Ian Cowen admitted he was sorry for the sequence of events that led to the fatal shooting of a young man, whose girlfriend delivered a baby after his death. Cowen is urging a judge to sentence him in the murder conspiracy case as a juvenile, not an adult.

Ian Bruce Cowen, 17, expressed remorse Friday that the child of the man he's accused of plotting to murder will never know its father.

"I don't think anyone should have to grow up without a father," Cowen said in court.

Cowen and three other Westland teens have been accused of conspiring to murder Everett Earl Bowen Jr., 19, slain last November before his girlfriend gave birth to their child.

"Now there's a child out there who will not have a father to look up to," Cowen said.

Cowen's statement came as he pleaded with Detroit Recorder's Judge Denise Page Hood to sentence him as a juvenile, not as an adult. Hood's decision, expected Wednesday, could mean the difference between a long or lifetime prison term, or a second chance for Cowen by the time he's 21.

'I'm sorry for what has happened. and I wish there was some way that I could change this," Cowen told the judge, adding later, "The only way I can change all this is by carrying out the goals that I have set for myself.'

If sentenced as a juvenile, Cowen said he can continue his high school studies in the juvenile system and plan for college courses. He had attended John Glenn High School before his arrest.

Moreover, Cowen said he could continue to attend group counseling

He could face up to 90 days in jail and a $500 fine if convicted of the misdemeanor charge. A preliminary examination is scheduled for Wednesday.

Westland police had been watching for an assailant after a person was identified in photographs by the father of the 6-year-old boy, police Sgt. Laura Moore said. The father had been with the boy at Elliott School when he was assaulted. Moore said.

The boy's father had told police that the attacker stopped his son, gave him a bear hug, put him over his knee and spanked him. The father confronted the assailant, who fled the

Schools ponder potential boundary changes

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

A study leading to new Wayne-Westland school attendance boundaries could be launched as early as January, amid strong demands from residents and government officials.

Superintendent Larry Thomas has told officials from Westland, Wayne and Inkster that he hopes to form a committee by January to study the attendance boundaries.

The issue arose Wednesday night as 40 school and government officials from the three cities met at the Dver Center in Westland for a landmark roundtable discussion on educational issues

School officials have received complaints from parents concerned that many students aren't attending schools closest to their homes and are being bused to schools farther away.

In particular, residents of Wayne's Legacy Estates subdivision have noted that most children in the neighborhood attend Schweitzer Elementary, Stevenson Junior High and John Glenn High, though some 35 pupils are bused away from the Superintendent Thomas told the government officials he wants to address the attendance boundary problem in its entirety, instead of piecemeal. That's why the Legacy Estates situation has been put on hold.

Thomas wants a districtwide study to ensure equity among schools and to avoid perceptions that students in

Chiefs: Police not necessary in schools

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Police chiefs from three cities served by the Wayne-Westland school district don't believe student violence is serious enough to warrant placing uniformed police officers in schools.

That consensus emerged Wednesday night as nearly 40 school and city officials from Westland, Wayne and Inkster met for a landmark roundtable discussion on critical issues

Despite a growing concern about school violence, police chiefs Emery Price of Westland, John Colligan of Wayne and Terry Colwell of Inkster agreed it would be premature to place uniformed officers in schools.

"It would give the image that we've got a spy in the school because we don't trust (students)," Colligan said.

The police chiefs also hinted that such a move could spark animosity between students and police officers, creating tension rather than easing it.

A better solution might involve beefing up school security by bringing in plainclothes of- possibly by expanding the elementary-level Drug Abuse Resistance Education program, the chiefs suggested.

Instead of posing a threat in uniform, those officers could counsel students and develop a trust with them, helping to ease tension in a more diplomatic way, officials said.

A recent report from a 12-member school security committee composed of educators, police officials and a Westland pastor had suggested placing police officers — though not necessarily uniformed officers — in secondary schools to curb violence.

Most school board members already have indicated they would oppose a plan to put uniformed officers in schools, saving the district could be perceived as a police state.

On Wednesday, school Superintendent Larry Thomas said he won't recommend the plan, but indicated he might consider proposing that plainclothes officers be placed in schools. "I would not want some one walking our halls in full uniform with a gun and a billy club," Thomas said. Still, school officials want to reach some consensus on improving school security, in the wake of numerous violent acts on school grounds in recent years A study of school violence involving students from the district's two high schools and four junior highs showed 135 assaults and 59 weapons violations from late 1990 through early 1992.

That raised eyebrows among school officials, though the local police chiefs said Wednesday that many districts have worse violence problems than Wayne-Westland.

Price said the perception of school violence in Wayne-Westland is worse than the actual violence.

Others pointed blame at local newspapers saying reports of school violence have fueled the negative perception.

Many violent acts involved students but occurred at night — sometimes not even on school grounds, officials have stressed. Some incidents happened on school grounds but didn't involve students.

The most serious incident occurred last Nov. 15, when a 19-year-old man was shot at night behind Adams Junior High School. Four teens, including three John Glenn High School students and a Cherry Hill Alternative Center student, were charged with murder.

In a more recent incident, a 17-year-old John Glenn student was expelled last Monday for exploding a pipe bomb in the school parking lot during an Oct. 1 football game. No one was injured.

"I would get help for myself, as well as maybe help somebody else," he said. "I'd like to help somebody else and keep them from making the same mistake that I made.

Cowen and Westland teens Gregory Hister, Jermaine Stevenson and Jerome Omar Ingram were arrested on murder charges after Bowen was shot to death at 10:30 p.m. last Nov. 15 behind Adams Junior High School. Police said they plotted the killing in revenge for an earlier fight between Bowen and Cowen.

Stevenson and Ingram, both 18 when Bowen was killed, haven't yet been scheduled for trial. Hister, 16 at the time, has been ordered to juvenile incarceration until age 21 based on a July conviction on lesser charges, including assault with intent to do great bodily harm less than murder, and conspiracy to assault.

On Friday, Cowen's mother, Robyn, pleaded with Hood to sentence her son as a juvenile.

"I come here today to plead for my son's life," she said.

If her son receives an adult sentence, he will lose touch with his friends and family and possibly learn in prison "how to truly be a criminal," Robyn Cowen said. She described how Ian Cowen used to read to and play with her younger sons, ages 11 and 10, and told the judge, "They love (Ian) very much, and they miss him terribly.

John Brady, a family friend, told Judge Hood, "Ian Cowen, in my mind, is not a criminal.'

Prosecuting attorney Robert Hood has accused Cowen and the "I would get help for myself, as well as maybe help somebody else. I'd like to help somebody else and keep them from making the same mistake that I made.'

three other teens of pretending they wanted to buy crack cocaine from Bowen so they could meet him and kill him.

But Brady told Judge Hood on Friday that, "Everett Bowen, in essence, sealed his fate the first time he ever engaged in a drug transaction."

A friend of Bowen's, David Wayne Adkins, 20, was with him at the time and was shot in the head, but survived. Cowen also said Friday that he's sorry Adkins

"I's glad that he's still alive to see this day, but I'm sorry he had to go through anything," Cowen

In a related development, Judge Hood is expected to rule Wednesday on whether statements that Stevenson and Ingram made to police may be admitted as evidence during their impending murder trials. Their attorneys are trying to suppress the statements.

In addition to Cowen, Stevenson and Hister also had attended John Glenn. Ingram had attended the Cherry Hill Alternative Cen-

But some government officials indicated that some areas, such as Legacy Estates, pose an immediate problem. Residents there don't want to wait for a long-term study to be told of boundary improvements, Wayne city manager John Zech said.

After four years in three different schools, the time to get a good educational foundation is running out for Michael Sutzer, 10.

That's the belief of Michael's mother, Eugenia, who appeared before the Livonia Board of Education Monday to seek the district's help in getting her son into the right special education classroom by next school year.

Eugenia Sutzer believes if the school district, which includes the northern section of Westland, can't put her son in a small class strictly for the learning disabled, taught by a teacher trained to teach learning disabled children, he will soon be so far behind academically that he will get frustrated and eventually become a drop-out.

There's not a lot of time left for him educationally before he's too far behind," said Sutzer. "We need someone to work with us. We can't afford to make another mistake. We have to be right this

Sutzer told the trustees what it's like to be the parent of a child who doesn't learn like most chil-

"You can't imagine the frustration of knowing there is something different about your child, but not knowing enough about the educational system to help,' Sutzer said.

You can't begin to imagine the difficulty that we as parents have faced with a child who has a 'hidden' handicap. We watch the emotional warfare that he experiences on a daily basis in an attempt to get an education.'

Michael is now a fourth grader at Livonia's St. Edith Catholic School.

He attended third grade at the Montessori school in Northville. For the first and second grades, he attended Coolidge Elementary on Curtis

The Sutzers knew their son was different when he was only an infant, While their first son, Timothy, had laid still and napped long, Michael was in perpetual motion, scooting around so much that his knees were rubbed raw. Even today, Michael enters a room like a tornado, leaving debris in his wake.

The Teflon kid

Besides being disorganized and. restless, Michael has a short attention span and poor memory. In fact, his memory is so poor that: Sutzer calls him the "Teflon kid, where nothing sticks."

As a second grader at Coolidge, both school and private profes sionals certified Michael as being classically learning disabled.

Learning Disabled youngsters typically are disorganized, have poor physical coordination, have difficulty reading and/or writing, have poor memories, often don't complete tasks, and tend to get highly frustrated.

Somehow, the brains of Learn-ing Disabled children get wired in a different way. Professionals say the root cause of the disability is neurological, and that no two youngsters have the same set of problems. Michael is neither mentally or emotionally handi-

Hearing about a child with similar problems at Northville's Montesorri school, the Sutzers enrolled Michael there for his third grade. But the class still lacked enough structure, with verbal instructions from the teacher too vague for Michael to understand, Sutzer said.

Even though they are not Catholic, the parents then sent Michael to St. Edith's, where he repeated the third grade. As a fourth grader, he fell further behind academically.

County tax proposal back for return engagement

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

The Wayne County commission wants property owners to give it some more money, and it won't take no for an answer.

The voters turned down a commission-initiated ballot proposal last August for half a mill for 10 years by a tally of :137,240 to

But voters didn't know enough about the issue then, its proponents say, and they're going to be asked again Nov. 3 for the same

The purpose of the tax, which would raise $13 million a year, is to compensate county hospitals for treating uninsured people who can't afford to pay their bills.

Of the Observer-area commis-- Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth, Kay Beard, D-Westland, Bryan Amann, D-Canton, and Kevin Kelley, D-Redford - all but Beard voted against putting the proposal on the ballot both

In fact, of all seven candidates for those offices, only Beard favors the additional tax.

"There wasn't much information (about the proposal) given out in the primary," Beard said. "That's why we're asking for it

Medicare payments, declining state aid, stricter insurance procedures and a greater number of uninsured people have put the squeeze on three-fourths of Wayne County hospitals, cutting their profit margins to less than 2 percent. And that's not enough to maintain a really good hospital, he said.

If you don't count the non-medical revenues of these hospitals, Potter said, they're all losing

The problem is that hospitals aren't getting reimbursed fully for treating uninsured people, who are mostly poor.
Of the $3 billion worth of treatment provided by Wayne County's 28 hospitals last year, $150 million, or 5 percent, went unpaid, Potter said.

Although the $13 million a year the half mill would provide isn't nearly enough to cover the losses, the Southeast Michigan Hospital Potter said "it's a beginning. If I Council, said that declining wanted to eradicate the entire problem I'd need five or six > County Executive Edward McNamara opposes the proposal. Wayne County already has a system called Urban Hospitalization Care Plus that pays $38 million a year toward the hospital bills of poor people.

Although that money still doesn't come close to covering the shortfall Potter quoted, deputy county executive Michael Duggan said county hospitals are happy with the current system.

Potter is generally out of touch with what's going on in Wayne County," Duggan said. "Any provider in this county would tell you that UHCP is operating very Duggan added that the county has "major plans we're working on to extend care to the working poor, (and) it doesn't involve property tax increases.

Nevertheless, Potter says that Wayne County hospitals really need this new tax. Since 1983, 11 county hospitals have gone out of business, eight of them in Detroit. Since 1986 the uncompensated care burden has doubled (from $75 million to $150 million).

Part of the problem, Potter said, is that voters see this issue as just another case of Detroit sucking up money from the suburbs. And to an extent the voters are right, considering that 70-80 percent of Wayne County's estimated 350,000 medically indigent people live in the city, Potter said.

Gamesmanship could decide the country's leaders orget the debates. I've got a better way to help TV viewers decide who they think should hold the highest office in the land: Monopo-

Yep, I'm talking about that Parker Brothers game that has sold more than 80 million sets since it was introduced in 1935. Is there a person reading this who has not at some time in his life played the game?

So here's my plan. Instead of the presidential candidates sitting or standing on stage for 90 minutes, trading well-rehearsed one-liners and thinly veiled insults, they should just sit down at a card table and play Monopo in front of the TV cameras.

The games would be limited to 90 minutes and whoever had the most money and property at the end of that time would be declared the winner.

There would be no spin doctors to declare that candidate A had clearly won the debate, even though most of the audience knew he had clearly been a jerk.

The only spin would be that there would be as many games as there were candidates, and each candidate would be allowed to set the house rules for one game. The other candidates would have to abide by those rules.

With Ross Perot setting the rules, he'd use his own money. And when he passed "Go" he would not collect $200," but would give it back to the bank,

George Bush would insist that the $200 amounted to a welfare payment and would reduce it to $100. Bill Clinton would agree with the welfare aspect of the payout, but would raise it to

Under the Bush rules, any player landing on "Chance" would have the option of drawing a "Chance" card or passing the turn to the next player. While other players could take a chance if they chose, Bush, himself, would not. "Wouldn't be prudent," he'd reason.

Bush would cut the Luxury Tax payment from $75 to $25 and would reduce the Income Tax from 10 percent to 4 percent — but only for properties on Boardwalk and Park Place. Clinton would double the Luxury Tax and also the Income Tax on any properties costing more than $300.

If Andre Marrou, the Libertarian candidate, were allowed to join the game, he'd eliminate the Income Tax altogether. Of course, there would be no money in the bank under his rules. There wouldn't even be a bank.

As far as the playing pieces are concerned, Bush would choose either the thimble or the iron — symbolic of traditional family values. Perot would probably choose the rider on horseback, while Clinton would take the motorcar, but only after determining that it was non-polluting and got more than 40 miles per gallon around the board.

Monopoly might not provide the insight to the candidates' stance on foreign policy. But if the networks and the candidates could spare another 90 minutes, let them sit down to a game of Risk. Bush would insist on using air strikes instead of ground forces, Perot would use his own civilian army and Clinton would probably decide to sit that one out.

.Character questions? Ninety minutes of Scruples.

You could learn a lot-more about the candidates by watching them play these games than by listening to a dozen debates. And there would be no question about who won.

As for the vice presidential contenders, I'm still working on that. I can't decide whether they should play Trivial Pursuit or Outburst.

Say 'no' to term limits

roposal B restricts the rights of citizens to choose their own representatives. Citizens are smart enough to know that they can limit the number of terms for any politician - they do it by voting. At the same time, voters also know how to keep representatives who are putting the interests of the public first.

The League of Women Voters, along with Common Cause and the Michigan Citizens' Lobby, oppose Proposal B as bad government, not from any vested interest. The League's mission is to encourage active and informed citizen participation in government and to effect public policy in the public interest through citizen education and advocacy. Term Limits are not in the public interest.

Proposal B had its start with an infusion of hundreds of thousands of dollars from out-ofstate oil billionaires. Professional solicitors were paid to collect signatures on the petitions. It is not the grassroots movement we have been wled to believe it is.

Those who drafted Proposal B were not concerned about the strength that Michigan would lose in the Congress. Proposal B would place the Michigan delegation on the bottom rung in influence in the U.S. Congress. We have too much at stake. We cannot risk losing protection for Great Lakes water and Michigan jobs.

When the boards are swept clean of all incumbents, what power will remain? The bureaucracy and the special interests who are not elected by the people and who will not have term limits will remain in place to influence public policy to meet their own needs.

We, too, are incensed with the abuses of power we see in too many of our public officials. We need to correct these abuses and level the playing field for challengers by eliminating officeholder expense funds, eliminating honoraria, restricting the franking privilege, reducing the amount spent on campaigns and perhaps the length of campaigns, and by making the system for registration and voting more accessible to all

Proposal B does nothing to bring about such reforms, and with Proposal B, special interests would be even more powerful than they are now.

Already, and even with presidential term limits, the executive is more powerful than the legislative branch. Congress is the people's branch. That is where we have the most direct representation in our government. We need to protect the balance of power between the two branches of government that our founders set down for our constitutional democracy

Proposal B may be appealing, but it will not do the job. Instead, it will weaken our constitutional representative government by removing the power from the voters. The League of Women Voters urges a No vote on Proposal B.

Senior protest

egarding the inexcusable "Point of View" Oct. 12 by Jeff Counts: Imagine a newspaper editor writing that kids should be sent home early in order to harass the seniors and blackmail them into passing (school) mil-

It seems that parents are the ones responsible to teach their kids to not hang around streets and to keep them out of trouble instead of wanting people who are on a fixed income to pay to do this job.

Too bad you have to pay to let your children play football and basketball. How about the seniors who can't afford the insurance for prescriptions who have to pay $100-$150 in order to keep their health? Or perhaps you are of the opinion that "Dr. Death" should come along and take care of the ones who can't afford to keep your children in sports. I know for a fact that many Seniors are living on less than $500/ $600 a month and you can bet that an extra $5/ $10 a month for millages will really hurt.

Let these kids get busy on some kind of a fund raiser and let them work for what they want — that's how the "old coots" did it in the good old days. They didn't sit back and expect a free ride through life. Teach them to be responsible now so that later in life they won't be whining for their working parents to take care of olumnist Jeff Counts made the statement that "seniors" vote against school millages. He didn't, however, give any evidence to support that claim.

A. Pettibone, Garden City

Columnist off base

When the school tax is equitable and the education is excellent, no one will oppose money for schools. Paying a high premium for a poor product is what voters of all ages protest.

The writer did a disservice to older people who value education as a hope for the future of their children and grandchildren.

Currie cultivates exotic sound with 'Ultraconformist'

One of the banalities of the times is the complaint that nobody writes good songs anymore.

The truth, for those willing to look, is that some of the best songwriters ever are right now producing shining work. Nicholas Currie is among them.

Currie, a 32-year-old Londoner fascinated by human folly, is, more or less, the band Momus. My dictionary tells me that Momus is the Greek god of blame and ridicule. How appropriate in this dismal age of Bush, Clinton and Pearl Jam!

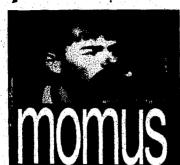

Though Momus has been producing records since the mid-1980s, it (he) has made a splash by releasing three full-length compact discs in the past year and a half. The second of these, "The Ultraconformist," was recorded before a cabaret audience in 1910 and was rediscovered only recently in the vaults of Richmond Records - or so we're

It begins with "Sinister Themes," a cabaret-like collection of comically dire one-liners and a warning of what's to come: "Angels caught up in their own puppet strings/Sinister themes in the songs that I sing.'

Currie uses a collection of electric sounds, anchored by a keyboard or an acoustic guitar, to give the disc a dark and exotic mood. Through the darkness, hough, come the catchy melodies and clever word play that make god song writing.

In "The Last of the Window Chaners," Currie tells of a working man whose inquisitive nature ears him a butcher's knife through the heart, courtesy of the capitalists who employ him. Although the song includes images of prevar London, it's about the current sorry state of labor and the ruling class' not-so-polite way of avoiding honest discussion of the economy.

Before the narrator gets the ters: "But," he says, "I wasn't listening carefully/I had other things on my mind/The failure of the union/The future of man-

The misogynistic brutality of "The Ladies Understand" will make many listeners wince. Currie spits out the words in a cockney voice as the narrator, a pimp, imagines with fatherly affection his son testing a blade by slashing it across a woman's face. The narrator is quite comfortable with his hatred: "Remember that every offender is his own mother's son/ Here is the song that I have always sung . .

"La Catrina" tells the story of a woman who comes back from the grave to reclaim lost opportunity: La Catrina is dancing in her skeleton/La Catrina with a moldy dress and boots still on/On her skull a single strand of hair/Between her pelvic bones thin air/ And then she opens up her thighs/and tells me what it's like to die . . ."
"Spy on the Moon," the last song on "The Ultraconformist," offers a strange juxtapostion: euphoric rhythm and melody with lyrics as dark as any on the disc. Currie himself, it seems, is the spy on the moon, and observation seems his alternative to despair: "There is spy on the moon/And he's spying on the earth/Taking note of everything we do/I heard him say he's afraid, he says he's pretty glad/That we're down here and he's up on the moon.'

Good show: Andy Bell and Vince Clark, better known as the British pop duo Erasure, didn't disappoint when they brought what might be the campiest tour in recent rock history to Detroit recently.

Erasure: Phantasmagorically fun

They were campy, vampy, even a bit trampy, but the one thing Erasure wasn't was a disappointment. The British pop duo was literally the "belles of the ball" when they brought their tour to Detroit's Music Hall.

BY DARRELL CLEM STAFF WRITER

Combine the sounds of Abba, gay discos and Judy Garland, then throw in glitzy costumes that would've made Liberace blink twice.

Raise the stage curtain on an ever-changing set that resembles an enchanted forest, the Old West, a brightly illuminated galaxy and a mean city street.

Bring on Andy Bell and Vince Clark, better known as the British pop duo Erasure, and watch 1,700 adoring fans dance for two hours during the campiest tour in recent rock history.

Dubbed "A Phantasmagorical Entertainment," the Erasure show stopped at Detroit's Music Hall Oct. 17-19 for a seamless, virtually flawless extravaganza that - in terms of pure energy - rivaled the best B'52s or Talking Heads concert.

Backed by two stunning female singers and six tireless dancers, Erasure put on an unforgettable show that captivated longtime fans and recruited new ones. Even those who paid the top ticket price of $28.50 didn't go away feeling cheated.

His flamboyance in full swing. Bell rode onto the stage in a swan-cycle, wearing what resembled a glittery turquoise women's bathing suit Don't forget that feather boa

At one point he professed that when he's feeling down. "I take me-self down to the local gay disco.

Embalmed by comparison, Clark rode onstage in an electronic buggy with headlights, and sat inside to master the keyboards and computers. His contribution was, at once, less flashy than Bell's but equally impressive well, almost.

By the time Erasure blasted into its third song, "Chorus," Music Hall had been transformed into Dance Hall, and there was no turning back. That held true especially when the duo performed three of its Abba remakes, including "Take a Chance on Me." So true was Erasure's tribute that the first "B" in the flashing Abba sign was backwards.

Fans could have been disappointed that Bell and Clark didn't don the Abba wigs they wear in their videos, but it wasn't enough to spoil the fun. Besides, attention could be diverted to Bell's thigh-high silver boots, which would've been the envy of Judy Jetson. Delivering its best, Erasure performed songs such as "Ooh L'Amour" that brought the duo fame, and the recent hit, "I Love to Hate You," that widened its audience.

To demonstrate versatility, Bell sang a rousing, camp-it-up rendition of Tammy Wynette's "Stand By Your Man." And he donned the biggest red high heels for his best Judy Garland on "Somewhere Over the Rainbow," which he dedicated to the "homophobic, racist b----s" of the world.

Luckily for the audience, Bell didn't disappear when he clicked his red heels.

says that they have news "every hour on the hour," then the anchorperson starts the news break by saying "It's 12:08" or "1:04" or any other time that's not "on the hour." Maybe they should change their slogan from "objective, accurate news" to "objective news, with a whole lot of accuracy.'

I was reading the ingredients list on my bottle of Diet Squirt (yes, I am a loser) and was surprised to discover that wood rosin and vegetable oil were included. Now that I know they're in there, I feel like I can taste them. ("Mmm, that's good wood rosin.")

... There are directions on shampoo.

. . . The directions - lather. rinse, repeat - are on there because if you "repeat" you unnecessarily will use twice as much shampoo. If you followed the directions exactly as they are written, you would have to keep "repeating" after each "lather, rinse" for eternity.

It was recently announced that Tweety Bird is a boy.

. . . Euphemism of the week - sprawling industrial complexes are always called industrial "parks." Usually, industrial parks (and also suburban subdivisions, for that matter) are named for what sort of natural thing developers kicked out of the place in order to build on it. In other words, the name "Cherry Forest Apartments" means a lot of cherry trees were cut down to make way for some apartments. This theory also holds true for things named after Native Americans.

. . A local record store reports that these CDs still sell well even though not too many people would probably admit to buying them - records by 1980s one-hit wonders Go West and A Flock of Seagulls, the soundtrack to "Grease" and "Frampton Comes Alive" by Peter Frampton.

. . Nickelodeon is making a huge mistake by firing "Ren and Stimpy" creator John K. Their rationale was that Mr. K. was taking too long to produce new cartoons and that his ideas were too offensive. Well, now the cartoons will be on time, but what's the point, since they aren't going to be "real" Ren and Stimpy shows anyway. Plus, they should have been happy that some of the cartoons were offensive - that's the reason they were popular in the first place.

But the saddest thing of all about this firing business is that John K. did the extremely tense voice of Ren. Perhaps the person who does the voice of Snuggles, the cuddly fabric softener bear, could do the job.

Leon "Bernzy" Bernstein lives to shoot photographs on the mean streets of Manhattan, capturing everything from kissing couples to freshly executed mobsters. He will re-arrange a murder scene when needed convinced that people like to see hats on dead

The police are mystified by Bernzy's ability to reach a crime scene before they do. Actually, the shifty shutterbug has connections to both the mob and the police, though he refuses to take sides.

That is until he meets a beautiful widowed club owner (Barbara Hershey), who enlists him for a favor. Mob figures keep popping up and insisting that business dealings with her late husband entitle them to a piece of the club. She wants Bernzy to find out what's behind it.

Incriminating photographs of Mafia leaders and government officials keep Bernzy from getting whacked as he uncovers a scam where stolen gas ration coupons flood the black market. When Bernzy discovers that a mobland massacre will take place, he goes to elaborate lengths to shoot the laughter, not afterwards, but as it's happening. Blame writer/director Howard Franklin for muddying "The Public Eye." He wrongly believes that an audience needs a complicated plot they can sink their teeth into. All they really want is a character they haven't met a hundred times before.

For his part, Pesci is up to the task. Bernzy is based on real-life photographer Arthur Fellig, or Weejee as he was called because he had the sixth sense of a Ouija board when it came to sniffing out photo opportunities.

Pesci almost underplays the role, at least compared to his hyperactive performances in "Goodfellas" and the "Lethal Weapon" movies. He injects the character with an appropriate larger-thanlife quality, chomping obscenely large cigars and dressing in the rumpled shirt and overcoat of someone who rarely sleeps before

Leanne ROGERS

The death of a loved one, pre-mature and unexpected, is shattering experience. It's only natural that the survivor would take time getting over the loss, having that person in their thoughts. Maybe taking comfort in feeling the person is still with them, supporting them. If you just hurt enough and miss the person enough, maybe they'll come back.

That's the starting point for the 1991 British film "Truly, Madly, Deeply." After her lover has died, a London translator, played by Juliet Stevenson, is having a great deal of difficulty getting on with her life. When she is frightened or anxious, she hears his voice reassuring her or reminding her to lock the back door. He even speaks to her in Spanish, a language he hadn't mastered while Shutting herself up in her ramshackle flat — there are problems with the plumbing, heat, not to mention rats - she plays the piano remembering duets with her cellist lover. Stevenson is shocked and overloved when her lover. played by Alan Rickman, actually reappears. . .

The couple gradually moves from the euphoria of their reunion into the old patterns. After being closeted away for a week, she returns to work. When she comes home, she finds her flat has been organized and rearranged.

"She never could hang a picture," Rickman wryly observes.

Then there are Rickman's buddies, other dead guys, who start taking over her home, watching videos all night. There's a very funny scene when the guvs are discussing their favorite films, then give Stevenson recriminating looks when they discover she has accidentally taped over "Manhat-

Out in the real world, Stevenson has befriended a language service client, a pregnant Chilean woman, a filmmaker in her own country and now cleaning offices in London.

The woman's doctor, who has' fled El Salvador, is working as a waiter in a restaurant where the owner cheats his staff. She meets a nice guy, a psychologist working with the mentally handicapped, who is interested in her.

In short, Stevenson starts realizing she has to make a choice betually living her life in the pres-

When I saw the trailer for this film, written and directed by Anthony Minghella, the effort was being made to sell the picture as a sort of romantic comedy along the lines of "Ghost." There really isn't much similarity. There is comedy and romance although in this film there is a more somber tone. It looks at the pain and anger connected with loss, at the need to put grief away and move ahead with life.

Stevenson is disorganized and not overly adorable. Rickman, who constantly complains about being cold, grows less idealized but no less loving during his return from the netherworld.

"Madly, Truly, Deeply" is available on cassette at your local video midnight," he says, "the world will pass me by."

He clues into our collective curiosity about photojournalists who try to capture the precise moment of personal pain, love or triumph. In one of the film's many lead-plated ironies, Bernzy has none of these things in his own life so must seek'them vicariously through his lens. Photographic paper boxes labeled DRUNKS, CROWDS and POLICE stack to the ceiling of his apartment. At eye level is a maze of laundry lines with clothes pins' hanging up prints to dry. Even his car has a processing lab in the trunk, so that he can have pictures delivered to newspapers

Of course, there's more to Bernzy than a stray check. He wants to be an artist, to have a book of photographs published. Although even his best friends view him as a vulture, he knows his artist's soul will someday be rewarded in a show at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

There's also that labored love interest, perhaps the first time Pesci has been cast in a romantic light. Meanwhile, Barbara Hershey looks downright uncomfortable in the femme fatale role (and outfits) usually associated with Rita Hayworth.

As a movie about photography, "The Public Eye" shines on a technical level. The cinematography and art direction capture the era seamlessly, with well-choreographed black-and-white images that slow down to still-life just before Bernzy snaps the shutter. The color, meanwhile, is vintage Hollywood.

Mark Isham's music score (his third in a major release in as. many weeks) is both unique and hauntingly familiar; the smooth horns recall the saxaphones from "Taxi Driver."

What "The Public Eye" needed was someone like "Taxi Driver's" Martin Scorsese behind the wheel. It needed to forget about 'entertainment" for awhile and penetrate even deeper into the soul of the year's most fascinating screen character.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Cooking in clay fits 'comfort food' mold

Cooking in clay is without a doubt the second oldest culinary method, exceeded in antiquity only by roasting meat on a stick held over a fire.

Clay cookware is experiencing a culinary revival, mainly attributed to the once again popular "comfort food" trend that finds us enjoying blade-cut chuck roasts, hearty roast chickens and fish, cooked slowly to tenderize, keep in the moisture and accentuate the flavor.

Rediscover clay

Although not as readily available on the market as it once was, clay cookware can be found in most kitchen stores and houseware retailers.

But those of us who once enjoyed the flavorful treats from cooking in clay can still find them boxed carefully in the fruit cellar, hiding behind the ice cream maker and electric knife.

Like the aforementioned classics, clay cookware will never go out of style, it will continue to mosey on in and out, experiencing a short-lived resurgence, then only to return to the cellars and basements of the eclectic kitchen collector.

Making a comeback

Clay cookware is similar to a paisley tie: If you hold onto it long enough, it's bound to become popular once again.

If you have forgotten just how well these clay beauties performed, all you need to do is simmer up a pot of chicken and vegetables or the toughest cut of pot roast you can find and follow the manufacturer's directions.

Classic unglazed clay, known commercially as a Romertopf or Schlemmertoph, will require you to soak it in water for at least an hour before being placed in a cold oven.

Cooking benefits

The water retained in the clay walls allows your food to steam, in addition to trap in and hold all the aromas and flavors.

Much like an ancient pressure cooker or the olden days waterless cookware, these pots also boast the fact that they help keep in much needed nutrients that are normally cooked away during cooking routines.

Glazed clay cookware, similar to the bread pot and steamer pot, need not be soaked and can be placed into the workforce immediately following a generous wiping of oil to retard sticking.

The glazed pots available nowadays are definitely more "giftsy" but the serious cook will be able to appreciate the extraordinary tastes and texture derived from this type of cooking.

The Yunnan Steampot with center steam chimney sits upon a boiling saucepan filled with the cook's choice of liquid.

Personal favorites include broths, wine and court bouillons. Cut up chicken, vegetables and rice turn out better than finger-lickin' good when using this clay steamer.

Again, the only problem with the Yunnan steamer is finding one.

Check the Oriental stores in the area or ask artists who work with clay. Not only will you have an unusual and healthy cooking vessel, but also a work of art to proudly display in your kitchen.

For the diet conscious, clay cookware is a godsend mainly because you can cook with little or no

It tenderizes meats and does wonders to fish and few herbs, not relying on calorie laden sauces

The resulting products are leaner, juicer and offer incredible tenderness, something a dieter usually gives up when preparing leaner entrees.

Substitutions | cut fat, not flavor

■ Cut the fat in your diet. It's easier than you think. A few healthy substitutions cut 18 grams of fat from "Terry's Chicken," a casserole.

BY KEELY WYGONIK STAFF WRITER I II-

Like a lot of brides, Laura Letobar of Livonia wasn't very handy in the kitchen when she got married. "As I became more familiar with cooking I found I actually enjoyed it. Soon I started trying out new recipes every week," she said. The only problem was, as her interest in cooking increased, so did her weight, and her Ten pounds after her wedding, she started experimenting with recipes to reduce the fat. "We found it much easier to lose weight and felt better by reducing the amount of fat in our meals instead of trying to starve ourselves with miniature portions.'

A radiation therapist at Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, Letobar said she was also concerned about the health consequences of a high fat diet. Recent medical studies link certain types of cancer including breast and colon, heart disease, and diabetes to a high fat diet.

Terry's Chicken & MS 0F ORIGINAL RECIPE 8 chicken breasts (skinless/boneless) 8 slices Muenster cheese 1 can (10 3/4 oz.) cream of chicken soup 2 cups Pepperidge Farm stuffing mix 1 stick margarine (melted) Serves eight

LOWFAT RECIPE

8 chicken breasts (sti-1 can (10 oz.) Campbell's 99% fat free cream of chicken soup

2 cups reduced sodium chicken broth 4 cups Pepperidge Farm stuffing mix Preheat oven 325 degrees. Spread cream of chicken soup on bottom of non-stick $9 \times 13 \times 2$ baking dish. Place chicken breasts on soup. Combine stuffing and broth in a separate bowl. Spoon stuffing over chicken to cover completely. Cover pan with foil and bake for 1 1/2 hours. Remove cover for the last 15 minutes of baking to brown stuffing. Let cool 5-10 minutes before serving to allow excess liquid to evaporate.

Serves eight

At a departmental pot luck at the hospital, Letobar volunteered to bring Cheesy Potatoes to put this new" way of cooking to the test.

Little did my co-workers know: that I substituted low fat cheese, low fat sour cream, and completely omitted the butter. Not only did they eat an entire pot that had over four pounds of hash brown potatoes in it — they even asked for the recipe. Many couldn't believe it was low fat until I reminded them there was no oil slick floating on top of the pot.

With the success of the pot luck behind her, Letobar started "Laura's Fat Free Kitchen," a monthly newsletter with low fat cooking tips and recipes.

She also met Judy Neubaucher of the American Cancer Society, and with her help and support, began talking to cancer support groups about low fat cooking.

"I wanted to help my patients more," she said. "If it's a hassle, you're not going to do it. People are busy. When the doctor says 'reduce the fat in your diet,' they don't know where to begin.

"I shop at Meijers and Pace, and use a lot of generic products to keep the cost down.

'I don't use a lot of pots and pans, and my recipes are easy enough for a spouse or kids to make."

She's quick to say her newsletter isn't just for dieters or cancer patients. "Everyone knows home cooking is the best cooking. If you lose a few pounds because you changed your cooking style — great! But, this is just an organized way of sharing information with others. As a service to her subscribers, Le-tobar offers a recipe repair shop to help subscribers reduce the fat content of favorite family recipes.

Terry Berlin of West Bloomfield gave Letobar "Terry's Chicken" a casserole dish to convert.

Berlin "eats pretty healthy." She doesn't eat a lot red meat or foods with gravy and sauces, includes lots of vegetables and fruits in her daily menus, and seasons foods with lemon juice and herbs.

Her recipe (see illustration) contained 26 grams of fat per serving, Letobar reduced it to eight.

"It's a very good dish, but it was rich," said Berlin. "Laura made it a ot lighter, but the taste isn't bland. I von't go back to the original recipe.

'The casserole called for a lot of cheese," said Letobar. "I used Campbell's 99 percent fat free cream of chicken soup instead. I substituted chicken broth for margarine and used more stuffing mix.

Microwave nutty candy

Halloween spellscaramel apples and other goodies. After you've finished coating your apples this year, turn your leftover caramels into a nutty microwave-made candy. Don't be tricked by these treats! They melt quickly in your microwave oven, but may not look melted because they keep their shape. After a minute or two, they'll be soft enough to stir smooth.

NUTTY CARAMEL CLUSTERS

- 25 vanilla caramels
- 1 tablespoon butter or marga
- I tablespoon milk
- I cup sliced almonds
- 1/2 cup cocktail peanuts 1/2 cup pecan halves
- 1/2 cup semisweet chocolate pieces
- 2 teaspoons shortening

Grease a baking sheet or line with waxed paper, set aside. In a 1-quart microwave-safe casserole combine caramels, butter or margarine and milk. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) for 1 to 2 minutes or until soft enough to stir smooth. stirring once during cooking. Stir in almonds, peanuts and pecans. Drop from a teaspoon onto the prepared baking sheet.

In a 1-cup glass measure combine chocolate pieces and shortening. Cook, uncovered, on high, for 1 to 2 minutes or until soft enough to stir smooth, stirring once during cooking. Just like caramels, chocolate pieces retain their shape even when melted.

Drizzle chocolate over each cluster. Cool to room temperature. Cover and chill until firm. Store, tightly covered, in the refrigerator. Makes about 14 pounds (25 pieces).

before you mix the batter. This will improve the height of your

For most cakes, you can use either a free-standing or heavy-duty. hand mixer. You may need to use the higher speed on the hand mixer when a range is given in the recipe. For stiff batters or egg whites, the power of a free-standing mixer may do the job quicker. While using the free-standing mixer, stay nearby. You'll need to scrape the sides of the bowl occasionally with a rubber scraper to evenly mix the batter and keep it free from lumps.

For white cakes with bright, white color, use only egg whites instead of the whole eggs. To beat the whites, use a deep, straightsided, small glass or metal bowl. Avoid plastic bowls because they retain oils and prevent the whites from forming peaks.

Beat the egg whites until stiff peaks form, about 90 seconds with an electric mixer. The tips of the peaks should stand straight when you lift the beaters.
Grease and lightly flour the baking pans. Use folded waxed paper, paper towels, or a pastry brush to generously apply butter or shortening to the bottoms and Make sure you grease seams and creases. Or, spray with cooking spray. Add a little flour, then tilt and tap the pan to distribute the flour evenly. When the pan is dusted completely, dump out the excess flour.

Place the cake pans on the middle rack of your oven and make sure the pans don't touch each other or the sides of the oven. This allows air to circulate freely in the oven during baking.

To test whether a shortening cake is done, insert a wooden toothpick into the center. It should come out clean. For angel or spongecakes, the top should spring back when touched. The edges should also pull away slightly from the pan. Cool the cake in the pan on a wire rack for 10 minutes only. (The cake may be hard to remove if cooled in the pan more than 10 minutes.) Then, remove the pan and cool the cake completely. Angel and spongecakes should cool completely in the upside-down pan for the best volume.

To remove the cake from the pan, loosen the sides with a metal spatula first. Place a wire rack atop the cake and invert the pan and rack together. Lift off the

Because the top of a cake is usually rounded, the cake won't sit securely on the rack when inverted, meaning it could crack. To prevent this, invert the cake again onto a second wire rack so its base rests on the rack.

Cool the cake thoroughly before frosting.

To split a cake layer, insert," wooden toothpicks halfway up the side of the layer. Relying on the wooden picks as a guide, use a sharp, long-bladed knife to slice horizontally through each layer.

To keep the cake platter cleanwhile you're frosting, tuck strips of waxed paper under the first cake layer to cover the platter. Once you're finished, gently pull the strips straight out.

To frost, place layers, one at.a time, on a cake platter, frosting between each. Frost the top and sides with a thin layer of frosting. first, then top with the final layer of frosting, swirling to coat.

Easy drop cookies school lunch treat

The school year brings lots of reasons to keep the cookie jar filled. There are lunches to pack, class parties, bake sales and Saturday soccer practice, to name just a few. And nothing goes as well with an after-school glass of milk as a cookie or two.

Drop cookies are one of the easiest kinds of cookies to make. Generally, all of the ingredients are mixed in a single bowl and the dough is "dropped" onto cookie sheets and baked. Among the best known and loved drop cookie is the oatmeal cookie.

Oatmeal cookies are versatile, too. You can start with a basic cookie and customize it by stirring in dried fruit, chocolate morsels, peanut butter chips, granola, nuts, crushed toffee, jelly beans, even gum drops.

Applesauce Raisin Chews were developed in the Quaker Kitchens where oatmeal cookies have been baked since 1908. Kids will love their soft, chewy texture and cinnamony apple flavor. Moms will appreciate the nutrition wholegrain oats provide and the fact this oatmeal cookie is not as sweet because applesauce is used in place of some of the sugar.

Choco-Peanut Butter Bars are another take-to-school winner. They're easy to make, taste like a cross between a candy bar and cookie and will withstand the rigors of a book bag. Bake these irresistible treats ahead and store in the freezer, or wait until the day you need them. They're that

- 1 cup (2 sticks) margarine, sof-
- 1 cup firmly packed brown sug-
- 1 cup applesauce
- 1 egg 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt (optional) 1 teasnoon ground cinnamon
- 21/2 cups Quaker oats (quick or old fashioned)
- 1 cup raisins

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Beat margarine and sugar until creamy. Add applesauce, egg and vanilla; beat well. Gradually add combined flour, baking soda, salt and cinnamon; mix well. Stir in oats and

Drop by rounded tablespoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake 11 to 13 minutes or until light golden brown. Cool 1 minute on cookie sheet. Remove to wire rack: cool completely. Store covered at room temperature. Yield: about 4 dozen

Elite Sweets visit icing on the cake

time helping her students at Stevenson High School in Livonia learn how to cook. Sometimes they make cakes, but a recent visit from Daniel T. Miller, owner of Elite Sweets in Livonia spends a lot of

was the icing on the cake. Miller and his assistants, including Brian Tamm who was one of Garvey's former students, helped the students decorate cakes.

"It was really neat, and helpful" said 10th-grader Laura Orouke. "They brought huge spatulas, frosting bags that don't break or tear, and turntables."

Garvey frequently invites professionals into her classroom to share their knowledge with the students. It also gives the students, some of whom will continue their culinary training, a taste of the real world.

Even students who don't plan restaurant careers, leave Garvey's classroom knowing how to cook and bake. "These kids have got to eat better," she said 'Fast foods are not the answer. Fresh is best.'

If you're thirsty for a warm treat, nutrition counselor Gail Posner of Southfield recommends Diet Carnation Hot C62 "It's a rich, warm and creamy chocolate beverage with only 25 calories per serving and less than one gram of fat," she's said. It's available at Shopping Center Market.

Meet Chef Bill Odarty who will prepare recipes from his cookbook "A Safari of African Cooking" and autograph copies of his book, noon to 2 p.m. in the Marketplace at Hudson's, Northland and 6-8 p.m. at Hudson's Fairlane on Monday, Oct.

Nancy Bayer from the Cozy Cafe/Gourmet Connection in Plymouth will be at Kitchen Glamor in Novi, Redford, West Bloomfield and Rochester this week. She'll show how to make puff pastry treats like Zesty Pesto Pinwheels and Peppered Parmesan Twists. There is a $3 fee for this class. For times and location, call 537-1300.

Fiber-rich chili keeps lid on fat

AP — Chili lovers — take note Here's a hot and hearty bowlful of red that keeps the lid on fat. To keep the fat low, make sure the meat is as lean as it can be. That means using turkey ground just from the breast (ground turkey that contains dark meat and skin can be significantly higher in fat). Adding lots of fiber-rich beans and vegetables gives the chili the heartiness you expect. And, a hint (or more, if you like) of crushed red pepper revs up the heat.

For a crisp, low-fat alternative to salty crackers or chips, toast some pita triangles to cool the

Area Dems praise Willow Run expansion

By RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

raff Writer General Motors might be planning to close its Willow Run plant, but like John Paul Jones, Wayne and Washtenaw county officials say they "have not yet begun to fight."

A coterie of Democrat officials announced last Thursday that everything is coming together to bring beaucoup economic opportunity, jobs and a lot of other good things to Willow Run Airport and southwest Wayne County.

Of the four main officials who made the announcement inside a hangar at the airport — county Executive Edward McNamara, state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, state Rep. Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti, and U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Ypsilanti - only McNamara is not seeking re-election Nov. 3.

The plan they espoused has several facets, but most of it hinges on getting one of the runways extended from 7,600 feet to 10,000 feet. That would enable cargo-carrying Boeing 747s to use Willow Run, and hopefully, make the Willow Run area a more desirable location for manufacturers and businesses involved in international trade.

"It's just a myriad of opportunity," McNamara said. "We (already) have some private developers prepared to come in with some proposals."

· Work on the runway extension is expected to get going within a year. When the job is done, runway 23 Left will extend out to where Ecorse Road is now. The road will either be relocated so that it circles around to the north, or tunneled under the runway.

The runway extension and other Willow Run improvements are expected to cost $22 million. That's supposed to be paid for with money from the federal government's Airport Improvement Trust Fund and from a $3-perpassenger tax recently approved for Metro.

A U.S. Customs office is also expected to be installed at Willow Run so that shipments coming in from overseas won't have to stop at Metro Airport to check in with Customs, then fly over to Willow Run.

In regard to the GM plant located at the airport's west end, Wayne and Washtenaw county officials plan to solicit a new tenant, presumably an auto manufacturer.

Profit said "we're going to build cars (in that plant)," but he didn't say what kind of cars.

County commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Canton, who wasn't involved in putting this deal together, said it really doesn't matter whether the manufacturer is American, German, Japanese or whatever.

"We can't afford to have allegiance to GM, Ford or Chrysler because they're multinational companies," he said.

Noting that Mazda cars are built in Flat Rock, Amann went on to say that any manufacturer who brings jobs to Michigan is welcome here.

Like Amann, Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack wasn't involved in planning this project, but approves of it. "From an economic standpoint it's undoubtedly good news for Canton," he said.

HAD THE OPERATION. AM STILL NOT RIGHT

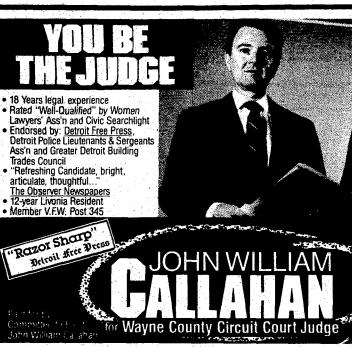

Agreeing to surgery for your arthritic hip, knee or hand, is a difficult decision. Usually you are informed of the hazards of the surgery, and of the effort you must make after the operation if the new joint is to function optimally. At times, what doesn't receive attention, but needs consideration, is your post operation state of mind.

state of mind.

It often happens that the operation goes well, the new joint works correctly, but you are unhappy - feel disappointed; unsure, hesitant, are tense and fatigued. Those who know you may ask "what is bothering you," or offer the opinion that you are depressed.

The problem is that the psychological side of yourself has not caught up with the physical aspect of your nature. Your mind still thinks of you as being younger than is reasonable and expects that you should snap back to what you were. But the image of what you were is of someone years younger, and free even of the beginnings of the arthritis that eventually took you to the operating room. The mind does not account for the years that muscles were hardly used nor consider how unreasonable the expectation that those muscles can now return to full function.

For the mind to adjust to the body can take months. It is not usual for a year or more to pass before feelings of dissatisfaction and doubt resolve.

'Grandma Marijuana' to discuss medicinal legalization

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW STAFF WRITER

A former Garden City resident popularly known as "Grandma Marijuana" will bring her argument for legalized medicinal marijuana to Redford Township tonight.

May Nutt, 71, of Beaverton will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Metro Detroit Libertarians Supper Club at 8 p.m. in the Ram's Horn restaurant at Telegraph and Plymouth roads.

Since 1978 when her 23-yearold son Keith was diagnosed with testicular cancer. Nutt has advocated the use of marijuana to alleviate the effects of nausea often caused by prescription drugs used to treat cancer and other illnesses.

Nutt helped to make medicinal marijuana legal in Michigan, but the federal government has since made the herb almost impossible to obtain legally.

Keith, who smoked marijuana to reduce his pain, died on the same day the legalization law was passed, Oct. 22, 1979, and his mother has been crusading for medicinal marijuana since.

you're laying in bed dying?" she

Along the way, Nutt has testified before committees in Lansing and before a federal judge in Washington D.C. who was gathering information for the federal Drug Enforcement Administration. She's been profiled by CBS News, the Bay City Times newspaper and by High Times maga-

Marijuana, Nutt said, is not a . cure for anything, but can be a great help in reducing or eliminating the side effects of drugs taken to fight illness. Some of the people she has talked to, Nutt said, report that they can walk if they smoke a little marijuana, whereas the prescription drugs alone "make them into zombies." Others say marijuana enables them to maintain a somewhat normal routine when they'd be more or less invalid otherwise.

Nutt currently does volunteer work with cancer patients at the Mid Michigan Regional Medical Center in Midland, but got out of the marijuana distribution business shortly after Keith died.

"All I do no now is talk to peo use (marijuana)," she said.

Nutt wears a marijuana pin when she works in the hospital, and "if (patients) ask me about it I answer them. As soon as they see (the pin) they know the significance.

Although Nutt has "mixed feelings" about drug legalization generally, she believes the government policy regarding recreational drugs is "totally wrong."

"All we're doing now is building more jails," she said. "They spend so much money flying federal helicopters over this area (to spot marijuana patches), but they're not getting anywhere. I think we've got our values pointed in the wrong direction."

But to the federal government's chagrin, Nutt continues to recommend marijuana. "I have (marijuana) cookbooks," she said. "Over the years I've accumulated a stack of material."

She favors smoking as the most effective way to ingest marijuana, but brewing tea with the herb is also good for people who aren't able or willing to smoke. Eating marijuana, in brownies for example, is the worst way to use it, Nutt said, because the effect takes hours to be felt. And marijuana suppositories are often best for children.

As for the question everyone wants answered, i.e. has May Nutt ever smoked marijuana? "I don't have any reason," she said.

WLAA harriers meet

The Western Lakes Activities Association will hold its annual boys and girls cross country meet Wednesday at Cass Benton Park.

The girls varsity race begins at 4 p.m. with North Farmington as the defending champion. The boys varsity runners follow at 4:30 p.m. with Walled Lake Western trying to defend its

Warriors ousted, 5-0

Lutheran High Westland played tough for 65 minutes Wednesday, but Riverview Gabriel Richard pulled away with four goals down the stretch to eliminate the host Warriors in a Class C-D district semifinal boys soccer match, 5-0.

The Warriors, who lost goalie Adam Danielczyk to an injury late in the match, bowed out of state tournament play with a 4-12-2 record.

All-WLAA soccer

Livonia schools grabbed six of the 11 spots on the recently announced All-Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer team.

WLAA co-champion Livonia Franklin is represented by junior forward Victor Rodopoulos, the only underclassman to make the squad. He is joined up front by Vince Troiani of Livonia Churchill and Farmington's Mike Giese.

The midfielders are Adam Pichler and Jeff Thomas, both of Livonia Stevenson. They are joined by Plymouth Salem's Tom Baker. Defenders include Owen Crosby and Mike Wdowiak, both of Plymouth Canton, along with Chris Saline of Salem.

Churchill's Kal Kaliszewski (goalie) also made the All-Conference team along with Kris Wiljanen (at-large) of WLAA co-champ Farmington.

The All-Western Division picks include Jason Buelow (midfielder), Richard Burnette (forward) and Jason Emero (goalie), all of Franklin. Brian Peters (defender) and Kevin DeHority (midfielder) also made the team.

Franklin's Patrick Curtis, David Steinert and Dan Kulick earned honorable mention status, as did Churchill's Justin Monson, Brian O'Beirne and Charlie Roberts.

All-Lakes Division choices included Mike Sneyd (defender) and Andrew Foley (forward), both of Stevenson. Spartan teammates Scott Sersen, Chris Grodzicki, Steve Williford and Nick Deren made honorable mention.

Churchill swimmers 5-1

Livonia Churchill ran its overall season dualmeet record to 5-1 with a 113-73 girls swim triumph Thursday over visiting Farmington Harri-

Double winners for the Chargers included Mary Corazza in the 200- and 500-yard freestyles with times of 2:08.27 and 5:40.93, respectively; Jaime Strauch, 50 freestyle (26.33) and 100 freestyle (56.88); and Liz Sorokac, 200 individual medley (2:22.59) and 100 backstroke (1:07.69). Carla Karoub added a first in the 100 butterfly (1:08.88)

Churchill also captured all three relay events. Sorokac, Kim Gruska, Karoub and Strauch won the 200 medley (2:01.6), while the quartet of the 200 freestyle (1:50.0).

In the 400 freestyle relay, the foursome of Garlacz, Corazza, Nicole Doyle and Strauch won in Rockets defused by Western

Westland John Glenn lost Friday to Walled Lake Western, 10-7, in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship. The Rockets, however, still have a chance to make the post-season playoffs.

By BILL PARKER STAFF WRITER

Chuck Apap probably felt like he was walking on air Friday night.

Actually, the Walled Lake Western football coach was swept off his feet and given a huge bear hug by assistant coach Mark Gratton after the Warriors won the school's first-ever league championship with a 10-7 victory over visiting Westland John Glenn.

"We took a giant step tonight," said Apap, celebrating the Western Lakes Activities Association crown. 'John Glenn is a helluva team. We've played some great teams this year and to play a team like Glenn and beat them, you know we have ar-

Senior tailback Arnie Gillert was the hero once again for the Warriors, but not just because of his customary running prowess. Oh sure, Gillert led Western's offense with 110 yards rushing on 23 carries. But it was a surprising pass play early in the fourth quarter that made the difference in the game.

With his team facing second down and 10 yards to go near midfield, Gillert hurled a 46-yard TD pass to Matt Engott to give the Warriors the lead for good with 9:17 remaining in the game. Place-kicker Travis Ilacqua added the extra point for the final margin of victory.

"We put our fastest football player (Engott) at flanker and just told him to go," explained Apap of the deciding touchdown. "Gillert is a hell of a passer. We knew he could throw the ball. He didn't have any completions before that play, but he knew when to save that first one for."

Both teams entered the game undefeated in seven starts. Glenn, the Lakes Division champion, was ranked in the top 10 in Class AA and had two WLAA crowns under its belt (1985 and 1987).

Western, meanwhile, the Western Division champion, was a top 10 team in Class A.

Rocket coach Chuck Gordon was disappointed with the loss, but offered only words of praise for Gillert and the Warriors.

"They (Western) have a very good team and they have a chance to have a great year," said Gordon. "That's a heck of a back. Everyone has trouble handling him."

Western's defense rose to the occasion in the closing minutes to preserve the win.

Following the deciding TD, Glenn was facing third-and-3 at its own 39. Junior quarterback Brian Morrison dropped back to pass, but Warrior Jason Burcham burst through the line and dropped the Rocket signalcaller for a 6-yard loss forcing Glenn to punt.

The Rockets' final possession began at the 39 with 1:57 remaining. A 15-yard pass completion from Morrison to Derek Besco, followed by a pair of Western penalties, gave the Rockets a first down at the Warrior 28. Matt Howton drove the ball to the 20. Western's Derek Lindsay and Company stepped forward and corralled Morrison in the back field for a 10yard loss.

Warrior Alex Gilbert then made a big breakup of a Morrison-to-Besco pass attempt at the Warrior 8 on Glenn's next play. With 28 ticks left on the clock, the Rockets had a chance to tie the game, but Doug Hammond's 47-yard field goal attempt sailed wide to the right.

The Rockets opened the scoring early in the second quarter when Derek Besco threw a halfback pass to his brother Bryan for a 38-yard TD.

Tough sledding: Westland John Glenn's Matt Howton (22) is wrapped up by Western's Andy Nicholas (4) as Zack Budden (99) moves in to assist on the play during Friday's WLAA title game at Western.

Glenn a 7-0 lead.

Western's Ilacqua closed the gap to 7-3 when he kicked a 40-yard field goal with 24 seconds remaining in the first half.

The difference was our defense in the second half," Apap said. "The defense is in great shape. They're mentally prepared for the fourth quarter. If it's a close game and it comes down to the fourth quarter, it's ours.

"My IROC (Apap's nickname for his team) had a flat tire at halftime,' continued Apap. "We changed the tire and fueled up. We siphoned all the fuel from the Rocket ship. We fueled up the IROC and were ready to go in the second half."

Morrison led Glenn's offense, passing for 127 yards on eight completions

ayne celebrates league crown

By BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

With only 25 available players and nine going both ways, some may feel feel sympathetic toward Wayne Memorial's football team.

But the Zebras continued to beat the odds Friday, gaining a share of the Wolverine A League title with a 32-18 win over visiting Southgate An-

It was Wayne's sixth straight victory of the year and the school's first football championship of any kind since 1972. The Zebras will share crown with Dearborn Fordson, a 28-14 winner Friday over Wyandotte.

Both teams finished league play at

But after Wayne's 20-3 demolishing of Fordson only a week earlier, it's clear that Chuck Howton's team was playing the better football down the

"The University of Michigan has a slogan, 'Those who stay will be chamdoused with a cold cooler of water, Deion Sanders style. "We have 16 seniors who have worked hard and stuck together. It's a tremendous feeling and it's really a good accomplish-

The Zebras were missing starting senior quarterback Jeff Mate, who sat out because of a school disciplinary

But they didn't miss a beat as backup Jeff Tapp, a 5-foot-7, 145pound junior, smartly directed Wayne to its first score, a 26-yard TD pass to Jeremy Treppa.

"He had all week to practice and we know he's a super athlete," Howton said of his wide receiver. "He's got a lot of skills. He hasn't played quarterback since the ninth grade, but we knew he could play there. We just didn't have to use him.

As it turned out, Tapp completed only one pass, but led Wayne to a commanding 26-0 halftime lead before leaving early in the third quarter. He was shaken up on a 10-yard gain after colliding with Southgate's Mark Mckenzie on the sideline. Running backs Bruce Calhoun and Johnny Ballard took care of the rest of the scoring for Wayne.

Calhoun had four TDs on the night on runs of 7, 31, 1 and 7 yards. He rushed for 93 yards on 18 carries and became only the third back in Wayne history to rush for more than 1.000 vards. The 6-1, 190-pound senior now has 1,058 on the season.

Equally as impressive was 5-7, 175pound senior Johnny Ballard, who racked up 117 yards rushing on the night, including a 70-yard dash in the fourth quarter to set up Wayne's final

"Johnny is a senior and a captain," Howton said. "We ran that counterplay to him several times, but he played well on defense, too.

"He's our nose guard. And at only 175 pounds, he goes in there and sacrifices his body, too, for the good of the team."

Wayne rolled up 283 yards rushing and had a total of 309 for the game.

The Zebras' defense held Southgate (2-6 overall) to 170 yards, but had trouble stopping 5-7, 150pound speed merchant Kris Knight, who ran the second half kickoff back 85 yards for one TD, and went 66 yards on a flea flicker early in the fourth period for another score.

Quarterback Brent Hall scored Southgate's other TD on a 1-yard sneak. He was nine of 15 passing for 73 yards, but was picked off twice by Charles Monroe.

The victory keeps Wayne in the hunt for a playoff berth in Class A Region II and sets up a big showdown next week against rival Westland John Glenn, which is coming off its first defeat of the season, 10-7 loss to Walled Lake Western.

CC ousts Stevenson in 'A' district final

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

There were a few things favoring Redford Catholic Central in Friday's Class A district soccer final against Livonia Stevenson at Southfield. The Shamrocks were bigger. They were more physical. And they wanted it more.

Those are three pretty good reasons why CC won, 1-0, eliminating the defending state champions and putting the Shamrocks into tonight's regional against the Ann Arbor Huron-Ann Arbor Pioneer winner at Plymouth Stevenson coach Walt Barrett elaborated on the causes of his team's ouster. "They dominated the game," said Barrett. "Catholic Central flat out played a better game today. We just had a bad game . . . and we picked a bad time to do it.

'But (CC) definitely earned it.' Indeed, it was strange seeing a team from Stevenson, the school that for so long dominated high school soccer throughout the state, be dominated. But CC did just that.

The Spartans (10-4-4 final record) are less experienced, it's true (13 of their 25 roster players are freshmen or sophomores; CC has 23 juniors and seniors, and just two sophomores).

The Shamrocks (now 14-2-2) turned their age into a sizable advantage, outmuscling Stevenson for most balls. Further hampering the Spartans was the loss of senior keeper Steve Weller, who suffered a fractured hand while warming up for the game. Freshman Jim Grewe replaced him.

Still, the game was scoreless until the second half. CC finally got on the scoreboard on a corner kick, thanks to a breakdown in Stevenson's defensive coverage.

"We thought there were some gaps there we could take advantage of," said CC coach Phil LaJoy. "We thought we had an advantage on the corner kicks.

Livonia Franklin kept-its state playoff hopes alive Saturday with a 32-6 football victory over Plymouth Salem in a Western Lakes crossover.

The Patriots (6-2), who close out the regular season against winless Trenton, are in a battle for the fourth and final playoff spot in Class AA Region II with Wayne Memorial (6-2) and Brighton (6-2).

Livonia Clarenceville recorded its second straight shutout Friday, defeating Mount Clemens Lutheran North 22-0 in a Metro Conference crossover football game.

The Trojans are 4-4 overall, while Lutheran North fell to 3-5.

The Trojans gained 318 yards in total offense and held Lutheran North to 216 yards. Carl Holston led the Trojans with 113 yards on 13 carries and Tod Soop gained 70 yards on 13 carries.

Clarenceville scored a pair of touchdowns in the second quarter to take a 16-0 halftime lead. Soop scored on a 1-yard run and Carl Holston went in for the two-point conversion for an 8-0 lead.

Ocelots capture 3rd title

By C.J. RISAK STAFF WRITER

'No playoff this time.

For the third-straight year, Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team collected a Region 12 championship — this time by defeating Cuyahoga CC (from Cleveland) 2-.0 Saturday at SC.

The Ocelots won the championship outright for the first time in five years. They finished the season dominating their opponents, just as they had throughout the region season.

SC went 9-0, the defense - led by sweeper Mike Presley, stopper Jack Abate, defenders Bill Lanspeary and Ryan Carriere, and keeper Matt Stabile - surrendering just three goals while posting seven shutouts.

Of course, none of that will matter when the Ocelots head to the NJCAA Inter-regional Tournament Nov. 7-8.

But they can afford a short celebration. Still, it took some time before Cuyahoga was subdued. SC dominated the opening half but — in what is becoming a team trademark — couldn't finish. The game was scoreless at the break.

"How much can you outplay a team?" asked SC coach Van Dimitriou, a question that needed no answer. "In the first half, we just could not finish. We had opportunities . . . There are no excuses. We just are not finishing on our opportunities."

The game actually turned on plays by Cuyahoga. Just two minutes after Milan Ramadanovic received a yellow card for arguing a call, he went charging into SC keeper Stabile — a red-card offense. His team was forced to go the rest of the game short a play-

Nobody was around Verrino.

No one was marking him. After that, it was just a matter of keeping Stevenson at bay. That wasn't too difficult until, in the late going, Barrett shuffled his pushing seniors Jeff Thomas and Adam Pichler up front. The Spartans' pressure increased, but CC came close to doubling its advantage on several occasions, too.

Lady Ocelots boot Siena Heights

Maybe things are looking up for Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team.

After suffering through a ninegame winless streak, the Lady Ocelots have now won four of their last five. Included in that run is Thursday's 2-0 shutout of Siena Heights, a team that had tied SC 1-1 earlier this year.

The game was scoreless through the first half, a tribute to the Ocelot defense because starting keeper Kim Owczarzak was sidelined with a sore ankle, sustained in practice earlier in the week. Mari Kissinger filled in for Owczarzak; Kissinger usually plays outside defender. She also runs cross country for SC.

Nine minutes into the second half, Amy Krajewski found the net, with the help of a former Ocelot. Krajewski took a direct kick, sending it into the box where it hit Siena Heights' Nikki Johnson, who played for SC last year. The ball deflected off Johnson and into the net to make it 1-

Another year, another title.

SC made it eight Eastern Conference championships in a row Thursday when it defeated Delta College 15-9, 15-13, 15-10 at SC. The Lady Ocelots are 9-0 in the conference with one match remaining, they are 25-6-2 overall

For the first time this season, SC had three hitters with a better than .300 kill average. That was one of coach Tom Teeters' goals at midseason; another was improving the teams serving. That, too, looked better, with Julie Wood serving four aces, Tracia Clendenen and Jennifer Damphousse two each and Janine Sproul one.

Wood led the attack with 16 kills (.351). Nancy Ehlert had 15 (.367), Erica Edwards eight (.375) and Damphousse seven (.278). Clendenen had 26 assists-to-kills and Ehlert added 20, as well as 16 digs. Damphousse and Wood contributed 15 digs apiece. Danielle Sheehy paced the front-line defense with five blocks.

To market, to market: Cincinnati's Findlay Market, an open-air market in operation since 1852, is famous for its fresh produce and meats.

Incinnati River runs through it

BY ANNASUE M. WILSON NEW YORK TIMES SYNDICATE

This month Cincinnati celebrated its glory days as a major river port at a festival called Tallstacks 192, when 16 riverboats from across America steamed up and down the Ohio River and met at the city's docks.

Cincinnati was settled in 1788, long before the steamboat era, by Col. Benjamin Stites, who was so impressed with the beauty and natural advantages of the harbor and hills along the Ohio River that he decided to build there.

Seven hills make up the Cincinnati area, and there are some remarkable views of the gentle, winding Ohio River, an integral feature of life on the Ohio-Kentucky border. Mount Adams, one of the hills, boasts Victorian row houses reminiscent of San Francisco, as well as restaurants and shops. In Eden Park, atop another hill, is the highly regarded Cincinnati Art Museum.

Many early Cincinnatians were downtown along the Erie Canal, which they jocularly referred to as "the Rhine.

This neighborhood became known as Over-the-Rhine and, though the Germans have moved on and the canal has been filled in to become Central Parkway, the area is worth a tour by car for its remaining 19th-century archi-

Cincinnati is a river town and its destiny has always been linked to the Ohio. If you travel by car or taxi into the city from the Greater Cincinnati International Airport, cross the river on the Anderson Ferry by taking scenic Route 212 to Constance Road and follow the signs. The ferry costs $2 and you can pick up U.S. Route 50 right into town.

The Cincinnati Symphony orchestra and the Cincinnati Pops Orchestra perform on weekends, at Music Hall, into May. Of note are performances of Schumann's on Nov. 6 and 7. For tickets, which cost from $9 to $46, call the box office at (513) 381-3300.

The College Conservatory of Music at the University of Cincinnati presents exceptional opera and musical theater. An opera workshop production of Monteverdi's "Madrigals of Love and War" will take place on Nov. 22 at the University YMCA on Calhoun Street next to the campus of the University of Cincinnati. The musical-theater department will perform Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Carousel" Nov. 18 to 22 at Corbett Auditorium on Corbett Drive on the campus. Tickets cost $14 and $15. Call the box office at (513) 556-4183.

"The Art of Asia," the Cincinnati Art Museum's fine and vast collection of art from the Levant to Japan, including India and Asia Minor, is on view free of charge through Nov. 1, when the museum closes until Jan. 15 to complete its extensive two-year renovation.

The museum is in Eden Park and is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m - until Nov. 1. For information call (513) 721-5204.

What to see

Downtown Cincinnati sits very near the river, and the several bridges across to Kentucky, including Roebling's Suspension Bridge near downtown, (a first draft for the Brooklyn Bridge), loom and lurch over the water just to the south.

Riverfront Stadium is right on the river, and in season the continuous flow of Reds and Bengals fans helps keep downtown Cincinnati abuzz.

Fountain Square at Fifth Street between Walnut and Vine is named for its 1872 Tyler Davidson fountain done by the Bavarian sculptor August von Kreiling.

Two museums downtown are worth a visit. The Taft Museum, 316 Pike St., (513) 241-0343, is an 1820 mansion in which the old master paintings and European decorative art collections of Anna and Charles Phelps Taft, half-brother of President William Howard Taft, is on view. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Suggested donation, $2; students and seniors,

The Contemporary Arts Center, 115 East Fifth St., (513) 721-0390, famed for successfully defending itself in a lawsuit involving the controversial Robert Mapplethorpe retrospective in 1990, is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission, $2; students and senior citizens, $1; free on Sunday and Monday.

The Findlay Market on Elm Street in Over-the-Rhine is an open-air food market worth a morning browse on Monday, Wednesday, Friday or Saturday. Its 1852 market building is on the National Register of Historic

Quite a few historic houses have survived in the Cincinnati area and are worth driving by, if not touring. On Dayton Street once called Millionaire's Row, is the John Hauck House, 812 Dayton St., (513) 721-3570, open Thursday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.; Sunday, noon to 4 p.m., admission $2, an Italianate town house built by a famous Cincinnati brewer.

Through Over-the-Rhine on Sycamore Street and into Mount Auburn, up the hill to the north of downtown, are a great many restored 19th-century buildings.

The riverside neighborhood of Covington just across the Ohio has a number of antebellum mansions in the East Second Street ea. The 1853 Mimosa Mansion, 412 East Second St., (606) 261-9000, is open Saturday and Sunday, 1 to 6 p.m., admission $3.

Union Terminal, 1301 Western Ave., (513) 287-7000, houses the Museum of Natural History and the Historical Society, Monday through Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., admission from $4.95 to $11.95; children, $2.95 to $6.95. Although the museum's collection is still growing, the building is worth seeing for its unusual art deco architecture and rookwood mosaics.

The Cincinnati Zoo and Botanical Garden, 3400 Vine St., open every day from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., is verdant and pleasant all year round. Admission, $6; children, $3.25. Its botanical collection is one of the largest of any zoo in the world. Admission, $6; seniors, $4; children, $3.25.

Study vacations: Lessons in travel

By EVERETT POTTER SPECIAL WRITER

For vacation, not everybody goes to the beach to bask in the sun, read glossy best sellers and sip pina coladas.

Some folks want to explore the archaeological sites of the American Southwest, participate in a photography seminar in Paris, watch humpback whales off the coast of the Dominican Republic or muse over Russian art treasures.

It's all part of a growing phenomenon — educational travel or the study vacation.

"These are people who've done all that run-of-the-mill stuff," says Ann Waigand, edi-tor and publisher of The Educated Traveler, a newsletter devoted to special-interest and educational travel.

"They'll take a behind-thescenes museum tour in Europe or visit European opera capitals or go bird-watching in Costa Rica. They've been to England many times, but they'll return just to visit English gardens, for example.

"But these travelers are not specialists. If all they want to do is watch birds, for example, then they probably already belong to bird-watching organiza-

"Our readers are renaissance travelers who want to broaden themselves in many directions. And they want a certain amount of style and luxury on these trips.

"These people are not interested in backpacking it - they did that when they were kids.'

A wide range of study tours is offered year-round by groups such as the Smithsonian Institution, the American Museum of Natural History, the Art Institute of Chicago, the World Affairs - Council and the National Audubon Society, not to mention dozens of universityalumni organizations.

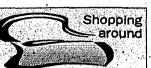

One example, a trip called "Art and Architecture of St. Petersburg," is offered by the National Trust for Historic Preservation from Feb. 14 to Feb. 24, 1993.

Among the highlights are three visits to the Hermitage Museum, trips to three palaces, several theater performances, special evening banquets and lectures by Russian museum curators.

The cost for this trip -$3,595 per person — includes hotel accommodations, all meals and airfare from New York.

Participants must join the National Trust: A single membership is $15, a family membership is $24.

Joining the sponsoring organization is almost always a prerequisite of going on their trips. But membership fees are often nominal and tax deducti-

The Smithsonian Institution, which offers a wide range of tours and programs, has a $20 membership fee that includes a subscription to Smithsonian magazine.

One upcoming Smithsonian tour is "Cultural Traditions in the Heart of Japan," to Nov. 7.
It includes visits to the cities of Kyoto, Nara and Kanazawa and stops at such sites as Oriental gardens and craftsmen's studios. The price of $5,445 per person includes hotel accommodations, some meals and air fare from Los Angeles.

"Many people take these tours because they like having the insights an expert can provide," says Karen Ledwin, director of marketing for Academic Travel Abroad Inc.

"But probably the single biggest reason is that they can have experiences that they cannot have on their own.

"They can go_behind the scenes of a museum to watch a textile restorer at work. They can go to a sheep farm and learn about shearing wool. They can visit a men's choir in Wales that isn't a show for

Academic Travel Abroad organizes and customizes tours for the Smithsonian Institution, Harvard Alumni, World Wildlife Fund and many other

The average age of participants, says Ledwin, "is about 55, professionals and retired professionals who are continuing their education through travel. As the American population grows other, this area of travel is becoming more popu-Ledwin gauges the average cost of such trips as "$3,000 to $4,000 for 12 days of all-inclusive travel. Cruises are more, averaging $7,000." Many journeys are timed for off-season or shoulder-season; participants arrive when the natives, and not tourists, are predominant. Academic Travel Abroad has prepared more than 140 trips for its clients in 1992 and 1993. Its Smithsonian Institution tours include "The Tropical Treasures of Panama" from March 14 to March 20, 1993.

The Educated Traveler newsletter is $65 for 10 issues. A subscription includes an index to back issues and a 'Directory of Museum-Sponsored Tours.

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

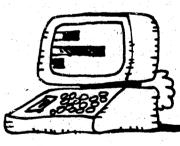

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

MAIL DIRECTORY

AFTER HOURS CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING Voice Mail® allows you to place your Observer & Eccentric Classified ad from your touch-tone telephone anytime!

You may place, change, or cancel an ad at any time. Just call us at the appropriate classified number, and listen as the operator guides you through the steps to change or place your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. If it's after 5 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the following Monday paper. If it's after five on Friday or the weekend,

AD SITTER-~ 953-2040

It's always in, even when you're out. When you add Ad Sitter to your ad, Voice Mail® allows you get messages and responses when you're not at home to answer the telephone. Up to 50 messages can be stored for you for seven days in your personal Voice Mail® box. Take the wear and tear out of dealing with your ad responses with Ad Sitter. To add Ad Sitter to your own ad, call 591-0900, 611-1070, or 852-3222.

your changes will made in time for Thursday's editions.

HOMELINE--953-2020

Homeline is also available 24 hours a day Tuesday through Sunday. It lets you listen to Open House listings placed by local Realtors according to price and/or location. It's an easy way to find out when homes are going to be open. If you're a Realtor, one of our helpful salespeople will be glad to arrange for your Open House to be listed on HomeLine.

PERSONAL SCENE-1-900-454-8088

Available 24 hours a day, this popular new directory lets you easily respond to a Personal Scene ad. Call 1-900-454-8088 for only $1.49 per minute and when the system answers, follow the easy instructions (be sure you have the 5-digit. number that appears in the ad you've selected) and be ready to leave a message if you think you've found someone you'd like to meet. To place your own free five-line ad, call 591-0900 today.
