Family awaits news of area Marine in gulf

U.S. Marine Sgt. Thomas Adis couldn't tell his mother he was shipping out for Saudi Arabia.

"I talked to him at midnight the 24th (of August) and he sounded really sort of like down," Joan Adis said, adding that her son wasn't allowed to reveal his embarkation time. "I said I'll call you at five in the morning and (when I did) he was gone."

The 1985 Wayne Memorial High School graduate was aboard the U.S.S. Raleigh, bound for the Saudi desert. "Tom told us (when he called last) that it's not the love boat," Joan said.

Tom joined the Marines in 1987. His mother said he plans to get out after his four-year contract expires next year. "One year to go and that stupid situation over there (happens)," she said. "I hope he doesn't sign up again. We're a pretty close family and I think he likes that."

The family came closer together eight years ago when daughter Theresa died of leukemia, leaving two sisters and two brothers behind. Yet Joan said she may have cried more when her son left for the Middle East.

She didn't want him to join the Marines to start with. "I just always played it down," she said, telling younger son Christopher, "Before I know it you'll be graduating and joining (the Marines too)." Chris, however, went to college.

School trustee reports to Army

Before Aug. 27, Joe Laura lived in a house on Banbury, went to work every day at Ford Motor Co., and served twice a month as a trustee on the Livonia Board of Education.

When his work day ended, the 40-year-old product planner for Ford came home to wife Gwens and two young children.

Today, Lt. Col. Joseph Laura, U.S. Army Reserves, sleeps in a World War II-type barracks, eats in a mess hall and oversees an Army base in Wisconsin, close to the Minnesota border.

LAURA, AN inspector general of the 5084th Garrison in Romulus, is one of thousands of reserves called up across America by President Bush because of the Iraq invasion of Kuwait.

"I left military life as a 27-year-old and now I've come back as a 40-year-old," said Laura, a Livonia school board of education member,

Teacher channels love of music to classroom, radio

By Leonard Pogor

Westland's Trudy Bradley has managed to combine her twin loves of children and classical music.

During the day, Bradley injects classical music into her third grade class at Field Elementary School in the Plymouth-Canton school system.

Saturday nights, she turns to her other "labor of love" as host of "An Evening Serenade" on radio station WQRS-FM, the area's only all-classical music station which is also celebrating its 30th anniversary this year.

During the school day, Bradley integrates music into her reading, history and geography lessons.

For example, in the time allocated for biographies, she will select one about a composer. From there, she ties it in with the time and place the composer lived to cover the history and geography points.

A former vocal music teacher, Bradley gets an excellent reaction

"The kids really got turned on to Bach when there was the observance of the 300th anniversary of his birth in 1985," she said.

"The children are also fascinated about hearing the same music played by different instruments, especially the guitar."

When she switches gears on Saturday nights and drives to the radio station's Southfield studio, Bradley announces the classical selections, provides information about them and their composers, reads news and delivers weather information.

She called the combination of full-time and part-time work a "labor of love."

Her interest in classical music was no accident, Bradley said.

"My parents met while playing in the First Methodist Church of Ann Arbor Orchestra," she said.

"My mother (Louise Bradley) was a cellist in several community orchestras and gave private lessons. "My first memories of music was listening to my mother in orchestra rehearsals. I can recall friends coming to our home to play. Many times I fell asleep to the sound of a string quartet."

Later, during the weekly "family fun night" on Sundays, family members usually picked a musical activity.

Her mother, now 84, is the oldest musician in the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Besides her vocal music talents, Bradley can also play piano, which she started playing at the age of 5, cello, for which lessons began at the age of 9, English horn, oboe and organ.

An animal lover, Bradley said classical music from WQRS-FM (105.1 on your dial) also soothes Butterscotch, her pet dog.

"While in the car, Butterscotch likes mostly violin music and that settles him down," Bradley said.

Westland Mayor Robert J. Thomas wants to send people with too many things in their yard to court.

Following up on a campaign pledge to get tough on blight and ordinance violations, Thomas has told building inspector Mike Cullity to gradually increase the number of tickets he writes.

City attorney Charles Bokos has been told not to bargain with people cited for ordinance violations, but send them to court.

"There will be less warnings issued and more tickets," Thomas said. "There are going to be more court appearance tickets."

Thomas and Bokos said that while the new rules apply to all ordinance violations, their number-one target is blight.

"That's what we're really kind of concentrating on," Thomas said. "It's mostly junk and debris around the house."

"Some people use their backyards as junkyards," Bokos said.

The mayor said that written warnings will probably still be more numerous than tickets, "but it may become as much as a 50-50 split."

In the past, Thomas said, the city might rip up a ticket when a person began to clean his or her yard. Then the person often didn't finish the job, and the process would begin again. "A lot of it is the repeat offenders," Thomas said.

'That's what we're really kind of concentrating on. It's mostly junk and debris around the house.'

— Mayor Robert Thomas

Under the new policy, the tickets won't be ripped up even if the person cleans up the whole mess. "While their compliance is welcome, they're still going to get that ticket," Bokos said.

However, depending on how many more tickets Westland officials write, the 16th District Court judges could find their dockets crowded with ordinance violation cases.

"The question arises how many more tickets are they going to write?" said Dave Wlasek, court administrator. "Depending on the number they write, it could be a backlog."

"I sympathize with them," Thomas said. "(But) that's one of the mandates (the voters) gave me. If (court officials) have a problem, I'm willing to work with them."

Camp named principal of Stevenson

By Ralph R. Echlinaw staff writer

Stevenson Junior High School has a new principal. The Wayne-Westland Board of Education Monday confirmed the appointment of William Camp, formerly an assistant principal at Wayne Memorial High School. The vacancy was created when Dennis Connolly was promoted to principal of John Glenn High School Aug. 27.

CAMP BEGAN his career in Wayne-Westland as a John Glenn science teacher in 1972. He became a Wayne-Memorial assistant principal in 1984.

"Those of you who know Bill are familiar with his work ethic," Superintendent Dennis O'Neill said in recommending the appointment to the school board. "He is an early arriver at work and you have seen him at late night activities."

Board president Mathew McCusker and secretary Kathleen Chorbಾಗಿ also praised Camp.

"To say that Mr. Camp is a taskmaster is an understatement," McCusker said.

TO FILL the assistant principal position at WMHS, the board appointed Neil Thomas, a Franklin Junior High School assistant principal for the last two years.

Thomas began teaching in the Cherry Hill schools, later teaching physical education in Wayne-Westland elementary schools.

"Mr. Thomas was most successful at Franklin and not anxious to move; but, also interested in a high school administrative experience," O'Neill said. "He is a people person, has an excellent work ethic and is well-respected by everyone."

Trustee Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek thinks Thomas hasn't reached his highest mountain yet.

"One day he'll have his own school," she said.

TO REPLACE Thomas at Franklin, the school board appointed Gary Green, formerly a Marshall Junior High School teacher.

"Mr. Green is very personable and has a great rapport with young people," O'Neill said.

Green is also a local product, having graduated from Wayne Memorial High School in the 1950s.

Trustee Sharon Scott, who went to school with Green, praised his appointment and said, "This one graduated with me."

Trustee Andrew Spisak retorted, "He doesn't look that old."

contact with Tom since he left. They received a first letter from him Saturday, written the day after the Raleigh got under way.

Tom's girlfriend was surprised when she received flowers on her birthday earlier this month, "Veronica called me and she said she was just shocked," Joan said. "He must have set it up before he left."

While Joan never paid a great deal of attention to the national news before, she's virtually glued to the TV set these days, looking for her son. "I haven't spotted him yet, but I know (my daughter) Lynn saw him. And she was so excited."

The regular customers at Adis Westland bookstore, Paperbacks and Things, have been donating books for her to send to Tom's ship. "A lot of people have been asking for his address," she said. "I've been sending him all kinds of war books."

Tom only asked them to send him one thing. "He said, 'Send me some beef jerky,'" said his mother.

Since Tom is involved with the military intelligence side of the 2nd

Marine Regiment and not a front-line dog-face soldier per se, his mother didn't think he'd be sent to Saudia Arabia.

Before he left, his mother told him, "I'm so glad you're not a grunt because a lady told me only the grunts go there, and he said, 'When I transferred here (to Camp Lejeune, N.C.) I became a grunt.'" in a telephone interview from Fort McCoy, Wis., where he now serves as post inspector general.

"These are unusual circumstances and I'll make the best of it. I'm committed to serve and I'll come home as soon as I can. But it could also be worse. There are 18-year-old kids, now sitting in the Saudi Arabian desert, looking across the Iraqi border."

Along with others from his garrison, Laura got his orders on Aug. 27 to report to Fort McCoy. When he left his job Aug. 26, Laura knew there were no guarantees he would ever have that particular job again.

"I'm under orders for 90 days but that can be extended another 90 days. But I can't be gone more than 180 days without Congressional approval. Ford is required to have a job for me when I come back of equal salary or grade. But I'll most likely lose the job I had."

IN THE meantime, the Livonia school board, which represents the northern section of Westland, will be minus one trustee.

"Our attorneys advised us we can function as a six-member board," said board president Patricia Sari. "We'll keep Joe advised of what's going on. It's far more disruptive to bring someone in for 30-60 days, to just participate and then leave."

On Monday, the trustees will appoint an interim board secretary to replace Laura, who was recently elected to the post.

Right now Laura, trained in field artillery, has no way of knowing if he'll stay in Wisconsin or wind up overseas. But he is surrounded by soldiers who daily get assigned to the Gulf.

"Two units have already been sent to the Gulf, and two more units are being activated to go. Any mistake can escalate this thing. The President has set the guidelines, Iraq withdrawal from Kuwait, and he's not kidding. I know it can happen, and I have a moral obligation to go."

Laura said his activation has hit hardest on his 10-year-old son Jay. Kamil, 6, he said, is too young to understand what has happened.

His activation also means huge new responsibilities for wife Gwenis, a sixth grade teacher in the Walled Lake School District.

"There's a lot of little things now that she has to do. She has responsibility for everything, besides having to work."

LAURA, A 1973 West Point graduate, now hears of fellow classmates who are serving as battalion commanding officers in Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia.

While on active duty, Laura will receive no salary or benefits from Ford or from his seat on the school board.

School board members are paid $30 a meeting, to a maximum of $1,600 a year, and don't get paid if they don't attend a meeting, Sari said.

"We can only give him moral support," Sari said.

The trustees were a "little taken back" that the crisis in the Gulf could affect someone so close to them, Sari said.

Until he returns, the trustees will be sending Laura information on what transpires at board meetings.

Laura was re-elected to his second term on the school board in June.

He served five years on active duty with the Army and 12 years in the reserves.

Teacher plugs music in classroom, on radio

Bradley knew music would be the focus of her adult life, but didn't know at that time she would be a teacher.

After getting degrees from the University of Michigan and Eastern Michigan University, she started her teaching career as a vocal music instructor in Blissfield, near Adrian.

But she decided two years later to turn to classroom teaching rather than specialize in music.

She was at St. Edith Catholic Church in Livonia before coming to the Fiegel Elementary School in Plymouth where she taught 19 years.

Bradley contacted WQRS eight years ago after hearing the station air a benefit auction for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

At the time there were no openings, but she accepted the programming director's suggestion to attend a broadcasting school to learn how to operate radio studio equipment.

After attending the Specs Howard School of Broadcasting, Bradley returned to the station. There were still no openings, but she volunteered as an intern in the music library, re-filing records and getting out records to be played in the next few days.

It was the spring of 1983 when she made her debut on the air.

Despite her busy schedule involving school, doing school work at home, and hosting the radio program, Bradley has managed over the years to occasionally play her piano, cello, oboe, English horn, and organ, as well as singing in a chamber group and performing the female singing lead of "Hansel and Gretel" and a support singing role in "Once Upon a Mattress."

But her mother who nurtured the love of music for Trudy as a child, doesn't forget to continue an encouraging world.

Mrs. Bradley frequently calls her daughter at the studio during her Saturday night program "so I wouldn't get lonely," the radio host said.

13 local groups win beautification awards

Thirteen Westland community groups and businesses captured 13 awards for maintaining the city's history and beautifying the community.

The awards were announced by the Keep Michigan Beautiful committee, a non-profit organization formed to raise the public's awareness of beautification and historical preservation activities. The awards will be formally presented to representatives of the winning groups at an awards banquet in Lansing Oct. 24.

With 117 entries, Westland won 15 percent of the total amount of awards, the second consecutive year that the city submitted the most entries and received the most awards.

Joseph Benyo, a city spokesman, said the projects honored were for work done last year.

The KMB's top award, the Hall of Fame, will be presented next month to the Westland Historical Commission for its preservation of the city's historical museum, the Collins House, Community Meeting, the Ganong and Chubb Cemeteries, adopt-a-tree program, nature trail, pumpkin contest, preservation of a McDonald's golden arches, and other projects.

On the next level, a large Michigan plaque will be presented at the awards banquet to the Friends of the Nankin Mill, a private organization formed two years ago to preserve and improve the former Nankin Mill, now the Wayne County recreation department's offices.

The Friends group is being cited for its numerous fund-raising events and sponsorship of educational efforts to teach residents of the history of the mill, about 140 years old.

Small Michigan plaques will be presented next month to eight local groups.

THE EIGHT groups are:
 • City of Westland's Cable-TV channel 8 programming covering the historical importance of the Nankin Mill, Westland Historical Museum, and the history of early Nankin Township.

• City of Westland's Community Calendar for 1990, which had a theme of historical photos combined with current photos for the same building. The calendar was used as a teaching tool in local schools.

• Spirit of Westland newspaper, printed by the city's community relations-cable TV department. The paper highlights historical and beautification programs in the city.

• Westland City Council for its annual campaign to encourage residents and businesses to improve their properties and the annual contest for home Christmas decorations.

• Friends of the Helen C. Brown Historical Museum which has an ongoing public awareness program as well as fund-raisers. The award cites the group for its weekly tours of the museum at 857 N. Wayne Road.

• The General Motors/United Auto Workers Job Banks Program which involved laid-off employees William Maloney and Bruce Haddow who volunteered to paint and renovate the interior of the former Rowe House so it can be used as a community meeting facility for local groups.

• The Westland Observer, cited for its general support of environmental issues, such as the adopt-a-tree program, Rouge River cleanup, and numerous historical events.

• The Westland Eagle, honored for its ongoing coverage of environmental and historical projects and activities.

DISTINGUISHED service plaques will be given next month to the Hartel Street Volunteers for its crime watch and neighborhood beautification efforts and Paddy's Pub, which was a deteriorating restaurant and tavern that was modernized by a new owner with substantial landscaping installed along its Wayne Road frontage.

A Distinguished Service certificate will be presented to the city of Westland for its participation in the Rouge River cleanup.

IT WAS picture and history day for Patchin Elementary School students Friday afternoon.

The reason is that principal Donald Massey, who uses the school's 150-year history to boost student pride, wanted a group shot of all the current students to be permanently displayed in the school's lobby.

At present, most of the historical photos in the schools were taken about 90 years ago.

Now, Massey said, the 1990-91 class of 387 students will have its group photo display for permanent display. Hopefully, it will still be in the school for future generations to view, he said.

IT TOOK a lot of organizing and planning to get the kids neatly in rows in front of the school, on Newburgh south of Warren Road.

The entire photo opportunity took about 10 minutes.

Handling the camera responsibilities was Dwight Prieskorn, Patchin's afternoon custodian. His supervisor, head custodian Walter Murzin, held Prieskorn's ladder, on the edge of the curb and just inches from Newburgh traffic.

Massey said Patchin teachers helped a lot in organizing the photo event with parents of morning kindergarteners driving their children back to school for the event.

Also on hand for the historic event was Westland Police Officer Terry Donohue, who was in the school as part of the Drug Abuse Resistance Education program.

Photographer Dwight Prieskorn had one camera with color film and one with black and white film for the group photo. Supporting his ladder is Walter Murzin.

Hanging over the fireplace in Mona Grigg's Westland home is a portrait of her grandparents dating back to the early 1900s.

Grigg's grandmother kept the picture squirreled away in storage for years. "I only got that about five years ago," Grigg said. "She just hated his guts and she didn't want it hanging anywhere."

Robert and Lidia Savela are the basis for two characters in a book Grigg is about to write, "Copper Country," an historical novel about miners in the Upper Peninsula.

Robert, a 15-year-old Finnish immigrant, came to the UP with his father, who died six months after their arrival. Robert went to work in the copper mines of the Keweenaw Peninsula. He never saw his family back in Finland again.

"He's going to be a character in the book and he's going to be a cruel one," Grigg said of the man her grandmother eventually divorced.

A writer since she was 39, the 52-year-old Grigg already has one unpublished novel, "70 Detroit Free Press feature stories and two years of book review columns for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

When she began writing for the Free Press, Grigg "didn't even know what a feature article was. I had nothing in mind and had to come up with something off the top of my head."

Later, when she turned in her first story, exceedingly long at 12 pages, "Poor Cathy O'Gorman took it and cut it way down."

Grigg gave up the Observer & Eccentric book columns when she received a $5,000 grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts to research Copper Country. The money will make it possible for Grigg to travel to her birthplace, the Keweenaw Peninsula, to look up dusty old documents in libraries and interview folks. She hopes to have the first draft done by next September.

Grigg's parents lived in Detroit when she grew up, but made a trip to UP in 1937 because they wanted her to be born there. Throughout her adolescence, Grigg and her family summered in Houghton. "As soon as school was out in the summer, I went up to the copper country and didn't come back until Labor Day," she said. "It was like being in a foreign land because it was so different from living in a city."

While Grigg's first book, "Modern Screen," might be published someday, it's necessarily subordinated to Copper Country. "I don't have the personal commitment to this book as I do to the Copper Country book," she said, "because I'm not related to it."

Copper Country will begin in Russian-occupied Finland in 1899 and follow through to the 1980s. It will focus on a family of Finnish miners in the UP, with particular emphasis on the affects of the 1913 miners' strike and the 1980s mine closings.

Linnea Maki, the central character based on Grigg's grandmother, is 13 when the aging Sarah Bernhardt begins her American tour at the Calumet Theatre in 1911. From that moment, Linnea aspires to be an actress, while brother Reuben, 15 and already working alongside his father in the mines, sees nothing beyond the light at the top of the shafts.

But it is Reuben, gravely injured during the strike and left without work, who eventually heads west to a better life, leaving Linnea behind to raise a widowed miner's family.

Linnea, ever resourceful and over the actress, becomes the town character, given to telling ribald Finnish tales and singing raunchy Finnish songs. The novel will end on her 90th birthday, when a family secret is finally divulged.

"Nobody ever hears about who the miners were and what their lives were like," Grigg said. "Nobody ever wrote from the miners' point of view. It was always the mine owners' point of view."

Considering the research Grigg is doing for Copper Country, she could easily write a non-fiction book on the subject, but feels her point can be more forcefully made in novel form.

"I saw it as a wonderful way to show what actually happened and make those people real," she said. "You could read lots of dry history and maybe not get the same impact. A lot of the things that are going to happen in my book actually happened to people in my family. I may have to write two or three books to get in everything I want to get in."

If you happen to read Copper Country after it's published and it seems derivative, you might have difficulty deciding which author it mimics most.

Schools seek resident input on plan for future

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Instead of "knee-jerk" reactions to the forces that shape and change American society, Livonia school officials want to make sure the district is on the right educational path toward the year 2000 and beyond.

To do so, Superintendent Joseph Marinelli has put together a 53-page plan officially called "strategic planning" and unofficially called the "road map to the future" for the district, which includes the northern section of Westland.

The plan spells out the steps the district will take in the months and years ahead to give the best possible education in an ever-changing world to its students.

"The pace of change is astoundingly dramatic and that compels us to re-examine what we're doing," Marinelli said. "We need to put in place programs and services to meet the needs of students in the '90s and the 21st century."

"Rather than have knee-jerk reactions to changes taking place, it seems like a good idea to see how we fit into the big picture. We want to put together the best possible future for our students."

ONE OF the first steps of the planning process takes place Sept. 17-20, when residents will be randomly selected by school volunteers to take place in a telephone survey.

Through the survey, school officials hope to learn how residents want to see the school system changed.

In October, the district also will have a public hearing to hear from residents not called during the telephone survey.

"We want everyone to have an opportunity to give input. Where this will take us, I don't know."

THE STRATEGIC plan spotlights changes now afoot in American society that most likely will affect the classroom in the years ahead. These changes include:

- A changing family structure.

- A larger number of minority and ethnic families.

- A rapidly changing workplace.

- A larger number of at-risk students.

- A changing global economy, with more economic interdependence.

- An aging population.

- A greater use of technology.

- A greater questioning of today's educational process.

- A greater need for diminishing financial resources.

"Clearly, the challenges to public education will continue to be formidable."

"Some people might ask, 'Why worry about all this?' But we have to. Then we have to ask, 'What should we be doing about this? We have to do the planning first, and then see what impact this has on the financial picture."

ONCE THE district's needs are defined, Marinelli said school officials will then set priorities.

Goals can be phased in over a period of years, he said.

Marinelli expects the goals set by the district will lead to "significant" change in the schools.

But right now, Marinelli said he can't predict what those changes will be.

"We may amend our curriculum. We may change the way we deliver services. We may change how we do business, budget money, make decisions. We may add more technology to the classroom. This will lead to amendments, deletions, additions to the budget."

"We live in an atmosphere of limited resources. We can't do everything. It could mean that we will ask for more revenue from taxpayers."

The board of education will adopt the strategic plan in March. It will affect the district's budget for the first time in the 1991-92 school year.

Goals set because of the strategic plan will be given top priority in putting together each year's budget, Marinelli said.

The district also will give residents a year-end written report, outlining how and if the objectives have been met.

A 17-YEAR-OLD Livonia youth assaulted two Westland police officers 8:46 p.m. Saturday at a home in the 31000 block of Birchwood.

Officers Tom Harris and James Ridener answered a call about a man going crazy and found a 31-year-old Westland man holding down the Livonia youth, who was screaming for the other man to get off him.

When Ridener tried to hold the man down, he was punched in the knee. Harris was hit in his lower leg. The police report indicates the man was drunk. He was treated at Anna's Hospital-Westland Center and arrested for assaulting the two officers. Police held him until he was sober and had posted his bond.

LITTLE CAESARS, A south Wayne Road pizza store, was robbed at 11:12 p.m. Friday by a man who bore no weapon, but simply demanded cash.

The attendant and manager reported the man entered the store and bought a soda. When the cash drawer was open, he said, "Give me all your money in the drawer," according to the police report.

The man repeated his demand three or four times before the attendant gave him the money, about $60 in bills. He then ran out the door. The manager thinks she saw his car drive off, but didn't get a license-plate number.

FOUR SHOTS were fired into a Westland man's car at 1:10 a.m. Saturday in the 30000 block of Hanover. The man told police he heard four shots, then ran outside to find the windows smashed in his 1989 Ford. Police officers recovered one bullet and found four bullet holes in the car's windows. They have no suspects.

A WESTLAND man spanked his neighbor's toddler, at 5:45 p.m. Saturday in the 1100 block of Alvin, the child's father told police.

The 66-year-old man told police the boy, 2½, was rapping on his screen door with a rock and wouldn't stop, so he spanked him. Police noted

"He was tired of the (neighbor's) children coming over to his house and bothering him and his wife," the police report said.

The man told police his neighbor's children had kicked his wife once and thrown things at his new garage. The boy's father, who called police, said he doesn't want to prosecute.

Spending varied widely in commission races

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Kay Beard counted on longtime party and union friends to carry her to victory in the 12th District Wayne County Commission primary — campaign spending reports indicate they didn't let her down.

Beard's campaign fund raised and spent more than $46,000 this year, reports show. Nearly $17,000 was raised and spent in the critical two-week period before the Aug. 7 Democratic Party primary.

Beard, D-Inkster, defeated challengers Terri Reighard Johnson of Westland, Hilliard Hampton Jr. of Inkster and Deborah Miller of Garden City in the primary. She will meet Republican Gerald Cox of Garden City in November.

Spending reports for Reighard Johnson indicate something quietly acknowledged during the campaign — the Westland councilwoman was county Executive Edward McNamara's choice to replace Beard.

Reighard Johnson's report includes a $2,000 contribution from McNamara's Band, the executive's political action committee.

The 12th District includes Westland and Garden City.

CAMPAIGN REPORTS for all commission races, including those in Canton, Redford, Livonia and Plymouth-area districts, were filed with the county clerk's office this week.

If Reighard Johnson was McNamara's choice, Beard was clearly the choice of labor unions and party regulars.

The incumbent received contributions of at least $1,000 from UAW, United Steelworkers and deputies union PACs during the campaign's final two weeks.

Beard also received a $2,000 campaign loan, since repaid, from commission chairman Arthur Blackwell.

Other campaign contributors include a who's who of area Democrats. U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, U.S. Rep. Sander Levin, D-Southfield, sheriff Robert Ficano and Richard Manning, Redford district court judge and former commission chairman, were among Beard's contributors.

Reighard Johnson raised and spent more than $24,000 during the campaign.

Main contributors included executives from Bestway Recycling and Special Waste Systems, both of Detroit. She received $5,250 from executives from both companies.

Bestway and Special Waste Systems were also big contributors to Hampton's campaign. The Inkster school board member received $4,250 from Special Waste Systems executives and $2,000 from a Bestway executive.

In all, Hampton raised and spent some $11,000 during the campaign.

The primary was largely a battle of the mail box, with all three spending heavily on campaign mailings.

Beard has spent at least $9,000 on campaign literature and mailings since the beginning of the year.

Reighard Johnson spent more than $15,000 to print and distribute campaign literature and mailings. Hampton spent more than $3,200 to do likewise.

Miller, a Garden City resident, filed a campaign waiver, as did Cox. The waiver indicated they raised and spent less than $1,000 in their campaigns.

IN OTHER RACES:

• Incumbent Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, spent $4,785 in his 9th District primary victory over former state representative Jack Legel of Detroit. Legel filed a waiver, spending less than $1,000. Kelley is running unopposed in the fall.

Kelley's spending figures may have been inflated by repayment of a $1,328 loan from the 17th (Congressional) District Democratic Party organization. His largest actual expense was $1,000 for campaign literature.

Incumbent Kay Beard, left, and challenger Terri Reighard Johnson each spent heavily in the the 12th District primary, especially in the closing weeks of the campaign. Spending in other races was lighter, according to campaign reports filed this week.

• Canton-area GOP nominee Victor Gustafson raised $1,110 and spent $438 in his 11th District primary victory over former township clerk Linda Chubran. Gustafson's contributors included Oak Park developer Richard Lewiston and Midwest Development of Livonia. Each contributed $500.

Chubran filed a waiver, indicating she raised and spent less than $1,000. Incumbent Milton Mack, D-Wayne, who will meet Gustafson in the fall, spent $3,317 during the primary. Major expenses included $1,000 for campaign signs and $1,500 for campaign literature and mailing expenses.

• Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, didn't raise or spend a dime in the two weeks before the 10th District primary. Heintz, commission vice chairwoman, was unopposed in the primary and will be the only candidate on the ballot in the fall for the Livonia/Plymouth area seat.

Dems pleased with their ticket

By Pat Murphy
staff writer

Donald F. Tucker, a Birmingham lawyer, and Philip H. Power, chairman of the board of the Suburban Corp. which owns the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, have been nominated for the University of Michigan Board of Regents by the Michigan Democratic Party.

The two were nominated over the weekend in Flint at what was characterized as "the most spirited Democratic convention in years." It attracted more than 2,000 delegates.

"It's a good ticket," beamed Tucker, who is also Democratic chairman of the 18th Congressional District which includes most of Oakland County. "I'm proud to be part of it." Tucker replaces Ann Arbor attorney Thomas A. Roach who did not seek re-election.

"They're all, good candidates," said Power, an incumbent from Ann Arbor. "They represent a good cross section."

TUCKER AND Power will run against Republicans Marv Esch of Ann Arbor and Battle Creek Mayor Shirley McFee who were nominated by the GOP over the weekend.

Heading the Democratic ticket, of course, is Gov. James Blanchard.

His running mate as lieutenant governor is Olivia "Libby" Maynard

Two vie for new probate seat

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

The race for the new Wayne County Probate court seat isn't likely to inflame voters, but it provides something many other races lack — a spirited contest between two vastly different contenders.

Patricia Campbell of Detroit and William Leo Cahalan Jr. of Grosse Ile each seek the eight-year, $91,807-a-year, probate court seat after surviving a crowded, competitive primary.

Probate court is often called "family court." Its docket includes adoption, child neglect, mental health and other family-related issues.

Each candidate is stressing why they would be the best "family" choice.

Campbell, 58, stresses her 15-years' legal experience — much of it in Wayne County probate court-related jobs — as well as her experience as a mother of eight.

Cahalan, 32, son and namesake of the late Wayne County prosecutor and circuit judge, stresses his probate-related law practice, youthful energy and sympathy for young families.

But the race could turn on Cahalan's family name — a circumstance even he believes is unfair.

To a large degree, Campbell's campaign strategy rests in alerting voters that the younger Cahalan is not his famous father.

"MY STRATEGY is to let the people know who I am and what my qualifications are and ask: 'Do you really know who the other candidate is?'" Campbell said.

Cahalan said such a strategy underestimates his own ability as a candidate and campaigner.

"That doesn't take into account what I can offer," said Cahalan, who uses Leo, rather than William Jr., as his professional name. "I don't think

Students expect more than one job

Four out of five college students expect to change industries or careers during their work life, according to a study by Right Associates Inc., Southfield.

Almost half of those interviewed expect to start their own business, said Right Associates, a career management firm which surveyed 259 college students in 12 major cities across the United States.

"We think these findings present a unique dilemma for employers," said John Bourbeau, managing principal of the firm. "On the one hand, young people are ambitious. On the other hand, they expect to change jobs or start their own business if a job does not meet their immediate expectations."

"These findings indicate a significant new trend. Employers will have to find new and progressive ways to keep young people motivated and interested in working for their company."

Other highlights:

• Advancement and job challenges are the most important factors in selecting an employer.

• Approximately 70 percent expect to receive starting salaries of $20,000 to $30,000 annually. None expected less than $18,000.

• More than 80 percent expect to be supervisors or managers within five years; one in four expects to be promoted to a supervisory or management position within one to two years.

• Banking, finance and communications are preferred industries for college students; marketing-sales is the most preferred assignment.

• Three out of four students plan to earn advanced degrees.

Bourbeau said recruiters and employers will need to design career development programs to meet the career aspirations of this new work force. "The impending labor crisis will make these activities even more important," Bourbeau said.

'We are devastated'

Twins lose bid to stay in area district

By M.B. Dillon and Peg Aullino
staff writers

A school year that area twins Amy and Katie Colligan thought would be their happiest is turning out to be their saddest.

The 17-year-old sisters, who've attended Plymouth-Canton Community Schools since kindergarten, were crying as they pleaded with the board of education recently to let them graduate from Canton High School, even though they've moved out of the district.

The girls registered at Canton and have had their senior pictures taken. But they started this school year at Wayne Memorial High School.

THE TWINS' father, John Colligan, recently was appointed police chief by the city of Wayne. Because the city has a residency requirement, the family had to move.

Plymouth-Canton school officials say it's against policy to allow non-residents to attend Plymouth-Canton schools, even if they're willing to pay tuition, which the Colligans are.

"We probably could have lied and given you a fake address and gotten away with it," Katie told the board.

"We felt pretty good about our decision to be honest, because we never thought we would be denied our right. One year is all we asked; our final year.

"We are devastated. My last year in high school, which should have been my happiest, is now a nightmare. My sister and I can look forward to having to make friends all over again and graduating with strangers.

"I feel hurt; I feel angry. I feel infuriated. But most of all I feel betrayed," said Katie, who works at Cobb's Pharmacy in Wayne.

"The policy is wrong. Not only is it wrong, it's unfair. It's too late for me, but I was hoping maybe next time you will reconsider. It's in your hands now. Please just look into changing your policy because it's so wrong."

AMY TOLD THE board she could name 10 people who are lying about where they live so they can go to Plymouth-Canton schools.

"I don't understand how you could deny our senior year. We are not bad people. You guys are breaking my heart," she said.

"In the past, because we have very crowded facilities, it's been the policy of the board not to accept tuition students," board president Dean Swartzweller told the twins.

"I'm sure none of these things mean anything to you because this is such an emotional experience.

"(The board) will put together an official response and get back to you."

FOR ALMOST 30 years, the district has not enrolled non-residents, even if they're willing to pay tuition, Superintendent John Hoben said in a letter to the twins.

"The reason and rationale for not accepting tuition students is the limited space and not being able to provide effectively for the Plymouth-Canton students in residence.

"The situation has been compounded this year once again by the return of the ninth grade back to the high school, which is producing an increase in population of approximately 425 students to an already crowded situation," Hoben wrote.

AMY, A teller at Wayne Westland Federal Credit Union, said she feels as if she wasted her time.

"I thought all the board members were so nice, except Dr. Hoben and Dr. (Michael) Homes (assistant superintendent for instruction).

"Those two were responsible, and they seemed to have little to say on the whole situation. We weren't really asking too much of the schools.

"E.J. McClendon talked about the legal aspects; he said there are very strict policies.

"He wasn't paying attention, because we told the board that Wayne-Westland schools had waived their rights to me and my sister so we could go to Plymouth-Canton. And my dad wrote a letter saying we'd be willing to pay tuition.

"If it was just us who thought this was unfair, then I could see it. But everyone we tell thinks it's awful."

"THERE'S NOT a whole lot the board can do," said Dick Egli, the schools' community relations director. "The problem is quite clear in terms of state law. State law says you can't have students who are living in another area."

Seniors who start the school year and then move are allowed to finish out the year, said Ginnee Murdoch,

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Katie and Amy Colligan say they were cheated out of their senior year in high school by the Plymouth-Canton school district's transfer policy.

supervisor of pupil accounting.

"But if they haven't started, or are not a resident, that's the policy," she said. "We're strict on residency."

Students in grades K-11 are allowed to finish the semester in which a move is made.

Murdoch said she'd investigate allegations concerning non-residents attending Plymouth-Canton schools if she were supplied with names.

THE TWINS are making the best of their situation, Amy said.

"We're still in a daze, but we're starting to come back to earth, realizing this is the way we have to spend our senior year," she said.

"We have no hope that the board is going to let us go. They're afraid of setting a precedent.

"We just wanted to graduate with the people we've been going to school with since kindergarten.

"And we hope that if this happens again, the school board will think before they deny a student. We know it can't help us, but if it helps someone else, this all will have been worth it."

Police investigate racial assault case

By Joe Bauman
staff writer

A 17-year-old Inkster resident told Livonia police he was dragged from his car Saturday night and struck with a baseball bat by two teens shouting obscenities and racial slurs.

Police are investigating the incident as a felonious assault with racial implications.

The victim, who is black, told officers he was stopped at a traffic light while heading south on Inkster Road at 11:30 p.m. when a 1978 Pontiac Firebird pulled alongside his car and its occupants, three white teens, began shouting racial slurs at him.

When the light turned green, the victim said he continued south on Inkster and on at least occasion the driver of the second car tried to cut him off and force him off the road.

After both cars stopped for a red traffic signal at W. Chicago, the victim said the driver of the Firebird got out of the car carrying a baseball bat, and was joined by the front seat passenger.

Approaching his car, the victim said the person without the bat reached in and dragged him from the vehicle through the passenger door.

Environmental issues affect market

Environmental issues affect consumer buying decisions, a consumer survey indicates.

But consumers aren't always aware of what companies are doing to protect the environment because companies don't make it clear through their advertising, the survey reveals.

The majority of survey respondents indicated they would prefer "environmentally friendly" products, and even would pay more for such products.

THE SURVEY, conducted by Valentine-Radford Inc., a Kansas City advertising agency, polled 400 consumers in Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, said Susan Spaulding, vice president and director of research for Valentine-Radford.

Respondents were equally divided among the four states and were a fair representation of urban, suburban and rural areas in various age and income groups, she said.

Most consumers would be willing to change product brands when they become aware of changes in products if the changes have been designed to protect the environment, the study showed.

For example, 78 percent of the respondents said they would be likely to change brands if they knew a competitive brand changed to a recycled container.

Eighty-four percent said they would be likely to change to a competitive brand if they were aware that the competitive brand was using a more natural ingredient.

HOWEVER, CONSUMERS need to be made more aware of what companies are doing to protect the environment, Spaulding said.

The Valentine-Radford study concluded that 74 percent of the respondents were not aware of companies advertising the way they produce, manufacture or deliver their product to the marketplace.

When a company points out through advertising that it has made positive changes that are more friendly toward the environment, consumers tend to buy the product more and have an improved opinion of the company, the study indicated.

Forty-six percent of the respondents said they buy the product more, while 87 percent said their opinion of the company had improved.

IF TWO products were sitting side by side and one product had a green seal, 81 percent of the respondents said they would be more likely to choose the one with the seal.

The majority of consumers would even be willing to pay more for products from a manufacturer who is taking steps to protect the environment.

Prognosis good for technologist career

Biomedical technology, a medical field that evolved during the 1970s with the manufacture of such equipment as CT scanners and magnetic resonance imagers, offers new career opportunity today, according to Larry Scharmen of Schoolcraft College.

"The role of the biomedical technologist is to keep the medical miracles working," said Scharmen, a program adviser at Schoolcraft. Technologists operate and maintain equipment that assists medical personnel in making early diagnosis in instances of serious illness, thereby reducing medical risks and reducing health care costs, according to Scharmen.

Noel Smolenyak, a biomedical technologist who completed Schoolcraft's two-year training program, is now employed as a field service engineer for Siemens, a Farmington Hills firm that manufactures biomedical equipment.

"The technologist is always the one in the hot seat. I'm the one who's going to talk to the doctor under pressure," said Smolenyak, adding his role is part detective, part electrician and part biologist.

A nine-year veteran of General Motors, Smolenyak was facing a layoff from the automotive firm when he learned of biomedical technology training. He entered the Schoolcraft program, participating in a modified internship to earn income while attending school. He found employment immediately after graduation.

Presently, there are more positions than qualified technologists, according to Scharmen, who said,

"We need good students and the field needs good people."

THE DEMAND is particularly acute in hospital settings, according to Marty Gibson of the Catherine McAuley Health Center in Ann Arbor where Siemens recently installed a magnetic resonance imager.

For more information about the two-year program, call 462-4400, Ext. 5162, or 462-4429. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile Roads in Livonia.

Confident tax foes rally, present their petitions

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The state Legislature can either pass Richard Headlee's proposed 20 percent property tax cut or put it on the ballot for voters.

"I'd rather have them (lawmakers) do it," said Headlee, whose Taxpayers United group Tuesday filed 223,000 petition signatures with the Secretary of State's office.

"I'd rather have it go to the people," said his publicist, Bill McMaster of Bloomfield Township. "Make the politicians run on it. The people signed petitions, and they want to vote on it. Make the MEA (Michigan Education Association) come out against it."

HEADLEE'S TU needed 192,000 signatures to force lawmakers to consider its plan, and he said his petitions are valid ones.

"All the bad petitions were thrown out by us," he told a rally on the State Capitol steps, adding TU beat the Sept. 15 time deadline by four days.

Fully 45 percent of the signatures came from two counties with 20 percent of the state's population. Macomb led with 57,712, Oakland 49,294, for a total of 106,806.

Wayne County produced 48,857. The petitions were presented in boxes provided by Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. Headlee is board chairman of the Farmington Hills firm.

THE LEGAL procedure for passage is complicated:

• If the Legislature enacts TU's proposal (House Bill 5919), lawmakers could later amend the law by a vote of 50 percent plus one.

• If voters approve it, however, lawmakers would need a three-fourths vote to amend it, under the constitution. Thus, voter-made law is stronger than a legislative act, even when the wording is identical.

There is a timing problem: Headlee said the filing was timely to put the matter before voters this Nov. 6. "They could count 'em (signatures) this week," he said.

• State officials, however, said TU is too late for the 1990 ballot. The proposal could go on a special 1991 ballot, if the Legislature ordered it, or wait until 1992.

be cut. A non-working, $85 million data processing system could be eliminated and the work farmed out cheaper to private companies.

State employment has grown 8 percent in a period when population has grown only 1 percent, Headlee said.

"Shelby Solomon (Blanchard's budget director) knows where the money's buried."

FRIENDLY LAWMAKERS — mostly but not entirely Republicans — vowed to seek a discharge petition to force HB 5919 out of the Democratic-controlled House Taxation Committee. But they failed to act in Tuesday afternoon's session. That bill is co-sponsored by six area Republican representatives: Dave Honigman of West Bloomfield, Mat Dunaskis of Lake Orion, Judy Miller of Birmingham, Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills, Gordon Sparks of Troy and Gerald Law of Plymouth.

TU also posted a list of 16 senators and 15 representatives who had agreed, either by letter or in writing, to support placing the bill (House Joint Resolution X) on the ballot.

Area senators included Republicans Doug Cruce of Troy, Richard Fessler of Commerce, Robert Geake of Northville and Rudy Nichols of Waterford. Area representatives included Republicans Dolan of Farmington Hills, Honigman of West Bloomfield and Sparks of Troy.

Other supporters were the Republican gubernatorial nominee, Sen. John Engler of Mount Pleasant, and Senate minority leader Art Miller, D-Warren.

TU'S PROPOSAL, if approved, would cut property assessments from 50 percent of market value to 40 percent over two years — an effective tax cut of 20 percent.

The Legislature would have to repay counties, cities, villages, townships, schools and community colleges the lost revenue — estimated at $600 million.

Headlee insisted no state tax increase would be necessary to make up lost revenue, even if there were a recession.

"There's plenty of money. I don't have much sympathy for a government that's fat, full of slush funds and wasting money. We have to get our priorities straight," he said.

Spending on outside contractors, which he said has increased under Gov. James Blanchard from $200 million to $500 million a year, could that someone with 15, 20, or even 30 years' experience is automatically going to make a better judge."

Cahalan was the leading vote-getter in the August primary, outpolling Campbell 37,217 to 29,425.

It was Campbell, however, who received endorsements from both metropolitan Detroit daily newspapers. She also received top ratings from Civic Searchlight, a non-profit citizen group, and the Detroit Bar Association. The latter group deemed Campbell "Well Qualified" and Cahalan "Not Qualified." (The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers did not issue a primary endorsement, but will issue one for the general election.)

Campbell has been a probate court referee since 1981. She is a former probate court legal adviser and juvenile division attorney. She received her law degree from Wayne State University.

Cahalan, a member of Felkens, Foster, Vandromme & DeNardis, a Detroit-based law firm, is former assistant Detroit Recorder's Court law librarian. He received his law degree from the Detroit College of Law. He lives in Grosse Ile.

Campbell believes her experience, both professionally and as a parent, makes her best qualified for the job.

"As a referee I can do the job immediately," she said. "I know the system, I know the DSS. I have experience in administration and in court. My goal is to coordinate the two."

Mother of eight — all college graduates and two of them lawyers — Campbell returned to school in the late 1960s, earning her law degree in 1976.

"Initially, I wanted to try for an MBA, but my husband (attorney Donald Campbell) convinced me to at least give law a try," she said.

Her new degree had unexpected benefits after her husband became disabled and Campbell had to become the family's chief breadwinner.

Ironically, she credits Cahalan's father — her former boss — with helping her get her career off the ground.

For the younger Cahalan, law and politics were dinner-table conversation topics.

"I've been around politics all my life," he said. "I've practiced before the probate court, I've seen how it works."

Though only an attorney for three years, he sees his youth as a plus.

"I'm from a different generation than my opponent, I'm more in touch with young people and young families," said Cahalan, married and the father of two.

The Campbell-Cahalan race is one of four Wayne County Probate Court races. Incumbents Martin T. Maher and Frances Pitts are running unopposed for new terms. Diane M. Hathaway and David J. Szymanski face each other for a third seat. The other races will be profiled at a later date.

Observer staff members earn national honors

Guy Warren

The Livonia edition of The Observer received a first-place award in the Suburban Newspapers of America 1990 Editorial Contest.

Special Editor Sue Mason was awarded first place in feature writing for her story on poverty in suburbia. Also honored was photographer Guy Warren who worked with Mason on the project.

"Fact-filled and well written... its low key style sets it apart from the usual story of this type," the judges said. "A well-done treatment of an important subject, for the subjects become people with whom we can identify, not merely statistics."

The judges added that the "photo layout compliments the page, making it inviting to read."

A graduate of Wayne State University, Mason has been a general assignment and education writer during her five years with The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Currently, she is editor of the Livonia, Redford, Garden City and Westland Suburban Life sections and coordinator of the Street Scene section.

Warren has worked as a temporary staff photographer at the O&E for 1 1/2 years.

The O&E also won both first-place and second-place awards for Best Special Issue or Special Section.

FIRST PLACE went to the special Suburban Life section carried by all 13 O&E newspapers on "Who's Taking Care of Mom and Dad" — a study of the care options for the elderly.

"The stories were well-written and they had substance. Yet, they were told from a people perspective," according to the judges.

Second place was for a special section on "School Spending/Bridging the Gap," which also ran in all newspapers. According to the judges, the stories successfully showed "the relationship between funding and achievement and the ability of teachers to do their jobs."

"It is rare when one publishing company wins two awards in a category, which it did this time. Why? Because rather than just publish a progress edition, this newspaper group attacked real problems in its community," the judges said.

Birmingham-Bloomfield edition of The Eccentric also received first- and third-place awards in the SNA contest.

Editor Dave Varga was awarded first place in the Best Editorial Page category. Judges cited clean, clear and lively writing in editorials and columns, as well as pages "packed with robust commentary are exceptionally good."

Rebecca Haynes won third place for Best Lifestyle Section for the work she does as Suburban Life editor. Judges comments included writing style with a good feature flair and "lead articles in each section are exceptionally good."

THE O&E ALSO won first place for Best Lifestyle Section for the West Bloomfield and Lakes editions sections edited by Carolyn DeMarco.

Special Editor Sue Mason was honored for her story on poverty in suburbia. Project photographer Guy Warren was also honored.

In other categories, a third place for Best Spot News Photojournalism went to Southfield photographer Jerry Zolynsky.

Awards will be presented Sept. 26 at the SNA Editorial Conference.

Contract feud Union must recognize crisis

WAYNE-WESTLAND school district voters may be asked to go to the polls for a special election late this fall to approve a tax increase to pay for educational programs and/or pay raises for teachers.

Unfortunately, the Wayne-Westland Education Association, which represents teachers in collective bargaining, is focusing on the pay raises, not the basic preservation or restoration of educational quality.

The board of education and school administration are frustrated because they are caught between declining revenues and increasing costs — not even counting the pay raises for the teachers and several other employee unions.

Despite the ongoing financial crisis, the WWEA insists on using pay increases in other districts as a standard in negotiating for local salary raises.

The teachers' union must realize that the district is in a financial crisis — with or without a millage increase.

It apparently doesn't realize — or doesn't care — that the district is in a money crunch. Employees in the private sector and other public sectors have sacrificed economically when their employees were having problems.

But voters must make sure if they are asked to vote for a property tax increase this fall that the money is clearly intended to use to restore program reductions announced last spring when the community rejected two tax proposals.

First Citizen Award to honor top volunteer

WESTLAND HAS always been a community of volunteers.

It started with the formation of numerous civic organizations in the late 1950s and early 1960s and continued after Nankin Township was incorporated as the city of Westland in 1966.

Over the years, the community had honored volunteers on a narrow basis, such as the outstanding young man under 35, the outstanding man over 35, and an outstanding woman, also with an age restriction.

But persons can nominate a man or woman of any age and background for the community's most prestigious community service award — the Westland First Citizen.

The nominees must be someone who has had a major impact on the community at large or a segment of the community.

Nominations must be as detailed as possible with the deadline for entries 5 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 25.

The fifth annual award, co-sponsored by the Westland Observer and the Westland Chamber of Commerce, will be announced in early November with the First Citizen to be honored Nov. 13.

We hope individuals and groups will look around their neighborhoods or organizations, find a nominee, and submit an entry to The Westland Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Phone hang ups More deregulation is needed

WHEN A FEDERAL judge broke up AT&T in the mid-1980s, the thought was it would end a legalized monopoly, stimulate competition among regional phone companies and everybody would be better served. Everybody, it turns out, meant those who rely heavily on intra-state long-distance services — primarily business users.

In fact, the only people decidedly worse off since the court decision are those who can least afford it. Residential customers continue to get smacked with higher local phone charges and shrinking local zones.

Now Michigan Bell has put forward a package of rate proposals that again benefit interstate long distance users at the expense of local callers.

In promotional materials for the new rate package, Bell trumpets the common sense of lowering long distance rates for calls of more than 20 miles within Michigan.

"Telephone customers don't think it makes sense that a call from Detroit to Ann Arbor costs more than a call to Los Angeles," the press release states. "Michigan Bell agrees."

BUT WHAT BELL fails to point out is that some western Wayne and Oakland County residents pay more to talk to their suburban neighbors than they would to call either Ann Arbor or the West Coast. The new plan does nothing to address this problem.

According to samples provided by Bell, the new plan actually boosts the flat rate for unlimited local calls made by suburban Detroiters. For one sample group the flat rate would go from $11.44 to $13.95, an increase of 22 percent.

Bell tries to get around that by offering discount rates for people willing to limit the number of local calls they make each month.

But they really don't have to go even that far. While there is plenty of competition out there for the long-distance phone dollar — just turn on your television or radio and you're bound to be bombarded by advertisements from AT&T, MCI and others — the five regional "Baby Bells" (Michigan Bell included) have the field all to themselves when it comes to local rates.

The long-range solution is to promote further deregulation in the telephone industry. Other companies should be allowed to furnish local phone service for Michigan residents.

In the meantime, we urge suburban residents to write to their legislators and the state Public Service Commission asking them not to adopt the latest Bell package without substantial changes. The PSC address is 6545 Mercantile Way, P.O. Box 30221, Lansing, Mich. 48909.

A closer look New teachers facing scrutiny

TALK ABOUT IMPROVING the quality of our graduating teachers is no longer just rhetoric.

Oakland University in Rochester will begin the first five-year secondary education program in Michigan starting in January. Would-be secondary school teachers will take an academic major and minor through the College of Arts and Sciences, finishing the four years with a bachelor of arts or bachelor of science degree and some work in education.

But no teaching certificate will be issued until the completion of an additional year-long internship under the close supervision of a mentor teacher. Participants will be given credit for the year of experience when applying for positions and will have earned some credits toward a master's degree.

We applaud both Oakland University and the area school districts which have agreed to participate in the mentor program. They are: Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, Ferndale, L'Anse Creuse, Oak Park, Pontiac, Rochester, Southfield, South Redford and Walled Lake.

A 1989 Metropolitan Life survey of American teachers showed 86 percent of them favored a full-time, year-round training program to be completed before certification. Probably a survey of the taxpayers who foot the bill for education would show an even stronger response.

A strong education coupled with a year of monitored teaching experience should improve the quality of our graduating teachers and perhaps attract more bright young people to the teaching profession.

The rest of our state colleges and universities should follow Oakland University's example and make five-year secondary education certification the rule in Michigan.

Ethnic intimidation: new penalties work

A YEAR AND a half ago, it would have been only a case of malicious destruction of property.

But an ethnic intimidation law initiated by state Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and enacted by the state Legislature in March 1989 is making us take a harder line on acts of prejudice.

It provides added punishment for people found guilty of ethnic intimidation — a felony.

Ethnic intimidation was at the tip of everyone's tongue last month when a fight between blacks and whites broke out at Harpo's, a rock concert hall in Detroit.

However, police now say that incident was not racially motivated.

On Monday three white teenagers from Macomb County were charged with open murder and ethnic intimidation in the beating death of a black Detroit teenager in Roseville, an incident that witnesses said was preceded by racial slurs and taunts.

Closer to home, dismissal of ethnic intimidation charges against an 18-year-old Birmingham man at a pretrial hearing has both the Oakland County chief assistant prosecutor and the director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith up in arms.

The prosecutor's office will appeal 48th District Judge Thomas Brookover's ruling that the prosecution failed to show that the religious or ethnic background of the owners of a Birmingham store was a motivating factor in the young man's action. He will be tried on a misdemeanor charge of malicious destruction of property.

DERRICK BROWNING and a 16-year-old Troy girl painted anti-Semitic slurs including "F--- the Jews" and "Hail Hitler" on the wall outside

An ethnic intimidation law initiated by state Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and enacted by the state Legislature last March, is making us take a harder line on acts of prejudice.

Judith Doner Berne

the Wells Cargo store on Woodward in downtown Birmingham after Browning was fired from his job by the store owner.

The ethnic intimidation bill reads that a person is guilty of ethnic intimidation if he or she commits an act "maliciously, and with specific intent to intimidate or harass another person because of that person's race, color, religion, gender or national origin."

Brookover called the spray painted words "extremely offensive" and "inexcusable," but ruled that the narrowly drawn intimidation statute did not apply.

The judge said the statute required more than just proof the teen painted the words, but proof that racial or ethnic hatred caused the action.

It does seem that if Browning were merely mad, there are certainly other words he could have scrawled across that wall which would have gotten his message across, but that had no ethnic overtones.

And the girl involved who was prosecuted in juvenile court pleaded guilty to the ethnic intimidation charge. She is currently putting in 100 hours of community service at the Holocaust Memorial Center and has completed a 25-page report on the Holocaust as punishment.

The result of the appeal will be interesting. And either way, the store owners still have recourse to a civil suit, including damages for emotional distress.

BEYOND THIS CASE, what's important here is that there is a new ability to penalize crimes involving prejudice.

Honigman is pleased that the law is used on a wide-spread basis so quickly and that publicity attends those incidents.

"It serves a didactic function," the sometimes scholarly Honigman says. "It sends a message to the society at large what the ideals of a society are."

Whether or not 18-year-old Derrick Browning is tried for ethnic intimidation or not, we hope his punishment is as appropriate as the one meted out to his 16-year-old accomplice.

He, too, should have the opportunity to learn just why the words written on that wall instill such terror.

Judith Doner Berne is assistant managing editor for the Oakland County editions of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Story is disgusting

To the editor:
I am writing this letter to express my total disgust with your article about Ginny Denison.

I found the entire piece offensive and in very poor taste. Your graphic opening sentence was unnecessary — Ginny, her family and friends know all too well where her leg is. And I'm sure Ginny wanted the world to know that on top of all her other problems, she's lost control of her bladder and bowels.

The whole family has been through so much and I'm afraid your insensitive article has done nothing to comfort them.

Instead of focusing on the gory details of her injuries, you could have stressed the point that a young woman with a very difficult future ahead of her could use our love and support — not just today but for many months to come. Shame on the person who wrote the article and shame on the paper for printing it.

You owe the Denisons and your readers an apology. I hope the next time this paper prints a story about another tragedy, you will choose a reporter who won't add to the family's heartache and will use a lot more sensitivity.

Diane Stoll,
Westland

Survey is criticized

To the editor:

I am writing in response to your Community Corner feature printed Aug. 30. You asked six individuals if they thought it was a good idea for the Wayne-Westland teachers to return to work without a contract.

Five of the respondents agreed while one dissented. After his name you included his occupation as a John Glenn teacher. I feel you should also have included the occupations of the others. Perhaps some of them also have union affiliations. If so, I would be curious as to whether or not they would be willing to work without a contract.

There is enough negative feeling directed towards the teachers in the Wayne-Westland school district without people inferring from this feature that some of them are villains because as union members they may feel uncomfortable working without a contract.

I would also like to comment on the responses of the others. The general feeling among them is that the most important thing is that the students are in school.

In my opinion what the students do while in school and the effort they put forth are more important. One must exert personal effort if he expects to gain anything from the education system.

Group helps 3 candidates

WHAT DO Libby Maynard, Connie Binsfeld and Judy Miller have in common politically?

Obviously all are white females. All have grown children. All have been nominated by their parties to be within a heartbeat or two of the executive office.

Philosophically, they run the spectrum — Maynard, the very liberal Democrat, No. 2 on the ticket to Gov. James Blanchard; Binsfeld, the very conservative Republican, No. 2 on John Engler's ticket; Miller, the moderate Republican, No. 3 on Engler's ticket.

THE ANSWER is membership in the League of Women Voters.

That nonpartisan voter information group, though it doesn't promote candidates, should be bursting with pride that three of its own are so prominent on the 1990 ballot.

And it's a civic improvement. League training shows through when a woman reaches public office.

"You study the issues. Really study. The purest form of study," said Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, a League member since 1975.

"But you study from a non-political perspective. That's what the League forces you to do — look at an issue non-politically and unemotionally."

"Each year we do one national major issue, one state major issue and one local major issue. We can do a county major issue, but we haven't in a long time."

"It was very difficult for me. I liked to interject my personal feelings. But it was good discipline. And it still is."

THE LEAGUE does its studying methodically, to the point of dryness. Each year it produces a statewide voter guide, carried in this newspaper, asking candidates for biographies and answers to carefully worded questions.

In professional newspaper circles, we are debating whether and when to ask the "A" questions: Have you committed adultery? Have you had an abortion or has your spouse or girlfriend had an abortion? We report how much money was spent on a campaign, and which judicial candidate is suing an opponent over the size of billboards.

All junk, unworthy of debate, in League of Women Voters circles. They ask candidates what they propose to do with that $1 trillion federal budget or $8 billion state budget. Those decisions are the ones which help or hurt America.

Their rigidity in oral and written debate drives my colleague, Steve Barnaby, to distraction, especially when a candidate exceeds the 75-word limit on an answer and they cut it off with an "..."

It's the price we have to pay when dealing with an outfit that sticks to the issues.

THE DIFFERENCE between Maynard, Binsfeld and Miller and someone from the old political school — say Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths — is clear.

Griffiths chastised those whom she has given a boost to the top and who ultimately turned on her. The old politics deals in constituencies, not what's best for the nation. The old politics says you do me a favor and I do you a favor.

I've heard Martha Griffiths give her "felsty" speeches. I've also seen a League type like Beverly McAninch of Plymouth operate on the transit board and on the nuclear waste committee.

I prefer League types.

THE IRONY is that the League of Women Voters operates much like that bastion of ancient male chauvinism, the Academy of Plato.

Socrates, the chief character in Plato's dialogues, said a philosopher wasn't a wise man (God alone is wise) but a pursuer of wisdom; that a philosopher should abandon an opinion once better facts and logic showed him another view was more enlightened. "Whether the truth flows, thither I go."

Vote Democratic or Republican, as you will, but you're going to get a League type in high Michigan office either way.

As I said, it's a civic improvement. Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional issues.

THAT "WOMEN HOLD up half the sky" is a well known, feminist adage.

That Mildred M. Jeffrey holds up more than her share is appreciated by those who know her.

On Monday evening, Millie was the target for a great deal more personal commentary. For the record, she wore red as did her friend of 20 years, former congresswoman Bella Abzug. Bella, of course, wore a matching hat.

In the spirit of the "Millie for Roasting" evening in Greektown, you could say they were "big red in a hat" and "little red." The large audience, with their applause and laughter, got into the spirit of things from the beginning.

Millie's "Roast" wasn't just an ego trip. She's not the type. The evening at $125 a crack benefitted the fledgling Michigan Women's Foundation.

IN ADDITION to Bella; Geraldine Ferraro (who got the evening's most vigorous applause); Helen Milliken, former first lady of the state; Janet Blanchard, present first lady in Michigan; labor luminary Odessa Komer; Dr. Marjorie Peebles-Meyers; Claudia Morcom; and others took turns as roasters.

In the spirit of fairness and non-discrimination, Neal Shine, media star, was the master of ceremonies. Two other males, Gov. James Blanchard and Leon H. Atchison, who served with Millie on the Wayne State Board of Governors, turned down the heat and used their time in praise of the honoree.

Olivia Proctor Maynard, newly appointed to run as the Lt. Governor candidate with Blanchard, was happily present, but the current holder of that office, Martha Griffiths, did not stand up for roll call.

"Who among us has not at one or more times been exhorted, lobbied, urged, leafletted, gentle-armed, prodded, led or whatever to support a cause, vote for a bill, march for a right or against a wrong or cough up bucks for all of the above (by Millie)?" asked Judge Vesta Svenson, in her tribute "Mildred Who?"

Svenson mentioned the small town in Iowa where Jeffrey was born and assisted her mother, the sole support of herself and her six siblings.

"It isn't surprising that she found a home in the labor movement and has constantly fought for the rights of women and workers," Svenson added.

JEFFREY, worked her way through a bachelor's and master's degrees while organizing unemployed workers and picketing for labor rights. When she and her husband came to Detroit, she became the first director of the UAW's Women's Department, a director of WDET, and a coordinator in consumer affairs for the UAW.

An up-front activist, Millie's role in the Democratic Party took her from precinct delegate to Democratic National Committeewoman. She was instrumental in bringing the representation of women in the Michigan party up to 50 per cent.

A founder and chairperson of the National Women's Political Caucus, the roaster has given her ardent support to women candidates, both partisan and non-partisan.

Millie was "warmed" rather than roasted by the Michigan Legislature and other bodies who love and appreciate her. In the dinner brochure, 54 women judges in all jurisdictions lent their name to a tribute in her honor.

FOLKS IN THE AUDIENCE, whether they really know her, such as the Annetta Miller of the State Board of Education, Appeals Court Judge Marilyn Jean Kelly, or Detroit Common Council president Maryann Mahaffey, learned that Millie is a "lightweight" (physically) and can't carry a note or a tune nearly as well as she can deliver a vote.

This fall, she won't run for the WSU Board of Governors again, and is trimming her activities somewhat. She's been to China, the Soviet Union, Mexico, Israel, France and Sweden, always on missions for women's rights, peace, child care, and equality.

Undaunted by the roasting, buoyed by the funds raised for the Michigan Women's Foundation, the beneficiary of the evening, Millie isn't going to sit back and smell the roses at all.

Too many people, her daughter and son included, depend on her wit and wisdom and on her enthusiasm and support. Millie Jeffrey's vision of a world of justice and equality has never dimmed.

And she's still too busy holding up her part of the sky.

'Target marketing' has new meaning

SOME DUDE DOWN in Chattanooga, Tenn., has given a new meaning to "target marketing."

Sheldon Smith, 24 years old (Get that? 24 years old!), and his wife, Sabrina, take perfectly good blue jeans out to a shooting range, stick them on targets and fill them full of buckshot holes.

Then they wash 'em, fade 'em and sell 'em for around $70 a pair. And the young shootist says he can't make enough of his "buckshot jeans" to fill the demand.

Good golly, Miss Molly. Where did I go wrong?

I missed out on the hula hoop, the pet rock, the tie-dyed shirts and the poodle skirts. Not to mention leisure suits (although I had one — lime green) and pedal pushers.

Well, not this time. This is the Nineties, and there's money in destruction. Look at all those high school kids last year, slashing gashes in the knees of their jeans and parading around like geriatrics who couldn't pass the dress code at the local soup kitchen.

Jack Gladden

So I've decided to start some trends of my own.

Those shirts hanging in my closet — are going to be the Nehru jackets of the decade. Forty bucks for a shirt with one missing button, $65 if you want it without two and a cool $80 if you want three of them gone.

SHIRTS WITH elbow holes — the kind you get when you have a propensity for lying on the floor instead of sitting on furniture — are sure to cause major battles when Yves Saint Laurent and Oleg Cassini go mano a mano for the right to put their labels in them.

And jeans — forget the holes and the slashes. We're talking paint. That pair I was wearing when I painted the kitchen last year — the ones I had on when I accidentally sat down in the tray with the semi-gloss gray — they'll make the honchos at Gitano drool all over the board room.

But that's just for starters in the men's market. The folks at Oshkosh B'Gosh and Winnie the Pooh are sure to hit 10 digits when they start bidding on my kids' line of grass-stained coveralls.

The Carter's people will go wild over the pre-stained bibs featuring a "stain of the month" — strained green beans, to start. And wait 'til they get a look at my "soaked and soiled diapers." The mud-caked mini-jeans will be introduced as a part of the toddler line.

I'll get my son to endorse "floppy flippers" — sneakers with the sole already separated from the rest of the shoe. For an extra 10 bucks, the floppies will come with pre-punched holes in the toes. Nike and Puma can fight over the rights to that one.

The "pre-stretched elastic bras" will go to Maidenform, and Hanes should snap up the line of jockey shorts with pre-loosened waist bands.

PANTY HOSE with starter runs will go up for bids, but I'm hoping Christian Dior will pick up the soup-stained ties.

I think Stetson should jump at the designer hats with pre-sweated head bands, but it's an open market for the socks with the pre-formed toe holes.

After I collect my first million or two from the garment industry, I've got in mind a new line of cosmetics. Lip gloss with flecks of balled spinach — blusher with built-in mustard and ketchup stains or, for those special occasions, just a trace of chocolate syrup.

But that's for later. Right now I want to concentrate on the fashion market — and I've got a great name for my new line: "Rags to Riches."

New school law is aimed at 'quality' improvements

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The state has $2.4 million to help local schools develop new long-range improvement plans, said education chief Donald Bemis.

"We think it will be $500 per school building," the superintendent of public instruction told the state board of education Tuesday night.

The new law, Public Act 25, requires local and intermediate districts to do four things: develop school improvement plans, distribute annual reports to public, adopt a core curriculum and prepare for accreditation.

"Local boards are concerned about how to accomplish quality improvements," said Dr. Anne Hansen, a Department of Education official in charge of school program services.

STATE OFFICIALS held dozens of regional meetings in the last month to acquaint local boards, administrators and parents with the new law and how to get money.

"I went to four of these," said Dorothy Beardmore, a state board member from Rochester, citing a pair in Oakland County and Wayne-Westland.

"This is the legislation that mandates quality. PA 25 pulls in a lot of directions to change education — change from counting the number of books to who reads the books, from a focus on input to a focus on results," Beardmore said. "It (the meetings) invited comments from the field as to what really is core curriculum."

"It's a very important piece of legislation," Bemis said.

PA 25 also sets up conditions under which high schools may hire non-certified teachers in such areas as computer science, foreign languages, math, engineering and robotics.

The annual reports are to include student achievement test results, retention/dropout rates, accreditation status and parent participation rates.

to districts which apply.

The money apparently will go to "in formula" districts which receive general state aid, not to "out of formula" districts. Out of formula districts are considered wealthy enough not to need state aid.

In a highly controversial move this year, Gov. James Blanchard and the Legislature cut categorical aid to out of formula districts — about 30 percent of the state. The majority of Observer & Eccentric area districts are out of formula.

The budget puts $1.6 million into grants to applying local and intermediate districts. Another $800,000 will go to intermediate districts to provide support services and technical assistance for quality planning.

document called "Core Curriculum Outcomes."

Rather than specifying how many hours of instruction a class needs, it will allow schools to measure whether students are attaining "essential skills areas which will prepare them for effective adult living."

They are due to be approved this fall.

PA 25 and the $2.4 million in grants are the latest state efforts in a larger effort to improve school quality without necessarily pumping in large amounts of new money. The effort began with "A Nation at Risk," a 1983 federal report.

In Michigan, a state "Blueprint for Action" came in 1984 followed by quality standards studies in subsequent years.

The class features a two-hour weekly discussion on topics including animal courtship, communication, social systems, feeding, defense tactics, as well as discussion of learned and innate behavior and the effect of the environment on behavior.

Videos, demonstrations and special activities will also be featured. The course will be taught by Timothy Nowicki, whose "Nature Notes" column appears in Observer & Eccentric newspapers. The fee is $37 for most students, $11 for senior citizens.

Ahchoo! It's that time again

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

TIS THE SEASON for wheezin' and sneezin'. As an estimated 1.5 million Michiganians already know, the pollens that cause seasonal allergic rhinitis — better known as hay fever — are in the air again.

Children, who usually spend more of their summer days outdoors than their adult counterparts, make up 50 percent of the patients in Dr. Lawrence Pasik's practice as an allergist. The West Bloomfield physician has been in private practice for 12 years and is past president of the Michigan Allergy Society.

"Children are not born with allergies," said the allergist. "They inherit a tendency to develop allergies. If they have that tendency they have to be exposed to the allergenic substance long enough to become sensitized to it."

The first substance to which children become allergic is cow's milk. From six months to two years they may develop an allergy towards dust, mold and animals.

BUT AN ALLERGY to pollen, he said, usually comes years later because the exposure is limited to only a few months a year. Pollen allergies are rarely seen before 4 or 5 years of age, and more often not until 8 or 10 or even later, he said.

"The more we live in air-conditioned homes, the longer the sensitivity is delayed," he said. And the greatest sensitivity may be gone by the late teen years.

"They don't grow out of it because they're older, but because the exposure decreases — they go away to college, or move out of the house that had the cat or dog, or they're working 9-to-5 at their first job in an air-conditioned office."

Treatment for children's summer pollen allergies are the same as with any allergy, children or adults. Avoidance is the first step, said Pasik, but staying indoors in an air-conditioned environment is not always practical.

If avoidance fails, medication is next, Pasik said, and over-the-counter remedies will work if the allergy is not too severe, he said. They include Benadryl, Chlortrimeton and Actifed.

There's no reason to wait for the symptoms to appear before taking, Pasik said. Taking it just before embarking on a day outdoors will block the symptoms.

THE DRAWBACK — "Most are associated with drowsiness," he said. "And some experience the reverse symptoms. They become stimulated and jittery."

Some new prescription drugs on the market give no side effects. They include Seldane and Hismanol, a new antihistamine that is bioengineered to bypass the brain, he said.

When the allergy is still not tolerable, it may be time to begin immunotherapy — allergy shots — to build up immunity to the allergen.

"It's analogous to tetanus. If you get tetanus boosters and step on a nail, you're protected."

Taking the patient's history and skin tests are the first step. Pasik records information as the time of year the allergy occurs, the age at which it started, and information about the home environment. What type of heating system? Is there a pet? Do parents have allergies?

To confirm the suspected allergies, the skin test is administered. Drops of the suspected allergen are put into a scratch or prick on the skin.

If the patient is allergic, histamine will be released and a small bump resembling a mosquito bite will appear. When the allergy is confirmed, Pasik then outlines a program of medications, and injections if appropriate.

TYPICALLY, A young hay fever sufferer will begin a program of a weekly combined-allergens injection, to build up immunity over a six-month period. Once a

Avoidance: The 1st line of defense

Wishing you could skip your seasonal bout with allergies?

Avoidance is the first line of defense in treating seasonal allergies and the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America and Dr. Lawrence Pasik offer these tips in keeping allergies problems to a minimum:

- Close windows to keep out pollen.
- Avoid early morning outdoor exercise when pollen levels are highest — 5-10 a.m.
- Wash hair after outdoor exposure to pollens in order to prevent continued contact with pollens while sleeping.
- Clean air conditioner and furnace filters frequently.
- Use air conditioners to clean and dry the indoor air.
- Cover air conditioner and heating vents in bedrooms with layers of cheesecloth to help trap pollutants.
- Keep car windows closed when driving.
- Stay indoors when pollen counts are high. (The worse days are when it's dry and windy.)
- Vacation when and where pollens are lowest. In Michigan, grass pollens are rampant in May and June; August and September are ripe for ragweed.
- Avoid lawn mowing, but if you can't, cover nose with suitable nose and mouth protection.
- Dry clothing and sheets indoors rather than outdoors on a line where they can collect pollen.
- If there's a pet, bathe it frequently and keep it out of the bedroom at night.
- Stay away from over-the-counter decongestant nose spray. "They're useful for colds, but prolonged use may get you hooked," Pasik said.
- The chemical can cause a rebound swelling, putting the user into an unbreakable cycle. Prescription sprays used on a regular basis, however, are not addictive and can prevent and control allergic symptoms.
- Try an indoor portable room air cleaner, but not the inexpensive and ineffective $30 kind. The benefit of the cheap units is minimal, Pasik said.

maintenance dose is achieved, three or four weeks may pass between shots. After three, four or five years, most patients are desensitized, free from allergy symptoms.

Forgotten, but not really gone, he said. "You never lose an allergy," he said. "You're born with it (the tendency), live with it and always have the tendency."

Desensitizing allergies . . . a drop at a time

By Sue Mason
staff writer

Day in and day out, people expose themselves to a variety of chemicals. Not only do they inhale them, they put them on their bodies and in their mouths.

Chemicals are a way of life, but for some people those chemicals can be making them chronically ill, depleting their bodies' nutritional resources and, basically, making life miserable.

Getting those people to a healthy state is where Dr. Norman Simpson comes in. Affiliated with Garden City Osteopathic Hospital, the doctor has been desensitizing people with allergies a drop at a time.

The patients he sees aren't necessarily those who experience a yearly bout with hay fever. The patients are chronically ill with allergies, but able to function on a daily basis with their problems.

"The best thing for a person with an allergy is avoidance, but if you're allergic to ethanol how do you avoid things like deodorants and soaps?" Simpson said. "If you can't avoid it, you want to desensitize or neutralize what's causing the problem."

THE FIRST step is to determine what the patient's allergies are. The classic method is the skin test, in which potential allergens are introduced into the body. There's also the invitro test, in which blood samples are used to determine allergies.

Both work for food and inhalant allergies, but when it comes to chemicals, Simpson relies on provocative neutralization testing.

Using the lining of the mouth to test for allergies, Simpson is able to determine what chemicals a patient is sensitive to without injuring the mouth.

Using a diluted solution, Simpson provokes the allergic symptoms, then uses successively weaker solutions to make those symptoms go away. The bottom line is the concentration that makes the symptoms disappear is the dosage to treat the allergy.

THE TREATMENT for allergies is basically exposing the patient to those things that cause the reaction. A dropper is used to administer the premeasured dosage. The dropper is designed in such a way that one drop is one dose, Simpson said.

For multiple food allergies, the solutions can be mixed in one dropper. Standard treatment is two drops a day. However, the solutions for multiple chemical allergies can't be mixed, so allergies to 16 different chemicals requires 16 different dosages once or twice a day, Simpson said.

"It's like a custom-made suit or shoes. Mathematically, the dosage should be what the patient needs to control his or her allergies, but sometimes it doesn't work, so you make adjustments."

ORAL TREATMENTS reduce the need for weekly office visits. Patients, "if they let the dropper do what it is designed to do," can administer the drops themselves.

"We're not giving them drugs, we're giving them what they are allergic to. That's better than steroids and anti-inflammatory drugs."

Ninety percent of Simpson's patients get better with the oral treatment, he said.

He has some patients who have been able to develop immunity and discontinue the dosages. He also has had some who do well on the medication, but have their symptoms return when the treatment is discontinued.

SIMPSON, WHOSE specialties include plastic and reconstructive surgery of the face and neck and the diagnosis and treatment of diseases of the ear, nose and throat, took note of allergies while doing his residency at Mount Clemens General Hospital.

But it wasn't until he got into private practice that he became interested in allergy testing and treatment.

Dr. Norman Simpson utilizes an oral treatment in helping his patients cope with chemical-based allergies.

Chemicals are everywhere

An 11-year-old Benton Harbor boy lives in spartan conditions. There are no carpeting, drapes or blinds in his bedroom. There's untreated cotton bedding, a bed, dresser and one poster on the walls.

He eats basically fish and a vegetable and his mother uses only baking soda and borax to clean the house.

The explanation is medical. The boy suffers from chemical hypersensitivity syndrome. He is allergic to a long list of items including perfume, cigarette smoke, ethanol, formaldehyde, dry cleaning solvents, phenols, rice, peanut butter and chocolate.

He's not alone when it comes to chemical-based allergies. Many people suffer from such allergies and avoiding them, at times, takes extreme measures.

Most people think of their high school biology class or a funeral home when you mention formaldehyde, but did you know that it can be found in a lot of common household items. Here's a partial list:

- Hair care products like shampoo and hair spray.
- Detergent soaps and fabric softener.
- Health and beauty products like mouthwash, cosmetics, toothpaste, Tampons, facial tissue, antiperspirants and nail polish.
- Disinfectants.
- Dyes and dyed fabrics.
- Cleaning products, waxes and polishes.
- Wood veneer, wallboard and wallpaper.
- Tobacco.
- Mention ethanol, and people think of their neighborhood gas station, but it's found in such things as:

- Health and beauty products like perfumes, deodorants, shampoo, aftershave and hair spray.
- Moth balls and insect spray.
- Paint, varnish, shellac and glue.

And the list of products containing phenol and its derivatives carbolic acid and hydroxybenzene includes:

- Synthesis of aspirin and drugs, acne medication, preservatives in medications and allergy shots.
- Health and beauty products like perfume, preservatives in cosmetics and hair care products, shaving creams and lotions.
- Baking powder and food additives.

Writer may be young, but handwriting has maturity

Dear Lorene Green,
Please analyze my writing. I am curious to see what it says about me. I am 13 years old and right-handed. I was taught to slant my letters and make many letters differently than I do. I have always thought the book way was boring and that it didn't look good the way I wrote it.
Thank you for your time and analysis.

school. So let us look at some of them.
Your small letter Z in the first line of your handwriting is a cosmopolitan sign. Your small letter F with the lower loop moving forward is another departure and suggests a fluent mind. You are able to project your thoughts with ease and are rarely at a loss for words. Some T crossings flow right into the next letter. A mind that works ahead, finding viable solutions to problems is suggested.

THE FORMATION of your numbers is mature, suggesting a natural interest or ability for working with numbers and the money that numbers represent.
Your mind is methodical and careful in assessing new information. You are able to envision the broad picture and not get bogged down in all the small components.
From the overall picture of your handwriting I see a young woman preoccupied with the events of daily living. You like to do things on a grand scale and may experience difficulty delaying pleasures.

The courage to be different is noted here. And it does take courage to express your individuality at an age when peer pressure is so strong.
Seemingly, the female influence has done more to shape your personality up to this point. I suspect that early in life you began to express your independence.

IN SOCIAL relationships, you appear somewhat inhibited. A deep need to belong and be accepted by friends and family may cause conflicting emotions for you.
Outwardly, your demeanor is one of poise and control. In actions and decisions, you are rarely impulsive. You take the time to consider how you will be affected by the outcome. Yours is a head-over-heart attitude.
Currently, you may be experiencing some stress due to overinvolvement.

I am 13 years of age and right handed. I was taught to slant my letters and make many letters differently than I do. I have always thought the book way was boring and that it didn't

You may also be concerned about something in the future.
A strong visual sense can be seen in your handwriting style. You have an eye for aesthetics, form and structure. A talent for creating with your hands is also here.
If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene

Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is also welcomed. Lorene Green regrets that time does not allow her to send personal replies.

Drops ease symptoms

"I saw children with problems caused by allergies that I would send to a general allergist. It would come back that yes, they had allergies but they weren't severe enough to treat."

Simpson started doing allergy testing and treatment about 18 years ago, all the while watching the progress of chemical testing. Eventually, he added that to his practice.

LIKELIKE, HE is watching the area of nutritional medicine.

People need a certain amount of minerals and vitamins to stay healthy, and with many of his patients chronically ill due to allergies, Simpson believes nutritional medicine may be another part of their treatment.

By using vitamin supplements that are pure and "contain what they should contain," Simpson tries to replenish the body's supplies and speed the recovery from the chronic illness.

"We all need certain trace minerals to function, and with a chronic illness, the nutritional pools can be depleted. So what we're talking about is trace minerals and vitamins to replace the exhausted pools to allow the other treatment help improve the condition."

Simpson finds his work with allergy patients rewarding.

"The people have been sick so long and it changes their lives so dramatically that it improves the quality of their lives. I find it more gratifying than surgery. The problem is here and gone with surgery."

Chemicals turn up in most everything

Thermal insulation panes, laminated boards, flame retardant finishes, insulation (thermal and acoustical), soundproofing and wood preservatives.

Detergents, laundry starches, shoe polishes and dyes.

Considering the prevalence of chemicals in our lives, it's no wonder that simple avoidance techniques don't work. With his allergies, that Benton Harbor youth can't even attend school.

Knowing what chemicals you are allergic to is the first step in dealing with the problem.

Chemical allergy testing can detect reactions to seven chemicals — formalin, yellow dye, glycerine, chlorine, red dye, phenol and ethanol as well as tobacco smoke.

It also can be used to uncover food allergies. Such testing can detect allergies to meats like beef, pork, beef liver, rabbit, lamb and venison and poultry — duck, chicken and turkey.

The testing also can pick up allergies to eggs, 24 different kinds of fish and shellfish, dairy foods like goat and cow milk, foods from plant sources like vegetable, fruits, nuts and spices.

Chris Ockerman, 20, of Livonia manages to enjoy a ride on a camel during his five-week stay in Egypt.

Work as a missionary inspires Livonia man

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Pyramids, camels and sand . . . a common view of the Middle East.

But Chris Ockerman, 20, of Livonia came away from five weeks in Egypt with other impressions. The main one is a firsthand view of the religious division between Christian and Moslems.

Although the country is 90 percent Islamic, roughly 6 percent of Egyptian people are Christian. That number is dwindling rapidly, Ockerman said.

Two thousand people a year become Moslems while only 200 Egyptians in the past 12 years have converted to Christianity, he said.

Which was the main purpose of Ockerman's trip. He attends Ward Presbyterian Evangelical Church in Livonia and visited Egypt on behalf of the New Wilmington Missionary Conference.

"The Christians are heavily persecuted for their faith," said Ockerman, a 1988 graduate of Redford Temple Christian. "People wear the cross here as a decoration. There, they wear the cross as a symbol of life."

"In the city, it might mean not getting a taxi or they'll go into a store and they'll suddenly be out of something even though it's on the shelves."

Those are subtle methods. The Christians are also discriminated against for jobs and housing, and in some upper regions, are physically persecuted, Ockerman said.

HE DIDN'T see the latter firsthand. As an American, Ockerman said the Egyptian people went out of their way to make him and others in his group feel welcomed.

During his recent visit, there was no indication of the trouble taking place in the region.

"They love Americans, but they hate American policies. We'd ask them who was their favorite U.S. president and most of them would say (Jimmy) Carter. They were split on (Ronald) Reagan and (George) Bush.

"Because of the TV shows they see like 'Dallas' and 'Dynasty,' they think all Americans are rich but amoral."

DURING HIS five-week stay, Ockerman took in the usual tourist sites such as the pyramids and Mount Sinal. He spent a little more than a week at a Christian camp, Beitel Salam, where the visitors worked on the grounds. He also helped out at a vacation Bible school-type setting at another place.

Ockerman is quick to say his group didn't do much for the Christian sector in Egypt. It was more of a case of what they did for them.

Missionary work was limited only to helping other Christians. Evangelism in Egypt is illegal. Yet, the ability of Christians to persevere provided ed an inspiration to Ockerman and his group.

"It gave me a new charge. It changed my views of what I'll be doing with the church in the future. Seeing the church in Egypt and the Egyptian faith showed a lot of weaknesses in the American church, which my generation is going to have to play a vital role in changing."

ONCE HE graduates with an accounting degree from Grove City College, a small Presbyterian college in Pennsylvania, Ockerman would like to go to the inner city or a Third World country and start a business. The idea would be to bolster the economy by employing people in that particular depressed region.

To prepare for the trip, Ockerman studied Arabic culture and customs. He even learned a few phrases of the language.

World travel is not new to him. He's been to Europe on a few occasions, including one trip to Holland as a missionary for Ward Presbyterian Church.

Most trips require a person to raise half of the money while the church pays for the other half. New Wilmington Missionary Conference paid for all Ockerman's expenses to Egypt.

Caring for aging parents takes its toll

By Julia Brown
staff writer

Taking care of aging parents who aren't in good health can be stressful. "Sandwich generation" members who must care for their children and their aging parents often find that combination is tough to handle.

"We get spread pretty thin sometimes," said the Rev. Harvey Heneveld, pastor of Christ Community Church of Canton.

Helping people cope with those demands is the goal of a seven-week seminar, "Understanding Mom and Dad." The seminar will begin 7-8:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 7, at the church, 45701 Ford, west of Canton Center in Canton.

Subsequent sessions will be 7-8:30 p.m. each Sunday through Nov. 18. Price is $10 per couple or single.

"Every night we'll be covering a different dimension of the whole situation," said Heneveld, a Canton resident.

TOPICS TO BE COVERED ARE:

- Oct. 7: an introduction and "The Age Wave" video presentation;
 - Oct. 14: the aging process;
 - Oct. 21: sources of help;
 - Oct. 28: bureaucratic issues, including Medicare, Medicaid and Social Security benefits;
 - Nov. 4: legal issues;
 - Nov. 11: housing options, including choosing a nursing home;
 - Nov. 18: spiritual issues and needs.
- "We're sponsoring this because we felt the need."
- Some church members care for their aging parents. They decided such a seminar would be helpful for others as well.

"THE PEOPLE that we have lined up are experts in their field. They recognize the tremendous need for this kind of thing."

Nel Thompson from The Senior Alliance and Karen Ross from Madonna College's gerontology department have been particularly helpful, Heneveld said.

He knows that caring for aging parents can be stressful. Heneveld's parents are older and live in Holland, Mich.

"Fortunately, they are still in relatively good health."

His parents have continued to live independently, but bouts of sickness in recent years have placed demands on other family members.

CHANGES IN society mean more middle-aged people are caring for older loved ones.

"We're looking toward living longer than our parents did, perhaps."

Greater mobility means that other family members frequently aren't available to help provide care.

In such situations, support for caregivers is eroded "to the point where we're really isolated. Often, that becomes very difficult."

Long-distance caregiving is among subjects to be covered in the seminar.

THE SEMINAR isn't limited to those who have elderly parents. Teens and young adults are also welcome, as are older people.

Heneveld was previewing "The Age Wave" video at home, and found his teenage children were interested in the issues it raised.

Heneveld, the founding pastor of the Canton church, isn't sure at this point just how many people will sign up for the seminar.

"We've not done anything like this before. We could have a fairly good response."

The $10 registration price is designed to cover the cost of refreshments and other expenses. It can be waived for those unable to pay.

Advance registration for the "Understanding Mom and Dad" seminar is requested. For registration information, call 981-0499. Nursery care ($1 per child) will be available at the church during seminar sessions.

care for their parents when necessary, Heneveld said.

"The Scriptures are very clear in the teaching."

Honoring parents is one of the Ten Commandments.

"That's one of the 10 basic principles of life, honoring and caring for our parents. It's something that is a high priority for us."

Expansion

Parish grows by leaps and bounds

By Louisa Okrutsky
special writer

In the 25 years St. Gerald's Roman Catholic Church has been in existence, it's grown along with the parts of Livonia and Farmington it serves.

While its parish population almost doubled in the last 10 years from 500 to 960 families, its original building remained the same.

This year, the parish embarks on a construction project which will give it a new 9,500-square-foot worship area which accommodates 220 more seats than the existing one. The project is expected to be completed by next spring.

"The parish is very enthusiastic," said its pastor, the Rev. Gerald McEnhill. "So far, a fund-raising drive has netted $700,000 in pledges and donations toward the $1,450,000 project."

Originally, the structure was intended to serve as a church only temporarily. Plans to turn it into an elementary school were never completed.

"The ideal then was that every parish should have a school," McEnhill said.

INSTEAD, PARISHIONERS ended up making do with a church that seemed to be getting smaller each year. During Sunday services, a portion of the congregation was forced to stand outside the main worship areas and in the hallways.

Building plans call for the new worship area to be built in part of the existing parking lot behind the church garage and over the baseball backstop on Farmington Road, north of Eight Mile. The backstop will be moved.

"It's going to be chaos," McEnhill said.

However, out of chaos will grow order. The new church will be built around the altar in much the same fashion as a theater in the round.

That allows parishioners to observe the services from most vantage points while maintaining an intimate family atmosphere in the church, according to McEnhill.

Small niches in the pews will permit people using wheelchairs to sit with everyone else. A ramp to the sanctuary will allow people using wheelchairs to be readers near the altar during services.

While the parish gains more space and comfort in which to worship, it also acquires a larger area for social gatherings. The old church will be used as a social hall. A kitchen and more storage and office space will be added.

Cruise to Bermuda brings party aboard

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

MICKY JONES

Squeezing the 95-foot wide cruise ship, Horizon, through the 130-foot entrance to St. George's Harbor in Bermuda requires skillful navigation.

ABOARD THE M.V. HORIZON: Passenger liners have changed a lot since Cary Grant and Deborah Kerr waltzed across the movie screen in tuxedo and evening gown earlier this century. If Capt. Gerassimos Andrianatos was so inclined he could set the M.V. Horizon on "automatic" and it would sail the 774 miles from New York City to Bermuda by itself.

The Horizon is one of the new state-of-the-art ships built for cruising in 1990, but some things haven't changed. The ship still makes that foghorn sound as it moves out of port late on a Saturday afternoon and voices still ripple excitedly across the deck "Are we moving? Are we moving?"

As the skyline of New York City slides by, the band plays "Yellow Bird," the white-jacketed waiters carry trays of pina colodas and mait d'ors on their heads and passengers tap their toes to the music.

I stretched out on a deck chair to watch Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty go by and the next thing I knew we were at sea headed for the next landfall, Bermuda.

The Horizon spends Saturday and Sunday night at sea, Monday and Tuesday in Hamilton, the capital city of Bermuda, Wednesday and most of Thursday in St. George's, the historical city of Bermuda, Thursday and Friday nights sailing back to New York.

Most passengers are from the eastern seaboard because Midwesterners tend not to think of Bermuda as a cruise destination, but there are a few from Michigan. Irena Filipovic of Bloomfield Hills was aboard with her daughter Susan, a Lahser High School senior, and her son Dan, a University of Michigan student.

The Filipovics have cruised extensively, so they are most interested in the sun-sea aspects of the Horizon. Other passengers cruise as a preamble and a postscript to Bermuda and to use the ship as a luxury hotel and dining room while in port.

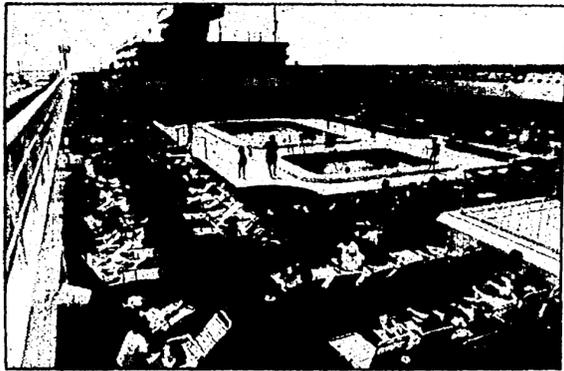

SATURDAY NIGHT was party night for most passengers, who lingered over a five-course dinner, explored the casino and the disco, watched the stage entertainment and filled the bars. Some of us even remembered to put our watches ahead an hour to Bermuda time.

One of the ways ships are defined as far as style is concerned, is by the way that people eat, drink and play, and what they wear while they are doing it. Sunday was a glorious day and we were alone on an empty sea, waving a wide turquoise wake behind us and coloring the deck chairs around the pool with bathing suits, T-shirts and sunhats.

Like all cruise ships, the decks were covered with shorts and shirts at checkers, bridge, shuffleboard, skeet shooting, golf, wine tasting, arts-and-crafts classes, bingo, ping pong, aerobics and at all the poolside shenanigans organized by the cruise director.

Those who read the dress code know that on the Horizon the guidelines call for jacket and tie after 6 p.m. Not everybody reads or abides by the guidelines, and nobody says anything if they don't, but on the two formal nights during the week's cruise most unburned noses rise above suits and cocktail dresses. We are almost as well dressed as the European waiters who serve us in the large, elegant dining room.

New Germany route yodels with charm

Iris Sanderson

What a rotten break, I thought. Then I remembered Miltenwald, Adi, and Dinkelsbühl.

Until last week, everybody who had signed up for the Oct. 2-13 tour sponsored by this newspaper and Lufthansa, the German airline, was excited about starting the tour in Berlin, Berlin, the city of reunification. Berlin, the city that used to have a wall down its main street.

Two weeks ago the two Germanies took the excitement another step. Reunification would take place Oct. 3. On the very date our tour was planning to be there. Too good to be true of course. We had to bow to history and leave the hotel rooms to the statesmen.

What a rotten break. Then I saw the new itinerary: Rothenburg, Dinkelsbühl and Garmisch-Partenkirchen. And I remembered Adi.

THE SCRAPBOOK I was looking for was in the basement, in a box, on a top shelf at the back, but I finally found it. It was a record of our first trip to Europe, told in words, photos, postcards, receipts and scraps of toilet paper. It was the first time we had sampled toilet paper that felt like sandpaper so we made a collection.

As I turned the pages I started to smile. There was the night we met young Germans in the Hofbrauhaus in Munich, where the man asked me to dance and twirled me so fast I fell on the floor. Where the girl carried three one-liter mugs of beer in each hand like a weight lifter.

There was Adi of the toothless grin, met in a "weinstube," a small version of a beer hall, in the mountain village of Miltenwald, near Garmisch-Partenkirchen. And there it was, straight out of the 16th century, the tiny village of Dinkelsbühl, on the Romantische Strasse—the Romantic Road.

I WAS so excited on that trip that I wrote everything down for my scrapbook. How it felt to watch the sun come up from an airplane. Riding the cable car up the Austrian

'The Love Boat' stirs waves at Panama

Reader's Report features adventures taken by local travelers. If you would like to report on your recent excursion, please write to Iris Jones, Suburban Communications Corp., 38251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, 48150.

Lee and Ann Corless of West Bloomfield cruised through the Panama Canal last year aboard the Pacific Princess, which many of us remember as "The Love Boat" of national television fame. Here is their report:

After sailing at 11 p.m., we were up early the next morning to tour our first port — St. Thomas. This is an exceptionally beautiful island and definitely worth a return trip. In each port, we had the choice of several different excursions to take and the hardest part was picking which one, as it was usually impossible time-wise to get in more than one.

I very much wanted to get over to the two nearby islands of St. Croix and St. John, where the snorkeling is supposed to be fantastic, but we picked the round-the-island tour instead. We were not disappointed and can always return for a longer stay.

THE MAIN town of Charlotte Amalie has wonderful shopping opportunities, especially in lovely jewelry, but we managed to restrain ourselves and picked up nothing except more film. Some of our fellow cruisers spent the day swimming and sunning at beautiful Mogens Bay and pronounced it one of the best beach excursions they had ever had.

Next stop in the West Indies was the island of St. Martin, Sint Maarten — half of the island is under Dutch rule and the other half French! The inhabitants can move freely from one side to the other with no showing of passports at the borders, which are simply marked with signs saying you are now entering the Dutch side or the French side.

Our guide told us this island is a favorite spot for celebrities, as no one bothers them here, not being as popular or well known as some of the other islands. Here, we enjoyed sampling and buying some of the locally produced liqueurs with exotic flavors such as guavaberry, mango, wild lime and spice.

THE FOLLOWING day brought us to French Martinique. This is also a lovely island and so much like Hawaii that, as we were driving around, we kept thinking we were on streets back in Honolulu. The vegetation and terrain are almost identical. Throughout the Caribbean, some of the islands are actually quite old and not very tropical looking. We finally managed to get in for snorkeling in the morning, and Lee and I rented a taxi to drive us around in the afternoon.

We had a very talkative and interesting driver. One of the delightful things about the Caribbean is the Sailing 'Horizon' brings style to sea

By dusk Sunday night, Captain's Night, the deck chairs around the pool were empty. Those signed up for the first dinner seating at 6 p.m., popular because it leaves playtime in Bermuda, were eating Lobster Thermidor in the Starlight Restaurant. The second seating at 8:15 p.m., passengers were shaking the captain's hand.

Capt. Andrianatos, born on the Greek island of Ithaca, was on board with his New Zealand wife and children. Chandris Cruises, which owns Celebrity Cruises and therefore the Horizon, encourages senior officers to bring families aboard.

MONDAY MORNING we awoke to a voice coming through the ship's loudspeaker: "Ladies and gentlemen, we are now sailing down the coast of Bermuda." I have already written about Bermuda (travel pages August 30) and the thrill of docking on Front Street in the middle of Hamilton, with the whole of the small colorful town spread out before us.

Bermuda is wisely trying to keep its island life intact, so it recently reduced the number of cruise ship passengers allowed to enter the island from 150,000 to 120,000 a year. The Horizon keeps this wonderful "parking place," along with the Viking Star and the Nordic Prince, because of a 10-year contract signed between Chandris Lines and the Bermuda government.

Chandris is an expert at converting glamorous old passenger ships to cruise ship use, but has not been known as a luxury line. Their Bermuda contract for Celebrity Cruises, which presently includes the Horizon and the SS Meridian, is to attract upscale passengers to the island.

THE FOOD on ship is excellent, not surprising since the kitchen was established under the supervision of restaurateur Michel Roux, who runs two British restaurants earning Michelin's coveted three-star rating. I didn't like the coffee but espresso is available at $1.50 a cup from the bar.

Neither gambling nor entertainment were allowed on the ship in port, so passengers were ready to party again when the Horizon sailed at 3 p.m. Thursday for its trip home.

One more formal night. Another crack at the blackjack table or the nickel slot machines. Another day to broil in the sun. Soon enough we were listening to Australian Cruise director Neil Roberts tell us about buying that last duty-free item, tipping the cabin stewards and waiters.

"Leave your bags outside the cabin at midnight," he said. "You'll be packed early, so you might as well stay up until we get to New York in the morning!"

On the Horizon...

The Motor Vessel Horizon is a 46,811 ton vessel, 6822 feet long, carrying a maximum of 1354 passengers in 677 cabins on nine decks. It has approximately one crew member to each two passengers.

Rates range from $995 for an inside cabin on the lowest deck to $2500 for an outside cabin on the top deck. Basic outside cabin with window is $1275. Add $65 for port fees and $200 add-on for air fare, plus about $60 for tips.

A second Celebrity Cruise ship, the renovated SS Meridian, docks at the end of the island and ferries passengers to Hamilton. Rates start $100 lower but a cabin with window still starts at $1275.

Two other cruise ships sail weekly to Bermuda: Royal Viking's Viking Star which starts at $1160 and Royal Caribbean's Nordic Prince which starts at $1060.

EUROPEAN LUXURY

language of the natives; it is so musical you can almost hear a calypso beat. In most places, it is a mixture of English, French, Spanish and whatever. A highlight of Martinique was visiting a replica of the Paris cathedral of Sacre Coeur. However, here it is perched on top of one of the very green mountains in the interior, away from the main city.

Finally a day at sea to relax before the next stop. By this time, we felt we needed another vacation to rest up from our cruise! Curacao was next. This is a Dutch island, and the port of Willemstad looks like a mini-Amsterdam with its quaint, colorful buildings, tile roofs, and Dutch street names.

ONE CAN easily walk into the heart of town from the pier and getting there is part of the fun. You must cross the harbor via a swaying pontoon bridge that swings open frequently to allow ships to enter. If the bridge is open when you want to return, no need to swim, you just hop a small ferry that makes frequent crossings over the short distance.

The famous Curacao liqueurs are made here and naturally every tourist must bring back at least one souvenir bottle — along with perhaps some Delftware. The shops carry imported articles from all over the world, and I was surprised to find the carved wooden animals I had seen in Bali for the same price as over there after having been shipped some halfway around the world! And if one gets worn out from shopping, you can always sip a Heineken beer at a charming sidewalk cafe.

Some passengers skipped the shops altogether and went to the Seaquarium, and interesting and somewhat unusual aquarium where the fish are kept in natural habitats with access to the sea water.

Another day at sea and then the main attraction — The Panama Canal. Everyone was up early so as not to miss the start around 7 a.m. at the port of Cristobal (city of Colon.) The actual distance from where you enter at the Atlantic side to emerging in the Pacific is about 50 miles, with the complete transit taking about eight to nine hours. Cruise ships have first priority, so there was virtually no waiting in line.

THERE ARE six sets of locks in all. We first entered the Gatun Locks where three sets raise the ship a total of 85 feet. This was perhaps the most exciting time, as all the passengers crowded against the various forward decks to watch the gates being opened in front — and then everyone would rush to the stern to watch them close behind the ship.

The operation of raising and lowering in each lock actually took only a few minutes. The locks are very narrow and it was hard to imagine anything much larger than our ship squeezing through. We were told the largest had only 2 inches to spare on either side!

Once you enter the lock, you are pulled along by four railway-type engines, appropriately called "mules," which run on tracks along either side. They are tethered to the ship by lines fore and aft. Although the entire operation is a marvel of engineering, one aspect still remains rather primitive. Two men in a small rowboat have to row out to pass lines from the mules to the ship.

After the Gatun locks, you enter the huge man-made Gatun Lake which was formed when the adjacent Chagres River was dammed. Ships travel slowly some 23 miles through this lake. There are many small islands in the water and the coastline is very tropical with numerous different birds to be seen flying about.

THEN COMES the long, narrow, nine-mile Gaillard Cut (named after the U.S. Army engineer in charge of its excavation) through the highest portion of the isthmus, the Continental Divide. Here it is like sailing through an enormous ditch. This was the most difficult portion of the entire canal to construct, as it had to be carved through rock for most of the distance. I read that the amount of earth moved would be the equivalent of digging a giant trench all the way from Los Angeles to New York!

After the Cut comes the single set of Pedro Miguel Locks, where the ship is now lowered some 30 feet into tiny Miraflores Lake. You then go through the remaining two sets of locks, and finally drop down to the level of the Pacific Ocean and into the port of Balboa, just outside Panama City.

The day we traveled through the canal was the hottest day of our entire trip. The sun burned down with such intensity that being out on the deck unsheltered became agonizing. The few people who were imprudent enough to stand outside in bathing suits most of the day came down with sunstroke. However, one could easily watch all the activity from a sheltered deck chair or gaze out the large windows while in air-conditioned comfort inside.

All day long during the transit, a local Panamanian guide, who had boarded the ship in Cristobal, was on the loud speaker explaining things as we went along.

THE PREVIOUS day, we had a movie and lecture about the construction of the canal, so it was more meaningful to us as we went through. During the day, the ship's boutique shop did a brisk business selling "Panama Canal" T-shirts and copies of the book "The Path Between the Seas" which quickly sold out.

For me, a very exciting part of the trip came at the end of the Canal when we were anchored in Balboa for refueling. Here we were just outside Panama City and could see the buildings in the distance. Military helicopters flying overhead reminded us of the problems they had with Gen. Manuel Noriega. We were the first ship in a long time that allowed passengers to disembark for a couple of hours. To my delight, the Cuna Indians of the San Blas Islands had set up shop nearby and were selling their wares.

You may have seen or read about the beautiful "molos" the women make. These are intricately applied panels of cloth with very unusual designs. They make wonderful collector's items framed as pictures. The women themselves are very colorful in dress and appearance as their arms, legs, and neck are covered with gold and beaded bands. Some even wear gold rings in their noses! The molos make up the bodice of their dress, and the entire multi-colored outfit makes them look like brilliant parrots.

After the canal, everyone settled down into the daily routine of eating, catching a movie, eating, attending a lecture, eating, gambling, eating, shopping, eating, games, eating, a swim, eating, showtime, eating, dancing, eating. When it comes down to it, the days seemed like one long meal from beginning to end!

Route change won't take fun from trip

We crowded in at either end and side of the Alps to the Zugspitz. Adi. The night we met Adi we had just finished dinner and walked into a weinstube. There was a row of booths down one side of a long narrow room and an "oompa-pa" band at the end.

We walked through, saw no empty tables and were ready to leave when Adi saw us. We didn't know then that Europeans sit at empty chairs even if a table is otherwise occupied.

"Setzen Sie hier! Setzen Sie hier!" ("Sit here, sit here!")

The tall man with the big grin and two top teeth missing was in a semi-circular leather booth with three other people. Obviously two couples out for the evening.

We crowded in at either end and had a hilarious evening. Adi couldn't speak English. I had learned a few words from "German Made Simple" but I couldn't understand him at all.

IT DIDN'T matter. As the band went "oompa-pa," we drank beer, thumped our steins and Adi yodeled. He yodeled about us, while we rocked back and forth, arms linked. He yodeled about "Deee-trott" about "A-mer-i-ca."

He made me promise to send him a postcard from Detroit. I sent a skyline picture of Detroit as soon as I got home.

Meanwhile, we drove on to Dinkelsbühl. We stayed in the Deutsches Haus, restored over centuries to be a cosy inn. We saw the girls in Bavarian dresses, the 15th century church and the women carrying their string bags to market.

The concierge, who looked like Raymond Massey, met us on the street as we were ready to leave town. He stood there in his well-cut suit, with a basket of lettuce over his arm, and waved us away.

Small memories. Great memories. It wasn't over then either, as we learned a year later when a tattered postcard arrived one Saturday morning from Mittenwald. The picture showed the exact semi-circular leather booth where we had yodeled through an evening with Adi.

On the back, in a mixture of German and English were these words:

"We miss you. Come back. Auf Wiedersehen."

It might even be better than Berlin.

Westland girl is a Torchlighter

When they throw the switch to light the United Way torch at the foot of Woodward in downtown Detroit on Monday, Sept. 24, Jennifer Swanguarin will be there.

In fact, the eight-year-old Westland resident will be helping to throw the switch.

The daughter of Kevin and Jeanette Swanguarin, Jennifer is serving as a Torchlighter for the 1990 United Way Torch Drive which kicks off with the annual torch lighting ceremony.

The youngster is one of six metropolitan area residents selected to serve as Torchlighters this year. The Torchlighters represent the thousands of people receiving services from the more than 150 United Way-supported agencies.

The other Torchlighters are Crystal Slade of Taylor, Art Williams of Detroit, Matthew Ignash of Southfield, Michael McCarthy of Shelby Township and Jason Powell of Detroit.

Jennifer has leukemia and receives help from the Children's Leukemia Foundation. She is in the second year of a three-year treatment program for the disease and is "doing extremely well," her mother said.

"They've been moral support for us; the Leukemia Foundation has been like a shoulder to lean on," said her mother. "We know that someone else is thinking of Jennifer through their cards and newsletters." In addition to participating in the torch lighting ceremony, the Torchlighters will make personal appearances at employee United Way campaign meetings and various other United Way functions.

The United Way raises funds for health and human service agencies in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, dealing with critical problems like child abuse and neglect, infant mortality, juvenile delinquency and crime, substance abuse, care for the elderly and families under stress.

Last year's Torch Drive raised $62.9 million. The 1990 Torch Drive goal is $66.75 million.

Lawyering undergoes some changes

Legal check-ups reveal problems

By R.J. King
special writer

In a spacious office overlooking the rooftops of downtown Birmingham, Frederick Hoops defuses time bombs using his more than 20 years of legal experience.

As an attorney specializing in preventive law, Hoops helps area companies avoid costly lawsuits.

"There are some very simple rules to follow to avoid lawsuits, and there are more complex ones, but violate either of them and it could ruin the company," said Hoops, president of the law firm Frederick K. Hoops & Associates. "A company may have some misleading statements in their employee handbook or need help with deciding what to put on product warning labels, and that's where we come in."

While the practice of preventive law is nothing new, Hoops maintains it has caught on in recent years, especially among small- and medium-sized businesses ever mindful of a more litigious society.

And the reason many companies end up in court, Hoops said, is that they don't audit their operations for potential pitfalls or instill a legal consciousness in the employees.

"A BUSINESS can run into many hazards, both civil and criminal, if they're not careful," Hoops said. "A legal audit is one way to cut down on potential problems while at the same time offer peace of mind."

Comparable to a home inspection, a legal audit or wellness program, involves reviewing company procedures in employee hiring and firing, environmental hazards, signing of contracts, product liability claims and the maintenance of safe working conditions.

Depending on the size of the company, a set of policies and directives can be developed to guide those employees involved in litigation-vulnerable situations. For smaller companies, especially retail outlets, a detailed inspection of the store becomes necessary.

As an example, Hoops said companies need to make as thorough a check as possible on new employees, as employers can be held liable for negligent hiring if a worker harms or injures another worker or customer.

Even seemingly harmless decisions that stray from existing procedures can prove detrimental to a company.

In a case involving Ford Motor Co., an employee charged with destroying documents in accordance with the existing laws decided it was easier to transport the documents in their file cabinets to a landfill. The files were to have been buried in boxes.

WHEN THE case came to trial years later, the plaintiff's attorney questioned the employee, and finding the files housed in cabinets, moved to have a bulldozer dig up the buried material. The judge ruled in favor of the attorney over the objections of Ford.

"With a legal audit follows advanced planning," Hoops said. "If you're a small business owner with children, it pays to plan for your estate now, if you want your children to take over some day."

"Some people let it go, and if they suddenly pass away, there could be a long, drawn-out lawsuit to determine who should control the company. Such suits as these can be avoided in most cases with proper estate planning."

Depending on the size of the company and the nature of its business, Hoops said an audit could take a few hours to several days or weeks to complete. Hourly fees range from $100 to $200.

Henry Sandwells, president of KWS Realty Services in Southfield, and an attorney, said he consulted Hoops for his expertise in securities in 1986, but the relationship soon moved into other aspects of his business.

"We structure a lot of limited partnerships for office buildings, warehouses and strip malls, and since this is a highly regulated business, Fred is always asking me: 'Have you done this, have you done that?'"

"He makes sure we're in compliance with the law, and he has helped with other matters of our

Take our society's litigious nature, add increasing business regulations, ever-changing tax laws, a move toward mergers and acquisitions, and what you find is a new breed of lawyers, helping business owners in and out of court, and accountants who serve up the "bullets" in litigation support services.

Numbers people have bigger role

By Doug Funko
staff writer

Accountants are looking toward the legal arena — apparently with good reason — to expand their practices.

Bankruptcy filings in the Eastern District of Michigan are on the upswing. Trustees, usually lawyers appointed by the court to monitor the process, frequently seek help pulling numbers together.

Executives considering bankruptcy often need assistance. Creditors aren't as willing to take their lumps without a fight.

Business valuations also are essential in liquidations, mergers and divorce proceedings. Insurance losses and breach-of-contract situations also provide opportunities.

As a result, more medium-sized operations are forming internal litigation support teams, according to Hector A. Bultynck III, principal in the Troy accounting firm of Bultynck & Co.

"It's not new to us and not new to the industry," he said. "What we're trying to do here is make the process more formal."

And carve other business niches.

"YOU'VE GOT to become profitable in other areas," said Lawrence Brown, partner in the Southfield accounting firm of Burnsteln, Morris & Brown. "Overhead is killing you with regular accounts."

"Firms are trying to find ways to expand their practices," said Gary Leeman, a partner with Brown. "It (litigation support) is a natural with the litigious society we're in. The demand is there."

"It's a function of commercial litigation becoming more complicated. It requires more and more experts," added Robert McAuliffe, director of general practice for Coopers & Lybrand.

Mid-sized firms are best suited for litigation support activities, Bultynck and Brown maintain.

They reason that larger international accounting firms, even though they may have the staff to do the job, could easily find themselves in conflict of interest positions with their myriad of clients.

Litigation support services don't readily fall into the traditional management structure of larger accounting firms, McAuliffe said. Also, it's difficult to find experienced accountants with a feel for the task.

Smaller firms generally don't have the personnel and expertise to do the job, Bultynck said.

SO EXACTLY what does this litigation support team do?

"I tell attorneys we supply them with accounting bullets," said Andrew Belsky, manager of consultant services for Brown's firm.

John Urban, who recently joined Bultynck to oversee the litigation support team there, elaborated a typical bankruptcy scenario.

"Because of the firm's difficulties, it may have fired its accountant two years ago to save costs. Records aren't up to date. Records may have been put in boxes while they moved to smaller offices."

"That's where we step in. We know what we're looking for and how to reconstruct records to put together financial statements so he can act."

LAWYERS ALMOST risk malpractice today if they don't get accountants involved in litigation support, Leeman said.

And, like everything else, experience counts.

"It's almost impossible for one guy to stay abreast of everything in the accounting profession," Bultynck said. "Almost all firms of our size are trying to develop a (litigation support) practice."

The American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the Michigan Association of CPAs, professional organizations, have established litigation support committees this year.

Leeman is chairman of the state committee.

The goal is to present articles, information and seminars to the emerging field.

"We like to say any case that involves damages could involve a CPA. The field has picked up," Leeman said. "Almost everyone in it happened to get a call from an attorney they knew. It was a first-time experience and they went on from there."

Firm looks at all angles in field of specialization

By Mary Rodrigue
staff writer

When Jim Simpson and Pat Moran became law partners in 1976, a strategy was born that has served the Birmingham practice well over the past 14 years.

"We took a look at why small firms stay small — basically by taking all the business that comes through the door, developing no specialties," said Moran.

Simpson and Moran would scale their clientele to concentrate solely on business.

"We were blasted and cursed with a changing economy in our formative years." Like today's escalating fuel prices, the firm experienced the problems of spiraling energy costs affecting one of its first clients, a major trucking company.

"It was a quick lesson on the cyclical nature of the Detroit economy," Moran said.

The basic philosophy that has kept the firm afloat through good times and bad has been expansion in good times, litigation in bad.

"In litigation our goal is not retribution, but to get business back on track," said Moran.

With the recent merger of Southfield-based Simon Delich, Simpson Moran now boasts 44 attorneys, with a support staff bringing the operation to 100 employees. Big clients include the American-owned Ambassador Bridge Co. and Warren-based Central Transport, one of the largest trucking companies in the U.S.

The senior partners practice what they preach — they themselves are businessmen and women and they hire young attorneys with the same mind set.

Taking advantage of the recent free trade pact between the U.S. and Canada, Moran owns a metal pallet plant in New Brunswick and is getting into the tire recycling business in Ontario. Simpson is involved in real estate with condominium developments in the Birmingham area. From the newly merged Simon Delich crew, founding partner David Simon is also the founder of Franklin Savings & Loan, which has grown into a three-branch operation generating $400 million in assets.

MORAN AND HIS associates have little patience with attorneys who have a take-charge attitude instead of using their clients expertise to garner the best results.

"There has been an attitude in law for years that the practice of law would be great except for clients. We don't believe that. We don't give yes or no answers. We tell (clients) better ways of doing things."

Clark Doughty is one of the breed of young attorneys trained in the Simpson Moran mode. A pharmacist turned lawyer, Doughty joined the firm as a clerk in 1982 and earlier this year made full partner.

"It's an aggressive approach here. We focus on the entrepreneurial client who needs an innovative approach," said Doughty of Farmington Hills. His interests are real estate, mergers and acquisitions.

"Whenever we work with a client, we try not to have a real narrow focus," he said. "We take the approach — how does this affect the rest of your business? It's a proactive approach and also a preventative approach. And it's challenging. Because of that it stays interesting."

David Simon, law school contemporary of Simpson and Moran, says the trio "grew up in the profession together." He characterizes the recent merger as adding depth and breadth to two solid Oakland County practices.

"Simpson Moran has a good practice in labor relations. Simon Delich has depth in government relations practice."

"I'm in the positive results business. It's not how but what I do — fulfill a client's expectations. We know the business problems and how to resolve them. We are involved with them ourselves."

"All too often a valid criticism of lawyers is that they serve up the legal needs but not business needs," Simon said. "We try to serve up business and legal solutions to meet the objective. You have to understand business issues. If you don't, you can't provide answers."

First of two parts

The Annuity with a Twist (AIT) published on June 7 aroused more interest than any other column I have published this year. But it also created a lot of confusion and raised many new issues. In a two-part article I will elaborate on my previous column. I will also conduct a seminar on this topic (see below).

Why a fixed annuity

Many investors are enamored by the attractive returns they believe they can get from equity investments, but they often forget the risks associated with the market. Take a look at Table 1. The ABC mutual fund returned more than the fixed annuity in four out of five years.

Even more important, in two of those years, the fund returned more than 20 percent. And yet, after five years, returns on both investments were identical, even though the fixed annuity offered a very conservative 8 percent. So the moral is that a fixed annuity can be an appropriate investment for many risk averse investors.

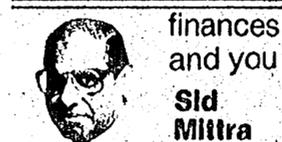

Immediate annuity versus AIT

In a typical immediate annuity the amount owed you by the insurance company gradually reduces to zero when the term expires. In contrast, in AIT, the insurance company owes you the original amount during the term of the contract. This contrasting feature is clearly demonstrated in Table 2.

Key differences in annuities

Table 3 underscores the major differences between a typical immediate annuity and the AIT. It reveals that the AIT is superior to a typical annuity in several respects.

For instance, over a 16-year period, AIT pays $50,543 more than the immediate annuity — not an insignificant amount for an initial $100,000 investment. In addition, the tax-free payout over the term is far higher for AIT than it is for the immediate annuity.

business, such as advanced planning and making sure our properties are structured correctly."

Before opening his firm in 1974, Hoops was an attorney examiner for the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission. He also holds a master of business administration and master of law in taxation degrees.

ROBERT B. Webster, a partner with Hill Lewis in Birmingham, and president of the Michigan State Bar, said it was not uncommon for smaller companies to request legal check-ups from the firm.

"We might find companies aren't keeping their minutes up to date on an annual basis, not reviewing contracts properly, perhaps we'll examine their tax structure to see where they can save money.

A former Oakland County Circuit Court judge, Webster said the firm's clients include automotive suppliers, research and development firms, computer software companies and businesses within the service industry.

The only time we might see a flurry of activity is when certain laws are changed," he said. "When the federal tax laws were rewritten in 1986, we were very busy, but more often things flow at an even keel."

Oil conservation is easy: Buy a higher-mileage car

Gather around kids, and I'll tell you stories about the old days, back when Iran was the bad guy, and the Shah had just put Ross Perot's man in jail, and Perot had to enlist the aid of the Ayatollah to get him out.

That was back when oil prices were soaring, and the Department of Energy put on show-and-tell sessions that had every crackpot inventor in the world sitting in rooms rented in the Hyatt, with some device that would save gasoline sitting in his lap.

Now comes the silly season again, as any thought of a gasoline tax goes out the window lest we have to cut the suntan oil rations for U.S. troops, and preposterous ways to "conserve energy" get yet another airing.

If I sound cynical, it's because I'm still mad about the state of Michigan raising my license plate fee for my old Volkswagen Beetle in the heat of the last energy crisis — effectively penalizing me for driving an economy car.

NOW COMES more bizarre proposals, including one to raise the corporate average fuel economy standard to some 40 mpg. I'm convinced that the CAFE standard is supported mainly by people who feel that the law will mystically transform their personal gas hog into a delicate mini-slipper overnight, while it sleeps in their garage.

The reality is that high-mileage cars are sitting there waiting for someone to love them. Funny thing, hardly anybody does.

Bill Magavern, an attorney with the Public Interest Research Group, apparently is one of these dimwits, who claims cars could reach 50 mpg by using "multivalve engines, front-wheel drive, overhead cams and aerodynamic designs" — all features already on nearly every car being sold today, unnoticed by the likes of Magavern.

The reality is that high-mileage cars are sitting there waiting for someone to love them. Funny thing, hardly anybody does.

Dan McCosh

Instead, people are still coughing up federal penalties to buy such cars as the 5.7-liter Cadillac, the big Mercedes, the Nissan Infiniti and most Jaguars, all of which don't meet current CAFE standards and pay hefty fines as a result.

MERCEDES, in particular, is on the eve of launching one of the biggest, fattest Mercedes ever built, a car they developed as a response to the biggest, fattest, Japanese cars ever imposed on the American public.

Nissan has actually figured out a way to make a replacement for a suspension spring that consumes significant amounts of gasoline to operate — a technical wonder if there ever was one.

In the midst of the current panic in thinking about energy, a couple of other highlights come to mind:

Methanol fuel, with all its drawbacks, at least is not controlled via interests in the Mideast, but appears to have been beaten back after extensive lobbying by the major oil producers.

Diesels, inherently fuel-efficient, have been cut out mainly because of problems with emissions. Only Audi has done significant work on their basic technology and is putting a 40-mpg-plus diesel on the market in Europe now.

Domestic cars have improved their mileage by about 100 percent, while the bulk of Japanese cars have worsened by half. Japanese technical experts now say they are at the end of their technical rope. Hab.

NOW COMES support by, of all publications, Automotive News, calling for a so-called "carbon tax."

which taxes fuels that result in carbon dioxide when burned. The guys at Automotive News apparently forgot that automobiles are largely the result of burning coal to make steel — and the carbon tax they propose would push the cost of that material through the ceiling.

I suppose all this rushing back and forth will eventually subside, but I still hold on to the basic philosophy I had when I got that bill for the Volkswagen license plate (OK, so it was only about five bucks, but it's the principle).

If you want a better mileage car, go out and buy one.

Arts 'n Apples shows promotion for a downtown

Probably the most challenging task facing any downtown shopping district is trying to come up with promotional programs that work.

Just celebrating its 25th anniversary, the Paint Creek Center for the Arts' Arts 'n Apples Festival is an example of how a privately sponsored event led to additional companion programs being created to benefit an entire downtown district.

Historically held as a fund-raiser for the center, this year's festival attracted 125,000 to downtown Rochester.

WORKING IN conjunction with several other community groups and non-profit organizations offering everything from apple pies to entertainment, the festival's past success led community leaders to coordinate the Art Downtown program now being held in conjunction with Arts 'n Apples each September.

At a cost of $27,000 in 1989, the Northville Chamber of Commerce and its supporters agreed to act on the recommendation of local architect Greg Presley by sponsoring a Victorian weekend promotion to celebrate the heritage of its downtown district.

WITH A crowd of more than 10,000, the chamber realized it had a winning promotional strategy and is now gearing for its second festival to be held this weekend.

According to Laurie Mars, executive director of the Northville chamber, corporate sponsorships have been crucial to the success of their festival. This year Dick Scott Dodge and Dick Scott Buick helped to bring the Flying Walendas' high-wire act to the festival.

"Although our downtown merchants provide us with donations to cover event expenses, their primary goal is to get people into their shops," Mars said.

Corporate sponsorships have been crucial to the success of the Northville festival.

Northville chamber

ENJOYING THE distinction of hosting the only Michigan-based Victorian theme weekend, Northville expects to attract more than 20,000 people.

John White, executive director of the Livonia chamber, is focused on different kind of promotional strategy.

"In our situation, we don't have a central downtown area per se, but we felt it was very important to educate our local business owners and managers about marketing and promotion as a first step in the right direction."

THROUGH THE efforts of White and Ken Kelsey, owner of Livonia's Kelsey Advertising Specialties, a monthly series of special meetings and roundtable discussions are currently being offered as part of the Chamber's PROMO (Providing Resources, Opportunities and Marketing Options) program.

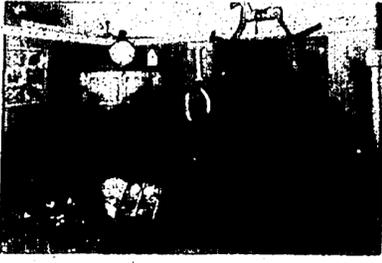

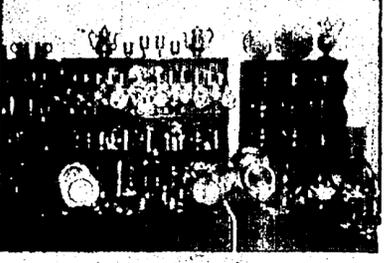

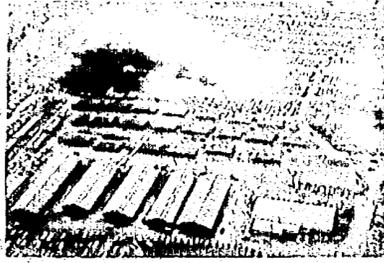

The goal is to provide a forum for sharing marketing in tactics and promotional programs that everyone involved stands to benefit by over time, which we hope leads us to promotional programs that may be pursued by our community as whole," White said.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

Hold good stocks despite Persian Gulf turmoil

Q. Since the disturbance started in Kuwait, I have been bombarded by mail and telephone calls from brokers telling me I should sell my stocks and put my money in money market funds. I read an article this week in the Wall Street Journal in which the writer said the investor only had a few choices as to what he could do with his stocks: He could sell them and hold cash, he could sell them and put the money in money market funds or certificates of deposit or he could sell them and put the money in stocks that hadn't gone down as much as the market.

To me, he left out the most important action you could take and one that I have elected to do. My portfolio, in my opinion, consists of good-quality stocks. They are growing, on the average, a little better than 10 percent a year and are paying dividends regularly. Consequently, to me, the proper step to take is to hold onto my stocks and quit reading the paper and listening to TV newscasts for six months. Would you agree that I am taking the right step?

A. I would agree with you 100 percent. If your holding of stocks is in companies that are growing a little better than 10 percent a year, if they are of good quality and paying you

today's investor
Thomas E. O'Hara of the National Association of Investors Corp.

Increasing dividends, then I would see no reason to sell them in this wild, churning market.

Remember that in spite of what goes on in the world news channels, the officers of the companies in which you own stock are working just as hard as they always have to the unhappy experience of seeing the price of your stocks retreat 20-30 percent from their highs. In a few cases, they will come down even more.

But since you are not selling the stocks but are holding them for future dividends and growth, what they sell for in the meantime really means very little.

Incidentally, you should know that the action of holding on to your stocks puts you in a class with the majority of individual investors. Corporations tell me that 80 percent of their shareholders hold their stock over long periods of time.

Just 20 percent buy and sell frequently, and they account for all the activity. Studies show that over a lifetime, the long-term holder is likely to make the most money.

Thomas O'Hara of Bloomfield Hills welcomes your questions and comments but will answer them only through this column. Readers who send in questions on a general investment subject or on a corporation with broad investor interest and whose questions are used will receive a free one-year subscription to the investment magazine Better Investing.

Local economy declines 8 percent

The National Association of Purchasing Management-Metro Detroit (NAPM-MD) reported an 8.7-point decline in the local economy between July and August.

The composite index fell to 44.1 in August from 52.8 in July. This is the largest one-month decline since November 1987 following the stock market collapse.

"The sharp decline in the composite index during August signifies near recession conditions for the Detroit area," said David G. Sowerby, vice president and economist at Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit. However, he cautioned that the metro area could still avoid an outright economic contraction.

Much of the decline in August reflected near-term uncertainty over the oil crisis in the Persian Gulf. Nevertheless, a weak local economy, particularly in the automotive sector, was also a major reason for the decline.

Production and new orders were down significantly in the auto sector. In June and July auto output was stronger due to pre-contract deadline inventory buildups.

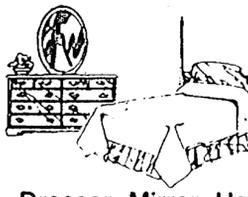

Disturbingly, Sowerby noted that both the composite index for the auto and non-auto sectors are below 50, consistent with a deteriorating regional economy.

August's survey revealed a sharp rise in the commodity price component consistent with a $12 hike in oil prices. This rise was one of the sharpest one-month increases in the price component since the NAPM-MD survey was started in October 1985.

The survey respondents indicated their increased pessimism was due to the combination of rising oil prices and the near-term threat of an auto strike.

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!

Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summer indoors. At Camp Sun Deer® asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

You too, can go to the zoo!

Yep, you can be one of the smiling, happy faces you see here when you're an Observer & Eccentric carrier. Each year, our carriers get to treat their folks to an evening at the Zoo—we call it Carrier Night at the Zoo, and everybody gets in free. When you're a carrier you get a chance at winning some really neat prizes during the year— 10-speed bikes and cool stuff like that. There's work and responsibility, too. That's the serious part of being a carrier. But you learn a lot—like the kids here—and have fun at the same time. If you'd like to be an Observer & Eccentric carrier and you're between 11 and 14 years old, just call one of the numbers below and apply for your very own route.

Crab spiders are easy to find

ONE OF THE simple but interesting activities I do with people while walking through fields in late summer, is to have them look for crab spiders. They are common, colorful, and fairly easy to find. The first person to find one gets my undying gratitude, or some other nebulous prize.

Searching for crab spiders is best when goldenrod and Queen Anne's Lace are blooming. They do not make a web to catch prey with, instead they patiently wait for unsuspecting prey on the showy flower-heads of plants.

When an insect searching for nectar or pollen on the flower gets within range for the crab spider, the spider reaches out and grabs it with its very long front legs. Crab spiders are easy to identify because their front two pair of legs are greatly nature

Timothy Nowicki

elongated. Most crab spiders have rear pairs of legs which are much shorter and which are used to anchor the spider while it reaches with the longer legs.

Unlike many spiders, the legs of crab spiders extend sideways or perpendicular to the long axis of the body. Because crabs have a similar leg orientation these spiders were similarly named.

As you investigate several flowers along the trail you will notice that the white spiders are on the queen-anne's lace and the yellow spiders are on the goldenrod. Like a chameleon, some crab spiders can change their body color to match their surroundings.

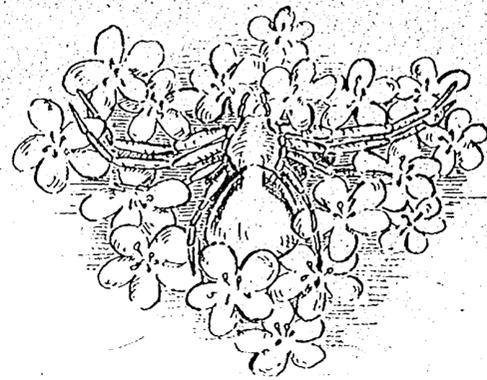

This ability to change color is advantageous to a spider for a couple of reasons. Camouflage for the crab spider prevents it from being seen by potential prey, and also by predators that would eat the crab spider.

Finding your first crab spider may be the most difficult, but after the first one you will spot them more readily. If you happen to find two crab spiders of very different size on the same flower, you have found a male and a female. Males are much smaller than females.

There are many things that one can watch for and investigate while walking trails, next time out try looking for crab spiders and note the delicate beauty of the flowers they frequent.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

Colorful crab spiders are easy to find in late summer. The creatures can often be found in fields containing Queen Anne's Lace.

To fight crime in Philly, people plant posies.

"The bad part of town." Abandoned cars. Sidewalks scattered with crack vials. Bombed-out buildings. A neighborhood whose spirit is as broken as the bits of glass that dot the street. There are only two things to do if your neighborhood becomes a war zone: give up or take action.

The Philadelphia Story
One day, in the "bad part" of Philadelphia, a neighbor complained to a neighbor. And then to another. And then to more. People didn't like their homes being "taken over." Feelings of helplessness and resentment turned to action.

They went to the police for help. Soon a substation was established where folks could readily report crime. Weekly meetings began. Community watches started. Things started getting fixed up.

Vacant lots were cleaned up and fenced. Abandoned cars were towed away. Painting and repairing programs began.

The neighborhood was cleaning itself up. The local 4-R Club even helped set up garden clubs where kids, teens and adults could work together on plants and flowers while talking over ways to raise awareness.

When people care and get involved, neighborhoods change. When a block doesn't look like a haven for crime and drugs, it won't be. And in this part of Philly, where once only apathy grew, even gardens now bloom.

This is only one success story of many. To find out what can be done in your neighborhood, write: The McGruff Files, 1 Prevention Way, Washington, D.C. 20539-0001. And help...

Why I had my baby at Grace.

Grace Physicians and Staff Sherri: My doctor made me feel as though I was his only patient. Patrice: A positive attitude exists at Grace. It just felt like the staff was a family. Grace Nurses Rochelle: They were always available and made me feel relaxed. Dawn: They took the time to sit with me and even held my hand. High-Risk Capability Thelma: I was extra nervous because I was high-risk, but being at Grace made it easier. Patrice: I was not high-risk but I felt more secure knowing Grace had the high-risk capability if I needed it. Labor Delivery Recovery Room Rita: The staff treated my family, including the kids, like they belonged there. A Full Range of Options Sherri: I was delighted that the program at Grace was so extensive. Natural birth, LDR rooms, traditional delivery, midwives. Grace has almost everything. Chandra: It was very important to have the option of having a midwife. She offered techniques to make labor easier. The Wayne State University Affiliation Ilene: Because of the affiliation with the medical school, Grace Hospital is up on all the latest technology.

New country artist knows the write way

Country artist Mark Collie didn't have any big expectations recording his first album, "Hardin County Line," on MCA Records.

"I was just trying to make a good country album," said Collie, who performs Saturday at The Palace in Auburn Hills. "I just tried to write good songs, be true to the songs and get the point across."

Something many country and western listeners might agree Collie is good at doing. His stripped down music is something of a blast from the past, striking images of the 1950s country sound of Hank Williams Sr., while having an edge that would reveal some primal rock'n'roll influences.

Musical influences? The Waynesboro, Tenn., native has a lot of them: Rock'n'roll and rhythm and blues along with country. He mentions Carl Smith and Williams Sr. along with '70s artists as the Eagles and Creedence Clearwater Revival in the same breath.

Collie started in country music at 12, joining his first band. After high school, he played with numerous outfits and spent a year-and-a-half in Hawaii.

He settled in Nashville in the early 1980s where he decided to sit down and focus on songwriting in order to land a record deal. Some patience was in order as the record deal didn't come around until six years later.

While waiting to be signed, Collie wrote a majority of the material for "Hardin County Line." One of the numbers, "Another Old Soldier," was written on Memorial Day 1988 and depicts a person who has fought in a couple of wars and whose life eventually fades away in a veterans hospital.

The person in the song is Collie's father, who died seven years ago in VA hospital in Nashville.

Mark Collie wrote all of the songs on his first album, "Hardin County Line," including one, "Another Old Soldier," that was written about his father who served in World War II.

Career program seeks to aid Hispanic students

The Hispanic Career Days Fiesta, two days of career counseling aimed at students of Hispanic descent, is scheduled 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Thursday and Friday, Sept. 20 and 21, at the Wayne County Community College downtown campus, 801 West Fort Street, Detroit.

Olga Terrazas-Garcia, professor of economics at the Universidad Autonoma Metropolitana de Azcapotzalco, and Jorge Fuentes-Morua, sociology professor at the Universidad Autonoma Metropolitana de Yztapalpa, will address students. There will also be representatives from New Detroit, Inc., the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and Wayne State University.

"We want to raise Hispanic students' awareness of career options, introduce them to employers and advise them on educational preparation necessary to get jobs," said Robert Mejia, director of the community college's Hispanic Service Program.

"Though Hispanics are one of the country's fastest growing minorities, we are not as a group soaring to eduational and career heights," Mejia added.

Some 200,000 Hispanic Americans live in metropolitan Detroit. Language and cultural barriers result in a 70 percent dropout rate from high school, according to Mejia.

During the past three years, the Hispanic Service Program has provided support for an estimated 500 students during their first year of college.

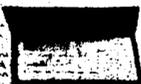

The fiesta will also feature ethnic entertainment and food. For more information, call 498-2873.

At first glance, most interest checking accounts may look alike. But when you compare monthly fees, per-check charges and minimum-balance requirements, an interest checking account from Dearborn Federal Credit Union saves you money. Pay only $2 and no per-check fee if your account falls below our low $100 minimum-balance requirement.

That's a real plus when you consider The Detroit News reported on June 27 that checking fees have jumped 28 percent in seven years, with the typical customer paying $111 annually for an interest-bearing checking account.

What's more, Interest Checking at Dearborn Federal Credit Union offers the convenience of payroll deduction and 24-hour access to your account. Plus, your first 50 checks are free.

1-2 punch propels Spartans

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Karen Groulx and Teresa Sarno aren't exactly your version of the Twin Towers, but the pair of 5-foot-10 post players proved to be an effective one-two punch inside, leading Livonia Stevenson to a 60-54 girls basketball victory over city rival Churchill.

Each team sported 2-0 records heading into the Western Lakes Activities Association opener.

Groulx, a sophomore who played half of last season on the varsity, poured in a game and career-high 18 points.

Meanwhile, Sarno, a junior and the team's leading returning scorer, chipped in with 17 before fouling out in the fourth quarter.

"When you double-team Sarno, then she (Groulx) is going to be like another Sarno," said Stevenson coach Chuck Hebestreit. "Karen can shoot the 15 to 18-foot shot... she has that dimension, but I told her at halftime that we needed her underneath in there rebounding."

The Spartans capitalized by dumping the ball inside of the Chargers' half-court, double-teaming tactics.

"THERE WAS some miscommunication on our defensive traps," said Churchill coach Don Albertson. "There were mistakes made on our part of the trap."

"I was disappointed that we were allowing them to score inside. If we had played defense properly, I think we could have had a better chance of beating them."

Stevenson led 18-12 after one quarter and 29-25 at the half.

The Spartans opened up a 48-38 lead after three quarters, gradually increased their advantage to 60-47 on a basket by Tracy Morrell with 2:58 to go.

Churchill, however, refused to fold, scoring the game's final seven points to keep the score close.

"Churchill will give teams trouble in this league," said Hebestreit. "They have a nice team and they'll do some damage in this league. They've come along way."

Sophomore Chrissy Daly led the Chargers with 16 points, 10 coming in the opening quarter. Lori Place, the All-Area soccer player who did not play last season, added 12 points. Alyssa Belaire, Christina Garry and Fran Priebe chipped in with eight each.

"WE DID NOT execute against their (Stevenson's) man-to-man the way we should have," said Albertson. "We kind of got away from it. But it's early in the season and they'll learn from their mistakes. They hustled for the most part and I'm happy with that. Right now it's just a matter of knowing what we're supposed to do and having certain players fit into the scheme of things."

Hebestreit's goal is to break into the upper echelon of the WLAA, challenging the likes of Plymouth Salem, Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Canton and Walled Lake Western.

"The difference between losing by four and winning by one or two (points) is a big jump," he said.

"It's conceivable that we can be up there. If we think for the entire 32 minutes, we can compete. We had some mental breakdowns at the end. We were forcing layups and shooting when we didn't need to, but Churchill played well at the end, and credit their coaching."

Depth, according to Hebestreit, played a pivotal role in the victory.

"We put the press on with Daly out and we stayed with it to the end," he explained. "Once we put the press on, maybe it didn't work like we had liked, but we made them work a little harder. Churchill may have gotten a little tired."

POINT-GUARD Jenny Audet contributed nine points and Laura Zatorski chipped in with eight.

Ironically, Stevenson was able to increase its lead in the second half with Sarno on the bench with four fouls.

"We were still able to put in two people at 5-10," said Hebestreit. "We still had (Patty) Diamond out there with Groulx, and that's a nice bench."

Hebestreit said his team can make progress if the players accept their roles.

"If we get everybody to do their roles at the appropriate times, we won't have those mental breakdowns," he said.

CC, King match wits

football

Detroit Martin Luther King coach James Reynolds scouted Redford Catholic Central once last year, when the Shamrocks played Birmingham Brother Rice in the Boys Bowl.

"I was disappointed when I went to see the game and found out (CC quarterback) Jason Carr was hurt and couldn't play," said Reynolds. "I know his dad (University of Michigan assistant coach Lloyd Carr). He's a good kid."

Reynolds will get another chance to see Carr — only this time he's not as anxious to watch the new-and-improved quarterback. King and CC, a pair of undefeated Class AA teams, meet in the long-awaited non-conference game at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Livonia Clarenceville.

Both teams have been ranked as high as No. 2 in the AA poll and bring identical 2-0 records into the game.

Carr helped lead CC to a 28-0 win Saturday over Lansing Sexton, but the Shamrocks are well aware of King's resume. The Crusaders lost in the Class A final a year ago and this year have beaten Detroit Osborn and Detroit Finney by a combined score of 84-8.

KING'S OFFENSIVE line averages about 255 pounds per man, and that's only one of the Crusaders' assets.

"I know they're a very good football team, very well coached, disciplined and talented," CC coach Tom Mach said. "They're big and mobile, which is a bad combination for us. It will be real stiff competition for us. This kind of game is hard to predict. Big games like this sometimes come down to the kicking game."

King lost 12 starters to graduation, but return senior tailback Ed Davis, a 5-foot-9, 190-pound speedster who has gained a staggering 426 yards in two games. Fullback Larry Davenport, who gained more than 900 yards a year ago, remains hobbled by a preseason injury but could play Saturday, Reynolds said.

Quarterback Dwight Brown has completed 16-of-20 passes for 265 yards and five touchdowns and his favorite target is wide receiver Marcus Culver. Culver, the brother of Notre Dame running back Rodney Culver, has caught six passes for 104 yards and two TDs.

King's defense, which has surrendered only a total of 132 yards, is led by linebackers Jason Phillips and Corey McCullough.

"Defensively, they cause a lot of problems," Mach said. "They're similar to the 4-6 defenses the (Chicago) Bears and (Philadelphia) Eagles run. They go man-to-man on the corners and that allows them to have a great rush. A lot will depend on how our ends go against their man coverage."

A LOT ALSO will depend on how much CC tailback Mike Thomas is able to play. Thomas played sparingly on offense last week because of an ankle injury, but as of Tuesday Mach said his star back was going at about 95 percent.

The Shamrocks didn't miss him much against Sexton, rolling up 355 yards in total offense and getting 72 yards on 13 carries from fullback Jon Barbara. Jeff Tibaldi gained 69 yards for CC and Carr added 54 yards on nine carries, but Reynolds is most concerned with the Thomas-Barbara combination.

"I'm real impressed with their tailback and fullback," Reynolds said. "Thomas makes you have to take him down. A lot of guys go down when they get hit, but if you don't take him down he's not going down. And 11 (Barbara) is tough. He does the blocking for the tailback."

When CC passes, Carr will be looking for primary receivers Mario Vassallo and Jack Davidson. Vassallo caught four passes against Sexton, including one for a TD.

"Carr is improving each week," Mach said. "The more practice time he has, the better he gets. Each week he has seen different defenses and he's constantly had to adjust and read. He has a good arm and is staying in the pocket with more poise."

The CC defense, which has allowed only eight points in two games, is led by lineman Rob Sylvester, defensive ends Brian Chaney and Dave Dominick, and linebacker Karl Kowalyk.

Parenti in scheme of things with Hurons

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Chris Parenti knows what it's like to start all over again.

The 6-foot-2, 240-pound junior linebacker from Eastern Michigan University has had a bumpy ride over his career, but things are apparently smoothing out for the Livonia Franklin High product.

Parenti, red-shirted as a freshman during EMU's California Bowl season in 1987 and out with a knee injury all of 1989, has bounced back and become an integral part of the Hurons' defense.

"Chris is just so steady," said EMU coach Jim Harkema following Saturday night's 27-24 victory over Western Michigan. "He's a big hitter. He understands what we're doing so well. Some guys may be more talented, but they don't understand what we're doing like Chris does."

"And he hits you a ton. He's been sold for us."

Parenti, who plays special teams and alternates at linebacker with one of his roommates, Mike Danley of Papillion, Ohio, got the start in the Hurons' opener at Fresno State. He finished the night with eight tackles, third on the squad, in a 41-10 loss.

"THE TOP TWO people at just about every position rotate so people can get a rest and you'll always be ready," said Parenti. "Against Fresno I started and then he (Danley) started against Western."

Parenti, whose only previous action was in 1988 when he played just a quarter against both Arizona and Bowling Green, got his baptism under fire against highly touted Fresno, ranked among the nation's top 25 teams.

"Fresno State ran some stuff that we weren't prepared for, some unbalanced looks and some 'boots' (bootlegs)," he said. "There was a lot of contact, but it was fun. "Against Western, because we've played them so many times in the past, we were more familiar with what they do and we were a lot better."

Parenti is thankful to be back in the lineup at all, after partially tearing the medial collateral ligament in his knee during preseason practice in '89.

Surgery was not required, but intense rehabilitation followed.

Shamrocks finish 2nd at invitational

Redford Catholic Central, winners of the West Bloomfield Division III boys cross country championship a year ago, took second place Saturday at Marshbank Park.

The Shamrocks tallied 96 points, to finish behind Monroe, the first-place team with 61 points.

Coach Tony Magni, who last year guided CC to a Class A title, said he likes the challenge of rebuilding his 1990 team. The Shamrocks lost five of their top seven runners to graduation, but Magni has a solid runner in senior Jon Borke, who took eighth place overall in a time of 17 minutes, 11 seconds.

"The team tasted the championship last year and you hope it carries over but we're trying to build for the future," Magni said. "It's enjoyable. Hopefully we'll surprise a few people this year."

CC's lineup included three sophomores, two juniors and a pair of promising sophomores. Senior Jack Massarello took 15th overall (17:33) and was followed in 18th place by fellow senior Mike McDonald (17:34). Sophomore Chris Kuzia took 23rd (17:35), followed by junior Aaron Shetosh 32nd (17:48), sophomore Jamie Fitzgerald, 37th (17:59), and junior John Wiktor, 60th (18:33). Troy Athens' Scott Glasgow won the Division III individual title, finishing the course in 16:39.

Rounding out the top 10 teams were: Warren De La Salle, in third place (108); Brighton, fourth (120); Clio, fifth (149); Rochester Adams, sixth (177); Traverse City, seventh (248); Lake Orion, eighth (256); Athens, ninth (282); and Plymouth Salem, 10th (288).

WB GIRLS RESULTS

The Redford Union girls cross country team scored an impressive, second-place finish Saturday in the Division II race at Marsh Bank Park.

The Panthers gathered 96 points, only seven more than first-place Grosse Pointe North.

RU continued its successful running in a 23-62 dual meet win Tuesday over Farmington Hills Mercy. The Panthers registered five of the top seven times, including the first-place showing of Liza Mockeridge (21:37). Taking fourth place was Michelle Daraban (23:35), followed by Melissa Still (23:00), Jenny Sturdavent (23:07), and Kelly Murray (23:42).

S'craft invite slated for Saturday

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Plymouth Canton will try to defend its boys title, while Farmington hopes to keep its girls crown Saturday in the annual running of the Schoolcraft College Cross Country Invitational.

The 25th boys varsity race, which begins at 9 a.m., features 19 teams and defending individual champion Ben Goba of Farmington, who covered the flat, 5,000-meter course in 15:47.52 last year.

Canton, which lost four of its top five runners to graduation, will vie for the team title along with Walled Lake Central and Western; Redford Union, Thurston and Bishop Borgess; Livonia Churchill, Franklin and Stevenson; Farmington Harrison, Farmington and North Farmington; Westland John Glenn and Wayne Memorial; Plymouth Canton and Salem; Garden City, Northville, Novi and Trenton.

Western could challenge for its first-ever crown, led by Jeff Grosso, who finished eighth a year ago. He is joined by teammate Bill Crosby.

Another top 10 performer returning is Thurston's Tommy Biskner, who took 10th a year ago.

THE 13TH GIRLS varsity race, which begins at 10 a.m., features 18 teams.

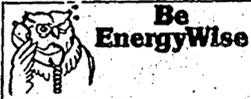

Farmington, which lost individual champ Jennifer Kiel to graduation, returns a top 10 finisher in Jennifer Derwinski, along with Allison Davis and Gretchen Clappison.

Walled Lake Western is also a threat, returning Jennifer Ray and Wendy Proos, who finished third and fourth, respectively, last season.

RU, second to Farmington a year ago, will rely on Liza Mockeridge and Kelly Murray, who took sixth and ninth a year ago. Junior Tracey James also returns.

Other teams entered include: Canton, which returns Amy Smith, sixth a year ago; along with Salem, Harrison, North Farmington, Churchill, Franklin, Stevenson, Ladywood, John Glenn, Wayne, Garden City, Thurston, Borgess, Central and Trenton.

T-shirts will be on sale for $8. A luncheon for participating teams and their coaches will begin at 12:30 p.m. at the Waterman Campus Center.

Hitting stride

Ocelots open region with 6-0 win

A slow start has seemingly been overcome, and just in time for Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team. The Ocelots, blasted 6-0 in their season-opener by Oakland University, have since tied an impressive Lewis and Clark CC and — more importantly — opened the Region 12 season with a 6-0 trouncing of Cuyahoga Metro CC in Cleveland Saturday.

"We had a very good game," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "It was our best so far this season. The kids just totally ran all over them. After the Oakland game, this can only help us."

"We said after that (OU) match, 'Let's learn from it, and we did. We're playing much better defense. We've started to put the pieces together.'"

SOCCER

THAT DESCRIPTION should start with Chris Crawford. The freshman forward from Walled Lake (Western) shredded Cuyahoga's defense for three goals and an assist, as he and Khaled Zeidan (Livonia Churchill) proved too much to handle.

Crawford's first goal came at the 15-minute mark and was set up by Zeidan, who spotted Crawford open 18 yards in front of the net and slipped a pass to him. Crawford beat the goalkeeper one-on-one and SC led 1-0.

That got the scoring avalanche rolling. Five minutes later, Crawford put in a rebound of a Zeidan shot for a 2-0 lead. Zeidan followed 10 minutes after that, taking a return pass from Crawford on a play started by John Cortese and netting it to make it 3-0.

Bob Hayes' goal after a Jerry Staszal cross with two minutes left in the half gave the Ocelots a 4-0 halftime advantage. Crawford completed his hat trick with 15 minutes left in the match, chipping a shot over the keeper. George Abuamsha finished the scoring, slipping past a defender and the keeper to tuck the ball into the net with four minutes left.

Scott Hauman faced just three shots in SC's goal to get the win, as the Ocelots' improved to 1-1-1, 1-0 in the region.

Madonna gives potent OU a fight

The advantage of experience belonged to Oakland University. The Pioneers also possessed championship-caliber talent (they won the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in '88 and finished second in '89), a 3-1 season record and the homecourt advantage.

Madonna College, on the other hand, was 1-6 entering Tuesday's match at OU. The Lady Crusaders have never won a title, but then again, they've only had a team at Madonna for three years. In addition, there was nary a senior on the Crusaders' roster.

Sounds like a rout in the making, doesn't it? Not so fast — Madonna gave OU all it could handle in this rollercoaster affair before bowing in five games.

THE PIONEERS won the opening game 17-15 after trailing 14-10. Madonna won the second 15-9, OU took the third 15-5 and the Crusaders got the fourth 15-10. In the final, deciding game, OU prevailed 15-4.

"We played well," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham. "It was a real good match. In fact, that was the best we've played this season."

Jennifer Zielinski led the Pioneers with nine kills (a 240 average), six solo blocks and seven block assists. Melissa Holman added nine kills (.500 average), Cindy Walsh had nine kills (.280) and 12 digs, and setter Janice Van Velsen contributed 40 assists-to-kills (8.0 per game).

volleyball

For Madonna, Stacey Girard (from Livonia Ladywood) had 13 kills and nine digs. Dana Hicks contributed 15 kills (.122) and three solo blocks.

The win improved OU's record to 4-1, with two important GLIAC matches at home this weekend: Northern Michigan at 7 p.m. Friday and Michigan Tech at 1 p.m. Saturday. Madonna, now 1-7, plays at Saginaw Valley State at 7 p.m. tonight, then travels to the Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne Tournament this weekend.

Williford helping youthful Pioneers to a strong start

The promise of youthful talent has blossomed into impressive production thus far this season for Oakland University's soccer team.

It showed in the Pioneers' 3-0 win over Tiffin University Sunday at the Detroit Polo Club in Bloomfield Hills, and last Wednesday (Sept. 4) in a 4-2 triumph over University of Michigan at Rochester Adams HS.

In the win over U-M, freshman striker Lee Davison scored three times, upping his season total to five goals (with three assists). Davison's 13 points tied him for the NCAA Division II lead.

Paul Phillips, one of OU's veterans, shouldered the scoring load in the win against Tiffin. The senior striker got two first-half goals, at 4:18 on an assist from Davison and at 16:41 with Derek Williford (from Livonia Stevenson) assisting. Williford has eight assists in three games.

Mike Thornton, another freshman, got an insurance goal with 2:27 left in the match. Emmanuel Charles and Jeff Forshey assisted. OU outshot Tiffin 17-3 for the game, with freshman Mike Sheehy (Farmington) making two saves to record his second shutout.

IN THE WIN over U-M, the Pioneers trailed 1-0 at the half. The Wolverines' Jason Cardasis (Detroit Country Day) scored at 1:22 of the match to give his team the early lead.

Davison eliminated that single-handedly in the second half. Corey Selvon, though, started the comeback with a goal at 50:12.

Davison's first goal came at 59:56, with Charles assisting, and it gave OU a 2-1 lead. U-M's Eric Moore knotted the score at 2-2 with a goal at 62:25, but Davison took control after that, scoring at 68:46 on a direct free kick from 25 yards out and at 86:37 with Williford and Thornton assisting.

SC spikes UM-D in season opener

Schoolcraft College's women's volleyball team served notice Tuesday that it intends to remain a power to be dealt with.

Serving, in fact, was the main reason Tom Teeters' team subdued University of Michigan-Dearborn so easily, 15-8, 15-6, 15-11, at SC.

The Lady Ocelots made just three service errors in the match. Angelle Love paced SC with four aces, while Kari Domanski had two.

Love contributed in other ways, too. She had seven kills (a .316 average), four solo blocks and one block assist. Domanski had four kills (.400), while Elena Oparka led the team with 11 kills (.111). Setter Jenny Sproul had 28 assists-to-kills (9.3 per game).

The Lady Ocelots travel to the Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne Tournament this weekend.

Gielow's running powers Warriors

David Gielow rushed for 99 yards in 16 carries and scored a pair of touchdowns Saturday, leading host Lutheran High of Westland to its second straight prep football win, a 20-14 triumph over Dearborn St. Alphonsus.

The Warriors jumped out to a 20-0 lead before giving up a pair of late fourth quarter scores.

Junior Jason Zielinski threw a 53-yard TD pass to junior Matt Grams to open the scoring in the first quarter for Lutheran High. (The point-after was no good.)

Gielow then scored on a 1-yard run later in the period and Zielinski hit Pat Ollinger with the two-point conversion pass to make it 14-0.

Gielow added a 34-yard TD run early in the fourth quarter before

Zielinski hit three of seven passes for 69 yards. He was intercepted twice.

The Warriors added 177 on the ground for a total of 248.

Alphonsus, which slipped to 0-2, had 229 total yards, 187 on the ground. Hernandez was three of nine for 42 yards.

EMU's Parenti a hit

"It was on the last day of double-headers and a big guy named Mike Bass (a 6-3, 275-pound offensive tackle) fell on me and the knee just gave way," said Parenti, who now wears a brace. "There were a lot of whirlpools, a lot of leg lifts and a lot of icing it down. Scott Wyka (another teammate) had the same thing to him at about the same time, so we went through it (rehab) together and it wasn't as bad as I thought."

YET, WITH the entire 1989 season shot, Parenti had to prove himself all over again.

"It was like I never played and still hadn't proven I could play," he said. "But I started to get their system down and I knew I could do it."

Parenti did just that with a productive spring practice.

"Coach Harkema told me one meeting that he felt confident in me and that helped me a lot," Parenti said. "And basically it's carried over until now."

"He's quietly hung in there and continues to work and endure the injuries," said the EMU coach. "He will play a fair amount. We like him a lot. He's one of our bigger hitters. He's good against the run and he's not bad against the pass."

Parenti said his biggest adjustment was learning EMU's defensive scheme.

"I had a lot of flexibility in high school," Parenti said. "I never played linebacker until the 10th grade. I was the only middle linebacker and I did pretty much what I wanted, just run to the ball. I never worried about anything else. When I got here I got totally lost in the 5-2 (alignment)."

In college football, Parenti had to follow a system and do a lot more thinking on the playing field.

"HERE IT'S totally different, you're facing different blocking schemes, filling in certain gaps," he said. "If you understand their techniques, you're a lot better off. If you're flying around and not reading your keys, you're going to mess up. It's a lot more disciplined. You're graded every game."

Harkema demands discipline in every way.

"If you do what he teaches, you'll play," Parenti said. "And if you go to class, instead of going to class here and there, you'll be OK."

Parenti, majoring in communications with a minor in marketing, plans to graduate from EMU in 4 1/2 years (by December 1991).

And he says EMU's defense can get better. (The Hurons host Ohio University at 1 p.m. Saturday at Rynearson Stadium.)

"We can do better this week," he said. "We've given up four big plays the last two games and if we eliminate those things we'll be improved. Just get your body in position, coach Harkema says, and that's what causes all the fumbles and interceptions to happen."

For Parenti, it's a matter of sticking with the basics, and starting over again.

Loop races start early for some teams

By Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara staff writers

WEEK NO. 3 of the high school football season will have long-range ramifications for a few Observerland teams.

The Western Lakes Activities Association begins its divisional cards this week with a couple of key matchups — Westland John Glenn at Plymouth Salem (Lakes Division) and Plymouth Canton at Farmington Harrison (Western Division).

Another big battle pits two of the state's top-ranked teams — Redford Catholic Central and Detroit King.

The pronostication race is also in full swing.

Emons went 12-3 last week to run his overall record to 27-5, while O'Meara lost a game in Week No. 2, going 11-4 to stand 23-9 overall.

Here is a look at this week's action:

FRIDAY'S GAMES

Ypsi Lincoln at Garden City: Both teams are unbeaten and coming off 1-8 seasons of a year ago. Lincoln, led by running backs Juan Perez and Brian Lastor, routed Tecumseh last week, 42-0. GC, coming off a 7-6 win over Romulus, is hoping to continue its momentum. Remember, Lincoln edged GC for its only win last year, 14-13. Picks: The coin please. Emons takes the Raisplitters again.

Dearborn at Redford Union: North-west Suburban League action heats up this week with the preseason favorite, Dearborn (1-1), led by running back Jay Jakubowski, expected to beat RU (0-2). The Panthers, looking for their first win, nearly knocked off Waterford Kettering last week before losing, 21-19. Picks: Dearborn wins its NSL opener.

Wayne Memorial at Wyandotte: The Zebras are a surprising 2-0 and possess a fine passing combination of Jason Wetmore to Joe Coughlin. Wyandotte (2-0), led by quarterback Dan Yates, is coming off a big win over Taylor Kennedy and a narrow 7-6 triumph last week over Belleville. Wyandotte, returning 24 players, upset Wayne a year ago. Picks: Emons takes the (growing) Bears.

Farmington at Liv. Stevenson: The Spartans (2-0) have a favorable early-season schedule and should make it No. 3 in a row against the Falcons, still looking for their first victory for new coach Bernie Call. Stevenson was knocked around for a half last week before rallying to beat Livonia Franklin, 21-12. Farmington lost to a formidable Plymouth Canton team, 43-19. Picks: Stevenson breaks down Farmington quarter-by-quarter.

Westland Glenn at Ply. Salem: The Rocks (1-1) may have been caught looking ahead to this key Lakes Division matchup after getting stung by Northville, 21-14. Glenn (2-0) has not been tested yet, but will get one this week. Last year Salem did everything but win, losing a heartbreaker 7-6. Salem is still looking for its first victory over the Rockets. Picks: Glenn's passing attack overcomes the running of Salem's Leon Hister, says Emons.

Liv. Churchill vs. W.L. Western (at Wallod Lake Central): One of these teams have its first win before the night is over and one of these teams will be in first place in the W.L.A.A.'s Western Division. The Chargers, down to 24 players, will have to find some help for all-purpose back Mike Brooks. Western, is coming off lopsided defeats against Novi and Westland Glenn. Picks: Western and Chad Pifer find a way to win, Emons says.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

(all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Taylor Center at Red. Thurston (noon): With linebacker Steve Koss back in the lineup after sitting out the opener, Thurston's defense is much improved. The Eagles won't do much offensively, waiting for turnovers as they did in last week's 6-0 win over Taylor Kennedy. Center (0-2) is coming off a 21-7 loss to Melvindale. Picks: Emons says Thurston will find Center is Taylor-made. Go with the Eagles.

Northville at Liv. Franklin: The Patriots (0-2) meet the W.L.A.A.'s most surprising team in Northville, led by the throwing and running of junior quarterback Ryan Huzjak. Franklin, with players like Tony and Jason Facione, Bobby Johnson and John Revels, can be physical, but the secondary is very suspect and mistakes seemed to be magnified in last week's 21-12 loss to Stevenson. Picks: Huzjak picks apart the Patriots, Emons says.

Ply. Canton at Farm. Harrison: A big game for very early in the season. Harrison (1-1) apparently righted itself with a huge win last week over Wallod Lake Central. Canton (2-0) can score points, but can its defense contain the Hawks multiple sets? Defense will be the key. Picks: Hawks deny Canton again, Emons says.

W.L. Central at N. Farmington: Perhaps the mismatch of the week. North (1-1) should romp again after drilling Churchill last week, 42-6. Chris White will get the start again at quarterback. Central, held to negative-39 yards in three quarters last week in a 53-12 pounding against Farmington Harrison, will have its hands full again. Picks: The Raiders ride the victory ark again.

Tekonsha at Lutheran Westland: The host Warriors should equal a school record for victories (three) in a season against the Indians, who come to town with losses to state-ranked Wyoming Lee (14-0) and Allendale (63-0). "We make trailers here," said Nancy, a secretary at Tekonsha High. "It's really a pretty quiet town. Our football team lost a lot of seniors." Last year Lutheran Westland won, 26-0. Picks: The Warriors do another victory dance.

Clarenceville at Mount Clemons Lutheran North: North (2-0) runs the Flex and Shoot offense, led by quarterback Matt Wengler, who hit 18 of 28 last week for 168 yards and three TDs in a 47-0 rout of Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook. Clarenceville counters with its veer attack and senior quarterback Kendrick Harrington, who has 273 yards rushing in two victories. Expect a high-scoring affair. Picks: Emons goes with North, because of the home field.

Red. St. Agatha vs. Barrie (Ont.) North (7:30 p.m. at RU's Kraft Field): Who is Barrie? An hour north of Toronto, located in ski country off Lake Simcoe. Who is Barrie's coach? Gary Inness, former goalie with the Washington Caps. What's Barrie's enrollment? About 1,200 students. What NHL hockey players are from Barrie? Mike Gartner and Shayne Courson. What was Barrie's record last year? 5-2. What is Barrie's record this year? 0-0. The team will only have eight days of practice before their opener. Does Barrie have to adjust to American rules? Yes. Their Senior League (17-19 year-olds) is going to four downs, but the field is smaller and motion is illegal. What does Barrie run offensively and defensively? Four-man front on defense and a wish-bone attack out of the power-I on offense. Who are Barrie's best players? John Clarke, quarterback; Ben Vieira, Gregg Ford and Brandon Wayne, running backs; Corey Mark, middle linebacker; and Chris Cudmore, cornerback. How does winless St. Agatha (0-2) stack up without QB Brian Kutch (injury) in the lineup? Picks: Emons likes Barrie in hockey and in football.

Bishop Borgess vs. Dbn. Divine Child (7:30 p.m. at Garden City Jr. High): With victories over Detroit Denby and Jackson Lumen Christi, Dearborn Divine Child has slipped into the state Class BB rankings. The Falcons are led by quarterback Jim Solak and running back Dustin Cunningham. Borgess (2-0) is flying high after a 40-6 romp over Class A Bridgeport. The Spartans have given DC fits over the years. Picks: Emons says DC squeaks by.

Redford CC vs. Detroit King (7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville): A monumental matchup pitting two of the state's top three teams. CC showed it can play with anybody after pasting Lansing Sexton last week, 28-0. The Shamrocks will have to go to the air, however, if they're going to hold off King (2-0), which is led by senior fullback Edward Davis (over 200 yards vs. Finney last week) and 6-foot-6, 270-pound offensive tackle Herbert Gibson. Both are big-time college players. Picks: King plays Kong against the Shamrocks, Emons says.

Stevenson swimmers tie

Livonia Stevenson and Ann Arbor Huron battled to a 93-all draw Tuesday in a girls swim meet.

Leading by six points, the host Spartans had a chance to win it in the final event, the 400-yard freestyle relay, but came up with a second and fourth-place finish as Huron, going first and third, made up the deficit to gain the tie.

"We did it with depth and we were pretty good in the middle," said Stevenson coach Greg Phill. "We had a lot of good swimmers from young kids."

Jamie Anderson scored a pair of victories for the Spartans, capturing the 200 and 500 freestyles in 2:03.18 and 5:31.89, respectively.

Jennifer Knapp figured in three firsts for Stevenson.

She won the 100 breaststroke (1:10.08) and teamed up with Julie Petrillo, Nancy Warson and Jill Knapp to win the 200 medley relay in 2:00.89.

The Knapps, Holly Palmieri and Warson also won the 200 freestyle relay in 1:47.4.

Stevenson returns to action Saturday for the 12-school Western Lakes Activities Association Relays at Plymouth Salem. Diving and preliminary races begin at 11 a.m. followed by the finals at 1 p.m.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL, meanwhile, opened its 1990 season Tuesday by winning all 12 events in a 144-41 rout of host Westland John Glenn.

Katie Hamann, Ellen Lessig and Elizabeth Sorokac each figured in four first places for the Chargers.

Hamann won the 200 freestyle (2:08.8) and 100 butterfly (1:05.0), while Lessig scored firsts in the 50 and 100 freestyles with times of 25.7 and 55.8, respectively (both state qualifying cuts). Sorokac added wins in the 200 individual medley (2:23.5) and 100 breaststroke (1:18.9).

Hamann, Lessig and Sorokac also teamed up with Amy Kalinowski to capture the 200 medley relay in 2:03.7. The foursome of Hamann, Lessig, Sorokac and Carla Karoub added a win in the 200 freestyle relay (1:48.2).

Other Churchill victories were recorded by Amy Roselle, diving (1:45.15 points); Trish Kramer, 500 freestyle (8:20.9); and Kalinowski, 100 backstroke (1:11.3).

Kramer, Karoub, Renee Tomlinson and Julie Campau added a victory in the 400 freestyle relay (4:28.3).

Churchill will join Stevenson Saturday at the WLAA Relays.

Livonia Ladywood came up flat Tuesday, failing to visiting St. Patrick's of Sarnia, Ontario, in a non-league girls basketball battle, 58-55.

The Blazers, who made only 13 of 39 layups, fell to 2-1 on the season.

Casey Winegard and Tricia Musselman tallied 19 and 15 points, respectively, for St. Patrick's, which played its season opener.

"We played absolutely terrible," said Ladywood coach Toni Gasparovic. "We made a lot of mistakes and missed a lot of shots."

Rebecca Willey and Mary Jo Kelly each tallied 17 points in a losing cause.

The Blazers trailed 22-12 after one quarter, but regained the lead at halftime, 30-29.

St. Patrick's roared back to take a 43-37 advantage after three quarters and never looked back.

Ladywood's game tonight at South Lyon has been called off.

Nikki Bailey scored 20 points and Lynn Scheloske added 12 for the winners, who outscored Glenn 19-7 in the second period.

"We got hurt pretty bad, we broke down defensively a little bit," said Glenn coach Pat Bennett, whose team is 2-2 overall.

"We were pressuring the ball, but we didn't get back and they got some easy baskets against it."

"They were real quick. Their guards handled the ball real well, they saw the floor real well."

Glenn pulled with eight points with 5:30 left, but could not pull any closer.

Theatre Grottesco Ensemble growing to maturity

By Catho Broidonbach
special writer

WHIMSICAL, FANTASTIC and comic ridiculous is what the Italian word "grottesco" means, and the word captures the caught-by-surprise originality of Theatre Grottesco's performing style.

"We're hard to pigeonhole," says John Flax, artistic director and performer in the ensemble. "Some consider us very avant-garde because we work in new styles."

The ensemble combines the sensitivity of mime, the physical energy of aerobics and slapstick, the stock characters of commedia dell'arte and the bite of satire and farce in a theatrical art form that's so old it's new. In the Middle Ages, troupes much like Theatre Grottesco traveled from town to town performing improvisational plays.

The ensemble adapts ancient forms from the Middle Ages and from 16th century Italy to universal modern themes in a style unfamiliar to most American audiences. Critics praise the antic physical energy, the refreshing imagination and the polished theatricality of Grottesco's production.

ITS WORKS ARE called intelligent but not intellectual in the sense of inaccessible. Randall Rutherford of Southfield, the company's new managing director, explains, "The shows are fun. It's not this obscure Samuel Beckett stuff. You don't have to know anything about theater to 'get' a Theatre Grottesco performance."

Flax adds, "The style we work in is pre-TV. The masses went to the theater to have fun. Even when we do a serious play, we have a hard time keeping the comedy out. Every show we've done has been a tragic comedy.

The company's latest play "WENOMADMEN" (pronounced We Nomad Men) just returned from a 12-month tour through 14 states and will close its run with three performances Thursday-Saturday, Sept. 13-15, at the Players Theatre in Detroit.

Theatre Grottesco began in Paris in 1982, where Flax, Paul Herwig and Elizabeth Wiseman trained. The three Americans moved the company to the United States several years ago, and last year the ensemble made Detroit its North American base of operations.

The company performs in Detroit and tours extensively. The task of booking tours 12-18 months in advance, sending out promotional materials to 3,000 theaters, colleges and arts centers, applying for funding and corporate support, plus managing taxes and payroll, has become a full-time job.

FLAX SAYS, "We're no longer an adolescent company." So this August, Theatre Grottesco hired Rutherford as the ensemble's first managing director. A Wayne State University graduate and former Hilberry company member, Rutherford returns to Detroit after a stint at California State University, Long Beach, where he served as business manager for the newly formed California Repertory Company.

As managing director, he will take over the business and administration side of operations, freeing up the performing artists — Flax, Herwig, Wiseman and David Salowich — to concentrate on creating and performing shows. Flax says, "A managing director is crucial to our survival. We couldn't have gone on much longer doing double duty."

Rutherford adds, "Theater is a business." Running payroll and computing tax returns using sound accounting principles is not something artists are trained to do. "In my view they shouldn't have to do it. It works a different part of the brain."

When Rutherford was looking for a new position, he met with Grottesco Board Treasurer Eric Dueweke, in California. Rutherford remembered seeing Theatre Grottesco perform "The Insomniacs" at The Attic five or six years ago. "It made a real impression," he says. He comes to his new job with conviction that, "The company has no place to go but up." Rutherford expects to see Theatre Grottesco explode onto the American theater scene within the next few years.

The explosion he predicts already may have begun. Michigan Council for the Arts awarded Theatre Grottesco a $10,000 operational grant and chose the company as one of eight Michigan groups with whom national consultants will work. The ensemble also is eligible for a quarter of a million dollars in long-term MCA grants over the next four years, and Channel 56 is currently reviewing tapes on Theatre Grottesco for airing.

WITH RUTHERFORD on board, the artists can concentrate on the intensive process of creating new material. Ordinarily the company creates one new show a year. The process from conception to polished piece takes three to six months rehearsal time. Flax says shows are "derived out of improvisa-sations. We grow characterizations in workshops."

For Theatre Grottesco, image, the visual/emotional impact of each scene, is primary. The company often works from pictures on canvas to create on stage the visual image it wants. Its plays are loosely scripted both because scripts evolve through improvisation and because words are but one of the multiple levels which Grottesco's theater works.

Its play "The Insomniacs" was largely in gibberish invented by Flax and Wiseman, yet audiences had no difficulty understanding what was happening, testimo-that image and movement can carry meaning without the assistance of words. One reviewer commented, "(Grottesco's) trained mimes and clowns can find more eloquence in a yawn than other actors can in a well-turned phrase."

The ensemble image/action approach contrasts with word-enlashed productions of some established plays where the script rules and other modes of conveying meaning get shortchanged. "If we can get the message across without conveying words, then we choose to do it that way," says Flax.

Flax, Herwig and Wiseman trained at the Ecole Jacques Lecoq in Paris, where they honed their skills at mime, dance and theatrical methods of developing characters, creating emotions and establishing a bond between performer and audience. The company is proud that it relies on unadorned theatrical skill, rather than on the spectacle of elaborate costumes, sets and lights.

"THERE'S NOTHING wrong with spectacle," Flax says. "But Theatre Grottesco doesn't rely on it." The company seldom uses sets and keeps costuming simple. "Theatrically no one can touch us," he says.

The company closes its run of "WENOMADMEN" in September and will open a series of very short one-act plays called "Grottesco Shorts" at the 1515 Broadway Theatre in Detroit. "Shorts" will run Thursday, Nov. 15, through Saturday, Dec. 8. Then the performers will seclude themselves in their church rehearsal space to create their new work (still undecided), which will debut at the University of Notre Dame next February. Detroit-area audiences can see Grottesco's newest improvisational play next summer at the 115 Broadway Theatre.

Meanwhile, Rutherford takes over administration and will try to change what he sees as a metropolitan-Detroit corporate mentality that funds the arts means to fund the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, the Michigan Opera Theatre and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

'WENOMADMEN' examines future

In "WENOMADMEN," Theatre Grottesco takes a look at a post-apocalyptic future. The ensemble's foray into the world of science fiction combines the bite of satire and the lunacy of farce, as four unlikely characters escape the destruction of humankind on a jerry-rigged land schooner.

They build the Rube Goldberg masterpiece during the show, and the contraption carries its four passengers — a pompous academic, two students and a Mr. Fixit type — over an arid dunescape. Each character portrays an individual as well as a representative type as they sail "to find water and propagate the species."

Their mishaps and misguided efforts point up absurdities of the past, and chaos in the present. The sci-fi tale set far out on the edge of reality nevertheless hits unnervingly close to home. John Flax, Theatre Grottesco's artistic director and member of the ensemble, says that rather than make pronouncements about the fate of humanity the play "poses questions such as — Are we heading for a desert society? Is our leadership up to the questions they must deal with?"

"WENOMADMEN" plays at 8 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, Sept. 13-15, at the Players Theatre, 3321 Jefferson Ave. (one and one-half miles east of downtown), Detroit. Tickets are available through Ticketmaster outlets (phone 645-8666) or through Theatre Grottesco (981-5880).

Retirement villages — visit before moving

Q. My husband and I are considering moving into a Retirement Community. What kinds of things should we be looking for and what kinds of questions should we ask?

A. The first thing to decide is where you want to live, what type of climate are you looking for and what kinds of services you require.

It is wise to take the time to visit various communities before you make any decisions. On your visits make certain the community has the type of accommodations you seek, are the recreational, religious and cultural facilities and programs suited to your lifestyle, does the community appear to be active and lively? How old are the buildings and how many units are occupied? Is the developer reputable?

Make certain you carefully review all the papers you would be asked to sign and seek proper legal advice prior to signing anything. Get copies, in writing, of all verbal statements or promises made to you by the builder or manager.

Inquire about lease termination and refund policies. Get the terms of the deposit in writing, ask if the deposit is refundable, how you go about getting a refund and at what percentage will interest be applied and at what rate. Inquire about monthly fees. If there are monthly fees determine if they are tied to an index.

If the community is a lifetime or continuing care community ask if nursing home costs are prepaid. If not, what will the additional cost be?

Inquire about restrictions and such policies as: can grandchildren visit and for how long and how often, can you have more than one car and are there parking facilities for more than one car, can your visitors use the recreational facilities, if meals are included can your guests join you in the dining room and at what costs? How many meals are included in the overall price?

Find out if there is insurance or bonding instruments that will protect you in case the facility has financial difficulties. Get copies of these documents.

Talk with the people who already live at the facility and see how they feel about the community and its services.

on aging

Above all, do not make hasty decisions. Take your time and give the move serious consideration. Talk it over with your family and friends before you make the move. An important thing to also think about and remember is that fees will most likely go up and you should factor these increases into your planning.

Q. My 79-year-old mother lives alone in her home in Southfield. I am concerned for her safety. Where can I get information on things we can do to make her house safer or for her safety when she goes shopping?

A. The Southfield Public Safety Department offers several programs concerning safety for older adults. A free home security survey is available. Personnel from the Southfield Crime Prevention Unit will conduct a comprehensive review of a resident's home and make recommendations, if necessary, on how to increase home security in a safe, low cost manner.

Residents are provided with a written survey which includes instructions and illustrations. The Crime Prevention Unit also gives Personal Protection Talks. The talks include information on crime prevention, as well as tips about safety at home, while out shopping and while traveling. In addition they are also available to give talks about auto theft and on neighborhood safety.

For information call the Southfield Public Safety Department at 354-4752, Monday-Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. There is no charge for these services.

Someone Is Taking Lots Of Money Out Of Your Checking Account.

Your Bank.

At Standard Federal, we think that you — not your bank — should take money out of your checking account. So we have low minimum balance requirements and no checkwriting fees, no matter how many checks you write.

As the chart shows, our minimum balance requirement for free Regular Checking is just $250.00. That's lower than the average of five other major area banks. They also charge you more — and we save you more — if you dip below the minimum. And we offer you a variety of other ways to enjoy free checking, too.

The bottom line: The most you can pay annually for Standard Federal Regular Checking is $36.00. Our five competitors' average fees are $177.60. What more can we say?

Plenty. We offer free ATM use at over 150 locations including select Standard Federal branch offices and participating 7-Eleven stores. And right now, we'll pay you up to $10.00 for your unused checks from another bank when you open any checking account with us — Regular, Interest-Bearing or Money Market.

Stretch and flex

Young dancers hone poise, self-confidence

By Janice Tigar-Kramor
special writer

SEVEN YOUNG girls race into the dance studio, talking and giggling, hardly able to keep their feet as they fall in place for warmups.

Some carpooled, but others haven't seen each other since dance classes ended last spring, so there's plenty of catching up to do.

One girl straightens her leotard. Another adjusts the ribbon in her braid as they ready themselves for a workout.

The instructor begins a routine familiar to the girls, even after the long summer break. Suddenly, it's strictly business for this group of 8- to 12-year-olds, who would rather stretch and flex than spend the hour on a playground.

Although dancing is serious work for members of this disciplined group, who have taken dance instruction for up to eight years, few will become professional dancers.

Yet dance lessons for youths in all age groups offer something more than training for a career in dance, theater or show business, said Gina Piazza, co-owner of Piazza Dance Company in Northville and an instructor for 16 years.

"Not everyone will become a prima ballerina," Piazza said. "But students develop more here than just the ability to dance. Through dance, you gain poise and self-confidence."

BESIDES PROVIDING youths with important qualities such as self-awareness and pride in a job well done at the end of a rigorous class, dancing school is just plain fun, a place where kids make lasting friendships and become engrossed in an activity as wholesome as Little League or Girl Scouts.

"Some parents ask what their kids will be working toward when they register for class," Piazza said. "No one asks that when boys join Little League, yet not every boy will be a professional ball player."

For 10-year-old Tiffany Couillais, tap, jazz and competition classes are almost as much fun as an afternoon at an amusement park.

"I always find myself dancing, even in the grocery store," said the Livonia girl. Tiffany started lessons at the Piazza school at age 5.

Her father encourages her interest. He believes the concentration developed through dance also is evident at school, where she earns straight A's.

Although dance class is a good place for Tiffany to meet friends and socialize, Jacques-Henri Couillais believes the school provides his daughter with more than fun and camaraderie.

"Dancing develops a drive, a competitive edge," he said. "It also gives Tiffany the experience of working as a team."

NINA HUNDLEY, who begins her eighth year of dance lessons at the school, easily balances piano and dance with school work, practicing routines at home with friends each week. Because the 11-year-old Plymouth Township girl has had so much fun, her mother, Teresa, signed up for adult tap lessons two years ago with five friends.

And a background in dance gave Mandy Napolitano of Livonia the edge to earn a spot on her school's cheerleading squad. Mandy, 12, who started dancing at the Piazza school at age 5, takes jazz, tap ballet and competition class this year. She expects to practice four hours a week at home.

The young performer was invited to attend a Livonia area arts camp for the third consecutive year. She often dreams of a career in dance. But for now, Mandy said, dancing is just for fun. "When I'm bored, I always dance."

More than half of the school's 200 students take at least two classes per week. Advanced dancers often take up to five.

Besides lessons in tap, jazz, ballet, pointe, Hawaiian and Tahitian dancing, experienced dancers take weekly competition classes to prepare them for meets throughout the area. The school also offers rhythm classes for 3 1/2-5-year-olds, acro-gymnastics and adult tap lessons.

"KIDS WHO are serious about dance generally stay with us from grade school through high school," said Marilyn Esper, co-owner of the school and an instructor for 13 years.

Esper's daughter, Michelle, also teaches at the school and hopes for a career in dance. The 23-year-old Wayne State University graduate won the talent award at this year's Miss Dance of Michigan contest and was second runner-up in that competition.

"The younger girls look up to Michelle. They all want to be just like her," Esper said.

The Piazza Dance Company, 42977 W. Seven Mile, begins its 10th season this week.

The school was opened in 1981 by the Piazza sisters, Gina Piazza of Livonia, Marilyn Esper of Farmington Hills and Denise Slets of Houston. It has more than tripled its enrollment, to 225, since classes began.

Adult enrollment increases each year. This season, about 5 percent of the students are boys.

Piazza and Esper, who taught dance in West Bloomfield before opening Piazza Dance Company, feels well rewarded for their work.

"We become attached to the students. So it's great to see their progress," Esper said. "But the best reward is the compliments we receive from parents when they see what the kids have accomplished."

Support study group; savor historical roots

THINKING CREATIVELY:

• Apathy or hastiness could doom it.

But with the right motivation and membership, the city's new historic district study committee could go a long way toward preserving, as planning consultant Bob Donohue put it, "the sense of place that Plymouth has."

The committee will take 1-3 years to analyze historical buildings and suggest a historical preservation ordinance. The 123-year-old city boasts such historic architectural styles as Greek Revival, Italianate and Victorian.

A workable ordinance won't come easy. As Donohue said:

"The mistake that is often made is a community tries to do this in six months or less. There are a lot of questions that property owners will have, a lot of fears. You have to do a lot of public awareness and education. You have to show the benefits."

But chances are, the benefits will justify the effort.

The fear among skeptics is that strict architectural guidelines will depress property values. But studies show property values tend to stabilize, then rise, Donohue said.

A historical preservation ordinance that's more than advisory doesn't preclude exterior building changes. But it does limit them. For example, it allows building additions but not alterations that change the "view from the street," Donohue said.

For the committee to be effective, city leaders must support it through strict ordinance enforcement. That's the only way to assure Plymouth's historic buildings aren't architecturally raped.

• Historic ties — It's a very special place that thousands of motorists pass each day.

Called the Sutherland House, the historic house at 1142 S. Main, on the outskirts of downtown Plymouth, is now a professional building.

A Michigan historic marker on the front lawn of the prefabricated semi-bungalow, designed by Lewis Manufacturing Co. of Bay City, tells us William Sutherland, a horticulturist and developer, built the house, the first in the area, in 1921.

He then sold the surrounding land to the city to develop Sunshine Acres. Sutherland Street in that subdivision was named for him.

To the north in Farmington Hills, the 19th-century farmhouse of Palmer Sherman is a landmark for motorists along Farmington Road.

Better known as the Community Center of Farmington-Farmington Hills, the historic Longacre House is now home to the cultural arts, from concerts to art exhibits.

The original brick, two-story Victorian house was built in 1889. In 1915, it was acquired by attorney Luman Goodenough (1873-1947), the Detroit Rotary Club's first president and a master flower gardener.

After making it his year-round home in 1918, Goodenough hired architect Marcus Burrows to redesign and expand Longacre into a 20-room, seven-bath, Georgian country house.

In 1969, Goodenough heirs gave the house and five acres to the Farmington area for use as a community center.

Rugmaker bags blue ribbons

By Noreen Fleck

SHE DID it again.

Louise Scherer of Redford Township walked away with the Best of Show blue ribbon in rugmaking in Michigan State Fair Community Arts competition Aug. 26.

For the past five years, her rugs have covered her path with blue ribbons from the state fair.

This year's entry, "Kent's Twig," an Old Sturbridge Village pattern, is a combination of geometric and floral design. The background is ivory with soft shades of pink roses. The geometrics run in pale shades of beige and turquoise.

Two of the 16 entrants in this year's show are Scherer's rugmaking mentors, who have taught her the art over the past five years. But there's no hard feelings directed at their winning protege, Scherer insisted.

"They're tickled pink. They're real pleased because it's like a feather in their cap."

"Her color sense is excellent," said Esther Butler, who teaches rugmaking at the Community Arts Center on the fairgrounds. "She always has very fine, even work. She's very meticulous."

Artists: Train yourself to see and hear better

FOR THE past eight years, I have shared family experiences and (many times unsuccessfully) tried to relate them to the field of art.

Writing about the precious times or about funny or touching moments has been a particular joy and probably the reason for most of the comments I receive wherever I go.

Often, I'll be out shopping and a stranger will come up to me and ask, "Did Adam really throw a boomerang through your skylights?" Or they may comment, "My son's room is exactly as you described in your article!"

Well, things have changed folks. Those little guys who used to beam with joy as they read about themselves in the paper have grown up a bit.

Scott is 20 years old and is attending Wayne State University. Adam (who was referred to as our "Adam Bomb") is 11½ years old and is in the sixth grade.

Years ago, upon hearing their name mentioned in my article, they would say, "Wow, Daddy," "neat," and "cool!" Now I get, "Oh, I'm about sure," "Cut me a break, Dad" and "bogus."

I TRY to seize every precious moment of their childhood, perhaps hoping that it will slow down the aging process.

Like when you are stopped at a railroad crossing. You try to count the passing cars as the seemingly endless train passes by. While counting, you think it will take forever to pass, but before you know it, the train is gone, you are on your way and only a moment or so has passed!

For most people to miss "the moments" is only sad, but for an artist to miss them is tragic. It is those moments that add depth to an artist's work.

David Messing

There are many types of moments that an artist can notice, experience and then incorporate in his or her artwork. There are precious moments, funny moments, touching, or sad moments, learning or teaching moments and the list goes on and on. The responsibility for an artist is to remove himself from himself enough to spot the moments when and where they occur.

IT IS the moments that make us laugh, cry, share, learn and experience the feelings that make us human beings. An artist, if aware of these special times, is doubly blessed. First, in that the moments were noticed and second, that they can be expressed through his or her art.

The greatest thing for an artist is to be able to handle whatever medium is required to best suit the subject and/or feeling. What goes on around you is exciting, touching and often humorous.

So train yourself to better see and more clearly hear. The moments that I am talking about never tap you on the shoulder. They are usually fleeting and are rarely remembered. So make them obvious and freeze them in time within an inspired piece of artwork.

"Artifacts" is a regular feature in Creative Living.

High-wire act nears

A thrill-a-minute aerial thrill show awaits southeastern Michigan residents at this year's Northville Victorian Festival.

The Great Wallendas will perform their high-wire wizardry at three different locations in downtown Northville on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Performance times are: Friday at 7:15 p.m. immediately following the parade; Saturday at 12:30 p.m. and 3 p.m.; and Sunday at 4 p.m. There's ample spectator space for the free events.

Laurie Marrs, director of The Northville Chamber of Commerce and event coordinator, said, "We were looking to use our Victorian Festival theme to reflect the actual festive spirit of the 1900s. The Great Wallendas filled that need."

The act's sponsors, Dick Scott Buick, Plymouth, and Dick Scott Dodge, Plymouth, are enthusiastic.

Dick Scott, company head, said: "We care about the Northville community and are very pleased to be able to give something back to our many faithful customers in this area."

For updated festival information, call the Northville Chamber of Commerce, 349-7640.

A former student of and teaching assistant to Erick Friedman at the Manhattan School of Music, Robbins has performed extensively in recitals and solo appearances, including a recital at Lincoln Center, N.Y.

Locally, he has performed with the Lyric Chamber Ensemble and as a soloist with the Detroit Civic Orchestra.

Robbins has been a guest artist at the Newport Music Festival, F.I., and has participated in the Mostly Mozart Festival at Lincoln Center, N.Y., and the Spoleto Festival, Italy.

He has also been featured on New York's WQXR "Young Artists' Showcase" and has been heard over National Public Radio. He lives in Huntington Woods.

Violin students, beginner through advanced, who are interested in registering for the fall term, should call CCS-IMD, 831-2870.

Treat camera like a best friend

TAKING GOOD care of your camera will assure that it will perform satisfactorily for you for many years. Here are some basic tips to help you out:

Monte Nagler's fine photograph of the Cotswold area in southern England is due in part to camera equipment that is well taken care of and in good working condition.

• Never leave your camera in a very hot or very cold spot. Temperature extremes can warp delicate casings and fittings and distort mechanisms.

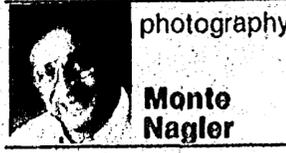

• Keep the body free of dust and dirt. A soft cloth works just fine. I've found that a Q-Tip dabbed in film cleaner solution is an ideal way to reach those hard to get at spots on the camera.

• It's easier than you think to accidentally have a camera knocked from your hands or bumped into a solid object. Accidents or rough handling can cause severe damage. So always use the camera strap. Having your camera securely around your neck prevents accidents (and theft).

• Most cameras aren't waterproof and can be damaged significantly if water gets inside. Take care to protect both body and lens from water. If your camera should get wet from rain, dry it off immediately with a soft, clean cloth.

• Don't touch the glass on the front or back of your lens. Fingerprints, if not removed right away, may eventually become permanent. Keep your lenses clean with a lens cleaning tissue and lens cleaning solution.

• Store your camera in a dry, ventilated place. In fact, the original box with its moisture absorbing silica gel bag is an ideal means of safe storage.

Monte Nagler

• If you're not going to shoot for awhile, remove all batteries from your cameras. This will prolong their life and eliminate any chance of battery corrosion, which can damage your camera.

Try thinking of your camera as a best friend and treat it accordingly.

If you do so, you'll enjoy a mutually rewarding and satisfying relationship that will last for many years.

Register to study

Registration for fall classes, private lessons and ensembles is now open at Center for Creative Studies-Institute of Music and Dance (CCS-IMD).

Programs for students age 3 to adult are available at the Institute's locations in Southfield, Detroit and Grosse Pointe.

Private music lessons are available in piano, strings, voice, winds, guitar, harp, jazz and percussion.

Dance instruction for preschoolers through adults is available in Dunham, African, ballet, Tap, Modern, floor barre, jazz and rhythmic gymnastics. The Institute also offers "Art of Motion," an African and modern jazz dance troupe for young people 7-19.

There are student performing groups in guitar, jazz, wind ensembles and string orchestra. The growing jazz program is led by saxophonist, Donald Walden of Detroit and classes in jazz improvisation will be offered.

The CCS-IMD School of Performing Arts Special Education offers programs and services for all ages.

MOST PEOPLE involved in rugmaking are 70-80 years old. With so few rugmakers, the "older" women who have been doing the craft for years are eager to share their knowledge in an effort to pass on the tradition, said Scherer, 50.

Scherer became interested in rugmaking when she saw Virginia Lampe of Rosedale Park displaying rugs in state fair competition years ago. Lampe became Scherer's teacher soon after and now gets much of the credit for the past five blue ribbons, Scherer said.

There are several patterns to choose from when beginning to create a rug: geometric, floral, fruit and oriental patterns.

Her next creative piece will be an Oriental rug. Such rugs offer more of a challenge. You must be careful to watch pattern lines in the design or your color schemes will run together, Scherer said.

"It's definitely an art. It's painting with fabric."

TO BEGIN making a rug, start with a pattern. Patterns can't be bought locally; most come from the East Coast. Scherer orders patterns from Kennebunkport, Me., vacation retreat of President George Bush.

She then orders wool from Dorr Mills in New Hampshire. Although you can buy colored wool, Scherer dyes her own. "When I run out of a certain color, I want it right now."

Next comes the stripping machine, which cuts the fabric into strips of wool, sized to be hooked into the pattern.

The most difficult part of rugmaking is choosing the best color combinations, Scherer said. Once the pattern is laid out, you should study it and decide on the color scheme.

"Just when you think you have a great color scheme going, you put it together and it looks awful. But that's all part of it."

"When you go to work on these, hours go by. It takes a lot of patience to do this. You may work on one section for two or three hours and decide that it doesn't look good, so you have to pull it out and change the color scheme."

THE WORK starts with hooking, which is not latch hooking but similar to crochet hooking.

Scherer admits it takes six months to one year for her to finish one rug. She works on rugs sporadically, when she finds time.

But no matter how long she puts a "in-the-works" rug down, she has trained herself to finish them all.

"When they're finished, no one else has a rug like that. They become heirlooms for the family."

Scherer refuses to sell her rugs, although she has had several offers. There's "too much involved" with designing a rug. "I wouldn't begin to know how much to charge."

There's a lot of history in the art of rugmaking. Years ago, women would take old wool clothing and cut it in strips. Then they would draw a pattern on an old burlap sack and "hook" the strips in to make rugs.

"I've used old clothes in my rugs before. These rugs last a long time. They really wear well."

ONE REASON to use old clothes is that rugmaking has become expensive. Wool is about $17 per yard, and patterns range from $15-$50 depending on detail.

There are two patterns Scherer has already chose for next year's State Fair competition: "Mille Fleur" and "Vermont Shell." Keep an eye out for them.

Traditional rug hooking classes are offered by Butler at the Community Arts Center on the Michigan State Fairgrounds in Detroit. Greenfield Village in Dearborn also offers rugmaking classes.

"If you want to see some excellent work, you look at her work," Scherer said. "Between the two (Butler and Lampe), I can't go wrong."

To order supplies for rugmaking, write to: W. Cushing & Co., Cushings Perfection Dyes, Joan Moshinsler's Rug Hooker Studio, North St., P.O. Box 351, Kennebunkport, Me., 04046-0351.

Experts on antiques to speak at college

A five-part series on identifying antiques will start 7-9 p.m. Tuesday at Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

For the second year, the college offers this opportunity to hear prominent instructors discuss what's "out there" in the marketplace, what it means to look for and how to identify them.

Affordable art, furniture and accessories, antique dolls and antique (or other) jewelry pieces will be discussed.

Instructors include Frank H. Boos, James R. Krol and Barbara Book.

Boos, owner of the Frank H. Boos Gallery of Bloomfield Hills, was the first U.S. agent for London's famous Christie's Gallery. He handles appraisals for local, national and international markets.

Boos will lead sessions on antique furniture, art — painting and prints, and silver, china and objects d'art.

Krol, a Fellow of the Gemological Association of Great Britain as well as a graduate of the Gemological Association, will head a session on jewelry and gemstones. He also spent three months in Saudi Arabia appraising jewelry for the royal family.

Covering antique dolls will be Book, a Bloomfield Hills resident who is a designated member of the International Society of Appraisers and the International Society of Fine Arts Appraisers Ltd.

The sessions will cover antique furniture; art — paintings and prints; silver, china and objects d'art; jewelry and gemstones; and American dolls.

Registration is being accepted now for the series, which can be attended (all five programs) for $54, or $12 per program. For information, call Schoolcraft College at 462-4410.

Classes set

Detroit Dance Collective will give a Community Dance Sampler from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday at Oakland Community College, 739 S. Washington, Royal Oak.

Fee for all day is $5 (no charge for children). The event will include classes in modern, ballet, jazz for adults and teens. Creative dance for children 5-9 and for children 8 and up will also be offered.

Registration for the fall season will also take place that day. Classes begin Monday, Sept. 24, and continue for eight weeks through Saturday, Nov. 17.

In addition to the classes in the Dance Sampler, the fall schedule will include a pre-professional class in modern dance for high school students. For sampler reservations and other information, call 548-9684.

Arts commission to host critiquing workshop

By Linda Ann Chornik
special writer

If you're an artist interested in having your work critiqued, or would like to learn about marketing your art, or would simply like to network with fellow artists, plan to attend the Livonia Arts Commission art critiquing session Saturday.

Hours are 1:30-5 p.m. in the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

"For the last year and a half, the Livonia Arts Commission has been conducting workshops and seminars to assist artists in the business of marketing their work," said arts commissioner Therese Jaye, who initiated the workshops.

"We want to reach the artists who want to market their work," Jaye said. "And we would also like to give artists in the area the opportunity to network with fellow artists and learn what is happening in the art world."

Jaye described the critiquer, Nancy Thayer, as "an accomplished artist. Artists interested in having their work critiqued may bring three samples of their work to the session."

THAYER, WHO has a master of arts degree from Michigan State University and a master of fine arts degree from the Instituto Allende Mexico, teaches at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit and at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Her work has been exhibited in galleries in New York, Chicago, Florida, West Germany, Mexico and across Michigan, from Bay Street Gallery in Northport to the Rubiner Gallery in West Bloomfield.

Her art has been accepted into exhibitions at the Detroit Artists Market and the DIA.

The Leopold Hoesch Museum in West Germany recently held a four-month exhibition of Thayer's art. Only a short while ago, she returned from lecturing in West Germany before the International Association of Artists.

"Often artists work in an isolated atmosphere," Thayer said. "The critiquing session is being offered to give artists feedback and suggestions for improving their work."

Besides critiquing for composition, use of color and technique, Thayer said, "The artist's work will be critiqued on the actual execution of the piece and the idea behind the piece."

ARTISTS WILL be allowed to bring three samples of their work to the session.

"The art critiquing is open to all fine artists and crafts people, all media, two dimensional and three dimensional," Thayer said. "Phone ahead to make arrangements for having your work critiqued."

If there's an overflow of artists from this session, another critiquing session is tentatively set for Nov. 10.

The Livonia Arts Commission underwrites such sessions. The registration fee is $3. Refreshments will be served during a mid-afternoon break.

"We encourage all artists to attend," Jaye said. "If anybody would like to come and be in the audience and watch the critiquing, they can register at the door."

Artists having their work critiqued are asked to make arrangements ahead of time, and, if possible, to bring their own easel. "The art will be placed on easels upon the stage to be critiqued," Jaye said.

Artists who would like to have their work critiqued by Thayer are asked to call Jaye at 427-8059.

Classes are open to Orff members, non-members and students.

On Sunday, Dec. 16, members will perform in a concert that will include the "Christmas Cantata" by Daniel Pinkham and works by di Lasso, Distler and Howells.

For details about either program, call John Redmon, music department, 591-5097.

SYMPHONY WEEK

Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall will hold an open house 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 16, at Orchestra Hall, Detroit.

The open house will give patrons a chance to find seat locations and view Orchestra Hall, which has been restored to its original 1919 condition.

Live music will be performed to give concert-goers a chance to hear the acoustics that have given the hall its renown.

Free light refreshments will be available in an outdoor tent in the park next to Orchestra Hall.

The open house is free. Anyone may attend.

Ushers will show subscribers seat locations and help preview the hall for first-time attendees of the Coffee, Pops and Young People's Concerts series.

The box office will be open. Festivities will begin at 1 p.m. in an outdoor tent, where Detroit jazz pianist Marty Bellog will perform music from the '10s and '20s.

At 2 p.m., the location shifts inside to the stage of Orchestra Hall, where a string quartet featuring Detroit Symphony members Geoffrey Applegate, Leonore Sjoberg, James VanValkenburg and Marcy Chanteaux will perform music from the same era.

James Dapogny's Chicago Jazz Band concludes the afternoon with big band music and song hits from the '10s and '20s.

Ten new houses go on display Thursday, Oct. 4, during Homearama Fall 1990, the eighth annual public showing of houses designed to showcase new ideas.

Builders are members of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and the Home Builders Association of Livingston County.

The display houses are in Pine Creek Ridge, on Brighton Road, three-quarters of a mile west of Grand River, Brighton.

Priced at $500,000 to $875,000, the houses will be open 3-10 p.m. weekdays and noon to 10 p.m. weekends through Oct. 28.

Admission is $5, which includes a plan book covering each house. Discount coupons good weekdays can be obtained at offices of Standard Federal Bank and Detroit Edison, event sponsors.

The show will host crafters from Michigan and northern Ohio. Their wares will include country furniture, baskets, silhouettes, herb wreaths, wood accessories, dolls, rag rugs, pottery, stained glass, hand-carved duck decoys, ceramics, and candles and country paintings.

Some exhibitors will do demonstrations.

Marcy Stump is promoting the show for the Chelsea Senior Citizens Organization. Proceeds will benefit that group. The seniors will host a drawing for a hand-made quilt.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Chelsea High, on Washington Street, off Freer Road.

Admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for youngsters 6-12. Younger children will be admitted free.

DANCE WORKS

Ann Arbor Dance Works inaugurates its sixth season with a one-night-only performance at the Power Center for the Performing Arts at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 15.

The modern dance classic, Icarus, by guest Dutch choreographer Lucas Hoving, will be featured. Also featured will be new and recent works by members Gay Delanghe, Bill DeYoung, Jessica Fogel, Steven Rush, Peter Sparling and Linda Spriggs.

Icarus reveals rich emotional and spiritual issues. Daedalus's role shows the tension of the father witnessing his son drawn toward tumbling destruction yet remaining powerless to do anything about it. He can only lament the inevitable as he painfully observes the youthful conceit of the doomed Icarus.

Ann Arbor Dance Works is the resident professional dance company of the University of Michigan's School of Music. Members are faculty, alumni and students.

CHAMBER MUSIC

The Chamber Music Society of Detroit will hold its 47th season at Orchestra Hall.

Views of Giverny highlight show

Watercolor impressions of Monet's gardens at Giverny and of the French and English countryside are the theme of a local artist's one-person show in Northville.

The show is the result of Northville artist Caroline Dunphy's two trips to France and England this spring and summer. It starts Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Atchison House, 501 W. Dunlap, Northville.

It will be moved to the artist's Northville studio and gallery, Painter's Place, 140 N. Center, Tuesday, Sept. 25, where it will remain until Oct. 7. Hours will be noon to 5 p.m. or by appointment.

Dunphy painted not only in Monet's gardens but also her impressions of the countryside of the champagne and wine areas as well as Paris. She spent two weeks touring England and has captured some of that country's charm in her watercolors.

Ashley Construction has carved a niche out of in-fill developments dotted across west Livonia. In a project off Levan north of Schoolcraft called Fox Run Estates, the firm bought a home with some acreage, removed the house to another site, and created 10 new home sites.

Children might see a field overgrown with weeds near home as an adventurous playground. A building contractor spotting the same land in a thriving community would see dollar signs.

It's called in-fill development, and it happens when a builder is lucky enough to find a patch of land passed over by earlier developments.

The land might accommodate six houses, or be spacious enough for 16. Other contractors might specialize in building just a single home or two on a smaller site. The key to making successful sales in such speculative ventures is that the community is already well established.

"I LOVE doing little projects," said Dennis Yashinsky, vice president of Jerry Richter & Associates, a company that builds residential dwellings primarily in southern Oakland County.

"Normally we take these projects on in a good area because development costs are so high. If the six lots are close to where I'm building, I could use the same overhead, the same superintendent from another project.

"I would do it in a good selling market in an established area. I wouldn't take a gamble in an untested market."

Yashinsky recalls three years ago developing a subdivision within a subdivision between Farmington and Drake roads, Walnut and Maple.

Called Woodland Oaks, the lots were attractive to buyers for their insulation from the hustle and bustle of traffic, in addition to being new homes constructed in an attractive setting.

BUT IN-FILL development is only as good as the current housing market. If home sales are fluid, the project will be successful. Likewise,

Two years ago Richter & Associates bought 19 lots off Farmington Road and developed one long cul-de-sac called The Oaks in Farmington Hills — another success story for the firm.

"With 19, we go in there with a whole presentation, put up a model home, then a sales office."

Some in-fill projects look like extensions of earlier subdivisions, albeit newer versions.

"One negative (for would-be buyers) would be traveling through an existing area to get there. That could be considered a detriment."

Although the housing market is slowing, Yashinsky said West Bloomfield and Novi continue to be good areas for new construction. The firm has a handful of major developments currently under way.

ASHLEY CONSTRUCTION has carved a niche out of in-fill developments dotted across west Livonia. In a project off Levan north of Schoolcraft called Fox Run Estates, the firm bought a home with some acreage, removed the house to another site, and created 10 new home sites.

Fox Run Estates has four lots left for sale. The custom-built homes are priced from $160,000.

"It's more costly to do it this way," said Margie Bourassa, a partner with her husband, Ernie Bourassa, and Michael Priest.

"You pay for the home, the property, the cost of removing the (old) home."

BUT THE firm has completed several projects in Livonia, including a development on Gill Road between Seven Mile and Eight Mile, where an old home on a large site was relocated to create space for 15 new homes.

They've done larger developments — Prides Court is a 41-home subdivision west of Newburgh and south of Seven Mile. Whispering Hills off Newburgh north of Seven Mile will include 22 homes when complete.

"We've done quite well in Livonia. Livonia is a hot market. I sold a home yesterday — it was the second sale this week," Bourassa said.

"We like giving personalized service. People like one-on-one attention. You can't do that with 100 lots. We become friends with our clients. We don't work with Realtors. We don't even advertise, really. Our business is generated most by word of mouth."

"I don't think there's one client who wouldn't invite us into their home for a cup of coffee. We believe in quality and custom designing homes to meet the standards of the family."

The Bourassas have been self-employed for the length of their marriage: 25 years. They began in the swimming pool business, moved to home modernization and started building construction with 10 lots in Livonia's Laurel Park in 1984.

ROY GONZALES, a West Bloomfield building contractor, is currently developing seven homes near the site of a former Homearama subdivision.

Between Orchard Lake and Middlebelt roads in West Bloomfield, the homes will be secluded — in an established area and yet removed — and be priced from $400,000, Gonzales said.

"You're always scouting an established location, one that's a little further back in a subdivision," Gonzales said.

BUT FINDING that little Shangri-La is becoming more difficult, he said.

"There's woodlands and wetlands regulations that are making it more restrictive and more costly."

Calling home takes on new sales meaning

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Houses traditionally are advertised through multi-listing services and in newspapers and magazines. Builders showcase models and erect signs at subdivision entrances.

Word-of-mouth sells houses.

Now comes PhoneHomes of Bloomfield Township. The business, established by Sue Malling in June, enables buyers to "shop" Oakland County by community and price range with the ease of operating a touch-tone telephone.

Sellers pay a fee to record a brief description of their offerings, which buyers may access by phoning (932-HOME) 24 hours a day, seven days a week at no cost to them.

Inquirers also can access a list of open houses.

"Today's buyers are pretty sophisticated," said Arnold Simkus, marketing director for PhoneHomes. "It's quick. It's responsive. It's reliable."

For now, PhoneHomes has about 60 listings in seven communities — Birmingham, Bloomfield Hills, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Southfield, Troy and Rochester, Malling said.

Listings are further divided into four price categories — under $100,000; $100,000-200,000; $200,000-300,000 and higher than $300,000.

CALLERS HEAR a description of properties, then a contact, usually the listing agent, to call for more details.

PhoneHomes will accept listings only from real estate brokers or agents and marketing representatives of builders.

"It really augments all (advertising) components a real estate or development office might have," Simkus said. "We're trying to support activities of the brokerage industry. We clearly don't want for sale by owners represented."

PhoneHomes has worked with seven realty firms so far, Malling said. Sellers are billed monthly on a sliding scale depending on how many houses or condominiums they list.

Plans are to expand gradually — real estate people in Oakland and Macomb counties in the immediate future, western Wayne County and builders throughout the metro area long term.

"We're just working with a core group of Oakland now," Malling said. "We want persons making the call to the system to get information, get it quickly and have a positive experience using it."

"We want to make sure we have enough listings and brokers before we expand to other areas," Simkus said. "We definitely want to get the builder and developer involved with us because we think it's an excellent marketing niche."

PhoneHomes offers a private telephone line access option — for an extra fee — to sellers who may want to showcase only their homes instead of appearing on the general listing. Private access also allows sellers to receive direct messages from would-be buyers.

THE SERVICE would be especially beneficial to builders who may have homes scattered in several communities, Simkus said.

Ronni Keating, a Realtor with Howard T. Keating & Associates in Birmingham, is giving PhoneHomes a try.

"It could be another marketing tool for me," she said. "People don't know markets, don't understand prices. It would save me a lot of time in educating my buyers."

Reaching sellers is only half of the PhoneHomes equation. Alerting buyers to the service is the other part.

"We'll take a percentage of the revenues and commit to advertising in newspapers," Simkus said.

Fillers are placed in supermarkets and other stores where home-oriented magazines are available, Malling said. She's also used direct mail.

Malling, 29, a West Bloomfield resident and computer expert who owns a computer consulting company, developed the program for PhoneHomes.

"I'm trying to keep on top of technology and ways to capture and distribute information," she said. "I've had an interest in real estate for a long time from a consumer point of view."

Today's kitchen: It's the heart of the home

Though many great meals have undoubtedly been planned and carried forth from this central room in your home, kitchens also provide a casual setting for stimulating conversation, planning, relaxation and laughter. The kitchen long ago outgrew its original purpose and is now the heart of the home.

In many cases, the kitchen has not always accommodated our gatherings and entertaining. But according to Joseph Ruggiero, editor in chief for Home magazine, Americans in the '90s are ready to make changes.

"Time and energy that was spent in the last decade on outside activities are now concentrated on remodeling, redecorating, refurnishing and otherwise redoing the home."

And some of the most exciting changes in function and design are taking place in the kitchen. When planning a new home, keep these ideas in mind.

Because chances are family and friends will converge in the kitchen area, give them an environment they'll enjoy. Consider providing enough space to sit on a sofa or love seat where guests and family members can lounge. Plan on keeping entertainment at hand, such as a television set or stereo system.

When planning the decor, take the "cooking only" edge off by replacing traditional cabinetry with a custom touch, perhaps opting for cabinets that can be moved around instead of the traditional built-ins.

Think about the hardware in the kitchen — drawer handles, faucets and the like. Find accents that pick up on themes and show off your personality — without sacrificing function.

SHAKER-STYLE and European country kitchens are the current favorites, offering simple sophistication and distinct architectural and decorative points of view. Natural wood, clean lines, an uncluttered look and a touch of Grandma's house help make this approach inviting and comfortable — and can help make cutting up in the kitchen more enjoyable.

The recent environmental movement has eased its way into the house too. Kitchens fuse earthy materials with a new twist: White oak, bleached maple and other clear-stained or lightened woods revealing natural grain will prevail, and juxtaposed against this natural setting will be gleaming countertops of black or speckled granite and composite marble, ceramic tile in earthy patterns or other new stonelike materials.

Soothing colors and warm patterns are also in, along with traditional country red and blue tiny checks. Many kitchen windows will easily support a window box or garden window. Consider growing herb here, where family and guests will delight in a home-grown touch.

An endless array of new gadgets and culinary appliances is on the way, and making room for these goodies requires advanced planning. How about your own wood-burning pizza oven, butcher block or built-in wok?

LTU seminar tackles 'designing for profit'

By Doug Funko
staff writer

An attractive building design and the right kind of financing are crucial elements to any successful commercial development.

That's especially true now with a glut of space on the market, competition for tenants and more stringent requirements of lenders.

Lawrence Technological University in Southfield has put together a daylong seminar in which experts in the development business will present an overview of how all the pieces fit together.

The seminar, titled "Designing for Profits," will be offered Tuesday, Oct. 30, at the Radisson Plaza Hotel in Southfield. The cost is $249.

It is intended for architects, civil construction engineers, builders, Realtors, real estate leasing management professionals, contractors, anyone with an interest in real estate development," said Gary Kecskes, LTU's continuing education/professional development director.

"Architects rarely come into contact with tax implications... the impact the design of the building is going to have on profitability."

Financiers don't always understand that architects must fit projects into a community's master plan, he said.

TOPICS to be considered include the significance of design in developing successful projects, the highs and whys of financing, tax ramifications and an economic case study of a typical development.

The instructors, professionally in-involved in many aspects of the commercial building industry, include:

- Joseph Savin, president of his own architectural firm, a partner of Sanbreen Inc., a development company — both in Birmingham — and a lecturer in architecture and design at LTU, who will serve as facilitator.

- Marvin Daltch, president of Daltch Mortgage and Realty Co. of Southfield and a lawyer, who will draw on experiences as an investment banker involved with income producing properties worth more than $1 billion.

- Kenneth Neumann, principal in the firm of Neumann/Smith Associates in Southfield, who will talk about issues relating to architectural design.

- Robert Kleiman, a CPA and partner with the accounting firm of Kleiman, Carney & Greenbaum in Farmington Hills, who will discuss tax consequences of commercial property ownership.

- Norman Hyman, a partner with the law firm of Honnigman, Miller, Schwartz, Cohn and Hyman, who will bring expertise in zoning and land use issues to the program.

- Steven Morris, chairman of Morris & Berke Real Estate Group in Birmingham, who will speak about trends in Michigan's office and high-tech marketplace.

- Gerald Kustra, a CPA and owner of an accounting business in Dearborn Heights, who will moderate the case study.

TENANTS KNOW what's available, the experts said, and in a renter's market, design definitely can impact desirability and profits. "There's plenty of product in the marketplace both good and bad," Neumann said. "Because of that, design has become recognized as an important element."

Morris agreed. "The tenant today is very selective. They're looking for a clean, conventional, corporate facility that will send a message of stability," he said.

'Lien' times seminar topic

A step-by-step review of the Michigan Construction Lien Act and the lien procedure will be presented on Tuesday, Sept. 18, by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM).

Mary Burnstein of Bess, Howard, Haghighi law firm will discuss protection under the law for builders, subcontractors, suppliers and building trades workers. Information and forms will be provided to assist attendees in compliance with the act.

The seminar will be 8:30 a.m. to noon at the Radisson Plaza Hotel, 1800 Town Center in Southfield. Registration fee, including breakfast, is $25 for each BASM member, $35 for non-members.

Enrollment is limited. For registration information, call 737-4477.

Closing up the cottage creates problems

AP — If you own a summer home or head south with the first cold snap, you know the difficulties involved in shutting down a house for the winter.

The obvious problem is that without heat, every pipe and appliance containing water will freeze if not drained or protected. For years, the only solutions were to drain all water appliances and supply piping and replace all trapped waste with automotive antifreeze. Because conventional antifreeze is highly poisonous, many homeowners stuffed rags in fixture traps instead.

While these methods work reasonably well, they don't solve every problem and may produce a few of their own. The basic problem is that plumbing systems and their appliances are meant to be used, not left idle.

A garbage disposer, for example, will rust tight when left unused. When dry, the rubber seals of a dishwasher pump can shrink and cause the pump to seize or leak when restarted. Galvanized pipes that are drained undergo increased oxidation, and existing rust that would remain relatively stable when wet will crust over and flake when dry. When the system is recharged, loosened flakes of rust will clog aerators, hose screens and toilet ballcocks.

As for protecting fixture caps, both alternatives present problems. Rags stuffed into toilet bowls and fixture caps do a moderately good job of blocking sewer gas but are less effective in holding back roaches, water beetles and other insects common to public sewers. As for automotive antifreeze, it should not be flushed into public sewers and can kill the nitrifying bacteria needed to maintain an effective septic system.

If by now you crave some good news, here it is. Nearly every problem associated with a winter shutdown can be circumvented with careful planning and the right materials. Furthermore, the toxicity problems associated with antifreeze have been greatly reduced with the introduction of a new product.

The product is Dowfrost RV, developed by Dow Chemical and marketed under a number of private labels. (Recreational antifreeze is one brand name). Dowfrost is an antifreeze, but when used properly, leaves no toxic residue. Its intended use is for freshwater systems of campers and motorhomes, but it also works well in house plumbing.

Unlike automotive antifreeze, which contains ethylene glycol, Dowfrost contains propylene glycol with toxin inhibitors.

Title transactions discussed

Putting together the documents for a property title transaction will be the focus of a seminar hosted by the Professional Women in Construction Council 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 25, at the Clarion Hotel on 12 Mile west of Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills.

Phil Seaver of Seaver Title Co. will discuss preparation of title documents, waivers, sworn statements and draw requests at the program sponsored by the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

Registration, including continental breakfast, is free to members of the Women in Construction Council and $10 for non-members. For information, call 737-4477.
