Case against girlfriend unfolds

The case against Kylleen Hargrave-Thomas, charged with stabbing her boyfriend to death and setting fire to his Westland home to hide the crime, began to unfold during a preliminary examination in 21st District Court Friday.

Wednesday, July 22.

Former board member Mathew McCusker and board hopefuls John Albrecht and Kenneth Raupp plan to seek the post that Spisak quit Monday, amid lingering bitterness over the forced retirement of former Superin-tenent Dennis O'Neill.

Spisak resigned during the first board meeting held since new Superintendent Larry Thomas started his job July 1. The same board majority that pressured O'Neill to step down chose Thomas for the district's top post.

In resigning, Spisak suggested that the board appoint former board member Mathew McCusker as his successor.

Voters ousted McCusker last year, but he nearly returned in a June 8 election that saw him place third in an eightway race for two seats.

McCusker was out of town and could not be reached for comment last week, but Spisak said he's certain McCusker plans to seek the vacancy. One year remains on Spisak's four-year term.

Educator stands firm on moral principle

As the new principal at Lutheran Westland High School, Steven Schwecke takes a fundamental approach towards social issues, advocating that students abstain from poten-exercising caution while participating in them.

"Premarital sex is wrong and that's that. That takes care of some of the AIDS problem. Obviously the use of illegal drugs is another way of spreading. flects what I consider the proper way of tially dangerous activities rather than that, and that, too, is wrong," said Schwecke, who places himself at the stricter, or more conservative, end of the continuum of Lutheran philosophies.

New college board member

Philip Krauss of Westland has been elected to a three year term on the Adrian College Alumni Association board of directors effective July 1. A 1982 graduate of the college, he is a financial aid adviser at Eastern Michigan University. Krauss had previously served as secretary of the alumni board of directors.

Art contest winners

Four Wayne-Westland elementary students recently were awarded top honors for artwork in the International Childrens' Art Festival in Chongging, China. Contest winners were Kim Quinn, 10, of Taft-Galloway, Adam Salt, 10, Monroe, Jennifer Sanderson, 11, and Rachael Simpson, 9, both of Lincoln.

PLACES & FACES

Students from all over the world entered the contest. Agnes Wen of Northville translated the students' messages from English to Chinese and wrote explanations in Chinese characters on the original art work. The contest winners were recognized last month by the board of education.

Honor roll

Michael Pennanen was recenty named to the honor roll at Lawrence Technological University for maintaining a 3.5 grade point average. He is a business administration major.

Chevy scholarship

Suzanne Hill, who recently graduated from John Glenn High School, received a $10,000 scholarship from the Greater Detroit Chevrolet eo Dealers. She plans to attend the University of Michigan Dearborn in the fall. The scholarship is awarded to high school seniors whose parent(s) is employed by a metro area Chevrolet eo dealership.

The scholarship, awarded in four annual $2,500 payments, is basacd on a personal interview, essay contest and evaluation of grade point averages and ACT scores. Hill is the daughter of Deborah Searcy of Wayne and Kenneth Hill of Northville, Her stepfather, Bob Scarcy, is employed at Stewart Chevrolet in Woodhaven.

troit's Lutheran West, one of Lutheran Westland's four sisterachools.

He takes a hands on approach to high school administration: He taught science classes during his 21/2 year tenure as principal at Lutheran West, and also acted as head football coach during part of that

"That was interesting," he said of attempting to juggle duties as a principal and football coach. He does not intend to take a coaching position at Lutheran Westland, but says his involvement "will be a natural."

He cited a need for a change and the fact that Lutheran Westland is a sister school of Lutheran West as the two main factors in his decision to accept his new post.

A Dearborn resident, Schwecke said he is a strong believer in the role of Christian schools in influencing students' lifestyles.

"Public schools work primarily on preparing students intellectually and physically for the future," he said. "We certainly work with the intellectual and physical development, but we emphasize spiritual development as well. It goes a step further than the public school."

An unambiguous interpretation of the Bible in such issues as abortion, and a strong adherence to discipline are among Schwecke's lead. ership philosophies.

Regarding a hypothetical in-class. abortion discussion, he says: "I think the direction that would be taken would be a Christian perspective. For some people, if it feels, right, do it. It's more of a me-me attitude.

"A Christian perspective is; What does the bible say about abortion?' Obviously, the bible says abortion is not a woman's choice. There is more involved at the conception - a human being is being formed, and abortion would be considered murder," he said.

Regarding discipline, Schwecke advocates forgiveness, but not without punishment.

"Discipline, I think, is very important. Rules, which very few people like, especially high school students, are set to enhance the learning environment," he commented.

"Sometimes students get the idea that because this is a Christian school, if they make a mistake you are supposed to forgive the person, which is true. . . But students who break the rules have to bear the consequences," he added.

Heading the classes: After a teaching career, Steven Schwecke is bringing a no-nonsense attitude to his new position as Lutheran High School Westland principal.

Hearing

Firefighter Martin Reddy testified that smoke had filled Bernal's bedroom and that visibility was impossible when he entered the room about 7:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 11. After a window was opened and the smoke had cleared somewhat, Reddy found Bernal's body lying face down on his bed. Reddy pulled him from the room into a hallway, where authorities first noticed the stab wound to Bernal's chest.

Westland police have said they believe Hargrave-Thomas killed Bernal and then set his house ablaze in an attempt to cover up the murder. But her attorney, Rene Albert Cooper, has said that the defendant "maintains very strongly I 'I looked out my kitchen window, and I saw that the bedroom was ablaze, afire.'

> Elizabeth Kelly neighbor.

her innocence in this case."

Westland fire marshal Robert Perry testified Friday that when authorities examined Bernal's body on the scene, "There was a considerable amount of blackness, charring and body damage done by the fire."

The fire was limited to the bedroom - and more specifically to the bed and the area immediately surrounding it, Perry said.

Perry said the knife that was apparently used to kill Bernal was found on the floor, near the bed.

On Friday, Hargrave-Thomas, wearing a white dress with black polka-dots, showed little emotion as she came into the courtroom. Family members and friends of both Hargrave-Thomas and Bernal watched the hearing.

Bernal's father, Manuel, took the stand briefly Friday, but only to testify that he had identified his son's body.

Westland police arrested Hargrave-Thomas on the morning of June 29, a Monday, as she was driving from her Westland residence to work in Livonia. During an arraignment that afternoon, she stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered on her behalf.

If tried and convicted, she could face life in prison without parole for first-degree murder and a maximum of 20 years for arson.

Police said she and Bernal had been romantically involved about six months prior to his death.

Skating offers thrills, chills

By Darrell Clem Staff Writer

Brirri! It's an icy summer in Westland.

But the summer chill can't be blamed on a volcanic eruption, a bizarre Arctic blast or any other environmental quirk or crisis.

And no, don't build a fire or pull a winter coat out of the closet.

Chill out. The wintry air can simply be blamed on a skating program at the Westland Sports Arena that has attacted participants not only from Westland, but from such cities as Livonia, Northville, Novi, Belleville, Canton Township, Redford Township and even as far away as Toledo.

Hundreds of figure skaters are taking to the ice for the summer program that has drawn participants ranging in age from 3 years old to 71.

"We've got people of all ages who come here to skate," said Tammy — a Hombirg, arena manager and figure said.

We've got people of all ages who come here to skate.'

skating director. "They come from all over."

The skaters come to the Westland Sports Arena, 6210 N. Wildwood near Ford Road, to practice their skating techniques or to learn from instructors that teach one-onone and also in group sessions.

Apparently many people like to feel a little touch of the cold during the summer months. And jumping into a swimming pool isn't the only alternative.

The skating program has shown tremendous promise since it was started last year, climbing in enrollment from 421 participants to 525—a 104 person increase, Hombirg

"Most of the skaters take private lessons from private instructors," she said.

Participants signed up for figureskating in March, though anyone who's still interested should call the arena at 729-4560.

The figure skating occurs from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Monday through Thursday, and from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on Friday.

And if you're not necessarily trying to improve your figure-skating technique, but merely want to go for a few spins — and perhaps a few falls — on the ice, there's another program.

Skating for the general public is available from 4 to 5:45 p.m. Fridays and from 1 to 2:45 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. Rates are $2.25 for students and $2.50 for adults. Skate rentals are $1.50.

Hombirg said that anyone wanting more information about the skating programs should telephone the arena.

Bare branches: Mayor Robert Thomas, standing on a sidewalk, points to the bare branches of a tree that Detroit Edison "butchered" near Roselawn and Lonnie streets in Westland's north end. The loss of greenery has the mayor seeing red.

Mayor tells Edison to leave trees alone

By DARRELL CLEM

An angry Mayor Robert Thomas summoned Westland police to a north-end neighborhood Friday to stop Detroit Edison from frimming trees away from power lines.

Thomas blasted the Edison crews and said, "They're just butchering the trees. They're not using any discretion at all."

The mayor became highly upset when he saw that Edison crews had drastically trimmed 50 to 100 trees on several streets. including Lonnie and Roselawn, in a neighborhood near the intersection of Merriman Road and Ann Arbor-Trail.

Thomas, accompanied by police and officials of the building and the public services departments, went to the neighborhood after the mayor's office received a flurry of telephone calls from residents upset about the trees being cut.

"We're stopping them from working," he said.

Thomas conceded that Edison crews have the authority to trim trees away from power lines, but he labeled their actions Friday as excessive.

"They've just gone way overhuard," he said. "There's hardly any green left at all on some of these trees. There are some maple trees that are just Vshaped now. Some of these residents are really upset."

Thomas said his administra-

Although the calls Friday came mostly from residents of Lonnie and Roselawn, Thomas said trees on several other streets also had been trimmed excessively.

Edison crews had virtually completed their work Friday by the time the mayor's office received the citizen complaints and police arrived on the scene. said Westland police Sgt. Larry

Work crews were about to begin their clean-up about the time police arrived, Cole said.

The charge applies to all activities - from cheerleading to football to hockey - in which academic credit is not earned.

The charge could be lower than the tentative $100 per activity approved Wednesday if the cost to operate a program is less,

Westland police will have another weapon to fight crime - and city firefighters another tool for emergencies - with a new $517,000 computer system.

Sheriff's battle lines drawn

Charges fly as Ficano takes on Kelley, department unions

By WAYNE PEAL STAFF WRITER

Down and dirty, with charges and countercharges flying, the Wayne County Sheriff's primary is a throwback to the county's bare knuckles political past.

But it's also about the future.

The central figure is incumbent Robert Ficano. The central issue: whether the 39-year-old Livonia resident is the last link to the Wayne County's crony driven past - as foes charge -- or whether he's the forward looking leader he claims to be.

Ficano faces two candidates, most notably county commissioner Kevin Kelley, in an Aug. 4 Democratic primary considered tantamount to election.

The race, though, is less against Kelley than against his own depart-

Though he's shed his image as Wayne County's "boy sheriff," Ficano has never been able to convince police professionals he's one of their own.

Chiefs of police have scoffed at Ficano's previous post - deputy county clerk - and the strong hand ' of county clerk James Killeen in his appointment. Citing Ficano's 1986 run for county executive; they also question his long term committment to law enforcement.

But Ficano, a licensed attorney, said the dispute really centers on his broader view of police protec-

"If you ask officers what it. means, it's arresting people and locking them up," Ficano said. "But there's more to it than that."

No one is calling Ficano camerashy. The sheriff has promoted highly-publicized efforts to fight drugs, reduce county ear jackings and tackle drunken driving.

Frequent appearances on local television news programs have made smooth, telegenic Ficano a familiar face to metro residents.

But it has also left Ficano vulnerable the the charge he's more concerned about public relations than police policy.

Breaking from precedent, both major department unions have backed Kelley.

"In this job, you have to balance politics with police work, we know this," said Don Cox, president of Deputies Local 502, "But with Bob Ficano, every year 'you' get an increasing emphasis on politics."

Kelly's campaign has picked up that message. In hard-hitting radio spot, an actor performing an unflattering Ficano impersonation raves that he's just crazy about attending a parade. The implication

It's not the only example of mud-

Racial, sexual and union politics are also at issue. And it isn't pretty.

Ficano, for instance, is promoting the department's relatively-new 50/ 50 black-and-white mix as a major accomplishment.

"This is about the old boy network reasserting itself," Ficano-

Bunk, says Cox, who argues that oral testing and training fees deemed as key elements in keeping women and minorities out of the department - were waived at the union's urging not Ficano's.

Kelley's literature, meanwhile, charges Ficano with continuing to hand out key assignments to white, male officers.

Ficano counters, however, that choice Metro Airport posts - almost entirely filled by whites ~ are the result of collective bargaining, not sheriff's assignment.

As far as female appointments, Ficano charges the union's opposition the newly appointed chief of staff Nancy Mouradian is based on her sex, not qualifications.

"When we had a similarly qualified man there a few years ago, there was no protest," Ficano said.

Cox, however, says he told former chief of staff Dale Jurcisin as long as two years ago "we would be coming after his job".

Mouradian, like Ficano, has never been a police officer, a major issue for the deputies union. "We have women in our own department well qualified for that job," Cox said. "Why appoint his former press secretary?

A jail deputy's death in a struggle with an armed inmate has also been a sore point between the sheriff and union death could be avoided if deputies had been equipped with proper walkie-talkies, blaming Ficano for holding up the equipment's order.

Ficano's though has produced paperwork indicating he had already authorized the new radios. Lately, Ficano has taken the offensive.

The real reason department unions are after him, he charges, is that he's disciplined three union ac tivists - one for drug use, two for driving accidents, including one in which a woman was killed by a drunken department member, ans other in which a woman was paralyzed after being struck by art AWOL department member.

Pain in the wrist, shoulder and knee is treated with arbinflammatory drugs, injections, and when applicable, with splints. Why not treat arthrics of the back the same way? There are two reasons why the same treatment does not apply. First, the back is different. The shoulder, wrist, and knee are meant to move you, but the joints of the back are designed to hold you up. Thus the back points have more bone, different cardiage, and less joint space than the joints in kont. The characal and structural nature of the back often renders joint medications ineffective. Second, much of back pain designated "arthritis" really presents the x-ray findings of aging. No medicine can reverse such change. Furthermore, pain tabeled as the result of arthritis often comes from muscle and figurent strain, conditions the arthritishminatory drugs do not handle well.

Specific arthritis of the back exists and includes anhylosing spondyfits, osteoporosis, and infectious arthritis. However, these entities have characteristics that allow physicians to differentiate them from

Treatment for most back pain consists of heat, judicious use of rest and activity, and reassurance that you are not hicing a cancer or developing a coppoling condition. Resolution of such pain depends more on time and nature than medication.

Funeral director Kevin McCabe believes death should be as openly discussed as any other family rite of bassage,

"Death and grieving is a natural process," said McCabe, chief execulive officer of McCabe Funeral Home, Inc., Farmington Hills. "What a sad person this must be if nobody sheds a tear."

Just as we expect children to come to terms with other family events, they need to be part of the grief process when a family member dies, he said. Children must look beyond themselves and know how hadly their parents and friends would feel if anything happened to them. "Explaining death to children is what people need to know about," McCabe said.

But death and suicide are often considered touchy subjects.

McCabe would like to talk to Farmington students annually tabout suicide and death but says he's been denied. His talk would deal with grieving process, which is a similar process for the loss of a beloved pet or family member, he comprehension, McCabe said.

Judy White, Farmington Public Schools assistant superintendent, said the district chose to leave the death and dying discussion out of the curriculum because it's tied to family religious beliefs.

"We also believe it is the family's responsibility." White said, adding that individual needs, however, are handled by counselors.

Yet families often don't know how to explain death or how to have children participate in family sorrow. They delay talking about death or speak beyond a child's level of Survivors can't forget, but they can cope, McCabe said.

Kevin McCabe is president of the Michigan Funeral Directors Association's District 6. The district represents 90 funeral homes in Oakland, Macomb and St. Clair Counties.

McCabe is a past president of the Kiwanis Club in Farmington Hills North and a member of the building and grounds committee of the Community Center Farmington/Farmington Hills. He also founded the St. Fabian Bereavement Group. He and his wife, Sandy, live in Farmington Hills.

can't deny," Ficano said.

· Cox acknowledges the department, fought each suspension brought by the sheriff, but says that was common union practice.

"We want to see our people receive due process, but we don't stand for any dirty officers," he Ficano has also taken the union and Kelley to task for criticizing his record on drug seizures and felony warrant enforcement.

Though Kelley's literature claims drug seizures have fallen in each of the past three years. Ficano said that isn't the case.

"Seizures haven't fallen, forfeitures have," he said "That's because drug dealers are getting smarter, they're not putting everything in their own names anymore

As for the charge he's letting 5,900 felons roam free, Ficano said more than 5,000 of Wayne County's outstanding felons stem from Detroit cases, not those assigned to. the sheriff's department.

By Ficano's figuring, there were 4,000 outstanding warrants when he took office, compared with 900 to-

Ficano is pointing far less atten. tion to the fact that he's perhaps the only sheriff in the U.S. to lose authority over his own jail.

In a 1989 ruling, chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman ordered jail control over to a newly created director of jail operations -- who reports to both the sheriff and Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, temporarily ending a long-running dispute between Ficano and McNamara over the jail budget.

Recently, however, jail monitor Vincent Nathan took control over jail food service away from the executive's office. Nathan is monitoring jail operations under a 1971 inmate lawsuit.

Though he has detractors, including Kaufman who was lessthan-complimentary in the jail operations ruling, Ficano is not without supporters.

While not publically endorsing any candidate, Canton Public Safety director John Santomauro gave Ficano high marks for helping settle a dispute about sheriff's road patrol

In addition to his UAW support, Ficano also has the backing of leaders of five county Democrtic party organizations, including Westland/ Livoinia area chairman Richard McKnight and Dearborn Heights/ Redford-area chairman Daniel Paletko or 17 years' experience," he said.

On the county commission, Kel ley generally supported McNamara, though his low key style earned respect from urban as well as subur ban peers.

The son of Detroit councilman "Black Jack" Kelley, the Redford resident was hailed as one of the commission's new generation when he took office.

That group, including David Cavanagh, son of former Detroit mayor Jerome Cavanagh, and Susan Hubbard, granddaughter of former Detroit mayor Orville Hubbard, was expected to turn around the often fractious county commission. Cavanagh, though, is leaving to run for clerk, while Hubbard faces a tough re-election battle.

Though Kelley's name has surfaced in connection with other offices, most notably the state Legisladure, he said the sheriff's department is where he wants to be.

And deputies union leaders would like to put him there.

The airport's summer parking special reduces close-in deck parking from the normal $9 per day rate to $6 per day -- just one dollar more than the airport's green (long-term) parking lot rate. In addition, the

We're thinking fall.

We know. We know. You're not ready to begin thinking about carving pumpkins and raking leaves, and trips to the cider mill. It's still summer for heaven's sake.

Actually, we're only thinking about fall for one reason—fashion.

As you read this, we've begun plans for our annual fall fashion section, the one that arrives with your hometown newspaper every August (on the 27th this year) and is filled with exciting features and photos of the latest designs, fabrics and colors.

Our fall fashion section will show up just about the time your summer togs are beginning to look a little wilted and you're ready to really examine what you have in your closet for the fall season.

We'll give you some idea of what's out there and where you can find it. We'll feature shoes, accessories, ensembles, everything you'll need to refurbish or replace what you have.

And, if you are in the fashion business or one closely related to it, don't miss this great opportunity to place an advertisment in Fall Fashion.

Chances are you'll hear from us soon—or give us a call us when you have a moment. Monday, August 3, to is the last day to reserve your space and that'll be here before you know it. Like fall. (Drat!)

Outlawing panhandlers must be made indelible

eading for the suburbs from the .Freedom Festival fireworks, a 3 man offered to wipe off our windshield for a tip.

We were standing in traffic between Fort and Lafavette, waiting for our turn to get onto the Lodge, when he and a companion approached us.

Over my husband's objections, I handed him a $1 bill out the window and told him it wasn't necessary to wash the window.

'I want to do the work," the man protested, as the traffic opened up and we inched away. As I looked back through the rear window, I saw him pick up a bottle. I fervently hoped it was filled with water for his window washing, or with something for his thirst - something that wasn't alcoholic.

My husband reminded me of the signs we saw posted in certain areas of downtown Seattle on a recent visit requesting that people not give money to panhandlers because it most often was used to buy alcohol and drugs.

As if they had overheard us, last week the city of Detroit began a campaign with the same theme.

The Central Business District Association, with the support of police and the mayor's office, is distributing fliers that discourage gifts to beggars.

Business owners say panhandlers create a nuisance and make their cus tomers feel uncomfortable and/or scared.

The fliers say beggars can meet their basic needs through soup kitchens. homeless shelters and social service programs. They explain that the money most often goes to buy alcohol and illegal drugs, which in the long run hurts rather than helps them.

Those who run the shelters say that's not completely true. There are other needs - eigarettes, a can of pop. a candy bar.

But statistically, the majority of panhandlers have a substance abuse. problem.

This new campaign gives us written permission to say no to panhandlers. Somehow that makes us more comfortable. The panhandlers know we know. the rules. So we have less guilt. That's important on several counts:

• Detroit's business community stands on the brink. A new office tower, One Detroit Center, and a new hotel, The Atheneum, risen from a former warehouse on the edge of Greektown, are important steps toward sparking a Detroit comeback.

So is the possibility of the pizza king, Mike Ilitch, who gives to Detroit. buying the Tigers from the pizza king, Tom Monaghan, who takes from De-Panhandlers who use the money to feed alcohol and/or drug dependencies may slide closer to their personal bottoms without it and seek help at substance abuse treatment centers.

• As more people seek treatment, more shelter services can be freed up for those who are homeless and jobless for reasons other than their chemical dependencies.

But the written permission to say no must be more indelible than a flier.

The Central Business District should have permanent signs installed in various locations throughout the city, such as we saw in Seattle.

Although area residents - including the panhandlers — are now aware, any one who comes to the city for business or pleasure needs to know that information.

It's important for Detroit and for our suburbs, which are dependent on Detroit's viability, that this campaign isn't fly-by-night.

Huck Finn, a symbol for boys, can humor adults

o now Huckleberry Finn is black. That's what the so-called scholars say. Mark Twain met some 10-year-old black kid for about 15 minutes and modeled old Huck after

This isn't a joke. Honest. It was in the New York Times. And they're no folks to trifle with.

The upshot here is that Mark Twain wasn't a racist as new age fat heads had previously thought. Now that we've discovered that Huck was really black, according to his speech patterns, it's somehow OK for kids to read the book in school.

Unfortunately, the New York Times story didn't mention Jim, a character. in the book who was black. The trouble here was that he wasn't called black or Afro-American. He was called what people in the South called black people in the 19th century. And we all know _ That word made "Huckleberry Finn" a racist book. But now that old Huck was black, it's all OK.

It's beyond sense. And all it really goes to show is that some English professor can prove anything for any reason given enough of a doctoral thesis with which to make an idiot of him or herself.

The point of "Huckleberry Finn" was that 10- to 15-year-old boys are funny creatures. They're full of childhood superstitions, willing to try anything and pretty much oblivious to most social conventions. They would rather fish, kill frogs or get wet in any body of water that comes their way than do any kind of work.

And that is probably at the core of any controversy over Huck Finn. The book is basically a boy's communist manifesto. It's a blueprint for avoiding social responsibility. And that bugs

High MEAP scores and a trip to the Harvard School of Business envisioned by most parents is a dreaded vision for a kid infected by Huck Finn and who is dreaming of drifting down the Rouge River with some socially unacceptable companion.

And any book that preaches such nonsense is certainly subversive, and by the way it uses "that word" for black people.

The thing here is that boys are pretty magical, no matter what race. They help us see the world fresh as a place of new wonders and adventure unencumbered by old attitudes either racial or scientific. They bring humor to our dour adult ways.

Wouldn't most of us adults like to see the world that way every day? I sure would.

By James F. Clarity New York Times Syndicate

Occasionally in recent years, stately Dublin, in trying to retain its Georgian-Victorian respectability while attracting new summer visitors, has risked acquiring the reputation of a James Joyce theme park.

The life-sized 1990 bronze statue of Joyce on North Earl Street where it intersects with O'Connell Street looks toward the General Post Office, the focus of the 1916 Easter Rising.

Higher up O'Connell Street, out in the center mall, is the 1988 statue of Anna Livia Plurabelle, a slender woman sitting in a running stream of water. Joyce honored her in "Finnegan's Wake" as the spirit of life, the spirit of the River Liffey.

Of course Joyce is integral now to the soul of the city, and Joyce adepts who finished observing Bloom's Day on June 16 will be back next year retracing the events in "Ulysses."

But this year in Dublin it is possible to sample both Dublins, Joyce's and Trinity College's, as they intersect everywhere and cross other literary and historical lines.

Events

The quatercentenary events at Trinity, which Joyce called "duil stone set in the ring of the city's ignorance," are anything but dull. In the Old Library's stunning, high, arched Long Room, the Book of Kells' adorned New Testament texts are better lighted and explicated than they were until a few months ago.

In the same building is the Treasures of the Mind exhibit, running to Dec. 31, with the times and life and works of the people Trinity is most proud of, including Wolfe Tone, the revolutionary; Edmund Burke, the great talker; and such literati as Oscar Wilde,

There is no Joyce, as he didn't attend; but, perhaps curiously, scant mention of Oliver St. John Gogarty, who did graduate, and who was a poet, essayist, bicycle racer, champion swimmer, surgeon and model for Buck Mulligan in "Ulysses."

There is in the nearby Arts building a film, "The Dublin Experience," a colorful 40-minute story of how Dublin started as a Viking settlement 1,000 years ago. The film and the Old Library exhibits cost $8.40, the library alone $4.20.

Making the most of going solo

By Everett Potter Special Writer'

Going solo is often, the most difficult — and expensive way to travel. For the privilege of having a single cabin, most solo travelers are charged anywhere from 150 percent to 300 percent of a cruise line's per-person double-oc-cupancy rate.

And hotels aren't much better when it comes to the high rates they charge singles.

"The travel industry is Neanderthal when it comes to solo travelers," said Jane Doerfer, publisher of "Going Solo," a newsletter devoted to solo travel.

Doerfer scours the globe looking for hotels and vacations that are hospitable to adventurers going it alone.

"I call it 'solo' travel rather than 'single' because many of my readers are married," she said. "If you say 'single,' people automatically assume you're looking for romance and, frankly, that couldn't be further from the truth."

Recent articles in "Going Solo" have dealt with affordable alternatives in London and Paris, life at a Club Med village, group bicycling trips or a new trend — taking a volunteer vacation to help clean up the environment or work with innercity youths.

Each issue features a report written by a reader on a topic such as seeing Prague in winter, traveling by train through Australia or visiting the Hawailan island of Kauai.

where you're likely to meet people."

Doerfer notes that dinnertime is when most people enjoy companionship.

For that she prefers English country-house hotels where guests can dine together at a communal table. Or in the States, considering the ongoing rage for grilled food Doerfer encourages people to seek out restaurants with communal asseating around the grill.

"But when those options aren't available and I'm dining alone, my technique is to call up the restaurant and say, 'I understand you have good food. I'll be eating dinner alone tonight. What's the best time to come?"

"You'd be amazed at how flattered they are and how good the service can be. And I always tip for two, 20 percent in most cases."

Doerfer has several important tips for would be solo travelers.

"You should condition yourself to, a point where you realize you're going to feel lonely at some point on the trip. It's baloney to pretend oth, erwise. It's also important to travel with some sort of agenda because it helps to focus the day."

When it comes to dealing with hotels, she encourages solo travelers to negotiate for their hotel room.

"We're growing by leaps and bounds," Armstrong said. "I think we are moving in response to needs identified in the area. We decided to pilot (weekend college) here. It's been in the works for awhile."

Saturday classes have been successful, she noted.

Weekend college will begin Sept. 4770.

Associate degrees are offered in 4, one week after the traditional fall schedule begins. Classes will run 15 weeks - not 16 - but courses will run 55 minutes instead of 50 to make up the difference.

"We've advertised for additional part-time staff," Armstrong said. "It's not for everyone but some professionals might prefer to teach on the weekend.

"We're piloting this to see how successful it will be. It will take time to evolve into a full blown program. We'll expand as necessary,'

ust learned how to eat.

Losing weight was the hardest thing I've ever done. I tried everything...except eating right!

All my life I've been struggling to keep my weight down. I'd try the latest fad diet. Lose weight. Then put the pounds right back on.

Then I found Weight Watchers:

At Weight Watchers, I began to feel in control of my body. Hearned that there are no forbidden foods -- just forbidden amounts of food. Every day, I was feeling more comfortable with me. And I found something I thought I had lost a long time ago. My self-respect.

So call Weight Watchers and give it a try. They did for me at 35 what nobody else could do my whole life. They taught me how to eat.

Any way you spell it tomatoes are versatile

You say tomato and I say tomatoe. Vice President Dan Quayle says tomato, but would probably spell tomatoe. However you say it or spell it, the tomato is coming into season in many household gardens. There are about as many ways to cook this versatile fruit as there are fruits on the vine.

The tomato, also dubbed as a "love apple" has long been known to have aphrodisiac properties. That's probably one of the reasons it is a garden fa-

Those of us accustomed to having the highest court in the land pronounce upon paramount issues of our national life will not be surprised to learn that as long ago as 1893 the justices resoundingly declared the tomato a vegetable, not a fruit. Either way, it ranks with lemons as a perennial favorite for a true culinary uplift.

When using fresh tomatoes in cooking, their juiciness is seldom an asset. To avoid watery results when cooking with tomatoes, professionals rely on removing as much of the juice and seeds as possible before cooking. This is easily accomplished by removing the stem, then holding your palm upside down over a bowl, squeeze the tomato to eject excess juice and seeds.

Hothouse tomatoes

In many sections of the country, fresh field growntomatoes are not available during colder months, being supplanted by hydroponic or hothouse grown varieties.

Momma likened hothouse tomatoes to rubbery tennis balls and instead, opted for a trip to an Italian market in search for a more meaty, pear shaped tomato dubbed an Italian tomato, which she claims is sweeter and more tender than the typical American tomatoes. I'm sure you'll agree, however, that a fresh picked tomato right from the garden rivals anything for versatility and tastiness.

Tomatoes used to be reserved as a garnish for salads. Occasionally they might end up sliced on a layer of cold cuts and sandwiched between mustard slathered bread. The old standby was to spend a rainy day "putting up' or home canning everything from tomato sauce to tomato relish.

Good cooks know that a fresh picked garden toma to has the ability to end up on everything from a platter sprinkled with fresh basil and drizzled with a vinaigrette or cored and popped under a broiler after. being sprinkled with dill and a little Parmesan cheese. Trendy cooks appreciate the virtues of the tomato in chunky salsas, fajitas and in delicate hot or chilled soups dolloped with sour cream and sprinkled with chives.

Green tomatoes:

Adventuresome cooks can appreciate even the green tomato, realizing that even in its immature state, the green tomato can be coated with seasoned breadcrumbs and panfried or even chopped and made into a green tomato salsa with flavors all their

There are a few suggestions on handling and storing tomatoes that are little known but helpful. Ripe tomatoes last only 5 to 7 days. For optimum results, they should be stored in the crisper section of the refrigerator, uncovered. Contrary to popular belief, green tomatoes ripened on a sunny windowsill tend to lack the flavor and definitely the nutritive value of a tomato picked right from the vine.

Immature and smaller green tomatoes, by the way, have a harder time ripening than their full-figured relatives. Tomatoes as a whole do not lend well to freezing but I have successfully frozen skinned and seeded chunks for wintertime use in sauces and sal-

Skinning tomatoes

Garden fresh tomatoes should have a tender skin unlike their hothouse counterparts. Cooks who use tomatoes as a whole in cooking will appreciate a skinned tomato lest they find chunks of skin floating among their chili or soup. Skinning a tomato is relatively easy. The core can be removed and the tomato skewered onto a long handled fork and then immersed for about a minute in rapidly boiling water. Another quick favorite method for skinning calls for charring the tomato skin with a propane torch (doesn't every kitchen have one?) and peeling lightly to remove the skin. Either method is acceptable.

Remember, it's not how you spell it, it's how you make it. And in case Dan Quayle is reading, the "e" is added only when pluralized.

Cheap but classy cuisine

Little touches add elegance

Prepare elegant, wholesome meals without spending a fortune. Caterer Nancy Steinbrecher offers tips for stretching the gourmet food dollar.

By Geri Rinschler Special Writer

Cooking gourmet food doesn't have to be expensive. Stretching the "gourmet" food dollar has been overlooked until recently in Jacques Pepin's

Pepin's 11th published cookbook, (William Morrow and Company, June 1992, $22) is a collection of recipes organized into seasonal menus that employ affordable ingredients. When asked why he decided to concentrate on cooking economically, Pepin pointed out that cooking well, in fact, means cooking economically.

"As I travel around the country and work with young chefs, I am always most impressed with those who produce well-cooked food with speed, organization and economy than those who created complicated 'food art' at the expense of thrift."

Caterers like Nancy Steinbrecher of Troy, and chefs who prepare wholesome, elegant meals with style are constantly stretching the gourmet dollar.

"A dinner designed around a whole roasted chicken seasoned with herbs and served with rousted potatoes and vegetables can be served elegantly and only cost you about $6," said Steinbrecher who has been catering for over five years. Cooking for a large family with seven children who now range in age from 15 to 32 gave her the expertise to go on and prepare dinner parties

"After you've cooked for 50 people on a regular basis as I have done for family get-togethers, it's easy to serve dinner to 100, 200 or more. The key is organization. The number of people you cook for certainly affects the cost, the savings come when you shop in quantity."

Steinbrecher uses a set of 5- by 8inch cards to organize and plan every catering event. She recommends establishing a budget, and then deciding whether the party is to be a formal, sitdown dinner, or casual buffet.

No matter the style of the event, Steinbrecher usually offers chicken or beef entrees and avoids the higher priced items such as seafood. "When serving beef, you can stretch your dollar even further by providing many side dish options, then balance the menu with color and texture to add elegance," she said.

For instance, serve an unusual salad of mixed greens, water chestnuts, mandarin oranges and walnuts. When the budget permits, toss in a few mini corn on the cobs to add yet another dimension. Instead of buying expensive feta cheese, toss one to two tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese into a salad.

"Your party will surely be a success if you add an elegant dessert at the end of the meal," said Steinbrecher because dessert is usually important to most guests. One of her favorite desserts is a chocolate raspberry torte. "It's rich, can be made ahead, and is affordable."

To make the torte she splits a nineinch chocolate layer cake into six layers, tills the layers with raspberries which have been thickened with jam and covers it with whipped cream. When sliced, the torte will serve 15 people.

Just before serving, she dresses the torte with extra raspberry sauce and chocolate shavings or chocolate sprinkles. "Presentation of each dish is just as important in serving the meal as the organization is in planning the event." she said

Chef Peter Kotsogiannis has been serving customers gourmet food on shoestring budget for the past nine years at Peter's K, a small unadorned coffee shop at 25920 Greenfield in Oak Park. His menu tells it all, dinner selections range in price from $8.95 to $11.95. The restaurant is open 6 a,m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. He strives to serve fresh, classic cuisine such as Veal Picante, Steak au Poivre and grilled whitefish with garlic-lemon sauce. See recipes inside.

Choose from the flowers listed here or make sure the flowers you're using are not poisonous (you can call your local extension office to check). Your best option is to use garden-grown flowers or those commercially raised especially for eating. Store them in a little cold water for one to two days. When you're ready to use the flowers, just dry them with paper towels.

Microwave saves time in the kitchen

AP - Once you get used to a microwave oven that cooks, reheats, crisps, defrosts and melts ingredients, is easy to clean and releases little heat into the kitchen, it's hard to imagine living without one.

Here are some hints and tips to help you get the most out of this useful appliance:

- For best results, use the directions that come with your microwave as a guide for cooking times. The times in most cookbooks and magazines are for an average 600- to 700-watt microwave. To produce the desired result, a compact 400-watt microwave will take more time, and a large 1,000-watt one will take less. Also, the various power levels such as high or medium are not standardized.
- To find the hot and cold spots in your microwave, spread a layer of trimmed white bread slices edge-toedge over the microwave floor. Set the oven on high and watch the browning process through the glass
- To get full cooking power, wipe out the oven regularly - especially around the door seal - with a mild detergent or a baking soda solution.
- Sosten stubborn soil with steam by boiling a cup of water in the oven. Then clean with a plastic? (not steel wool) scrubbing pad. Or, cover a spill with a damp paper towel and turn the oven on high for 10 seconds. When the oven is cool, wipe it clean.
- To get rid of lingering food odors or stale smell, place a thick slice of lemon on a paper towel and microwave it on high for 1 to 11/4 กนักutes; let it stand overnight.
- Avoid using brown paper bags and overcooking popcorn. And keep an eye on dishes with lots of sugar. All are common causes of flareups.
- Sparks or flashes in a microwave indicate a dish containing metal, which shouldn't be used for microwave cooking. Remove the dish and transfer the food to a microwave-safe container.
- If a fire develops in a microwave, keep the door closed and unplug the unit. Let the fire extinguish itself before opening the door.
- Don't rush out to buy special microwave cookware. Most ceramic and glass casserole and baking dishes are microwave-safe.
- If you do buy special microwave cookware, select plastic cookware that can also be used for freezer storage. Then precooked portions can go directly from the freezer to the microwave.
- Save the sturdy microwavesafe plastic containers in which some frozen foods come. They're great for heating individual portions of any food in the microwave, and you can put them in the dishwasher.
- Some surprising things can be used as microwave cookware. Try warming leftovers on a paper plate, cooking bacon on paper towels and heating rolls wrapped in a napkin in a straw basket.

- · Not sure if a dish is suitable use. for a microwave? Put the empty & Center food in the oven and dish and a glass measuring cup half-filled with water in the oven ingoutward toward the oven walls.

• Be sure any cookware is tall and set it on full power for 1 minenough to accommodate boiling ute. Then gingerly touch the dish and the water. If the water is hot and the dish cool, the dish is OK to Joe Henry: The singer/songwriter, who is a 1978 graduate of Rochester Adams, mixes country/folk musing in his new album, "Short Man's Room." He'll perform with the Jayhawks Sunday, July 19, at The Ark, 6371/2 S. Main, Ann Arbor.

Mystery behind his music

Joe Henry goes exploring without compass

Joe Henry, a 1978 graduate of Rochester Adams High School, returns to Michigan to perform his hearty blend of country/folk character sketches at The Ark in Ann Arbor.

By Larry O'Connor

Joe Henry admits living in selfimposed obscurity. His musical fortunes have always been sought on the periphery.

All of which would serve to contribute to the mysteriousness of the singer/songwriter, who is a 1978 graduate of Rochester Adams. His music would seem to be as remote.

Henry's new album, "Short Man's Room," is a forthright hearty blend of country/folk musings, singular and vivid in their detail. Most are character sketches, the result of their writer lost in his own insular exploration without a compass.

"The more detached I get from myself, the easier it is to write," said Henry, who performs Sunday, July 19, at The Ark in Ann Arbor.

"Flannery O'Connor once said the more she wrote, the more mysterious writing became to her. I find myself feeling the same way. You can get so lost in it. Sometimes you feel you're at the wheel of a runaway

Sometimes in this internal search, Henry will turn up a number such as the title track, "Short Man's Room," The languid, somewhat sad folk narrative is a portrayal of an old man living out his final Amid a lamenting violin in the background, Henry sings: "This is a short man's room, better you watch your head/l still got my one good eye. I keep it next to my bed/l keep my money down here. I dress it to look like a shoe/I'm saving up for a pair, Then I'll have more money than you.

Ironically, Henry says surreptitiously he found the sketch in his mind while trying to write another number. "It was like finding someone else's song," he said.

Though anchored in rich detail, "Short Man's Room" mirrors the stateless being many of Henry's numbers find themselves in. They are, perhaps, synonymous with an artist who has never felt grounded to any particular place or scene.

Henry's life has been transient, listing addresses in North Carolina, Georgia, Ohio, Michigan and New York. His family moved to Rochester while he was in high school. He later moved to Ann Arbor, graduating with a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Michi-

Henry then went onto Brooklyn, N.Y., and currently calls Los Angeles home though he's been staying in Minneapolis to rehearse this upcoming tour with the Jayhawks.

In those areas, Henry established a recording career that has included four LP's starting in 1986 with "Talk of Heaven" on Profile Records. His next two, "Murder of Crows" (1989) and "Shuffletown" (1990) were released on A&M.

"As far as the disadvantages tof being in obscurity), you feel like you're beating your head against the wall if you're trying to take a song outside of your living room," he said. "The advantages are you're not beholden to anyone."

While living in Rochester, Henry perhaps established the closest thing to be called his roots. He met and later married Melanie Ciccone, sister of pop icon Madonna: Musically, those times were formative as

"In high school, looking back, I was going through my purest period," Henry said. "I wasn't listening to anything but Woody Guthrie and country and blues artists such as John Hurt, Leadbelly and Lightnin' Hopkins. It was so stripped bare. It was like a burning light.

"... I think everyone else was listening to Boz Scaggs.'

Joe Henry will perform with the Jayhawks Sunday, July 19, at The Ark, 63714 S. Main, Ann Arbor. For. information, call 761-1451.

Therapists differ on homosexuality

great interest the article in the April 20th issue. There is a member of my family who has recently disclosed to us

Dear Barbara:

I read with that he thinks he may be homosexual. His feelings regarding this problem are identical to those expressed by the young man in your article. He desperately wants to be helped and - as he terms it be part of the "main stream society." He wants to have a family and children and be a family man just like all his friends.

He is a brilliant young man and a professional. He, too, feels that the gay community is too quick to accept their sexual preference without trying to tackle this problem with a therapist. He is scared and unhappy and is willing to give it "his all" in order to be helped.

I would greatly appreciate your giving us some names and address. Also we would like the address of the psychotherapint, Charles Soccardies, which you mentioned In your article. Thank you

Dear Readers:

The column on April 20 that today's writer is referring to was from a young man who fears he is gay and wants psychotherapy to help him live a heterosexual life. He asked about the causes of homosexuality and about the chances of finding the kind of help he desires.

In my reply to him and in a follow-up column, I discussed the various outlooks taken by the mental health field. The answer to today's letter is designed to amplify those replies.

The doctors' names and ad dresses this writer requests were mailed to her home.

Dear 'Thank You',

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to discuss this tonic again. Homosexuality has always been hotly debated by men tal health professionals. At present, the argument focuses on the desirability and feasibility of giving gay men any hope that they can change:

There are those who believe sexual orientation is unchange able. With this as their philosophical position, they then believe that trying to re-orient to a heterosexual position in a sick: ness in itself. They feel it is cruel and inhumane to give any credence to the possibility of being straight if you are gay, and insist that gay men must accept this as their destiny if they are to be healthy.

There are other mental health professionals who strongly disagree with this. They understand the enormous complexity of the issue and that there are often many factors which contribute to its determination. At the 1990 fall meeting of the American Psychoanalytic Association. there was a well-attended dis cussion group titled "The Sexual Deviations - Theory and Therapy: A Successful Treat ment of an Overt Homosexual Patient." It was "well-attended" because many therapists under stand the pain homosexuality can cause and are eager to find ways to help decrease the suffer ing. They do not want to take any moral position on homosexuality and they also don't want to deny the possibility of help to those in pain who deeply want to

It made my day.

A column ago, I asked readers to send in a list of their favorite things, or if they were feeling grouchy, a list of bothersome things. Here are the results:

Matt Rogers of Westland sent a letter handsomely decorated by his young son with a blue highlighter pen. For this creative ity (mistaken, I believe) as well as promptness and fine penmanship, Rogers should get a copy of a Stevie Ray Vaughn video, "Live at the El Mocambo," as a prize. Unfortunately, he won't.

Writes Rogers: "I agree with a lot of your choices, especially singing loudly in the car or old couples holding hands. Great!

"Flashlights that work, Roll ing Stone magazine, well upholstered furniture, PBJ sandwiches, a good haircut, actors James Olmos and Cheech Marin, actresses Michelle Pheffer, and Anne Archer, freshly picked apples and action movies ('007,' 'Die Hard,' 'Robin Hood'), people who make you laugh, that. first cup of coffee in the morning. and people who believe and believe in themselves."

probably looked great on paper: a real-life comic book artist trips into the whackedout world he created. Even from the previews, it had all the markings of an alternative and way hip "Roger Rabbit."

Instead, "Cool World," playing on area-screens, only proves how spectacularly uninspired its creator Ralph Bakshi has become. The animator hasn't matured much as an artist or as an adult since he made cartoon history with "Fritz the Cat" and "Heavy Traffic" 20 years ago.

The movie takes to extremes the idea that the world's sexiest woman exists in cartoon form. The theme originated in the 1940s with Tex Avery, whose "Red Hot Riding Hood" cartoons led servicemen to paint Red's image on their fighter

And the bothersome things: Having to make a decision on something when either way is going to be bad, clothes that used to fit and don't anymore, people that scream through my quiet neighborhood expressway, having to go somewhere I don't want to go to, losing things, computer problems, stupid commercials, stupid people and stupid

Brends Good of West Bloomfield was succinct with preferences. Favorites: A sunny day at the beach and getting a tun, singing as loud as I can in my car when a good song comes on the radio, parties, frozen yogurt, a good workout and shop-

Bothersome stuff: Violence, homelessness, people who don't take care of the environment and crooked politicians.

Paul Lloyd of West Bloomfield copped his list from a scene in "Wings of Desire" where a man is dying after an auto accident and an angel listens to his final thoughts.

Writes Lloyd: "For best effect, read it slowly, allowing time for an image to appear for each thought -Albert Camus, the morning light, the child's eyes, the swim in the waterfall, the stains from the first raindrops, the son, the bread and wine, hopping, Easter, the veins of the leaves, the blowing grass, the color of stones, the pebbles on the stream's bed, the white tablecloth outdoors, the dream of the house inside the house, the loved one asleep in the next room, the peaceful Sunday, the horizon, the light from the room shining in the garden, the night flight, riding a bicycle with no hands, the beautiful stranger; my father, my mother, my wife, my

Band revives SKA sound

In the 1960s, there was a smallscale musical explosion in Jamaica resulting in a new sound called SKA After a brief stint in England in the early 1980s. SKA moved to America -- and died.

In 1988, SKA was born again. According to Ryan Reeves, 21, guitarist of the nine-piece SKA band, The Exceptions, this rebirth has been largely centered in Detroit.

"In the past two years, especially in Detroit, it (the SKA scene) has really grown a lot," said Reeves, who frequently used to encounter the question "Who's Scott?" when he tried to describe his music.

Now that we have the name straight, confusion is still understandable. What, exactly, is SKA?

"Most people can swallow it as fast Reggae, said 19-year-old Joel Peterson, the band's bass player.

To be more specific, SKA is "reggae, jazz, American R&B, and Motown stuff with a fast tempo," said Reeves, who lives in Warren and formed The Exceptions in 1990 with friends scattered throughout Detroit, Hamtramck, Monroe, Harper Woods, and Northville.

look at music as a full-time career. ness; the other half of our songs are Reeves, who is studying pre-med at Wayne State University, remains realistic about his future, and claims that even if a major record label offered his band a contract with all the trimmings, he would only postpone his medical career for five years because, as he sees it, "It. would take about that long for evaervone to get sick of us.

At Wayne State, Reeves is joined by bandmates Peterson, who is studying music composition; singer Rich Reuther, who is studying social work; Vox organ player John Steed, who is undecided; and trumpet player Todd Bolton, a jazz ma-

Trombone player Jim Hofer is studying architecture at the University of Detroit, tenor sax player Geno Corwin is in environmental science at the University of Michigan Dearborn, and Alto Fugitive, the band's alto saxophone player is studying engineering at Lawrence Technological University.

With such variation of interests within the band, its members admit that their lyrics are sometimes whimsical, to borrow a term from hassist Peterson.

Mike, LaTulippe, the 21-year-old Despite the excitement of SKA, drummer and communications manine young men aged 19-22, who go. jor at Oakland Community College, to school and work along with pro- agrees: "I think that our lyrics are moting their band, it's difficult to like, half of them are silly, foolishserious, with a message."

Serious topics like racism have their place within The Exceptions' music, but a more typical song for them would be something like "Coney Dog City," which explores one of Detroit's most profound mysteries: "Everywhere you go," said Reeyes of The Motor City, "It's like this abyss. Everything is dead, rundown, boarded up; but there's these thriving Coney Islands everywhere.

They also have a song called "Ridges," expounding on the wellknown fact that guys prefer potato chips over peanuts.

The Exceptions have recorded 11 songs and have a single coming out this month on Royal Oak's Icon Records that will be available throughout the U.S., Canada, and England. The song is "Flowering" Scrunch." about girls with big hair with the flip side "Exceptionally Horny," an all-instrumental pun referring to the band's brass section

The Exceptions have maintained their sense of humor -- and their day jobs, but with exceptional music like this, they may not need them for long.

The Exceptions will perform a free show with Black Planet Saturday, July 18, on the roof of Trapper's Alley as part of the Alley Series at 7:30 p.m.

Icer to Cornell

Jason Weber, a 1991 Livonia Stevenson High graduate, has signed a national letter-of-intent to play hockey at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

Weber selected Cornell because of its academic reputation along with its longstanding tradition in hockey (since 1909), which also includes membership in the East Coast Athletic Conference (includes Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Dartmouth, Brown, St. Lawrence, Clarkson, R.P.I., Union, Colgate and Vermont).

"I had an opportunity to play closer to home in the CCHA (Central Collegiate Hockey Association), but when choosing a college, you have to look at the longterm picture." Weber said.

He played the past season for the Lakeland Jets of the North American Junior Hockey League, gaining All-Star honors after scoring 25 goals and adding 40 assists in 40 games (second overall in league scoring).

The previous year he finished seventh overall with 71 points in 39 games. As an underage player for the Jets during his first year in the NAJHL, Weber collected 18 goals and 25 assists.

Weber started his career in the Livonia Hockey Association before moving up to the AAA and midget ranks (Little Caesars).

Strong finish: With a good stretch run, Classic Seven (No. 4), with Fabio Arguello Jr. aboard, earned a victory in the 44th Michigan Mile and a trip to the winner's circle (above).

Classic Seven beats odds in Mile

■ The Michigan Mile is rarely favorable to those favored to win it, and Saturday's race at Ladbroke DRC proved no different. Chief Honcho was nearly even money to win it, but instead a 35-to-1 shot, Classic Seven, collected the victory.

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

Everything considered, it was a typical Michigan Mile - the favorites flopped, and a longshot prevailed.

The 44th running of the Mile - the grandest thoroughbred race in the state, with a $250,000 total purse - was like so many others in the series: Only nine favorites have finished first. So no one in the crowd of 10,921 should have been too surprised by Saturday's race at Ladbroke DRC in Livonia.

The heavy favorite, Chief Honcho ridden by Hall of Fame jockey Pat Day, this year's Kentucky Derby winner aboard Lil E. Tee - was never a factor. He fell to 11th at the start of the 11/4. mile race and ended up finishing there.

Those expected to be Honcho's chief

> Fábio Arguello Jr. winning jockey competitors fared no better. Cozzene's Prince was sixth, Discover took seventh, Alyten ended up ninth and Michelle Can Pass was 10th.

Which left the way open for 35-to-1 shot Classic Seven, with a young phenom of a jockey in the saddle, Fabio Arguello Jr. In a race that truly was "Classic," Seven did not follow form; usually a front-runner, instead he bided his time on the rail until the final halfmile, then outraced Sunny Prince down the stretch to win by % of a length in

"This is our greatest day, by far," said part-owner Tom Cairns. "He just outgamed (Sunny Prince). The other horse is bigger, but (Seven) is a tough little son-of-a-gun." So, too, is Arguello. Just half the age of Day, the 19-year-old Arguello tied him for most wins this spring at the Churchill Downs meet and has quickly developed into a rider of national stat-Arguello piloted Seven into the lead after surviving an early bumping, keeping him on the rail a length behind Perfectly Proud in a race that was closely bunched until the final stretch. At the 34-mile mark, Arguello pushed Seven past Perfectly Proud into first.

But he didn't stay there. Sunny Prince, with Carlos Silva aboard, came after him and entering the final oneeighth of a mile Prince was ahead. Seven fought back, however, and at the finish was pulling away.

Even though the book on Seven was that he liked to take the lead early and keep it, and this race didn't follow that scenario, Arguello wasn't concerned even after Prince passed him briefly. "I knew I had plenty of horse," Arguello said. "Before the race, I really liked this horse . . . you can bet I want to stay aboard him."

As for Chief Honcho, Day could give no reasons. His horse had finished in the money in six of his previous seven races, and he won his last start, June 18 at Belmont Park in New York.

"There's not much to say," said Day "He was never in the race. He broke OK, and I tried to encourage him to maintain his position early on, but that's the best he could do. Chief Honcho just was never in it."

Seven was, and he never faltered. The longshot - only two others in Mile history were longer - made a few bettors happy, paying $79 on a $2 to win ticket.

Search on for ex-Tiger farmhands

BY RAY SETLOCK STAFF WRITER

Lots of kids grow up wanting to play big league baseball, but few get the chance and even fewer play for more than two seasons.

A recent study done at Eastern Michigan University shows that only five percent of minor league players ever play in a big league game. Of those who make the majors, only three percent have careers lasting more than two full

A pair of local players, Doug Martin and Steve Waite, found these alarming statistics out the hard way.

Martin, who led Redford Catholic Central to a state championship in 1987 and pitched for Eastern Michigan, was released by the Detroit Tigers last week after a one-year stint with the ballclub.

Selected in the 44th round of the 1991 draft, Martin posted a 3-1 record in 19 appearances last season with Niagara Falls of the Class A New York-Penn

This season, Martin struggled at Niagara Palis, allowing nine runs in just five innings. He had a pair of saves and no decisions.

Waite was signed by the Tigers as a free agent in the off-season. Following spring training, he was assigned to Class A affiliate Fayetteville. With the Generals, Waite had a 1-0 record and 5.70 earned run average.

Both players say they'll give it another shot, but until that opportunity comes, they'll continue playing in the Pontiac Summer League.

"Things just didn't work out," Martin said. "I really wasn't sure of my role.

"I was part of the extended spring training and I thought that when it ended, I'd get to go either to Lakeland or Fayetteville (the Tigers top Class A teams). But instead they sent me to Niagara Falls and told me that I would be the closer (short relief). I thought that would be fine with me."

Martin says that things were working out, but Niagara Falls manager Larry Walte, a hard throwing righthander Parrish (former Texas Ranger outfielder) started using Martin in different

"I did well in my first couple of shortrelief opportunities," Martin said. "But before I knew it, I was pitching in long relief situations.

"I guess my getting released was a mutual thing. It just wasn't working out and that's not to take anything away from the Tigers. After all, they gave me. the chance."

Parrish could not be reached regarding Martin's release, but sources in the Tiger farm system said player personnel moves are made by a number of people, not just the manager.

Martin said he will await an opportunity to try out with one of the expansion teams, either the Florida Marlins or Colorado Rockies.

Waite was just as frustrated as Martin, but isn't ready to say that things weren't working out.

"I thought I was doing well," Waite said, "I was pitching well in Fayetteville, but my coaches called me into the office and told me I was going down to Nisgara Palls to get some additional innings.

"When I got to Niagara Falls, I had a rough outing in an exhibition game and they released me.'

Although Waite was let go by Niagara Falls, he said his release papers came from Fayetteville. Front office personnel at Fayetteville say they know nothing about Waite's release. Both players agree that minor league baseball consists of hungry players chasing mouth-watering dreams that in most cases never come true. "Every guy in the minor leagues thinks that he is going to make the big club," Martin said. "But we hear it every day on the corner. People tell us constantly that the odds are stacked against us.

"We know that the odds are not in our favor, but we have to go and try our best everyday. We have to believe we. are good enough and you cannot think otherwise."

Waite said minor league baseball was fun, but he wasn't there to just play in the minors.

"I wanted to get to the majors," Waite said. "There would be 50 or so of us players stretching and the coaches would say, You know only about two or three of you guys are going to make the big leagues.'

'We knew that, but that didn't stop any of us from believing we were going to be one of those to make it."

Brady grabs Open crown

By Dan O'Meara Staff Writer

Steve Brady of Farmington Hills was cool under pressure recently in winning his second straight AAA Michigan Open championship on The Bear near Traverse City.

The 33-year-old Brady rallied to tic Jeff Roth on the final two holes and win a sudden death playoff July 2. The victory netted Brady a first-place prize of $13,400 - an increase of $600 over last year.

Brady saw victory slipping away when Roth forced a tie for the thirdsound lead at 211. The Flint challenger, and former member of Plym outh Salem High's 1973 state Class A championship squad, held a twostroke lead with two holes left in the final round, which was played under difficult, windy conditions.

But Brady parred the last two holes while Roth made bogey each time, and both finished the day at Cover par 76 and 287 for the tournament. Brady made par again and Roth bogey on the first playoff hole.

Wildcats 8th in National AAU field

While a national championship was the goal, being among the top eight 18-and-under AAU women's basketball teams in the country was not a bad consolation for the Western Wayne Wildcats.

"Anytime you can get to a nation. al tournament, you have to be proud of your team, and doing as well as we did in the state was awesome," Wildcats coach Fred Thomann said.

The Wildcats finished with a 3.3 record. They won their pool with a BASKETBALL tournament play, reaching the Round of Eight at which point they were eliminated in consecutive loss-

"We lost a tough game to North Carolina in the afternoon and had to come back and play South Caro-'lina at night," Thomann said. "It was disappointing to get beat by North Carolina (the 16-under champ last year). We played them 2-1 record and their first game in exceptionally well. For 38 minutes, we were in the hunt and lost it."

The Wildcats were ahead late in the game with South Carolina but couldn't sustain the lead and lost

"We definitely were in an elite group of team out there," Thomann said. "We had a great team in terms of talent, and our level of play in the tournament was excellent."

Dawn Warner (Livonia Franklin) averaged 20 points per game to lead Stevens (Mount Clemens) and Jennifer Brzezinski (Warren Lincoln) with 18 and 16, respectively.

Darcie Miller (Plymouth Salem), Julie Nicastri (Plymouth Canton), Laure DeMattia (Farmington Hills -Mercy) and Lori Young (Rochester Adams) also were on the team, which included Lisa Negri, Sarah Willyerd and Noelle Beaudry from Class B champion Flint Powers, Allegra Stoetzel (Jackson County Western), Janet Hughes (New Bosthe Wildcats followed by Tanisha ton Huron) and Julie Oxley

Potter recruits brighten Crusaders' '92-93 outlook

The time a college basketball coach spends between the end of his recruiting and the start of the season is wonderful. The influx of new players sends his optimism soaring higher than a jump ball; there are no injuries to worry about, no bad officials to fret over, no missed buzzer shots to lament.

Every team is a world-beater or at least a title contender - during this time. And that includes a team like Madonna University's women's squad, which is entering only its second season after the near-disaster of 1990-91, when the schedule was forseited after a rash of early injuries.

Bill Potter took over the program in May of 1991. He was faced with putting together an entire team before the start of classes in September, not an easy task. He did it, and the Lady Crusaders performed creditably, posting a 7-17 overall record and going 5-7 in the NAIA's Dis-

Foundation intact

With a foundation to build upon and more time to devote to recruiting, Potter was expecting big things this year. And for the most part even taking into consideration a coach's normal tendency toward optimism - he got them.

"We were looking for diversity," the Madonna coach said, "someone who could play two or three positions for us."

A second important need was depth. Injuries ravaged Madonna again last season, leaving the Crusaders with just six healthy players at times.

With only three players lost -Lori Creten, a sophomore who left school to return home to Escanaba; Karen Sangregorio, who's decided to devote her full attention to her studies in her senior year, and. walk-on Janette Rioux, who transferred to Oakland University -Potter had a solid returning corps.

Leading scorer Jill Burt is back, and so are starters Cheri Sangrego. rio, Lyndell Ingalls and Stephanle Niebauer. Others returning are Marianne Ervin, Kim Kibbey and Samantha Yesh.

As he did last year, Potter went to a source he knew for his recruiting: Oakland Community College, where Potter served as an assistant coach _ before getting the Madonna post. Three of his five additions have an OCC background, bringing the team total to six.

Big guns coming

At the top of the list must be Lori Montante, a 5-foot-9 guard who left OCC two years ago and enrolled at Oakland University. She never played for the Pioneers - an ankle injury kept her sidelined - and when she decided to major in education, she transferred to Madonna.

Montante will have junior eligibility. At OCC in 1990, she was an all-Region 12 selection after averaging 20 points a game. Scoring is her forte; she led Oakland County in points scored during both her junior and senior years at Milford HS, averaging over 25 points both seasons.

"She's going to bring us some instant offense," said Potter. "She has a three-point shot, and she can also drive to the basket.'

The other two OCC recruits are Stephanie Crelley, a 5-11 do-everything from Fenton, and Dana Seveech, a 5-6 point guard from Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes. Crelley will have sophomore status; Seveech will be a junior.

Crelley "will do everything for us," said Potter, noting that she's the type of player who will make Madonna more diversified. "She can play all five spots, and she has three point range, too. She can guard centers and guards."

Crelley averaged 10.5 points and seven rebounds while playing 38 minutes a game for OCC last year. Seveech attended St. John's

Fisher in New York for a year before transferring to OCC. Last year for the Raiders, she averaged eight points, eight rebounds and eight assists a game. "She's an unbelievable passer," said Potter. "We may put her and (returning point guard) Lyndell (Ingalls) side by side.'

Freshmen won't sit

The two freshmen Potter is bringing in won't necessarily be confined to the end of the bench. "I'm not too set on a starting lineup right now,' he said. "If a freshmen or sophomore outplays a junior or senior, she'll play.'

That probably sounds just fine to Mary Bieniewicz, a 5-10 guard-forward from Farmington Hills Mercy. and Emily Chedister, a 5-9 forward from Davison.

Bieniewicz comes from the kind of program that Potter - and every other coach - likes. "She comes from a real strong program," he said. "So she's fundamentally strong. She'll give us a little offense and a little defense. And she takes it to the basket real well."

At Mercy, Bieniewicz averaged 11 points and six rebounds a game.

Chedister got a fair share of points at Davison - she scored 10 a game - but her strength; according to Potter, is "her defense." He added: "With this year's team, I'm not concerned with offense. We should have enough firepower."

What will be missing is a sizable post-up threat. "We didn't get that 'tower,' " said Potter. "We got a lot of the supporting cast.

"It might hurt us at crunch time, at the end of the game, not having someone inside to go to. But we have so many other people who can score and take it to the basket, I think we'll put a lot of pressure on our opponent's defense.'

For the record, Potter still believes that without the rash of inju-Ties last season, his team could have finished second in the district. So it's not surprising to hear him say the four-team district playoffs are the goal again this season.

Lack of size - which will hurt the team's rebounding - will be a problem.

Mid-America Mustangs eliminated in Cincinnati

After winning its first game, the Mid-America Mustangs 16-Under softball team lost two straight last weekend and was eliminated from the All-American National Invitational Tournament in Cincinnati.

The Mustangs beat the Louisville Swingers 8-7 in the first game behind the nine-hit pitching of Stacey Sinke (Canton) and some excellent defense by second baseman Amy Yocum (Belleville).

With the Mustangs ahead 8-5 in the sixth inning, Yocum fielded a ground ball, tagged a Louisville runner between first and second base and threw to first baseman Sue Huber (Canton) for a double play. The play stranded a Louisville runner at third base and kept the Mustangs ahead 8-5.

Sinke helped her own cause with two hits in three at-bats and two RBI. Huber was 1-for-2 with a run scored, an RBI and a sacrifice. Leslee Dickerson (Belleville) was 1for 2 with an RBI and a run scored, while Tricia Kesner (Garden City) had one hit and one run scored.
