to the bowling alley to see Michele. He had some flowers."

WHEN LACROIX returned about 11:30 p.m. "he was in a real good mood," Robinson said. "He said, he gave her the flowers in front of her friends, and it made a really good impression on her."

The roommates shared a few drinks and then he went upstairs to bed, Robinson testified. He said he was awakened once, about 2 a.m., when Michele came in and then the second time, just before the commotion.

Thinking LaCroix was involved in a fight, he threw on some clothes and raced downstairs to find the bodies, Robinson said. He ran back upstairs to call 9-1-1 because he wasn't sure if the defendant was still inside the house, he said.

In other testimony Thursday, Ronald Gerrior's longtime friend and hunting companion James Bush told of how the defendant called him at home about 3:15 a.m. and of his (Bush's) subsequent effort to convince Gerrior to surrender.

"He said (during the phone call) 'Jim, please come over. I did something really bad,'" Bush testified.

Bush tried to call Gerrior back, but the line was busy, so he drove three miles to the house, passing police cars with their lights flashing along the way, he testified.

POLICE SPIRITED Bush to a neighbor's house, where they made several attempts to call Gerrior before getting an open line.

"He sounded different. He was crying," Bush testified. Bush said Gerrior asked him to deliver a box to his sister but didn't reveal its contents.

Eventually, Gerrior agreed to surrender.

Later, Westland police asked Bush to talk to Gerrior while he was in custody to see if he (Gerrior) would reveal the whereabouts of the murder weapon. Gerrior refused, Bush testified.

After obtaining a search warrant for the Garden City house, police found a shotgun underneath a couch cushion:

Trash disposal to cost more

The $7.75 per ton increase is planned to finance the $6 million operating budget, Bauser said.

HE DEFENDED the rate increase, saying that other incinerator operators in the Detroit area charge in the mid-$50s.

He said the 21 percent rate increase is projected to pay for the added cost of operating the landfill, which accounts for 19 acres on a 32 acre parcel off of S. Huron Road.

A new state law "requires extensive upgrading to be performed on our landfill in order to handle and dispose of our incinerator residuals in an environmentally sound manner," Bauser wrote local city officials.

The required upgrading "is a very costly project" and prompted the authority's board of directors to phase in the project over four years, said Bauser.

The state law gives the authority nearly a year to complete its first of four phases of the improvements, he added.

Operating costs of the landfill are nearly $500,000 a year with two-thirds going just for the legal and engineering expenses needed to plan and implement the improvements, Bauser said.

UNDER THE new state law approved last year to improve the environment, the authority will be required to install two synthetic (plastic) liners and a five-foot thick clay liner to protect nearby water wells from contamination, he said.

Besides the physical improvements, the agency will be required to pay for continuous monitoring of the wells, done by taking water from the well and testing its contents.

Bauser is clearly irked by the increased costs for several reasons.

One is that ash left from incineration represents only 4 percent of the volume burned by the authority's incinerator on Inkster Road near Annapolis, Dearborn Heights.

Of the rubbish brought to the incinerator annually, 88 percent is burned, eight percent is metal sold to a metal reclamation company, and only 4 percent is the remaining ash which is buried in the Huron landfill, Bauser said.

The director also disagreed with the tests which force the authority to install new linings in the landfill.

THERE IS only one test recognized by the EPA and the state. That test had concluded that the ash in the authority's landfill showed that the lead and cadmium content exceeds established limits.

"I don't think that test is an appropriate one for our incinerator," Bauser said. "We tested the water (near the landfill) and found that it actually improved" from previous tests.

The $3 million in bonds to be sold later this year is the first of four to be sold bond programs over the next several years to finance a nearly-$10 million landfill improvement.

When the other bonds are sold, disposal rates will be increased again, Bauser said.

City notes housing boom away until his models are open in August.

Millpointe, one of seven subdivisions under construction, is also the largest being built in the city since Tonquish Village and Surrey Heights subdivisions were constructed in the 1960s and early 1970s. There are 333 lots planned for the 75 acre development on the north side of Glenwood, just west of Newburgh.

Millpointe, which has homes starting at $75,000, won't have models ready for viewing until August, Stillman said, but "we've sold a couple dozen homes already just from the plans and colored renderings of the models," he said.

THE BUYERS are a mix of young families with children and empty nesters, or those couples whose children are grown and have moved away.

Stillman said of the two dozen buyers so far, two-thirds are young families with the rest being empty nesters.

He is discouraging visitors to the site because there is only construction equipment there — and plenty of mud if it rains.

"People call and say they're coming anyway," he said. "They want first choice of the lot sites and limited-time construction prices, so they come with their boots on."

Millpointe, being built by Crosswinds Development, Inc., of West Bloomfield. The development firm's owner is Bernard Glibberman.

Stillman said promotion and marketing activities are planned only after the models are ready in August.

Millpointe will have streets named after then Nankin Township property owners of 1889, said the manager.

Those names will include Stockmeyer, Lag, McGee, Hawley, Miller, Reiman, and others. The names were obtained from a Westland Historical Commission map listing property owners.

THE OTHER six major developments, their location, and number of lots are:

- Westland Woods, north side of Cherry Hill, east of Newburgh, 145 lots.
- Van Lawn Park, north side of Cherry Hill, east of Newburgh, 40 lots.
- Vico Subdivision, between Warren Road and Cowan, at Farmington Road, 37 lots.
- Millwood, north side of Cowan, just east of Wildwood, 60 units.
- Pikes Peak, north side of Ann Arbor Trail east of Farmington Road, 23 units.
- Arbor Oaks, across the street from Pikes Peak, on the south side of Ann Arbor Trail, 50 units.
- Brandenwoods, just east of Wildwood south of Joy, 15 lots.

To fight crime in Philly, people plant posies.

"The bad part of town." Abandoned cars. Sidewalks scattered with crack vials. Bombed-out buildings.

A neighborhood whose spirit is as broken as the bits of glass that dot the street. There are only two things to do if your neighborhood becomes a war zone: give up or take action.

The Philadelphia Story One day, in the "bad part" of Philadelphia, a neighbor complained to a neighbor. And then to another. And then to more. People didn't like their homes being "taken over." Feelings of helplessness and resentment turned to action.

They went to the police for help.

Soon a substation was established where folks could readily report crime. Weekly meetings began. Community watches started. Things started getting fixed up. Vacant lots were cleaned up and fenced off. Abandoned cars were towed away. Painting and repairing programs began.

The neighborhood was cleaning itself up. The local 4-H Club even helped set up garden clubs where kids, teens and adults could work together on plants and flowers while talking over ways to raise awareness.

When people care and get involved, neighborhoods change. When a block doesn't look like a haven for crime and drugs, it won't be. And in this part of Philly, where once only apathy grew, seven gardens now bloom.

This is only one success story of many. To find out what can be done in your neighborhood, write: The McGruff Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20006-0001. And help...

Parade ushers in Summer Fest

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

It's both a harbinger and a highlight to summer in Westland. The Westland Summer Festival kicked into high gear Saturday with the 20th annual Summer Festival parade.

More than 1,000 people lined the parade route along Ford, from Wildwood to the reviewing stand in front of city hall.

Even the weather cooperated, as early morning thunderstorms gave way to sunshine just 50 minutes be-

"When I heard that thunder this morning, I thought, 'Did I drive eight hours for this?'" said Ruth Hughs, who came from Elizabeth, Pa., to see her 7-year-old granddaughter, Shannon Hoelt, with the Westland Spiriters baton-twirling troupe.

Hughs, who lived in Westland from 1970-80, said she loves a good parade and almost never misses one, either at home or when she returns to Michigan to visit family members.

SATURDAY'S half-hour extravaganza featured the traditional floats, marching bands, clowns and gladhanding politicians — and a bit of the unusual as well.

Like the 1/2-scale replica of a Ford tri-motor airplane towed by the Yankee Air Force. Or the out-of-season appearance of Gene Santa Reaves, who traded his heavily padded red suit and flowing, white beard (too warm) for a T-Shirt and cap as the "Santa Van" cruised Ford Road.

Festival events and the midway, which opened Friday afternoon, continued after the parade. Weekend highlights included remote control car races, a cake decorating contest, the diaper derby and music by Steve King and the Dittles and other groups.

"We come every year, there's always a lot to do for the kids. And a lot of food," said Donna Downey of Westland.

Downey was strolling along the midway Saturday afternoon with her daughter, Holly Vanooeyn, and 8-month-old granddaughter, Mikki Vanooeyn, a contestant in annual the Baby of the Year contest.

"Look how cute she is. I know she's gonna win," Downey said.

School aid bill targets rich school districts

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Many suburban school districts will find their state categorical aid cut this fall. The Michigan Legislature last week played Robin Hood with $50 million, closing the gap between rich and poor districts.

Two committee chairmen negotiated the deal in a massive bill that raises state aid by 7.7 percent to $3.15 billion.

"The Senate won the principle," said House Education Chair William Keith, D-Garden City. "Categorical aids are back in."

"But the House won on the money. We recaptured $50 million from out-of-formula districts and put it into the formula."

Although this state aid is not on a per-pupil basis, Bloomfield Hills will, in effect, get $300 less per child and Inkster will get $330 more, he said.

Most area senators bitterly denounced the bill.

CATEGORICAL aids are state payments for Social Security, pensions, bilingual teaching, dropout pilot programs, gifted and talented programs, transportation and special education.

All school districts, regardless of wealth, used to get categorical. But payments to wealthier districts are increasingly "recaptured," in Lansing jargon.

The compromise bill won a Senate victory Thursday with 22 votes, two more than needed for passage. The bill was sent to the House, where approval Friday was likely. Gov. James Blanchard is expected to sign it.

The voting pattern tells the story. Among Observer & Eccentric area senators, just William Faust, D-Westland, voted yes.

Among the 14 opposed were Doug Cruce, R-Troy, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, Robert Geake, R-Northville, George Hart, D-DeARBorn, and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford.

The vote also split party leaders. Republican leader John Engler of Mount Pleasant voted yes, Democratic chief Art Miller of Warren no.

FAXON, A member of the six-vote House-Senate conference committee, denounced the tactics of the leaders, Sen. Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron, and Rep. James O'Neill, D-Saginaw.

"Basically it was a two-man deal. There was more (committee) discussion in the last five minutes than in the last four months," Faxon said. "Maybe we should just have a czar."

Their sentiment was to take from one group of districts and give to another group of districts," he said. Faxon recalled that the "recapture" device was invented in the recession of the early 1980s and, instead of being phased out, is being used more harshly.

FAR FROM being a plan to narrow the $2,500 to $8,000 gap in per-pupil spending per district, said Cruce, "the plan is to reach into the pockets of oppressed taxpayers, grab a few more dollars and send them to other parts of the state. It robs the retirees of Oakland County."

Fessler called it a Robin Hood plan that didn't always take from the rich. Low-income districts such as Holly are hit by the recapture device, he said.

"Put more into K-12 education and don't just shift it around," Fessler said.

SUPPORTERS SAID the plan was equitable.

"The basic principle," said John Cherry, D-Cllo, is that the funding gap between districts will not widen. There may be losers in this type of plan. But the public understands this (funding gap) can't continue.

"Robin Hood is a positive force for good when things aren't equitable," Cherry said.

"It redistributes state dollars," said supporter William Sederburg, R-East Lansing. "In a perfect world, it would be nice to give more money to poorer school districts."

Fed up with NRA* zealots

To the editor:

Pity the poor NRA (National Rifle Association).

In an article entitled "NRA Criticizes Weapons Bill" June 11, the NRA complains that a bill, offered by Sen. William Faust to require that guns that might be found by children be locked up at night "singles out firearms, ignoring poisons, alcohol, farm equipment and knives" and that "bicycle accidents kill more kids than guns." The NRA is being discriminated against.

Aren't you a little weary of the NRA's unrelenting opposition to any and all gun control, including undetectable (by airline radar detection security) plastic handguns, cop killer bullets, mandatory training for first time gun users, waiting periods, registration, background checks and the deadly automatic assault rifles. They also want to repeal machine gun bans.

The 2 million assault rifles in circulation make up only 1 percent of the gun population, which numbers 20 million. But they are 20 times as likely to be used in criminal activity as all the other guns combined (Cox Newspaper Service/The Atlantic Journal Constitution).

Yet the NRA persists in defending them, while it tries to pass itself off as deeply concerned about the safety of the citizenry.

The NRA budget is over $85 million. It distributed $1,807,360 in PAC money on Capitol Hill. Most of our Congressmen refuse PAC money from the NRA, including Rep. William Broomfield, with the exception of Rep. Bill Schutte, who accepted $4,950 in the 1990 election cycle. Then there are the millions and millions of dollars in pure cash that goes to the lobbyists for the NRA.

If you are as fed up with the zealotry of the NRA as I am, call your congressman and senator and tell them who you are, and that you want gun control

Column was to the point

To the editor:

Judith Berne's article in the June 14, 1990, issue of the O&E was very good and right to the point. Too many parents preach to everyone about drinking, then allow it in their homes. I am a mother of two teenagers and we have stressed in our home time and again, "no drinking — the law states — age 21." And hopefully by age 21 with all the guidance and examples we have set they will think clearly about their drinking habits and take the responsibility.

There is no compromise for drinking and driving. The sad part of all of this is a lot of times the drunken driver walks away and the innocent are killed.

I think Barbara Dolliver should not have been allowed to give the commencement speech. It's very obvious her son didn't take her seriously because he would have known to tell his friends ahead of time, "There are no alcoholic beverages allowed for anyone under 21."

One daughter will be graduating from high school next summer and we have already discussed the issue of her friends not drinking in our home. Fortunately both my teenagers are into sports and are very health conscious because of it. They have seen pro ball players die because of overdoses. At this point they do not drink, but we never close our eyes. It's always those graduation parties that seem to say, "It's OK."

Keep up the good work. Many parents read the O&E in our community and it's articles like this that enlighten all of us and make us think just a little bit harder about life.

Kelley: age bias not tolerated

To the editor:

I read with great interest Tim Richard's column that appeared in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Ironically, on this date our President, George Bush, is celebrating his 66th birthday. Tim Richard notes in his column that I am 65, and in a rather discriminatory way relegates me to political retirement. May I remind you that age discrimination is no longer tolerated in this country legally because it has been shown to be a foolish policy.

Since George Bush, our very active President, is showing no signs of physical or mental deterioration, you should also note that President Ronald Reagan was much older than President Bush before he ever decided to be a successful candidate for President of the United States.

I WOULD suggest that you have the column that you wrote laminated, and then write me at the Office of Attorney General when you reach 65, and let me know if you still feel the same way.

The column also mentioned Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths and Secretary of State Richard Austin as being too old for public service.

I imagine many members of the United States Supreme Court who are older than Lt. Governor Griffiths and Secretary of State Austin would not agree that retirement from public life should be controlled by the age of the official.

Scary stories are part of American culture

SHHHH! TURN down the lights. Sit close together. Hold hands if you want to. Now listen.

An' one time a little girl 'ud allus laugh an' grin,
An' make fun of ever'one an' all her blood-an-kin.
An' onc', when they was "compa ny," an' old folks was there,
She mocked 'em, an' shocked 'em, an' said she didn't care!
An' thist as she kicked her heels, an' turn't to run an' hide!
They was two great Big Black Things a-standin' by her side.
An' they snatched her through the ceilin' fore she knowed what she's about!
An' the gobble-uns'll git you ef you don't watch out!

There. Did that scare you? Did it make you jump? It should have. It scared the dickens out of me when I was a kid. That was the point.

That was the point when James Whitcomb Riley wrote "Little Orphan Annie" in 1885. It was part of a tradition of American scary tales.

GENERATIONS OF Americans grew up on such stories. The "scare" tales threw into them was fun. It was similar to the scare you get when you take that first giant drop on a roller coaster or when you watch Boris Karloff lumbering around in his crude makeup as Frankenstein's monster.

Being scared, for the fun of it, is part of American popular culture. That's why I got a bit disgusted when the media jumped all over a story a couple of weeks ago about a Livonia resident complaining to the school board that her first grader had been so frightened by a poem read in class that she had tummy aches and hadn't been able to sleep for months.

The poem, "The Body," from a collection called "Scary Poems for Rotten Kids," followed in the tradition of the scary tale — something that frontier kids thrived on but something that, if you believe this mother and some other parents at the school, some modern kids apparently just can't handle.

That's too bad, and it is, I suspect, the fault of the parents, not something genetically different about today's children.

I haven't been able to get my hands on a copy of "Scary Poems" yet, but I did get the other book the Livonia parents were protesting, "Scary Stories to Tell in the Dark."

Guess what? That book is a collection of scary tales from American folklore — the kind I've been talking about — and it includes such classics as "The Golden Arm" ("Whooooo's got my golden armmmmmm?") and "The Hearse Song" ("The worms crawl in, the worms crawl out, the worms play pinochle on your snout").

My wife and I grew up on such stuff and we loved it. It was scary, yes, but it was an exhilarating kind of fright. And our parents always pointed out that it was only a poem or a story or a movie. And now my daughter, the first grader, wants a copy of the book for herself. She loves it, too.

THE LIVONIA schools (to their credit) didn't crumble to the complaints of these parents who appear to be taking things much too seriously and apparently passing such attitudes along to their children. But the schools did promise to put together some kind of "sensitivity training" for teachers so they'll be able to deal with the "common ground between teaching youngsters who might have problems with certain literature and the district's responsibility for the other 27 kids in the class."

Right. How about a "sensitivity training" program for parents who are raising kids who don't seem to grasp the difference between fiction and reality?

Colonists tried out new foods

History books often represent the colonial era as a series of political events, legal proclamations and battle dates.

Yet it was also a time of intense cultural change often reflected in the foods people ate.

Johnnycake was a cornmeal bread substitute for the yeast-raised wheat loaves New Englanders had known in Europe. Pennsylvania Dutch cooks "invented" a flour-and-molasses-filled pie (shoo-fly pie) for the harsh winter months when dried fruits, eggs and cream were in short supply.

We can credit the early settlers for launching a whole new cuisine. Blending with the likes of foods from the American Indian, the British, Dutch, German, African and West Indian, this cuisine began to form from the bubbling cauldrons and open-hearth fireplaces that not only warmed the body but also the cockles of the heart of every man, woman and child.

The seeds brought to the New World rotted on the long damp journey. The Pilgrims did not realize they had come to the land of Indian corn — an entire continent that had never seen the likes of wheat, oats, rye and barley. Similarly, Indian corn was unknown in Europe and elsewhere around the globe.

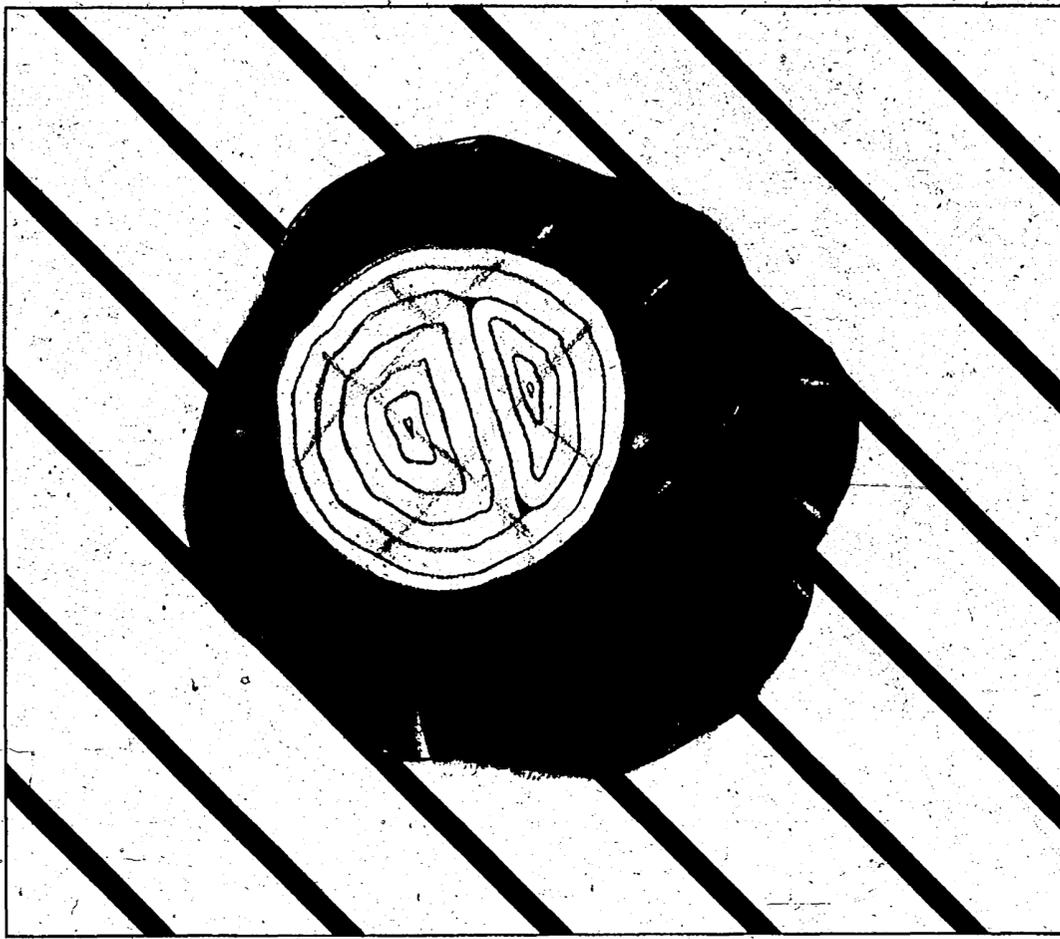

We can credit a group of Columbus' explorers, on the island of Cuba in 1492, with enthusiastically reporting the finding of "a sort of grain called mahis" that could be eaten in a cereal and ground into flour. The word mahis was from the Taino language, the aboriginal tongue spoken by the local islanders. In Spanish it became maize and in English, maize.

WE CAN CREDIT the Algonquin Indians with the introduction of beans, pumpkins and squash to the Pilgrims' diet. If it weren't for these Indian tribes, the new settlers would never have dreamed of becoming successful hunters of venison and bear, and searchers of the hard-shelled clam known as the quahog.

I can remember baking my first loaf of bread with Momma, carefully measuring the ingredients from a store-bought bag of flour and what was available then, caked yeast. My first attempt resembled closely the early settlers' attempts at making bread because they were using corn flour (which contained no gluten), and after baking, the loaf resembled a flattened pan bread called johnnycake. Even to this day, with the assistance of a Kitchen-Aid mixer, a temperature-controlled convection oven and easy-read thermometers that can tell me the exact temperature to heat the water, I occasionally end up with a product similar to theirs.

Next week, the Janes gang is invited to a traditional clambake, replete with "fruits de la mer." I can only wonder if our host and hostess know that the famed New England clambake developed very early in the colonial period. Of course, to the early settlers, it was nothing more than an adaptation of the coastal Indians' method of cooking clams in a pit lined with seaweed, which provided moisture for steaming the clams. Over the years, New Englanders added lobsters, corn and potatoes and, of course, salt, pepper and hot, dipping butter that make the clambake food so delicious.

THE FOODS my momma and your momma placed on their tables are descendants of what the early settlers enjoyed way back when. The lists of early ingredients enjoyed then and now literally can fill a book by themselves. The codfish, the boiled dinners, the apple panowdy, not to mention the Southern influences such as fried chicken and pecan pie, are remembered to this day on tables around the world.

BURGERS on the GRILL

Your guide to the grinds

By Larry Janes
special writer

WHATEVER YOUR budget, whatever your schedule, whatever the occasion, you can rely on hamburger to fill the bill. And what better time to talk burgers than barbecue time.

Few cuts of meat have as much going for them — or you — as hamburger. As far as most of us are concerned, "hamburger" is just another word for ground beef. There is, however, a distinction. And this distinction is one that you should know about when it comes to the shopping scene.

Federal laws specify the amount of fat permitted in the various types of ground beef, so it really is the amount of fat (or conversely, the amount of lean) that will determine the label.

Anyone who has made the trip past the ground beef section of the grocery store or butcher shop has quite a choice between burgers. Do you want hamburger, ground beef, ground chuck, ground round, ground sirloin, ground turkey or, even now, ground chicken? To help you identify the differences, here's the simplified version in plain English (compared to the 19 pages the USDA uses to identify the differences).

HAMBURGER: Any ground beef bearing this label can legally contain up to 30 percent fat. This fat may consist of the natural fat attached to the beef, plus "loose" beef fat from the trimming process.

GROUND BEEF: This is where it gets a little confusing. The amount of fat allowed under the law also may be 30 percent fat. The big difference between ground beef and hamburger is that ground beef can contain only the fat attached to the beef. No other fat may be added to reach the 30 percent ratio. Thus, the fat content in meat labeled ground beef is usually less than 30 percent.

GROUND CHUCK: This meat is really lean ground beef bearing approximately 20 percent fat.

GROUND ROUND: This extra-lean ground beef usually contains about 15 percent fat.

GROUND SIRLOIN: This is what most restaurants call ground steak, supposedly containing between 10-12 percent fat.

GROUND TURKEY AND GROUND CHICKEN: These products combine both the white and dark meat of the fowl, combined with usually no more than 15 percent fat, usually comprised of the ground skin.

"Big deal," you say? Ah, but did you know that certain varieties make better burgers? Yep. For a juicy, broiled or grilled burger, your choice should be either ground beef or ground chuck. The amount of fat in both types allows the burgers to baste themselves as they cook. If you prefer to choose leaner cuts, you will probably end up with a less-juicy patty. But, remember, the more fat, the greater the shrinkage.

For a juicy, broiled or grilled burger, your choice should be either ground beef or ground chuck. The amount of fat in both types allows the burgers to baste themselves as they cook.

Ground chuck and ground round are usually reserved for casseroles and other main dish entrees, although the fattier cuts work just as well providing they can be drained of excess fat after the meat has been browned.

Preparing burgers on the grill isn't as easy as choosing the proper cuts of meat. There are a few tricks that can help turn this summer's barbecue into one that will surely be remembered by all.

First off, let's talk about the grill. There are many schools of thought when it comes to choosing grills. Coal fired or gas, lava rock or mesquite? Contrary to what others might think, the Janes Gang has tried them all and, as far as we're concerned, you just can't beat the old charcoal briquettes on an open grill.

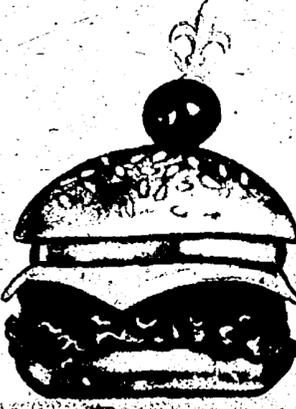

IF YOU HAVE YET to get the "old faithful" out from the garage amidst last summers put-aways, now is the perfect time to clean it up and get it ready for the weekend. Remove any old ash and dead coals. Window cleaners and a pall of hot soapy water, combined with a little old-fashioned elbow grease are the best defense against a dirty grill.

If the grill grid still bears last summer's food build up, an easy way to clean it is to place the grid in a plastic bag and add three cups of household ammonia. Tie the bag up and place on a flat surface in direct sunlight. Within two hours, the ammonia will have done its job, and the grid should pretty much wipe clean.

Be sure to rinse the grid well with a garden hose to remove any and all ammonia residues. To keep the grill easy to clean and to help make it virtually stick-free, a light spraying of Pam or other food-release agents, or a healthy brushing of an old rag dipped in vegetable oil will leave an easy-clean coating.

Now that the burgers have been formed and the grill is cleaned and ready to roll, remember that your choice of charcoal will directly affect the overall outcome. When it comes to purchasing charcoal, you get what you pay for. Cheaper briquettes made from sawdust fillers are OK, but you just can't beat the

Ice cream shapes up

By Gori Rinechler
special writer

An apple a day may keep the doctor away, but one of Ray's "Bad Apples" will undoubtedly make you feel better. Unlike any other apple you've ever eaten, Ray's "Bad Apples" are hand crafted from chocolate ice cream, filled with Truffles liqueur and hand decorated in an apple red color.

For the last 30 years, Ray's Ice Cream Co. in Royal Oak has been making ice cream delights in antique molds in dozens of shapes to suit almost any occasion ranging from all-American flags for the Fourth of July to Thanksgiving turkeys and Valentine cupids.

When founder Raymond H. Stevens opened his shop in 1958, many of the dairies in Michigan were making ice cream molds. "Today, Ray's is probably the last dairy in the country still making them," Grandson Tom Stevens said. He, along with his dad, Ray Stevens Jr., Uncle Dale Stevens and his son, Art, share the responsibilities, continuing the family traditions and manufacturing techniques for which the shop is famous.

On an average week, the Stevens family makes 1,500 gallons of old-fashioned, homemade ice cream in 40 incredible flavors, eight of which are sherberts. Along with the traditional favorites, there is peppermint, black raspberry, pistachio walnut, and a new favorite, white Russian. That's white chocolate ice cream with mocha fudge.

SEASONAL FAVORITES include rum raisin, pumpkin, black raspberry and eggnog. Each flavor is made using a batch freezer which produces 10 gallons at a time. "We're also one of the last dairies to make ice cream in a batch freezer. We use it because the ice cream is smoother than the larger, commercial machines. It also makes a better product," Stevens said. And how much of those 1,500 gallons is reserved for molding red apples, pumpkins and flags? Well, during December 1989, Ray's hand-filled and decorated 22,000 holiday designs.

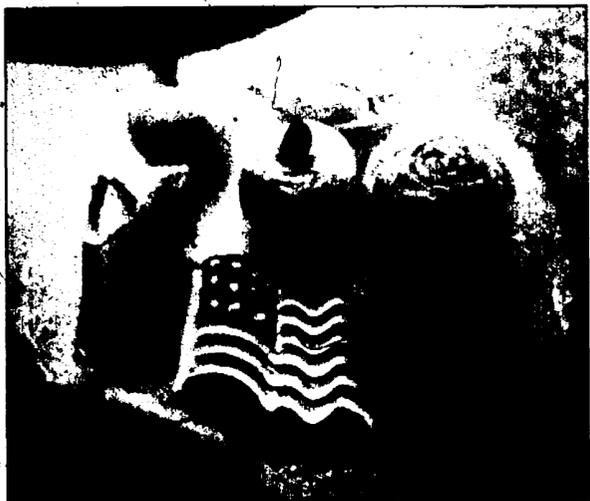

Many of the antique molds in the Stevens collection were bought by Grandfather Ray Stevens when he opened the shop. Since that time most of the popular shapes, apples, oranges and peaches have worn out and been reproduced in a metal alloy similar to the original. Many of the unusual shapes, such as the sailboat, cruise ship, 1940s car, frogs and turties, still are made using the antique molds. Most of the styles and holiday characters, such as a Halloween witch on a broom or a snowman, can be made in the ice cream flavor of your choice, then hand painted including important details such as the wart on the end of the witch's nose.

Cordial fruits are the only ice cream molds which have a filling. After the molds are filled with ice cream, a depression is made in the center. After the ice cream hardens and is removed from the mold, the fruits are injected with 1 1/2 ounces of liqueur, then frozen once more. Later each is colored with an air-brush and food coloring, frozen, then dipped into a batch of icy food coloring to give the appearance of that just-picked-from-the-vine look.

The liqueurs are chosen to complement the flavor of the ice cream. Shop specialties are combinations of coffee ice cream with creme de cacao, vanilla ice cream with creme de menthe, and cinnamon ice cream with apple schnapps. Cordial peaches filled with peach brandy are a perfect dessert for a springtime or summer luncheon.

Popularity of these unique desserts has spread beyond our Michigan shores. The Stevens regularly fill orders from country clubs and restaurants across the country. Kiwi sorbet fruits are often sent air freight to clubs in Palm Springs, Calif.

To order any of the 75 ice cream molds, 7-10 days notice is necessary. During the holiday months of November and December, you need to place your order early in the month. Prices for the cordial-filled fruits range from $2.55 to $2.85 each. Regular molds cost $2.30-$2.40 each. Ray's Ice Cream Company is at 2333 Coolidge Highway, Royal Oak, phone 548-5326.

Your guide to grinds, plus barbecue tips

heat and staying quality of a good hardwood charcoal.

You can ignite the coals in costly containers available at most seasonal shops, but an old, empty three-pound coffee can with both ends removed works just as well. Igniting the coals this way will make for evenly heated coals and will prohibit cool spots when cooking.

YOU MIGHT BE interested in the kitchen report compiled by the fabled Cooks magazine (July/August 1989) which states, "If you like the flavor of wood smoke in food, stick to wood chips that will produce a strongly scented smoke: mesquite, hickory, maple and oak. If you like the taste of herbs on quickly grilled foods, chop and rub them on the food. Don't sprinkle them on the coals."

For grilling the best burgers in town, after the coals have been heated throughout to a fiery orange glow, disperse them evenly throughout the bottom of a foil-lined grill, with the shiny side of the foil looking at you. This serves two purposes: first, to help make clean-up so much easier and, secondly, the heat is reflected upwards, from the foil, therefore cooking your burgers more effectively.

Lining the grill grids with foil before cooking will only result in burgers "frying" in their own grease. In all-honesty, however, Morima always packs a roll of foil for campsite or park barbecues to cover the grids because "God only knows what's been on there before you arrived."

My next suggestion for the best burgers will surely provoke some controversy. Personally speaking, when I grill foods high in fat content (like burgers), I always place an old, shallow, cake pan under the burgers so that when the fat begins to cook out of the burgers, it can be "caught" without landing on the hot coals. There are two reasons for doing this. First, it makes clean-up so much easier. Second, it eliminates dangerous fire flare-ups that have been known to turn a grill into a roaring campfire, turning the best burgers into blackened cow-chip look-alikes.

Speaking of fire flare-ups, it is always recommended that you keep a clean squirt bottle filled with ordinary water or broth within arm's reach to quench any sudden fires that might start from the grease released during cooking.

WHEN IT COMES to recommended cooking times for burgers, the only judge is a chef's gut-level instinct. There are so many variables consisting of how hot the fire is to the thickness and temperature of the burgers that naming an exact cooking time is difficult, even for an expert.

Rating poultry burgers

Are turkey and chicken burgers all they are cracked up to be? Contrary to popular belief, ground turkey and ground chicken make pretty lousy grilled burgers. Because both are relatively low in fat (only 15 percent), they have a tendency to dry out on the grill and are hardly flavorful. If you do desire to grill with ground turkey or ground chicken, it is best to liven up the product with an ample dash of seasoned salt.

Also, add 2 egg yolks to every cup of product in addition to 1/4 cup of liquid (wine, broth, water, milk).

For even better results, saute a pan of finely chopped onions and a little garlic and stir this into the mixture before grilling.

As a general rule, when the coals just begin to get a gray dust after being red hot, that is the time to begin cooking. Typically, a one-inch-thick burger will take about four minutes for rare, five minutes for medium rare, six minutes for medium (still with some slight pink in center), seven minutes for burgers cooked through but still juicy, and eight minutes or more for a well-done burger.

This will dramatically slow the cooking process without allowing them to overcook, and still be piping hot.

Everyone has his or her own favorite additions to hamburger. Whether it be a simple shot of Worcestershire or a shake or two of a secret seasoning, you can create a burger so tempting and delicious you will have all the neighbors wishing for an invite.

Why spend an evening slaving over a hot stove when a grill, a lawn chair and a six-pack of your favorite brew is all that's truly necessary to make the best burgers in town?

Try these great burger recipes on your next cookout instead of the typical plain grilled burger. They're all Janes Gang tested and approved.

CRUNCHY ONION-BEEF BURGERS

- 1 1/2 pounds ground chuck
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt (optional)
- 1/2 teaspoon pepper
- 1 tablespoon ketchup
- 1 can (3 1/2 ounce) French fried onions

6 burger buns or split English muffins

In a bowl, combine meat, salt, pepper and ketchup and mix until well blended. Add half the can of onion rings to the meat mixture. Mix well. Shape into 1-inch patties. Grill as desired. After burgers are cooked, sprinkle remaining onion rings on them. Serve inside buns or English muffins.

CHEESEBURGER SURPRISES

- 2 pounds ground chuck

- 2 tablespoons minced onions
- 2 teaspoons Worcestershire
- 2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- Dash salt and pepper
- 1 1/2 cups shredded sharp cheddar cheese

Thoroughly mix together the meat with the onions, Worcestershire, mustard, salt and pepper. Mix well. Shape into 12 thin patties. Place 1/2 cup of shredded cheese on 6 patties. Top with remaining patties and seal

BURGUNDY BURGERS

- 1 1/2 pounds ground chuck
- 1/4 cup Burgundy or other red wine
- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire
- 1 teaspoon seasoned salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic salt

Mix all ingredients together and shape into patties 1-inch thick. Grill as desired. This really makes a juicy burger.

Peach Melba has a grand history

PEACH MELBA

Makes 8 servings

Auguste Escoffier created Peach Melba in 1894. As the story goes, he served this dessert in an ice-carved swan. This great classic is just as wonderful without the ice swan.

- 4 whole, fresh, ripe peaches
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 1/2-inch piece vanilla bean
- 1 1/2 cups fresh raspberries
- 1/4 cup cassia or red currant jam or preserves

- 4 tablespoons creme de cassis liqueur
- 2 pints vanilla or cinnamon ice cream
- 1/2 cup chopped or sliced pistachio nuts

Peel peaches by submerging into a pan of boiling water for 10 seconds. Remove with a slotted spoon, peel the skin off with a paring knife. Cut each peach in half and discard pit. Mix water and sugar together in a saucepan and bring to boil. Lower temperature and simmer. Add peaches and vanilla bean and simmer 15-20 minutes until tender. Remove from heat and cool. Remove from syrup and chill.

Prepare raspberry sauce: Add raspberries and jam to a clean saucepan and heat gently, stirring. Simmer for 10 minutes until smooth. Remove from heat, add liqueur and chill. Sauce can be strained if you prefer. To serve, top each ice cream scoop with a peach half. Spoon raspberry sauce over top and sprinkle with pistachios.

Make-ahead menu keeps Mom out of the kitchen.

It's hard to believe that it's almost here, at last, The Fourth of July, a day that's an annual blast.

With sparklers and firecrackers we mark the occasion, The freedom of our country and the birth of a nation.

For on this day, friends and family gather round, With fun and laughter being the prevailing sound.

As relaxed adults sit back, engaged in conversation, Their children can be found running in formation.

And Dad's at his wittiest, charming all the guests, As he serves up beverages and keeps them refreshed.

But, wait, something's wrong, hmmm, I can't quite say, Someone is missing from this picture-perfect day.

'Tis Mom, old Mom, in the kitchen working away, Muttering to herself about the "freedom" of this day.

With dishes piled high and the kitchen a total loss, There's 10 pounds of potato salad awaiting one last toss.

"Next year," vows she, with a determined look in her eye, "The Jean Zebedee's Winner Dinner is the one I'm going to try."

"For it's a menu most easily prepared in advance, Then I, too, can spend this day on the seat of my pants."

"Her menu looks great, I'm ready for something new, Besides, I'm 'baked beamed' out, a change is due."

For as the bells of freedom ring through the land, Year after year they've been muffled closest at hand.

So from this day hence, the Winner Dinner Flag'll wave O'er this kitchen of the free and the home of the brave.

Jean Zebedee, this week's Winner Dinner Winner, laughingly describes herself as a big-time tennis player, a sometime golfer and a small-time homemaker. The mother of three.

Jean Zebedee of Bloomfield Hills prepares a meal that includes Summer Soup, Marinated Flank Steak, Zucchini Pancakes and Blueberry Crisp.

grown children, Zebedee loves to cook and enjoys preparing complex and involved meals, finding it to be a fun, creative outlet.

Originally from Philadelphia, Zebedee now is practically bi-coastal, commuting with her husband on a regular basis between Bloomfield Hills and San Diego, Calif. She has raised, adventuresome eaters, and her children still occasionally call for advice on preparing a certain recipe. When the family does get together, the children look forward to cooking meals right out of Gourmet magazine.

Besides taking lots of art classes at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association, and having earned a diploma from the LaVarene Cooking School in California, Zebedee regularly participates in the many different cooking classes offered at Kitchen Glamor, a kitchen-utensil supply shop, in West Bloomfield, Rochester and Redford Township.

She and her husband recently celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary. Perhaps the old adage that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach has some truth to it. Although an expert griller, Zebedee's husband is content to sit back and appreciate his wife's cooking. Together, they are looking forward to many more years of happiness, travel and, of course, lots of Winner Dinners!

Food workshop is available

With today's interest in back-to-nature foods and healthier eating styles, the old-time methods of food preservation are making a comeback.

The Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service is offering a hands-on informative workshop from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesday and Thursday, July 10 and 12, in the Kitchen Classroom, North Office Building, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac. Charge is $7.50 for one session or $15 for both.

Enrollment information for both classes may be obtained by calling the Food and Nutrition Hotline at 858-6904.

ARTHRITIS ENDS: IMBALANCE BEGINS

Physicians treat elderly patients having arthritis of the knee with aspirin or similar drugs and undertake injection therapy as needed. When this approach no longer suffices, knee replacement surgery is in order.

At times, an individual with advanced knee arthritis, unresponsive to medication, is not a candidate for surgery. This situation occurs most often when the person has both arthritis and a movement disorder, such as Parkinson's Disease.

Patients with Parkinson's Disease lose control over their gait; they must walk with small shuffling steps. Ambulating this way increases the hazard of stumbling and decreases the person's ability to right himself once a fall begins.

Individuals with balance problems may undergo knee surgery without difficulty, but afterwards are at increased risk for replacement failure because of this tendency to stumble. With an artificial knee in place, a fall can be a disaster. The artificial knee is rigid, and the impact from striking the ground transmits forces which can shatter the surrounding bone. Reproductive surgery may be impossible.

The question of balance illustrates the importance of placing the decision for knee replacement into a network of other medical and personal conditions.

Lindsey is a 5-year-old diabetic. Her daily insulin shots, diet restrictions and constant blood monitoring only provide day-to-day control over the disease. They do not cure it. So Lindsey, along with 11 million other Americans, still faces the long term risks of diabetes — like heart disease, blindness, stroke, amputation and kidney disease. The complications of diabetes will account for an estimated 150,000 deaths this year alone.

But thanks to your contributions to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, Lindsey and millions like her have something more to look forward to. In the past decade, JDF research has made great strides in isolating the causes and conditions of diabetes, bringing us closer to a cure. At the same time, diabetes increases by 6% every year. And in ten years the number of diabetics will have doubled.

So you see, your help is needed more desperately than ever before. For more information on the warning signs of diabetes and its treatment, and what you can do to help, call JDF at (313) 569-6171.

Master of tempranillo grows grape in Spain

Due north of Madrid and 74 miles southwest of Rioja in central Spain lies a growing region stretching for 30 miles along the upper Duero Valley known as Ribera del Duero.

Here, the deeply colored tempranillo grape grows at elevations of more than 2,500 feet. Grapes nurtured by intensely hot days and long, cool nights are not harvested until mid-October. Nowhere else does tempranillo achieve such high concentration while maintaining good acid balance.

Alejandro Fernandez, owner/winemaker at Bodegas Tinto Pesquera, is the master of the tempranillo. His skill with this grape produces wines of power, richness and body. "Tempranillo grows throughout Spain, but its ideal, true home is the upper Duero Valley," Fernandez explains.

"In the Duero, the wine is 100 percent tempranillo, whereas in Rioja it must be blended with high-acid white grapes to balance the characteristic low acidity of tempranillo grown there.

"Many of the world's great wine regions produce cabernet sauvignon and merlot. These varieties tend to dominate their origins rather than

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

1987 Tinto Pesquera, Spain (#18) highlights cedar, chocolate, spice and red berry characters in the aroma. A distinct American oak nuance adds to the delicious, mouth-filling, round flavors. While very appealing now, this wine will age for several years. We recommend it with game, authentic paella and red meats, especially lamb.

Hidalgo Napoleon Amonillado, Spain (#9). You may think of cream sherry when you first pour it, but you will be pleasantly surprised at the broad, bone-dry flavors that complement nuts or tapas. This aged "amonillado" boasts a deep amber and aromas of nuts, coffee and vanilla.

reflect them. Tempranillo wines mirror the "terroir" in Ribera del Duero."

VARIETALLY, tempranillo is comparable to pinot noir rather than cabernet-sauvignon. The wine has good tannins, but the grape itself is not astringent, exhibiting the softness of a good merlot.

focus on wine Eleanor and Ray Heald

Our personal favorite is the 1987 Tinto Pesquera (See Wine Selections of the Week), but the 1988 and 1989 are showing excellent promise, according to Fernandez. If you get hooked on the 1987, don't worry. The best may still be on its way. The 1988 Reserva Pesquera (#28) boasts berries, spice, cedar and licorice aromas followed by full, broad, palate warmth and a splay finish.

Sherry is a wine name most Americans recognize but few really understand. Richly sweet and dark amber, cream sheries represent our common conception, but there is a world of dry wine that has not been generally discovered.

Sherry production differs from the way most white wine is made. The light, white juice is fermented in barrels where it reaches 12-16 percent natural alcohol. It is then fortified with spirits, adjusting its strength to either 15 or 18 percent depending on the desired quality and flavor characteristics.

After fortification, sherry's unique aging process begins. Not all barrels of wine develop in quite the same way. The essential difference is that some develop a floating yeast known as "flor" and others do not. The finest, most delicate sheries are blessed with this creamy surface yeast and are only lightly fortified to maintain their inherent finesse.

"FLOR" GROWS to a depth of several inches. Because it floats on the surface, it naturally protects the wine from air and the dangers of oxidation. This protective cap that excludes oxygen explains the pale color of the light, elegant sheries known as "finos."

These wines are ready to drink at an earlier age than the darker, heavier sherry styles. Age is not indicated on the bottle because the product is blended to maintain consistent flavors.

The blending method in the sherry region employs a "solera." It consists of several rows of barrels stacked on top of one another. At bottling time, a portion of the bottom barrels is removed for bottling. The barrels are refilled with a portion of wine from the level above. The top row is refilled with wine from the most recent harvest.

Once a "fino" sherry is removed from barrel and the protection of the "flor," its color begins to deepen and the flavors broaden as it matures. Called "amonillado," the wine develops a deep amber color as it ages. Intense nutty flavors develop and it becomes rich and concentrated.

Juan Luis Hidalgo produces light, delicate, bone-dry sherry in Sanlucar de Barrameda on Spain's Southern coast. His speciality is "manzanilla," an elegant fino sherry made possible by humid Atlantic air and a complex "flor" which not only protects the wine in barrel from oxidation but develops a toasty bouquet.

The pale, dry Manzanilla La Gitana (the gypsy woman) (#8) is Vinicola Hidalgo's flagship wine. Lightly chilled it is a refreshing aperitif on a warm summer day. It is also an excellent accompaniment for shellfish, oysters and fried calamari.

'In the Duero, the wine is 100 percent tempranillo, whereas in Rioja it must be blended with high-acid white grapes. . .'

Redford native tames the Bear

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

On Thursday he was a statewide hero, having conquered a prominent field of competitors and the much-heralded, Jack Nicklaus-designed Bear to win the Michigan Open.

But by Friday, Bob Proben had to be back on the job.

The Redford native (Thurston, class of '73) rose early that morning in Traverse City, site of the Open, and drove back to West Bloomfield, site of Knollwood Country Club and work. By early afternoon, the assistant golf pro was busy giving lessons.

"I don't mind at all," Proben said of the transition. "I got to go play in the Michigan Open, and I happened to win it."

With the victory, Proben also collected his biggest single-prize ever — $12,000. In addition, he qualified for the $18,000 Michigan Bell Showdown in August.

Proben's victory was hardly expected. No factor favored him entering the tournament. He had never played on the Bear; his practice round, scheduled for the Saturday before the Open, was washed out.

HE HADN'T exactly been playing all that well, either. The week before the Open, Proben competed in the state's assistant pros' championship at Oakland Hills Country Club.

"I played terrible. It was the worst I've played in a long time."

In the week between the two tournaments, Proben spent some time working on his game, and it helped. Definitely.

"I was hitting the ball extremely well before I left (for the Open)."

STILL, HIS first two rounds didn't

Bob Proben, a Redford native, had his putter working at the Michigan Open.

reflect it; he had a 77 on Monday and a 75 Tuesday, which left him eight-over par and 10 strokes behind co-leaders Buddy Whitten and Mike Erickson.

"I struck the ball very well the first two days."

What he didn't do well was putt; he had 38 putts in his 77 and 33 in his 75.

A new putter and a few adjustments solved that problem.

On Wednesday, Proben climbed back into contention with the best round of the tournament, a 67, which included just 28 putts. That put him at 219, four strokes behind Whitten, the leader.

BY THE conclusion of the front nine in Thursday's final round, it was apparent Proben was in control.

golf

Whitten opened Thursday with three straight bogeys as Erickson took the lead. Double-bogeys on the seventh and 11th holes ended Whitten's hopes.

A Proben birdie combined with an Erickson bogey at No. 8 left the two tied for first. The ninth hole proved pivotal.

PROBEN WAS 30 yards from the hole, but it was "a fairly easy chip." He hit it too hard and expected it to roll 12 feet or so past the cup. Instead, the ball struck the stick and dropped in for a birdie.

Was fate turning his way? "That's exactly how I felt," Proben said. "I thought, 'This may be my day.'"

The shot affected Erickson and Whitten, too.

"Their faces just sunk. It was a whole turnaround, right then."

"You need that once in a while. You've got to be lucky to win a tournament."

Proben finished with a final-round 70 (with 29 putts) for a one-over par 289 total. Whitten and Erickson tied for second at 293.

IN SPITE of his success, the 35-year-old Proben doesn't plan to return to the pro tour, where he labored off-and-on for 10 years.

Instead, he'll play state tournaments, like the Bell, Showdown, which has a skins game format.

"That'll be fun. I've never played that before."

Of course, he'd never played the Bear before, either.

Schoolcraft coach adds size to lineup

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Gone are four starters from a team that finished 18-7 last season. Those losses, combined with the ever-increasing amount of time necessary to put a contender on the floor, tempted Schoolcraft College women's basketball coach Jack Grenan to make the 1989-90 campaign his last.

"I seriously thought about giving it up," Grenan said. "But with the kids we have coming in, well, that perked me up."

There's no doubting the rebuilding job facing the Lady Ocelots, what with the graduation of center Barb Krug, power forward Lisa DePlanche and guards Tracy Osborne and Ann Hardy.

All four received offers from four-year schools to continue playing, but only Hardy accepted; she'll attend Park College in Parkville, Mo.

Osborne and DePlanche opted not to continue playing, although DePlanche will return to SC as an assistant coach.

Krug, a Plymouth Salem grad who stands 6 feet 3, had offers from Montana State and University of Detroit, as well as several smaller schools.

She turned them down, saying she wouldn't play. She has since changed her mind; she plans to attend Eastern Michigan and walk-on.

"EVERYONE WHO'S played for me and graduated has had a chance to go on and play at a four-year school," Grenan said.

Does that help his recruiting efforts much? "The parents are certainly impressed by it," he replied.

"We'll have four people 6-foot or taller. So we've got the size, we should have a tremendous bench and we'll have people who can run."

— Jack Grenan
SC cage coach

basketball

There's no doubting the rebuilding job facing the Lady Ocelots, what with the graduation of center Barb Krug, power forward Lisa DePlanche and guards Tracy Osborne and Ann Hardy.

With the deep losses suffered by the Lady Ocelots, Grenan's recruiting ability has been tested. He believes he has passed that test, with high grades.

"We'll be quicker than last year." But with the loss of Krug and DePlanche, both tough rebounders, won't the Lady Ocelots be hurting under the boards?

Grenan doesn't think so. "We'll have four people 6-foot or taller. So we've got the size, we should have a tremendous bench and we'll have people who can run."

Sounds promising. Certainly sounds like enough to keep SC among the Eastern Conference leaders, where it has resided throughout Grenan's six-year stint as coach.

OF THE eight newcomers joining the squad, three have captured Grenan's attention: Donna Gall, a 5-6 guard from Warren Woods; Jennifer Gunther, a 6-1 center from Sterling Heights Stevenson; and Nicole Dapprich, a 6-foot forward from Dearborn Edsel Ford.

"Gall has been awfully impressive," the SC coach said. "Gunther has as much raw talent as anyone I've had come in. And Dapprich has the best basics of those coming in — she can play."

On the boards, Grenan figured Gunther and Dapprich would make the biggest impact.

"Jennifer (Gunther) is more physical and hungrier. But they know if they don't rebound, they're going to sit."

That's because he has also signed Katie Balogh, a 5-10 forward from Allen Park Cabrini. And the returnees include 6-1½ Tricia Lucas, who has dropped volleyball to devote full time to basketball, and 6-1 Ashli Winters.

THERE WILL also be plenty of competition at guard, where the Lady Ocelots were weakest last season, and at shooting forward.

Tressa Farkas contributed valuable minutes off the bench at guard last season, and Mo Merritt — winner of the Mike Essig Award (named after a Plymouth youth who had cancer and died in December 1988) — filled in ably at both guard and forward.

Laurel Haener, a 5-9 guard-forward, will be counted on for perimeter offense; she started to blossom late last season.

"She's an outside shooter we can count on."

Gall helps improve the backcourt, where the Lady Ocelots lacked a true point guard last season.

So will sophomore Leeann Lightfoot, a 5-7 transfer from Oakland CC; Stacie Smith, 5-8 from Waterford; Julie Sawicki, 5-6 from Edsel Ford; and Jennifer McGee, 5-3 from L'Anse au Loup. Lightfoot and Smith can also play small forward.

Grenan's recruiting isn't over, either. A few more could be signed before this fall.

All told, if his recruits can match his optimism — and Grenan's past record suggests such a possibility is strong — then another successful season is on the horizon for SC.

Area's best rise to top

Pats, GC, Canton lead talented group

By Brad Emmons
staff writer

THE 1990 edition of the All-Area girls softball team wields plenty of artillery in its arsenal.

The amount of weapons stockpiled leads to an impressive inventory. Nearly all the players selected by The Observer sports staff for this year's squad come from winning programs and were the keys to their team's success.

State Class A runner-up Livonia Franklin placed two on the first team, along with district and Northwest Suburban League champion Garden City, and also Plymouth Canton, district and Western Division champs (of the Western Lakes Activities Association).

Franklin's Joe Epstein was named Observerland Coach of the Year for the second time, leading the Patriots all the way to the final game of the Class A tourney before losing 3-0 to Jensen.

Sporting a seven-year career record of 138-54, Epstein-coached clubs have played for the state championship three of the past six years. (His 1986 team won the Class A crown.)

This season, Franklin finished second behind Canton with a 7-3 in the WLAA's Western Division, but caught fire in the tournament, winning six straight games to wind up 19-7 overall.

Here is a closer look at the All-Area squad.

FIRST TEAM

Jenny Mayle, pitcher, Liv. Franklin: The right-hander finished 19-8 overall with more than 150 innings pitched with an earned run average just under 1.00. The All-Western Lakes Activities Association pick racked up 141 strikeouts.

The junior hurled four no-hitters and a pair of one-hitters, as she led Franklin all the way to the state Class A title game.

"She kept us in every single game," said Franklin coach Joe Epstein. "It was a matter of us getting runs in order to have an opportunity to win."

"Her control of her pitches gained tremendous improvement from the previous year. She never walked more than two per game."

"Next year we hope to develop one more pitch, and she'll be better than ever."

Kelly Holmes, pitcher, Ply. Canton: Just a freshman, Holmes finished with a 14-2 record and an ERA under 0.80.

In 117 innings she fanned 174 batters and allowed just 58 runs (43 of which were unearned).

She also pitched in Canton's 21-inning loss to Belleville in the regional semifinals, where she fanned 22 batters.

"Just a super girl who is only going to get better," said Canton's outgoing coach Dave Racer. "For a freshman she showed a lot of poise. She's also a very good athlete for her age."

Stacey Thompson, catcher, Ply. Canton: The senior did it all for the Chiefs, who finished 24-3 in 1990.

Thompson batted .549 with 39 hits in 71 trips to the plate. She scored 31 runs, knocked in 21 and homered three times to go along with 24 stolen bases.

The All-WLAA pick caught the majority of the time, but was also a solid pitcher, finishing with a 10-1 record and 0.88 earned run average in 72 innings.

"She was our only starter back from last year, but just a super gal to build a team around," said Racer. "Stacey is a hard worker with a great attitude. She was one of our leaders, especially on the field. She set the tone for our other girls."

A first-team All-Area basketball player, Thompson is likely headed for the University of Pennsylvania.

Karen Olack, catcher, Westland Glenn: Olack broke nearly every Glenn offensive school record this season with a .534 batting mark (47 for 88).

The sophomore All-WLAA selection knocked in 35 runs and had 20 extra base hits — nine doubles, six triples and five homers.

"I remember what a good hitter Denise Tackett was for Plymouth Salem and Karen is a similar mold for Glenn," said Rockets' coach Linda Jimenez. "We've never had a hitter like that at Glenn. There's never been anybody hit like that for a long time."

Olack was also a standout defensively, possessing a strong arm. She recorded 25 assists, an impressive number for a catcher.

Krista Campeau, infielder, Liv. Ladywood: The senior, headed for Wayne State on a softball scholarship, played shortstop for the Blazers.

Campeau was voted team MVP, All-Catholic League, All-Central Division, All-

District, All-Region and first team (Class A) All-State by the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association.

In Central Division play, Campeau hit .412 and batted .319 overall (36 for 113). She led the Blazers with eight doubles and scored 16 runs.

Defensively, her fielding average was .936.

"Excellent range with a strong arm," said Ladywood coach Kim Linenger. "Krista was our team leader and co-captain."

Campeau has been selected to play in the MHSAA All-Star Game Saturday, Aug. 4, in Lansing (Ranney Park).

Carolyn Shanks, infielder, Garden City: The junior shortstop was fleet of foot, setting school records for stolen bases (33) and runs scored (50).

"She adds a new dimension to your team," said Garden City coach Barry Patterson. "She can manufacture runs, a real competitor, and an outstanding defensive shortstop... just great range, a good hitter with excellent speed."

Shanks was an All-Northwest Suburban League, All-District and second-team All-Region choice.

She batted .342 (39 for 114) with 28 RBI and 26 walks in 37 games.

Karen Brown, outfielder, Liv. Franklin: The senior center fielder, headed for Henry Ford Community College next season, batted .449 (31 for 69) with 15 RBI and 23 runs scored.

"She was our best offensive player," said Epstein. "Karen definitely has power, a pull hitter, but she worked on going the other way. She also had good speed, beating out four to five infield hits. She's strong and fast."

Brown, an All-WLAA choice this season, did not make an error this season for the Patriots.

"Defensively she's very good," Epstein said. "She's got an accurate arm."

Brown has also been selected to play in the Michigan High School All-Star Game on Aug. 4 in Lansing.

Kathleen Berrigan, outfielder, Farm. Mercy: The sophomore was a left-handed slap hitter who sported an on-base percentage of 78.

Berrigan paced the Marlins with 28 stolen bases and 29 runs scored. She batted .526.

"She's lightning fast," said Mercy coach Suzanne Brown. "She was our leadoff hitter, a natural right-hander who moved to the left side to take advantage of her speed."

Berrigan made only three errors en route this spring to a .951 fielding percentage.

"She played center field, but covered a lot of left and right, too," said Brown. "And she's got an accurate arm. I'm happy she's on my team."

Berrigan made All-Catholic League, All-District and All-Region.

Vikki Seamons, outfielder, N. Farmington: Seamons is one of the big reasons why North enjoyed one of its most successful seasons in years.

Although she did not play softball her sophomore or junior year because of knee surgery, Seamons made up for lost time her senior season, batting .482 overall in the cleanup spot. Five of her 23 hits were doubles. She also scored 15 runs and knocked in 14.

The left fielder sported a .909 average defensively.

"You've got a gem right there," said North coach Dave Brubaker. "Not only because she's a good athlete, but she's a heck of a student. She's in choir and orchestra. You name it, she does it. She has lots of talent, and it's just not in softball."

Seamons was the recipient of the Ralder Cup, voted North's top female athlete. She also made All-Conference in the WLAA.

Tracy Thompson, at-large, Garden City: The junior pitcher/infielder was GC's most valuable performer this spring.

She figured prominently in the Cougars' 31-6 campaign, going 13-3 as a pitcher while batting .336.

In 110 innings, Thompson allowed just earned 11 runs (for a school record ERA of 0.70), while striking out 105 and walking only 15. She gave up 49 hits.

Offensively, Thompson collected 37 hits in 110 official at-bats with six doubles, three triples and one homer. She scored 38 runs and knocked in 30.

"She not only pitched, but was also one of our top offensive players," Patterson said. "One of our most important players."

Carrie Cassinski, at-large, W.L. Central: The sophomore, although short in stature, loomed big this season in the WLAA, leading Walled Lake Central to the Lakes Division title and an upset crossover win over highly touted Plymouth

Tracy Thompson Garden City, Carrie Cassinski W.L. Central, Joe Epstein Coach of the Year

Canton in conference championship.

As a pitcher, Cassinski posted a 14-4 record with 82 strikeouts and only 27 walks in 123 innings of work. She gave up 32 hits and 35 earned runs for an ERA of 1.99.

Offensively, Cassinski batted .400 with 24 hits in 60 at-bats. She collected 21 singles, a pair of doubles and one triple.

She was named All-WLAA (at-large) and was honorable mention All-District and All-County.

12 alternatives to lashing out at your kid.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out—STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult . . .
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
12. Write for prevention information: National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, Box 2866L, Chicago, IL 60690.

Stop using words that hurt. Start using words that help.

Higgins lifts Mustangs

The Mustangs won their Connie Mack League baseball showdown Thursday, defeating the previously unbeaten Langlois Cardinals, 12-0, at Livonia's Ford Field.

Both teams are 8-1 in league action.

Mike Higgins, who faced just 22 batters, was the winning pitcher, tossing a two-hitter. He struck out seven and did not walk a batter.

Scott Marinkovich doubled twice and knocked in two runs for the winners.

In the first game of a double-header Thursday, the Mustangs turned back Ann Arbor, 6-3, as Higgins and Marinkovich each collected two hits.

Steve McCool (winning pitcher) and Craig Overattis (save) combined on a five-hitter.

Earlier in the week, the Mustangs turned a triple play in an 11-1 triumph over Dearborn Aday at Henry Ford Community College.

baseball

Marinkovich and Higgins each collected two hits, while Tad Dennis was the winning pitcher.

On Tuesday, Concealed won back-to-back games at Capitol Park, beating Livonia 4-0 in the first and Westland II in the second, 5-1.

Jeff Pendell pitched a two-hitter against Livonia, striking out four and three walks. Joe Brusseau and Paul Pirronello had three hits and one RBI apiece. Brusseau's hits included a double and a triple.

Chris Schmid also pitched a complete game in the nightcap, allowing six hits and walking six. He struck out five.

Kevin Young and Shannon Degan were 2-for-3 with a double and one RBI.

Hackers try new approach

MIKE CLARK recently shot a score of 215. Unfortunately, for Clark he was not bowling.

This was his golf score at the fifth annual, "Hack Open," which was held at Fox Hills in Plymouth Township. Now, I admit to not knowing all that much about golf, but I would compare that score for 18 holes to a bowling score of about 14 in 10 frames. A very strange game, golf.

The object is to get the lowest possible score and they don't even have ball returns. You have to chase after the ball.

Golfers have something else called "out of bounds." The bowlers took care of that a long time ago when they invented gutters. Seems to me that golfers have to hit a ball — that is 1.68 inches in diameter and weighs 1.62 ounces — and get it to go into a tiny hole 4.25 inches in diameter and sometimes several hundred yards away.

There are really few similarities between the two sports, except that the distance on a lane from foul line to the headpin is 60-feet, 6-inches, coincidentally the average distance that the disgruntled golfer can throw the club. Perhaps the main difference when the two sports are compared is that no bowler ever has to holler "fore," as there is very little chance of hitting a fellow player with your bowling ball.

10-pin alley

In order to find out more about the game of golf, I found a book on the subject, entitled, "The Official Duffers Rules of Golf," by John Noble. I found out a lot of interesting things about the game. Golfers can do a thing called a "Gimme." This is where the putt is so easy, it is just assumed that it would not be missed. I would like to try that next time I go bowling and have to just knock down an "easy" 10-pin.

Some of the other duffer's definitions: Sand trap — the duffers play pen; out-of-bounds — a rude comment made by an opponent; addressing the ball — anytime a duffer makes a poor shot, he will address the ball using all sorts of bad language; bad lie — when a duffer says he has a nine handicap, he is telling them a bad lie; tee off — the attitude of a golfer who has just been knocked unconscious by a duffer's drive; woods — clubs that the duffer cannot use and the name of the place the duffer goes to look for his drives.

The golfers also have another item called a "Mulligan." This would be a terrific thing to incorporate in bowling. I would like to submit this to A.B.C. rules committee. If you make a really bad shot, it was by some accident, beyond your control, you call it a "Mulligan." It doesn't count, just take the shot over.

Now, I hope I haven't offended any true-blue golfing enthusiasts. We still have common ground as the end of the game brings the similar meeting of the competitors in the lounge. A few refreshments are dispensed along with the bragging rights of the victors that are inter-mixed with the great social atmosphere which results from the playing of our wonderful game, whether it is bowling or golfing.

The Greater Detroit Bowling Association and the Detroit Women's Bowling Association jointly held their installation of officers and awards banquet last week at the Polish Century Club in Detroit.

After everyone feasted on the kielbasa and pork chops and the gavel was turned over to both incoming presidents of the respective groups. Dorothy Thompson of the DWBA and Douglas Swords of the Michigan group of the GDBA were sworn in as the new presidents by the Hon. Richard Maher, judge of the Michigan court of appeals.

The new second vice president of GDBA is Gene Cielinski of Livonia Bowlers. From the O & E area receiving awards were Bob Chamberlain, of Auburn Hills for "Bowler Man of the Year," and 1990 Masters Champion. Classic team champions were the "Warren Stampers" with captain Frank Pietras of Farmington, John King of Livonia, Joseph Ference of Redford, along with George Barnes and Wesley DePalme. The doubles handicap champions are Robert Myers of Rochester Hills along with Mark Larson from Clawson. The all-events handicap champ was also Robert Myers. John Pettit of Birmingham and Jon Reed of Redford made the all-city second team. The DWBA first all-city team was led by Dawn DeVitis of Livonia, the team captain, and Lori Craig of Westland. Kathy Halalip of West Bloomfield made the second team and she also was selected to the "Queen's Court," along with Mary Mohacs of Livonia. In order to make the all-city teams, a bowler must accumulate "points." These points are based on the high averages, with over 200 being worth some extra points; 300, 299, and 298 games along with any 600 series bowled are more points. There are tournament standings also to add up.

DeVitis wound up sixth recently at the Ladies Midwest Regional pro tour stop in Chicago where she rolled back-to-back 289 games.

The Michigan Junior Masters Association held the fourth annual Scholarship and Championship Tournament at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park last month. Among the scholarship winners were Dave Capaldi, of Westland ($800); Rob McDonald, Farmington Hills ($350); and Ryan Lovelace, Canton ($300). In the girls' competition, Tamika Glenn of Farmington Hills took $300 in scholarship money.

The next tournament for the Rolling Rebels will be the fourth annual Clash Tournament, which will pit the 30 best boys and girls from MJMA against the JTBA's (Ohio) top 30 on Saturday and Sunday, July 14 and 15 at the Plum Hollow Lanes in Southfield. Qualifying rounds for the 60 bowlers begin at noon on the 14th. The Ohioans lead the series, 2-1, and it should be an interesting weekend as the Michiganders will try to even the score.

Bill Padgett of Dearborn practices proper arm movement during the day-long fly casting class at the Huntman Hunt Club in Metamora.

Fishing on the fly

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Fly fishing can be a relaxing, enjoyable recreational activity. Not much can compare with the contentment of standing streamside on a summer's morning, listening to the forest awaken around you while working a hand-tied fly through the swift current.

The exhilaration of battling a feisty trout only enhances the experience to the ultimate level.

But without a basic understanding of the fly fishing technique, that relaxation and exhilaration can quickly turn into a mess of tangled anguish.

The Riverbend Sportshop Inc. in Southfield offers daylong beginner fly casting classes which provide a solid introduction into one of America's fastest growing recreational activities.

"We want the students to feel comfortable with the sport," said Jim Toohy, the innovative 28-year-old owner of the Riverbend Sport Shop Inc. and one of the instructors of the class. "We want to make the sport enjoyable and remove the complexity of casting. Our real focus is to get people who are uncomfortable with casting, comfortable. Casting is the first big hurdle for fly fishermen."

Toohy, Wally Dabrowski, Brandon Vaughn and Bill McKee — all members of Trout Unlimited — have been teaching the classes for three years. The classes consist of 12 students and three teachers, which enables every student to receive ample one-on-one guidance. Close to 200 students have already been through the course.

"We get more professional people than anything, but we get people from all walks of life," Toohy said. "From top executives to Joe Schmo off the street who just wants to get into fly fishing, we get them all."

THE CLASSES cost $90 per person and include all the necessary equipment, lunch and refreshments. They're conducted on a country trout pond at the Huntman Hunt Club in Metamora, about 20 miles north of Pontiac.

The morning session begins with a short talk and introduction to the sport. The class then moves outside to begin dry casting in a field next to the trout pond. Rods, reels and fly line is provided for the dry casting session, but for safety sake, no hooks.

Teachers work closely with the students instructing them on proper arm movement, fly rod position and different casting techniques.

After breaking for a hot lunch — provided by the Huntsman — students receive hands-on instruction on basic fly fishing knots. Presentation of bait, fish habits and tips on reading the water are also discussed briefly — enough so that students have a basic understanding of the overall sport, but not enough to boggle their minds with details.

The class then returns to the pond where students have the opportunity to try several different fly rods to see which one feels and reacts best for that individual.

WITH THE proper rod in hand, students resume dry casting and receive some advanced technique instruction on such things as shooting line, roll casting off the water and casting into a heavy breeze.

As the afternoon draws to a close, students begin to get a handle on the technique. Students are then allowed to "wet a line" and use their newly acquired fly fishing technique to catch any of the stocked brown trout lurking in the pond.

Joe Scaglione, a Nexus distributor from Southfield, was a student

Finding the bugs in the art of tying

By Pat Schutte
staff writer

When guys like Mike Friesland, John Maki and Jim Toohy go fishing, they bring things like ants, gnats, beetles and maybe a handful of mosquitoes. They may even bring a bumble bee or two.

These guys are hardcore, bringing bugs with them and all. You'd think, though, that there's plenty of pesky bugs in this great state of ours anyway. But bringing them with you? Come on. And a "bumble bee or two," these guys must mean business.

Fishing is their business. The bugs that they bring they make from a little hook, a little thread, a couple feathers and a lot of practice. They can create anything from a cricket or a woolly bug to a frog or a mouse, all with remarkable "fish foolin'" accuracy.

"I started fly tying when I was 13 and by the time I was 15 I was tying professionally," said Toohy, 28, owner of Riverbend Sport Shop in Southfield. "It takes me about five minutes to tie a fly."

Like Riverbend, Friesland Outfitters in Keego Harbor has a very tight, personable relationship with their customers. Owner Mike Friesland has a table set up on the middle of his small shop where fly fishermen (beginners to experts) can sit down, grab a cup of coffee, and discuss everything from tying techniques to "the one that got away."

MOVING PICTURES

Elliott Hopper (Bill Cosby) shies away from his girlfriend Joan (Denise Nichols), fearing she will find out he's a ghost in "Ghost Dad."

'Die Harder' has style

The heroes of Hollywood westerns always fire their six-guns 93 times without re-loading and such high-style, super-heros are the secret of Bruce Willis' successful reappearance as Lt. John McClane, LAPD, in "Die Hard 2: Die Harder" (B+, R, 105 minutes).

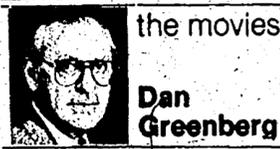

Instead of a building, this time terrorists have kidnapped Dulles International Airport in the nation's capital in order to save a Central-American dictator from American imprisonment for drug-trafficking. If they don't get their man and an escape-plane, they'll allow all the planes circling the airport in a snow-storm to crash.

Lt. McClane's major motivation to single-handedly wipe out 30 or 40 heavily armed, well-trained terrorists: Mrs. McClane (Bonnie Bedelia) is a passenger on one of those planes. Although the film is excessively violent, two features save "Die Hard 2" from the disgusting qualities characteristic of "Total Recall" and "Robocop 2" — currently successful but unpleasantly bloodthirsty films.

First, "Die Hard 2" has a lot of style and a sharply attractive tone. It doesn't linger on the gore and rub the audience's nose in the blood as many films do these days. Quick pacing and Bruce Willis' snappy delivery keep things moving.

Second, and most important, Willis' valiant deeds, through wildly exaggerated, remain faintly plausible. Hence, as with any larger-than-life, very attractive screen hero, the audience is swept away by fast-moving events and almost believes what they see. Everyone associates with such courage and accomplishment and wants to believe in the possibilities of these miracles. That they are miracles takes the edge off some of the violence.

THIS IS NOT a recommendation to take the kids for "Die Hard 2," despite its attractive qualities, is very violent. It opens Wednesday, July 4, with fireworks appropriate to that date.

Grading the movies

A+	Top marks - sure to please
A	Close behind - excellent
A-	Still in running for top honors
B+	Pretty good stuff, not perfect

B-	Good but notable deficiencies
C+	Just a cut above average
C	Mediocre

D+	The very best of the poor stuff

TV sitcoms don't translate very well to the movie screen and "Ghost Dad" (C, PG, 100 minutes) is a case in point. Despite the Bill Cosby magic, this example of spirits lingering in the world to set matters right, falls flat on its apparition.

Elliott Hopper (Cosby) is about to complete a major merger-deal for his company when a bizarre and very funny cable (Raynor Scheine) literally drives Hopper into the next world via a bridge crash. Naturally, Hopper's spirit — partially visible in this world — sets about completing his business affairs in order to ensure his children's financial security.

"Ghost Dad" never focuses on the intricacies of that plot and relies too heavily on Mr. Cosby's personal appeal and wry, humorous attitude about life. That personal approach may work for the interruptive, low-key television experience but film patrons rightfully expect more on the big screen.

Among other problems, it's pretty hard to believe that Cosby had toiled for 14 years in such a responsible position yet receiving company life insurance for the first time was dependent upon completing this deal.

That's an awfully complex plot situation merely to support such Cosby-style humor as a ghost having a medical exam. As a matter of fact it doesn't work and, as with much of "Ghost Dad," Cosby mugs a lot but delivers little humor — never enough to make this anything more than a half-hour TV sitcom blown way out of proportion.

"DAYS OF THUNDER" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes) — made by many of the "Top Gun" people — will seem vaguely familiar as it does for racers what "Top Gun" did for jet-fighters. The elements of that successful film — the super-hero conquering a machine and himself as well as a lovely, educated woman — should ensure good box office.

Fortunately, "Days of Thunder" has many of "Top Gun's" best elements including Tom Cruise as Cole Trickle, the race-car driver who won't quit. Cruise is absolutely in control of his talent and character in a performance rich in nuance. His evolution from an insecure hot-head to a centered man is deliberately subtle. In the end he is racing for the love of it and not for the illusion of control.

The action in "Days of Thunder" is compact and tense. It glamorizes the NASCAR circuit by showing the best part of racing, that of the insider in condensed-versions of races. Robert Duvall is a dead-on as Harry Hogg, the good-ole-boy, chief mechanic who first built the car and then builds a first-rate driver. With sizzling chemistry, sparkling acting and thundering action, "Days of Thunder" is sure to take the checkered flag at the box office this summer.

STILL PLAYING:

"The Adventures of Milo and Otis" (G). A curious litten (Milo) and its puppy friend (Otis) embark on numerous live-action adventures. Narrated by Dudley Moore.

"Another 48 Hrs." (C, R, 90 minutes). Murky plot and lots of violence but by-and-large this Nolte-Murphy reunion is unsatisfying.

"Back to the Future Part III" (A, PG, 105 minutes). This time Doc and Marty are back to the past in an extremely entertaining adventure in the old west.

"Bird on a Wire" (A-, PG-13, 105 minutes).

Mel Gibson and Goldie Hawn on thrilling cross-country search for nasty character trying to murder Gibson.

"Cadillac Man" (B-, R, 94 minutes). Slow start detracts from Robin Williams fine, comic performance as Cadillac salesman under pressure.

"Camille Claudel" (R). Oscar-nominated (best actress and foreign film) story of Auguste Rodin's mistress, a sculptress in her own right.

"Cinema Paradiso" (A-, 120 minutes). Excellent story of Alfredo (Philippe Noiret), the projectionist in a small Sicilian town just after World War II.

"The Cook, The Thief, His Wife & Her Lover"

A very black comedy that is unrated for good reason.

"Dick Tracy" (A-, PG, 105 minutes). Just the right mix of "slam-bang-pow!" cartoon characters, '30s nostalgia and warm human relationships.

"Driving Miss Daisy" (A) (PG) 100 minutes.

Fine acting highlights personal drama of Jewish widow (Jessica Tandy) chauffeured by a black man (Morgan Freeman) set against southern chauvinism from 1948-1973.

"Ernest Goes to Jail" (C, PG).

Because someone stole his identity.

An effective drama on AIDS

By John Monaghan
special writer

"Longtime Companion" begins with a devastating bomb being dropped on the gay community. On a sunny summer morning in 1981, a small article in The New York Times reported the first outbreak of a mysterious cancer that appeared to be preying on homosexuals.

For a group of friends in New York City, the announcement is remembered with the same chilling clarity as the Kennedy assassination or the bombing of Pearl Harbor.

"It's a plot cooked up by the CIA to scare us into not having sex," quips Sean, a catty TV soap opera writer, over beers at a Fire Island resort. Ironically, he will be among the first to die.

A SUBTLE, effective drama, "Longtime Companion" drops in on these friends one day a year through 1989 to personalize the AIDS tragedy. Each goes through fear, denial and finally acceptance of the disease.

Shocked by the loss of another friend, Willy, whose odyssey we're set up to relate to, grows increasingly paranoid. While visiting Sean in the hospital, he frantically scrubs his hands, mouth and face after a casual peck-on-the-cheek greeting. Eventually, he will join other friends as AIDS activists.

Only occasionally does "Longtime Companion" fall into the melodramatic trappings of a disease-of-the-week TV movie. The slow-paced, often painful, scenes unreal much like a play, not surprising since playwright Craig Lucas and director Norman Rene (whose "Prelude to a Kiss" has been playing to sold-out houses on Broadway) collaborated on the film.

They derived the title "Longtime Companion" from the term used by newspaper obituaries to describe a surviving homosexual lover.

BRUCE DAVISON, who starred as the fat-loving "Willard" in 1971, highlights the excellent ensemble cast as David, the self-sacrificing lover who fulfills Sean's request to die at home. Campbell Scott (son of George C. and Colleen Dewhurst) plays Willy.

Several actors turned down roles in the film, fearing — as happens to one character, a soap opera star — that they would be typecast as "light."

Studios which turned down funding and distribution for "Longtime Companions" are now regretting their decisions, since the film, which plays here at the Maple Theatre, has gained a wide crossover audience.

For those wondering what happened to Natassia Kinski ("Tess," "Paris, Texas" and "Cat People"), the answer is on the video racks. Kinski has been cranking out bad video pics.

One of them, "Magdalene" appeared for home video distribution June 28 and another one, "Tori- rents of Spring," is threatened for Aug. 8.

In the title role of "Magdalene" (1988, PG, 89 minutes), Kinski is a young bar girl in the German town of Oberndorf shortly after the Napoleonic Wars ended in 1815.

At the age 12, she was raped by Baron von Seidel (David Warner) who had promised her dying mother that he would take care of the young Magdalene. Yes, Virginia, there's an obvious, cornball play on her name.

The revolutionary bandit, Janza (Franco Nero) also is in love with Magdalene. And she really is something that the new young priest in town, Father Joseph Mohr (Steve

The House of Love has often been compared favorably to the likes of Echo and the Bunnymen, the Cure and Lloyd Cole. The group stands on its own, though, on its self-titled LP on PolyGram Records.

Lush sounds found in House of Love

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In The House of Love the doors lead to a roomful of confidence.

Singer and guitarist Guy Chadwick isn't shy about making bold statements concerning his band, which opens for Peter Murphy on Sunday, July 8, at Clubland. Chadwick predicts million-selling albums and The House of Love becoming "the biggest band of the '90s." He sounds serious, too.

"I think we're capable of it," said Chadwick in a telephone interview from London, England. "I know we're capable of it."

Or is he? "It's just that there's so many things you cannot determine or control. It's something I said I don't care about, really."

In the past, Chadwick has admitted he's not so self-assured. Some of his boldness not to be confused with being cocky or arrogant, which Chadwick is not) could be a facade for insecurity.

WHICH MAKES the band's major label debut "The House of Love" (PolyGram) all the more endearing. The House of Love's music has been compared favorably to the blushing guitar sounds of the Cure, the Smiths, Echo and the Bunnymen and Lloyd Cole among others.

Comparisons are an affliction of many guitar bands, which for the most part stand on their own but get lumped into categories nonetheless. The next R.E.M.-or-U2 syndrome is the most common.

In the House of Love's case, such associations are undeniable. Yet the band's music has a lyrical richness to it that lets it stand alone on the mantle.

Besides, comparisons don't bother Chadwick.

"I've always thought of us as a brilliant rock band rather than us being a band working within a format that other groups have worked," Chadwick said. "Besides being original in what we do, which is big guitars, bass drums, etcetera, etcetera, people just seem to like it."

In their home of England, the House of Love has enjoyed sweeping success as overnight pop stars. The band has been featured on the covers of Melody Maker and New Musical Express on several occasions, the latest one in March chronicled the band's first U.S. tour.

America is another story. The House of Love's first LP in 1988 was only available on import here but garnered a small audience on college/alternative radio.

THE GROUP'S second LP caused some strife within. Original studio sessions were scrapped and guitarist Terry Bickers left The House of Love. With new guitarist Simon Walker, the band started over and produced an LP they were pleased with.

Among the standout cuts is "Beatles & the Stones," which might be mistakenly considered a tribute to music of the '60s. Actually, the number was written by Chadwick five years ago before The House of Love.

Instead of lauding the groups of those times, the song details Chadwick's problems with the music business. He admits his lyrics can be vague at times.

"They are on a superficial level," he said. "It depends how much you're into the music."

The House of Love opens for Peter Murphy on Sunday, July 8, at Clubland, 2111 Woodward, Detroit. Tickets are $17.50 in advance. For information, call 99-MUSIC.

REVIEWS

GOO — Sonic Youth

Something is frightening on Sonic Youth's latest release "Goo" (David Geffen Company). On the second cut on side two, there is actually a number with guit, hooks.

Of course, under cross-examination with bright lights focused on their eyes, the members of Sonic Youth would deny this. But the evidence is irrefutable in the song "Disappearance."

Rest assure, though, Sonic Youthites: This is the closest the New York neo guitar band ever gets to a sellout on this Sonic Youth's first album on David Geffen Records.

Otherwise, "Goo" is marked by crunching, guttural guitar sound reshaped by pop images — all the true Sonic Youth hallmarks.

This is SY's major label debut after years underground on independent labels. According to the press notes, the band only agreed to sign with David Geffen Co. on the guarantee of creative control.

The band goes to great lengths to prove it hasn't relinquished any of its avant-garde might. For example, the number "Mildred Pierce" breaks up mid-song into a series of primal screams and screeches. "Scooter and Jinx" features the dual buzz of guitarists Thurston Moore and Lee Ranaldo as they duplicate the sound of the Indy 500.

OK, OK, we're convinced. But the guitar blur of "Dirty Boots" and Kim Gordon's deadpan vocals on "Kool Thing" and "Tunic (Song for Karen)" provide the most intriguing moments on this album.

One positive effect big record company money apparently had on the band is they were granted more time in the studio. Numbers are more focused and refined as a result.

If one has never listened to the sound assault of Sonic Youth, "Goo" is a nice place to start.

EVERY BRILLIANT EYE — Died Pretty

Died Pretty is yet another band from the land down under. After making it big (as an indie band, at least) in their native Australia, they are trying to tap in to the big bucks market of America. In 1989, they put out an album called "Lost," which no one seemed to pay much attention to, so, now they're making their second attempt with "Every Brilliant Eye."

The title comes from Yeats — "The death of friends, or the death of every brilliant eye that made a catch in the breath" — so we know right away that these guys can read.

The album kicks off with an obligatory rocker, "Sight Unseen." This is an unfortunate choice because it is easily the worst song on the album — one that could turn off a casual listener. But, fear not, the album improves. Once their stab at a hit single is out of the way, the band can settle into making the sort of music that they want.

What Died Pretty is best at is doing songs that start off quietly and slowly then build into cathartic choruses. "The Underbelly," for example, starts off with a single guitar and lead singer, Ronald Peaso's vocalls are almost a whisper. Then, when the song suddenly swings into full force, it is a release. Then for the verse, they swing back into the quiet vocals and single guitar mode.

They are able to put a sort of building passion into their songs by playing with the intensity levels. Their quiet playing becomes a build-up for the inevitable moment when the song will break into cacophonous sound.

Peaso has a deep, soulful voice which, at times, sounds a bit like a country and western singer's (how he picked up a southern accent in Australia, we'll never know). He is equally gifted at belting out full-fledged rockers like "Prayer."

All in all, "Every Brilliant Eye" is a spotty effort. When Died Pretty is good, they are very, very good and when they are bad, they just sound like a generic Everyband.

PET SOUNDS — Beach Boys

What becomes a legend most?

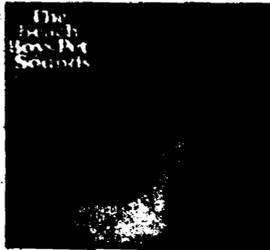

For the CD release of "Pet Sounds," the legendary 1966 Beach Boys album, Capitol Records has pulled out all the stops — the booklet contains copious song-by-song annotation, session notes, color publicity photos, black and white recording session shots, and includes essays by songwriter Brian Wilson as well as by Beach Boys historian David Leaf.

The album also includes three unreleased tracks, though only one "Hang On To Your Ego," amounts to much.

Clearly, Capitol didn't want to drop the ball, as British affiliate EMI did with its hurriedly released Beatles CDs a few years back.

But even in an unadorned state, Pet Sounds remains one of the true classics of 1960s rock.

Its highlights, "God Only Knows," "Wouldn't It Be Nice" and the haunting "Caroline No" represent the high-water mark of the Beach Boys musical artistry. It also marked the beginning of their end as a major commercial force. Wilson's songwriting was becoming increasingly personal and complex, alienating many fans and, history suggests, not a few of his fellow band members as well.

Though a hit, "Pet Sounds" was one of the group's poorest selling albums. But if fans were put off, fellow musicians were awestruck. Paul McCartney, at least initially, believed the album a masterpiece unobtainable by even the Beatles themselves.

On CD, the songs show signs of age (not surprising since they're nearly a quarter-century old) though the group's vocals are generally clear. But is booming on some tracks, and may require adjusting on your home stereo, perhaps because they're in mono — the way Wilson initially recorded and mixed them.

FEAR & LOAFING

Slug it out

In a moment, I'm going to ask you to sing a short but picturesque phrase to the tune of "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire."

Perform it correctly, and you will hear the first step in turning an outdated, irrelevant holiday classic into a cutting edge, socially aware animal rights theme song.

Ready? Here we go: "Slug tracks glistening in the morning sun..."

While certain noble animals like humpback whales and spotted owls have large groups of concerned activists worried about their safety, one somewhat less inspiring creature is virtually ignored by ecology buffs.

Of course, I'm talking about the gastropod mollusk, better known by suburbanites as the "slug," by city dwellers as the "poorman's escargot" and by personal injury attorneys as "the moving banana peel."

Interestingly, slugs haven't always been in such low regard. Today, to "slug" someone means to "punch" them. But in the Middle Ages, it meant to present them with a handful of slugs as a gift. No one's quite sure how the word slug became linked with bullets, but it probably dates back to the 1607 "War of the Squeamish," where two armies of sissies fired slugs and table scraps at each other.

In America, the slug is particularly despised by gardeners because it eats their vegetables during the cool dark hours. Even worse, the slugs crawl around on your garden tools, leaving a clear mucous trail which causes the sharp implements to slip out of your hand and penetrate your foot.

INDEED, MUCH OF prejudice against this animal comes from their mode of locomotion. Afraid, or perhaps unable, to ride even the tiniest of motorcycles, slugs move about on a single muscular foot over a mucous trail, secreted by an organ called the "Ghostbuster" gland.

Trained as we are to abhor even a small amount of mucous dripping from someone's nose, most of us react negatively to seeing an entire driveway full of it. Ironically, it was while wiping my sidewalk with a Kleenex that I discovered something terrible and cruel was being done to these innocent snails.

Karl Nilsson

One morning, I noticed their normally graceful trails appeared erratic and confused. Some zig-zagged. Some twisted in crazy corkscrew patterns. Worst of all, some trails led off the pavement into collision courses with trees, road signs and pedestrians.

For weeks, I was puzzled by the carnage. Then, while thumbing through a garden catalog, I found the cause — slug bars. These slugs were sliming under the influence!

The mail order ad read, "New, plastic slug bar. Simply fill with BEER and be rid of the nasty pests. Top is hinged for easy filling."

Apparently, somebody in the neighborhood is deliberately setting out slug bars — treating the snails to a little free brewski in an effort to save their cabbage crop. Trouble is, slugs are not just social drinkers. They get totally blown away, put on some zydeco music and dance until their antennae droop. And since they're not smart enough to arrange designated drivers, plenty of them are getting hurt on the way home.

TRADITIONALLY, the humane way to get rid of slugs was to shake salt on them and watch them dissolve into a small puddle. Although melting away sounds painful to us, slugs actually prefer this form of death. In fact, the slug equivalent of using Dr. Kevorkian's suicide machine is to voluntarily crawl inside a large order of french fries.

Now, this swift, painless method has been replaced by a slow, lingering death caused by ethanol of the liver. Think about it: If you were trying to discourage someone from having a party at your place, would you set out free drinks?

As word of this new happy hour spreads, slugs are sliding in from all over town to check out the action. Please, before it's too late, help me outlaw slug bars.

And while we're on the subject of slime, let's eliminate singles bars, too.

Life's problems are true dilemmas

Dear Barbara,

I must applaud your response to "C.T.," you obviously understood my point of view quite well. It's unfortunate that C.T. missed it entirely.

I hold no malice toward overweight people, whether it's by medical predisposition or by choice, for that matter. What I do object to is people or government that would attempt to limit my personal rights without hesitation simply by providing a label of "bad" to those rights.

I, therefore, will earnestly defend C.T.'s right to be heavy and expect her to defend my choices of personal behavior, assuming, of course, my choices hurt no one else. I do not smoke my cigars in areas that ban smoking. If asked politely, I will cease, even in areas that allow smoking.

On the other hand, I notice that C.T. doesn't believe the government can utilize her taxes properly or set them at reasonable levels. She is more than willing to believe the same government doing "studies," however.

The point is that our society is attempting to pick a point on a continuum that is shades of gray and call it black or white. We would all agree that crime is at one end. But how far down that line the law begins to cross over into personal choice is not the same for all of us.

C.T. says we shouldn't laugh at conditions beyond the control of the individual. Others would choose what things we can read or see on TV. I say we are wasting time, money and energy on issues that have no value while ignoring the critical ones, like good government, the environment, etc.

By the way, I don't always drive at 55 miles per hour, but I haven't had an accident or ticket in more than 20 years. Having driven in six or seven states, no one drives like Detroiters! The Indy 500 is safer and slower, so going 55 miles per hour here would be suicide.

Barbara Schiff

I have many valid and thought provoking ideas.

To reinforce what you have said, many of life's problems are true dilemmas. That is, there are not answers to them. This situation often holds in the controversy between individual and group rights. At which point on the continuum the individual should have to give away to the group, or vice versa, changes according to the situation.

There is always a compromise that must be made based on the relative merits of each side in that specific case.

Japanese culture teaches that compromises based on the greater good are more honorable choices. They have built a wealthy and successful society based on that premise. But even though it has worked for them, it is not a model Americans would be comfortable with.

Americans are not as willing to give up their freedoms for the greater good. It is not that either position is incorrect, but that each position is culturally oriented.

calling "extra-curricular activities" — trying to convey their message through all artistic mediums. Their dabblings in video earned them a spot on Detroit's Barden Cable, some of them are involved with dance, and they recently worked on a radio spot for the Michigan Lottery.

In addition to all of this, all four have managed to wedge in getting an education. Howell is in electronics, Julien is in business and marketing, singer Kaff studied computers and keyboard player Richard Parris has studied medicine.

WHICH IS not to say that their music has suffered. Quite the contrary.

"All of us here played in reggae bands in Detroit," said Julien. "Universal Spectrum started because we thought that there should be more variety than just reggae."

And variety they've got. Universal Spectrum describe themselves as a "neo-world beat band." This means that, in addition to reggae, they play calypso, zouk, soca, salsa and R&B.

"What makes us so diverse is that we grew up (in the Caribbean) listening to Motown, Steely Dan, Eric Clapton..." said Julien. "We heard more Motown on the radio than Caribbean music," added Parris.

All this diversity adds up to some exciting mixtures of songs and sounds from around the globe. In other words, these four can play a mean, reggaefied medley of Tracy Chapman's "Baby, Can I Hold You Tonight" and "Fast Car" then segue neatly into a jumpin' calypso tune about, of all things, bananas.

In other words, just because Universal Spectrum has a political agenda doesn't mean that their music is lacking in fun.

"Universal Spectrum is up and coming," said Howell. "It's not roots reggae, it's a whole different blend. It's music to make you dance and music to make you sit down and listen."

UNFORTUNATELY, IT'S often tough for the band to find people to listen. They say that there are only a handful of places in the area that feature Caribbean music on a regular basis. Additionally, few radio stations play much Caribbean music.

"The media is reluctant to hear Caribbean music," said Parris. Howell describes media coverage of the Caribbean as "too little, too late." He cites Hurricane Hugo as an example. Although extensive coverage was given to the hurricane's damage in the southern United States, little mention was made of its effect on the islands in the Caribbean.

Although they bring up a very valid point, the members of Universal Spectrum use the problem as an inspiration to work harder. If the media won't notice them now, why they'll just sing better, play harder and dance faster until the media does notice.

Howell puts it: "Give us a chance, we'll make you prance."

Baron) joins the list of enraptured admirers.

Since Father Mohr is a radical — he reads Schiller, has long hair and plays the guitar — the Prior (Gunter Meisner) — an unpleasant, conniving monk who helps the Baron appropriate local property — finds the Mohn/Madalene relationship politically helpful in his attempt to convince the archbishop that Mohr must go.

Meisner's performance is worth watching, the photography is pleasant enough and there's some nice music. In fact, the music includes the writing of "Silent Night," which Father Mohr does when he finally realizes he's a priest with a vow of celibacy and must quit messin' with Madalene.

"SILENT NIGHT" was written by a Father Josef Mohr and a musician, Herr Franz Gruber, and first performed on Christmas Eve, 1818, with a guitar accompaniment because the church organ was broken. Just like in the movie.

"Magdalene" is also historically accurate because Father Mohr (in the video) was rooming with a Herr Gruber (Cyrus Elias) and the conclusion follows the historical record.

No matter how factual the rest of the film may be, for the most part "Magdalene" is a travesty. Whether or not the historical figure, Father Mohr, was dallying with a local girl or not, this video is so poorly edited that it is hard to follow and even harder to swallow.

"Magdalene" becomes surreal as Father Mohr, thrown from a carriage, appears to be hallucinating as he lies recovering in the Baron's castle for the last third of the film. The events following his accident are so poorly linked that they only make sense as a dream sequence.

But, as it turns out, Father Mohr never recovers and leaves the castle — life just continues. What only makes sense as hallucinations turn out to be the story continuing in its normal (hah!) sequence.

"Magdalene" is a really strange film. Might not be too bad if you don't pay attention.

Comedy act comes with strings attached

By Pat Schutte
staff writer

In his 29 years of entertaining Detroit audiences, veteran funnyman/musician Bob Posch has successfully completed the entertainment loop de loop.

The loop began on a 1961 trip from New York to California when Posch ran out of money in Detroit. To survive, he sat on a stool, strummed an acoustic guitar, and sang folk songs at "redneck" bars around the metro Detroit area.

When the '70s rolled into town and guys like Bob Dylan faded out of the picture, Posch began to insert some comedy into his routine. The '80s were pure stand-up schtick for Posch and his longtime friend and straight man John Clonca. It was ha-ha type stuff, Ricklesesque lines with the audience, gorilla suits, anything for a laugh.

Today Posch has come full circle. Sure, he'll still do anything for a laugh, and do it over and over and over at his long-running weekend shows at Duffy's in Union Lake, but he and his partner have also returned to where it all began: combining comedy with music.

other comics years ago, and revived by Posch.

"I'd say that 25-30 percent of my material is original, with the other stuff being material that people are accustomed to... like the gorilla suit joke," said Posch, who is married and has three children. "I've never made any bones about it. A big chunk of my material I don't like doing, but I do it and it gets laughs."

Posch likens the variations between his own comedy, classic routines he's borrowed and the musical end of the show to a situation a football coach may find himself in. But instead of dealing with yardage, Posch and his partner are dealing with a crowd.

"SAY IF BO Schernbecher needs three yards, he's got to have the talent on his team to get it," said Posch.

"For comedians, we've got 1,000 people to deal with, so you have to have to material to get those three yards in laughs. It's all in the delivery."

Posch is like a throwback from the old Vaudeville style entertainers, one that will stop at nothing to deliver a laugh. He even had his publicity photograph blown up to life-sized proportions to show his audience the way to their seats.

And "make no bones about it." The Bob Posch Comedy Show is designed to make you laugh.

The Bob Posch Comedy Show performs Friday and Saturday nights at Duffy's, 8635 Cooley Lake Road, Union Lake. Show times are 9 and 11 p.m. Admission is $7. For more information, call 363-9469.

Bob Posch has gone from singing folk songs in "redneck" bars to being a stand-up comedian. Today, he combines comedy and humor in one of Detroit's longest running comedy acts.

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!

Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer® asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

Anglers tackle art of fly tying

"A SHOP LIKE this is for serious fly fisherman and people who want to be serious about the sport," said Freeland who is more than willing to lend what he's learned about tying flies over the last 25 years. "People just beginning in the sport can learn a great deal by just sitting down at and talking with some serious fly fishermen."

A bunch of guys sitting around, drinking coffee, and shooting the bull on the finer art of fly tying? Aren't they forgetting something... like the ladies?

"Women... Absolutely," Toohey said. "The sport takes you to a lot of nice places where you're not just hanging a worm out of a boat. You're actually interacting with nature."

Fly tiers are constantly reading and absorbing every detail around a trout stream. Whether it's the color change in the leaves, the certain active period of a specific bug, water temperature and levels, or streambed conditions, you could say that their tuned into W-T-R-O-U-T.

"I take a little aquarium net to capture the flies and a 15-centimeter metric ruler to measure them," Freeland said. "If you're off by one millimeter on a four-millimeter fly, chances are the fish won't hit it."

SOME FLY TIERS even go as far as to bring a portable vice that they can stick into a tree stump, their tying equipment, and tie up flies right on the bank of the stream. But most fly fisherman just come pre-

'I started fly tying when I was 13 and by the time I was 15 I was tying professionally. It takes me about five minutes to tie a fly.'

— Jim Toohey
owner,
Riverbend Sport Shop

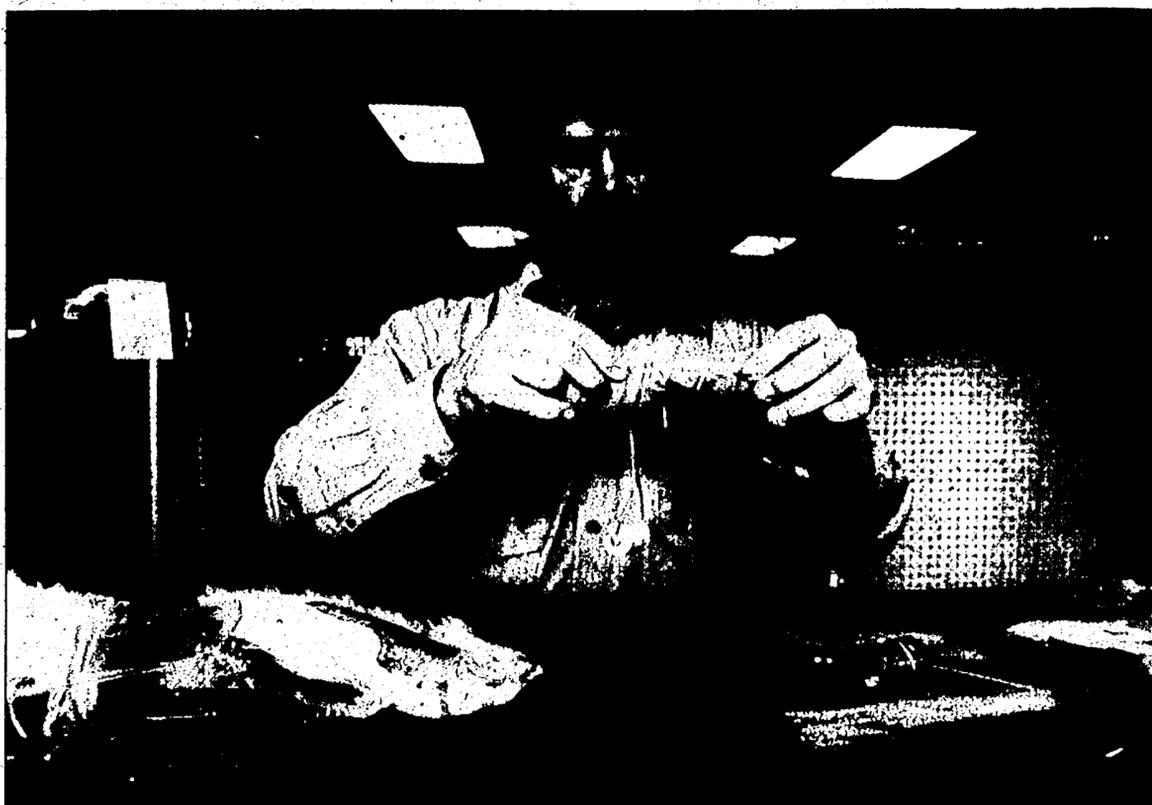

pared — really prepared.

"I just bring enough flies to stock a large fly shop," said John Maki, who works at Freeland Outfitters.

To purchase a fly in a shop runs between $1.25 to $3. On the average, Maki said, a fly fisherman loses "a couple dozen" flies during a long day of fishing.

Tying your own flies can reduce the rates, but only after you've purchased the equipment needed to get started. Prices range from $50 to $70 to get started with basic tying equipment and materials will run from $150 to $200 for a year's worth of tying. That's base prices. The high end runs into the thousands of dollars.

The rod and reel set up can cost as much as a Yugo, yet reasonable prices for quality start-up equipment can be found. Synthetic materials, such as fiberglass and graphite, give new fly fishermen a relatively inexpensive alternative to the classic (and very expensive) bamboo pole.

Mike Freeland, owner of Freeland Outfitters in Keego Harbor, adds a tuft of a buck's tail fur to a "Lefty's-Deceiver" fly he is making.

Some of the more notable fly fishermen in the area include the Detroit Tigers pitcher Jack Morris, Glen Hanlon of the Red Wings, and Larry Cory, three-time Michigan trout stamp award winner.

COMPARED TO just "Gone Fishin'," fly fishing remains an "elite" division of the sport. And of the fly fishermen, the art of tying is even more rare.

"I'd have to say that when 10 people get involved in tying for the first time, four drop out fairly soon," said Freeland. "Of the remaining six, usually half of those will stick with it for some time, roughly 30 percent of the original 10."

Sometimes experienced fly tiers will work on a fly for hours, creating an elaborate bug that looks like something you'd see on the side of an old man's hat.

"Some flies require so much attention that it actually reduces daily stress," said Freeland. "You're so focused that you forget everything else."

Flies like these rarely hit the water. They're sold and collected as art.

"A fly like that can sell for several hundred dollars," said Toohey.

But it's the little flies, the ones that look so natural, that put the fish in the frying pan, or in most cases, bring the fish up to within reach of the fly fisherman so he can set it free.

"You never forget your first fish caught on your own imitation," Freeland said of the first brown trout he caught on his first attempt at fly tying. "Your fishing success is directly affected with your progress in tying ability."

The tools of tying

By Pat Schutte
staff writer

In five minutes of spinning, salping, attaching, spinning, snipping and gluing, a professional fly tier can create an intricate work of art not much bigger than a fingernail.

The flies they tie are exact right down to the last appendage and minute eyeball.

The tools of their trade look like a cross between what a pygmy's dentist and what a model ship builder may use.

Like an anvil to a blacksmith, the foundation for the fly tier would have to be his vice. And if it's a Lilliputian-type fly he's tying, he may attach a magnifying glass and high-intensity light to the vice.

From there, they use a bobbin to hold the thread, tiny "hackle" (named for the neck feathers on a gamecock) pliers, itty-bitty scissors, tweezers and a comb.

The hook is first. It provides the substructure for the fly. Hooks used in fly tying are very similar to a small hook you may have attached a worm to at one time or another. One rule exists — the smaller the hook, the smaller the insect the tier is trying to imitate.

A SPECIAL thread, not just ordinary "sew a button on thread," but a waxed thread is next used to create the main body of the fly. Other thread-like materials, such as tinsel, flosses and wires are added to give the fly added attraction characteristics.

Then, to many of the flies, feathers are added. The most common types of feathers used include Marabou from a turkey, peacock (the eye part) and hackle.

The feathers give the fly attractive colors and add structure to it. Furs like impala hair, mountain goat and mink tail, are also used with the feathers in the same capacity.

An interesting note about the natural materials used in tying flies is that they all come from birds and animals specifically raised for fly fishing materials. And some of the feathers, normally white ones, are dyed in acid dyes to create the bright pink and chartreuse tones not usually found in nature.

There are two classic fly types used in fly fishing, mainly for trout and salmon. The dry fly, or floating fly, which most likely is imitating a may fly or caddis fly, is tied on a light wire hook.

The other fly type is known as a wet fly, or sinking fly. This fly is meant to imitate the larva stage of an insect, and is tied on a heavier wire hook.

Other types of flies are used to imitate things like bait fish (long blue and silver feathers) for pike and frogs for bass.

The tools of the trade for a fly tier is a vice to hold the hook, a bobbin to hold the thread, the fur from a buck's tail, feathers and tinsel to add attraction characteristics.

The techniques of fly fishing at a recent class. Scaglione admits he's not a fisherman, but was invited to go fishing in Alaska with 12 other Nexus distributors. While looking for equipment, he found out about the class and enrolled.

"I couldn't believe what a sophisticated sport fly fishing is," Scaglione said. "It's not anything like when dad took us fishing with a hook and a bobber and you waited all day for the fish to bite."

Scaglione also admitted he "really didn't know what to expect from this class" and "wasn't thrilled about taking it."

"But Wally (Dabrowski) and Jim (Toohey) have given me a lot of insight on what it's all about," he said. "I would recommend, to anyone who wants to have a little fun, to look into fly fishing.

"I HAD NO idea it would be this much fun. Now I can't wait for a bite."

Dick Ward, an attorney from West Bloomfield, has been a fisherman all his life, but just recently got interested in fly fishing.

"My son is a fishing guide in Florida," Ward explained. "He's mastered fly fishing and I haven't. I'm trying to keep up with him."

"This was a great introduction class. I feel I am coming away from here more than just a beginner. I could go out tomorrow and fish. I haven't completely mastered it yet, but I could go fly fishing."

John Padgett, an surgeon from Dearborn, was also at the class along with his son, Bill. Padgett has been a fisherman most of his life and went on a fly fishing trip to Ontario's Sutton Bay last year.

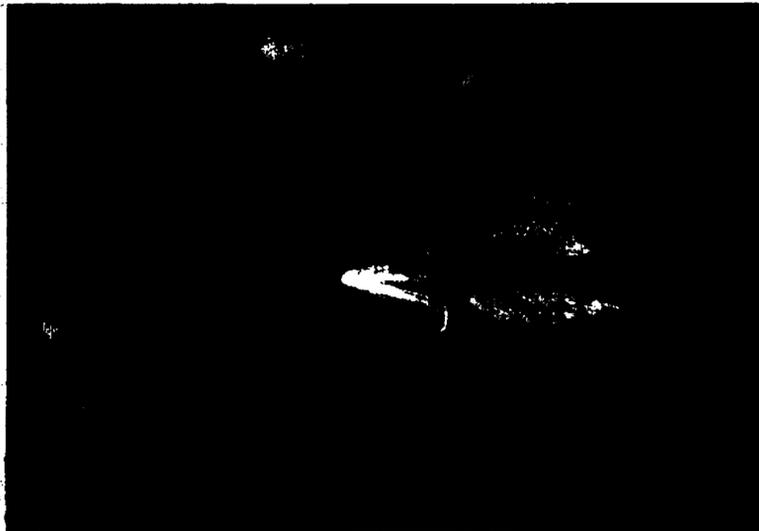

"When we went to Canada I found out I was woefully inadequate," admitted Padgett. "We're going to Alaska next year and I wanted to get a little better. The class has been great and it's exactly what I wanted. The instructors are just great, the place here is great and they have great food."

Upcoming classes are scheduled for July 15 and 22. Advanced classes, which include one-on-one instruction on the stream, are also available. For information, call the Riverbend Sport Shop Inc. at 350-8444.

The art of tying one on

There's a method to the madness of fly tying.

- 1 A fly tier starts by clamping a hook down in a vice.
- 2 The first material added to the hook is the base thread (continuous nylon filament with no twists so it doesn't get lumpy), which is liberally applied along the shaft of the hook.
- 3 Next, the Mylar (tinsel-type material) is applied. Mylar is a flat thread and can use different colors on each side. In this case, gold and silver Mylar is applied.
- 4 A chartreuse dyed buck tail is then tied on to add volume and noise to the lure. Good for pike, bass and muskie, this also allows the lure to be fished at night. ("Bambi lost his twitcher," jokes John Maki.)
- 5 Crinkled translucent fiber with reflective characteristics is added next. Developed for the carpet industry, this material's known as "Crystal Flash." ("Some of this stuff catches fishermen better than fish," said Mike Freeland.)
- 6 The final materials tied on are the peacock feathers, which are put on with an interesting "hand-whip technique" in which the fingers are zipped back and forth in a scissors-like motion. ("This gives the fly a little more contrast and allows it to breathe better in the water," said Freeland.)
- 7 The final step is to coat the tip of the fly with "Head Cement," a polymer-like lacquer applied to car paint. This step holds everything together and adds to the longevity of the fly. Total time to tie this fly: 10 minutes.

Angels dressed in heirlooms

By Linda Sparkman
special writer

PAMELA FORSYTHE, owner of Parsnips and Old Lace, has come up with what she thinks is a great combination.

The mix of a few of her favorite activities, combined with her creative talents, has resulted in a profitable business and a unique way of preserving heirlooms. All the while, she is having a lot of fun.

"My goal was to do something at home using a talent that I have and be able to stay home with my children while helping to support them," said Forsythe, a Franklin resident. That was in October 1987, when she designed and sold her first angel doll.

Today more than a dozen shops carry her products. She sold more than 400 items last year and spent about 10 hours per week producing them.

Now, she's hoping to be able to "live on this," she said.

"Ten hours a week isn't very much time. If business gets big enough, maybe I'll hire somebody," Forsythe said. "The fun part for me is shopping and designing the dresses. If I could sit here, take out all the pieces, put them in a pile, hand them to somebody and say 'sew it,' I'd love it."

Forsythe has been sewing and doing "all kinds of crafts" since she was in fourth grade and her mother taught her to sew.

"Any time a new craft came out, I had to try it," she said.

HER FIRST ATTEMPT to sell any of her crafts came in 1987, when she took a faceless angel doll, which she'd designed and made completely of antique linen, to the Village Barn in Franklin. The sale was made and Parsnips and Old Lace was born.

Forsythe, a self-proclaimed "garage sale nut," had been passing up second-hand heirloom linen because she couldn't think of a way to use the fabrics and justify her indulgence. But when she spotted a faceless Amish angel doll made of muslin at a craft fair, she thought, "Why don't I make this type of doll, but put all old materials in it?"

Back to the garage sales she went, but this time with a reason to buy the fabrics. She took the fabrics home and laundered, starched and pressed them. Then she cut pieces for her first — and still her favorite — item, a white linen, quilted-winged angel doll.

The faceless, cloth-bodied doll is still Forsythe's primary item, but she has added colorfully dressed dolls. Christmas ornaments, treetop angels and throw pillows are also included in her line of nine collectibles. They range in price from $12 to $80.

"Each one is made unique by using different linen and hair made of antique laces," said Forsythe.

Forsythe encourages customers to special-order items using their own fabrics.

"It's a lovely way to display treasured family heirlooms, rather than have them sit in a drawer," she said. The tag on her crafts puts it this way: "There is a great wealth of beautiful needlework that our mothers and grandmothers lovingly stitched to decorate their linens and clothing. In tribute to this vanishing art form, I use these fabrics and laces as much as possible in my handcrafts."

ALTHOUGH THE PRODUCTS are usually sold as collectible items, shopkeepers have sold angel dolls for thank-you gifts as well.

"It's a good gift for someone who's been an angel to you," Forsythe said.

Forsythe has enjoyed the reception her exclusive designs have received. One exciting event came when a woman, planning to open a shop in Brazil, showed up to see the merchandise and bought all the dolls in Forsythe's home at the time.

Of the many tasks the business requires, Forsythe found only one a "chore." That was making the doll bodies. She found it too repetitive, but solved the problem when a friend recommended a doll maker. Now Phyllis Granger of Royal Oak makes the plain doll bodies from material Forsythe provides.

One nice thing Forsythe has found is that she can include her two young sons in the home-based business.

"I love to have them help me," she said. She hired David, 8, to fold and punch holes in product tags. Her 4-year-old son, Scott, "just likes to come up in the room with me and make his own things," Forsythe said. None of Scott's creations have made their way to store shelves yet, but friends and relatives are enjoying them, his mom said.

Forsythe was born in New Jersey and has lived in Franklin for five years. She is a graduate of Gettysburg College in Pennsylvania and has worked as a research lab assistant, a real estate saleswoman and at the Doll Hospital and Toy Soldier Shop in Berkeley, where she picked up tips on making doll clothes and dressing dolls.

Parsnips and Old Lace products can be found at, or special-ordered from, The Village Barn, 32760 Franklin Road, Franklin; Carousel Gallery, 91 W. Long Lake, Bloomfield Hills; and Folkway Trading Co., 844 Penniman, Plymouth.

Ideaphoria hit you lately?

Q: Lately I find myself forgetting things a lot. It scares me and it's embarrassing not to be able to remember where I put things or to remember things I need to do. I'm afraid this might get even worse when I get older. What can I do to help myself remember things?

A: There are many physical and emotional conditions that affect memory. If you haven't had a good physical exam recently, I would suggest that as a place to start.

If you are physically healthy, focus on what is going on in your life right now that is stressful or if there has been a loss. When stress is in your life, your thoughts and feelings may be so preoccupied with dealing with that particular stressor you are not paying attention to other things around you.

If you are going through a period of transition (career-wise or in marital status, for example) it would not be unusual to go through a temporary period of absent-mindedness.

WHEN PEOPLE are tired or hungry, it's more difficult to concentrate. You might increase your self-awareness in terms of whether your forgetfulness is more prominent at such times or if other factors contribute to it.

Loneliness also begets forgetfulness, in the sense that when people are lonely they tend to daydream more. In such cases the person may tell you very vividly about something that happened many years ago, yet not be able to remember where he or she put his or her glasses five minutes ago.

You may just have too many things on your mind and experience overload. People can hold only so much information in their short-term memory at a time. This capacity differs from person to person, and even for the same person at different times of the day, the month and their lives.

AT TIMES when you feel frustrated about your poor memory skills, instead of judging, criticizing or putting yourself down, ask yourself, "What do I need right now?" The answer may be food, sleep, companionship, more time to do things or organizing

a good physical checkup.

In addition to the foregoing, the aptitude called ideaphoria may distract you. Ideaphoria is the rapid flow of thoughts and ideas through the brain.

If you have that aptitude, it could mean you are easily distracted by multitudes of thoughts that continually flash through your mind. When you are consumed with "great ideas" it's more difficult to concentrate on the mundane — such as where you put something or what you need to do.

To help avert more forgetfulness as you age, exercise your mind every day by reading, writing, playing thought-provoking games or doing other activities that encourage you to think.

Van Cliburn winner to perform

Guest conductor Zdenek Macal joins the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and Russian pianist Alexei Sultanov, winner of the 1989 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, at 8 p.m. Thursday and Sunday at Meadow Brook.

Sultanov will perform Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1 with the Orchestra. The program will include Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3 and Strauss's Suite from "Der Rosenkavalier." The concert, part of the 1990 Chrysler Concert Series at the Meadow Brook Music Festival, will be held at Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University Campus, Rochester.

Macal, music director of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra since 1986, is principal conductor of Chicago's Grant Park Symphony and artistic adviser to the San Antonio Symphony.

Sultanov won the Gold Medal at the Eighth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, where, at age 19, he was the youngest competitor in a field of 38 pianists representing 19 countries.

His performances at the Van Cliburn Competition were recorded and released on the Teldec label and his new Teldec recording of concertos by Tchaikovsky and Rachmaninoff was released last spring.

Since winning the competition he has toured the United States and made his debut with many orchestras, including the DSO.

Where would Her Majesty live in Birmingham? At Buckingham, naturally.
 She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals. She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

Until recycling becomes a viable alternative for construction materials, the builder's best option is to reuse and reduce waste.

Who decides on boat wells?

Our association documents provide for the assignment of boat wells to individual units. The association is now taking the position that it has a right to transfer the boat wells from one unit to another without the co-owner's approval for "convenience purposes." Can they do that?

It all depends on the condominium documents. More than likely your documents, if established after July 1, 1978, allow for the assignment of boat wells which are limited common elements by a co-owner upon the recording of the appropriate amendment to the master deed. Normally, the association does not have the right to reassign boat wells unless they are general common elements and that right is expressly reserved in the condominium documents. If your boat well is a limited common element appurtenant to your unit, only you have the right to assign it, assuming that right is not prohibited under the condominium documents.

We have a problem with our management company interacting with our CPA. There is some bad blood between the two, and the management company refuses to meet with the CPA to go over certain financial details. It has gotten so bad that the management company will not even go to the CPA's office for any association meetings or to assist in the audit. What do you recommend that we do?

It is imperative that the managing agent cooperate, to the extent necessary, with the other consultants or experts retained by the association to help discharge the responsibilities of the association as directed by the board. The fact that the management agent may have a personal problem with the CPA does not give the management agent any excuse not to cooperate or attend meetings where necessary, unless the management agent does not have a legal obligation to do so, as specifically mandated in the management agreement. While it may be that the association would have to pay the additional costs incurred by the management agent in performing these activities, depending upon the terms of the agreement, to me it seems totally unreasonable for the management company to refuse to cooperate and even more ridiculous for the board of directors not to insist that the management company discharge its professional and legal responsibilities. If the management company isn't willing to go on the road, the board should tell the management company to "hit the road."

Waste not, want not: Builders eye recycling

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Recycling of building site materials lags behind other parts of the solid waste stream, but there may be hope as the opportunities for such recycling become more readily available.

Until then, it's up to the building industry to cut back on its waste and reuse whatever scraps remain.

Builder Association of Southeast Michigan (BASM) executive vice president Irving Yackness said builders are aware of a need for recycling, but they don't have the opportunities.

Building materials like scrap wood, wall board, scrap metal, poly/polyvinyl chloride (PVC) and metal piping, paints and chemicals don't generally fall in the same categories as the common recyclables.

Loch McCabe, an economist and program analyst with consulting firm Resource Recycling Systems Inc. of Ann Arbor, recently told a gathering of BASM members that there are few options for the builder who wants to be environmentally friendly.

While communities and the private sector offer alternatives to the private citizen — glass, some plastics and paper recycling is becoming common — builders' options are limited, McCabe said.

BUILDERS CAN still recycle paper, plastic and glass resulting from office work, but until recycling becomes a viable alternative for construction materials, the builder's best option is to reuse and reduce waste.

"If you throw out something you've paid for, you're wasting money right there," McCabe said.

Dave Denske, president of Canton Waste Recycling Inc., is the first to offer recycling services to the builders in this area. "We're experimenting with it, and it's something we're looking forward to."

The increase of waste disposal costs, he said, is the very reason that recycling is becoming a reality, Denske said.

Canton Waste Recycling is accepting only waste lumber, which is ground up into wood chips and distributed as mulch.

Denske is experimenting with concrete and scrap metal recycling on a smaller scale with township residents, but is not offering it as a commercial service yet.

Dry wall and PVC piping present a different problem. "I've talked to people about it, but I haven't been able to find anyone to take it yet. We can't recycle anything we can't get rid of," he said.

"It can be very profitable to recycle waste materials instead of throwing them out, but we need to have someone to get rid of it," Denske said. "Everything has a value once it's separated."

DENSKE SPECULATED that recycling will create a great many jobs and bolster the economy as more companies create products from recycled materials.

Cindy Burgess, Public Administration Research Group in Plymouth, a consulting firm, said recycling, reusing and reducing waste are not enough. If alternatives to the throw-away society are to work, builders and everyone else must "complete the loop."

A growing willingness to recycle and be responsible for waste, while admirable, must be complemented by consumer demand for products made from recycled materials.

"You're not doing any good if you're not buying (products made from recycled materials)," Burgess said.

Burgess said the main obstacle to recycling has always been a lack of interest. It was always cheaper and more convenient to throw out than recycle and so public and private interests have not been galvanized toward a market based on recycling.

"My feeling is it hasn't been sexy enough — but now it's hitting in the pocket book," she said.

There are already some recycled building products available. The Office of Waste Reduction Services, according to spokesman Bill Kesling has obtained and is distributing copies of the Recycled Products Guide, a publication listing manufacturers of products made from recycled materials, Kesling said.
