Minister in abuse case takes leave

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Westland minister Michael Enersen announced in a rousing sermon Thursday that he is taking a leave of absence pending the outcome of a child abuse controversy in which he and his wife are involved.

But Enersen, vowing that Westland Full Gospel Church "will not crumble," implored hundreds of churchgoers attending Thursday evening services to remain strong amid troubling times.

"I will be watching. The world will be watching," he said. More importantly, he added, "God will be watching."

Many church members wept as Enersen made his announcement.

Enersen's statement from the pulpit came two days after his church's parent organization, the Michigan District Assemblies of God, confirmed that it has launched an investigation that could result in disciplinary action against the 36-year-old minister.

Enersen told the congregation he is stepping aside "with much regret" and indicated that he did so under advice from higher church authorities.

Enersen and his 33-year-old wife Carol have pleaded guilty to child abuse charges that resulted in two of six children — a 16-year-old girl and a 13-year-old boy — being removed from their custody and placed in a foster home.

The Enersens are scheduled for sentencing May 31 in Detroit Recorder's Court.

ENERSEN ANNOUNCED his leave in a highly emotional service that brought his supportive congregation to its feet several times. He drew applause for his message encouraging church members to band together and prove that, through faith, they can emerge united from the controversy.

Enersen told the congregation that an assistant minister, Stephen Little, will temporarily lead the church, on Palmer, between Wildwood and Venoy, in the city's south end.

Enersen noted in his sermon that some church members came to services Thursday expecting to vote to secede from the Assemblies of God, amid the district-level investigation that will result in findings being turned over to national headquarters in Springfield, Mo.

Laura Loviska of Westland tied for first-place honors in Livonia Mall's "My Marvelous Mom" Mother's Day essay contest.

Laura's mom, Frances Briggs was described as teary-eyed as her daughter read the essay at the mall's center stage.

When the tears dried, Mrs. Briggs won a $100 shopping spree.

Mrs. Briggs has survived two bouts of cancer and now, at the age of 76, enjoys bowling and driving.

Another Westland resident, Nicholas Radiwon won third-place honors for the essay about his mother, Bonita Copeland.

OAKWOOD FAMILY Medical Center Westland is planning an Elvis Presley look-alike contest for youngsters and other events for its grand opening Saturday, June 15.

The center is on the northwest corner of Warren Road and Venoy and was previously a smaller medical clinic.

Winner of the Elvis look-alike contest will win a bicycle.

The contest is open to youngsters between 5 and 13. Contestants will be judged on their Elvis attire and ability to mimic one of five Elvis hits, "Jailhouse Rock," "Don't Be Cruel," "Teddy Bear," "Hound Dog," or "Blue Suede Shoes."

Registration forms for the contest are available at the center or by calling 467-2415.

A real Elvis impersonator, Dave King, will perform at the medical center at 1 p.m. that day.

Besides the Elvis events, the center will give free blood and cholesterol screenings, a bike safety class and rodeo by the Westland police department at 1:30 p.m., bike registration and food.

DANIELLE JORDON of Westland is a finalist in the Miss Michigan National Teen-ager Pageant, to be in Lansing the May 31 to June 1 weekend.

Danielle, 17, is sponsored by Hair Today of Wonderland Center, Dr. David Wheeler, Lambrecht Mortgage Co. and State Farm Insurance's Tom Lennis.

CAFE MARQUETTE, the culinary arts program's restaurant in the Ford Vocational/Technical Center, has been renovated.

The work was financed from proceeds of the food program, initiated nine years ago.

It is open from noon to 1:30 p.m. weekdays to the public and for buffet dinners from 4:45-6:15 p.m. for the next two Thursdays.

The special menu for this Thursday is western barbecue. "Chef's Choice" is billed for the May 30 menu which is the final exam for the students in the program. Dinners are $7 for adults, $6.25 for senior citizens, $3.50 for children between 7 and 15, and no charge for children 6 and younger.

WITH GRADUATION near, John Glenn and Wayne Memorial High School seniors are winding up their public school careers.

At Glenn, the senior prom will be Thursday night at Laurel Manor, cap and gown distribution Tuesday, June 4, honors convocation and graduation rehearsal the next night and commencement on Saturday, June 8, at the University of Michigan's Crisler Arena.

With the senior prom out of the way, Wayne Memorial's seniors will get their caps and gowns June 4, rehearse for commencement and hold an honors convocation the next day, and graduate June 6 at Crisler Arena.

Comfort at scene

Rescue workers help a 50-year-old man injured in a Thursday afternoon accident on Levan at the I-96 Expressway service drive. The man and a passenger in a 1987 Ford Taurus were treated and released from St. Mary Hospital. The accident occurred when a 28-year-old Westland man in a 1989 Plymouth Sundance collided with the Taurus on the service drive.

Shielding of killer decried

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

The family of a murdered boy and prosecutors are protesting the transfer of the youngster's killer to federal custody under the witness protection program.

Carl Alvarez, 26, was sentenced in March to two consecutive life sentences in prison for the December 1989 murder and sexual battery of his 7-year-old stepson Joshua Boynton. The boy had lived in the Garden City area until several months before his death, when he had moved to Winter Park, Fla., with his mother and older sister.

"I'm aggravated and mad. I don't think it's right. He should stay there (in a Florida prison)," said Joshua's father Rick Boynton, a Westland resident.

Boynton and assistant state attorney Steven Plotnik both expressed concern that Alvarez would receive a new name and be released from prison once under federal control.

Students suspended for wearing shorts

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Some 60 Franklin High students received one-day suspensions for insubordination May 15 when they showed up at the school door wearing shorts and refused to change clothes, according to principal Michael Fenchel.

On Thursday, two students from the school which serves northeast Westland were sent home, he said.

The suspensions were a tough measure, Fenchel said, but students need to learn that change in the dress code comes about only by "utilizing the student government for change."

"By just showing up one day wearing shorts, that won't bring about change," Fenchel said. "Some brought a change of clothes. Schools cannot give into protests."

THE DRESS CODE is set individually by each high school in the Livonia school district which serves the northern section of Westland, Fenchel said.

At Franklin, students may wear fingertip length shorts from Memorial Day through Sept. 30.

A review committee studies the dress code in each high school every two years, Fenchel said. "The policy with regard to shorts went into effect two years ago."

Previous to that, students could not wear shorts, he said.

Ironically, the issue of shorts was on the student government agenda that day, Fenchel said the two incidents were "totally unrelated."

Each student's parents were notified before the student was sent home, Fenchel said.

Candidates rip district's budget

This is the second in a series on Wayne-Westland school board candidates and issues.

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Wayne-Westland school board candidates suggested slashing teacher salaries, eliminating administrative positions and closing some schools, among other proposals, as possible solutions to the district's budget crisis.

Thirteen candidates competing for two four-year terms outlined for the Observer what their spending and budget-cutting priorities would be if a proposed school tax increase falls in the June 10 election.

Several board hopefuls aimed

their budget ax at school administrators and teachers, saying salaries should be slashed or frozen.

"I think we have too many administrators," and I think they are grossly overpaid," said Anne Harbison, a 62-year-old retired secretary and former Wayne-Westland school board member.

Harbison called for wage freezes or reductions "from the superintendent ent on down" and said she disagreed with pending board-approved budget cuts that would eliminate busing and reduce the high school instructional day from six hours to five.

Ernest Hallmark, a 44-year-old General Motors mechanic, said administrative salaries, surpassing the $90,000 mark for Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, "are outrageous" when many district residents face work layoffs.

Hallmark also urged protecting school programs, and he suggested school officials should trim their telephone and travel expenses, and stop asking for higher taxes, which he said have hit senior citizens particularly hard.

CANDIDATE JOHN Ristau, a 27-year-old freelance writer, lashed out at the 11.9-percent raise that a local teacher contract granted over two years, amid a "failing grade" that Ristau said residents have given the district.

He also called for tougher academic standards and teachers "who aren't rubber-stamped by board members who are not in touch with the community."

Ristau's priority would be to keep salaries in check and correct the "mismanagement" that he blamed for the past three failed tax increase proposals.

Vicki Welty, 34, a part-time Eastern Michigan University instructor, suggested making deeper adminis-

Cutting teachers' salaries suggested

Six candidates competing for a two-year term on the Wayne-Westland school board differ on whether teacher salaries should be slashed to ease the district's severe budget crunch.

Some candidates called for efforts to renegotiate a teacher contract ratified in February, while others said the settlement must be accepted as school officials seek budget cuts.

Appointed incumbent Michael Reddy and challengers Fred Warmbler, Kenneth Raupp, Linda Pratt, Richard LeBlanc and Fredric Hagelhorn outlined their spending and budget-cutting priorities during an interview session with the Observer.

Candidates were asked what their priorities would be if a proposed 7.75-mill tax increase falls in the June 10 election.

LeBlanc, a 32-year-old General Motors metrology lab operator, said the 3-month old contract that gave teachers an 11.9-percent raise over two years "won't be broken or reopened" for negotiations.

"We have that to contend with. We have to pay the wages," LeBlanc said.

However, LeBlanc offered other possibilities for cutting expenses, such as consolidating administrative positions.

BOARD MEMBERS should consider combining such positions as those of two high-ranking administrators — Deputy Superintendent Thomas Blacklock and finance manager Elwood "Woody" London — who plan to retire in June, LeBlanc said.

LeBlanc favors protecting school curricula and programs, including extracurricular activities, from the budget ax because, he said, students need a well-rounded education.

Minister taking leave of absence

"It is not going to happen," Enersen said, referring to a secession attempt.

In stepping aside, Enersen told congregation members that he wanted to spare them any additional grief that the child abuse case may have caused them. Some church members may have faced ridicule from their family members and in the workplace, he said.

"I have decided to take a temporary leave of absence from the ministry," he said, but he added that "I am not going to fall off the face of the earth."

ENERSEN CALLED on the congregation to stand up unashamed to forces outside of the church and, in closing his sermon, called upon church members to pray "for those who hate us."

Enersen asked church members whether they have been reading their Bibles or paying more attention to newspaper reports that have focused attention on the case.

Enersen, who has failed to return numerous telephone calls from the Observer, said during Thursday's service that he has refused to speak out under advice from his attorney — a situation he described as "extremely frustrating."

However, he indicated he will have more to say about the case once it has been resolved in court. In the meantime, he urged church members not to speak on his behalf.

Congregation members have voiced strong support for Enersen, though former church members have ended years of silence about the known child abuse and spoken out against the Enersens.

WESTLAND POLICE have said the two older children — fathered by Michael Enersen during a previous marriage — had been beaten and severely beaten with a wooden paddle. Authorities also said food and water had been withheld from the 13-year-old boy, but that he has gained 25 pounds since he was taken from the Enersens on March 11.

The older children were born when Michael Enersen was married to his first wife, Cheryl, who died of congestive heart failure in 1978 at age 19. Enersen remarried about a year later.

The maternal grandmother of the two older children — who recently saw the youngsters for the first time in 12 years — has vowed to try to win custody of them. Her ties to the children were severed by Enersen after her daughter died.

A petition to remove the remaining four children from the Enersens' custody is pending in Wayne County Probate Court. A hearing is scheduled for June 19.

Nursery damage

Work crews assess damage on the roof of Frank's Nursery on Ford Road after a Thursday afternoon fire caused an estimated $25,000 to $30,000 in damage. The fire started after a gasoline pipe cracked and was ignited by a spark from the heating and air-conditioning unit, said fire marshal Robert Perry.

"He (Alvarez) is in the hands of the federal government. The federal government has assured us he will serve his time in federal prison," said Plotnik, who prosecuted Alvarez. "It's hard to give that credence."

"My concern is that he will walk. I think they'll put him in the witness protection program with a new name," added Boynton.

U.S. Justice Department spokesman Doug Tillett said he would not be able to confirm or deny whether a person was involved in the witness protection program.

"SPEAKING IN generalities, we are not in the business of putting killers back on the streets," he said. "He will serve his time in a federal prison. He will not be relocated or given a new name. He will serve his time until the state of Florida says otherwise."

Alvarez was transferred to federal custody at the request of Florida corrections authorities who indicated they could not guarantee the prisoner's safety, according to Tillett.

This was done despite federal regulations which require a memorandum of understanding with a person entering the protected witness program requiring that they not commit any crime.

People are most often dropped from the program, Tillett said, for revealing their identities or committing a crime. He did note there are about 300 prisoner witnesses who are protected while serving their sentences.

State attorney Norman Wolfinger has sent a letter to U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh protesting the transfer of Alvarez and calling for his return to the Florida correctional system.

Alvarez entered the witness protection program with his entire family when he was 8. His father, a former New York police officer, had testified before the Knapp Commission which investigated police and political corruption.

ANY THREATS to Alvarez's safety while incarcerated in Florida are unlikely to be related his father's testimony, according to Wolfinger.

"Those physical threats are probably true for anyone who kills and rapes a child," he said. "They are not going to be well received by their fellow inmates. I don't know what if any level of proof was given to show. It was related to his father's testimony."

The real reason for the transfer would more likely be to facilitate Alvarez's father in visiting his son, Wolfinger said.

There has been some discrepancy about who initiated Alvarez's transfer, the state corrections department or the justice department.

"We were led to believe the state corrections department had nothing to do with this," said Wolfinger. "I put a lot of responsibility on the Florida department of corrections. They got a letter and jumped at the chance to move him. The system is overburdened but that is no excuse."

The case, which received a great deal of media attention in Florida, casts a shadow over the entire witness protection program in the public's mind, he said.

"WHAT IS very disturbing to me is an inmate who has committed the most heinous crime is allowed to continue to manipulate the system," Wolfinger said.

After Alvarez's transfer, which occurred without notification to the court or prosecutors, Boynton said he had lost confidence in the federal system.

"It makes me wonder. I don't trust them. They aren't supposed to be protected after they commit a crime," he said.

Boynton, who is remarried with a daughter, 15 months, was able to gain full custody of Joshua's sister, now 10. His ex-wife Kimberly has maintained Alvarez was innocent and is currently residing with his family.

Franklin's student government now has a proposal to change the date to allow wearing shorts, Fenchel said.

But, it's probably too late to make a change this year, Fenchel said.

"The kids realize they got a late start," Fenchel said. "I think that it is extremely important for students to understand that they need to follow a governmental policy," Fenchel said.

"The students are not happy with the policy as it is. Churchill High School, which serves northwest Westland, started working on it 10 weeks ago."

THE THREE high schools have very similar dress codes with slight variations, said Rodney Hosman, Churchill High principal.

"The board of education states that every student shall personally maintain a standard of wearing apparel that is not disruptive," said Hosman. That means no bare backs, midribs, or feet. Shorts must be three inches above the knee and must not be cutoffs, spandex or silky, athletic shorts, he said.

Churchill students began wearing shorts May 13 and will be allowed to wear them through September when they return to school, Hosman said.

Under consideration is allowing Churchill students to begin wearing shorts as early as May 1, Hosman said.

But Pat Hill, a Franklin parent, thought high school officials were unfairly cracking down on shorts when there are other flagrant violations in dress.

"I understand there's a girl with blue hair and a boy with an eight ball carved in the back of his head," Hill said.

"I am a follower of rules," Hills said. "But they can't pick and choose rules."

Stevenson High students reportedly can wear shorts after May 1 but phone calls to the school from the Observer weren't returned.

Political, civic leaders mark city's anniversary

By Leonard Pogor
editor

Gray-haired men and women hugged each other Thursday night and swapped stories about the good old days.

A typical school reunion? Not quite. It was Westland's political and civic leaders convening to reminisce about the "college of hard knocks" at a celebration to mark the city's 25th anniversary of incorporation.

"Westland was a new baby, a new arrival and there was a team to care for the new baby," said state Sen. William Faust, who was Nankin Township supervisor in late 1964 when he and others launched a petition drive which led to city incorporation in the spring of 1966. "Tom Brown was elected to head that team," said Faust, referring to the city's first mayor. Brown served 2 1/2 years and later served in the state House of Representatives for 12 years. Brown is currently the Westland city council president.

As in a typical high school reunion, there was a specially-designed cake and a table display of newspapers telling of the inaugural ceremony held by the new city officials on May 16, 1966.

The by-line on those stories was that of Gene McKinney, then Eagle editor who served as city charter commission chairman. He was elected to the city council in late 1967 and served as mayor from late 1969 through 1975.

MCKINNEY, NOW 55, reminisced about the early days of his administration and the current growth of the city.

"What amazes me now is the commercial growth," he said. "It makes me feel good." The former mayor said that he is most proud of two accomplishments of his six years as mayor.

One is the retail growth surrounding Westland Center. He adopted a new assessment policy 20 years ago which encouraged development of vacant land near the shopping center.

The second point of pride is the acquisition of nearly 99 acres of county land behind city hall for local recreation purposes, an idea initiated by then-recreation director Melvin Bailey. The land has been developed as Central City Park and includes the Bailey Recreation Center, tennis courts, ball fields, a gazebo for outdoor concerts, a pavilion for group picnics, and a large pond for fishing.

McKinney chatted Thursday night with former mayors Brown, Tom Taylor, Charles Pickering and Charles Griffin and the current mayor Robert Thomas.

among the former mayors," McKinney said, "and we emphasize with Thomas." He said that some of the same problems experienced years ago still exist.

But McKinney added that part of aging is "that we tend to forget the bad times and remember only the good times."

Introduced were the charter commission members present, McKinney, William Anderson, Justice Barnes, Ed Gunther, and Charles McIlhargey.

There were also introductions of past city council members and the current council and a reading of names of former council members who have died.

Faust, Brown, councilman Kenneth Mehl, city clerk Diane Fritz, and retired fire chief Ralph Savini were also part of the program.

Framed resolutions were presented by state Rep. Barnes and county Commissioner Kay Beard at the close of the event, held in the Hellenic Cultural Center, on Joy east of Newburgh.

Joseph Benyo was events and program coordinator for the reunion. Mehl and Brown are co-chairmen of the anniversary committee which started planning two years ago for the varied events planned this year.

Former mayor Gene McKinney liked looking at the 1966 newspaper stories he wrote when Nankin Township was incorporated as a city.

Teen charged in motorcycle crash

A South Lyon teenager charged with negligent homicide in a Westland crash that killed a motorcyclist stood mute Thursday in 18th District Court, and a plea of not-guilty was entered on his behalf.

Robert Splan, 17, was released on a $5,000 personal bond during an arraignment in district court. A preliminary exam to determine whether the case should be bound over for trial is scheduled for June 27, said Westland police officer Steven Frazer.

Splan, accompanied by three teens, was driving a 1989 Pontiac eastbound on Warren Road on April 26 when it struck a motorcycle driven by Timothy Jay Donlon, 37, of Plymouth. Donlon, westbound on Warren, had been attempting a left turn onto Merriman.

Donlon died five days after the accident from complications of injuries.

Cash-strapped schools to borrow $2.5 million

By Darroll Clom
Staff writer

Wayne-Westland school board members, facing an immediate cash flow problem, agreed Monday to borrow $2.5 million to keep the district operating.

The move marked the first time in four years that the district has had to borrow money to keep operating, said business manager Elwood "Woody" London.

The stopgap measure emerged after London told the board it needed to borrow money because of delays in state aid to in-formula districts.

The state, also faced with a budget crunch, has told local school officials that payments will be made late in June and August, causing a delay of two to three weeks.

"They owe it to us, and they're not going to pay us," board member Kathleen Chorbagan said.

The district does not have enough extra money to keep from borrowing the $2.5 million, London said. The district would need about $3 million in its fund balance to avert the emergency measure, he said. However, it is estimated that the district will have a fund balance of less than $1 million as of June 30, he said.

"WE NO longer have enough (money) to weather the cash-flow problems," London said during Monday's regular board meeting.

Though the state expects to send about half of its aid on time, the remaining 50 percent is expected to be delayed for two to three weeks in both June and August, London said.

Chorbagan appeared concerned that longer delays could be possible, and she asked London what that might mean for the district.

London responded that the district couldn't meet its payroll in July unless the state aid comes through in late June.

Board members expressed dismay with the state during Monday's meeting, and Chorbagan said many state officials don't seem to care that local districts are suffering because of state-level wrangling.

Hopefuls suggest budget cuts trative cuts and determining whether money could be saved by making vocational education programs more self-supporting.

Wely also said busing should not be eliminated, though she said officials might save money by hiring a private company to transport students. Moreover, Wely said a top priority should be to ensure a full day of instruction for all students.

CANDIDATE JOHN Albrecht, 40, a vice president's assistant at Dearborn Sausage, said budget cuts must focus on more reasonable contracts and benefit packages for teachers and other school district workers.

"They (teachers) couldn't have a better benefit package if somebody laid it in their laps," he said.

Albrecht also suggested that school board members should consider donating their stipends to the school system. The seven board members are each paid $30 a meeting, with an annual cap of $1,560.

Randolph Blouse, a 37-year-old music teacher, called on board members to consider reopening the teacher contract and seeking smaller pay increases, saying "I really think this needs to be done."

Blouse also supported potential cuts in administration and indicated that such cuts could have been made previously. Still, Blouse said a failed millage could prove "disastrous" for the district.

CANDIDATE ALBERT "Ed" Turner, a 57-year-old retired American Airlines worker, said he would need to conduct a thorough review of the school district's budget before outlining extensive proposals for reducing spending. However, he did concur with other candidates that administrative cuts could be made.

Laurel Raisanen, 46, an Observer & Eccentricities Newspapers' production department employee, called for even deeper cuts among administrators and teachers.

"I believe we can still make more cuts in administration," she said, also singling out some teacher assistants for budget cuts.

Raisanen agreed with some cuts but opposed others, such as reducing the school instructional day. She said students should attend school for a full day.

Jeanette Leppala, a 35-year-old pizzeria owner, suggested examining all areas of the budget for waste, and she said many of the cuts probably could be made among personnel.

Jeanette Leppala, a 35-year-old pizzeria owner, suggested examining all areas of the budget for waste, and she said many of the cuts probably could be made among personnel.

To offset personnel cuts, Leppala said the school district needs to find more ways to spark parental involvement in schools. She, too, supports protecting programs.

BOARD HOPEFUL Kimberly Rowe, 20, a Schoolcraft College student and Crestwood Dodge employee, called for protecting school programs and a full-day of instruction. Japan is among the countries where students are spending more time in school, "and we keep falling behind," she said.

"We need to increase the time students spend in school and not cut classes," she said.

Though she didn't cite specific budget cuts, Rowe said "we just need to stop spending money on things that we don't need."

Terry Hower, a 38-year-old truck driver, cited potential cuts in vocational education, which he suggested could be made more self-supporting. He said he would need to examine the budget before proposing extensive cuts.

Hower called for keeping school programs intact, especially those that would protect the district's high school accreditation. School officials have said the district could lose accreditation if the high school instructional day is reduced one hour.

BOARD INCUMBENTS Mathew McCusker and Sharon Scott — each seeking a third term — supported the board-approved cuts, such as eliminating busing, some programs and 100 jobs, as a last resort to addressing the district's budget crisis.

Scott, 51, who has worked as a medical assistant, said more layoffs are inevitable if the millage falls, because "80 percent of the budget is personnel, and that's about the only place that we could make more cuts."

McCusker, 55, a Ford Motor Co. employee, agreed that more personnel cuts would be necessary if additional budget reductions must be made.

He continued his support for board-approved cuts, such as busing and athletics, if the millage fails on June 10.

However, he also suggested the board may have to look "very seriously" at closing some school buildings — a consideration that he said could prompt the board to reform its building committee.

Raupp, a 44-year-old Ford Motor Co. employee, made a short statement when asked about his spending priorities. Pay for educational programs for students, he said, then use money that's left over to pay the salaries of administrators and teachers.

Warmbler, 71, a retired Detroit Edison worker and former Wayne-Westland school board member of 16 years, strongly called for efforts to renegotiate the teacher contract that has sparked controversy for months.

"I believe the contract can be renegotiated," he said. "It has to be renegotiated."

Warmbler said such board-approved budget cuts as the elimination of busing are not acceptable. Instead, cuts must be made in personnel salaries, which account for 80 percent of the budget, he said.

REDDY, A 48-year-old Westland fire battalion chief, said he supports the board-approved cuts such as elimination of busing and sports, and a one-hour reduction in the high school instructional day.

He called proposed cuts "a realistic view in as much as the money we will have to work with" if the tax proposal fails.

He also indicated the board may have to consider a long-term reorganization of school buildings, possibly considering consolidation efforts to reduce expenses.

Pratt, 43-year-old owner of Baker's Acre, suggested what she called the "Chicago plan," in which the community would be more intensely involved in setting school board spending priorities.

Pratt stressed the need for a "team effort" in building support for the school district.

"I don't think the automatic response (to budget problems) has to be cut and chop," she said.

HAGELTHORN, 40, senior consultant for Bull Information Systems, said his top spending priority would be on programs directly improving the quality of education for all students.

Secondly, Hagelthorn would focus on paying for arts programs, athletics and other extracurricular activities, then try to find money in the budget to continue busing.

Business, government are flawed in fairness

IT'S FASHIONABLE to say politicians are dumb and inefficient while business people are smart and efficient.

So here are two unfashionable stories to the contrary.

State government's budget is $1 billion out-of-whack, so Gov. John Engler is proposing to zero out arts subsidies, meanwhile freezing arts grants, right? In the case of several suburban symphony orchestras, the damage could reach more than $9,600 a year each.

On the program cover for the most recent Livonia Symphony Orchestra concert was a sticker acknowledging a grant from Ford Motor Co. Only days before, Ford and General Motors had announced losses for the quarter — that's three months, not a full year — of $2 billion.

As state government stopped its bleeding by reducing its spending, an auto giant maintained its flow.

THE OTHER story was told by a West-Bloomfield lady who read my account of state Sen. David Honigman's bill to prohibit local governments from having residency requirements.

About one-fourth of local units require employees to live within city, village or township boundaries.

Only government, said Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, would make a rule so obnoxious and oppressive to personal liberty.

Not so, said my caller, who told of a relative working for a paper company in Louisiana. Executives are required to live in a rinky-dink burg where the company is located. They would prefer to live in a nicer town 20 miles away with better schools.

Assuming the story is true, it suggests private business can be every bit as obnoxious as government is alleged to be.

I HAVE A theory about groups of people.

My idea is supported by an insurance claims adjuster friend. He says 85 percent of claimants just want to be made whole; they want their losses covered — no more, no less. Ten percent are shady. Five percent are cheaters.

My theory is that 85 percent of any group — rabbis, nuns, fundamentalists, gringos, Orientals, blacks, plumbers, surgeons, bureaucrats — want to do an honest day's work for an honest day's wage, pay their fair share of taxes and live in peace. Ten percent are lazy or cut corners. Five percent are crooks.

Our figures match. Neither business nor government has any monopoly on brains, fairness and efficiency.

DID ANY OF you receive the same mail solicitation I did from the Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts?

Very slick. A lofty and noble case for one of the nation's great collections of painting and craftsmanship.

But an interesting fact was omitted: DIA is the property of the city of Detroit. Any dollar you give for operations simply subsidizes the city of Detroit, which is free to use money like the commuter income tax elsewhere.

Go ahead and write a check, but understand you're just subsidizing Detroit city government.

We have a "truth in taxation" law for local government. We ought to have a truth in advertising law for civic-spirited souls in the Founders Society.

SUZIE HEINTZ, in her new job as head of Gov. Engler's Detroit office, tells the story of an elderly man who came to see her with the offer of some stationery.

Five boxes worth. "It's generic stationery — for the office of the lieutenant governor," he said.

The stationery bears the lieutenant governor's title but no name.

The donor was Hicks Griffiths, husband of former Lt. Gov. Martha Griffiths.

"We want Connie Binsfeld to have it," he said. "We like Connie."

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Sexist expressions show us conventional wisdoms

THERE ARE CERTAIN expressions that are slipping out of our vocabulary because they are sexist.

For some, it's good riddance, but when it comes to others, we've tried to toss out some conventional wisdom that has been passed down to us.

One of my favorites is "take it like a man." It says something. It reminds you to be stoic, uncomplaining and able to withstand some pain.

It's just one of those expressions killed by the feminists because it can't be updated. "Take it like a person or take it like a woman" just don't work, for reasons known to many.

But because schools and parents are substituting new, warm and fuzzy language for the old standbys, we're raising a generation of wimps who say things that should be left unsaid, or who talk in that everything-is-wonderful language that nobody understands.

Kids have swallowed so much of this talk that they don't even know how to have good gang fights anymore in the suburbs.

ONE FRIEND of mine who coaches soccer says the kids have been so brainwashed by the "be nice and cooperate" language that they won't mix it up on the soccer field. They're afraid to take the ball away from the other kid because then they wouldn't be cooperating.

I wasn't surprised by his woes. Let's face it, soccer is a fall game for wimps who don't have the guts to play football. It's a nice activity, but it really isn't a sport in America even though the soccer crowd keeps trying to push it. It's just too European. It's a bunch of guys running around in short pants and long socks kicking a ball.

It's just the sort of crowd you'd expect to "cooperate." They don't know how to take it like a man and play football.

When you lose an expression from the language, you lose an idea, a tradition, a mode of behavior that helped carry our forefathers through the tough times.

In the old days, when there was a death, you lost the farm or a war started, you were stoic about things. You took a bottle of whiskey out to the back 40 and howled at the moon for an evening. You took it like a man.

THESE DAYS people join support groups that meet in church basements and drink coffee out of paper cups. There they talk about the pain of whatever they're experiencing. That's taking it like a woman. And while they call them support groups, they're basically nothing more than an updated version of a sewing circle or a ladies aid society.

That was pretty apparent when a group of homosexuals got together and made a quilt with the names of AIDS victims on it. They should have taken their affliction like men, instead they took it like little old ladies in a sewing circle.

Another word that's gone the way of the cigar is henpecked. It used to be applied to men who didn't stand up for themselves with their wives. When I think of henpecked, I think of the father in the movie "Rebel Without a Cause." There he was in an apron picking up stuff that had fallen on the floor.

These days, henpecked has been transformed by the magic of politically correct-speak into "supportive husband." The wimpy, henpecked husband of the 1950s has been turned into the perfect man, er person, of the '90s.

And all this happened because we didn't know how to take things like men.

Parenthood is learned

A letter in response to Jeff Counts' "Points of View" article titled "Diapers, child-care don't mix with men" in the May 6 Redford Observer Newspaper.

To the editor:

I had to read your article twice. Once because I couldn't believe what I was reading. And a second time to give you the benefit of the doubt, and see if you were being sarcastic and funny. My husband even did the same. And the conclusions were identical. We couldn't believe it but we think you really meant what you wrote. And we were appalled.

I feel sorry for your wife. Bonding is not a scam word and men who care for their children are proud. But it's not because they don't want to look stupid. Motherhood and fatherhood is a learned process. It may be stereotypically the woman who changes the diapers, but not all men are afraid to hold, diaper, burp, feed and care for a baby/child. For men and women these skills are learned. I found your list of "screw ups" disgusting. It's too bad you live in the dark ages. I just hope if you have any sons, your wife is smart enough to counteract any bad influence you have over them so they don't grow up and marry and become a naive father like their own.

In case you haven't noticed, in this day and age, the fact is that diapers, child-care do mix with men! Thank goodness for caring men, unlike yourself.

More Rouge money

Federal grant will benefit area cities

By Wayne Pool
staff writer

The key numbers for Friends of the Rouge are 3,000 and $46 million. The volunteer agency is shooting for 3,000 participants at the sixth annual Rouge Rescue on Saturday, June 1.

Long range efforts to clean the heavily-polluted river were given a boost with announcement of an additional $46 million in federal money to continue Rouge cleanup efforts.

The new federal allocation is expected to go into effect Oct. 1. It is expected to substantially improve Rouge water quality in Livonia, Westland, Plymouth, Canton, Redford and other communities in the Rouge River basin.

The federal money was approved by a U.S. House Appropriations subcommittee. Though full committee and House votes are pending, Congressional staff members said approval was almost certain.

The money will go toward new sewers, improving waste water treatment plants and eliminating outmoded combined sewers. Combined sewers — a chief source of Rouge pollution — dump human waste into the river when heavy storms force other sewers to overflow.

It will also be used to finance investigations into commercial and industrial river pollution, as well as illegal sewer connections.

"ESSENTIALLY, this makes us a test project," James Murray, Wayne County Public Works Division director, said. "We hope to be a role model for other communities throughout the nation."

'Essentially, this makes us a test project. We hope to be a role model for other communities throughout the nation.'

— James Murray

The overall Rouge cleanup involves coordinated efforts of local communities and federal agencies, including the Environmental Protection Agency and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

"What's nice is how everyone's all come together on this," Murray said.

An estimated $156 million in federal money has already gone toward Rouge projects.

The $46 million in additional federal money is tied in with money for cleanup of Boston Harbor and the Rio Grande in southern Texas, broadening its appeal in Congress.

Area Congressmen William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield and Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, have all announced support for Rouge projects.

Announcement of the new federal money was a highlight of the Rouge Rescue kickoff event held Friday at the Henry Ford Estate, Dearborn.

"It's definitely good news," Larry Coogan, Friends of the Rouge director, said. "It's going to go a long way toward helping with the CSOs (combined sewer overflows)."

At the same time, Friends of the Rouge members are promoting the annual June cleanup throughout many area communities.

"THINGS ARE hopping right along," Canton site coordinator Kim Scherschligt said.

With a goal of 3,000 volunteers, Friends of the Rouge seeks to make the 1991 Rouge Rescue its biggest ever.

Volunteers clear log jams and carry other debris from river banks to trash bins placed near the site. Items commonly pulled from the river include bicycles, large appliances and even an automobile or two.

Volunteers are encouraged to avoid direct contact with the river and to wear long sleeve shirts, long pants and boots for additional protection.

Information on Rouge Rescue sites in Canton, Livonia, Plymouth and Westland is available by calling Friends of the Rouge, 427-1234.

Aid to schools, municipalities will be delayed

State payments to local governments, schools and community colleges will be delayed, State Treasurer Douglas B. Roberts said.

He blamed the "deteriorating cash position of the state operating funds."

Kindergarten through 12th grade school aid payments of $343.9 million due June 3 will be paid 50 percent on June 3 and 50 percent on

Community colleges will get half of their June payments on July 15.

"Because of the recent Court of Appeals decision on the single business tax (SBT) which reduced business taxes by $500 million and the fact that the Legislature has not taken action to rectify the statutory problem caused by that decision, the April 30 SBT estimated payments were $100 million less than expected," Roberts said.

Although the state borrowed $500 million in March, the projected cash deficit in the general and school aid funds would peak in early June without implementing the payment delays. "There is simply not enough money in the other usable funds to manage without delaying payments," Roberts said.

Schoolcraft sets mail-in registration

Mail-in registration for summer Schoolcraft College courses will occur June 3-15.

Day and evening classes are available. Students can pay by check, Mastercard or Visa.

Summer programs include accounting, allied health education, anthropology, archaeology, art, biology, business, chemistry, computer information systems, communication arts, collegiate skills, criminal justice, culinary arts, economics, English, geography, history, library research, mathematics, philosophy, political science, psychology and sociology.

Additional information, including a free course schedule, is available by calling 462-4430. Schoolcraft is between Six and Seven Mile roads in Livonia.

BATHING & ARTHRITIS

If you have arthritis, you may be unable to use a tub for bathing because of the difficulty of stepping in and out of the tub. In using a shower, keep in mind the following features. Even if your grip is impaired, you should have a shower head you can hold by hand. Then you can direct the water between the thighs and to the posterior thigh despite limits in your body movements.

If possible, have a walk-in shower; this type is easier to enter and exit than the tub-shower combination. Place a rubber mat on the shower floor and a bathchair in the shower itself to permit bathing in a seated position.

You should position 3 or more grip bars in the shower-bathroom area. The bars should be installed with you present so their placement will match the way you enter and exit the shower.

Use liquid soap. A bar is difficult to hold, and if it slips from your hand, the soap is a hazard for your step. Coming to retrieve the soap may bring on additional risks. In contrast, liquid soap comes in a plastic bottle that is easy to grasp or pick up and not a danger if on the shower floor.

If possible have someone nearby when you shower. Then you can call for assistance if despite the above precautions, you slip or fall.

No way to avoid crying

It was once said, "The only way to chop an onion is to give it to someone else."

Even with today's food processors, chopping an onion is still a teary-eyed job, especially when removing the lid of the processor after the chop. Short of having a chef-in-residence to do your cooking, one sure way to beat the tears of an onion chop is to always use the sharpest knife you can find.

Seems that when an onion is chopped by a dull knife, the onion juice is squished out of the onion more abundantly than through normal slicing. When the onion juice hits the air, it turns into obnoxious fumes that surely begin the old watering of the eyes.

I have heard rumors about being able to chop onions without tears. That's just what they are, rumors. The old adage about peeling the onion and leaving the skin intact with the roots, to prevent tears, isn't true.

Then there's the one about putting a toothpick in your mouth sideways so that the only pain you feel is in your cheeks. This is supposed to help you forget about the onion odor. It doesn't work. (As I write this, sucking ice cubes trying to stop the bleeding from using too long a toothpick.)

UNFORTUNATELY, for the weak of eye, this indispensable vegetable and flavoring agent is plentiful throughout the year. Generally speaking, the warmer the climate, the milder the onion. I can vouch for that because on a past trip to Georgia, the Vidalia capitol of North America, I peeled an onion and ate it like an apple. Grant you, it wasn't the tastiest morsel I've ever eaten, but for an onion it was surprisingly sweet and full flavored.

Onions come in two varieties, mainly dry (with the green tops removed) and green (with the tops still on and perishable). When shopping for onions in the grocery store, you will notice various dry varieties. Seldom do fresh Vidalia onions appear in this area, but during harvesting, about the late spring and early summer months, they occasionally make their way to our local produce shelves.

They can be served raw on sandwiches and tossed into salads. They are outstanding baked and stuffed. Ditto for Bermuda onions, again found only during the spring and early summer months. Both varieties have a delicate flavor that is not overpowering and can accompany just about anything it is served with.

Frequently spotted on our grocery shelves are Spanish or Valencia Onions. There is a long season, from August through April. They are noted for their full flavor, especially in soups, stews and casseroles and when served with roasts. The "just-about-do anything onion" — this is it.

RED ITALIAN or Creole onions are stronger yet than the Bermuda or Spanish with a flavorful pungent flavor that invigorates many sandwiches and gutsy salad bowls. Also known as purple onions, these fend themselves to baking or just served thinly sliced on a sandwich or salad.

White or pearl onions are oval with pointed ends and flaky white to silver skin. The smallest pearls, so delectable in stews, are usually reserved for pickling and being served in martinis. The large variety, called rolling onions, are great in juicy casseroles, ragouts and fricasses.

Did you ever stop to realize that something so basic crosses paths in our kitchens so often and yet offers so many different flavors? Onions are great sliced, chopped, minced, fried, stewed, baked, broiled and even served on White Castles!

NOW THAT warm days are here, like many of you I enjoy being outside as much as possible.

However, during the work week that can be a little difficult. With assignments to finish and piles of files on desks to sort through, it just seems like there is never any time to enjoy the weather. A solution to this problem is to brown bag it to work.

Lunchtime is the perfect opportunity to head out for a quiet shady spot to relax and clear your mind. Just grab your lunch and head outdoors. Some office buildings provide picnic tables for workers and now is the time to take advantage of them.

Relax with your lunch in the park at the end of the street or wile away your lunch hour at a nearby pond and take extra bread to feed your feathered friends. No matter what the location, a bag lunch is an enjoyable way to take in what pleasures a warm-weather weekday has to offer.

The recipes in this article are versatile and easy to make. If you have the grill fired up for a backyard barbecue, try the Grilled Vegetable Salad the next day. Or if you have roast chicken one night, try the Chicken Salad or Chicken Tortilla for lunch the next day. Many of the ingredients can be purchased at specialty shops. For instance, the chutney and pate. You also can use your favorite recipe for these items.

Here are 10 brown bag alternatives to add to your lunchtime enjoyment. All the recipes serve one unless otherwise stated.

A different kind of Salami Sandwich: Partly split open pita and line bread with 2 romaine lettuce leaves. Add thinly sliced salami, sliced tomato and red onion. Sprinkle one teaspoon of chopped black olives and crumbled feta into pita. Mix in a separate bowl ¼ cup olive oil, 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar, 1 medium garlic clove minced and 1 tablespoon minced basil. Add a desired amount of this vinaigrette to your sandwich when you are about to eat.

Lavosh Club: Place 1 lavosh (a large flour tortilla can replace this Armenian flat bread) on a surface. Spread softened cream-cheese over bread. Arrange shredded lettuce over cream cheese at one end of bread. Top lettuce with desired amount of turkey, ham, sliced tomato and 1 slice of peeled cucumber cut lengthwise. Roll bread up tightly jelly roll fashion, starting at end with the filling. Cut roll in half diagonally and wrap tightly in plastic wrap.

Peanut butter with a twist: On a slice of zucchini bread spread a desired amount of peanut butter and top with another slice of the bread. (Any type of quick bread such as carrot or pumpkin may be used to add a unique flavor.)

Country Pate Sandwich: Slice a crusty whole grain roll lengthwise. Spread Dijon mustard or 1 tablespoon of chutney on one half of roll. Layer roll with a slice of your favorite country pate, thinly sliced red onion and a romaine leaf. Top sandwich with the other half of roll. Sweet midget gherkins are a great accompaniment for this sandwich.

Smoked Salmon Sandwich: Lightly toast a croissant that has been cut in half lengthwise. Spread each half with a garlic herbed cream cheese, such as Alouette cheese, and wrap tightly. Carry separately 2 slices of smoked salmon, 1 slice of red onion and a sliced hard-boiled egg and assemble sandwich just before eating. Olives and sweet midget gherkins go well with this sandwich.

Ham and Biscuit Sandwich: Slice a large biscuit lengthwise and layer a desired amount of thin sliced ham atop one half of biscuit. Top with thinly sliced cheddar cheese. Spread on top of the other half of biscuit a desired amount of fruited chutney and place on top of cheese.

Chicken Tortilla Sandwich: Process 1 cup cilantro, 2 cloves garlic, ¼ cup walnuts in a food processor. Add to running machine ½ cup olive oil in a thin stream.

Blend ½ cup Parmesan cheese and salt to taste in mixture. Take 1 ½ tablespoons of pesto mixture and spread on top of 1 flour tortilla. Top with shredded lettuce, carrot, shredded cooked chicken, chopped scallion and chopped tomato. Roll in burrito fashion. Wrap in plastic wrap until ready to eat.

Grilled Vegetable Salad: Whisk in a small bowl ¼ cup olive oil, ¼ cup plus 2 teaspoons white wine vinegar, 2 teaspoons dried basil and salt and pepper to taste. Set aside. Slice ½ red pepper, 2 small yellow squash, 3 zucchini and 2 baby elephant lengthwise. Brush with olive oil and grill until tender. Julienne cooked vegetables and place in bowl. Chop ½ small red onion and toss with vegetables. Drizzle vinaigrette over top. Marinate overnight. Serves 2.

Everybody loves pita bread, not just Middle Easterners

Ten years ago, the Beirut Bakery served mostly Middle Eastern customers who grew up savoring the versatile pita bread.

"It wasn't as popular as it is now," said Iskandar "Alex" Wakim, one of the owners of the family-run bakery based in Redford.

Nowadays, people of all backgrounds enjoy the round, slightly chewy pita, which sometimes is called "pocket bread."

Pita may be eaten plain, used as a food scooper or sliced open to form a pouch or pocket, then stuffed with meat or salad.

"As people became educated, the business expanded," said Wakim, who was born in Lebanon.

A visit to the bakery on Schoolcraft Road just east of Beech-Daly can mean a crash course in Middle Eastern and Mediterranean specialties.

There are stacks of the popular pita, so prevalent in Lebanese and Syrian cuisines. There are stuffed grape leaves and tangy tabbouleh, a salad which mixes bulgur cracked wheat, parsley, tomatoes and onions in a dressing of olive oil and lemon juice.

ALSO SOLD is the so-called Lebanese pizza, dough topped with ground lamb, onions, tomatoes and spices. And trays of the sweet, honey-and-nuts confection known as baklava.

The specialties are prepared fresh by members of the Wakim family, who emigrated from Beirut during the 1970s and came to Redford. Although they were trained for other jobs, they decided to open a bakery, "to keep everybody busy," said Iskandar's wife Hala.

"When we started the business nobody knew about bread," Hala Wakim said. "It took a lot of experimenting. This is a family business. It keeps us together."

The bakery opened in 1979 at Schoolcraft and Inkster roads. It moved to its present, larger facility around 1983.

Although Beirut Bakery's breads are available in many supermarkets, "Many people prefer to come here to buy it," Hala Wakim said.

One new customer came in just days after tasting pita for the first time.

"I was on a flight," he said, picking up several packages of bread. "The airline served us a sandwich on pita. It was good."

Pita is made with flour, water, yeast, salt and sugar. It contains no fats or preservatives.

The pocket is formed by steam which is generated during the baking.

The dough is shaped and rounded by machine. It is baked quickly, at very high heat, in a conveyor oven. The dough puffs into a ball. When it cools, the dough collapses, leaving a hollow center.

"IT COMES OUT puffed like a football," said Iskandar Wakim, formerly of Redford, now living in Northville. "The dough weakens in the middle. You cut it along the middle and it will open into a pocket."

Each pita is called a loaf. A large loaf, at 2 ½ ounces, contains 185 calories. Party pita is somewhat smaller.

Pita is sold in packages of 10 loaves. A 1-pound, 9-ounce package sells for 85 cents in the bakery. Supermarket prices range from around $1 to $1.50 per package. Pita freezes well for six months.

Beirut Bakery is at 25706 Schoolcraft, just east of Beech-Daly, Redford, phone 533-4422. Open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday-Friday, and 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

Everyone just loves taste of pita bread

GRAPE LEAVES WITH MEAT
 1 pound jar grape leaves (available at Middle Eastern specialty stores)
 1 1/4 pounds ground lamb or beef
 1 1/4 pounds uncooked white rice
 1 tablespoon salt (optional, or may use half the amount)
 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/4 teaspoon allspice
 1/4 teaspoon black pepper
 2 tablespoons butter

Drain grape leaves and rinse with cold water. Set aside. Melt butter and mix all other ingredients. Take 1 grape leaf at a time and put 1 tablespoon of meat mixture on each grape leaf and fold sides. Roll it toward the center. Place each roll seam side down in a large skillet. Finish rolling all grape leaves and add 3 cups water. Cover the pot and place on medium heat for about 40 minutes. Lower heat and cook for another 15 minutes. Serve with plain yogurt and pita bread. Serves 4.

TABBOULEH
 1 cup bulgur cracked wheat
 1 cup chopped green onions
 1 medium white onion, chopped fine
 1 cup olive oil or salad oil
 1/2 cup lemon juice
 1 tablespoon salt
 1 teaspoon black pepper
 2 large bunches parsley
 8 medium tomatoes
 2 sprigs of mint (optional)

Cut tomatoes and onions into small pieces. Chop parsley and mint very fine. Rub white onion with a little salt and pepper. Mix all ingredients well, adding oil and lemon juice gradually. Chill. Serve on a platter with lettuce or pita bread. Serves 6.

No way to avoid crying when you chop onions

BAKED ONIONS
 4 onions, peeled
 4 tablespoons butter/margarine
 Fresh ground pepper
 1 tablespoon fresh-grated Parmesan cheese

On the top of the peeled onion, make a well, using a spoon or small melon-baller. Place 1 tablespoon of butter in each well and sprinkle with pepper. Sprinkle with Parmesan, cover and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Remove the cover and pop under the broiler until golden brown for 5 minutes. Enjoy.

CREAM OF ONION SOUP
 2 cups chicken broth
 3 large onions
 1 tablespoon flour
 2 egg yolks, beaten
 2 cups beef broth
 1 tablespoon butter
 2 cups heavy cream
 Salt and pepper to taste

Peel and mince onion. Combine broths with onion and boil for 5 minutes. Strain onion through a sieve. Press out as much of the onion juice as possible from the onion and add to the stock. Return to a boil. Mix butter with flour and whisk to a paste form. Whisk in cream until smooth.

Whisk into soup and continue cooking until slightly thickened. Whisk about 1/2 cup of the hot soup into the egg yolks and return mix to the pot, continue whisking until thick. Correct seasonings, if needed, but do not boil.

ONION APPETIZERS
 1 medium onion, grated
 1 cup mayonnaise
 1 cup fresh-grated Parmesan cheese
 3 English muffins, split
 In a non-metallic bowl, combine grated onion with mayonnaise and Parmesan cheese. Mix well. Split the muffins and spread the mixture evenly over the muffins. Pop under the broiler till golden, about 5 minutes. Divide into bite-sized bits. Serve immediately.

How to pack a brown bag lunch

See related story, Page 1B.

By Jennifer L. Hill
 special writer

What goes into the making of a bag lunch? Anything and everything is the answer.

A bag lunch is a picnic for one. This picnic isn't enjoyed high atop a mountain but rather in a park around the corner or perhaps just at your desk in the office. Anywhere you have your bag lunch the same parts can be included, a main dish as the focal point and an assortment of side dishes comprised of items ranging from fruits and vegetables to cheeses and desserts.

Here are a few suggestions for side dishes in your bag lunch.

- A thermos of cold soup, fruit or vegetable, is a delightful and refreshing alternative as a side dish. Lunch does not have to be a sandwich or a salad. Soups make a wonderful focal point for a bag lunch. Have you ever thought of cool, refreshing cherry soup when Michigan cherries are in season?
- Salads, such as pasta, potato or bean, you might have had for dinner last night complement any sandwich at lunchtime.
- Pack your bag with all that the season has to offer. Fruits and vegetables are common bag lunch fare but a little added enhancement makes them all the more interesting.
- Celery sticks stuffed with cream cheese and peanut butter or fresh cut vegetable sticks and your favorite dip add crunch to any meal.
- Relish packets made up of such ingredients as marinated roast bell peppers, dill pickle spears, artichoke hearts and olives will give a 1990s delicious addition to these lunches.

- Fresh fruit goes well with either salads or sandwiches. It also can be a perfect ending to your meal.
- Fresh berries can be dipped into confectioners' sugar or a mixture of brown sugar and vanilla yogurt. This will add spice to any prelude or conclusion of a lunch.
- Dried fruit, such as apricots, may be dipped in chocolate or dates, and prunes can be stuffed with cream cheese or nuts for your lunch.
- Take a trip to your neighborhood bakery to see what they have to offer. Bakeries and pastry shops have many wonderful items that pack perfectly in a bag lunch.
- Breads, such as, croissants, baguettes and brioche, found in bakeries add a special touch to salads. These breads also are perfect if you plan to take cheeses with you.

• Pastries and baked goods are worth the temptation. Cookies, sliced cake, tarts and eclairs are all great to tote.

• You don't have to depend on bakeries for such treats. You can bake your favorite muffins, cookies or quick breads at home. Try adding your favorite herb to a biscuit mix to make an herb-studded biscuit to accompany a salad.

• Scones are an alternative to your basic biscuit.

• To add crunch to your lunch, try one of the following suggestions: bread sticks, matzo, Norwegian flat bread, pretzels, even bagel chips.

• Chocolates add a special touch to a bag lunch, especially if you are packing it for someone else.

Let's not forget the beverages! With so many types of beverages to choose from — sparkling waters

A thermos of cold soup, fruit or vegetable, is a delightful and refreshing alternative as a side dish.

(plain and fruit flavored), sodas, bottled juices and milk — there is a never-ending variety to what you can take. Iced coffee and tea are wonderful accompaniments too. Just remember, if it has a cork, take a corkscrew.

Whether you have your meal on a park bench or under a tree, you want most of all to take an appetite and a relaxed attitude to prepare for the remainder of the work day.

Almonds add flavor to quick chicken stir fry

Imagine being a part of a family that has held annual reunions for 86 years, written its own family history book, published one cookbook filled with family recipes and planning to publish a second.

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Irene Troutman Sutter of Farmington, is a member of just such a family, the well-known Troutman family, whose heritage and history as one of North Carolina's founding families goes way back to 1752. The original family members came from Germany and founded a town near Charlotte which they named Troutman.

Sutter grew up in this town, but moved to Farmington when she got married. She and her husband, Elwood, are the parents of three grown children and now have five grandchildren.

Sutter has been a kindergarten teacher for 25 years at St. Paul's Lutheran School in Farmington. Last year, she had the pleasure of having one of her grandchildren in her class.

ALTHOUGH SUTTER enjoys cooking, the demands of her job don't leave her with a lot of extra time in the kitchen. As a result, she likes to prepare meals that are quick and easy to put together.

After reading my plea for stir-fry dinners, she submitted a recipe for almond chicken stir fry that she likes to serve with rice, saucy gingered carrots, a tossed salad and raspberry apple delight. Besides tasting great, the entire dinner can be prepared in less than an hour, which makes it a winner just on that basis alone.

With the school year almost over, she and her husband are looking forward to attending the 86th Troutman Family Reunion this summer. It should be a good opportunity to catch up with her brothers and sisters, as well as with 300 or 400 other family relatives.

Thank you, Irene Troutman Sutter, for sharing your wonderful recipes with us. Hopefully the honor of being selected this week's Winner Dinner Winner will earn you a spot in the Troutman Family Hall of Fame as well as a place in their history book.

Until next week, all the best and thanks to those who have taken the time to send in their family's favorite menu. Although it is still early, I am looking for recipes that would be appropriate for summer picnics as well as for Fourth of July get-togethers.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Observer & Eccentric Winner Dinner

ALMOND CHICKEN STIR FRY

Quick and easy, this dish can be made in advance up to the point where it is stir-fried.

- 1 pound, boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 2 egg whites
- 1 1/2 teaspoon salt, or to taste
- 2 teaspoons cornstarch
- 3/4 cup cooking oil, reserving 2 tablespoons (if olive oil is used, use only a 1/2 cup; still reserving the 2 tablespoons)
- 1/2 cup unsalted sliced almonds
- 4 green onions, cut on the diagonal into 1-inch pieces
- 4 teaspoons dry sherry or white wine, optional
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1/2 pound fresh snow peas, stems removed, or 1 package frozen snow peas, thawed, 8-ounce size. Regular frozen green peas, thawed, can be used if snow peas are unavailable

Wash the chicken under hot water and pat dry. Cut the meat into 1/2-inch cubes. Mix the egg whites, salt and cornstarch. Add the chicken and toss well so that each piece is well-coated. Refrigerate, covered, for at least 20 to 30 minutes. The dish can be made in advance up to this point.

Heat the oil in a medium, deep-sided saute pan or wok. Add the chicken and quickly stir-fry it. Don't let the pieces stick together. Cook the meat for 3 minutes and use a slotted spoon to remove the chicken to a plate.

Use the reserved 2 tablespoons of oil and pour it into a clean pan or wok set over high heat. Add the sliced almonds and green onions. Stir-fry for 1 minute. Add the sherry, soy sauce and chicken to the pan and stir-fry it for 1 minute. Transfer the mixture to a heated platter and serve with rice.

SAUCY CARROTS WITH WATER CHESTNUTS

These carrots will add a tasty blaze of color to the dinner plate and are a wonderful accompaniment to the almond chicken stir fry.

- 1 pound carrots, peeled and sliced on the bias, 1/2-inch thick
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 can water chestnuts, drained and thinly sliced, 8-ounce size
- 3/4 teaspoon dried thyme, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger
- 3 tablespoons dry white wine, optional
- 1 tablespoon snipped, fresh parsley

In a covered saucepan, cook carrots in a small amount of boiling salted water for 15 to 20 minutes or just until crisp-tender.

Drain and set the carrots aside. In the saucepan, melt the butter or margarine; add the water chestnuts, thyme and ginger. Cook and stir for 2 minutes. Add the wine, parsley and cooked carrots. Cook and stir until heated through. Serves 6-8.

RED-TIPPED ROMAINE TOSSED SALAD

- 1 bunch red-tipped romaine, washed and dried in a towel, torn into bite-sized pieces
- 1/2 cup celery, diced
- 1/2 cup golden raisins (dark ones can be used instead, but the golden are better tasting)
- 1 can mandarin orange slices, drained, 11-ounce size

Combine the above ingredients and toss with a red wine vinaigrette dressing.

RASPBERRY APPLE DELIGHT

- 1 cup applesauce
- 1 package raspberry gelatin, 3-ounce size
- 1 bag frozen raspberries, 10-ounce size
- Cool Whip

Place the applesauce in a pot and heat it until it is just boiling. Add the box of gelatin and stir to mix it well. Remove it from the heat and stir in the frozen raspberries. Spoon the mixture into individual sherbet glasses and top with a dollop of Cool Whip.

Shopping List

- 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 2 eggs
- Salt
- Cornstarch
- Cooking or olive oil
- Unsalted, sliced almonds
- 4 green onions
- Dry sherry or white wine, optional
- Soy sauce
- 1/2 pound fresh or frozen snow peas
- Rice
- 1 pound carrots
- Butter or margarine
- 1 can sliced water chestnuts, 8-ounce size
- Dried thyme
- Ground ginger
- Fresh or dried parsley
- 1 bunch red-tipped romaine lettuce
- Celery
- Golden raisins
- 1 can mandarin oranges, 11-ounce size
- Red wine vinaigrette dressing
- Applesauce
- 1 package raspberry gelatin, 3-ounce size
- 1 bag frozen raspberries, 10-ounce size
- Cool Whip

Meal in a dish

ROASTED RED SNAPPER, CRISP POTATO SLICES AND GREEN BEANS
Four 6-ounce red snapper fillets

AP — For a simple and healthy main course, bake fish, potatoes and vegetables in one dish.
5 tablespoons olive oil
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
1 clove garlic, thinly sliced
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme

4 cups potatoes (about 1 1/2 pounds), peeled and thinly sliced
Salt and freshly ground pepper
2 cups (about 8 ounces) slender fresh green beans, trimmed, cut into 2-inch lengths Preheat oven to 400 degrees.

Place fillets on a plate; sprinkle with 1 tablespoon of the oil, the 1-tablespoon fresh lemon juice, one-half of the garlic and one-half of the thyme. Cover and refrigerate until ready to bake.

Spread the potatoes in a 13-by-9-inch baking dish. Sprinkle with the remaining oil, garlic and thyme; toss to coat. Bake potatoes in a 400-degree oven, turning once or twice, until edges are golden, about 30 minutes.

Sprinkle the green beans on top of the potatoes; carefully combine. Bake in a 400-degree oven for 5 minutes. Place the fish fillets directly on top of the potatoes and beans. Bake until fillets just turn opaque in the center, about 5 to 8 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Phelps Vineyards expanding Side dish features the specialty rices

Spring Valley, a small fold in the hills east of St. Helena in California's famed Napa Valley, is home to Joseph Phelps Vineyards.

When the winery project started in the early 1970s, only 175 acres of a 670-acre ranch was planted to grape vines in order to preserve the natural beauty of Spring Valley.

In addition to the Spring Valley ranch, the winery owns a 50-acre parcel south of Yountville and a 30-acre plot in the Stag's Leap District planted to cabernet sauvignon. Additional cabernet sauvignon, merlot and cabernet franc are planted on 35 acres west of Rutherford. A 40-acre Carneros sight has been planted with full chardonnay production expected in 1994.

Even these diverse holdings cannot satisfy the demands for Joseph Phelps Vineyards' wines, which include chardonnay, sauvignon blanc, gewurztraminer, johannisberg riesling, scheurebe, semillon, cabernet sauvignon, zinfandel and several native Rhone Valley varieties such as grenache, syrah and viognier sold under the Joseph Phelps Vin du Mistral label.

Phelps Vineyards is known worldwide for the vineyard-designated cabernet sauvignons from the Backus and Eisele vineyards. Insignia is a blend of at least 50 percent cabernet sauvignon and, depending on the vintage, may contain 10 to 40 percent merlot and none to 30 percent cabernet franc. Insignia is considered one of the more exciting Bordeaux-styled wines produced in California. The 1987 Insignia carries a $45 price tag.

Eleanor and Ray Heald

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

1989 Vin du Mistral Grenache Rose produced by Joseph Phelps Vineyards ($12) is a blend containing five percent mourvedre, another Rhone varietal. The wine is pleasantly peppery and spicy and what we refer to as a "think light and drink right" wine. Serve it well chilled with summertime lentil or bean salads.

1987 Vin du Mistral Syrah produced by Joseph Phelps Vineyards ($16) has distinguished toasted-barrel aromas with lively blackberry fruit character. Intense flavors mirror the aromas in a generous wine with good body, structure and finish. It will stand up nicely to barbecued red meat.

HOWEVER, WHEN you refer to most exciting at Phelps, the Rhone-styled wines are in the fore. Winemaker Craig Williams has a personal passion for these wines: He has been producing syrah under the Phelps label since 1974. Since 1986, the Vin du Mistral (a reference to the windy conditions of the Rhone Valley) has been used as the special brand for Phelps' Rhone-styled wines.

"Our work with syrah has been a journey of discovery," Williams maintains. "We've learned that if we employ production techniques similar to those for cabernet sauvignon or zinfandel, the wine is excessively tannic. We now imitate several Rhone vinification techniques including whole-berry fermentation, stem retention and gentle pressing to reduce tannin extracts."

Today, the wine is recognized as soft and approachable with heightened spicy flavors.

Tavel, a small Southern Rhone appellation, is famed worldwide for its grenache rose. With its recognizable color and fresh, lively, dry flavors, it is best consumed young and well chilled. The 1989 Vin du Mistral Grenache Rose produced from grapes grown in Monterey is a close rival of Tavel (see Wine Selections of the Week).

Condrieu, a small Northern Rhone appellation is the home of the celebrated white varietal viognier. In 1983, Joseph Phelps Vineyards obtained 10 viognier buds from the Experimental Fruit Testing Station in Geneva, N.Y. From those buds, they developed a "mother" block of two dozen vines that has expanded into a 10-acre vineyard at the Spring Valley ranch. Currently, three acres are bearing and are the fruit source for a scant 200 cases of 1989 Vin du Mistral Viognier.

Production of Rhone-styled wines is minuscule compared to the wines bottled under the Joseph Phelps label, but it should be recognized as a milestone in California wine production. If Phelps and winemaker Williams are able to consistently pull off the exotic wildflower bouquet and delicate flavors of French viognier, we're in for a special treat in years to come.

AP - This flavorful, low-fat side dish shows off the nutty flavors of specialty rices such as basmati and popcorn rice. You will find these rices in specialty food shops and gourmet mail-order catalogs. In a pinch, you can make this pilaf with regular long-grain rice. To make up for the missing nut flavor, sprinkle each serving lightly with toasted chopped pecans or walnuts, but remember that nuts add fat as well as flavor.

RICE PILAF SUPREME

- 1/4 cup dried mushrooms
- 1 shallot, finely chopped
- 2 tablespoons margarine or butter
- 1 cup basmati, texmati, wild pecan or popcorn rice
- 1 1/2 cups chicken broth
- 1/2 cup dry white wine or apple juice
- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- 2 cups torn fresh spinach
- One 2-ounce jar dried pimiento, drained

Soak the dried mushrooms in enough hot water to cover for 30 minutes. Drain; remove and discard stems. Chop the mushrooms.

In a 2-quart saucepan cook the shallot in hot margarine or butter until tender but not brown. Add the rice; cook and stir over medium heat about 2 minutes or until rice is light brown.

Carefully pour in the chicken broth and the wine or juice; add the chopped mushrooms and celery. Bring the mixture to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 20 to 25 minutes or until the rice is tender and the liquid is absorbed. Stir in the torn spinach and pimiento. Serve immediately. Makes 6 to 8 side-dish servings.

Nutrition information per serving: 187 cal. (19 percent calories from fat), 4 g fat, 0 mg chol., 4 g pro., 29 g carb., 1 g dietary fiber, 263 mg sodium. U.S. RDA: 10 percent iron, 30 percent vit. A, 11 percent vit. C, 11 percent thiamine, 12 percent niacin.

It's not really a meal without a cup of coffee

AP - For some folks, a meal isn't over until freshly brewed coffee splashes into their cup. If you are one of those java lovers, then this dessert is for you. Stir a whisper of your favorite instant coffee into both the filling and the sauce for a double-rich and creamy coffee-flavored dessert. And, yes, to make it even more delightful, serve it with a pot of steaming coffee.

CHEESECAKE

- AND COFFEE-PRALINE SAUCE
- 1 1/4 cups fine graham cracker crumbs
 - 1/2 cup finely chopped pecans
 - 1/2 cup margarine or butter, melted
 - Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese, softened
 - 1 cup sugar
 - 2 teaspoons vanilla
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 3 eggs
 - Three 8-ounce cartons dairy sour cream
 - 2 1/2 teaspoons instant coffee crystals
 - 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
 - 1 tablespoon cornstarch
 - 3/4 cup water
 - 1 tablespoon margarine or butter

For crust, in a mixing bowl combine crumbs and 1/4 cup of the pecans; stir in the 1/2 cup melted margarine or butter. Reserve 1/4 cup of the crumb mixture.

Press remaining crumb mixture onto bottom and 2 1/2 inches up the sides of an 8-inch springform pan or 2 inches up the sides of a 9-inch springform pan. Set aside.

In a medium mixing bowl combine cream cheese, sugar, vanilla and salt; beat with an electric mixer on low speed until smooth. Add eggs; beat just until combined; do not overbeat. In a separate bowl, stir together sour cream and 1 teaspoon of the coffee crystals; stir into the cheese mixture.

Turn the mixture into the prepared pan. Sprinkle reserved crumb mixture on top. Bake in a 375-degree oven for 50 to 55 minutes or until nearly set. (A 1-inch portion in the center will still jiggle slightly.) Cool on a wire rack. Cover and chill about 4 hours.

For sauce, in a saucepan combine brown sugar, cornstarch and remaining coffee crystals. Stir in water. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir for 2 minutes more. Add the 1 tablespoon margarine or butter; stir until melted. Stir in remaining pecans. Serve sauce warm over cheesecake. Makes 12 servings.

GREEK COOKING

Regarding the article on Greek cooking in Taste on April 29, Olga Loizon says the recipe for Triangle Spinach Pie should not include celery, which was listed as one of the ingredients. The Stuffed Grape Leaves recipe give 1 cup of vegetable oil as an ingredient; 1/4 cup oil can be added to the rice mixture, 3/4 cup oil when water is added. Loizon also says she is Greek Orthodox, not Catholic, as the article stated.

Diabetes is a major contributor to heart disease, kidney disease and blindness. So when you support the American Diabetes Association, you're fighting some of the worst diseases of our time.

Chef Rocky demonstrates

Charles Douglas Rachwitz, executive chef for the Chuck Muer restaurants, presented the first of a series of cooking demonstrations at Jacobson's stores, when he appeared Thursday at the Kitchen Shop in Livonia.

A crowd of shoppers (some with small children and babies in strollers), along with a few men, gathered to watch Chef Rocky, a Livonia resident, prepare, cook and serve tasty samples.

The convivial chef answered all kinds of questions about the dishes he was preparing and offered tips for the appreciative audience. Copies of the recipes were distributed.

Another cooking demonstration was presented Friday at Jacobson's Birmingham store. This week Chef Rocky will demonstrate 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Thursday, May 23, in Livonia.

Chef Rocky adds wine to burnt tomatoes, making Chargrilled Roma Tomato Basil Sauce.

MARTHA'S VINEYARD SALAD WITH RASPBERRY-MAPLE DRESSING
Yield: 6 servings
Raspberry-Maple Dressing (Makes 2 cups)
1/4 cup raspberry vinegar (see recipe that follows)
1/4 cup olive oil
1/4 cup vegetable oil
1/4 cup maple syrup
2 tablespoons mustard (Dijon style)
2 tablespoons dried tarragon leaves
Dash salt

Raspberry Vinegar (yield 2 1/2 cups)
1 cup white wine vinegar
1 cup red wine vinegar
1/2 cup raspberries (fresh or frozen)

Combine ingredients and let sit 48 hours; Cover and store at room temperature.

Salad
1 head Bibb lettuce, washed and dried
1/2 head red leaf lettuce, washed and dried
12 rings red onion, sliced 1/4-inch thick
1/4 cup Raspberry-Maple Dressing
1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
3 tablespoon pine nuts, toasted

Tear cleaned lettuce leaves by hand and toss with the 1/4 cup dressing. To serve, divide salad evenly on 6 plates. Top each portion with blue cheese, onion rings and toasted pine nuts.

Spartans perform like champs: 1-0

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Most coaches agree that when you're No. 1, everyone wants a shot at you.

One who wouldn't is Livonia Churchill girls soccer coach Nick O'Shea.

Not that O'Shea would argue that Livonia Stevenson, Churchill's opponent Friday in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship match, doesn't deserve its top-ranked status. The Spartans are the defending Class A state champion, and they have survived a difficult regular-season schedule without a loss.

Against Churchill, they certainly looked like the champs.

For the second time this season,

Stevenson bested its crosstown rival. It was 1-0 this time, and it delivered something to the Spartans they didn't have last year — a WAAA title.

For O'Shea's Chargers, it was the second-straight time they've been frustrated in the WAAA final. They lost a year ago at Farmington.

FRIDAY'S GAME, played at Churchill, bothered O'Shea — and not just because his Chargers lost. It was the way they lost. Instead of attacking and playing aggressively against the state's top team, they played tentatively, without confidence.

"They back off," said O'Shea, describing his team's loose defense — in particular against Regen Coyne, the Spartans' catalyst. "They won't go after her.

"It's psychological. She's a great player, but they make her look even better."

The Chargers' loose-marking midfield was victimized by Coyne, resulting in the only goal of the match. With 16:54 remaining in the first half, Coyne got possession at midfield and fed a pass through to Lori Godlewski on the right side. Godlewski beat a Churchill defender and broke in alone on keeper Monika Servi, who had no chance to stop her from 10 yards out.

THE CHARGERS had scoring opportunities, particularly in the first half with the wind at their backs. But they didn't convert; they could never quite finish their plays. The reason: There always seemed to be a Stevenson defender a step ahead of them.

Speed was the decisive factor. And the Spartans had a lot more of it.

"I think we're fast," agreed Stevenson coach Mary Kay Hussey. "That's one thing we try to utilize. We work on our quickness and speed."

In the second half, with the wind in their favor, the Spartans were in control. Churchill had few true scoring opportunities, again because they couldn't beat the Spartans to the ball.

Or were unwilling to, according to their coach. "You can catch (the Spartans) when they're not running to the ball," said O'Shea. The Chargers, in the second half especially, did not challenge aggressively.

"And it cost them. Indeed, they were fortunate the final was just 1-0. Stevenson did not play flawlessly. Coyne got a through ball behind the Charger defense with 12:20 remaining in the first half and raced toward goal, unleashing a shot from 10 yards out — directly at Servi, who made a relatively easy stop.

STILL, THE Spartans were good enough to win, as they have been throughout the season (their record: 12-0-2 overall).

Can they repeat as state champs? That was certainly on Hussey's mind, even before Friday's match. Her biggest concern going into the WAAA final was "someone getting hurt. I didn't want to lose another player today, before the (state) tournament."

The Spartans are without Shannon Wilkinson; her status is uncertain, which makes their defense a bit unstable, too. It also makes Hussey uncertain of her team's chances.

"If we had everyone healthy, I'd say we're stronger (than last year's team)," she said.

They may have to be. Looming ahead is a possible third meeting with Churchill, in the Northville district final Friday. Beating a team of the Chargers' caliber (they finish the regular season with a 9-4-1 mark) three straight is no easy task.

Asked if he planned to make any changes should the two teams meet again, O'Shea answered, "I'll have to think about it."

Then he added, "I'd like to change some."

Lally headlines local fight card

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Boxer Brett Lally is a landscaper by trade, so it's only natural that the Westland native is returning to his home turf.

The North American Boxing Federation's newly crowned junior middleweight champion will be part of a seven-bout professional card on Tuesday, June 11, at the Laurel Manor Conference Center in Livonia.

Lally, sporting a 28-5 record and 18 knockouts, will take on Chicagoan Anthony "Hard Puncher" Ivory (9-2) in a scheduled 10-round non-title bout.

The 1981 John Glenn High graduate, now residing in Plymouth, has literally fought all over the world — London, Johannesburg, Honolulu, Atlantic City and Las Vegas.

Lake Tahoe, Nev., was the site of his last conquest, a sixth-round KO against Willie "Montana" Hotchletter that gave him the NABF crown.

Lally last appeared on an area card back in November of 1983 (in Southfield) when he knocked out Charles Triplett in the third round of a junior welterweight bout.

"We wanted to bring boxing to the local fans of southwest Wayne County," said brother Bradd Lally, Brett's manager and trainer. "This is a nice set-up (the Laurel Manor). We'd like to attract a suburban crowd once or twice a month."

BRADD LALLY'S Golden Boys Productions, in cooperation with West Coast Productions of Pasadena, Calif., are promoting the fight.

Ringside tickets are $25 apiece (approximately 400) available with another 2,000 general admission seats will be offered at $15 each. (Call 462-0770 or 477-6959 for more ticket information.)

East Detroit matchmaker Lindy Lindell has lined up several boxers with area ties for the seven-bout card, including welterweight Jeff Styers (8-0), a 1984 Wayne Memorial grad, who will return to action after nearly a 2½-year layoff.

Styers, now residing in Northville and a sales representative for a computer firm, dropped out of sight because of contract difficulties after the death of his manager Johnny "Ace" Smith, who was shot and killed in an apparent hit in Detroit.

"I have not signed a contract with anyone," Styers said. "I learned the boxing business is cut-throat and rough, but Bradd gave me an opportunity and there's a good matchmaker who I can trust."

Also scheduled to appear on the card is light-heavyweight Vince

"Blue Thunder" Hopper (14-4), a Livonia Franklin grad, and heavy-weight Kermit Fitzpatrick, a state trooper who trains out of the Livonia Boxing Club.

Lally, however, will be the main attraction.

"I've been landscaping eight to 10 hours per day and that keeps me in shape when I'm not training," Lally said. "Plus it gives me a good sun-tan. I'm looking forward to it. I've been training hard."

IVORY, Lally's next opponent, is coming off a loss at the Palace of Auburn Hills against undefeated Tim Dendy.

"Ivory is basically a boxer, he'll use the ring and wait for the other guy to come in so he can counter punch," Bradd Lally said. "He's an up-and-coming fighter. He has the opportunity to fight a ranked boxer. Usually you need 15 to 20 fights before you get to a real contender, but because Brett wanted to fight here, we're giving him (Ivory) a chance."

Lally is currently ranked No. 3 by the World Boxing Council, No. 7 by the International Boxing Federation and No. 10 by the World Boxing Association.

He is 11-1 as a junior middleweight since returning to the ring after laying off all of 1985 and '88.

"Brett deserves his shot, he's paid his dues," Bradd said. "We cried in the ring after nobody thought we could be Hotchletter. It was a long time coming."

Lally, who has posted four consecutive KOs since losing to Donald Curry on a second-round TKO in Dec. of 1989, has a contract in hand (waiting to be signed) for his next mandatory title defense, set for Aug. 8 in San Francisco against hometown favorite Pat Lawler. (The bout will be televised on USA Cable.)

"AFTER THE LAWLER fight we're going to be sitting by the phone," Bradd said. "Say what you want, but Brett has beaten good guys and paid his dues."

If Lally wins his next two fights, brother Bradd is hoping to set up a possible title shot against either WBA champ Gilbert DeLe of France or IBF champ Gianfranco Rossi of Italy.

"We'd like to Brett to stay as a junior middleweight," Bradd said. "He carries his 154 pounds well. I don't have to bug him about running. He's always in good condition and that goes all the way back to when he started out at the Livonia Boxing Club with Paul Soucy (the LBC director). And with the landscaping, it keeps his mind busy, and that's good for a fighter."

DRC hosts exhibition

The Livonia Boxing Club, featuring 147-pound Open Division Golden Gloves participant Rob Diffenbaugh, will stage a series of exhibition matches for amateur fighters beginning at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, in conjunction with the Livonia Jaycees Carnival at Ladbroke DRC.

Fight fans can see Diffenbaugh, sporting a 31-9 amateur mark, in action along with some of the LBC's up-and-coming boxers.

The festivities will begin at 5 p.m. with a spaghetti dinner ($3.95 per person).

Scholarships cut without warning

TO COACH at Schoolcraft College, you've got to be ready to get "scooped."

Problem is — unlike the main character in Dickens' Christmas classic, who deserved his fate — at SC it doesn't matter if you've been naughty or nice. The college's version of the Grim Reaper is without bias, he slashes away at all, chopping programs and making fools of everyone.

What happened officially at last Thursday's meeting of the athletic staff wasn't a total surprise. At least some of the coaches had heard their scholarship budgets would be trimmed.

That doesn't make it any easier, though. Or right.

And it still remains mostly unexplained.

The scholarship budgets for all SC sports have been sliced, in some cases by more than 50 percent. All sports have been affected, and the minimum — in a survey of five SC coaches — is 40 percent.

According to women's soccer coach Nick O'Shea, the 283 credit hours he had available for scholarships last year has been whittled down to 136 — a cut of more than 50 percent.

THE REASON? According to sources, the one given by SC administrators is the sagging economy and state budget cuts imposed by Gov. John Engler.

(In a recent interview with the president of Eastern Michigan University, William Shelton, I was told the governor had not made any cuts in the state budget for higher education. Indeed, Shelton told me the governor had budgeted a four percent increase.)

C.J. Risak

Whatever the reason, the fallout is extensive.

The two administration officials in command of SC athletics shed no light on the problems. Midge Carleton, assistant dean for physical education, left town the day after the meeting; athletic director Marty Nowak refused to comment.

UNDERSTAND, THE extensive cuts are only part of the trouble. The timing borders on unbelievable.

The coaches are being told now that their scholarships for next fall have been sliced.

In case the beancounters in charge of SC's finances didn't realize it, scholarships have already been promised. Recruiting can't wait until the summer months.

All the coaches contacted admitted they have already overspent their reduced budgets.

So now what?

The administration's answer: Go back and tell the recruits, "Sorry, kid, but I guess I can't provide the scholarship help I promised you"; hold fund-raisers, or find some millionaire with money to burn and convince him to donate it to your sports program.

None are realistic.

Stevenson finishes undefeated

Livonia Stevenson completed an unbeaten dual meet season in girls track Wednesday with a 78-50 triumph at Westland John Glenn.

Stevenson, coached by Paul Holmberg, won its sixth Lakes Division title in seven years with a 5-0 record. The Spartans, who have lost only one dual meet in the past five years, finished the 1991 season with an 8-0 overall record.

The Spartans will try and defend their Western Lakes Activities Association crown Tuesday in a 12-school meet at Farmington.

Chief competition will come from Western Division champion Plymouth Canton and Lakes Division runner-up Plymouth Salem.

"It will be a battle," predicted Holmberg. "As George Przygodski (the Canton coach) said to me, after they won it (the WAAA title in 1989), enjoy it while you can because everybody will be shooting at you the next year, and it's been an awful tough year."

Stevenson captured nine of 16 events in toppling Glenn, which finished 7-3 overall and 2-3 in the Lakes.

Martus paces Churchill in meet loss

Livonia Churchill could not stand in the way of Northville's conquest of a Western Division boys track title Wednesday.

The host Mustangs won 10 events, including three of four relays to finish division action at 5-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Jamie Miller stood out for the winners, capturing the long jump (20 feet) while teaming up with Bill Kelley, Matt Kemp and Ryan Huzyak to win the 400-meter relay (45.2).

Churchill, which finished 2-3 in the division and 2-5 overall, was led by Jeff Martus, who captured the 800 and 1,600 runs in 2:10.3 and 5:00.5, respectively. He also combined with Brian S. Johnson, Tim Priebe and Scott Sepanski to win the 3,200 relay (8:42.3).

Other Churchill first-place finishers included: Randy Calcaterra, high jump, 6-2; Matt Gerlych, pole vault, 11-6 (personal best); Darlan Muzo, 300 hurdles; and Jon Curry, 3,200 run, 11:19.2.

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN wrapped up a successful season Wednesday by whipping host Livonia Stevenson in a WAAA-Lakes Division dual, 81-56.

The Rockets, 8-1 overall and 4-1 in the Lakes, were led by Ed Jeannin, who figured in four first places.

girls track

Individual winners for Stevenson included: Teresa Sarno, shot put (35 feet, 8 inches); Debbie Wroblewski, discus (116-7); Gail Grewe, high jump (5-0); Michelle Slawski, 200-meter dash (28.7); Jennifer Pfander, 800 run (2:29.4); Carrie Creehan, 1,600 run (5:39.6); and A.J. Koritnik, 3,200 run (13:08.9).

Walsh, Julie Martin, Stacy Prais and Debbie Walsh combined for a first in the 800 relay (1:52.9), while the foursome of Creehan, Grewe, Koritnik and Pfander won the 3,200 relay (10:49.0).

Lynette Conner figured in three firsts for Glenn, individually winning the long jump (14-4) and 100 dash (13.6). She also teamed up with Melanie Cline, Lisa DuPree and Tamara Murphy to win the 400 relay in 52.8.

Other Glenn firsts were recorded by Amy Finley in the 100 hurdles (17.5); Mary Hartwig, 300 hurdles (50.8); and Kim Springer, 400 dash (1:05.4).

Harwig, Finley, Dana Nowicki and Tina Honeycutt captured the 1,600 relay in 4:34.9.

LIVONIA FRANKLIN, despite taking firsts in all four field events Wednesday, could not stop host Farmington Harrison, losing 69-59.

Franklin finished 2-3 in the Western Division of the WAAA and 3-5 overall.

First place finishers for the Patriots included: Danielle Simon (shot put), Colleen Lai (discus), Erin Fischer (high jump), Kristie Celeksi (long jump), Kelly Gustafson (400 run), Jenni Hovarter (800 run) and Sandy Schulte (3,200 run).

Gustafson, Hovarter, Becky Latham and Debbie Bryz captured the 3,200 run.

Harrison, 3-2 in the Western Division, was led by Heather Conley, who swept the 100 and 200 dashes and was a member of the victorious 400 and 800 relay squads.

Jeannin swept the 100- and 200-meter dashes in 11.67 and 23.3, respectively. He also teamed up with Jim Woloski, Brandon Duck and Brian Schultz to win the 400 relay in 46.26. The foursome of Jeannin, Woloski, Terry Hower and Randy Seach added a first in the 800 relay (1:34.5).

Other Glenn first places were garnered by Jason Key, discus (143-10); Buck, long jump (19-8½); Chris Vanderburgh, high jump, 5-10; Mark Kalsner, 110 hurdles, 16:17; Jason Nowicki, 800 run (2:07.8); and Joe Hajewski, 1,600 run (4:53.3).

Among the Stevenson individual winners: Dan Gibbons, shot put (46-3); Paul Rockwood, pole vault (11-0); Flemming Christensen, 300 hurdles (43.8); Rodney Westlake, 400 run (50.61); and Matt Rowe, 3,200 run (10:43.9).

The Spartans, who finished 5-2 overall and 3-2 in the Lakes, also captured the 1,600 relay (5:47.9) and 3,200 relay (8:48.9).

LIVONIA FRANKLIN closed out its dual meet season Thursday, defeating host Farmington Harrison in a WAAA-Western Division meet, 80-57.

The meet was highlighted by Paul White's school-record leap of 6 feet, 2½ inches in the high jump, breaking the mark of 6-2 held since 1972 by Guy Burke. Senior sprinter Steve Clemmons and Jeff Ellinski also stood out for the victorious Patriots.

Clemmons won the 100- and 200-meter dashes in 11.1 and 23.2, respectively.

Clemmons, Ron Clair, Vic Rodopoulos and Ron Troia added a first in the 400 relay (48.9). The quartet team of Clemmons, Rodopoulos, Russ Keberly and Ellinski took the 800 relay (1:36.2).

Ellinski swept the 110- and 300 hurdles in 15.7 and 23.2, respectively. He also captured the long jump (19-8½).

Teammate Eric Curnow also took two individual events for Franklin, winning the 1,600 and 3,200 runs in 4:46.2 and 10:25.6, respectively.

Other Franklin firsts were recorded by Jamie Semruk in the 400 dash (54.7) and Cary Quatro in the 800 run (2:10.3).

Harrison, which finished 1-5 overall and 0-5 in the division, got a pair of firsts from Tony Shaleh in the shot put and discus.

Johnson wins 1st league title

Livonia Stevenson's Meghan Johnson is on a roll.

The sophomore won two girls golf tournaments last week, including the Inaugural Western Lakes Activities Association event Wednesday at Huron Meadows, followed by the Class A regional Friday at Oak Pointe near Brighton.

Johnson shot an 80 at the regional, but had to go one extra hole in a sudden death playoff to edge Ann Arbor Pioneer's Susan Evashevski.

Livonia Ladywood's Mickie Gossett, a senior, also qualified for the state Class A finals by finishing third with an 87. Teammate Meghan Blake, also a senior, qualified as well with a fifth place finish. She shot 90.

Ladywood finished tied for fourth in the team standings with Brighton at 407, six strokes from going to state.

The state qualifiers included regional champion Pioneer (374), Howell (400) and Northville (401). All three teams, along with Gossett and Blake, advanced to the finals, Saturday, June 1 at Forest Akers in East Lansing.

IN THE WLAA tourney, Johnson shot an 88 to gain medalist honors, 12 shots

Canton captured the team title with 422 total, followed by Northville (434), Stevenson (454), Livonia Franklin (475), Walled Lake Western (492), Plymouth Salem (519), Walled Lake Central (525) and Livonia Churchill (587).

Other Canton finishers included Sarah Beckman, fifth, 108; Audrey Melisser, seventh, 107; and Katie Konovaly, eighth, 109.

Meanwhile, Ladywood wrapped up a 12-2 dual meet season last week with a 197-206 win over state-ranked Birmingham Seaholm in a match at Idyl Wyld.

Gossett took medalist honors with a 42, followed by teammates Blake (46), Lauren Zimmerman (49) and Katie Pinkelman (60).

Patty White shot a 45 for Seaholm.

Churchill headed to predistrict

Mike Brooks slammed a two-run homer and Mike Foley went 3-for-3 Thursday, leading host Livonia Churchill to a 6-1 baseball win over Redford Union in a Class A predistrict qualifier.

The Chargers (6-9) out-hit the Panthers, 10-5.

Winning pitcher Mike Thomas allowed four hits over six innings to earn the victory. He struck out seven and walked two. Mark Rutherford finished up in the seventh.

Mike Ernst, the RU starter, was roughed up for five hits and four runs over two innings.

Dennis Creedon and Rutherford each added two hits for Churchill.

ADRIAN 3, WAYNE 2: Wayne Memorial (6-11) was eliminated from state Class A tourney play Thursday as the host Trojans held on for the win.

J.R. Hayden, the winning pitcher, struck out 13 and did not walk a batter in five innings. Dan Lock, who came on in relief, pitched two scoreless innings to earn the save. He struck out the side in the seventh.

"The kid (Lock) that came in second we faced last year," Wayne coach Jim Chrowski said. "He (Lock) is a long, tall drink of water. He doesn't look too bad, but he stopped us pretty effectively this year. We helped them with the wind tunnel. We got the (Detroit) Tiger syndrome, with a lot of whiffs."

"Dan Kirkendall slammed a solo homer over the left-center field fence in the first for Adrian. Hank Soto and Hayden each added RBI singles in the third, all with two outs.

Wayne tallied both of its runs in the fourth when Joe Limotte doubled and Joe Files added his second homer of the year.

Doug Levereiz had two hits in a losing cause.

Jason Wetmore (3-2) suffered the loss for Wayne. He allowed only four hits and four walks over six innings. Wetmore fanned five batters.

CLARENCEVILLE 10, LUTHERAN WEST 0: Steve Cox and Carl Holston split six innings down the middle, combining on a no-bitter Wednesday in-visitng Livonia Clarenceville's Metro Conference triumph over Detroit Lutheran West.

Holston, who worked the final three innings to pick up the win, struck out four and walked one. Cox allowed one walk and fanned one.

Holston helped his own cause, going 3-for-3 with three RBI. Dave Balanger and Tony Malinowski each added a two-run double.

Clarenceville is 11-4 overall and 9-4 in the Metro.

JOHN GLENN 8, BELLEVILLE 1: On Thursday, Westland John Glenn ran its record to 17-2 overall with the Class A predistrict qualifying triumph over the Tigers.

REDFORD CC 13, CANTON 1: Redford Catholic Central (14-13) lashed out 15 hits and scored six times in the sixth inning to break a 1-1 tie to beat host Plymouth Canton (15-5) in a non-leaguer.

Joe Vondracek, winning pitcher Scott Kapla and Matt Roney each collected three hits for the winners. Vondracek belted a three-run homer off Canton losing pitcher Jason Riggs in the seventh.

Kapla (6-3) allowed four hits and one earned run over six innings. He fanned four and walked only one. Steve Ross finished up.

Chris James had two hits in a losing cause.

N. FARMINGTON 12, STEVENSON 2: Pitchers Mike Powers (four innings) and Mark Temple (three), combined on a three-hitter Wednesday, leading North Farmington to the WLAA-Lakes Division win over visiting Livonia Stevenson (5-13).

Temple also contributed two doubles for the victors.

Glenn fails to qualify in Class A, 3-2

Westland John Glenn's softball season is winding down to a grinding halt.

The Rockets were eliminated Wednesday by visiting Belleville in a Class A pre-district qualifier, 3-2, as winning pitcher Dawn Rochowiak tossed a five-hitter.

Keisha Wilson and Linda Pasek each collected three hits for the state-ranked Tigers.

Catcher Karen Olack, who picked off base runners, collected two hits for Glenn, while Karyn Koester knocked in both Rocket runs on groundouts.

Cathy Mruk, the losing pitcher, gave up 10 hits.

On Wednesday, Garden City hurler Tracy Thompson threw a perfect game, facing the minimum 21 batters (while fanning eight) in a 9-0 triumph over the visiting Rockets.

It was Thompson's second perfect game of the season.

Carolyn Shanks went 4-for-4 and Thompson added three hits and two RBI for the Cougars, now 19-2 overall.

Shanks made the defensive play of the game when she fielded line shot to center and threw out Glenn's Nikki Nagek at first base.

Glenn hopes to rebound today with a victory at Walled Lake Central. Both teams are tied for first in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

A Glenn win would put the Rockets in the WLAA championship May 28 against Western Division champ Livonia Franklin.

CHURCHILL 5, REDFORD UNION 3: Jackie Hebert's two-run homer in the top of the seventh inning gave Livonia Churchill (6-8) a Class A pre-district qualifying victory Thursday over host Redford Union (9-10).

"It went right down the third base line and went a long ways, it was a rip," RU coach Gary DeRoche said.

Karen Jose, a freshman, came on in relief of starter Mary Kneiding to gain the victory. She did not allow a run and fanned eight over three innings.

Tracy McManamon went the distance for RU. She struck out nine, allowed four hits and walked two.

Vicki Lucas also homered for Churchill.

LADYWOOD 13, SOUTHFIELD 0: Livonia Ladywood (17-14) advanced in the state Class A tourney with a five-inning (mercy rule) triumph over the visiting Blue Jays.

Kim Sturton paced a 10-hit Ladywood had an RBI triple, two-run single and two-run homer.

Karen Totzke and Gerylyn Kepsblre each added two-run doubles, while Rachelle Campeau chipped in with an RBI double.

Winning pitcher Staci Kowalczyk allowed just four hits. She struck out eight and walked one over five innings.

STEVENSON 11, HENRY FORD 4: Gayle Richardson and Collette Rockwell each contributed two hits and two RBI Thursday, leading host Livonia Stevenson (5-11) to the Class A pre-district qualifying win over visiting Detroit Henry Ford.

The Spartans collected 12 hits, including a 2-for-2 effort and three runs scored by winning pitcher Erin Phillips, who worked the final 5 1/3 innings in relief of starter Nikki Italia.

Phillips struck out four and walked only one. She did not allow a run.

On Wednesday, host North Farmington (16-4, 8-2) clinched a share of the WLAA's Lakes Division title with a 9-6 triumph over the Spartans.

Dana Botwick, Terri Gruca and Eve Claar each had two hits for the winners.

North scored seven times in the opening inning, keyed by Claar's two-run single off Phillips, who took the loss.

Carie Palmisano had two hits in a losing cause, while Terri Renko contributed winning pitcher Jennifer Lydon scattered eight hits and two walks to run her record to 13-3.

LUTH. WESTLAND 9, FLAT ROCK 7: In a Class C pre-district qualifier Thursday, host Lutheran Westland (12-4) relied on the pitching of Christy Pydyn and the hitting of Leslie Turgeon to advance past the Rams.

Pydyn went the distance, scattering six hits while walking five.

Turgeon had two hits, including a double, and three RBI. Kristen Strang also had two hits, including a triple.

LUTHERAN EAST 7, CLARENCEVILLE 3: Rhonda Saunders pitched a complete game and had two hits, but eight errors doomed Livonia Clarenceville Friday against visiting Harper Woods Lutheran East.

Lutheran East scored four runs in the top of the seventh to break a 3-3 tie.

But on Thursday, Clarenceville beat Lutheran East when it counted. The Trojans won the Class C pre-district qualifier, 7-4, behind Saunders' 2-4 performance. Clarenceville scored four runs in the last three innings.

The Trojans scored the tying and go-ahead runs in the fifth. Melissa Ufford was hit by a pitch and Saunders reached base on an error. Both scored when the catcher's attempted pick-off throw at

THESE GUYS aren't paid much to coach to begin with (all SC coaches are paid less than $5,000 annually). Asking them to put in more time to raise money — half would go directly into the budget of the sport hosting the fund-raiser, the other half to the athletic department's general fund — is ridiculous.

At least finding donors is a better deal. The sport responsible for landing the donation gets to keep all the money. Van Dimitriou, the men's soccer coach, will be able to offset his scholarship deficit with money donated to the men's soccer fund.

Of course, Dimitriou had planned to use those donations to upgrade equipment and buy new uniforms. Oh, well.

Other coaches aren't as fortunate, although one was contemplating standing at the Six Mile exit ramp off I-275 with a cup to see what he could get.

The first option is flat out dismissed by all the coaches. They steadfastly refuse to renege on scholarships already promised.

"I'm going to have to raise some money, that's all," said men's basketball coach Dave Bogataj, "because I've already given out more than they gave me."

ADDED. WOMEN'S basketball coach Jack Grenan: "My most important consideration is my reputation with these kids." He and Bogataj plan to put on a series of fund-raising clinics in the fall.

But while Grenan was "trying to be positive and make (the deficit) up in other ways," O'Shea was less optimistic.

"They're asking us to do an awful lot, for the position we're in," the women's soccer coach said. He added that, before he's forced to renege on scholarship help already promised, he would resign.

"I can't stay if I have to go back to those girls and tell them that," he said.

The coaches might have expected cuts, considering the economic recession the nation is in. But the magnitude was not anticipated, at least partially because individual sports do not have overall budgets.

There has always been a defined number of scholarships per sport, but there is no exclusive budget for men's soccer or women's basketball or volleyball.

But perhaps being caught off guard is a poor excuse. After all, Scrooge never expected to be forced to his knees, humiliated and begging for mercy, on that fateful Christmas Eve, either.

Arm wrestling event has successful 3 days

By Steve Kowalek
staff writer

Rob Bixby showed up at Redford's Mr. Sports One Of A Kind Bar one night earlier this month for the Yukon Jack Arm Wrestling Championships.

The 22-year-old Livonia resident made it known he was there to watch the regional, not compete. "I don't put myself through that," Bixby said.

Bixby came to root on his friend, Livonia's Roger Beaune, who in his first-ever competition placed second in the heavyweight division to Ken Flynn of Dayton, Ohio. Four winners were crowned and received $200 in prize money and an automatic bid to the national championships to be held next month in Tampa, Fla.

But according to Jeff Bernstein, a Yukon Jack Tournament official, the real winners were Mr. Sports and the local Multiple Sclerosis Society. Bernstein said the bar has earned the right to host next year's regional, and Detroit also "has an outside chance of hosting the national" in 1992.

The three-day tournament drew 84 competitors from three states and Canada and raised $840 for the Multiple Sclerosis Society. Mr. Sports was packed to capacity Tuesday and over the three days bar patrons went through 60 bottles of Yukon Jack Whiskey, a tournament record according to Bernstein.

"IT'S A GOOD Yukon Jack market," joked Bernstein, who is based out of New York City. "This bar is terrific. It's a great layout and the whole crew is as helpful as possible. I rate it right up there in the top two or three (of 13 regional sites). It may be the best."

A tournament record 15 arm wrestlers competed in the women's division, including Mr. Sports General Manager Kim McNamara, who finished second. McNamara never arm wrestled before last week and prior to Thursday night's final she wasn't taking this thing seriously.

McNamara won all five of her matches Wednesday night, but was taught a lesson in Thursday's final. Aline Dees, an experienced arm wrestler from New Paris, Ohio, whipped McNamara in two straight matches for the title.

McNamara looked like a champion, however, wearing a boxer's robe as she was escorted into the ring for the final match by the Mr. Sports crew.

"I run the bars (including the Mr.

Sports in Farmington Hills); I never thought I'd be in it," joked McNamara. "But because it was for a good cause, six employees and I got involved. If I wasn't serious in the final round, I would have broken my arm."

McNamara is looking forward to continuing the relationship with the Yukon Jack Arm Wrestling Championships.

"BEING A SPORTS bar we've got to do a lot of different things," she said. "We've got the Great Shooting Contest, run by (Los Angeles Lakers general manager) Jerry West and we don't want to eliminate any specific sports or hobby. Our goal is to have everyone fit in when they come to Mr. Sports. We want to have something for everyone."

Dave Patton, a 32-time world champion, was in town the first two days as the Yukon Jack Arm Wrestling Championships spokesman, but had to leave the third day because of a work commitment. He did not need to compete since he has an automatic bid to Tampa after winning last year's title.

The most famous name remaining was Cobra Rhodes, a 26-year-old from Muskegon who won the middleweight division by beating Tim Edwards, of Gratis, Ohio, 2-1, in the final. Rhodes, who weighs only 165 pounds, was competing against arm wrestlers who weigh 190 in the middleweight division.

A previous national champion, Rhodes began arm wrestling as a sophomore in high school when he took on juniors and seniors for lunch money in the cafeteria.

"THE JUNIORS and seniors used to do it for lunch money and after a couple months the juniors and seniors started to go hungry because I had most of their money," said Rhodes, who is as cocky as he is good. "I take no one lightly. I just get up and do it."

Rhodes' talents have taken him all over the world and landed him a role in the movie "Over the Top," which starred Sylvester Stallone.

"I trained Stallone off the set, and taught him the proper hand techniques, and such," Rhodes said. "I refereed the final two matches in the movie. It was the funnest three weeks I've had in awhile. They put me up in the Hilton (Inn) and I earned a little chunk of change."

Winning the lightweight title was Mike O'Hara, of Cleveland, Ohio, who beat Lansing's Ed Fitzgerald, two matches to one in the final.

Livonia site of tourney

THE MICHIGAN CANCER FOUNDATION is now running its fifth annual Blanche Robinson Memorial Tournament at Merri Bowl Lanes in Livonia and Plum Hollow Lanes in Southfield.

The Plum Hollow action will take place this week for the final squad on at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

This is the last squad of the tournament. Bowlers may enter as often as they wish (cash one time only) and the prize money is very attractive. A prize of $5,000 will be awarded for first place, $2,500 for second and $1,000 for third.

All proceeds will go towards the support of cancer research and patient services.

The format for the tournament is no-tap for three games. The men's handicap is 80 percent from 210 and the women's is 90 percent from 210.

The unofficial leaders include: Jennifer McIntosh, first with 898; Dave Cervenak, second, 869; Theresa Beltowski, third, 861; Paul Wells, fourth, 849; Bill Spray, fifth, 845.

which will be mentioned in this column and subsequent editions. Among those to choose from are instructional leagues for beginners, mixed leagues, family fun leagues and trio leagues.

In the trio leagues, you usually play two games against one team add two against another. Some of the trio leagues are mixed.

It should be noted that when you pay your sanction for the summer league, this is credited to you for payment of the following regular season contribution as well.

While we were away, a lot of scores were missed. Here's where the bowling honor roll gets back up to date.

Dave Capaldi of Canton, competing in the Michigan Junior Masters Association Tournament at South Lyon, won his first and second game ever in match play. It was good enough for the MJMA title.

Capaldi beat Kevin Keys 202-195 and went on to defeat Nick Reeser, 218-209.

Tamika Glenn of Farmington Hills came up with her first 300 game in the second game of qualifying. She led all the female qualifiers, averaging 225. Glenn had to compete elsewhere on Tuesday because she already qualified for the state finals of the National Junior Championships.

It worked out well for Glenn, as she won the state finals and will bowl for the big one in Indianapolis for the second time.

JOHNSON WINS HORTON

Livonian Todd Johnson, a Redford Catholic Central High graduate, shot a 71 and 64 Thursday to win the Horton Smith Memorial Golf Tournament at the Detroit Golf Club.

Johnson, a junior member at Meadowbrook Country Club, defeated his friend Brian Mills by eight shots to win the coveted state title.

COACHES WANTED

Those interested in coaching a premier league team for the Livonia Youth Soccer Club should send brief letter to: Don McDougall, 29148 Perth, Livonia 48154.

Redford Thurston is seeking an assistant football coach for the upcoming (fall) season. Those interested should call Jim Urlick at 535-4000, Ext. 232.

BUSUITO RETIREMENT

Doris Busuito, a member of the Wayne Memorial High School Athletic Hall of Fame, will be honored at a retirement dinner Thursday, May 30 at Leright's Banquet Hall, 626 S. Wayne Road, Westland.

Busuito was a former standout volleyball coach and teacher at Wayne. She is retiring after 39 years.

The cost is $12.50 for the dinner ($5 optional for gift). Cocktails will be served from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. (cash bar) with dinner starting at 6 p.m.

Checks should be made payable to: Bill Hawley, C/O Wayne Memorial High School, 3001 Fourth Street, Wayne 48184. (Reservations must be made by today.)

For more information, call Hawley (595-2260), Chuck Howton (595-2228), Chris Bak (595-2237) or Karen Paling (595-2621).

PRIX VOLUNTEERS

A limited number of openings remain for those interested in becoming involved in the 10th annual Valvoline Detroit Grand Prix, the CART Indy Series race that comes to the streets of Detroit June 14-16.

Volunteers are needed to serve as ushers, assisting ticket-holders in the trackside grandstands, or as circuit marshals, working on-line to provide assistance with crowd control in restricted access areas in conjunction with the professional security staff. Both positions involved working outdoors, throughout the week, and allowance time to view race activities.

In order to work the event you must become a member of the Detroit Grand Prix Association. Requirements for membership include minimum age of 18, payment of annual dues ($20 U.S. funds) and a commitment to work all three days race weekend (Friday, Saturday and Sunday). Membership applications must be submitted no later than Friday, May 31.

Members will receive a variety of benefits, ranging from official shirts and complimentary meals, to members-only parties and event discounts.

FOUR DIAMONDS

Bonnie LePage (at left), general manager of Townsend Hotel in Birmingham, is presented with the prestigious Four Diamond Award by AAA Michigan president Robert A. Aikema. The Townsend is one of 12 Michigan establishments to receive the award this year. Only 4 percent of 27,800 approved lodging and restaurant facilities earned the award in 1991 for their commitment to quality and excellence.

Video golf slices into airline

NEW YORK (AP) — International executives who wish they were on the golf course instead of being stuck on a stupefying 13-hour flight to Tokyo can now hit the links while they're airborne.

On a video screen, that is. All Nippon Airways is betting that the allure of video games, noted for mesmerizing youngsters for hours, will help first- and business-class travelers kill time as they cross the Pacific.

The Japanese carrier claims to be the pioneer in offering the in-flight games, which are displayed on a television monitor connected to the armrest between seats.

"We realize that the trip either way is very long, and it's just trying to give them something to do, make them more comfortable, take their mind off the fact that they're in the air for this protracted time," said ANA spokeswoman Jan Still-Lindeman.

"It sounds pretty neat," said Tim Neale of the Air Transport Association, a trade group in Washington. "I know airlines are starting to order video screens in the seatbacks and the armrests. It's the coming thing."

The video Golf is one of six games offered by ANA and developed by Konami Industry Co. Ltd. and Sony Corp. Other available sports include road racing, in a game called Road Fighter, and baseball, in a game called Crashing Pennant Race 2.

In the Golf game, players have the choice of using two woods, eight irons, a pitching wedge, a sand wedge, or a putter as they knock the ball around a nine-hole course. Each club has a standard distance for how far it will send the ball, with the driver's range being 240 meters and the sand wedge's range being 80 meters.

The video screen provides a view from where the ball lies, with a lay-out of the course off to the right. The number of strokes, the par — even the wind direction and velocity — show up on the screen.

Knock the ball out of bounds, you're penalized two strokes. Shoot from a sand trap, and the distance the ball flies will be shorter for whatever club you're using.

Several major U.S. airlines acknowledged that ANA has beaten them to the punch by offering such in-flight amusements, although others are looking into similar setups. United Airlines, for one, hasn't been happy with the equipment it has seen so far.

A leading aircraft manufacturer, the Boeing Company, agreed there are bugs, particularly in where the screen should be set up.

But the airline videos have one big advantage over their counterparts in video parlors on the ground. There's no need for world travelers to stock up on quarters before they take off.

Sea World seeking to import killer whale from Great Britain

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A permit seeking importation of a killer whale from a British marine park has been filed by Sea World Inc., which operates four theme parks in the United States.

The permit application, required under the Marine Mammal Protection Act, was filed with the National Marine Fisheries Service, said Dan LeBlanc, a Sea World spokesman in San Diego.

Sea World has 13 killer whales at four parks in San Diego, Orlando, Fla., San Antonio, Texas, and outside Cleveland, Ohio.

The company plans to acquire a 15-year-old female killer whale now housed at Windsor Safari Park near London.

LeBlanc said terms of the deal are confidential.

Brad Andrews, Sea World's assistant zoological director, said the killer whale from Britain may wind up at any of the four American parks. He said the final decision would be based on where biologists feel the whale would best fit in with the groups of whales already on hand.

Andrews said Sea World plans to use the British whale in its captive breeding program as well as for performances. Sea World's captive breeding program has produced five calves, with the most recent occurring at the Orlando park in July 1989.

Review of the importation application is expected to take several months. Windsor Safari Park also must obtain an export permit from the United Kingdom Department of the Environment for the deal to go through.

department. It was operated by the Lake Lansing Amusement Park until 1987, when it was put in storage.

THE WHEEL features 10 ornate wire gondolas, each holding four-six passengers.

Crossroads Village will also begin its second season of murder mystery dinner theater presentations with "Manners, Mystery and Murder" June 8 and 22. The Musical Murders will be featured July 13 and 27; "All Roads Lead to Murder" Aug. 10 and 24; "Assembly Line Murders" Sept. 7.

Tickets are $25 for dinner and performance, or $80 for all four productions, each at 6:30 p.m. Reserve at least 10 days ahead by calling (313) 736-7100.

Tickets for admission to Crossroads Village, including Huckleberry Railroad, are $7.50 for people 13 and older, $5.25 for kids 4-12. Kids under 3 are free. For information, call (313) 736-7100.

Colorado railroad bounces back after inferno

DURANGO, Colo. (AP) — On a chill, dark morning two years ago, grown men near tears stood in the snowy yard of the Durango & Silverton Narrow Gauge Railroad and watched fire destroy the historic roundhouse where all six engines were stored.

Since then, the railroad has literally risen from the ashes and aims for 250,000 riders this year.

There is a new $2 million roundhouse and machine shop where the aoid, charred smell of the fire has finally dissipated.

"It seemed hopeless when you looked in that burned-out skeleton," operations supervisor Dan McCall said. "We're just happy to be back in the shop."

The shop crew not only takes care of the Durango & Silverton maintenance, it does contract work for other railroads.

Engines from the Cumbres & Toledo, the Grand Canyon and the Georgetown Loop railroads have been worked on in the Durango backshop this winter.

When the fire destroyed the roundhouse on Feb. 10, 1989, owner Charles Bradshaw was sleeping next door in the General Palmer Hotel.

"By the time I had my pants on, I was thinking, if we have to run tracks in the parking lot under a circus tent, we'll get the trains going by May," Bradshaw said.

He was right. Eleven weeks later, three engines were repaired. The train season began right on schedule May 5, and by mid-summer all six engines were on track.

The plucky little engines carried a record 201,004 passengers by season's end.

Mechanics were still working six and seven days a week. But a year later, they moved into the new 35,000-square-foot roundhouse.

The roundhouse's design incorporates historic features and two original 1881 brick walls. It has 18 stalls for locomotives, three times the old roundhouse capacity.

"The shop's come a long way. It's never been better," said Larry Beam, the roundhouse foreman.

The railroad's ambitious goal of 250,000 passengers this year springs from a 17 percent increase in early reservations, Bradshaw said.

The 1991 season began this month, and the iron horses will pull coaches to Silverton through spectacular Animas River valleys through Oct. 27.

Despite industry fears that the recession could soften tourism, railroad officials are promoting the train at trade shows across the country.

"One thing's for sure," vice president Amos Cordova said. "I don't think the American public is going to be gyped out of a vacation."

Cordova said the railroad is offering promotions. And, for the first time, it is giving commissions to travel agents who attract riders.

McCall, meanwhile, believes the fiery cloud two years ago had a silver lining.

"The fire was a tragedy as far as historic purposes," he said. "For our purposes, it was great."

INDIAN ATTACK

The British will be there in their red coats. The Indians will attack as they always do. And the pioneers will shoot their muzzle-loaders, throw their knives and show off their fur fashions within the palisaded walls of Fort Michilimackinac. The Fort Michilimackinac Pageant, where 30,000 spectators help relive 18th-century life, will be May 25-27 at the Straits of Mackinac Peninsula. A re-enactment of the June 2, 1763 storming and capture of the fort during a baggataway match between the Indians and the British garrison will top off each day of the festival. Baggataway was the forerunner of lacrosse. Restored Fort Michilimackinac, site of 18th-century French and British garrisons, is now the subject of the longest ongoing archaeological dig in North America. Nearby is the 1892 Old Mackinac Point Lighthouse, now serving as the Mackinac Maritime Museum. For more information, write the Michigan Travel Bureau, P.O. Box 30226, Lansing, MI 48909, or call (800) 5432-YES.

Ohio's Maumee Bay Lodge shines on Lake Erie shore

THE COTTAGES are built on square foundations under squared shingled roofs, but what happens between roof and foundation is truly innovative architecture. Two corners have been cut away to create an open deck and a screened deck. Another small porch lies off the main bedroom.

We followed a long private drive to our parking area and walked across a small bridge to the door of our two-bedroom cottage. As you enter, you can go directly upstairs to a loft containing two single beds separated by a partial wall under skylights that open at your touch.

Or you can circle the stairs on the main floor, past a full bathroom, a bedroom with an upper and lower bunk, a second bedroom with a double bed, and a living-dining area with large table, living-room furniture and a gas fireplace.

The cottages are a good buy, especially for families or small groups. Lodge rooms cost $69 for one person, $79 for two, $109 for a loft room or a suite. The two-bedroom cottages are $89 a night, $425 a week. Four-bedroom cottages are $120 a night or $465 a week. Don't forget to add 12 percent state and local tax to those rates.

The management staff at the resort are trained, but the service staff is mostly new to the hospitality industry, so things were a bit slow during that first week. Untrained or not, we found the staff cheerful and helpful, ready to open any door or run any dining-room errand.

Bette Cannon of West Bloomfield, who visited the resort just after it opened, gave it high marks. "It's very accessible to people in the Detroit area. Families can get together there and enjoy the facilities without spending too much money. The potential is greater than what's there now, because not everything is open yet.

"What I liked best about it was staying in a cottage, lighting the fireplace at night and falling asleep upstairs under the skylight with a sky full of stars overhead."

By midsummer, these greening fields will be busy with bicycles, T-shirts, ball caps, cars, golf carts and the other trappings of a summer resort. For this brief off-season month it is quiet, with hawks and seagulls spreading their wings wide against the sky as they fly over the resort and the lake.

Maumee Bay is just one of 10 Ohio state parks. For reservations or information, call toll-free (800) AT-A-PARK.

"We got a half-price special, so the rates were $40 per night on the weekend, $20 per night during the week. The hotel was decorated with gaudy, baroque-style décor."

"Meals in Las Vegas can be very inexpensive," she said. "You can find buffets at most hotels. We ate a pound of crab for only $9.95 one night. The shows are not cheap. David Copperfield was performing when we were there, but his show cost $55, so we passed on that one."

The Excalibur, a new hotel and casino, offers a spectacular dinner and show for around $25. It's built like a medieval castle, with jousters in the spirit of King Arthur. If you're a guest, you get two tokens for the "Excalibur" machine, which is a rock with a sword as a handle. You pull on the sword for the jackpot."

Amidst the glitz and glamour, the magic turned to reality for Sue. Maybe it will for you too.

IRIS SANDERSON JONES

To celebrate 25th they want tropical

Sharon and Lawrence Churchfield will celebrate a quarter century of married life next fall, and they would like to do it in a nice warm place.

"We would like to take a trip somewhere different, possibly tropical. We have been to Hawaii. I am a little reluctant to go someplace tropical because of monsoons. Do you have any suggestions?"

The word "monsoons" startled me, because I associate it with childhood stories about the mysterious east. I looked the word up in my dictionary and read "the seasonal wind of the Indian Ocean and southern Asia, blowing from the southwest in summer and the northeast in winter."

Another definition was "any persistent wind established between water and adjoining land."

Look at it from that point of view and you get the word "storm" which quickly leads you to "hurricane," a very scary word indeed. Surprisingly, very few travelers are ever caught in hurricanes, no matter how much their stormy paths dominate the evening news.

Some cruise ship lines will refund your money if you have the bad luck to sail during a storm. I talk to a lot of travelers, but only one or two have ever complained about bad weather in the Caribbean.

Where should you go?

My favorite island discovery of the last year is St. Lucia, a mountainous isle in the eastern Caribbean where you can stay at a variety of resorts and enjoy sand, sea, sun and too much good food. Definitely not for those who like casinos and evening entertainment.

My favorite place in Mexico is San Miguel de Allende, northwest of Mexico City. This was once the heart of Spanish colonial Mexico. You can stay in an old Spanish mansion converted into a small luxury hotel. You can shop, eat and tour the surrounding area. You cannot stretch out on the beach; no beach.

Your destination will depend a lot on what you enjoy, what you mean by "somewhere different." If you go early in October, and want to go that far, you will find something different on the Balearic Islands of Majorca and Ibiza off the coast of Spain. That is where Europeans go in the fall.

I suggest you spend some time in your library and at a travel agency. Check out Margaret Zeller's guide book on the Caribbean. Her observations are very personal and reliable. Use the Reader's Guide to Periodicals or just browse through past magazines like Conde Nast Traveler and Travel & Leisure. Pick up handfuls of brochures at a travel agency.

Half the fun of travel is exploring the possibilities. When you have narrowed your choices down, write to me again and we'll refine your itinerary. Meantime, we invite other readers to send us their suggestions for a tropical celebration of a 25th anniversary.

It was three o'clock in the morning on the first day of her Las Vegas trip when Sue Leja of Milford saw the flashing lights on her slot machine. She had been playing the machines all night, so she almost didn't put that last quarter in the slot.

"The slot machine started flashing, blinking and beeping!" she said. When the excitement was over, Sue had won $2,500.

"The crowd looked on with envy. The security guard rushed over to inspect the machine. The next thing I knew, I had $2,500 cash in my hand. The guard walked me to a safety deposit box in our hotel."

Sue has visited Las Vegas before and learned that the only way to come home ahead is to budget your gambling money.

"Decide how much money to take each night and don't stray from that amount," she said. "I budget $100 a day."

"We like to go casino hopping. My favorites are the smaller casinos such as Barbary Coast and O'Shea's. We like to gamble from around noon to six or seven o'clock in the morning. The casinos are less crowded in the middle of the night."

"One advantage to playing the casinos is you drink free, but this can be dangerous as it is easy to spend money after a few drinks."

Sue likes to play the crap tables to build up her money. "I think that your money lasts longer at the crap tables."

"Then I usually head for the slot machines, which are my favorite. Beware though, it is easy to go through a lot of money at the slot machines!"

Sue stayed at the Imperial Palace, "very clean and inexpensive."

Cottages like this one are very popular at Maumee Bay Lodge in Ohio on the shore of Lake Erie. They're so popular that all of them are reserved for the rest of 1991.

MAUMEE BAY Lodge, Ohio's 10th state park resort, opened May 1 on the shore of Lake Erie 15 miles east of Toledo in Oregon. It has been getting rave reviews.

The lodge is a great close-to-home getaway for Michigan travelers, with fine resort facilities available at moderate prices. But you will have to book early to get what you want.

The 120 lodge rooms are available all year, but 20 cottages that rent only by the week during summer are already fully booked from Memorial Day to Labor Day, although cancellations are always possible.

The cottages were rented within three hours after reservations became available in January. The park will begin taking cottage reservations for 1992 on June 1.

YOU REACH Maumee Bay by the Highway 2 exit of I-280. Drive through the town of Oregon and turn left between farmhouses on Maumee Bay Park Road. Campers have used the adjacent campsites at Maumee Bay State Park for several years.

Maumee Bay Lodge appears ahead of you, a contemporary sprawl of sawed planks, stained fawn grey, rising in the center to weathered cedar-shingled roofs. The lodge, low on the ends and high in the middle, is set against the shore of Lake Erie, but you need not limit yourself to the sand beach (to be completed by July 4), or to the 1,500 feet of inland beach on the 57-acre sailing lake.

The lodge includes a large outdoor swimming pool; a heated indoor swimming pool with saunas; courts for racquetball, basketball and tennis; and a fitness center. All are available free to guests.

If you look to the right as you approach the lodge, you see contemporary cottages in the same grey planks, scattered in singles and doubles across the slightly rolling prairie landscape, tucked into groves of trees.

Most cottages are set on widely-separated knolls beside the golf course, which looks ready for play but is still digging its grass roots into the ground for a fall opening.

Sea World opens in Ohio

By Iris Sanderson Jones

Sea World opened its summer season Saturday in Aurora, Ohio, near Cleveland. Shamu and Namu are back, but don't be surprised if they don't answer when you call them by name. Shamu and Namu are character names; this year's killer whales are new.

Sea World has been breeding whales for years and now has a pod of 13. When they have played around in Sea World pools long enough, they are put into the breeding program.

This year's "characters" are two females, 2 1/2 years old, born at Sea World parks in Texas and Florida, and they met for the first time three weeks ago. Shamu and Namu, and their friends the bottlenosed dolphins, are doing a new show in a renovated stadium this season.

The International High Dive Show is new this year. So is the Pirates of Pinniped, featuring a comical sea lion duo called Clynco and Seamore. You'll also find old favorites like the Penguin Encounter and the World of the Sea Aquarium.

Tickets are $18.50 if you're more than 12, $14.50 ages 3-11, children under 3 free. Season passes are roughly double those one-day prices, so they're worth considering if you plan to go

Sea World opens daily at 10 a.m. For information, call toll-free (800) 63-SHAMU.

OCEANS OF FUN in Kansas City opens May 25 with a new attraction called Crocodile Isle, a "sprayground" with a 2,000 square-foot kiddie pool, three water slides and other attractions, floating gators and hippos among them.

Crossroads Village and Huckleberry Railroad in Flint is open and bragging because AAA Michigan named it one of the top five family attractions in Michigan.

A rare 1910 Ferris wheel has been added to the Village this year, a nice companion for the 1912 Parker Carousel. The village also opened a 7,000 square-foot multi-purpose building, designed like a vintage railroad warehouse, to give better food and other services to groups.

The 50-foot 1910 Charles W. Parker "Superior Wheel" is the last remaining Ferris wheel of its type and had a colorful history before the Genesee County Parks and Recreation Commission bought it last year. It ran in two Pennsylvania amusement parks and was once owned by a fire

In "Truth or Dare" (F, R, 118 minutes) and "Dice Rules" (F, NC-17, 87 minutes) Madonna and Andrew Dice Clay pretend that they are artists discussing sexual power, the hostility of passion and the primacy of their own sex.

Not true, friends, for in reality they're both sadists out to torment their fans with 3 1/2 boring hours of obscenity, adolescent posturing and some of the worst film footage to be screened in years.

Both of these productions are supposed to be innovative, something "new and different" in concert films but they wind up as two of the least entertaining films imaginable. "Dice Rules," all in color, opens with a half-hour drama in which Dice is the ultimate nerd who becomes super cool by purchasing a $15 leather jacket. The remaining hour is wasted screening footage from his Madison Square Garden concerts. For those who are blessed with ignorance of Clay's routine, it's non-stop four-letter words celebrating naked masculine sexual power in the hands of someone who doesn't understand sexuality or human relations.

'Impromptu:' A triumph

In the mid-19th century, George Sand created a panic, even for Paris. The popular female writer not only carried on indiscrete affairs, but insisted on dressing in men's clothing.

Frederic Chopin, while enjoying his own popularity as a pianist and composer, was plagued by a lung disorder that kept him from setting foot outdoors or even cracking a window. Composer Franz Liszt called him "The Polish Corpse."

Historically, the meeting of Sand and Chopin was little more than a passing acquaintance through mutual friend Liszt. The new film, "Impromptu," however, takes Sand's admitted infatuation with the composer and creates an irreverent and beautiful romantic comedy.

Playing exclusively at the Maple Theatre, "Impromptu" finds Sand, now divorced, desperately trying to avoid the mad and jealous lovers she's taken since. She finds Chopin's music, introduced to her at a party recital, "heavenly" and "the answer to a prayer."

SAND'S RELENTLESS pursuit of Chopin completely bends the protocol of male-female courtship. Sand, dressed in trousers and ascot, frightens the frail, well-coiffed Chopin. He finds her revolting, but also is strangely compelled by her.

Judy Davis' flesh-and-blood portrait of Sand, meanwhile, redefines the depiction of famous personages. It's partly her well-documented bitterness that has Sand wearing men's clothing, but, as she confesses to her mother, they're also "easier to move about in."

In one of the film's most moving moments, Chopin is overtaken by her intensity and fears he will die if he succumbs to it.

What sounds overly melodramatic on paper comes off with amazing sincerity on film.

This is clearly Davis' picture, though Hugh Grant's Chopin is also fine. Julian Sands, a veteran of "A Room with a View" and "Gothic," looks properly rumped and badgered as the long-haired, thick-

Many people know that former Detroitier Bruce Joel Rubin — his parents still live in West Bloomfield — won an Oscar for "Ghost," the megabuck hit that now stands 10th on Variety's list of all-time box office champs.

Millions saw that film in theaters and, since March 21, it's led Variety's Top 50 Video Rental charts.

Highest possible number on Variety's survey is 130 and "Ghost" has hit near-perfect weekly scores in the 122-127 range. For the week ending May 4, it earned 117 while number two, "Marked For Death" was the only other film to score more than 100.

Rubin had a lot less box office success with "Jacob's Ladder" (1990, color, R, 116 minutes). That Rubin screenplay kicked around Hollywood for a long time as one of the "Top 10 Unproduced Scripts."

"Jacob's Ladder," however, is a sensational film that will knock your socks off. It reaches the video racks Thursday, May 23, and also will be available on laser disc.

Dread Zeppelin parodies its way to music heaven

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

Let's talk, shall we? Tortelvis resembles a white Amana refrigerator with sideburns disguised as magnets. The lead singer for Dread Zeppelin could be in line to be the Slim-Fast poster child.

Lost in all this girth and mirth is an individual who could be on the binge-eating, self-destructive path followed by Elvis himself, the man known in France as "Le Roi Du Burger" (translated, "The Burger King") tries oh so hard to emulate. The depths of this tale of despair may only be illustrated by the empty, grease-saturated brown bag under Tortelvis' feet.

According to band member Jah Paul Jo, Tortelvis' favorite delicacy is a cheeseburger deep fried, not once but twice, and dipped in a strawberry preserve for good measure. The calorie intake of the creation?

"He (Tortelvis) breaks the bank there," said Jah Paul Jo, whose band performs Friday, May 24, at the Latin Quarter. "He drinks diet sodas, though."

Whew, Dread Zeppelin fans can breathe a collective sigh of relief.

JAH PAUL JO reveals Tortelvis' eating habits, not discreetly for some Albert Goldman-penned memoir on the reformed and reggae-fied outfit, but rather to perpetuate the myth and legend of Dread Dread Zeppelin — Butt-Mon, Fresh Cheese, Jah Paul Jo, Carl Jah, Tortelvis and Ed Zeppelin — are feeling good vibes with the release of their latest album, "5,000,000," by I.R.S. Records.

Legend No. 2: Percussionist and singer Ed Zeppelin, born simultaneously in Jamaica/Monrovia/Babylon, becomes the spiritual entity who feels "the vibe."

Legend No. 3: Dread Zeppelin was recently asked to sing "Take Me Out to the Ball Game" during the seventh inning of a Minnesota Twins-Seattle Mariners game.

To the last, Jah Paul Jo added: "Is that sick or what?"

OF COURSE, such manifestations of Elvis worship are usually viewed with amusement. But the Elvis Presley estate wasn't laughing at first. Word had it the band was asked to cease using "The King's" image.

"That's a vicious rumor. That's not happening. The Elvis Presley estate likes what we do now."

REVIEWS

THE LA'S — The La's

Word has it this Merseyside outfit was not pleased with the final results of their debut release. After a listen, though, one wouldn't readily chalk this up as modesty.

Reportedly, band members are in a snit because they weren't allowed a final listen before their English-based label, Go!, had "The La's" pressed.

Such honesty undoubtedly won't endear the La's to record publicity people, but the Liverpool-based foursome are not to fret. There is a line of groups who would gladly put their signature on this effort and call it their own.

The La's show an indelible amount of pop flair ushered in with a buoyant amount of lyrical economy. More importantly, the Liverpool outfit certainly offers a welcomed alternative to what seems to be an endless stream of derivative post-'70s psychedelic synthesizer bands.

Oh, but the La's do betray their influences, mostly harking back to those '60s pop offerings that were served up in single portions on AM radio. To understand the La's and the platform from which they work, one needs only to listen to the mission statement of "Timeless Melody."

"The melody always finds me/ Whenever the thought reminds me/ Breaking a chain inside my head."

While such simple rhymes would seem more at home in a Cliff Richard song, "Timeless Melody" bears a sneer and a swagger that might put the La's into company with early Rolling Stones offerings. In fact, the bluesy riddled "Dole Drum" features the same wayward poetry reminiscent of when Brian Jones was alive.

Each song here is remarkably different, distinctively rootsy, but a prominent guitar buzz provided by Lee Meyers and Cammy throughout is a common thread.

This is where producer Steve Lillywhite (U2, Rolling Stones, Kirsty MacColl) deserves to take part of the credit. Lillywhite can bring a sense of immediacy to a song like none other. At the same time, though, numbers that don't lend themselves to anthemic renderings are banners left to lie limp without a wind.

Fortunately, those are few in the La's case mainly because of the La's bravado.

REAL LIFE — Simple Minds

According to some astronomers, our sun still has a few phases of growing to go through. A few million or billion or something like that years from now (don't worry you probably won't be around), the sun is going to get really huge and burn very brightly. At that time it will be called a "red giant," that is if there's anyone around to call it that.

After doing that for a few trillion or billion years (ask Carl Sagan if you're interested in exact numbers), the sun will contract and become a dense, tiny star called a "white dwarf."

Now, if you'll stay with me for a moment, you'll discover why you're reading about astronomy in a record review.

The reason is Simple Minds' latest album "Real Life." Metaphorically speaking, of course, Simple Minds' 11-year career seems to be following the same course as our own sun.

They began slowly gathering up fans in the early 1980s with critically acclaimed albums like "New Gold Dream" and "Sparkle in the Rain." Their heyday or "red giant" stage hit in the mid-1980s when their song "Don't You Forget About Me" went to number one after being highlighted in the flick "The Breakfast Club."

(The song, by the way, was not written by Simple Minds — undoubtedly a blow to the ego.) This phase also included the hits "Alive and Kicking" and "Sanctify Yourself" off of "Once Upon A Time." They played at Live Aid and their career was huge and bright.

Then they released "Live in the City of Light" and "Street Fighting Man." As you probably don't remember, these albums didn't exactly burn up the charts.

Now, with "Real Life," Simple Minds will most likely continue their contraction into the white dwarf stage.

Leader Jim Kerr said the band tried to recapture the mood of their earlier days on this album. I think he actually means they wanted to capture the success of their early days.

Unfortunately, "Real Life" is miles away from their early days. Musically, it's very '90s — overproduced, somewhat passionless and with the obligatory black, female back-up singers.

STREET SENSE

Go, if it feels right to you

Dear Barbara,
I received the enclosed invitation yesterday as did several of my office mates. As I had never heard of a "miscellaneous, personal, just want to have fun shower," I asked some of those who also received invitations their thoughts.

Barbara Schiff

One individual was absolutely enraged — way beyond indignant — and lambasted the "perpetrator" of this "abomination" (I believe that was the word she used). Some were confused/baffled and others were glad "because we need a party."

In an attempt (and it's feeble, at best) to make this somewhat clearer, the party is being given to cheer up/bring the spirits up of the honoree. She has been having some family and other problems, but the main reason for the party (originally) was to be a "grandmother" shower and then turned into this. (Don't ask me; it isn't getting any better.)

I have mixed feelings about this affair. On one hand, I think it's a wonderful gesture and wish someone would do something like that for me when I'm on that out-of-control roller coaster. But on the other hand, I say, "So what. You've brought this mess on yourself and I don't have time to feel sorry for you and don't feel I have to coddle you so you'll feel better because nothing's going to change."

I guess what I'm asking is have you or any of your other readers heard of/been invited to this kind of

"shower." And if so (and even if not), what are/were your thoughts and/or feelings and WHAT KIND OF GIFT DO YOU BRING?

Wondering

Dear Wondering,

I have not heard of this type of shower. If readers of this column have, I encourage them to write in with similar stories and their reactions.

My feeling is that if you like this person, go to the shower and be gracious in your attitude. Don't be angry or critical. Attend the party in a way that will make you feel good about yourself — like a lady.

If you don't like the woman, don't be a hypocrite. Don't go.

Any present that you guess might put a smile on her face is appropriate. How about lottery tickets or a Bill Cosby recording on families.

featured Liszt.
SOME OF the performances seem out of place. While Davis, even after a dozen popular pictures, still comes off as a brilliant unknown, Bernadette Peters and Mandy Patinkin are too recognizable and don't measure up to the caliber of the other actors.

The casting undoubtedly stems from director James Lapine, previously a stage director on such musicals as "A Little Night Music." He doesn't miss a beat, however, with the tone of the screenplay by Sarah Kernochan.

"Impromptu" places its historic personages into perspective. Sand, remembered more for her wild life than for her writing, admits that Chopin is an "eternal" who will exist long after she and her trendy cronies pass on.

combat and his son's accidental death. Macaulay Culkin of "Home Alone" fame plays his son while Danny Aiello appears as Jacob's friend and chiropractor.

The excellent cast is rounded out by Elizabeth Peña as Jezzie, a co-worker at the post office, with whom Jacob lives.

as a doctor of philosophy to live downtown with Jezzie and work at the post office.

The film is not for the weak-minded. Rubin described it appropriately and quite succinctly as "the dark side of 'Ghost'" and many of its images reflect the bleak and hopeless depths of human despair.

Adrian Lyne's direction, the entire cast's performance, editing, photography, writing — all the crafts of filmmaking reach heights of excellence in this production — but the greatest attraction of "Jacob's Ladder" is its mystery.

No, I'm not going to give it away because a good deal of the pleasure in such a film is figuring it out for yourself. One hint plus the consolation prize: There is an excellent, short French film, "Occurrence at Owl Creek Bridge" (1962). It's a Civil War story and has the same structural concept as "Jacob's Ladder."

Everybody's consolation prize, Variety's reviewer didn't understand what was going on in "Jacob's Ladder."

Zeppelin: Airborne parodies

Jah Paul Jo said the band has patched up any misunderstandings with members of The Estate, showing them the lyrics and artwork of latest release "5,000,000." With the saturation of Elvis impersonators, though, Dread Zeppelin antics would seem to be singled out.

"I think it's a touchy thing. I guess they frown upon it when you're actually making money off his image."

ACTUALLY, ROBERT Plant and Jimmy Page might have more of a gripe. Their Led Zeppelin collaborations, most notably "The Song Remains the Same" and "Stairway to Heaven," are parodied to hilarious lengths on "5,000,000."

"Stairway to Heaven" features a stirring duet between the Caribbean-flavored vocals of Ed Zeppelin and the Tupelo soul of Tortelvis. (Unfortunately, WRIF-FM and WLLZ-FM haven't thought to put this on heavy rotation.)

One of the highlights, though, is the reggae treatment laid on "Train Kept A-Rollin'" — a tune made famous by Aerosmith.

slow, repetitive tour footage, endless pre-show prayer sessions, plus backstage preparations and the tomfoolery that is part of every production. Home movies are only fun when it's your home.

Only a monumental ego could have convinced Madonna that all this pretentious drivel means anything, has any significance or is worth watching. Two hours of pompous pronouncements on artistic integrity, human emotion, life and her personal whims are totally irrelevant and very annoying.

But at least Madonna has a certain rhythmic sexual attraction and her musical numbers are entertaining. Not so for Clay's crass and offensive blithering.

Star Theatres John R announced an exclusive summer series which opened Friday with Carlos Saura's "Ay Carmela" (A, no rating, 105 minutes). It's a sensational film about a travelling theatrical troupe, Carmela (Carmen Maura), her husband, Paulino (Andres Pajares) and their helper, Gustavete (Gabno Diego) who are entertaining Republican troops in 1938 during the Spanish Civil War.

"Ay Carmela" entertains with its comic satire about human conduct and with its music hall routines. Much of its appeal, as well, comes from its atmosphere, reminiscent of "Cinema Paradiso" and of the very best of Fellini and Truffaut.

"What About Bob?" (B, PG, 97 minutes). He's "human crazy glue" and he's driving his psychiatrist crazy.

Rich Hall: You know his face, but how about his name?

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Van Morrison's music plays in the background while Rich Hall talks on the phone from his Montana home. Somewhere in the conversation, the comedian is asked what Morrison record is playing.

"No, he's (Morrison) here," says Hall earnestly.

No doubt in the tilted imaginative mind of Rich Hall, "Van the Man" is probably there strumming "Brown-Eyed Girl" in his living room. After all, Hall has a knack for making up things.

This is the fellow who gave us the Sniglet, words that somehow escaped Webster's book like "prememblemation," which is the term for double checking to make sure a letter went down into the mailbox. He can also take a piece of Plexiglas and turn the object into a visual comedy bit about driving.

His sometimes frumpy-looking face is certainly recognizable to most.

Yet obscurity is still the main mailing address for Rich Hall, whose string of television credits include ABC-TV's "Fridays," HBO's "Not Necessarily the News," NBC-TV's "Saturday Night Live" and, currently, Comedy Channel's "Onion World."

PERHAPS THE closest Hall has come to prime-time exposure were those Pizza Hut commercials, where he trekked around in a pepperoni-inspired odyssey around the country. He's been in several TV pilots, but a majority of them remained dormant.

"In a way, I've sort of followed that natural pattern where you do enough late night stuff they try to fit you into prime time," Hall says. "I've sort of been resisting that and still trying to find a way to still work in that period."

"I know I don't have a conventional style of humor. There's not that many unconventional places to do comedy."

Hall is not bitter. Instead, he feels better off than some of his comedic contemporaries who've found a place during the family viewing hour.

"Kevin Meany is a really funny guy and they stuck him in a really stupid show ('Uncle Buck')." Hall says. "Same with Bob Sagel: He's a really funny guy. I'm not going to do that. I don't care if I'm not on at 9 o'clock in front of the nuclear family."

In the meantime, Hall is content to make his new show "Onion World" a go. The program features his slightly-off-center humor along with cutting edge bands such as Jazz Butcher, Dei Amitri and Camper Van Beethoven.

Also, Hall will be in a soon-to-be aired CBS-TV show "Say What?" The show focuses on how wordy the world has become, no doubt destined to find a place with a prime-time audience.

"CBS tested it in front of a busload of tourists," Hall says, "and they hated it."

STAND-UP COMEDY provides solace. Hall worked his way up the circuit, opening in front of rock'n'roll audiences.

And sometimes things could get ugly. He relates opening for a band that featured former members of The Band at some converted bowling alley on Long Island on St. Patrick's Day. After 17 minutes, Hall was left to slink off stage as the drunken crowd howled.

Hall's wry observational humor still managed to find a receptive audience.

"I was kind of different because at that time I worked with a lot of props," Hall says, "which worked out well because I had a lot of bright and shiny objects to keep the drunks' attention a little bit longer."

His keen eye for the peculiar stems to a childhood of growing up in Charlotte, N.C., in the shadow of a K-mart. He would often write short stories. He later went on to major in creative writing at the University of Washington. After graduating, Hall worked as a street performer for awhile before turning to stand-up comedy.

David Letterman recognized Hall's talents, catching his act at the Improvisation in New York. Letterman hired him as a writer for his ill-fated morning show. Though the program was canceled, Hall earned an Emmy for his writing.

FROM THERE, Hall's sojourn into network television began. ABC-TV's "Fridays," an anemic attempt to compete with "Saturday Night Live," provided his introduction. Hall contends he doesn't remember.

"I went to a Blackstone show and I was hypnotized for three years," Hall says. "During that time people said I did 'Fridays.'"

"HBO's 'Not Necessarily the News' later allowed a better showcase for Hall's off-beat observational humor.

The show also produced the first Sniglet, "fien" — the crusty residue on top of a ketchup bottle. (For the record, Hall's favorite Sniglet is "pleilibrium" — a term for when the crust of a pie slice outweighs the filling and it tips upward.)

"Saturday Night Live" was another short lived late-night forum for Hall.

"There was a lot of frustration there because nobody liked our producer Dick Ebersol, who was about as funny as a stick," Hall says. "After a year, we said 'that's it' and everyone quit."

On "Onion World," Hall has a free rein. The show travels around the world, so Hall can fix his eye on "technological and environmental buffoonery."

But there's nothing like performing in front of a live audience, Hall says.

"You get that manipulative power to have the audience in the palm of your hand and work them into a comedic frenzy if you want," Hall says. "Or, more than likely in my case, create some incredible vacuum of silence."

"Like unbelievable silence, like a black hole where no sound can escape. That's what my material is like: There's a lot of abject silence."

Rich Hall will perform 8:30 p.m. Thursday, May 23, at the Ramada Heritage Center, 17201 Northline Road, Southgate. Tickets are $12. For information, call 283-4400. How to win at the numbers game.

The game is newspaper advertising -- and the rules are changing. Rates are up in the Detroit News and Free Press. Suburban circulation is down. And all around town, advertisers are wondering what numbers to trust -- and where to place their media dollars. What should you do?

Beware of smoke and mirrors.

Right now, the News and Free Press circulation is unstable at best. On the other hand, SPRING's network of 39 Detroit suburban newspapers delivers to more than 500,000 households -- and that's a real number.

How do we know? All SPRING newspapers are audited. Every year, the circulation figures for each SPRING newspaper are verified by either CAC or ABC -- two of the industry's most highly-respected independent auditors.

No slippery stuff here. SPRING's numbers are tested, tried, and true.

Place your bet on SPRING.

Once you've studied the numbers, we're sure you'll agree: SPRING is a sure winner.

SPRING's circulation is solid and stable. It's audited. And it represents more than one million readers who have the means to buy what you sell.

No matter how you figure it -- those are very good odds, indeed.

See what's behind the numbers.

OK -- so dazzling numbers can be misleading. And, when it comes to newspaper circulation figures, you want more than quantity. You want quality.

We've got it. SPRING's one million readers are some of the most affluent consumers around. SPRING newspapers go to suburbs with the spending power to buy more cars, condos, boats, bikes, appliances, apparel, gizmos, and gadgets than most other Michigan communities combined.

Best of all, SPRING delivers this upscale suburban market at a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press.

Eat away for your special D-A-Y

By Joanne Sobczak
special writer

THE NEXT TIME YOU think there isn't such a thing as a "free lunch," you might want to talk to Kaye Pearl, Jeff Schmidt, Bob Vargo or Kevin Downey. They'll tell you there's an exception to the rule — your birthday.

According to Pearl, assistant service manager at the Southfield Bill Knapp's Restaurant, several months ago her staff served a woman who had turned 101 years old. And at Bill Knapp's, that makes her special.

Birthdays are indeed special at Bill Knapp's, which has grown from one location in Battle Creek in 1948 to 48 restaurants in five states today.

Right from the start, founder Clinton Knapp made sure children's birthdays were an exciting event at his restaurant. "Little Knappers," as children 1 through 10 are called, are treated to a free chocolate cake. Plus everyone (a maximum of 10) at their birthday party receives a free dish of French vanilla ice cream.

"Big Knappers," 11 years and older, not only get a chocolate cake, but with identification, the cashier will discount the birthday boy's or girl's meal a percentage equal to his or her age.

When someone celebrates his or her 101st birthday at the restaurant, not only is the person's meal free, but the patron is also reimbursed a calculated percentage of the guest check, based on how many years passed 100 the person is celebrating.

SO IF YOU'RE 100 or older, there is such a thing as a free lunch or dinner. The company has had about 250 people who, in the last 20 years, have passed the 100-year milestone and who have received checks from Bill Knapp's. None of them have yet to cash their refund checks.

"They seem to keep the check as a souvenir or memento," Pearl said.

"They are very accommodating about how they prepare the food," said Marjorie Nafaly who has been coming to Bill Knapp's for 20 years to enjoy family birthdays. That night she and husband Roland were quietly toasting his birthday.

"I save money and the food is very good," the Oak Park CPA said while waiting for the waitress to pack his free cake. "I pick out what I want."

At least 65 cakes leave the Southfield Bill Knapp's daily and 80 percent of them are for birthdays. The other 20 percent are white cakes, used for anniversary celebrations. The company produces about one million cakes annually for businesses for the birthday/anniversary celebrations.

Alicia Auth stared with wonder at the excitement going on at the table next to hers. Wilayne Van Devender of Romulus sat between her two "best" friends while a half dozen staff members at Charlie's Wayne Roadhouse sang a jazzed-up version of "Happy Birthday" to her.

THE THREE-year-old's eyes widened even more at the sight of a lit candle on top of a huge chocolate sundae presented to Van Devender.

Van Devender noticed the youngster's interest and stretched between the tables to offer Alicia a chance to blow out the candle. Alicia definitely assisted.

With the candle extinguished, Alicia eyed the sundae. Van Devender didn't have to worry, Alicia's father made certain the waitress brought the youngster one.

Well, he had to pay for Alicia's sundae, but Van Devender didn't have to pay for hers. The dessert was part of her birthday gift from the Wayne restaurant. The other part was a free dinner.

Jeff Schmidt, manager of the Roadhouse, said birthday celebrating customers who inform their waitress of the special occasion and show identification, enjoy a complimentary sundae and the restaurant's "free meal" policy.

"With proper identification, unless it's a little tyke, we cut the bill in half. If you come in with another guest," he said. "It's basically a one entree off type policy."

THE BIRTHDAY freebie has only been offered since the establishment came under the ownership of Fred Ferguson who also bought the Uptown in Madison Heights. Both restaurants were formerly part of the Chuck Muer seafood chain.

"Sometimes people come in and they don't know we have the policy," said Schmidt, a Novi resident.

"They will be treating a friend to dinner and drinks and then they'll find out (from the waitress) that the friend will be getting a free birthday dinner."

So it was for Van Devender.

"What a riot," she laughed, referring to the staff's new version of "Happy Birthday." The University of Michigan administrative assistant had no idea what her friends Barbara Breeding of Romulus and Linda Gardner of Canton had in mind. Although the two co-workers had eaten at the Roadhouse before, neither was sure about the details of the restaurant's festivities.

Beau Jacks in Birmingham created its birthday give-away system about four years ago. The restaurant uses a computer. Customers fill out postcards and return them to the restaurant, according to manager Bob Vargo.

THE PATRONS write their birth date and address on the postcards and the information is entered into the computer. Every month the restaurant sends out 450-550 gift certificates inviting them to celebrate at Beau Jacks at 20 percent off. The discount is applied to the entire bill no matter how many are in the party.

Vargo said 60-65 percent take the restaurant up on its offer that includes a complimentary birthday cake as part of the offer. There is no specific expiration date on the coupon.

At Beau Jacks, the pub-like ambience is for those who prefer casual dining. The popular food choices are the half-pound burger, followed by the Caesar salad.

If money is no object and you really would like to do it up, the elegant Fox and Hounds in Bloomfield Hills has embarked on giving birthday presents.

Owner Kevin Downey and manager Lori Grubba created the "Celebration Club," using a computer to register their patron's birthdays in a fashion similar to Beau Jacks.

"The customers fill out a registration card which is presented with the guest check," Downey said. "It requests information about the patron's birthday and anniversary dates. During the month of their special date, a personal letter and a $10 gift certificate (good any time during the month) is mailed out."

ABOUT 3,000 customers are enrolled in the club "and it's growing," Downey said. About 20-40 cards are filled out daily and the establishment is experiencing a 20 percent return. Downey hopes to build the registry to 1,500 customers a month.

In addition to the gift certificate, there's also a birthday cake — a chocolate cake with chocolate mousse and chocolate shavings or white cake with white mousse and white butter cream frosting.

You also get a discount on another house original — the Birthday Package. For 10 bucks, the staff will decorate your table with a happy birthday banner and helium balloons. And, of course, the staff sings — Birthday Package or not.

Don Nelson and his wife Bernice of Howell were having a great time with their friends Frank and Mary Macartney of Rochester Hills at the Fox and Hounds. The latter arranged for the surprise celebration, complete with the banner and balloons.

Nelson, a retired corporate pilot who was celebrating his 66th birthday, joked that after 33,000 hours of accident free flying, he was going to take the balloons home and consider becoming "a balloonist."

"I think 90 percent of our society celebrates birthdays and anniversaries," Downey said. "It's a festive situation. You are only wishing someone well."

A guide to finding birthday treats that can't be beat

HERE ARE A FEW places in the metropolitan area that offer freebies for birthdays and anniversaries:

Just for brides

The Monthly Album is published the third Monday of each month for the announcement of engagements and weddings. All announcements are published on a first-come, first-served basis.

Information sent must be legible and include a daytime telephone number so if there is a question the staff can call.

Photos submitted should, preferably, be black-and-white glossies, 5 by 7 inches in size. Color photos can be submitted and will be accepted, but they do not reproduce as well.

Due to the volume of photographs handled, the newspaper will not be responsible for any that may get lost or damaged. Photos can be picked up after publication in the Farmington Observer office; or if a self-addressed sufficiently stamped envelope is received with the photo, every effort will be made to return it. However, photos do get lost because so many are handled every month. There is just no guarantee the photo will be returned.

Engagement and wedding announcements pertinent to Livonia, Redford, Garden City, Westland, Farmington and Farmington Hills should be addressed to Loraine McClish, in care of The Farmington Observer, 21898 Farmington Road, Farmington 48336.

Inquiries are taken by McClish or Rose Butler in the Farmington Observer office, 477-5450.

Hardest of all gemstones

The exact origin of diamonds is still somewhat of a mystery, even to scientists. Though the diamond is the hardest of all gemstones, it is the simplest in composition. It is common carbon, like the graphite in a lead pencil.

But somehow Nature, by great heat and pressure over millions of years, crystallized the diamond — deep inside the earth — into a form different from any other substance. Then force of ancient volcanos drove the diamond-embedded rock up through pipe-like channels toward the earth's surface where, today, diamonds are mined.
