Yellow Jackets were playing at the top of their ability.

"You work all year to play up to your potential," explained Keener. "Some teams reach that plateau and some teams don't. At the end of the season we were playing as well as we could possibly play. All the parts were working to perfection. As a coach, I couldn't have been happier. I didn't want the season to end. Let's play another month."

ALTHOUGH KEENER wanted to play more basketball, DCD's opponents over the year were probably happy the season has ended. The Yellow Jackets finished the regular season with a 17-3 record. Country Day's only losses were to ranked Class A teams. They lost to Detroit Pershing, 49-46, Ferndale, 63-61, and Saginaw, 56-53.

"As an independent (school) we try to play top quality opponents," Keener said. "I think the Saginaw game was the critical turning point of our season. Although we lost, we knew after that game that we could play with a top Class A school. Coming into the state (Class C) tournament our level of confidence was unbelievable."

Country Day won eight straight games in the state tournament by an average of 24 points.

DCD's closest tournament victory was a 78-75 win over Morenci in the opening round of the regional. Their largest margin of victory in the tournament was a 39-point, 82-43, triumph over Ishpeming in the championship game.

COUNTRY DAY'S offense, led by sophomore Chris Webber, averaged 69 points per game throughout the season. Although Webber was the only Yellow Jacket to average double figures for the season — averaging 25.3 points, 12.3 rebounds and 5.1 blocks per game — the Jackets had balanced scoring in both games of the state finals.

In the semifinals, Webber finished with 25 points, 11 boards and two blocks leading DCD to a 75-53 victory over Cassopolis. Iyapo Montgomery (averaging 9.6 ppg) scored 16 and Myron Potter (averaging 6.4 ppg) scored 15. In the finals, Webber finished with 25 points 16 rebounds and four blocks, Potter scored 15 points, Kurt Blohmuff scored 13 and Montgomery chipped in with 10.

"They have a very nice supporting cast," admitted Ishpeming coach Tom Russo. "They shared the ball well. They spread it out and took the shots when they presented themselves."

BUT DON'T give all the credit to DCD's explosive offense. The defense also played exceptionally well, especially in the finals where they forced numerous turnovers and rarely gave up an uncontested shot.

Cassopolis entered the semifinals averaging 79.4 points per game. DCD held them to 53. Ishpeming entered the championship game averaging 79.5 points and were held to just 43, including 14 in the entire second half.

"A lot of people focus on offense, but we take great pride in our defense," Keener said. "Both Cassopolis and Ishpeming were averaging around 80 points all year and we held them both well below their averages."

Credit the defense with forcing Cassopolis into 23 turnovers and limiting the Rangers to just 17-of-48 shooting from the floor. Ishpeming gave up 23 turnovers and shot just 16-of-46 from the floor.

KEENER WAS quick to point out that he had a lot of help over the year from assistant coaches Jay Schwartz and Kerry Keener.

"Both Jay and Kerry have great experience and brought youthful insight to the coaching staff," Keener said. "The coaches and the kids related with each other real well. My coaches were a great asset to the team. It was really a super, fantastic season."

And the future looks great, too. The Yellowjackets only lose two seniors, Slovis and Paul Wasson, to graduation. Only Slovis was a starter. The top three scorers, Webber, Montgomery and Potter, along with the starting point guard, Kevin Colson (who missed the finals with an injury), are all sophomores and will be back for two more years.

State 'C' champs expected to move up in class

By Bill Parker
staff writer

THE Detroit Country Day Yellowjackets were in a league of their own this year.

Playing as an independent Class C team, the Jackets met eight Class A teams, three Class B teams and still managed to outscore their opponents by better than 500 points. DCD scored a total of 1,947 points while its opponents combined for 1,442. In the Class C state tournament the Jackets outscored their opponents 577-383, including a 39-point, 82-43, victory over Ishpeming in the championship game.

With such domination of the Class C schools, DCD is contemplating a move up to Class B next year. "I'm 95-percent sure it's going to happen," said DCD coach and athletic director Kurt Keener. "All I need now is approval from my headmaster."

"The move would have two purposes. Number one, it would present a little better competition. It would present a good challenge for the program. Number two, it would be a good public relations move. It may offset some of the tension between the public and private schools. Maybe it would allow a better chance for someone else to win state."

Such a move wouldn't affect the other sport programs at DCD since the Michigan High School Athletic Association allows one sport at a school to move up in class while the other sports remain at the same level.

If the boys basketball program moves up to Class B, it would be committed to stay at that level of competition for two years before dropping back down to Class C.

And if things do go well at Class B would DCD consider moving up to Class A for the 1990-91 campaign or would they still be locked into Class B for another year?

"I really don't know what would happen," Keener said, when asked of such a move. "I don't think it's ever been done. They (MHSAA officials) would have to sit down and make a decision on that. I think moving up to Class B would be the natural progression for next year."

Research sheds new light on behavior of black bear

Many of our fears of wildlife result from misinformation. The more we learn about animals and plants the more we come to respect and appreciate them.

A recent study of black bears in northern Minnesota shows that our long-held belief that they are "ferocious" is not entirely true. Different species of bear behave differently.

Grizzly bears will attack to defend their young. Female black bears with cubs neither attacked, nor made contact with, a researcher who followed them within a few feet for 24-hour periods during the summer.

OUR CONCEPTS about animals are often too generalized and should be reserved for only that species which was studied.

These same researchers even took food from a black bear for examination and were not mauled or injured. The bear charged, in an effort to intimidate the researcher. But when the investigator held his ground, the bear eventually walked away.

Grizzly bears will, however, protect their food.

This kind of research is being done to learn more about what does pro-nature

Timothy Nowicki

voke occasional attacks. If we learn what is normal, we can learn about what is causing the abnormal.

Following a bear around the woods at close range may sound crazy, but it has produced a tremendous amount of information regarding the behavior and requirements of wild animals.

Continued work on the Kirtland's warbler by dedicated people has probably kept this species from extinction. Years of research on its northern Michigan breeding range have yielded enough information to allow man to maintain the population at about 450 individuals for the past 20 years.

Without information on habitat requirements, interactions with the parasitic brown-headed cowbird, and wintering grounds survival, the Kirtland's warbler may have been added to the growing list of animal extinctions.

Despite the growing amount of information dealing with various species, it will be a long time before we can confidently say we know all the answers. One thing learning about wildlife does, however, is to teach us how complex and interconnected life on Earth really is.

Water beads right off Weyerhaeuser EXTRA Weather-Resistant Lumber because it's got something "extra" - It's pressure treated with a special water repellent to prevent moisture penetration from rain and snow. As it dries, it releases moisture and shrinks. Constant expansion and contraction causes grain raising, checking, splintering and warping. Spray or brush-on water sealers just can't repel water like Weyerhaeuser EXTRA Lumber - In laboratory tests Weyerhaeuser EXTRA Lumber shows almost two-thirds more moisture resistance than pressure-treated lumber protected with a leading water sealer. Of course, this fantastic lumber is also pressure treated with chemicals for lifetime protection against termites, rot and decay. Don't settle for ordinary treated lumber. Insist on Weyerhaeuser EXTRA!

Check our quality and very competitive prices on 2x4, 2x6, and 4x4 Weyerhaeuser EXTRA Treated Lumber! We also stock Cedar and Special Order Redwood for your outdoor projects.

Architect becomes do-it-yourselfer

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

MICHAEL STERN, architect/builder had a special advantage when he renovated his Birmingham home. He and his wife and two little daughters lived in it while he drew up his plans and did the actual work.

Living there through the planning and work stages tested everyone's patience, but the finished product made it all worth while. Stern came to know his house and site intimately — he preserved the views they loved and designed windows to capitalize on the best flow of air and the best light at all times of day. He said when he was an architect working for a large New York based firm, he seldom saw the buildings he designed for overseas clients.

The home, located on a ravine site in the Mill Pond area of downtown Birmingham, was built in 1950 for concert pianist and teacher, Dorothy Roosevelt, sister-in-law of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. It was one story, 1,000 square feet in size and avant-garde in design. The floor to ceiling windows in the living room overlook the ravine. The room was designed to hold two grand pianos and 75 listeners. It had a tiny kitchen at the back, an area off the living room with a folding door served as a bedroom.

Stern said, "They couldn't sell this house. It had been on the market for months, it didn't even qualify for a mortgage because there were no sleeping quarters."

STILL STERN remembers saying as soon as he walked for the first time, "I've got to have this house — it is just too special."

They put up temporary partitions to divide the living room for more bedroom space and a family area, moved in and Stern set to work on his design.

"It took two years before I got the plans done — that I got a design we were happy with," he said.

The original house presented some special challenges. Certainly the pitch of the room had been a stumbling block for many who would buy it with the idea of adding to it. Another was how to integrate what in the 50s, was an avant garde design, into a contemporary style that would blend with the traditional character of the neighborhood. For Stern's "new house" would be far more visible than the original one which was partially hidden by trees.

He began construction a year ago and did much of the work himself, changing and adapting as he went. He enjoyed the do-it-yourselfer's built-in flexibility.

The house, completed several months ago, is tripled in size. A strong rectilinear form with gabled ends rises from the contemporary, lateral base. The original great room overlooking the ravine, which Stern loved from the beginning, is in tact. But now there's a second floor with a master suite, two additional bedrooms for the girls and a loft area playroom. On the first level in the addition is a elegant contemporary kitchen and family room toward the street side. No space is wasted.

Homes for the 90s

THERE ARE SKYLIGHTS, walls of windows, clean curved lines, white walls and open surfaces. The entire home is bathed in soft filtered light. Each element was carefully thought out for placement, quality and texture. The shaped, dropped ceiling in the black and white kitchen reflects the shaped center island directly beneath it. The black and white tiles behind the sink are textured to give depth and sculptural quality to the wall. The white-stained, pickled oak floor in the kitchen is functional as well as appropriate to the contemporary look. "I'm into very simple taste," said Stern as he stood by one of two stained glass windows that are geometric in design and add only a discreet, tasteful bits of color to the interior.

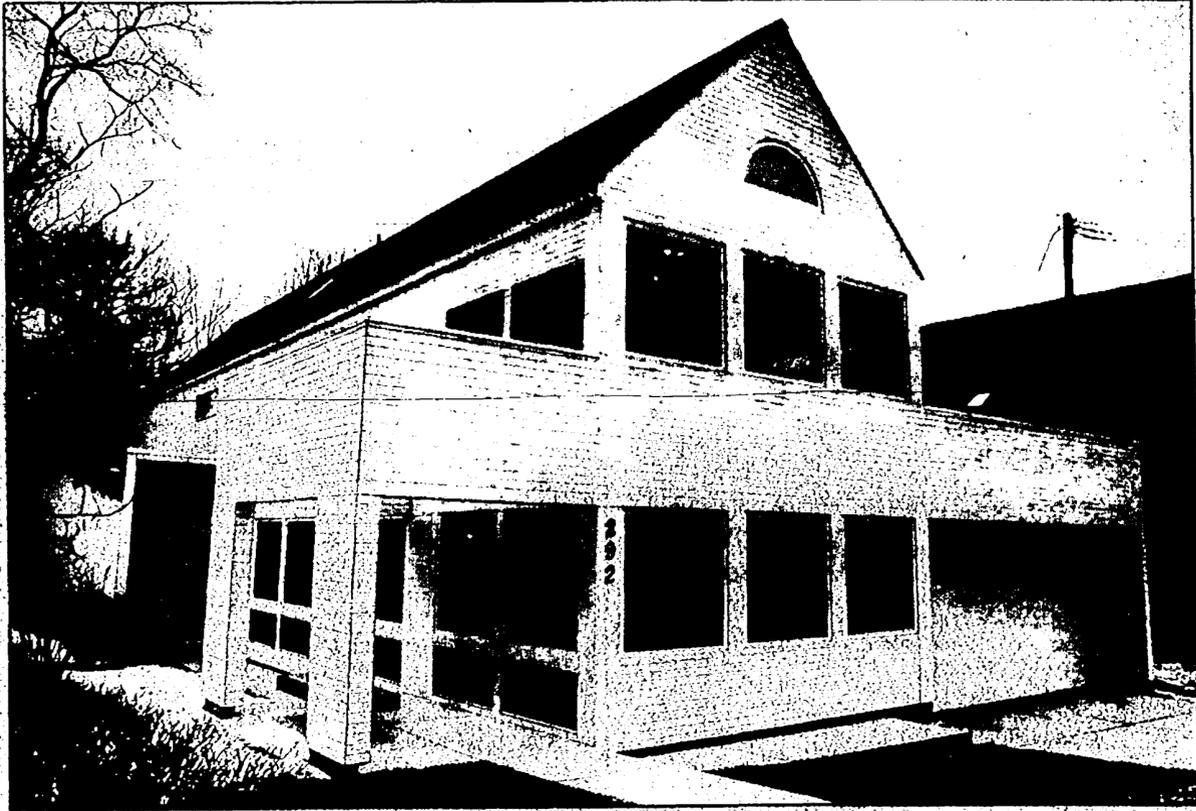

This is true throughout the house — color is introduced with discretion. The natural light and the flow of architectural line are strong elements.

Heating and cooling were other challenges that may have dissuaded potential buyers of the original house. There are now two types — radiant heating on the first level (as in the original house) and forced air on the second. The combination works well, said Stern.

He said he always builds a model before he completes a design — this one took several models before the solutions became clear. "The constraints pretty well told me what to do — as an architect, I like that."

And his original judgement holds true — it is a very special house.

Staff photos
by Jerry Zolynsky

The two-story center section plus everything in the foreground is new, the small section at the back, seen in the rear at the left, is the original house.

Michael Stern has a pleasant view of the family room from where he sits in the smart, contemporary kitchen. To his right is the hall along the north side of the house with lots of windows.

The great room of the original house is now done in all light colors. It still has the wonderful view that Michael Stern fell in love with.

Diaz to write book column

AFAMILIAR name to Observer & Eccentric readers will take over the Book Break column which appears semimonthly in the Creative Living section.

Authoring the column will be Victoria Diaz, whose feature articles and movie/book reviews have appeared in the O&E for a number of years.

Victoria Diaz

A resident of Livonia, Diaz will take over from Mona Grigg who gave up writing the column in order to devote more time to writing fiction.

A FREE-LANCE

writer in the area for 10 years, Diaz is a graduate of Schoolcraft College and the University of Michigan-Dearborn. She has participated in the Writers-in-the-Schools program in Ann Arbor and has taught creative writing in Livonia and Southfield Community Education program. She has also taught creative writing in Schoolcraft College's Continuing Education program.

A member of the executive board of the Detroit Women Writers, she has been a speaker at the Oakland University Writers Conference and will be co-chairwoman of the conference to be held in October.

In addition to the O&E, her work has appeared in other area newspapers, including the Toledo Blade Sunday Magazine, Michigan Woman, the Jewish News, the Detroit News and Detroit Free Press.

She has had some of her short fiction and poetry published in various university journals. Currently she is working on a collection of short stories, "War News from the Home Front."

Recital set

Violinist Shella Fiekowsky, native Detroit, will be the guest for the final concert of the Julius Chajes Music Fund Concert Series. The concert will be 3 p.m. Sunday, April 2 at the Aaron DeRoy Theater of the Jewish Community Center, 6900 West Maple, West Bloomfield. Fiekowsky is member of the Boston Symphony, soloist and chamber musician.

Orchestra to play local composer's work

A work for symphony orchestra, "Reflections on a Rainbow," by Elaine Lebnom, Birmingham resident and composer, will be performed in a concert by the Warren Symphony Orchestra at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, April 9.

David Daniels will conduct the concert to be held at the Warren Woods Community Theatre, E. 12 Mile at Schoenner, Warren.

"My inspiration for the work was a double rainbow I sighted in northern Michigan in 1982," said Lebnom. "I wanted to transfer the beauty of that rainbow to the varied and evocative colors of a symphony orchestra and have been excited by the prospect of working with the Warren Symphony to execute the piece."

Lebnom is a recent recipient on an Individual Artist's Grant from Michigan Council for the Arts. The one-year grant, her first, will allow her to prepare her opera "The Witch, The Wise man and The Fool" for production. "Only 10 percent of those submitting proposals were funded, so I feel very fortunate," she said.

Lebnom has been a Birmingham resident for more than 20 years. She earned a bachelor's and master's in music composition from the University of Michigan, 27 years apart. She has written or composed operas, sonnets, chamber works, lullabies, poems and sound tracks for slide presentations in her 30-year musical career.

Mirroring is smart

Q. We have converted a walk-in closet in the hall leading from our great room into a bar. With the plumbing from the kitchen backing up the closet wall, we have been able to have a wet bar. This is a dark area. What can I do to give this room some glitz and be practical at the same time? We have installed ready made dark oak cabinets — one where the sink is and on the opposite wall which will serve as the bar itself. We face a blank wall as you enter the room. We just had a black and white mini pattern carpet put on the floor.

A. If cost isn't a big consideration, use Corian on the counter tops. Your white Corian will be uplifting. I suggest mirroring the wall you face as you enter your bar. Have the mirror supplier install eight-inch wide strips from floor to ceiling. Each strip should have a bevel on either side. Abut them together and you will have a much smarter look than just mirroring the wall.

If cost is a consideration, I suggest you use a laminate. The brushed chrome for your counters will give the sparkle you need. I would use the mirrored wall here as well.

Noted paleontologist holds 3 workshops

If you're interested in dinosaurs — and who isn't these days? — you're in for a Mesozoic treat when the paleontologist whose name is synonymous with the subject makes Cranbrook Institute of Science his headquarters on Saturday, April 8, for three programs focusing on the newest theories.

Jack Horner, curator of paleontology at the Museum of the Rockies in Bozeman, Mont., will discuss his latest dinosaur discoveries, including that of an extensive Malasara nesting ground in the western United States. This 2½ hour workshop for ages 12 through adult will be held in a casual, personal setting. It begins at 9:30 a.m. in the Institute.

"Dinosaurs for Everyone," a one-hour presentation for the entire family, will cover dinosaur families, including the "Good Mother Lizard," and care of her young. Designed for all ages, this will take place at 3 p.m. in the auditorium.

Finally, "An Evening with Jack Horner" for adults will feature a discussion of contemporary dinosaur theories, including behavior and growth patterns. Refreshments will be served in the Fossil Lab area following the 8 p.m. lecture.

Tickets are priced at $25 for the workshop; $5 for adults and $3 for children for the family presentation; and $10 for the evening lecture. They can be reserved by calling 645-3230. Early registration is suggested for the workshop since seating is limited.

"I finally found a townhome as large as a home."
 "I looked long and hard to find a 2000 sq. ft., cathedral ceiling elegant three-bedroom townhome. (Of course, I could have chosen a two or three-bedroom ranch.) With my own two-car attached garage, my own private basement and patio. And-luxury touches like deluxe kitchens and whirlpool tubs plus landscaping that I love. Nothing could get me to move from Covington. Nothing."
