MOST TRAFFIC offenders will pay an additional $5 in fines, starting next Monday, April 20.

The extra money will be used for the State Police Secondary Road Training program, said a Westland District Court spokesman.

The $5 was tacked on to moving violation traffic fines by the state Legislature.

A court spokesman said many of the current fines will be unchanged but the increase will affect offenders convicted for speeding, insurance violations, seat-belt violations and others.

IN OTHER money matters, the Wayne-Westland Family YMCA will hold its annual Invest in Youth dinner April 30 to launch its annual campaign to help low-income families take part in Y programs.

The dinner will honor Y volunteers Jo Johnson and Hank Goudy for their contributions to the organization. The recognition dinner will be at New Hawthorne Valley banquet hall, on Merriman north of Warren. Tickets are $20 a person. Call the Y at 721-7044 for tickets.

YOUNGSTERS 9 and younger will take part in the community's annual "Cottontail Hunt," featuring marshmallows, at 12:30 p.m., Saturday, at Central City Park, directly behind Bailey Recreation Center.

The marshmallows will be sprinkled on the grounds, with separate, roped-off areas for different age groups.

The event is co-sponsored by the recreation department, Civitans, Cultural Society, Jaycees and Rotary.

Shooting victim: life of fear, pain

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Janice Ransom has lived in fear, [illegible]sical pain and emotional distress [illegible]ce she was shot three months ago [illegible] a .12-gauge shotgun.

Her fear has stemmed from wor[illegible]s that her husband, Harry Wayne [illegible]nsom, who's charged with trying [illegible]ill her, could be freed from jail.

"I'm afraid that he would come af[illegible]r me again," the petite 38-year-old [illegible]man said.

[illegible]fer physical pain, caused by a sin[illegible] shotgun blast that wounded her [illegible]p and stomach, has forced her to [illegible]ndergo four surgeries and spend 33 [illegible]lays in a hospital. She limps and be[illegible]comes tired if she stands for long pe[illegible]riods. She can't return to work.

"I'm in almost constant pain," she [illegible]said.

Her emotional distress has been [illegible]shared by her parents, her two sons, [illegible]ages 14 and 17, and other family [illegible]members and friends.

"It's been really hard on my fami[illegible]ly. This has hurt them a lot," she said.

In an interview Thursday, Ransom spoke out for the first time about the agony she has endured since she was shot at 5:40 p.m. Jan. 15 at the Ransom residence on Bakewell Street, southwest of the Wayne Road-Warren Road intersection.

She has watched in fear as attorneys for her husband have repeatedly tried to convince 18th District Judge Gail McKnight to lower his $250,000 cash bond. They tried again Thursday, though unsuccessfully.

Attorneys have focused on the 37-year-old man's health problems. He has diabetes and is awaiting a kidney transplant. He had a quadruple heart bypass several years ago. Attorneys and friends have described his condition as potentially life-threatening.

But Janice Ransom wondered Thursday why court proceedings and news reports have focused on her husband's problems, overshadowing the mental and physical torture she has endured.

"I'M THE victim, not him," she said quietly. "I'm the one who was shot. I'm in almost constant pain. I haven't been able to work. I still have pellets coming out of me. I'll probably have pellets coming out of me for the rest of my life."

Man found guilty in brother's death

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Samih Saleh, accused of firing a fatal shotgun blast into his older brother's stomach, has been convicted of involuntary manslaughter by a Detroit Recorder's Court jury.

Saleh wept as he was led from the courtroom after the jury returned its verdict just before 5:30 p.m. Thursday, after deliberating most of the day. He could be sentenced up to 15 years in prison by Judge Geraldine Bledsoe Ford on May 1.

In reaching its verdict, the jury rejected a charge of first-degree murder that could have resulted in a life sentence for Saleh, 38, of Westland. Saleh had testified that he shot his 46-year-old brother, Sami, by accident during an Aug. 4 dispute at the defendant's Westland apartment.

Sami Saleh's widow, Jane, had hoped for a murder conviction.

"I'm not real pleased, but there's not much you can do," she said. Still, she remained hopeful that Judge Ford will give Samih Saleh the maximum 15-year prison term.

It still haunts Jane Saleh that her husband will never see his youngest of three children, 2½-month old Marshall, who was delivered several weeks early.

"It's hard to look at Marshall and think that he'll never get to see his father because of that idiot (Samih Saleh)," she said.

Sami Saleh also left behind two older children in his 13-year marriage: Chad, 9, and Molly, 12. And he had eagerly awaited the birth of his third child, Jane Saleh said.

"He was ecstatic," she said. "This has been real hard."

Samih Saleh had denied killing his older brother and blamed the death on an accident. In court testimony, he said he only meant to scare Sami Saleh with a .12-gauge shotgun because the older brother had made "macho" gestures toward him.

SALEH TESTIFIED that the shotgun slipped in his hand and accidentally discharged when his brother came toward him in the hallway of Samih Saleh's Westwood Circle Apt. No. 204, on the southeast corner of Joy and Hix.

But prosecutors pointed to testi-

Neighbor to stand trial in sex abuse case

By Darrell Clem

A 64-year-old Westland man referred to as "the neighborhood grandfather" has been ordered to stand trial on a charge he sexually abused a 3-year-old girl he was baby-sitting.

Robert Kenneth Cheek, 64, was bound over for trial in Detroit Recorder's Court after he waived a preliminary examination Thursday before 18th District Judge Gail McKnight.

Cheek, who has pleaded not guilty, could face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison if convicted. He is scheduled to be arraigned April 23 in Recorder's Court. A trial date will be set later.

Cheek has been charged with two counts of second-degree criminal sexual conduct on a March 11 warrant accusing him of molesting the 3-year-old girl while baby-sitting her. The incident occurred at a residence on a street near Cheek's Fairchild Street residence, Westland police Sgt. Laura Moore said.

Westland police arrested Cheek in Hillsdale County, where police said he had fled after he had been accused of sexually abusing the young girl.

Cheek remained in the county jail Friday on a $20,000 cash or surety bond on each of the two counts, meaning he would have to post $40,000 to be released. On Thursday, McKnight rejected a motion to reduce the bond.

In another case, 25-year-old Robert West of Westland is scheduled to appear Thursday in 18th District Court for a preliminary examination on a six-count warrant of first-degree criminal sexual conduct.

Like Cheek, West has been charged with sexual abuse involving a girl he was baby-sitting. The charge involves oral sex, attempted intercourse and attempted sodomy with an 8-year-old girl, Moore has said.

Deputy school chief ready to accept Flint job offer

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Wayne-Westland's deputy school superintendent, Thomas Svitkovich, is close to accepting a job offer to become superintendent of the Carmen-Ainsworth district in Flint.

Svitkovich is expected this week to receive a proposed contract from the Carmen-Ainsworth school board, though he said the two sides have virtually reached agreement on issues of salary and fringe benefits.

"At this time I believe that the contract will meet my expectations," Svitkovich said Friday, one day after the Observer reported that he was expected to leave the Wayne-Westland district.

Svitkovich said he expects to reach a firm decision this week on whether to accept the post for $83,000, little more than an earlier $82,000 offer he rejected in the Gibraltar district.

However, Svitkovich has indicated that the fringe benefits offered in the 5,200-student Carmen-Ainsworth district will make his earnings there comparable to his salary in Wayne-Westland.

The Observer learned of Svitkovich's plans from a letter he sent to Wayne-Westland school board members, telling them it appears he will accept the new post. However, he has promised to fulfill his local con-

Ryan Johnstone

Ryan Johnstone has been named the Westland Observer's Carrier of the Month for April.

Ryan is 13, son of Sandy and Linda Johnstone and a seventh grader at Stevenson Junior High School in Westland.

The carrier's favorite school subjects are English and math, which helped him win a high score on the Michigan Education Assessment Program (MEAP) tests. After school, he likes basketball, R.C. racing, and water skiing. After graduation, he plans to attend college and possibly law school.

The part of his route that he likes the most is earning his own money.

The skills he has developed are responsibility and money management. Ryan said that other youngsters can benefit from a paper route by learning how to develop responsibility and independence.

No withdrawals, board race of 8 is on

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Eight candidates competing for two Wayne-Westland school board seats are preparing for a showdown in the June 8 election.

None of the board hopefuls decided to pull out of the race as the deadline for withdrawing passed on Thursday afternoon, said Eleanor Harrington, the school district's election official.

"All eight are go," she said Friday.

The candidates — most of whom have been previously involved in district politics — represent a strongly diverse group in what has the potential to become a fierce battle for two seats now occupied by board president Sylvia Kozorosky-Wlacek and longtime member Kathleen Chorbagian.

The president has launched a campaign for re-election, ending speculation over whether she would enter the race. Chorbagian, however, plans to step down after nearly 10 years, meaning at least one non-incumbent will be elected.

The field of candidates competing for four-year terms is dramatically smaller than the 19 hopefuls who entered last year's race, in which voters ousted three incumbents.

One of those incumbents, Mathew McCusker, has launched a bid to return to the board. The Westland resident and longtime Ford Motor Co. employee had been widely rumored as a candidate for months.

McCusker lost his re-election bid last year when voters elected Laurel Raisanen and Vicki Welty for two four-year terms and Fred Warmbier for a two-year term.

CANDIDATE STEVEN Lind of Wayne has already come under fire from some critics, who have accused him of leading an unsuccessful recall of Chorbagian and board members Andrew Spisak and Leonard Posey in hopes of winning a board seat.

But Lind stated other reasons for his election bid, saying the board has let money issues overpower education. Lind has been highly critical of a board-approved contract that last year gave teachers an 11.9-percent raise over two years.

"The current board has put too much emphasis on money. They have not put enough emphasis on what should matter most — the poor quality of education that we are showing," Lind said Friday.

John Albrecht of Westland has launched an intense campaign in hopes of avoiding being defeated again in his second consecutive board race. Albrecht, an independent financial consultant, has already held a fund-raiser and begun courting voters.

"I'm working quite a bit harder," he said. Albrecht described himself as an independent who could help stabilize a politically divided board.

Westland candidate Kenneth Raupp, an outspoken board critic who supported the recall effort, also hopes to overcome a loss in last year's election. He has cited better money management as a top concern.

To save money, Raupp has suggested that the board hire more private contractors to perform district services — a move that he said could dramatically reduce expenses. Raupp, like Lind, has been fiercely opposed to board members who approved the teacher salary raises.

FRANCIS "BUD" Winter, a Canton Township resident and former Wayne Memorial High School principal, has called for efforts to return Wayne-Westland to the "lighthouse district" it once was and said his top priority is improving classroom instruction, not "petty personal politics."

Winter had been widely rumored as a potential candidate before announcing his intentions April 6.

Westland resident Richard LeBlanc, a General Motors Corp. employee, has called for a district master plan to improve school performance.

"I think we need to implement this plan, evaluate it and then modify it as needed," he said. "The board needs a cohesive philosophy. We've not seen that yet. Hopefully that will include taking a look at new programs that will improve academic performance."

Already, LeBlanc has had to combat rumors that his wife is a school district employee. She is not. And to avoid a repeat of last year, when he lost a board race, he plans to organize a core of supporters and possibly hold fund-raisers, though he doesn't want "a political machine."

MICHAEL FLEMMING, a Westland resident and University of Michigan pre-law student, has suggested that his age, 21, would make him a viable board member because he could serve as a role model for students.

Flemming, also a lawn care worker, has said he's discouraged by the factional fighting on the board, which he said he would try to stop as a board member.

Shooting leaves victim facing constant torment

She's already been told she'll have to undergo more surgery in a year.

The Ransoms were getting a divorce, but both were living in the same house when Janice Ransom was shot. She told Westland police her husband just walked in the house and fired the gun at her.

The husband's attorneys have raised questions in court about his mental competence at the time. Ransom has undergone a psychiatric evaluation at a state forensic center in Ypsilanti, and attorneys are awaiting a report.

The delay in receiving the report forced Judge McKnight on Thursday to again postpone a preliminary examination that will determine if Ransom should be tried on a charge of assault with intent to murder. He could be sentenced to life in prison if convicted.

In January, Ransom stood mute in court and a charge of not guilty was entered for him. He has remained in the county jail. His next appearance in court will be on Thursday, April 30, for a competency hearing, by which time the forensic report is expected to be received.

In the meantime, Janice Ransom waits — and hopes — that the justice system doesn't forget her repeated message: "I'm the victim."

Brother convicted of involuntary manslaughter

mony in which the dying brother told police, "My brother got mad at me and shot me."

The shooting occurred at 11:48 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 4, after the brothers had laughed and cried for about 45 minutes as they looked at family photographs of their father's funeral, said a longtime family friend, Nalem Zeidan, who was there. Samih Saleh had recently returned from the funeral that had been held in the Salehs' homeland of Lebanon.

Zeidan had his back turned to the brothers when the shooting occurred in the hallway of the apartment, he said.

The defendant telephoned police about the shooting and initially told them that his brother had shot himself while cleaning the gun. He later changed his story.

Defense attorney Edward Khoury had described the Salehs' relationship as "warm, friendly h[illegible]" and had appealed to the jury to acquit Saleh.

"He is not a murderer," Khoury said.

But Jane Saleh said her husband had long feared that Samih Saleh would commit a violent act.

"He always said Samih was a time bomb," she said.

Svitkovich ready to accept superintendent job offer tract, which expires June 30.

SVITKOVICH HAS been leading the 16,000 Wayne-Westland district since Superintendent Dennis O'Neill stepped down Nov. 4, citing health problems such as hypertension. O'Neill won't be returning to his job, amid pressure from a board majority to retire.

The Wayne-Westland board expects to have a new superintendent lined up before Svitkovich's departure. The board hopes to choose a new leader by mid-May.

Svitkovich, 49, started his 28-year Wayne-Westland career as a junior high math teacher in 1964. In 1967, he began teaching math at Wayne Memorial High School, where he became assistant principal in 1969.

In 1977, he became Stevenson's principal — a position he held until being named John Glenn principal in 1980. In 1984, he was appointed to the central office.

"Certainly I'm going to miss the staff," he said.

Svitkovich is among the applicants seeking O'Neill's position. When asked what he would do if he became a finalist in a nationwide search, he said, "I haven't quite thought about that."

However, the Wayne-Westland board isn't expected to consider finalists for several weeks, and Svitkovich is expected to have to give Carmen-Ainsworth an answer this week.

The department also wants other civic groups or businesses to donate to the program so more teddy bears can be bought.

A record drive

Students donate 141 pints of blood

Red Cross nurses stack empty containers at the high school's blood drive.

JOHN GLENN High School recently continued its record of being one of the top schools in donating blood to the American Red Cross.

There were 141 pints donated by students and several staff members in the blood drive held at the school with eight others turned away for various reasons.

One factor which helped boost the total, said a school spokeswoman, was the cancellation of a track meet scheduled for that day. The cancellation enabled the athletes to donate blood. Red Cross guidelines prohibit people who have a strenuous activity from donating blood the same day.

The school holds two blood drives a year for the Red Cross, which has frequently alerted the public there is a low supply of blood in the Detroit region.

Eating for a Good Cause

About $1,000 has been donated to Detroit-area groups that feed the hungry and homeless, thanks to Franklin High School teachers and students who donated $10 and attended an "Empty Bowl" luncheon April 8 at the school. The luncheon was sponsored by the National Honor Society. The handcrafted bowls, filled with chili or soup, were made by students and taken home by the diners. "Empty Bowls" is a nationwide project designed to fight hunger in the U.S. The school serves the northeast corner of Westland.

School switch rejected

Five Westland couples had their requests rejected Wednesday to be included in the Livonia school district.

The Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency unanimously rejected the request, following earlier similar actions by the Livonia and Wayne-Westland school boards.

The five couples live on the south side of Cowan near Wildwood and on the Wayne-Westland district side of the boundary between the two school systems.

Livonia school Superintendent Joseph Marinelli told his board members last week the residents seeking the change wanted to have their home values increase and property taxes drop through the switching of districts.

He said the couples don't have students in the Wayne-Westland district.

Mary Kauper, Wayne County RESA spokeswoman, said the county board rejected the request because "it wasn't proven that there would be any educational difference" between the two districts and "no case was made" for justifying the request.

'. . . It wasn't proven that there would be any educational difference' between the two districts and 'no case was made' for justifying the request.

— Mary Kauper
Wayne County RESA spokeswoman

The Wayne-Westland district has had serious money problems in recent years in part because it is an in-formula district which depends on state revenues for a large part of its budget.

The Livonia district is an out-of-formula district and isn't dependent on the state for funds.

The Wayne-Westland district, which had voters approved a 7.75 tax rate increase 10 months ago, has one of the highest rates in the state.

Adams launches rocket program

Rocketry was a very popular teaching tool back in the 70's, but over the years the interest seemed to wane.

Now Adams Junior High School, on Palmer near Venoy in Westland, is reviving the hobby among its students.

Principal Walt Durant feels anything that helps keep kids off the streets and interested in school is very beneficial to the community.

The expense involved is a little high for junior high students, said science teacher Thomas Deschaine.

But once the club has obtains its initial equipment and supplies, students will be able to support the club through fund-raisers.

Each student is responsible for purchasing his or her own rocket, but they depend on club equipment and supplies to finish and launch his project, he said.

'We are appealing to local businesses and civic organizations for help.'

— Thomas Deschaine
science teacher

To keep the club from folding, the students came up with a "Sponsor A Rocket" program.

"We are appealing to local businesses and civic organizations for help. For a donation of $50," said Deschaine.

"We will build a rocket around the motif of your business or organization. The rocket will then go on display in our school and will be launched at all club meets and competitions.

"It's a great way to advertise and it will help out the youth of Adams Junior High."

Businesses or civic organizations who might be interested in supporting the activity may call the Deschaine at 595-2377 or send a check to: Adams Junior High School, c/o Thomas J. Deschaine, 33475 Palmer, Westland 48185.

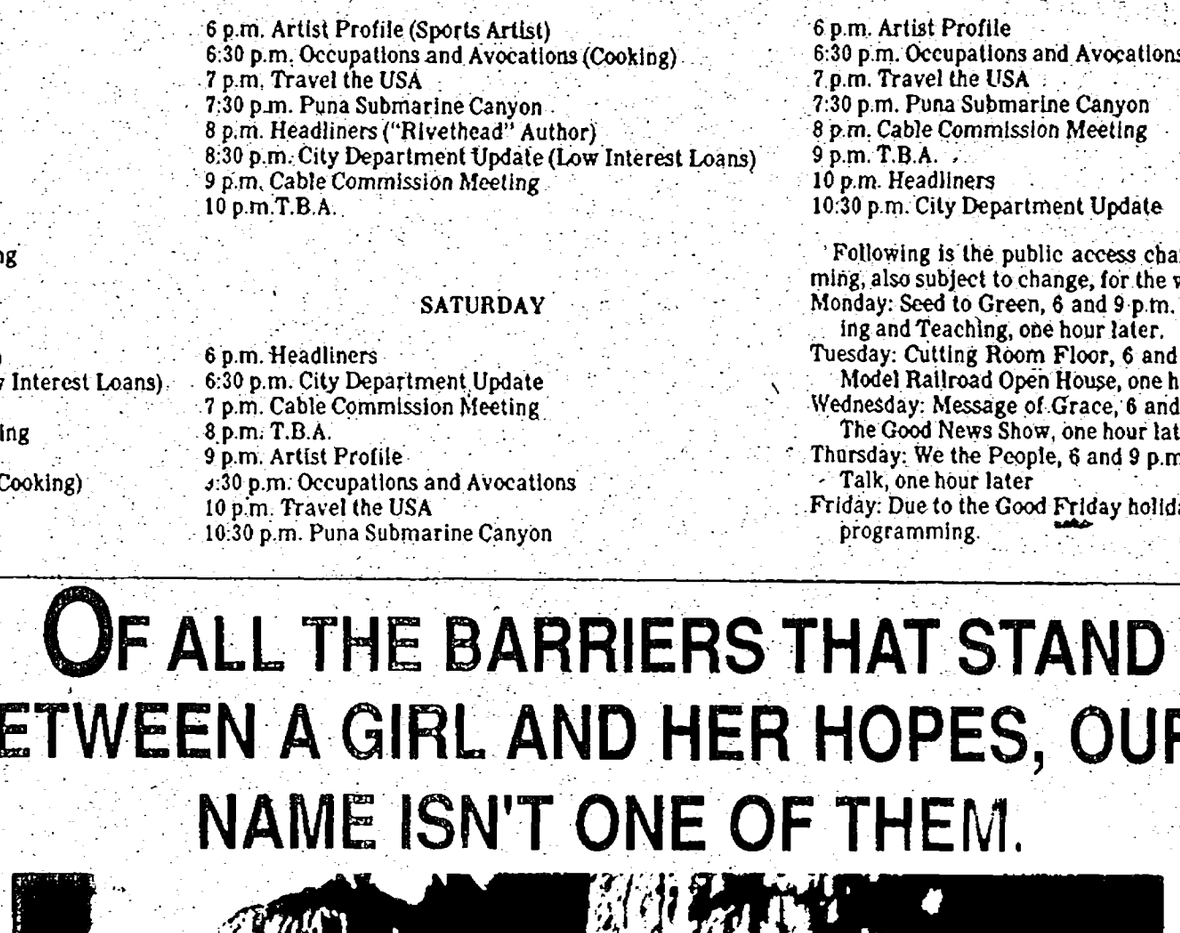
OF ALL THE BARRIERS THAT STAND BETWEEN A GIRL AND HER HOPES, OUR NAME ISN'T ONE OF THEM.



Self-esteem, shouldering responsibility and learning respect are certainly not unique to boys. Neither are the difficulties a child has in building these characteristics in today's world. That's why Boysville welcomes girls into their treatment programs. These programs range from in-home family treatment to residential care to supervised independent living. Although our name hasn't changed in the last 43 years, almost everything else at Boysville has changed for the better. Including girls.

Blood supply safe

County medical director says risk of AIDS through transfusion small

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Tennis legend Arthur Ashe's revelation last week that he contracted AIDS through a blood transfusion sparked new concern over the safety of the nation's blood supply.

But local health professionals say risk of similar infection, while present, remains small.

"You have to remember this happened a long time ago," said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, Wayne County medical director. "Today, blood is screened."

Ashe is believed to have contracted AIDS during one of two heart bypass operations he underwent between 1979 and 1983. Red Cross blood screening began in 1985.

"WE GO to great lengths to protect the blood supply," said Mark Cornillie of the American Red Cross distribution center for southeastern Michigan. Based in Detroit, the center distributes blood to all area hospitals.

Blood donors are questioned before giving blood to determine if their lifestyle puts them among those at high risk for contracting AIDS. Donors can also discreetly attach a bar code to the plastic bag containing their sample, further notifying Red Cross officials of potential contamination.

Laboratory tests are also conducted on all blood samples. Blood is screened for both HIV-1, the AIDS-causing virus most common in the U.S. and HIV-2.

HIV-2, more common in Africa, isn't yet considered a major threat in this country.

Depsite precautions, contaminated blood could get through.

"There is a window of vulnerability," Lawrenchuk said.

That is because the test screens blood for antibodies, not HIV itself.

Researchers aren't in agreement on how long that period lasts.

Some health officials believe it could take six months to one year for antibodies to surface. Red Cross officials believe the period is much shorter. "I'd say four weeks to six months," Cornillie said.

The state health department reports 48 people have contracted AIDS through transfusions — two percent of all Michigan AIDS patients. All but one were linked to transfusions given before 1985, the other to a transfusion given early that year. Statistics are for the state only. There is no breakdown for Wayne or Oakland counties.

"You have to remember this happened a long time ago," said Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, Wayne County medical director. "Today, blood is screened."

State statistics only record those with fullblown AIDS. What isn't known, is how many people contract-

Privacy issue triggers debate

Shirley Gach's heart went out to Arthur Ashe as she watched the former tennis star on the evening news.

Perhaps better than anyone, Gach and her husband, Philip, knew the pain Ashe and his family felt at that moment.

The Birmingham couple went public recently with the news their 27-year-old son had died of AIDS, voluntarily sharing the information with area media in hope it would build understanding.

"We went public not only to build compassion for AIDS victims but for homosexuals," she said.

While Ashe said he contracted AIDS through a blood transfusion, the nature of his announcement — prompted by questions from a USA Today reporter — added fire to an already heated debate over the press and privacy.

"THIS HASN'T been the easiest year to be a reporter," said John Lindstrom, Detroit chapter president of the Society for Professional Journalists.

The Gach family's decision to share the details of their son's life and death was applauded by Birmingham Eccentric reporter Helen Niemiec, who brought the story to readers.

"Because there's so much misinformation and prejudice, for someone to come forward like this — it helps," Niemiec said.

But what of people, like Ashe, who would rather keep such details private?

Band leaves fans wanting more

Larry O'Connor

Bushmaster Tim Pak's vocals do more than spill words. He creates a hypnotic sway with an alluring deadpan delivery.

With a mere four songs, the Bushmasters obviously want to leave listeners wanting more on "The Original Woodshed Sessions." The desired effect is achieved.

Whether it's the band's story-telling ability showcased on "A Dead Man's Ballad" or musical dexterity revealed with multi-layers of electric and acoustic guitar on "All I Want," this release is a gem with its oft-harmonica driven swagger.

Tim Pak's vocals do more than spill words. He creates a hypnotic sway with an alluring deadpanned delivery in "All I Want," which is touched up by some gorgeous Spanish style acoustic guitar. His story-teller tone in the grim tale of suburban crime, "A Dead Man's Ballad," sounds like it's being recited amid a dust storm in some wayward western tavern.

Pak may be given credit for creating the mood here, but the rest of the outfit Airick, guitars; Lori B, keyboards and vocals; Dave Koran, bass; and Ewolf, drums and vocals sell the package with remarkable blend of musical tightness.

To this end the easy-to-please full throttle rocker, "This Ain't Goodbye," could be the typical local band number often performed at 1:35 a.m. to shake the dust from atop the cigarette machine in one of a number of venues. The Bushmasters pull it off with particular aplomb, casting an indelible, judiciously orchestrated rock number with none of the sloppiness.

The jaunty, harmonica-injected instrumental "Meet Joe 6-Pack" closes out this short-lived (14 minutes) Bushmaster encounter, which if anything speaks more to the confidence of this outfit as artists. (Greenlight Records, 20210 Plainview, Detroit 48219)

"Foxbase Alpha," Saint Etienne: The languid, techno-keyboard rendition of Neil Young's "Only Love Can Break Your Heart" serves as an enticing piece of fruit to this British outfit's dance-pop release.

On the ensuing numbers on "Foxbase Alpha," Saint Etienne attempts to present itself as something a little more than a cast of '60s-'70s revisionists out on a merry pillage of the tunes of the era. There's an array of uptempo dance numbers, sampling and dialogue interspersed between numbers — all designed to create a carefree exodus from reality.

The opening from a French soccer program and verbage between an aunt and her nephew ("C'mon Auntie, we'll miss the bus") cut in between is seemingly intended to provide a childlike retreat.

Perhaps a carefree feeling would be achieved if it weren't for the vocals of Sarah Cracknell, who's apparently a pupil of the I-Sound-Like-Everyone-I've-Heard School of Singing.

Cracknell's vocals bear an undeniable resemblance to Sade in the sweetly seductive "Carnt Sleep" and steers dangerously close to a Diana Ross impersonation in "Spring." The end result, though, has St. Etienne coming off sounding like a 60s-70s cliche dressed up in a '90s beat.

Make no mistake, St. Etienne is a trip — but it is a mindless one. (Warner Bros. Records, 75 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10019).

"Fear," Toad the Wet Sprocket: This weighs in heavy, tackling the subject of violence against women, ("Hold Her Down") encapsulating all the rage and horror in a poignant manner within the confines of one rock'n'roll song.

"Hold Her Down" is merely one of 12 powerful, evocative numbers from this Santa Barbra, Calif., foursome. Buoyed by an uncompromising folk-inspired rock'n'roll sound, each number on Toad the Wet Sprocket's "Fear" is a geyser of emotional sentiment intense in their release while surreptitiously cleansing to the soul.

They do this by the most natural musical means — ripping through numbers such as "Stories I Tell" with breathtaking fury while settling into a nice toe-tapping groove as in "Nightingale Song" in others.

This stirring is more the result of a willingness to cut close to personal conflicts, displaying all the foibles and trepidations this may involve like a banner atop of a freeway overpass. "I fear my day is done/there are armies moving on/be quick my love" sings Glen Phillips in the taut, almost claustrophobic number "Pray Your Gods."

Toad the Wet Sprocket is undoubtedly a band well ahead of its years. (Columbia Records, 666 Fifth, New York, NY 10100).

STREET SENSE

Man learns from childhood trauma

Barbara Schiff

Dear Barbara,

I am a 35-year-old father of a 16-year-old child. I am married for the second time. After reading the article in The Observer on Monday, March 9, I decided to write.

While taking a class which explores childhood last year, I began becoming quite agitated and unable to answer the questions. The woman teaching the class took me aside and into another room. I broke down and cried harder than I had in years. In the midst of this, a childhood incident which was lost in memory for more than 25 years surfaced. I had been attacked by two young men in a field and sexually molested. They also threatened that if I ever told anyone, they would get me.

After recalling this incident, nearly every time it was told, I felt an incredible relief and peace. I have also recalled nightmares that I frequently got as a child around this period. I would go down in my basement near the cellar or in the laundry rooms and skeletons would lunge out at me, scaring me to death and waking me in a panic.

I am certain these nightmares were the result of the attack in the field. I've read many books on the subject and have learned quite a bit. I've been helped by the woman who taught the class on childhood and in her courses on self discovery, but I feel I need someone who specializes in this area.

I also have had traumatic physical and emotional attacks since the one in early childhood. I was attacked by a young man when I was 23 for no apparent reason. He came up from behind and struck me in the face, shattering my left cheekbone and collapsing my left sinus passageway, requiring two separate surgeries.

I had another traumatic incident which is known as TMJ due to miscommunication with a young dentist, which also was quite traumatic. (This has been corrected as much as possible.)

I've been through more than 60 jobs in my life, but have learned this is characteristic of people who experience these kinds of shocks. I recently read about post-traumatic shock disorder and certainly can relate to it.

I know I need additional specialized help. It angers and frustrates me that having been the victim of serious crimes that I should have to pay for expensive and possibly lengthy sessions. When I heard about the Royal Oak Post Office tragedy on the radio, I turned to my boss and said I would bet that this guy was himself at one time a victim that never got help. Several hours later this was brought out.

Many victims of serious crimes are now in prison or dead because victims become victimizers. Many of the homeless are the same way. I recently read that Mike Tyson was raped when he was 12 years old. This does not surprise me. It was obvious he needed help before he committed this last crime of rape.

I am sorry and ashamed to admit that this victim has become a victimizer. Lately, I have had so much anger and frustration that I've been hitting my wife's new puppy more than I ought to. It started out as a smack here and there for pooping or peeing in the house. This is quite sick, but in the beginning it felt good to reprimand her in this way. I never really learned to express anger properly. Most of my life I denied my anger and now I don't want to deny it any more, but am overreacting. I love that little puppy, but I need help to overcome my hate and frustration, and she is not a proper channel.

Can you recommend anyone in this area who specializes in problems similar to mine?

Dear R,

Thank you for having the courage to write me and thus allow other readers to learn from your experience. Since you needed treatment immediately, I sent you a letter with the names and telephone numbers of therapists to contact for help with your problem. I hope you are already in treatment and getting the help that will relieve you of such disturbing feelings.

This is a topic that is coming to increasingly greater local and national attention. Childhood abuse has become a common topic on TV talk shows. In just the last month, I received two brochures advertising lectures and workshops for professionals interested in learning more about the treatment of adults who had been abused as children.

Personally, I hope that the heightened societal awareness we are experiencing will lead to less victimization of children, and less cover-up when the abuse occurs.

I wonder if you and others abused as children feel that early psychological intervention would have protected you from the unhappy existence you describe as adults. We are always interested in hearing from other readers on this topic.

Again, thanks for writing and good luck.

Barbara

Ed Harris (left) is Frankie Flannery and Joe Viterelli is Borelli in director Phil Joanou's gangster tale "State of Grace."

Film is ambitious, but script falls from 'State of Grace'

pass the popcorn

LeAnne Rogers

You can take the boy out of Hell's Kitchen but you can't take Hell's Kitchen out of the boy seems to be the premise of director Phil Joanou's gangster tale "State of Grace."

An raven-haired Sean Penn plays a guy from the west end New York neighborhood who suddenly re-appears after dropping out of sight for a few years. After connecting with an old buddy, played by Gary Oldman, Penn starts work for Westies, the Irish gangster working out of Hell's Kitchen.

Penn's reasons for returning and linking up with the Westies is initially a little murky. The situation becomes clearer, as the story progresses, it just never really becomes very plausible.

Unkempt with long dirty hair and a whiskey bottle never out of reach, Oldman is a populist criminal. He rails against the Irish being pushed out of the neighborhood as it undergoes redevelopment.

"The yuppies are thicker than roaches," he complains to Penn. Noble sentiments from a man who makes his living strong arming protection money and kickbacks from local Irish business owners.

HEADING THE local gangsters is Oldman's older brother, played by Ed Harris, whose goal is to become a yuppie mobster. Harris has moved his family to a suburb in New Jersey and is attempting to put a respectable veneer on his life.

When Harris tries to connect with rival Italian gangsters, it's only a matter of time before his out-of-control brother will become a serious obstacle on his road to upward mobility.

Penn is supposed to be the center of the film, his story being one of attempting to find the state of grace from the title. He just isn't terribly successful in creating this character, largely due to the script, I suspect.

In the end, it's Oldman and Harris who are more memorable. Oldman is very good being devoted to his friends to the point of extreme violence. He's not especially likeable even in his better moments but always compelling. As always, Oldman, a British actor, meshes seamlessly with the American cast members.

Harris is a rough violent man, desperately trying to make the transition to a dapper don. A large part of the problem is that we get very little insight into the characters, something that is most noticeable about Penn whose actions start the chain of events moving. The characters played by Oldman and Harris are better focused and developed, maybe because we see more of them in their element.

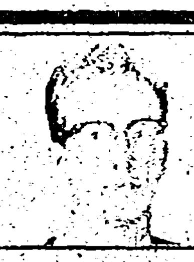
THE FILM moves along well enough on the level of an action picture though some scenes, particularly toward the end, are excessively violent and unrealistic.

It's interesting to see the dynamics of Irish gangsters and their hostile relationship with their Italian counterparts. And really, the film moves ahead toward an end that is almost a foregone conclusion in the genre.

The film is ambitious, trying to look at ideas of right and wrong and how that can get skewered by divided loyalties. Unfortunately, the script isn't able to meet the challenge it sets for itself.

"State of Grace" is available on video cassette at area stores.

'Toto' compels, depresses



tickets please

John Monaghan

You can walk out of some movies and never think about them again. Others take you on a roller coaster ride of twists and turns that leave you emotionally exhausted, yet pondering the directions you've been taken.

"Toto Le Heros," a new French import playing at the Maple and other local theaters, falls firmly into the latter category. This bold, stylized look at one man's tragedy-filled life is both depressing and oddly compelling at the same time.

Thomas is 60 years old and living in a nursing home. He dreams of escaping and murdering an old rival. According to his crystal-clear memory, a hospital fire led to a frantic grabbing of infants that placed him in the care of a family much poorer than the one into which he was born.

As Thomas grows older, he watches that other baby, Alfred, live a life of luxury and eventually inherit the family business – a chain of successful grocery stores.

In a series of flashbacks, Thomas recalls minute details of his life, including the disappearance of his pilot father and the strong attraction to his sister Alice, who of course is not his sister at all. His neighbor Alfred displays the actual incestuous desire by falling in love with Alice as well.

It's precisely this kind of twist that makes the film so fascinating.

The complex narrative of "Toto Le Heros" recalls French "New Wave" cinema at its most experimental. But unlike the free-wheeling Truffaut and Godard, first-time director Jaco Van Dormael knows exactly where this film is headed.

He even tosses in a few of Hitchcock's red herrings along the way. The adult Thomas, a la "Vertigo," loves a woman solely because she reminds him so much of Alice. She looks the same, dresses the same, even plays the same musical instrument.

The audience is left with questions: Does she have the same birthmark that Alice so slyly points out early in the film? Could it in fact be her?

Four actors play Thomas in various stages of life, including French cinema veteran Michel Bouquet, whose narration is the thread that holds the film together.

Bouquet's performance is perhaps the screen's best study of complete and total bitterness. Thomas' violent fantasy life often leads him to jump up during an irritating situation and bash someone's brains out or force a handful of pills down a nagging nurse's gullet. Of course, it's all a dream.

At other times, he is the title's avenging Toto, a hard-boiled detective who single-handedly guns down a roomful of villains who have abducted his parents.

Thomas' string of often avoidable tragedies are difficult to watch, so the best part of "Toto Le Heros" may come long after the lights go up. Few recent films have had such a stinging resonance.

Educators become problem, not solution

Jeff Counts

CARS AND KIDS have a lot in common. They're two products in which we take great pride, they're our future. And it's time to get serious about both.

Venerable General Motors went through a management shake up, the first in more than 70 years.

And now it's time for a shake up in the educational establishment.

My personal favorite would be to put every professional educator above the level of classroom teacher out to pasture. The reason is that most school districts are empires for superintendants more interested in careers than in kids.

Educators have made education twice as expensive, while quality has fallen.

It's the only business where people accept the notion that the more spent on a kid in the classroom, the better that kid will do. It's called per-pupil spending by professional educators, and over the years, they've managed to convince folks it's good to spend too much on education.

It's all propaganda. The amount of money spent on a student has no relation to how well a kid does.

PER-PUPIL SPENDING also has nothing to do with how large or small a class size is or how good the teacher is. But it has everything to do with how many expenses are tacked on each kid by the school administration.

That means that if a school district is over staffed in its administrative offices, those salaries are tacked on the per-pupil spending. It's how educators justify fat school budgets.

Instead of calling something fat, school boards point with pride at the high per-pupil spending. They've won the war of words.

It's time for the public to strike back; it's time to question just what exactly we're getting for the per-pupil spending figure. If it's just more administration, then it's time to lop it off.

Much of that administration has accumulated in school districts because of new learning programs that are unveiled every couple of years with much fanfare. The result is usually more specialists in the board office, but rarely any real help for teachers in the classroom.

I've often suspected school superintendents buy into new programs not because they'll help, but because they're being backed by some buddy who runs a college of education at one of our universities.

COLLEGES OF education need to place their graduates, especially those with a Ph.d, in school systems, and to do that, educators have to convince districts that certain specialties are needed.

It's a version of cronyism. The only trouble is the taxpayers are the victims.

But administrators are only part of the problem. Teachers and their unions also share the blame for the per-pupil spending scam. High teacher salaries are part of the per-pupil spending equation.

And those salaries get that way because the public finances teacher strikes. When most workers strike, they lose money for the time they're on the picket line.

But not teachers. The state requires a certain number of school days, so what a teacher loses in the fall during a strike, he or she makes up in the spring. We just wonder how eager teachers would be to strike, if they knew they would take a financial loss.

Schools are a mess and there's nobody in charge who has the public interest at heart. It's time for a clean sweep. Maybe the financial problems faced by the schools will change some attitudes. It did at General Motors.

We can only hope the schools are next. We can't afford any more Edsels.

Payouts hike cost of government business

Tim Richard

WHAT COST of state government leaped 18 percent last year?

Remember, now, it was a year of cutbacks. Population is stagnant. Here's a hint: The governor and Legislature worked hard at controlling costs.

Give up? Payouts in lawsuits rose 18 percent to $36.7 million. How's that for tax dollars at work?

The payout was 91 percent higher than a decade earlier, fiscal '82 when $19.2 million was paid out. The record was $45.5 million in fiscal '86, but generally the trend has been upward at 9 percent a year, double the inflation rate.

It's hard to understand $36.7 million, so let's put it in human terms. If a teacher costs $50,000 a year, then Michigan lost the services of 734 teachers.

BIGGEST PAYER was the Department of Transportation, which lives off our gasoline and weight taxes and license fees.

MDOT paid out $22.8 million, or 62 percent of the total. It was followed by the Education Department, $4.1 million; Social Services, $3.6 million; and Corrections, $3.2 million.

In five cases, the payout topped the $1 million mark:

- $9.4 million in a Bay County case involving lack of a traffic signal light — two-fifths of MDOT's total payout.
- $4.1 million in the continuing Benton Harbor school desegregation case, virtually all of the Education Department's payout.
- $2.75 million to a worker in Wayne County for injuries suffered while repairing a guard shack in a Social Services parking lot.
- $2.2 million from MDOT in an Alpena County case involving improper speed limits, inadequate curb height and lane width — relatively minor traffic engineering problems.
- $1.2 million for an age discrimination settlement in Oakland County by the Labor Department.

Payouts in the $500,000 to $1 million class were for employee discrimination, bad conditions and failure to protect a prisoner (all Corrections), and sight obstructions, improper designs and inadequate guardrails (all MDOT).

VERY INTRIGUING are nine Freedom of Information Act settlements. They weren't big money, but they show people get sore when their government tries to hide their records from them.

State Police, of course, were the big offenders — four cases running to $4,348. In one Ingham County case, our men in blue denied public records in a matter involving physical assault upon arrest.

The Corrections Department cost us money three times, Department of Natural Resources once and MDOT once.

My source for all of this is a tome by the Senate Fiscal Agency called "Status of Lawsuits against the State of Michigan." There is little explanatory text, mainly line after line of listings.

I MENTION this because there is a disease among police departments statewide of denying FOI requests for public documents. Chiefs of some suburban departments express a "sue us" attitude.

At several police-press seminars over the last 18 months, command officers have given the same speech. In this column, I have quoted some utterly false advice to cops from an area law firm.

Cops say they can be sued for releasing information. But never did any police spokesman cite a single case where a payout occurred for release of public records.

In truth, the FOI Act allows small suits only for withholding information.

Three times I searched the Senate Fiscal Agency document, 45 pages, for a case where the state was sued for releasing information. None. But there were nine payouts for hiding information.

What a way to use public taxes. What a way to treat public records.

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Column was way off base

To the editor:

I have just read the Philip Power commentary which appeared in the March 26 Observer & Eccentric. I feel compelled to respond to it by addressing the following points.

First, I find it interesting, and somewhat amusing, that one could think that he has gained complete insight into the political and economic environment of this state after talking to but two individuals. I had always assumed that the affairs of this state were more complex than that perhaps I'm not as sensible and/or as knowledgeable as the sources quoted.

Second, other than an implied suggestion to divert more funds to Michigan's three research institutions, Power fails to make any concrete recommendations regarding this state's current financial crisis.

Because of this, he is just as guilty as those teachers, principals, school board members and legislators that he points his finger at when he demeans them for offering only lip service when addressing problems with public education.

Finally, to insult the CMUs of this state by suggesting that they cannot make a meaningful contribution to the economy of this state is ludicrous. The three research institutions of this state, including the world class institution on whose board Power serves, have not yet demonstrated that they alone can provide the innovations necessary to assist this state with its economic remodeling, and therefore have not necessarily made a case for increased state funding.

Maybe Power should be suggesting that the CMU's of this state should receive more funding so that they will be in a better position to make an even greater contribution to the state of Michigan.

HIV-patient Tammy Boccomino of Warren, who voluntarily appears in local newspapers and on local television in her campaign to raise AIDS awareness, said she'd have sued if she were Ashe.

"I made the decision to come forward on my own," she said. "But he had a right to his privacy."

Legal issues aside, reporters face in a tough choice between the public's right to know and its need to know.

"We have to ask ourselves some hard questions," Lindstrom said. "Arthur Ashe is a public figure, but even public figures are entitled to some degree of privacy."

The line, he admits, is watery.

Ashe's situation is considered different from that of basketball star Magic Johnson, or even from an elected official.

Johnson's absence from the Los Angeles Laker lineup demanded an explanation, Lindstrom said, as would an elected leader's absence from office.

Ashe, only occasionally in the spotlight, conducted his business for nearly four years without any public knowledge of his health condition.

Athletes and politicians aren't the only ones in the public spotlight.

IN AMERICA, almost anyone can become a public figure.

And AIDS is a very public issue.

But public figures can endure private pain.

Even though Gach is absolutely convinced she and her husband did the right thing, her voice still clouds with emotion when describing how the decision was made.

"Every family should have the right to make its own decision," she said. "I only know what is right for me."

The Ashe story isn't the only one for which reporters have been called to task. But one day's news headlines show how tough news decisions can be.

The same day Ashe's story broke, three New York Mets baseball players were cleared of rape allegations — after all three were named and allegations widely reported in the New York and national tabloid press.

That same day, too, the city's new director of AIDS programs voluntarily acknowledges he, too, was HIV-positive.

That same day, new allegations were broadcast about alleged drug use at long ago parties hosted by Democratic Party presidential hopeful Jerry Brown.

The William Kennedy Smith rape trial, Clarence Thomas confirmation hearings, and the continuing controversy swirling around Democratic front runner Bill Clinton had already made press/privacy issues front page news.

But from Watergate to the Congressional "rubber gate" check cashing scandal, journalists argue an aggressive press has served the public well.

Where, however, does the media go from here?

"If there's one thing we can learn from this, it's that if we decide to do something, we damn well better know the reasons why we're doing it," Lindstrom said.

ed HIV through transfusions.

Even though it could take eight years or more for HIV infection to lead to AIDS, health officials believe the number of Michgian residents who contracted AIDS through transfusions will increase slightly if at all.

"IT'S NOT 100 percent foolproof, but you have a much greater chance of being struck by lighting than in getting AIDS from a blood transfusion," Lawrenchuk said.

Hospitals officials agree the risk is extremely small.

"It's not much of an issue these days though people occasionally do express concerns," said Barbara Johnston of St. Mary Hospital, Livonia.

Taking no chances, officials at Royal Oak Beaumont Hospital encourage people to donate their own blood.

"We urge all people who are having elective surgery to use their own blood," said Beaumont blood department chief Dr. Richard Walker.

Allaying other fears, Walker said the hospital only uses blood from the Red Cross.

"We stopped buying blood 15 years ago," he said.

While using one's own blood is the safest option, it isn't always possible.

"Blood is only good for about 42 days unless you freeze it," Cornille said. "If you freeze it, it takes about eight hours to thaw. If you're in an emergency, you could be dead before your blood thaws out."

SOMETIMES TO KNOW YOU DON'T NEED TO UNDERSTAND

You may have the experience of presenting an arthritis to a doctor, which he cannot explain. Because the doctor cannot provide a diagnosis, it does not mean he cannot give advice, recommend medicine, or answer your concern if the arthritis will progress to cripple you or likely will go away.

The physician may not know what your condition is, but often he knows what it is not. An arthritis of long duration in which you still swear the same size shoes and gloves, continue your job, and maintain your accustomed activities is not likely to one day rise up and cripple you. The point is that the character of your arthritis as it was and is, often allows a prediction of what it will be.

Rarely will blood tests or x-rays reveal more than the history of your arthritis combined with the findings on examination of your joints. The best way to follow your course is to see you periodically and evaluate if your condition has changed.

As for treatment, experience shows that when the cause of an arthritis is unclear, the best therapy is heat, rest, and aspirin. This regimen combined with a program of regular activity fitted into your tolerance is likely to serve you best.

Thus even if you do not understand the nature of your arthritis, you can still know how to handle it.

Ham it up Easter — and later

Anyone who thinks that the traditional Easter ham Momma prepared, studded in glory with cloves and dripping with a glaze of brown sugar and molasses was something "thrown together" hasn't visited a good butcher shop or deli lately.

Nowadays, consumers are faced with the choice of buying a ham either fresh or smoked, canned or country, sliced or boned, glazed or grazed, steak or butt.

Barring game, pork is North America's oldest meat. Pigs came with the earliest settlers, and were set loose to fatten in the woods.

Most pork comes from pigs less than one year old, so the meat is naturally tender. Ham is a processed pork product. Smoked hams can be fully cooked, ready-to-cook or country style.

THE FULLY cooked ham can be simply heated and served — cube it and throw a handful into the scalloped potatoes or enjoy a paper-thin slice slathered with mustard on a fresh slice of rye.

Ready-to-cook ham can be glazed; covered with pineapple and cloves and then slowly baked. These less costly varieties are generally cured by injecting brine into the blood vessels and then are lightly smoked over sawdust.

Country hams hail from the hills of Pennsylvania, Virginia, Kentucky and Tennessee, and come complete with a strong smoky taste.

It's been said that beef is beef and pork is pork wherever they hail from, but a Virginia ham is about as different from most other hams as chalk is from cheese.

UNLIKE THE pinkish soft meat of ordinary hams, the truly aged Virginia ham has a rich mahogany color, is firm and highly flavored. To get even more technical, a Smithfield Virginia ham is one of the most praised hams in the world. Seems that a fellow by the name of Arthur Smith owned a big farm, and, because the soil was too poor for raising tobacco, he farmed peanuts.

The early settlers let their hogs roam wild and it didn't take them long to discover the richness and intense flavor came from hogs raised on peanuts.

If that wasn't enough, the curing process involving salt and slow smoking over smoldering hickory wood added the final touches that made this ham a favorite of Queen Victoria who was said to request 10 hams from every voyage from the New World upon their return.

IF ALL these different varieties and cuts haven't confused you, wait until you hear about the pork shoulder. A ham is a whole back leg of a pig, but a picnic ham comes from the shoulder. Add to this the Boston butt, which is really the remainder of the shoulder.

The muscles in the shoulder are separated by membranes and fatty tissue which makes the meat juicy and flavorful. The meat has the same uses as ham, but if you prefer your pork lean, you will prefer the meat from the ham. Boston butts are great for making sausage and grinding.

A good ham can be one of those dishes that grace an Easter buffet and can keep on giving all week long. Budget stretchers can use whole bone-in hams long after Easter has departed. A great budget stretcher that won't remind us of "leftover ham" is scalloped potatoes laced with ham chunks.

Another great budget stretcher is soups made of the ham bone, which should be simmered for hours with beans, onions and carrots. Leftover ham can be ground and tossed with pickle relish, mayonnaise and finely chopped onion for a great sandwich spread.

Imported and specialty hams can be expensive but never underestimate the cost-cutting abilities of preparing a whole ham or pork shoulder from a reputable market.

Pretty dishes, tablecloth and an Easter basket filled with colored eggs create a festive setting for a holiday brunch. Kristin Moran, 6, pours orange juice in glass garnished with a strawberry and orange slice to help her sister, Katelyn, 2, and mom, Bridget, get ready for company.

Brunch on a budget can be elegant

Editor's note: Weathering the recession, worsened by the auto sales slump and planned closing of the Willow Run assembly plant in Ypsilanti, is not easy, but we'd like to help. Our series continues with ideas for brunch on a budget. Next week, we'll go shopping at a warehouse club.

Impact on the suburbs: The shrinking Auto Industry

A delicious egg-and-sausage casserole accompanied by muffins and fresh fruit can be an economical, yet festive, Easter brunch.

"Brunch doesn't cost as much as dinner," said Bridget Moran of Canton Township. "You can set a real nice fancy table and feel really good."

Moran and her husband, Pat, are in their early 30s, with two daughters, ages 2 and 6 years.

Moran has entertained both small and large groups at brunch. The typical brunch period — late morning to early afternoon — is a time when both hosts and guests are fresh.

"You accomplish a lot and you still have the rest of the day," Moran said.

BRUNCH CAN be economical because eggs and bread, the foundation for many brunch dishes, are cheap and plentiful.

A casserole with a little bit of meat can be stretched to oserve many people. Sausage and bacon cost less than a fancy ham, a large turkey or a beef roast.

Holly Giannola, 34, of Farmington prepares a rich, oven-baked french toast when she has guests for brunch.

Giannola's recipe, called praline brunch toast, is made with eggs and thick-sliced bread. It is enriched with maple syrup, chopped pecans, butter and brown sugar.

"I cut it out of a newspaper a long time ago," Giannola said. "I like it because you do some of the preparations the night before."

The praline brunch toast has been a big hit with husband, Lance, and the couple's two sons, ages 7 and 10 years. Giannola has taken the dish to church functions as well.

While some people stick to breakfast fare, others branch out to other dishes, such as shrimp-and-rice casserole, or chicken in cream sauce.

Moran especially likes to serve a breakfast quiche, made with sausage, cheese and refrigerated crescent rolls. But she is flexible.

"IT'S ALWAYS whatever I am in the mood for," Moran said. "If I want to go 'all out' I fix shrimp. I have even had lasagna or macaroni and cheese."

Spring for turkey meatloaf

Can we talk . . . turkey, that is. Until recently, aside from Thanksgiving Day, this feathered fowl was served infrequently in most American homes. But that has all changed in the past few years as turkey has gobbled its way into the meat department.

Because turkeys are low in fat and calories, it is easy to understand why turkey producers jumped on the heart-healthy bandwagon and began to offer turkey in many different ways and for everyday meals, rather than exclusively for holiday fare. Whether roasted, grilled, sauteed or baked, turkey, in any form, is so good it makes you want to bow your head and give thanks.

This week's Winner Dinner, submitted by Ann Wassell of Livonia, offers a delicious, low-fat, low sodium menu that includes a favorite recipe for turkey meatloaf.

WASSELL HAS worked as a registered renal dietitian in the Kidney Center at Grace Hospital in Detroit for eight years. Married and the mother of two grown children, Wassell went back to school part-time for seven years while her children were in high school.

She earned her undergraduate degree in foods and nutrition at Madonna College in Livonia and then continued her studies at Eastern University where she received a master's degree and became certified as a registered dietician.

During this busy period of her life, Wassell shuttled her children to and from soccer games, attended their school activities, studied hard and worked part time counseling diabetics for two and a half years at what was then called Mt. Carmel and has recently been renamed Grace Hospital.

Part of her job as a renal dietician involves working with chronic, long-term dialysis clients who need to have an occasional reminder that low sodium food can be tasty and attractive.

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Ann Wassell's low-fat, low sodium springtime menu features turkey meatloaf, baby new potatoes, fresh asparagus, and strawberry sherbet for dessert.

Wassell offers the following tips: Eat regular meals, reduce the amount of fat, sugar and salt in your diet, get more fiber into your diet, eat a variety of foods, have your blood pressure checked regularly and if you have diabetes, be sure to closely monitor your blood sugar level.

Submit recipes to be considered for publication, to Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham, MI 48012.

All submissions become the property of the Observer and Eccentric Newspapers. Each winner receives an apron with the words, "Winner Dinner" on it.

Recipes

TURKEY MEATLOAF

With only 160 calories and seven grams of fat per serving, this recipe is tasty and economical to make as well as heart healthy.

1½ pounds ground turkey
2 eggs or equivalent amount of egg substitute
1 cup milk
¾ cup dry oatmeal
½ teaspoon pepper, or to taste
1 onion chopped, about ¾ cup
¼ cup chopped green pepper, optional
1-2 tablespoons dry parsley flakes

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Mix all the ingredients together. Pat into a greased loaf pan. Bake at 350 degrees for a ½ hour, add topping and bake an additional ½ hour.

TOPPING

¼ cup catsup
2 tablespoons brown sugar
½ teaspoon dry mustard
dash of nutmeg

Mix ingredients together and spread evenly over the meatloaf after the first ½ hour of baking time.

BABY NEW POTATOES

Wash the desired amount of small baby new potatoes. Place them in a covered casserole dish with a tablespoon of margarine and parsley, salt and pepper to taste.

Cover and bake alongside the meatloaf. Stir once during baking to distribute the margarine.

FRESH ASPARAGUS

Trim the woody ends of desired amount of asparagus spears.

Place in a steamer and cover and cook at medium-high heat for 5-7 minutes until the asparagus spears are tender but crisp.

FRESH STRAWBERRY SHERBET

From "The French Chef Cook Book" by Julia Child, this recipe offers a refreshing and colorful end to any meal.

2 quarts fresh strawberries, washed and hulled
1½ cups sugar
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
2 egg whites
1 cup chilled, heavy cream

Puree the strawberries in a blender or food processor. Add the sugar and lemon juice, beat for a few minutes until the sugar has completely dissolved and no granules can be felt on the tongue.

Beat the egg whites in a separate bowl until they form soft peaks. Then beat into the strawberry puree. (Egg whites discourage large ice crystals from forming.)

Cover and freeze about four to five hours until the puree has almost set.

Beat vigorously with a wire whip for several minutes to break up ice crystals and to lighten the texture. Add the cream and beat just enough so that the mixture holds its shape in a spoon. Cover and freeze.

Delicious enough for company yet simple enough for a busy morning, Cheesy Brunch Casserole features tender noodles and lean Canadian-style bacon. —

Cheesy casserole easy, good-for-you

Celebrate spring's arrival with a sunny, healthful brunch!

Typically a weekend or holiday event, a brunch borrows the best from both breakfast and lunch, so the menu should offer well-balanced variety. Also, plan foods that can be made in advance or require minimal preparations. After all, a brunch is meant to be relaxing and leisurely.

For an easy and nutritious main attraction, serve Cheesy Brunch Casserole. Low in calories, cholesterol and sodium, it's quick enough for a spur-of-the-moment occasion and special enough for company. The savory egg base, made with egg substitute, skim milk, lean Canadian-style bacon and tender, fluffy cholesterol-free noodles, is "spiced-up" just right with flavorful green onions, marjoram and thyme.

And the finishing touch is a light sprinkling of reduced-fat cheddar cheese.

To complete your brunch menu, select a few other convenient offerings such as:

- A variety of fresh seasonal fruit and/or fruit juices.
- A marinated vegetable salad made with a low-fat vinaigrette dressing.
- Low-fat, high-fiber whole wheat rolls or bran muffins from the bakery served with assorted fruit spreads.
- Toasted bagels accompanied by fruit chutney and light cream cheese.
- Sparkling water, skim milk, and flavored coffees or teas.

includes: Strawberry peach cooler, fresh fruit plate, breakfast quiche, praline brunch toast, assorted coffee cake or muffins (purchased from a bakery and warmed before serving), coffee and tea.

All of these dishes are economical and easily assembled in advance. The recipes, geared to eight servings, can be doubled for larger groups.

People who are worried about cholesterol from egg yolks need not pass up these foods. Egg substitute, such as Egg Beaters, can be used for all or some of the eggs in these recipes.

Reduce fat further by using low-fat cheese and low-fat or skim milk.

Well-prepared, tasty food takes on excitement when presented with elegance.

Make lots of meals from one ham

See Larry Janes' column on Taste front.

BOURBON GLAZED HAM

One smoked ham, precooked
¾ cup bourbon whiskey (optional)
2 cups dark brown sugar
1 tablespoon dry mustard
¾ cup whole cloves

Preheat oven to 325 degrees. Place the ham fat side up on a rack in a shallow roasting pan.

Bake in the center of an oven for 2 hours. If needed, cut away the rind and score the fat by cutting deeply through the fat until you reach the meat.

Return the ham to the rack and raise the oven heat to 450 degrees. With a pastry brush, paint the ham all over with ½ cup of the bourbon. Then combine the remaineder of the bourbon with the sugar and mustard. Pat the mixture firmly over the scored fat.

Stud the fat with the cloves and baste lightly with the pan drippings for 20 minutes or until the sugar has melted and formed a brilliant glaze.

And what would a story on ham be without making a great Red Eye Gravy (great with ham and biscuits for breakfast):

RED EYE GRAVY

¼ cup drippings from a baked ham
1 tablespoon strong coffee

In a cast iron skillet, add the ham drippings and cook on medium high heat for 2 minutes, stirring constantly. Add one tablespoon of strong black coffee for color, continue stirring and then add just enough water to thin slightly. Continue cooking 'til thick, then pour over ham and biscuits.

SCALLOPED POTATOES WITH HAM

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons onion, chopped
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1½ cups milk
4 cups sliced, pared potatoes
1 cup ham chunks or slices
⅔ cup cheddar cheese, grated

Melt butter or margarine in a saucepan; saute onion 'til soft. Stir in flour, salt and pepper. Whisk in milk and cook slowly over low heat until thickened, about 5 minutes. Layer half the potatoes, half the ham, half the cheese and half the sauce. Repeat. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours, covered. Serves 4-5.

BEAN SOUP WITH HAM

1½ pounds Navy beans
2½ quarts boiling water
1 meaty ham bone
1 large onion, chopped
3 large carrots, sliced
salt and pepper to taste

Wash beans, discarding any imperfect ones. Cover with cold water and soak overnight. Drain and rinse. Place beans in a large kettle. Cover with boiling water and add ham bone.

Add onion and simmer for 1 hour. Add carrots and simmer for 30 minutes. Season with salt, pepper and a bay leaf, if desired while cooking.

Remove ham bone. If desired, soup can be chilled for easy removal of fat. Makes 8-10 servings.

Children make matzah to learn about Passover

By Keely Wygonik
staff writer

Making matzah, unleavened bread, is an 18-minute marathon that involves mixing water and flour, kneading, punching and rolling the dough, pricking it with a fork, and baking it at a very high temperature. Speed is essential to prevent the dough from rising.

It's serious child's play, that introduces children to the Jewish Passover season, which commemorates the exodus of the Jewish people from Egyptian slavery to freedom.

IN THEIR haste to leave Egypt, the Israelites did not have enough time to let their dough for bread-baking rise. To this day, unleavened bread is eaten during the eight days of Passover. This year it will be observed from sundown on Friday, April 17, through sundown, Saturday April 25.

The Hebrew word for matzah is "Shmurah" which means watched. "The flour used to make 'Shmura' matzah is watched from the moment the wheat is cut in the field to when it comes out of the oven," said David Parker, who manned the oven at the Matzah Factory at the Jewish Community Center in West Bloomfield on April 8.

"The rolling pins are sanded after the dough is rolled to protect the flour from any contact with water. Water would cause the dough to rise and disqualify its use on Passover."

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

Nancy Vardy and Coby Vardy, 2, of Southfield roll dough to make matzah at the Jewish Community Center-Chabad Matzah Factory. Shneur Keselman helps Aaron Rapp, 2½, of Bloomfield Hills put his finished matzah on a wooden roller that will be carried to the oven outside.

"Shmura" matzah is a darker, coarser matzah than the kind packaged year-round.

For the last eight years, the West Bloomfield Jewish Community Center has set up a Matzah Factory the week before Passover, to introduce children and their families to this tradition.

"The kids really get a kick out of it," said Amy Rosenberg, who runs the children's Discovery Room at the Center, and the Matzah Factory.

Co-sponsored by the Jewish Community Center of Metropolitan Detroit and Bais Chabad groups of West Bloomfield and Farmington Hills, the factory was in operation April 5-12.

Vistors received a baker's hat, a piece of matzah, and pamphlet describing the celebration of Passover.

Bais Chabad students Yehuda Mann, 16, and Yacov Simmonds were among the volunteers helping the children ranging in age from toddler to kindergarten, make matzah.

"It's a way to spread Jewishness all around," said Mann. "It's wonderful to be a part of it," added Simmonds.

WITH HELP from the students, the children measured flour, added water, punched the dough, pricked it and rolled it. Students carried the matzahs outside on wooden dowel rods to an oven for baking. Children sanded the wooden rolling pins when they were through rolling.

When the matzahs were done, the children got to taste the finished product.

Here's a recipe from "My Mother's Kitchen" by Mimi Sheraton, (HarperCollins, 1979)

MATZAHS

2 cups unbleached flour, more if needed
⅓ to ¾ cup cold water, as needed

Preheat oven to 500 degrees.

Place the flour on a board or in a wide mixing bowl and make a mound with a well in the center. Pour in 1½ cup water and begin to stir in the flour gradually, using your fingertips or a fork. Add more water as needed until all the flour is mixed in and you have a soft pliable dough that is just barely sticky.

Divide the dough in quarters. On a floured board, knead each portion of dough 8 or 10 times, working in a little flour if it is too sticky to be rolled. Clean the board of all dough scraps, reflour, and with a floured rolling pin roll the dough into a circle about 7 inches in diameter and a little less than ⅛-inch thick. Pierce the surface all over with the tines of a fork, being sure you pierce through the bottom of the dough. This will keep the matzah from buckling while it bakes.

If you have enough room in your oven or on your baking sheets, you can bake all the matzahs at once. In that case, roll out all the dough and do so. Otherwise, bake them one or two at a time, but do not roll out the remaining dough until you are ready to bake it.

Lift the pierced dough over a rolling pin and turn onto ungreased baking sheet or tiles. Bake for about 10 minutes. When the matzah curls, looks very dry, and shows some golden-brown patches and edges, turn and bake the second side for 5 to 8 minutes, or until it, too, is golden brown. Some very dark edges are desirable, for they add special flavor. Remove from the oven and cool on rack.

Yield: 4 seven-inch matzohs.

'Self Checkout' saves time at grocery store

tidbits
Keely Wygonik

At last, spring has sprung, just in time for the holidays. Aspargus is plentiful, and only 99 cents a pound in many area markets. Try the baby new potatoes. Jim Welch, owner of Fresh Approach market in Farmington said they're especially sweet this time of year.

Being the skeptical journalist that I am, I decided to find out for myself. He's right. I boiled my potatoes, peeled the skins, tossed in some chopped onions, a little parsley and butter. They were delicious.

HAS ANYONE tried the new "Self Checkout" system at the Farmer Jack Supermarket at 15 Mile and Orchard Lake roads? The first of its kind in Michigan, the system allows shoppers to "ring-up" their own purchases at one of six "Self Checkout" lanes and pay for their orders at one of two pay stations.

Designed as a shopper convenience that saves time, the "Self Checkout" lanes will always be open. The store also offers 12 conventional checkout lanes. A new automatic can and bottle return machine was also introduced. You feed the machine your empty beverage cans, glass and plastic bottles, take deposit recipt and use it as payment for groceries or redeem for cash at the checkout counter.

If you've tried the "Self Checkout" call me at 953-2105. Is it as easy as using your money card at the bank?

"Self Checkout" and the automatic can and bottle machine aren't the only new things at the West Bloomfield Farmer Jack. The store was expanded from 35,000 to approximately 60,000 square fee. It also includes a new self weighing device with instant pushbutton price label in the produce department; separate kosher meat, deli and food departments, gourmet meat counter, flower shop, pharmacy, post office and bakery. Fifty new jobs were created by the expansion. The store is at 6565 Orchard Lake Road.

If you're a fan of the CBS television show "Evening Shade," you'll get a kick out of its new cookbook. The book is comprised of recipes from the community of Evening Shade, Arkansas, Burt Reynolds, and the cast of "Evening Shade."

Cookbook proceeds will fund a $350,000 auditorium-gymnasium complex on the school campus in Evening Shade to replace a gym built in 1939. The old rock structure gym is thought to be one of only six such facilities still in use by the public schools in Arkansas.

Who knows, the book might even become a collector's item. There's a Chicken and Rice Deluxe recipe by Hillary Rodham Clinton, who is married to Democratic presidential candidate Bill Clinton, governor of Arkansas.

The cookbook may be purchased for $7 which includes shipping and handling, from the Evening Shade School Foundation, P.O. Box 36, Evening Shade, Arkansas 72532.

Here's Hilliary Clinton's recipe from the book:

CHICKEN AND RICE DELUXE

2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 cups cooked chicken cut into bite-sized pieces
1 (6 oz.) package wild rice or long grain and wild rice, cooked
½ cup mayonnaise
1 (6 oz.) can French style green beans, drained
1 (10¾ oz.) can cream of celery soup
½ cup sliced water chestnuts
¼ teaspoon salt
k Pepper to taste
juice of 1 lemon
1 cup grated cheddar cheese

Sautee green pepper and onion in 2 tablespoons butter. Combine all other ingredients and place in a greased 2-quart casserole dish. Bake at 350 degrees F., uncovered, for 25 to 30 minutes. Top with grated cheese and cook 5 more minutes or until cheese is melted.

Betty Crocker tip of the week: Canned hams are fully cooked when you buy them. They only need to be heated through in a coventional or microwave oven to 140 degree F. Follow instructions on the package. If ham isn't labeled, "fully cooked," roast it to an internal temperature of 160 degrees F.

Quayle tells area women to speak up, get involved

SHERRIE BUZBY/staff photograher

Marilyn Tucker Quayle, wife of Vice President Dan Quayle, spoke to more than 160 people — mainly women — Friday at a breakfast hosted by Jeanne Hildebrandt, general manager of the Livonia Mall.

By Susan Rosiek
staff writer

"She's no Hillary, she knows when to keep quiet," said Elayne Nichols just moments before Marilyn Tucker Quayle, wife of Vice President Dan Quayle, was welcomed into the Community Room at Livonia Mall. The room was filled mostly with supporters of the Bush-Quayle Administration.

Hillary is Hillary Clinton, the outspoken wife of Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton who is seeking the Democratic nomination for president.

Nichols, a member of the Livonia Republican Women's Club, was among the more than 160 people — mainly women — who attended a Friday breakfast hosted by Jeanne Hildebrandt, general manager of the Livonia Mall.

And Marilyn Quayle was anything but quiet on Friday.

In a 15-minute speech, she detailed her work with the Red Cross and international preparedeness relief activities, the Bush Administration's commitment to regulatory reform and the need for tort reform. She discussed the importance of early detection and prompt treatment of breast cancer and urged women to speak up and be active in the political arena.

WOMEN from Livonia, Plymouth, Canton Township, West Bloomfield, Detroit and others from Lansing, Jackson and Monroe gave Quayle an enthusiastic greeting.

Heads nodded in agreement and some clapped as she talked about the need to have a check on regulation that was hampering business and economic productivity, how the Congress was thwarting the President's efforts in that area and the need to reduce the cost and length of litigation.

Among a long list of civil justice reforms, Quayle, who holds a law degree from the University of Indiana School of Law, endorsed the concept of "loser pays" to discourage an end to frivolous lawsuits. Other reforms discussed include a cap on punitive damages and doing away with contingency fees.

"These are logical reforms that need to be addressed," said Quayle, adding that "the only group fighting reform are the trial lawyers who have a vested interest in the outcome."

QUAYLE ALSO urged women to perform monthly breast examinations and push for mammogram screening as part of health insurance packages. She emphasized the need for early detection and treatment of breast cancer.

Quayle's mother died in 1974 of breast cancer. While in Michigan Friday, Quayle was the keynote speaker at a breast cancer conference at Hutzel Hospital in Detroit.

Reaction to Quayle's speech was positive and generally enthusiastic.

of good information," said Jo Ballert, a retired Livonia school teacher.

"A compelling, well-researched message — she's incredibly committed to what she does," said Cynthia Hudgins, a aide to GOP Congressman Carl Pursell.

Livonia attorney Mary Fisher said that while Mrs. Quayle presented many valid points on the need for tort reform, "there are inequities" in the system that must be addressed.

Livonia Councilwoman Laura Toy called the talk "interesting" and said she liked what Quayle had to say about the need to curb regulation on business. Toy is co-owner of a floral business in Livonia.

FRIDAY'S AUDIENCE was a who's who of local women officeholders and potential candidates.

Among those attending the breakfast: Canton Township Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter; Carol Davis, a candidate for the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees; Northville State Rep. Georgina Goss; Livonia State Rep. Lyn Bankes; Farmington State Rep. Jan Dolan; Livonia City Clerk Joan McCotter; former Livonia Treasurer Elaine Tuttle; Mary O'Connell of Plymouth Township; Marcia Buhl of Plymouth Township; Peg Sippola of Livonia; and Evelyn Crane of the Indian Village Republican Women's Organization.

Czech up on Prague

City evokes image of pre-World War II days

By Brenda Fowler
New York Times Syndicate

For at least the past few decades Prague, Czechoslovakia, has inspired the sense that travelers were rediscovering an esthetic that Europe lost long ago.

The crooked lanes largely free of traffic, the pastel-colored houses with crumbling facades, the flowing street lamps that illuminate their little patch of street and no more, the scent of burning coal in the crisp night air — all evoked an image of what Central Europe must have been like in its pre-World War II days.

The knowledge that the city's charm had not been orchestrated by capitalist tourism officials or had succumbed to the mediocre tastes nurtured by 41 years of communism amplified the marvel.

But more than two years after the Czechs and Slovaks showed their Communist leaders the door and elected the dissident playwright Vaclav Havel to the presidency, tremendous changes are under way.

Not so obvious to short-term visitors is the economic misery of the country's 15 million people, who are struggling to manage fast-rising inflation with wages that have gone up little or not at all.

Immediately evident, however, is that Prague, and the whole country, is trying to spruce itself up, putting on fresh coats of paint and setting up touristic conveniences — such as newspaper stands with postcards and stamps — that make the city more welcoming.

New neon-lighted money-exchange shops stay open until midnight and the country's first McDonald's has just opened. In the eyes of many Czechosolvaks these are signs of progress in the race to join the West.

But to some Westerners it was the very shabbiness, the artful neglect, that made Prague so special.

Still, it will take a lot more than lumsily placed billboards and hot-dog stands to wreck the enticements of the city. One only has to look up and across the skyline of copper domes, Gothic towers and steeples flying tiny flags; or look down to the pink-and-gold cobbles that pave many streets like flowers in a garden.

EVENTS

The Prague Post, an English-language paper put out every Tuesday by a band of American expatriates, contains a complete listing on entertainments.

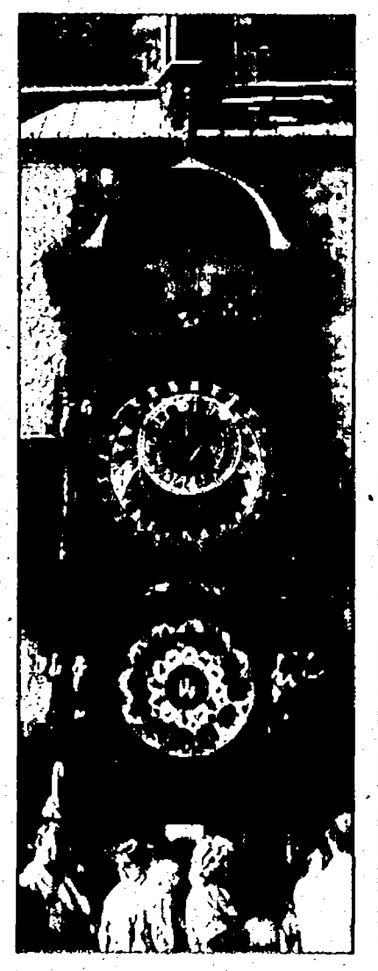
The city has a remarkable number of theaters, though Praguers complain that much of the drama and comedy has lost its satirical edge since democracy rolled in.

The Post places an asterisk next to the plays that it thinks are comprehensible for those who don't speak Czech or Slovak.

Accessible to everyone is Prague Spring, an international music festival from May 12 to June 1. The site for many of the concerts is the Rudolfinum, a 19th-century building that has been under renovation since 1988 and will be opened for the first time for the concert May 14 by the Czech Philharmonic Orchestra under the baton of Jiri Belohlavek.

The all-Czech program, with the 80-year-old Czech-born pianist Rudolf Firkusny, includes works by Dvorak and Leos Janacek.

Wallenstein (Valdstejn) Palace, a Baroque residence built at the foot of Prague Castle, is normally not open to the public, but its Knights' Room is the setting for several Prague Spring performances, including one by the Prague Madrigalists, a choir group conducted by [illegible]axa.



The clock in Prague's Old Town Square displays the 12 apostles, Jesus, a skeleton and a cockerel every hour.

Yet another impressive setting is the Estate Theater, formerly called the Tyl Theater, the place where Mozart directed when he was in Prague. Manfred Hemm will sing the role of Figaro in Mozart's opera "The Marriage of Figaro" in one performance only, on May 18.

Mozart's "Don Giovanni" will be performed May 24 and 26. Tickets for all concerts, between $6 and $55, can be ordered through most travel agencies or by sending a request by fax to 536040.

SIGHTSEEING

Prague is best understood on foot. One can spend days or weeks tracing the city's history through its neighborhoods — tracking down, for instance, the Cubist villas built under the influence of the Parisian movement in this century's teens (such as the one by the architect Josef Chochol at 30 Neklanova or his villa at 49 Libusina).

A traditional and more defined walk that takes not more than an hour starts on the Old Town (Stare Mesto) side of the 14th-century Charles Bridge, which during the day is crowded with young musicians and artists selling their crafts.

The walk goes through the Gothic tower at the other end and up Mostecka Street to Malostranska Namesti, the square with the Baroque St. Nicholas Church. Cutting across the square to the right, you then take Nerudova, an ancient street lined with Renaissance, Baroque and rococo houses that leads up to the castle.

The huge castle complex is filled with interesting museums and other diversions, including the newly renovated Belvedere, Prague's most important Renaissance building, at Chotkovy sady.

The Belvedere, a summer house that the Austrian Emperor Ferdinand I had built for his wife Maria, now houses traveling exhibitions. It is worth going inside no matter what's on.

The Belvedere is open Tuesday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Wednesday to 7:30 p.m.. Admission is 30 cents. For more information call 206780.

One of the city's most interesting parks is the Zahrada na valech (Garden on the Ramparts), accessible at the top of the stairs from Nerudova and open daily from dawn to dusk April to October.

The park was designed by the long-neglected Slovenian architect Joze Plecnik in the 1920s. The ramparts, which just skim the red-tile roofs and trees of Mals Strana below, offer fine views.

Coupon clippers cut vacation costs

Shopping Around

Despite hopeful words and wishful thinking, the recession is still very much with us.

Most travelers are hunting down hotel and restaurant bargains like never before, squeezing every cent of value from their vacation dollars.

But trying to find the best deals takes time and effort.

An increasing number of consumers are turning to hotel-discount programs — among them Entertainment, Concierge and Hotel Express.

Typically, these programs provide lists of hotels and motels throughout North America and at certain locations abroad. The hotels and motels provide rooms at half price, with certain restrictions.

Generally, the 50-percent discount is applied to the top-rack room rate, also known as the room's list price.

In some cases, member hotels will not reserve rooms at 50-percent off when the hotel is projected to be full, which for many properties means 80-percent occupied. Only a limited number of rooms is generally available at the 50-percent discount at any given time. And there are blackout dates just as there are for frequent-flyer airline discount programs.

Simply put, the chance of getting into a popular hotel for 50-percent off — even through a discount program — at peak travel time is slim. Flexibility is the key to getting the best value on these discount plans.

Entertainment Publications Inc., now the leader in the field, was the brainchild of Hughes and Sheila Potiker.

The Potikers were sitting in their kitchen in Detroit one evening in 1960 when they came up with the idea of a coupon book that would offer two-for-one values good for local recreational activities.

The first year in business their fledgling company sold 20,000 coupon books. This year the company projects selling 6.5 million books.

The coupons in Entertainment publications offer dining, shopping and leisure discounts as well as half-price hotel rooms.

There are now 157 editions of Entertainment coupon books covering various cities and regions of the world. The company operates 83 customer-service offices around the United States.

"We've seen a sharp increase in business this last year," said spokesman Robert McHenry. "Our 1991 revenues were $96.9 million, up 13 percent over the previous year."

McHenry attributes the rise to consumers who are looking for greater value during the recession. Make no mistake about it: Coupon clipping is big business.

Other books include "Travel North America at Half Price" for $28, which covers the United States, Canada and Mexico.

For information contact Entertainment Publications Inc., 2125 Butterfield Rd., Troy 48084 or call (800) 521-9640.

Another discount program is Concierge, a travel club based in Boulder, Colo. It was founded in 1987 and is described by owner Casey Condon as "a small club with a worldwide presence."

Condon, who for eight years was a stockbroker, took over the company in 1991. Now Concierge has about 3,000 members. For $69.95 a year, members have access to 330 U.S. hotels at 50-percent off and 40 overseas hotels at discounts from 35 percent to 45 percent.

For information contact Concierge, P.O. Box 2320, Boulder, Colo. 80306 or call (303) 444-2724.

Hotel Express, also founded in 1987, now has one million members. The club offers 50-percent discounts at more than 1,500 hotels throughout the United States, Mexico and Canada for a yearly membership fee of $49.95.

For information contact Hotel Express, 3052 El Cajon Blvd., San Diego, Calif. 92104 or call (619) 280-CLUB or (800) 634-6526.

Churchill loses for fourth time in non-leaguer

soccer

'We're making a lot of silly mistakes that young teams make.'

— Nick O'Shea Churchill coach

Livonia Churchill's girls soccer team on Friday night lost 4-0 at Troy High and fell to an uncharacteristic 1-4-1 overall.

The Chargers, who have reached the Class A state finals twice under coach Nick O'Shea, gave up two goals on corner kicks and one on a free kick. Despite the record, O'Shea remains optimistic.

"We're making a lot of silly mistakes that young teams make," O'Shea said. "We're giving up bad goals but we're not getting totally outplayed. Even in games we've lost we've outshot some teams. I see a lot of things we're doing well."

Aimee Cousino remains a bright spot for the Chargers as she scored their only goal against Troy.

After the Colts scored the first goal Cousino scored to force a 1-1 halftime score. She has three goals on the year.

"We've moved Aimee up as our target player and we're really relying on her to score," O'Shea said. "She's coming through, unfortunately, we're not keeping the other teams off the scoreboard."

Freshman Sarah Sabriklewicz, playing in her fourth game in net, suffered the loss for Churchill.

Plymouth Canton on Wednesday rallied from a 1-0 deficit to beat Churchill 3-2 in a Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division girls soccer game played Wednesday at Canton.

After a scoreless tie at halftime the Chargers took a 1-0 lead on Cousino's goal, assisted by Carol Jackson with 15 minutes gone in the second half.

Canton responded, however, with three straight goals by sophomore Mandy Salin to take a 3-1 lead. Churchill pulled to within 3-2 on Cousino's second goal, this time assisted by Dana Pososki, but the rally was too late.

Churchill's Melina Garrett played an inspired first half but Canton made the most of its opportunities in the second half, according to Chargers' coach Nick O'Shea.

Canton outshot Churchill 18-7, according to Chiefs' coach Don Smith.

"Garrett made good saves in the first half but they made good shots in the second half," O'Shea said. "We were under pressure a lot."

LIVONIA LADYWOOD 2, EDSEL FORD 0: Sue Wiedenbach and Val Adzima scored one goal each and goalkeeper Liz Gunn recorded a shutout as Livonia Ladywood blanked Dearborn Edsel Ford in a non-league game.

The Blazers are 3-1 overall. Ladywood held an 18-6 shots-on-goal advantage.

SALEM 2, FRANKLIN 0: Kris Goff and Caryn Tatterton scored goals for Plymouth Salem in Wednesday's shutout win over Livonia Franklin.

Jenny Emmett and Mesha Chicon shared the shutout in goal for the Rocks.

Salem defuses Rockets

The high school baseball season is little more than a week old, but one thing had already become quite clear.

Plymouth Salem and Westland John Glenn remain area heavyweights.

Salem defeated Lakes Division rival and nemesis Westland John Glenn 4-3 Thursday in eight innings at Glenn.

"This was a real big game for us," Salem coach John Gravlin said, adding Glenn has won five of the last seven.

The win kept the Rocks unbeaten at 2-0 while the Rockets, defending champs in the Western Lakes Activities Association, slipped to 0-2.

Salem won the game despite making three errors and leaving 13 runners on base. Glenn was outhit 9-6 and committed two errors.

The Rocks scored three runs in the second inning and led 3-0 until Glenn scored twice in the bottom of the sixth inning and tied it with a run in the seventh.

Scott Simmons was the winning pitcher, fanning 14 Clarenceville batters and allowing only three hits in going the distance.

The Trojans only run came in the seventh when they combined a walk and two singles and Jeff Moncman scored from third on a passed ball.

Clarenceville on Wednesday beat Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook 8-5 in a Metro game.

Tony Malinowski delivered an RBI single and struck out two batters with the bases loaded in the seventh inning to preserve the win.

The winning pitcher was junior Jeff Moncman, who allowed two earned runs, struck out two and walked four over six innings. Malinowski earned the save in one inning of relief.

Clarenceville scored two runs in the first inning and led 6-2 after two innings against Cranbrook's starting pitcher Steve Arval.

Moncman helped his own cause with a two-run single. Clarenceville's Carl Holston was 2-for-3 with a single and triple, scored three runs and drove in one run.

WAYNE 3, ROOSEVELT 2: Doug Leverenz's two-run single in the sixth inning led Wayne Memorial Friday To a one-run win over visiting Wyandotte Roosevelt.

The win improved Wayne to 2-1 overall and 2-0 in the Wolverine A League.

Leverenz's single drove home Eric Bates and Jay Overton, each of whom walked in the sixth inning. Wayne starting pitcher Scott Goleniak loaded the bases with walks in the seventh but Dave Hemry came on in relief to get a game-ending double play without allowing a run.

Goleniak went 6⅓ innings and allowed six hits, struck out five and walked three. He allowed one Roosevelt earned run.

Roosevelt took a 1-0 lead in the top of the fourth but the Zebras tied the score in the bottom of the inning on a sacrifice fly by Jay Overton. Jay Wetmore and Bates singled earlier in the fourth.

Extra chance leads to perfection

IT'S NOT OFTEN that we get a second chance, but that's exactly what happened to Jim Bennett.

It took place during the GDBA Tournament at Clover Lanes in Livonia.

Bennett rolled a 215 in the opener of singles competition. He then began the second game with eight strikes, then nine, 10, and finally 11.

Any bowler who's been in this situation can tell you how it feels to go after the final strike in a perfect game.

The tension was in the air, all eyes were on Jim Bennett as he released the ball. It went off target, only knocking down six pins.

Normally, it would go in the books as a 296 game, but wait. Several people noticed that there wasn't a full rack when Jim tossed his first ball.

Bennett was permitted to roll again, and you guessed it, he tossed a strike, completing the perfect game.

He led the Singles Handicap category with a strip of 215-300-190, plus a 111 handicap, giving him a total of 816 and first place.

● The State Farm Classic team is currently holding on to third place in the Classic Division. The team includes: captain Jim Behringer, Garden City; Ed Wisniewski, Livonia; Gary Newton, Livonia; Steve Zielinski, Westland; John Chadwick, Brownstown Township.

Garden City bowler Troy Stus holds third place in the Singles Actual category with a 732 series, one pin short of second place.

● Jeff Adkins of Redford rolled a 300 game and 844 series in the University Men's League at Country Lanes in Farmington Hills.

This is the highest series on record at Country Lanes.

HARRISON 8, CHURCHILL 6: Livonia Churchill managed six runs on only three hits Thursday and lost a WLAA Western Division game to visiting Farmington Hills Harrison.

The Chargers are 2-1 overall, 1-1 in the WLAA.

Churchill starter Marcus Sarnovsky, who lasted 3⅓ innings before being removed, surrendered a three-run home run to Harrison's Mike Pesci in the first inning.

Pesci also was reliable at the mound, throwing four innings of scoreless relief. Chris Krizanek pitched the first three innings for Harrison, which is 3-0 overall and 2-0 in the WLAA.

Churchill on Wednesday routed host Dearborn, 10-2, in a non-league game.

Keith Gulian earned the win on the mound for the Chargers, throwing a one-hitter over 5⅔ innings. Gulian struck out four and walked seven. Reliever Jason Carter pitched 1⅓ innings without allowing a hit.

Sean Scheuher was 3-for-4 with three RBI. Mark Rutherford also supplied power to the Churchill eight-hit attack, stroking two hits and delivering two runs.

Rockets move to 2-0

Westland John Glenn moved its boys track dual meet record to 2-0 Thursday with a 102-34 win over visiting Livonia Stevenson.

Stevenson is winless in three meets.

The Rockets swept the field events and relays and had two double winners.

Brandon won the long jump with a distance of 20-feet, 5½ inches and he also won the 100 meter dash in 11.3 seconds. Chris Vanderburgh took the high jump title, clearing 6-feet, 4 inches, and the 400-meter run in 55.79.

Mark Bennetts won the shot put with a throw of 41-feet, 5 inches and Carl Brooks took the discus with a 117-1 toss. Ken Costantino was victorious in the pole vault with a leap of 11-6.

The other individual winners for Glenn were Andrew Hodge, 110-meter hurdles, 15.85, and Rob Bloomfield, who finished the 800 run in 2:15.16.

Pat Brown, Buck, Brian Schultz and Ed Malloy won the 400 relay in 46.7. Randy Ellison, Buck, Schultz and Malloy took the 800 relay in 1:35.55; Ellison, Vanderburgh, Mark Coleman and Malloy won the 1,600 relay in 3:45.38; Bloomfield, Jeff Tapper, Bob Lulek and Coleman won the 3,200 relay in 9:04.79.

Matt Rowe led Stevenson's effort with wins in the 1,600 run (4:49.7) and 3,200 run (10:45.56). Other Stevenson winners included Cliff Michelson, 200 meters (25.07); and Don Mackenzie, 300 hurdles (42.82).

HARRISON 99, FRANKLIN 35: Livonia Franklin lost its dual meet season opener Thursday at Farmington Hills Harrison.

The Patriots' only wins came from Russ Keberly, long jump (19-5½), Scott Hand, high jump (6-0), and Cary Quatro, 800 run (2:13.5).

Women win

After struggling through games earlier last week, committing both mental and physical errors, Madonna University's softball team seemed to right itself Thursday at Concordia College with a 5-2 and 12-1 sweep.

The wins improved the Lady Crusaders' overall record to 13-10; they are 3-1 in the NAIA District 23.

But what pleased Madonna coach Dave Racer in particular was his team's play in the field. "We showed improvement, with no errors," Racer said.

Freshman Tracy Vachon was the winning pitcher in the opener, stopping Concordia on four hits and four walks, striking out two. Madonna trailed 2-1 after three innings, but pushed across four runs in the fourth — two scoring on Kristen Wasil's single — to nail down the victory.

Homers lift Madonna

Two home runs ignited Madonna University's baseball team in the first game Thursday. Dennis Hamilton handled the task himself in the second, as the Fighting Crusaders swept NAIA District 23 foe Concordia College 5-1 and 7-0 at Concordia.

Madonna's pitching was exceptional in both games. Lou McKaig ran his record to 3-1 with a four-hitter in the opener, walking three and striking out five. Brian Paciorkowski absorbed the loss for the Cardinals, lasting five innings and giving up all five runs.

Ernie Bowling got the Crusaders (18-5 overall, 5-1 in the district) started with a solo homer in the second, his fifth of the season. Jeff Kugelman triggered a three-run fourth by slugging a two-run homer; Steve Coffell's singled in the other run. Jeff Pendell's run-scoring single in the fifth capped Madonna's scoring.

Bowling and T.C. Raptis each had two hits for the Crusaders.

In the second game, Hamilton was nearly untouchable. He fired blanks at the Cardinals for 5⅔ innings before Brian Fenn touched him for a single, the only hit Hamilton surrendered. He walked five and struck out nine. Todd DeWolfe was the loser.

Kevin O'Connor led the offense with three hits and three RBI. Rich Roy added two hits and a pair of RBI, and Bill Terski had one hit and two RBI.

On Wednesday, Madonna could not repel Eastern Michigan in suffering a 10-9 defeat at EMU. A five-run fourth, with Bowling knocking in three with a double, put the Crusaders on top but they couldn't stay there.

More Detroit suburban homeowners

The SPRING Newspapers' circulation more than ~~doubles the~~ daily suburban circulation of either The Detroit News or Free Press.

In fact, SPRING's suburban circulation is greater than the two metro dailies' combined.

And that's not all.

According to the 1991 Belden study, SPRING reaches more of the affluent suburban shoppers who have more—and spend more.

▶ 182,800 more suburban homeowners than the daily News (88,500 more than the Free Press).

▶ 171,000 more suburban Do-It-Yourselfers than The News (89,400 more than the Free Press).

▶ 100,600 (and 52,800) more suburban linen and bedding buyers.

▶ 64,400 (and 31,000) more suburban buyers of major appliances.

Simply put, one order in SPRING delivers more.
Shouldn't you be advertising in SPRING more?
