Family escapes fire, dad charged

Robert Mulka's pregnant wife is standing by her husband. Mulka is charged with attempted murder and arson following a house fire that started while Mulka's wife and their two children slept.

A financially distraught Westland man has been charged with trying to kill his pregnant wife and their two young children by setting the family house on fire while they were sleeping.

Robert Michael Mulka's wife, Wendy, who police said believes her husband is innocent, sobbed uncontrollably after Mulka was arraigned in court Friday afternoon on three counts of assault with intent to murder and one count of arson.

Mulka's wife, 22, and two daughters, ages 7 and 1, escaped from the family's four-bedroom brick ranch home in the 32500 block of Parkwood after the older daughter awoke and "couldn't breathe" in the smoke-filled house, Westland police said.

The flames erupted about 6:30 a.m. May 25 and spread rapidly through the residence because the living room had been doused with a flammable liquid, Westland fire officials have ruled.

The mother and children escaped from the heavily damaged house near Palmer Road and Venoy by climbing through the 7-year-old girl's bedroom window, Westland Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe said Friday.

Robert Mulka, wearing blue jeans and a black T-shirt, was arraigned Friday before 18th District Judge C. Charles Bokos, who set a $250,000 cash bond. A plea of not guilty was entered for him.

Mulka, who had worked at Leader Machine Products Inc. in Westland, has been scheduled for a preliminary examination Thursday — a hearing that will determine if he should stand trial on the charges.

Mulka glanced toward his family as authorities led him in handcuffs from the courtroom. He could face up to life in prison if convicted of trying to kill his family. He could face 20 years if found guilty of arson.

Wendy Mulka, accompanied by family and friends, sobbed as she walked from the courtroom Friday, and she did not stop when the Ob-

With their marriage 47 years strong, Edward and Eleanor Zajdel remain inseparable.

When she goes to hospitals to visit the sick, he drives her.

When she visits elderly and disabled senior citizens in nursing homes, he accompanies her.

That's the way they do things — together.

"He's always helping me," Eleanor said. "I can't be without him. The neighbors say they've never seen two people like us. We're always together."

It seems only fitting that the Zajdels have become the first couple ever to share the honor of being named Westland Senior Citizen of the Year for Community Service. They recently won the award during a ceremony at the city's Friendship Center.

Westland residents for 33 years, Eleanor, 75, and Edward, 74, are known for their dedication to St.

Armand Russo, 70, is a welcome visitor to some of Westland's neediest residents — senior citizens who are shut in at their homes because of physical disabilities or illnesses.

Several days a week, the Westland man volunteers to take meals to homebound seniors. He even got a commercial driver's license to deliver the meals in a van from Westland's senior citizen Friendship Center.

"When you walk into an apartment of the less fortunate people, they get a big smile on their face," Russo said, smiling himself as he talked about his volunteer work.

Board honors high-flying graduate

A graduating senior whose accomplishments have included receiving an appointment to the Air Force Academy was honored by the board of education last week.

Kevin Bingham, who heads to the Air Force Academy July 1, was recognized for his achievements including being named a National Merit Scholar finalist, being named Garden City High School's Junior Air Force ROTC Ace of Aces for 32 perfect test scores and earning his Boy Scout Eagle.

"We've had a number of real quality students over the years. Kevin represents the best and brightest for a long time in the past and I suspect for a long time in the future," said Superintendent Michael Wilmot.

The district has had students appointed to a military academy, National Merit scholars and Eagle Scouts, he said, but none who have accomplished all of that in the same year.

"You've done a helluva job with all three kids. All have been outstanding students. They are a tribute to the school and community, as you are," Wilmot added.

Disputed school tests retained

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Refusing to bow to teacher union pressure, the Wayne-Westland school board will keep a controversial achievement test for elementary students.

Union leaders of the 1,000-member Wayne-Westland Education Association had asked the board to override Superintendent Larry Thomas' decision to keep the California Achievement Test.

Union president Bill Reece had demanded a moratorium on the elementary test until district officials find a better exam and develop a districtwide testing philosophy. He was supported by the district's curriculum council.

Thomas agreed with union leaders that the California test needs to be replaced, but he recommended keeping it until a new exam can be found.

Last week, the seven-member board sided unanimously with Thomas, who pledged to try to replace the controversial test as early as next school year.

"This will be a top priority for our instruction department next school year," Thomas said.

Thomas also criticized the WWEA's decision to go past him and try to convince the school board to drop the California test, although the union has a contractual right to appeal to the board.

"I understand this is part of a contractual agreement, but, as an educational leader and as an instructional authority, I find this process unnatural and not student-centered," Thomas said.

Thomas, asking the board to uphold his decision, said, "I cannot comprehend the legislative body of our district overruling their selected instructional leaders on a student diagnostic testing process."

During a meeting last week, Reece labeled the administration's actions "a smokescreen" and indicated that officials had ignored the wishes of the district's curriculum council.

Union leaders said the California test is outdated and places undue stress on elementary students.

Thomas and school board members agreed with Reece on many points but said they believed the test should be kept until a better one is found.

Despite its flaws, student results on the California test are used by some teachers to try to improve instruction, Thomas has said.

Armed robber sought

A artist sketch of a suspect in a recent armed robbery has been released by Garden City police.

The suspect is being sought in connection with a June 7 armed robbery at the Sunco gas station at Ford and Venoy. He is described as a white male, possibly Hispanic, in his mid 20s, five feet four inches to five feet six inches tall, 140 pounds, medium build, thick black feather back hair and a thin black moustache. The weapon was described as a chrome revolver of unknown caliber.

The suspect entered the gas station and produced a weapon announcing a holdup. Police said he obtained $300 in cash and fled on foot.

Anyone with information about the robbery and suspect should call Detective Sgt. David Harvey at 525-8088 or 525-8863.

Chorbagian re-elected to county board

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

In the end, Kathleen Chorbagian didn't need the support of her former Wayne-Westland school board colleagues to win a second six-year term on the county school board.

Chorbagian, a Wayne resident, won re-election to the Wayne County Regional Educational Services Agency board last week after local school boards throughout the county cast votes for candidates.

Weeks earlier, the Wayne-Westland school board had been charged with voting for two of three candidates — Chorbagian, Mary Blackmon of Detroit and Richard McKnight, a Livonia school board member.

The Wayne-Westland board voted for Blackmon and McKnight, snubbing Chorbagian even though she had served nearly 10 years on the Wayne-Westland board before stepping down last year.

"They were playing politics," Chorbagian said last week, following her county re-election.

Chorbagian had clashed fiercely with some current Wayne-Westland board members over such issues as the 1991 ousting of former Superintendent Dennis O'Neill, whom Chorbagian strongly supported.

Last week, Chorbagian said she had been "disappointed" that the local board opposed her candidacy.

server tried to talk to her.

But Stobbe said she has denied that her husband would try to kill her and the children — the oldest of whom was born to her during a previous marriage.

Robert Mulka, who Stobbe said was having financial difficulties, had left for work before flames swept through the one-story house. The 7-year-old daughter awoke to heavy smoke and the sound of a window shattering from the intense heat caused by the fire, Stobbe said.

The family escaped serious injury and has been staying with Wendy Mulka's parents, who also live in Westland, Stobbe said. No one was hospitalized.

Robert Mulka is a lifelong Westland resident and had taken over the mortgage on the Parkwood residence after the death of his parents in recent years, according to police records.

Wendy Mulka believes her husband is innocent.

"She just can't believe that he would do it," Stobbe said.

■ Mulka glanced toward his family as authorities led him in handcuffs from the courtroom. He could face up to life in prison if convicted of trying to kill his family.

Neighbors and in-laws — also stunned by the charges — told police that "this is not like him," Stobbe said.

When Westland police officers David Hochstein and Al Ramsden arrived at the burning house, the fire had escalated dramatically. Firefighters arrived within two minutes, but flames already were leaping from a living room picture window, fire officials said.

Fire officials have ruled out the possibility that the fire was accidental.

"Look at all I have done for Wayne-Westland," she said, emphasizing nearly a decade of service on the board.

Some current Wayne-Westland board members, such as Leonard Posey, favored Chorbagian for the county board, but a majority decided to support Blackmon and McKnight.

However, Chorbagian won a two-thirds vote of support from local boards in Wayne County, easily winning another six-year term. Chorbagian said she expected to win, even without support from Wayne-Westland.

"I felt going into the election that I didn't need them," she said.

Senior Citizen of the Year for Leadership — an honor that surprised him but not those who know and respect him. He recently received the award during a ceremony at the Friendship Center.

A resident of Taylor Towers, on Marquette near Carlson, Russo often assists his senior citizen neighbors by driving them to appointments with the doctor or dentist. He also helps to plant flowers and maintain the grounds at Taylor Towers.

He helps decorate the high-rise complex for holidays and special functions. He helps out with bingo games there, and he shows movies on Tuesday nights. He never refuses to help others, said Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, Friendship Center director.

■ 'When you walk into an apartment of the less fortunate people, they get a big smile on their face.'
Armand Russo

Russo drives the Friendship Center's kitchen band to performances for convalescent home residents and veterans organizations, and he's on call daily for those who need his help.

Even before he began volunteering his time, Russo led a fascinating life.

His Italian-born parents had moved to Detroit in the early 1920s, and his father was a bootlegger during Prohibition who supported a family of four children — all boys.

"We had shoes and pants; and we never went on welfare," Russo said.

Russo recalls the many run-ins his father had with police.

"The best customers were always police. They would come over one day and mooch off of you, and the next day they would arrest you," he said.

Russo served in the U.S. Navy in 1944 and 1945, working in a ship repair unit on the Admiralty Islands in the southwest Pacific. He later was a bartender for many years before becoming an apartment manager at the Woods of Westland.

He also has been a church usher and was active many years at St. Valentine's Church in Redford Township. He formerly volunteered for the Boy Scouts and youth athletic teams.

Russo and his wife, Connie, have six children and 10 grandchildren. Russo likes golf as a hobby, but said "it's too expensive for a retired person."

So he spends his time helping the less fortunate and sprucing up the grounds at Taylor Towers.

"It helps the arthritis," he said, smiling.

Natives of Pennsylvania, the couple moved to Westland 33 years ago when Edward received a job transfer with Kelsey-Hayes Co. He was a window clerk for the company that supplies automobile parts. Eleanor worked for several years at the Ford Rouge plant.

The Polish American couple have two adult children, a son and a daughter, in suburban Detroit, and they have five grandchildren.

Edward Zajdel knew from the time that he married Eleanor that she was the woman for him.

"She was the best in the world," he said. "Nobody can beat her. She takes care of me and sees that everything is done right. And she keeps me out of mischief."

When a neighbor's mother was suffering from cancer, Eleanor helped her to bathe and cooked meals for her. She likes to care for others in their time of need. That's why she visits hospitals, nursing homes and disabled people.

"Ed drives me," she said. "He's always helping me."

The Zajdels were nominated for the award by Alice Jarmen, a Friendship Center travel group representative and advisory council member. A three-member independent panel of judges selected the winners.

Aside from helping others, Eleanor also enjoys hobbies such as crocheting and cooking.

"She does the cooking and I do the eating," Edward said.

"He does the dishes," Eleanor chimed in.

Edward said he has hobbies of his own.

"I like to watch Eleanor work," he said. "And I like to help her all I can."

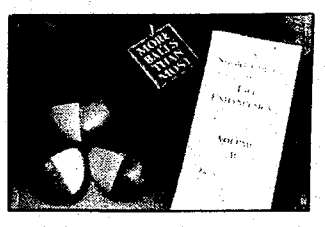
LINDA BACHRACK

Neat surprises make Dad's Day

Dad may sigh and try earnestly to assure the family that all he really wants for Father's Day is a quiet afternoon at home and lots of hugs and kisses from those he loves most.

But we all know Dad well enough to see through the Hallmark moment and into the psyche of the guy who can't wait to open big boxes wrapped in snazzy paper and tied with fancy ribbons. So, if you haven't succumbed to all of the holiday advertisements yet maybe these suggestions will help you make Dad's day special. Don't be stingy with the affection, though. A little sincere devotion is always appreciated.



Maybe Pop enjoys a challenge but isn't quite energetic enough to take up tennis or handball. If he's moderately coordinated and likes mastering new skills, he'll love "More Balls Than Most." This unique "life enhancing" juggling course includes three multicolored leather balls and an eight-step instruction booklet. Once perfected, juggling will provide Dad with hours of relaxing enjoyment and you'll never again have to hire BoBo the Clown for the kids' birthday parties. "More Balls Than Most" is distributed by two brothers from Birmingham, and is available at Hudson's for $26.

Hudson's also introduces the new and exclusive Waterman Laureat pen ($45). This exquisite writing instrument, in an amethyst colored shell, uses three different types of refills — soft tip, ballpoint and liquid ink. It's sold with a blue ballpoint cartridge.

Hollywood Dad

Carol Dombrowski of West Bloomfield suggests a unique frame for Daddy's prized pic. Her favorite is a replica of a magazine cover featuring his smiling mug as the "Cover Boy."

"You can find Man of the Year, Golfer of the Year, whatever suits him," she says.

Carol also discovered "Tool Time" T-shirts at Meijer's — perfect for her husband who is an ardent Tim Allen fan and still claims that his electric screwdriver is his all-time favorite gift.

Linda Price from Wixom surprised her husband with an imaginative and extravagant gift one Father's Day, and they still cherish the memory. "I tucked a ticket and an itinerary inside a bathing suit and placed them in a plastic boat," she remembers. It represented her down-payment on a romantic cruise vacation. "You could wrap up a sleeve of balls and some hotel reservations for a golf weekend getaway," she says.

Par for the course

When I asked Betsy Coats of Bloomfield Village for her Father's Day ideas, she simply said, "Golf stuff." And she directed me to Bavarian Village in Birmingham where racks of skis and down jackets have been replaced by rows of shiny clubs and colorful golf ensembles.

The hottest new clubs are the Nicklaus NI's, designed with a new technology called Linear Dynamics. The contemporary styling incorporates vertical and horizontal stabilizing bars, resulting in perfect balance and a centered "sweet spot."

"As people become more aware of these clubs, they are really getting popular,"says Chris of Bavarian Village.

Always in demand, the Big Bertha line of golf equipment is the first choice of Jim Gotch. "I'm wishing for the Big Bertha 5 and 7," he says. Though not a father, Jim's birthday was last week — hint,hint.

Other popular items at Bavarian Village include saddle-style golf shoes (Nike makes a great looking pair with buckskin trim), the 1992 Michigan Golf Map & Guide ($17.95), Greg Norman straw Panama hats with the shark logo ($24), and umbrellas ($16). They also stock a good selection of in-line skates for the daring Dad.If you're looking for a one-of-a-kind collectible, don't miss the sterling silver treasure boxes at Neiman Marcus ($125). Each hand-crafted box depicts a theme — golf, sailing, fishing, or your custom created selection. Inside each box is a silver treasure. Each piece is signed and stamped by the artist, Michael Weitzman of California. Truly a thoughtful gift for the discerning Dad who has everything.

Stores ease access

■ Prodded by requirements of the Americans With Disabilities Act and their own sense of social consciousness, our area malls and mainstreets have been adding amenities and removing architectural barriers so shoppers in wheelchairs, on crutches, and those blind or deaf, can buy suits, visit Santa, or have lunch out, just like us TABs - Temporarily Able-Bodied.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Wheelchair-bound Joyce Kinski of Southfield rolls through Laurel Park Place mall with ease, but only when someone is thoughtful enough to let her in.

"Oh, I can get around inside the malls all right, but getting through some entrance doors is another matter," she explained with a sigh. "I have to depend on someone to open the doors and hold them open until I pass through. This bothers me because I don't feel I should have to depend on another shopper or custodian being there."

Some area malls have installed power-assisted doors at their entrances activated by push buttons at wheelchair level. But many have not. The holdup is in the malls' interpretations of the Americans With Disabilities Act and what exactly they are required to provide for shoppers with handicaps.

"We have power-assisted doors at Twelve Oaks Mall," manager Philip Morosco explained, "but we are still working on other improvements. The ADA is not very specific and the process is slow. We want to make sure the improvements we make actually work and are practical for shoppers with disabilities."

Mike Buescher at Laurel Park Place said the entrance problem is under discussion. Joe Thomas at Wonderland Mall said officials there are also looking into some kind of en-

Mall gets special treatment

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Wonderland Mall shoppers will have to clean up after themselves for the next few months, as students from the Northwest Skill Center take a break for summer vacation.

"We will miss them; that's for sure," said mall manager Joe Thomas of the mall's five-year liaison with the center for developmentally disabled in Livonia. "These students contribute to the overall operation of the center, and we've been able to secure some long-term employees from their ranks. It's a very positive program with the mall tenants as well as the public."

A mall walker who wished to remain anonymous watched as Mike Soto, 25, of Westland scraped a mall bench free of sticky stuff.

"I give this young man a lot of credit," she said, shaking her head. "He's performing a service for his community and we appreciate it."

Every semester a new crew of developmentally disabled young adults under the supervision of their teacher, Margaret Bonnici, and paraprofessional Joan Neilson, learn basic custodial service skills using the Wonderland Mall as their classroom. They arrive at the shopping center by bus in the morning and leave at 1:30 p.m. each day.

The students scrape the gum from the underside of tables and benches, clean ashtrays and trash bins, and wipe down pillars and posts. They supplement the work of the mall's full-time custodial staff, keeping the mall extra-clean. They seem to enjoy their work and admit that they really like being in the mall.

"I like all the people and the music," said Danielle Danielson of Northville, taking a break from her dusting. "I like working here."

Patrick Brown of Redford agreed. He is the youngest of three brothers who have participated in the program.

"I love it," he said with a mile-wide grin. "I do a beautiful job. I like doing the planters. I hate doing ashtrays."

Joe Stairs, 23, of Garden City said the mall work "is good for me. I like being in the mall. I don't come here very often."

Under Bonnici's watchful eye the students chat and polish, stopping to share a joke or two with their devoted teacher.

"Got to have a sense of humor," she advised. "Ten years from now these young people may not remember the lessons I've taught them, but they will hopefully remember me as a kind and helpful person.

"It seems everybody has somebody disabled in their family," she continued. "Shoppers come up to me and ask so many questions about the program and tell me stories about the disabled people they know. I'll stop and talk to them and pass along the literature I keep handy for these inquiries."

trance for the handicapped.

Shoppers with disabilities have plenty of suggestions for their favorite shopping centers on how to improve things. Members of the Center for Independent Living point out that curb cuts, ramps, and electric-powered doors also benefit parents with strollers, elderly shoppers, and customers recovering from heart surgery.

Money to spend

"We have money to spend, but some stores make it difficult for us to shop," said Mike Deaner, a Lakeside Mall shopper. "Many store entrances are blocked for wheelchairs by sale items piled near the door. Also, the racks are too close together in the clothing stores, and I can't get my chair through the aisles. Holidays are worse because the inventory is doubled and there is stuff everywhere."

Tim Steinbrink would like shopping centers to consider installing fitting rooms for the handicapped.

"Have you ever seen one?" he asked. "I end up bringing a bunch of clothes home and trying them on; then I must take them back for refunds or exchanges."

Other concerns include water faucets in restrooms that are difficult to turn on, then automatically shut off; paper towel racks set too high for wheelchair shoppers to reach; and handicapped parking spaces too narrow for van side lifts to function.

Bigger type on price tags would benefit older shoppers and those with visual impairments, according to Steinbrink.

"It really all boils down to common sense," Deaner said. "Persons with disabilities want equal access to goods and services, and the ADA assures that barriers to this end are removed."

Federal figures place the number of Americans living with disabilities at 43 million, or between 15 and 20 percent of the population. The ADA was signed into law on Jan. 6, 1990 by then-president George Bush, with compliance deadlines set for 18 months thereafter.

Shopping malls are only some of the public buildings required to be accessible to those with disabilities. Grocery stores, medical suites, office buildings, municipal offices, museums, restaurants, lodgings and parks are also included.

First-hand experience

When Chuck Mitter, maintenance supervisor at the Tel-Twelve Mall in Southfield, broke his foot last year, he got around the mall in an electric scooter, experiencing firsthand the realities of being a wheelchair shopper.

"I discovered Tel-Twelve is very accessible," he said. "I also got an appreciation of what it's like to perform simple tasks from a chair. Everything takes a little extra effort."

Malls are making the little extra effort to lend wheelchairs and electric carts to shoppers. They are adding ramps to Santa stages and Easter Bunny settings. They are adding directories in Braille to their mall maps, making sure telephones have assisted listening devices and indicating on brochures which restrooms have facilities for the handicapped.

Fees are stiff for companies that have made no effort to become accessible to the handicapped. Fines have been set at $50,000 for the first offense and $100,000 for subsequent offenses.

Three malls are hosting day-long seminars for persons with disabilities. The "Focus on Ability Expo" promises to reveal "everything you ever wanted to know about being an independent person with a disability." It will be held from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. on the following Saturdays: July 10 at Tel-Twelve Mall; Aug. 28 at the Westland Center; and Sept. 25 at the Macomb Mall. For more information call 268-4160.

For more information about the ADA contact the Equal Employment Commission's ADA helpline at 1-800-669-3366; or the Dept. of Justice, Office of ADA Information Line, 1-202-514-0301; or write 1801 L. St. NW, Washington D.C. 20507.

Bonnici credits the Northwest Skill Center's principal, Earl Dawson, with coordinating the effort to get disabled people into the community. Due to his diligence, she said, several local businesses have hired the handicapped or taken them on as student interns. Skill center students work at the nearby Ramada Inn, Penney's Warehouse and Digitron, to name a few.

The Northwest Skill Center is a division of the Livonia Public Schools, serving students 18 to 26 years old from 13 neighboring communities. The center teaches mentally and physically challenged students vocational and personal adjustment skills.

Though the students receive no financial compensation for their services at the mall, the mall's Thomas said they are often treated to lunch and given mall gift certificates for their work.

For more information about the program call the Northwest Skill Center at 523-9388.

Kaufman candidate for fed bench

BY M.B. DILLON and BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITERS

Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman of Plymouth Township is among 10 finalists being considered for three federal judgeships in the Eastern District of Michigan.

Kaufman, 41, was selected from a pool of 75 applicants for the U.S. District Court seat. Three judgeships will be filled by the Clinton administration.

"I am honored to be picked as one of 10 finalists," Kaufman said.

Kaufman was interviewed three weeks ago by Sens. Carl Levin and Don Riegle along with other finalists. He is the only candidate from western Wayne County.

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Denise Page Hood, a Detroit resident, also has been nominated.

Based on the interviews and response from individuals, Levin and Riegle will give their recommendations to Clinton. A decision is expected within the next couple weeks.

"Yes, I have to admit there have been occasions when I dreamed of getting a phone call from the President about a federal court appointment," Kaufman said.

The Detroit native grew up in a family of lawyers. His father and grandfather both practiced law and his father was active in local politics.

"I have had more exposure to law and politics than most," Kaufman said.

Kaufman has been elected by his peers three times as chief judge of the circuit court, serving in the capacity for more than seven years. During that time, the court has gone from being among the country's most inefficient urban trial courts to one of the most efficient.

Kaufman was called in on several occasions to help draft the recently passed Civil Justice Reform Act and his court was cited as an example of efficiency.

Kaufman is the youngest jurist ever to serve as chief circuit court judge. He was the first executive chief judge of both the circuit and Recorder's Court.

Kaufman succeeded, by floating a bond issue for renovation, in consolidating the circuit court into one facility, the City-County Building.

Circuit courtrooms had been housed in the old county building, the Lafayette Building, and the City-County Building on Jefferson Avenue.

If selected for the federal bench, Kaufman said he would continue his commitment to handle fairly and efficiently the cases before him and he would make it his mission to make the federal court operate more efficiently in general.

Finalist: Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman of Plymouth Township is among 10 being considered for three federal judgeships in the Eastern District of Michigan.

Elected to the bench in 1980, Kaufman graduated in 1976 from Wayne State University Law School. He was worked for the general practice firm of Colista, Green, Green and Adams in Detroit before becoming a judge.

Business owner pleads guilty to assault

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland business owner has pleaded guilty to charges stemming from a bar fight in which he attacked a Livonia man with a microphone stand, fracturing his skull and causing a cerebral hemorrhage.

Robert McGregor, 31, pleaded guilty June 2 in Detroit Recorder's Court to a charge of felonious assault, amid accusations he attacked Richard Jenkins, 35, during an Aug. 26 fight at Razzle's bar in Westland.

Jenkins told the Observer that he still has damaged eyesight and faces thousands of dollars in medical bills.

"I can still see, but if I close my right eye, by left eye is blurry," Jenkins said last week.

McGregor's plea came after prosecutors agreed to reduce the charge to felonious assault from a more serious charge of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, less than murder.

The reduced charge carries a maximum penalty of four years in prison. McGregor could have faced up to 10 years in prison for the original charge.

He is scheduled for sentencing July 20, said Sgt. Donald Haigh, a Westland Police Department detective.

McGregor's plea came just five days before he was to stand trial in Recorder's Court.

The bar fight at Razzle's, on Joy Road between Middlebelt and Inkster, erupted after McGregor interfered with a conversation that Jenkins was having with a woman inside the bar, earlier court testimony indicated. Jenkins is a former door man at the bar.

The dispute escalated into a shoving match and McGregor picked up a microphone stand and hit Jenkins on the head, according to testimony during an Oct. 8 hearing in Westland 18th District Court.

Jenkins was hospitalized for several days and required surgery and 60 stitches. A long scar could be seen on his forehead as he testified during the October hearing.

Jenkins, who is 6-feet-4 and weighs 300 pounds, said he drank 10 to 12 beers before he was attacked, but added that he wasn't drunk. He had tried to walk away from the fight when McGregor hit him with the microphone stand, testimony indicated.

■ McGregor's plea came after prosecutors agreed to reduce the charge to felonious assault from a more serious charge.

McGregor's attorney, Steven Bullock, had predicted that McGregor would be exonerated of charges.

State rep. tours Burger Center

State Rep. Justine Barns, a House Education Committee member, recently toured the Burger Center for the Autistic to get a firsthand view of a center-based special education facility.

Invited by Burger teacher Rosemary Ficano, Barnes, a Westland Democrat, to visit the center in Garden City to serve the needs of 240 autistic students throughout Wayne County.

The invitation comes on the eve of planned hearings on a state report to move special education students and programs into classrooms with general education pupils. The hearings will be 1:30-3 and 5-7 p.m. Tuesday, June 22, in the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency (WCRESA), on Van Born near Venoy, Wayne.

Purpose of the hearing will be to review the "Findings and Recommendations of the Final Report on Inclusive Education to the State Board of Education."

Among other recommendations, the report includes a recommendation to the state board that all center-based programs, such as Burger, be eliminated from the options parents have for their special education student.

The continuum of service for students with autism would be either full inclusion in a general education classroom (often with a one-on-one teaching assistant), to placement in a separate classroom for students with autism, but still within a general education building.

The staff of the general education building is expected to meet the needs of students of all handicaps, regardless of the severity.

A Burger spokesman said the Burger staff and parents "were happy to share with Barnes the tremendous strides that the students at Burger are making in prevocational and vocational training, as well as in communication skills.

POINTS OF VIEW

Balanced approach needed in teacher plans

QUESTION: As an elementary teacher, I sometimes feel like a pingpong ball. After 25 years in the business, I've been through more educational movements and theories than I can remember. Now we are into the Whole Language Approach. Can you forewarn us of any new theories coming down the line so we can be ready?

ANSWER: Certainly. Be ready for the Artificial Intelligence movement, a theory that says if a child knows X about something, we know he/she must know Y. Therefore, save time and skip teaching Y. This is a concept any competent teacher has known for ages.

And yes, some freelancing entrepreneur will pump out an Artificial Language and the Teacher novel, hit the educational circuit, make a fortune and then move on to something else.

The Whole Language Approach, a supposedly new concept, is in vogue now. It's a concept, along with the developmental theory, that I have received more voice mail calls on than any other topic this year.

The Whole Language theory combines reading, writing, spelling and language arts into a singular all-encompassing process of learning. The belief base is that children will learn better through a "whole" approach rather than through the teaching of isolated skills. Phonics and other basic skills are to be introduced when appropriate.

Carried to the extreme, a few Whole Language advocates frown on ever using a textbook (called basal readers, which major textbook companies have spent millions developing, using the most competent teachers they could find in the country). These advocates also frown on the use of worksheets. (And, oh, I almost said the evil word "Ditto.")

The opposite extreme occurs when Ditto Danny and Ditto Darlene flip dittos on kids' desks every day and sit at their desk waiting for lunch. A balance is needed!

This is where the problem lies. Education goes from one movement to another, sometimes from one extreme position to another, and the teacher is caught in the middle. If I wanted to take a shot at the Whole Language Approach, which I support as one of many learning models, I could use an analogy of the football coach, the band director or the high school play director.

Let's use an extremist "whole" approach for football practice. The coach scrimmages every day. No drill and practice until the coach finds out the needs of each player.

I've got news for you. Competent coaches, as with teachers, know what the needs are, and the successful ones do a sufficient amount of drill and practice to ensure that the players have mastered the basic skills necessary for success.

Championship high school bands and successful school play directors spend hours on details that could be conceived as basic skills prior to opening the curtain for the first act or entering a state band competition.

So I am leery of these supposedly new "only way to go" movements. But I am far more against a constant drill and practice atmosphere which develops non-thinking robotic children dancing to the tune of those in control over them.

The present polarization that is developing among teachers is literally killing the Whole Language concept, which is a wonderful process in helping children to comprehend, be better problem solvers while increasing their higher level thinking skills.

The "whole" method of instruction is really not new. John Dewey, one of education's greatest philosophers, introduced that approach in the late '30s and '40s. He believed children working on a high-interest topic, approaching a topic in totality, was the way to develop self-sufficient thinking students. His system became labeled progressive education, and the public — then the newspapers literally destroyed him and his concept. They believed kids were not getting their basic skills but just having fun. Leo Tolstoy, one our greatest writers and thinkers, held the same beliefs as Dewey and greatly influenced Dewey's thinking.

But watch what happens in education! A philosopher, after Tolstoy, named Johann Heinrich Pestalozzi (in the late 1700s) believed in reducing topics to their basic elements and building from that foundation, as in a basic skills approach.

And sure enough, after Dewey came an educational philosopher named Jean Piaget who believed in starting from the basics, from the concrete skills to more abstract reasoning skills.

So here we have the greatest educational philosophers of all time bouncing back and forth from a basic skills mindset to a whole, experiential mindset for children's learning. And you, the teacher, are indeed the pingpong ball being bounced back and forth.

Why in God's world can't we take the best of both worlds, the Whole Language Model for developing thinking skills with the use of some adaptive supplementary workbook materials to ensure basic skills are mastered and quit confusing citizens and frustrating teachers?

Is it that difficult to figure out?

LETTERS

Writer is critical

Make no mistake, the UAW and the Democrats are out to legalize homosexuals and lesbians. I wrote letters to U.S. Rep. William Ford about the National Endowment for the Arts filth. It had a display showing Christ in a bottle of urine with the saying on it that read — if you want to receive Christ, then stick this up your rectum.

That is as close as you'll get to Christ. He wrote a letter back to me saying that was artistic art. Now the government wants to legalize homosexuals. Our nation kills one and one half million babies a year through abortion and yet they say we need gun control. The big liberal press is out to drown us in filth and sodomy. The TV and movies are out to bathe our children in pornography and filth.

How can President Clinton save us money when he spends $200 on a hair cut? We will never forget the McMartin School and how the homosexuals sodomized our children and got off scott free. And now here is Gregory Peck asking us to save the whales.

I can remember good old Franklin Rosevelt and the plot to save social security. He collected millions of our money and didn't do a thing for us. We should have a spread named for Washington called Washington Crock.

Richard Nadeau, Westland.

School changes

We all know that the Wayne-Westland school district is in bad shape, financially and emotionally.

We spent $50,000 for a talent search to get a new superintendent, which in our minds hasn't worked out. Instead of helping and being a team member for the schools, we have no teamwork.

We think it is unfair that the superintendent get a 9 percent pay raise with a 4 percent annuity, car, gasoline and insurance for his own family while layoffs for teachers, bus drivers, custodians and parapros and ask for concessions from the rest of the district.

We think we should take a good look at what is going on and regroup our vote on Monday (today). New board members give this district a chance for change in the board office. You have some very good candidates out there, ready for a change, and we mean a change for the better and our kids' future.

Brad Stottlemyer, Westland

Big Brother knocked

Again Big Brother in D.C. has "protected" me by regulating another industry, the cable companies. Just as with AT&T when my telephone bill tripled thanks to the government's charge of anti-trust (another joke on the people), my cable bill is larger than ever because the company simply redesigned its packages.

I wish Big Brother would stop saving me from the free market. Daily I recognize the evidence that this country is fast sliding the slope to socialism.

Beatrice Scalise, Westland

Protests are needed

I cannot help but wonder if the history of the Holocaust might have been written differently if there had been protesters blocking entrances to the gas chambers.

It also is a puzzle why more relatives of the Holocaust victims, as well as Holocaust survivors themselves, are not crying bloody murder at the daily killing of unborn humans.

I wonder how the history of this slaughter will be written. Will the media take their share of the blame for the cover-up they have organized? Maybe, just maybe, there is a true "investigative reporter" who has the courage to expose the truth about abortion and the abortion industry.

Joys, challenges come with overseas adoption

BY BARBARA WILSON
SPECIAL WRITER

Hannah was a dream come true for the Livonia couple who after nearly nine years of marriage gave up trying to have children using non-traditional means.

Mark and Wendy (not real names) were disheartened when they couldn't have children biologically, but they didn't give up their dreams of having a family. They didn't even think twice about taking children into their home who presented a greater challenge than most.

The couple watched the second installment of the news magazine show 20/20 that featured the lost children of Romania and their decision of who their first child would be was easy.

Thousands of Romanian children have been locked away in orphanages and institutions living in sub-standard conditions, according to the 20/20 program. When the show aired last year, Americans flocked to attorneys, travel agents and their legislators wanting information on how to adopt these children.

Mark and Wendy were two of these people.

"We just knew it was the right thing to do," Wendy said as her daughter danced about the room watching Disney videos on the television — a device she had never seen until December 1991.

The couple worked with a Romanian attorney and had to overcome a language barrier, corrupt aides at the orphanages and huge financial obligations to finally bring Hannah home.

"We had $400 phone bills for awhile," Wendy said.

"By the time it was all done the adoption cost about $14,000 but, of course, we would do it all again," Mark said.

Turkey first

The couple made their first trip to eastern Europe in June 1991. They were to adopt in Turkey but ended up in an orphanage in Bucharest. They had clearance to adopt a boy and a girl during their trip, and they had six children from which to choose.

It wasn't as easy as just picking a child, however. Government adoptions were not permitted at the time so Mark and Wendy had to track down the children's parents with the help of paid tour guides and get their approval for the adoption.

"The parents would have to agree to take the child back home with them, sign the papers and then turn them over to us," said Wendy.

The couple chose a young boy named David Alexander. The boy, a victim of incest, never made it to the United States. His father refused to sign the documents, according to Wendy.

"We still hope to get word of him," she said. Their selection of Hannah was also an easy one. She was two-and-a-half years at the time and shared a birthday with Mark.

She lived in a compound with 40 other kids and had been there since she was three months old," Wendy remembered. "She wore scraps of clothing and they hosed them down for a bath. The kids didn't wear diapers and they ate slop from the same big pail in the corner of the room."

Wendy said she still thinks of the children there and sees their faces.

Back home

The couple returned to the United States as they awaited word. Bad news came and they thought both children were lost. It turned out that after many phone calls, and finally a call from a woman she didn't even know, that Hannah was ready for adoption.

They made the return trip to Romania armed with clothes for a little girl.

Hannah had been staying with her natural mother for about four months when Wendy and Mark arrived to retrieve her.

"When her mother handed Hannah over to me, Hannah didn't even look back or cry," Wendy said. "She was our little girl and I think she was happy to be in loving arms."

Hannah had known no other way of life other than what she experienced in the orphanage.

"When we gave her first bath at the place we were staying, she stood against the side of the tub waiting for us to hose her down like an animal," Wendy said. "That was all she knew. She was petrified of water for quite a while."

A new pair of shoes and socks soon became such beloved objects that the little girl and she often refused to take them off.

"She didn't speak English, of course, so it was difficult to communicate and still is sometimes but she is getting better and I think she appreciated our patience," Wendy said.

Court proceedings for the adoption took place in December 1991 and Hannah was home in Livonia in time for Christmas.

"She would sit on the floor and rub the carpet," Wendy remembered. "She was amazed by the clothes."

The day after Christmas, Hannah was taken to the hospital for a checkup and it was learned that she had every parasite imaginable. She even had tuberculosis.

After four days in the hospital, she was in relatively good health and was sent back home with her new parents.

Since her arrival in the U.S. Hannah has learned to communicate in English and has come to enjoy games played by children her age. Wendy and Mark decided to place her in a day care facility so she could socialize with the other children.

"The teachers there have been amazed with her progress and they are very good about letting us know the changes she makes," Wendy said.

Overcame phobias

At first Hannah followed her new mother around the house and hid food. She also slept with her shoes on her chest.

She has overcome enough of her phobias that she no longer does these things.

"She was not very affectionate at first and that was hard," Mark said.

"We had waited for a child for so long and she wasn't comfortable with being held," Wendy said. "We worry that she may have memories of the orphanage or flashbacks and we can't communicate well enough to know. I guess we'll learn more about her as she continues to improve her English."

The Livonia couple hopes to have a family of five children some day and they are not very particular.

"Children are children and we will consider biracial children, children with little information about medical history, and young or older children," Wendy said. "They all need homes and we would be happy to give that to them."

The couple did say that they may not consider future overseas adoptions, but they won't close the door completely. There are an estimated 14,000 "lost children of Romania" who have found their way to Michigan.

Action is 'only cure for grief,' MADD director says

BY BARBARA WILSON
SPECIAL WRITER

Michele Kubicz one day threw away a brochure she received in the mail from Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

A little more than a week later Kubicz was on the telephone with the organization and 10 years later she finds herself in the post of executive director of the Wayne County chapter of MADD.

"I figured I would never need it, but then my husband was killed by a drunk driver, leaving me with two young children. I had no idea what to do," Kubicz said. "MADD and its members put their arms around me physically and emotionally."

The local MADD chapter helped Kubicz through the difficult court proceedings that followed her husband's death, as well as helping her deal with the emotional aspects.

"My children don't know a world without MADD," she said.

Kubicz soon started doing volunteer work for the MADD chapter and attended local events while teaching full time. She was beginning to cut back on her volunteer efforts when she learned that the chapter had grown so much that a full-time executive director was to be hired. She applied and got the job in 1992.

"It was a difficult decision. I love working with children, but MADD is something I also felt strongly about. I am very honored to be working here. I believe in it, and I am still working with and for children. It is a comfortable fit for me."

The Wayne County chapter of MADD began with a handful of volunteers meeting around the kitchen table and now they have a Livonia office and a full-time staff of three.

The list of volunteers includes men, women, teens and senior citizens. They are not all victims themselves, but they share a strong feeling that something needs to be done to stop a problem that could easily steal the life of someone they know and love.

"You don't have to be a victim to be a MADD person," Kubicz said.

MADD provides families victimized by drunken drivers with counseling and support groups as well as advice for handling the legal aspects involved. The group also works to promote awareness of the dangers of drinking and driving through its red-ribbon campaign, Project Graduation, candlelight vigils and much more.

As a national and statewide organization MADD is responsible for writing and lobbying for legislation ranging from victims' rights to child endangerment and provisional licensing of minors.

"Drunk driving is a blind taker of life. It is the leading cause of death among young people ages 16 to 24," said Kubicz. "It's everyone's problem."

An estimated 19,900 people die nationwide in alcohol-related traffic accidents, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and that does not include all of those people who suffer devastating injuries as a result of drinking and driving. These figures are down considerably since the MADD effort took hold.

Kubicz admits she would like for MADD not to need to exist, but concedes that 10 years is not a long time to wipe out a social problem that has existed as long as there have been cars and alcohol.

"Every victim's story touches me," Kubicz said. "I sometimes got flashbacks to all those terrible things you go through when someone you love is killed so quickly, without warning and without reason."

It's been 10 years, but Kubicz still becomes emotional when thinking of her husband's death. At the candlelight vigil she still cries along with the other families and when people come up to her at events and say they remember her husband she often has to take a moment to herself.

"It's been awhile, but we still go through difficult times," she said. "It really bothers me that I have to really think hard to remember the sound of his voice or the way he laughed. My children were quite young when he died, but they have tough times too. My son will go through times when he wears his father's shirts."

Kubicz, however, refuses to step back and watch drunken drivers continue to kill innocent people. If she were to move on to another job, there would always be a space for MADD in her life.

"I am a survivor of drunk driving, not a victim. Something in the human spirit cries out for action. It is the only cure for grief."

Kubicz said she wouldn't change jobs with anyone at the moment.

"I would do anything for this organization because they have done so much for me. I have met the best people under the crummiest of circumstances."

Commission not responsible for contract snafu says Beard

Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Westland, responding to a story in the May 31 Observer said it's not the commission's responsibility to see if a given contract is a duplication of services.

The article pointed out that the commission approved a contract in February for a service the county already had a contract for with someone else. At a recent meeting the commission rescinded its approval of the second contract, officially resolving the problem.

Beard said the Observer article made it sound like the commission was at fault for approving the second contract, when the fault really lies with the purchasing division employee who erroneously went out for bids on a service the county already had a three-year contract for.

"When it comes to us it's supposed to have been checked for those things," said Beard, whose district includes Garden City.

"We're not set up to do that kind of thing, and we're not supposed to. Our function is not to go into their records and find out if it's a duplicate contract."

Beard called the headline, "McNamara saves tax dollars in commission contract snafu" a "cheap shot."

Area commissioners back ethics rule

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

With a few "ethical" changes, a new ordinance aimed at public servants dabbling in outside businesses is expected to be approved soon by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

The ethics ordinance proposed by commissioner Susan Hubbard of Dearborn last week, after months of discussion, is expected to be amended today to apply to commissioners, and that change is expected to receive support.

Commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, was expected to present the amendment today which will expand the ordinance to preclude county commissioners from taking action on matters which may involve an outside business interest.

"The job is only half done because it doesn't include commissioners," said Amann whose district also includes Canton Township.

Hubbard and Wayne County Deputy Executive Michael Duggan sparred last week over the ordinance which Hubbard directed at the county's executive branch. The ordinance surfaced about the same time as reports that the owner of Metro Cars Inc., a luxury sedan taxi service at Metro Airport, had invested in a new business owned by Mary Maher, Duggan's wife.

Duggan countered with accusations that Hubbard voted on court matters and then accepted probate court legal assignments.

The ordinance as proposed by Hubbard would force county contractors to disclose business and family ties with county employees and the amount of money contributed to the Wayne County executive.

"What's good for the executive branch, is good for the legislative branch," Amann said.

"I think Commissioner Hubbard had that (including commissioners) in mind, but the wording was overlooked," said Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, whose district also includes Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Commissioners McCotter, Kay Beard, Michelle Plawecki and Arthur Blackwell all agreed that they would support the ordinance with the inclusion of commissioners.

"As a commissioner who gave up a law career to be a full-time county commissioner, I support tightening the ethics rules," said McCotter.

Beard, D-Westland, whose district includes Garden City, said the commissioners are bound by the same ethical restrictions which are part of the board's rules, but she had no misgivings about including commissioners in the new ordinance.

"It's always wise to have in writing these restrictions," Beard said.

Amann said he won't vote for the ordinance unless the commissioners are included in the ordinance.

A hearing on the matter was scheduled for today. Changes were to be presented at that time.

Amann: "What's good for the executive branch, is good for the legislative branch."

Beard: "It's always wise to have in writing these restrictions."

McCotter: "I support tightening the ethics rules."

Fresh herbs worth the hard row to hoe

You have to understand that the good Lord has not blessed me with a green thumb. Every year I plant a garden, and end up with a bumper crop of weeds, a few scraggly Miracle-Gro enhanced tomatoes, and a back yard filled with pumpkin vines, usually half eaten by squirrels and birds.

I have come to know that pumpkins, especially when left to rot, will sprout every year, much like the mint and garlic that has taken over where weeds dare not sprout.

Honorable intentions

Every year I start out saying — "I will devote time to weeding, hoeing and snipping those ever-present seed pods," but I'm lucky to garner the energy to light the barbecue and wipe off the patio furniture.

This year, as I have in the last eight years, I push a buggy down aisles of local nurseries and greenhouses, searching for opal basil, cilantro, and fresh rosemary plants dreaming that they will eventually end up in my salad dressing, fajitas and stuffed pork roasts.

My intentions are honorable, the weeds unfortunately, are more proficient. In all honesty though, I do get a few good weeks of fresh herb harvests before the plants bolt and go to an early seeded death.

If you have yet to do so, now is the time to get those herbs in the ground or in sunny window boxes.

Good advice

Books like "Rodale's Illustrated Encyclopedia of Herbs" (1987, Rodale Press) make it sound so easy. They talk about the "rose scented flowers of the garlic chives," and "creeping thymes with their pleasantly pungent fragrance" all the while I venture out to my garden and smell the obnoxious scent of rotting grass clippings from my compost pile.

Ah, but this year will be different. In addition to a newly purchased "garden weasel" and a slew of spades, rakes, shovels and a "low hedge of lavender that will perfume the air when anyone walks through" I am ready to begin year nine with the positive thoughts and necessities to make my own victory garden.

Rodale's book features suggestions for theme gardens. A bible garden, a period garden, a national herb garden, knot gardens, dye gardens, medicinal gardens, you name it and they have a theme for it.

Garden theme

This year, my theme will be — "A please God, let it grow" garden. I started with a row of dark opal basil, that will hopefully make it into jars of white wine vinegar, and transform itself into a lovely blush purple vinegar for holiday gift giving.

Planted due south is a row of curly parsley which I fully intend to snip regularly and chop into mounds of tabouli salad.

For some odd reason known only to Jerry Baker, the master gardener, my chives have resurfaced, much like the millions of pumpkin blossoms that I promise to thin out. The chives will decorate grilled fish, sliced tomatoes and simple sauteed vegetables that I will undoubtedly stand in line for at Joe's Produce in Livonia to purchase.

My sweet basil that I long for on paper-thin slices of tomato, mozzarella cheese and olive oil soaked bread is strategically placed for easy snipping should the weeds attempt a takeover.

This spring, I sent away for a dozen French shallots from a western Michigan nursery that cost me $10 plus shipping and handling. Last week I saw them at the Eastern Market for a $1 a basket.

I dream of shallots sizzling in butter and cream, tossed with pasta and Proscuitto. As an added bonus, I received a free packet of "super delicious special tomatoes with a high yield" from the foreign nursery that I started, as directed, indoors in $7 peat pots and under a $24 gro-light that only produced one plant. I have a recipe for a special ragout clipped from a cookbook that has it's name on these budding beauties.

Strewn among the herbs and tomatoes are the singular sunflower and lima bean plant that the kids brought home from an in-class project at school. Does anyone know how many lima beans grow on a single plant and will it feed a family of four?

I whole heartedly anticipate not having to drive to Meijer to buy those fresh rooted herbs wrapped in plastic.

I look forward to a Martha Stewart fave of "simply throwing a handful of washed herbs on the hot coals for flavor and aroma." What the heck, if all else fails, I have a drawer of bottled varieties that will surely help make the Prego taste like it was home cooked. Bon Appetit!

Dad's territory: Vern Pixley grills steak with help from son Andrew, 14 months, while Tyler (the dog), wife, Lori and Jillian, 4, watch.

Celebrate Father's Day with a barbecue, and let dad cook the beef. Three fathers who love to cook share their secrets for grilling sensational steaks.

GRILL MASTERS

"steak-out" BARBECUE

BY LARRY JANES
SPECIAL WRITER

The testosterone levels are building, and it's not at the local gym or on the baseball diamond.

Backyard grills all over town are heating up as temperatures begin to rise, launching the start of the annual summer barbecuing season.

And what better way to usher in the season than with a Father's Day "steak-out" and tips on grilling beef by three men — all of whom are fathers, masters of the grill and guys who love to cook.

As a matter of fact, all three couldn't wait for the first official day of summer on June 21, and started barbecuing early.

We begin with Vern Pixley of Rochester, owner of Pixley Funeral Home.

Vern's wife Lori, daughter Jillian, 4, son Andrew, 14 months, and last but certainly not least, the family dog, Tyler, who is Vern's barbecuing partner, never put the family gas grill away for the winter.

The Pixleys barbecue year-round (with the help of a propane-gas grill) and Vern and Tyler can be seen on frosty winter's eves flipping the Pixley family favorite — grilled beef tenderloin with mustard mint sauce — while the remainder of the family stays toasty warm by the fireplace.

Vern said he learned the secrets of great grilling from his dad, Don Pixley, who grilled beef on a small hibachi in the family fireplace. In addition to offering his tenderloin recipe, Vern said family favorites include chicken, pork tenderloin and pork chops.

When asked to reveal his grilling secrets, Vern places his claim to fame on always starting with a clean grill, slathering on the barbecue sauce at the end, just before serving, so as not to burn the meat with sweet sauce, and having his trusty favorite grilling tools, including a pair of long-handled tongs, always within arm's reach.

"The tongs are instrumental when preparing good beef on the grill because with a long-handled fork, you pick holes in the meat, allowing valuable juices to escape," said Pixley, who said his family grills an average of four nights a week, even during the off-season.

Living in New York City hasn't necessarily put a damper on the grilling aptitude of the author of "Dad's Own Cookbook," Bob Sloan. This cookbook is, as Sloan puts it, "everything your mother never taught you."

When it comes to cooking, Sloan said, it's the fear of the unknown that has kept men away from the kitchen for so long. Sloan's wife Randi, who grew up in Farmington Hills and now shops the markets of NYC with Bob, agrees, especially when dinner is on the table after along day at work.

The Sloan's idea of grilling is burgers, and on the rare occasion that good beef is called for, Bob recommends "you should talk to and get to know your butcher for the best recommendations for grilling beef."

Apartment living means they must rely on a simple hibachi, but when it comes to tools, Bob Sloan claims that he wouldn't be without his favorite tongs, a good quality 8-inch chef's knife and an equally good saute pan. "Dad's Own Cookbook," (Workman, 1993) is a steal at $12.95 for the wealth of information that it contains. If you know a dad who longs to cook like a pro but feels out of place in the kitchen, this book is a must for Father's Day

Teacher shares tips for workday suppers

SUPER SUPPERS

"What's for dinner?"

We're going to try to help answer that question once a month with our newest feature — "Super Suppers, dinner strategies for busy families."

Great dinners don't just happen, they're planned. "Half the amount of time spent cooking is prep work and setting things up," said Therese Donohue Nagi of Livonia.

Nagi juggles two jobs. She's a substitute teacher in the Romulus School District and tutors recent immigrants enrolled in English-as-a-second-language classes through Birmingham-based Langua Tutor.

Still, she finds time to cook dinner three or four times a week. "We eat recycled leftovers twice a week, and a fast food carryout like pizza on Fridays," she said.

Married for three years to Chuck, an engineer, Nagi grew up in a large family and enjoys cooking. Her husband didn't, but Nagi, who approaches cooking like a lesson plan, taught him.

SUPER RECIPES

CHICKEN STIR-FRY

1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breast
3 zucchini chopped into squares
8 ounce package mushrooms
4 ounce package baby corn (about ½ cup)
4 ounce package water chestnuts (about ½ cup)
1 cup Italian salad dressing
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon freshly grated ginger or 1 teaspoon dried
2 tablespoons honey
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon canola oil

Cut chicken breasts into cubes and marinate them with Italian dressing and soy sauce either overnight or at least 4 hours before cooking. Chop vegetables into small pieces and put in separate containers.

To prepare stir-fry — put 1 tablespoon canola oil in wok, set temperature at 350 degrees. Add honey and ginger to chicken right before stir-frying the meat.

Cook half the chicken until it is done, (it will turn white), cook the other half of the chicken and leave the marinade in the bowl.

Put cooked chicken in separate bowl.

Cook zucchini in wok for 1 to 2 minutes. Remove from wok. Cook mushrooms, followed by water chestnuts and baby corn. Put all the cooked vegetables in one container. Put cooked chicken and marinade back into the wok, add cooked vegetables.

Take a spatula and lift the vegetables and chicken so that all are coated by the marinade. If marinade is too runny, slowly add 1 tablespoon of cornstarch to thicken it up.

Serve stir-fry over cooked rice. Serves 4.

fat canola oil, is ready in 45 minutes.

That includes 20 minutes chopping vegetables and 25 minutes coordinating cooking the stir-fry with preparing Minute Rice and rolls. Cut up vegetables the night before, and save 20 minutes.

For dessert, serve fresh raspberries or strawberries topped with vanilla yogurt or frozen yogurt.

Here are some supper strategies that work for her:

■ "Plan, plan, plan ahead for meals — this saves you time and money." Nagi plans meals on Sundays and consults her favorite cookbooks for ideas. She also attends cooking classes offered by Kitchen Glamor, Weight Watcher's, the American Heart Association and other groups to avoid getting in a rut over what to cook.

■ Create a menu, then make a shopping list. Nagi grocery shops once a week at Meijer's. "They have the best choice of vegetables," she said. To save time, she buys pre-packaged vegetables. The baby corn and water chestnuts in the chicken stir-fry are examples. She likes the taste of Amish chicken and buys boneless, skinless chicken breast, which is low in fat and quick to prepare. She also buys ground beef for casseroles. If the meat is on special, she'll buy extra and put it in the freezer.

■ Do some things the night before. "When I cut up meat and vegetables the night before, which takes 20 minutes, cooking dinner the next day doesn't seem overwhelming.

■ Measure ingredients ahead of time so everything you need is within easy reach. Nagi measures pasta or rice, and the water to cook it in, before she leaves for work. She puts the pot on the stove. After work, dinner is already started; all she has to do is turn on the stove. While the water is boiling, she can pop rolls in the oven or start to toss a salad.

■ Delegate dinner chores and leave instructions. "If you have everything planned and written down, your kids and husband can help prepare dinner. It makes them feel good that they can be part of dinner. I leave instructions so if my husband gets home before I do, he can start dinner. At first, he refused to cook unless he had detailed instructions. Cooking the rice and rolls gave him confidence to cook stir-fry."

Sometimes Therese and Chuck cook dinner together. "We talk about what is going on in our workday lives. Cooking together gives us a chance to reconnect at the end of the workday.

giving. Not only is it chock full of great Sloan family-tested recipes, but it's also packed with a multitude of cooking tips on all the basics.

The section on "beef basics" should be expected reading for any man (or woman) who dares to venture into the realm of cooking beef. Speaking of knowing thy butcher, our last source is none other than a retired butcher from the famed Byrd's House of Choice Beef in Livonia, Norm Scheck of Canton.

Norm knows his beef, and says that when it comes to grilling, you get what you pay for.

"The better cuts of beef, like the fillets, the sirloins, the porterhouses and the flanks, are best for grilling" said Scheck. "Lesser-priced cuts like blade cuts, the rounds and the rumps benefit from slower and moister cooking methods."

Scheck also says that if you want to grill a roast, look for the top round or the eye of the round, as they are the most tender, while chucks, bottom rounds and rumps are flavorful but not quite as tender. Although he doesn't barbecue as much as he used to, a good flank steak and ribs are Norm's favorites.

When it comes to preparing great beef on the grill, the butcher's favorite tools are his tongs (do you see a pattern here, folks?) and his trusty meat thermometer.

As far as the Janes Gang is concerned, we fire up the grill for great steaks, ribs and burgers. A personal favorite is New York strip steak rubbed with fresh cracked black pepper about an hour before grilling begins. This allows the pungency of the pepper to "mellow" into the meat and when served with grilled green onions (tossed on the last 2 minutes or so over the hot coals) and some baked potatoes that were thrown into the hot coals after being twiced wrapped in foil, dinner is served! I'll agree that tongs are a favorite tool for grilling steaks, but I wouldn't be caught dead near my grill without my trusty plastic squirt bottle, ready to douse any sudden flare-ups that might occur. A cold brew or nice glass of wine would also serve the dual purpose of keeping the chef happy and dousing flames.

So if you're thinking about firing up the grill for some great beef this Father's Day, you might be interested in the recipes our professionals have to offer.

VERN PIXLEY'S GRILLED TENDERLOIN OF BEEF WITH COLD MUSTART MINT SAUCE

1 whole beef tenderloin (4 to 5 pounds)
olive oil
fresh ground black pepper

Bring the tenderloin to room temperature before grilling. If the tail of the tenderloin is thin, fold it under and secure with a toothpick.

Brush the meat liberally with olive oil and sprinkle with fresh ground pepper.

Oil the grill rack and on an open (uncovered) grill, grill over red-hot coals and sear the tenderloin on both sides for 1½ to 2 minutes.

Cover the grill and partially close the vents and cook the tenderloin approximately 10 minutes per side for rare, 3 to 4 minutes longer for medium rare.

It is best to use a meat thermometer for perfection. 120 degrees F. for rare and 140 degrees F. for medium. Remove the tenderloin from the grill and loosely cover with foil for 5 minutes before carving to set the juices. Slice into ¾ inch medallions and serve with a cold mustard mint sauce. Serves 8.

COLD MUSTARD MINT SAUCE

1 tablespoon Dijon-style mustard
1 tablespoon grainy-style mustard
1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
several grindings of fresh ground black pepper
¾ cup olive oil
1 tablespoon heavy cream
small pinch of sugar (about ½ teaspoon)
2 tablespoon chopped fresh mint leaves or 1 tablespoon dried mint

Combine the egg yolk with the mustards, salt and pepper in a glass or ceramic bowl or in the bowl of a food processor. Add the oil, drop by drop, whisking constantly until the mixture begins to thicken. Continue adding the remainder of the oil in a thin stream, whisking constantly.

HOWARD EARL SIMMONS

The mixture should be thick. Whisk in cream and sugar and stir in mint leaves. Chill and serve alongside the grilled tenderloin. Serves 8.

DAD'S OWN BARBECUE SAUCE

1 tablespoon vegetable oil
1 medium onion, finely chopped
3 cloves garlic, minced
1 cup ketchup
2 tablespoons Dijon-style mustard
2 tablespoons honey
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon cider vinegar
1 tablespoon molasses
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
dash cayenne pepper

Place a medium saucepan on high heat until it gets hot, about 45 seconds. Add the oil and the onion and saute until soft, about 5 minutes. Add the garlic and saute for 1 minute more. Transfer the onion and garlic mixture to a medium bowl.

Add the remaining ingredients and mix well. Brush or mop on grilled meat or poultry. Makes enough sauce to for one chicken or two pounds of meat.

Fresh herbs add zest to salsa, basil vinegar

PAPAYA SALSA

1 ripe papaya, peeled, seeded and chopped
1 small red pepper, chopped
1 small red onion, chopped
¼ cup chopped fresh cilantro
1 medium shallot or garlic clove, chopped
¼ cup pineapple juice
6 tablespoons lime juice (about 3 limes)
1 jalapeno pepper, finely chopped
salt and fresh ground pepper to taste

In a large, non-reactive bowl, combine all ingredients and mix well. This salsa will keep when covered and refrigerated for 3-4 days.

HOMEMADE OPAL BASIL VINEGAR

2½ cups opal basil leaves
the lemon peel from a fresh lemon
4 cups white vinegar (regular or wine flavored)

Place the rinsed and dried herbs and the lemon peel in a sterilized, 5 to 6 cup bottle. Heat the vinegar to the boiling point and pour it immediately into the bottle over the herbs and lemon peel. Allow to cool.

Cap with a non-metallic lid. In a week or two, strain and rebottle into smaller, sterilized containers. label and store in a cool dark place for 3 months before using

Kids of all ages can make Cocoa Critter Cookies

AP — Junior bakers of all ages can get involved in making dad a special treat for Father's Day. Cocoa Critter Cookies are made with cocoa, so there's no need to melt chocolate. Once the dough has been prepared and refrigerated for easier handling, even young children can create their favorite "critters" such as caterpillars, ladybugs, frogs, dogs and cats.

COCOA CRITTER COOKIES

2 cups sugar
¾ cup vegetable oil
¾ cup cocoa
4 eggs
2 teaspoons vanilla extract
2⅓ cups all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
Additional sugar
Assorted decorating icing

In a large mixer bowl, stir together 2 cups sugar and oil; add cocoa, blending well. Beat in eggs and vanilla. Stir together flour, baking powder and salt; add to cocoa mixture, blending well. Cover; refrigerate until firm enough to handle, at least 6 hours.

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. Lightly grease a cookie sheet. Working with a small portion of dough at a time (keep remaining dough in refrigerator until ready to use), shape dough into ½-inch balls. Roll in additional sugar.

To form caterpillars, place four or five balls about ¼ inch apart onto prepared cookie sheet. Bake in a 350 degree F oven for 12 to 14 minutes or until almost no indentation remains when touched lightly. Cool slightly. Remove from cookie sheet to wire rack; cool completely. Pipe decorations with commercially prepared icings. Makes about 2½ dozen cookies.

Recipe from Hershey's Cocoa.

Pear ice refreshing

AP — Bring out the ambrosial flavor of pears by poaching them in your microwave oven. Because they juice out, you don't need to add any liquid at all before cooking. When they're perfectly tender, blend them with the rest of the ingredients for this refreshing ice. You can freeze the puree in an ice cream freezer or in a pan in your freezer.

PEAR ICE

4 fully ripe medium pears (3½ pounds total), peeled, cored and cut up (7 cups)
½ to ⅔ cup sugar
2 tablespoons kirsch (cherry liqueur) or 2½ teaspoons almond extract

Place pears in a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole. Cover and cook on 100 percent power (high) for 10 minutes or until tender, stirring once. Cool slightly, do not drain.

In a blender container or food processor bowl combine pears, cooking liquid, sugar and kirsch or almond extract. Cover and blend or process until smooth.

Freeze pear mixture in a 4- to 5-quart ice cream freezer according to the manufacturer's directions. (Or, transfer to a 9 by 9 by 2-inch pan. Cover and freeze for 2 to 3 hours or until almost firm. Break the frozen mixture into small chunks. Transfer to a chilled bowl. Beat with an electric mixer until smooth but not melted. Return to pan. Cover, freeze until firm.) Makes 5 cups (10 servings).

ART ON THE EDGE

Nature transformed: Kyoung Ae Cho gives new life to discarded materials like those incorporated in her large scale basketry.

She creates her art from throw-aways

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Sculptor Kyoung Ae Cho gathers abandoned and discarded objects to create new forms and new life through art. In collaboration with nature she bends and binds the honey locust stems, pine needles, vines, beeswax and other materials transforming them in the process.

Cho's work continues on exhibition in "Willing Disbelief" with artists Tom Phardel, Dennis Jones, Valerie Parks, Patricia Groenenboom and Catherine Smith through June 25 at the Detroit Artists Market.

"I'm trying to show the beauty of nature, trying to give found objects that once had been chosen then discarded another life, an extension of life," Cho said. "I don't use artificial preservative so it can join the cycle of its life again. It grew and died. I see that as a cycle."

"Ever Green Window" consists of hundreds of pine needles collected from a discarded Christmas tree Cho found in her Birmingham neighborhood. She painstakingly glued the needles one by one onto the viewing area where glass had once occupied an old window frame.

"I gather but is already there for some reason," Cho said. "The old Christmas tree, it's a shame to let that go. The frame is from an abandoned house in Detroit. The house is abandoned, so is the Christmas tree."

Cho's concept for creating the window revels in simplicity.

"I was thinking of hope and a window frame for the future, giving new life to the pine needles and window frame. I want my work to be positive," she said.

Gathering and collecting abandoned objects is very important to Cho's work because she searches not solely for materials, but ideas. Not until she collected vines discarded from the grounds of Birmingham First Presbyterian Church could she conceive and begin to evolve the large scale basketry on exhibit at the Detroit Artists Market.

"I work very spontaneously. I gather many things. It's an evolution," Cho said. "You don't have to paint. You can use natural materials. I saw these vines woven into a bird's nest. That was the form. Then I was thinking about space as far as the work, trying to understand the space here."

Vines of natural grays and browns woven round and round create a lyrical and flowing human-size nest that suggests a safe haven from the world.

The basis for Cho's art training began in South Korea where she was born. In 1986 she earned a bachelor of fine arts degree in textile from Duksung Women's University in Seoul. Shortly after coming to this country she studied fiber in the master of art program at California State University in Northridge, and in 1991 received a master of fine arts degree in fiber from Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills. In 1992 she received a monitor grant from Haystack Mountain School of Crafts.

Cho has exhibited work at the National Museum of Art in Seoul, the Michigan Gallery, Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association and Paint Creek Center for the Arts in Rochester. She has taught as a visiting artist at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit and Cranbrook-Kingswood.

Groups find their own 'Faith'

■ In a way it's a mini music revolution . . . bands working together, taking charge of their careers. The end result has been Club of Faith, although the club part should not be confused with the clubs they perform in.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

During their careers, every band feels mistreated by club owners and booking agents. But Bent Lucy and a contingent of fellow local bands got fed up and did something about it. They banded together and formed their own venue and accompanying organization — Club of Faith.

"They (club owners and booking agents) were ruining everyone as far as pay, when to play and all that . . . what places to play, what times to play, what days to play . . . so the musicians got together to do it themselves . . . to have their own club," said Bent Lucy bassist Kirk Bleau.

The "club" is a loosely termed organization of bands, most of whom share rehearsal space in a muggy, graffiti-laden loft above a store in Redford.

"It's totally like a dorm; we all hang out," said Geof Coman, guitarist for the band Black Mali.

Together, the musicians — whose genres range from the industrial dance sounds of Code Industry to the alternative rock of the Vudu Hippies to the rock of Bent Lucy — held club nights on the floor where each band was showcased in a different room. Visitors — maxed at 700 — brought their own beverages and food.

"It's a cool idea; it got all these bands together that didn't have anything else to do on a Friday night," said Coman, a Detroit resident.

Visitors were given minimal rules.

"They're told one rule when they come into the door: There's no destruction of people or property," said Bent Lucy guitarist and Club of Faith founder Robin "Gramps" Miller.

Lacking the proper licenses, the Club of Faith "nightclub" was closed by police. The bands, however, are allowed to use the facility to rehearse, its original purpose. Currently, Miller is finalizing plans for a new venue to house "Club of Faith Nights" starting in July. The revamped events will include performances by local bands and poets as well as artworks by local artists. He is also organizing a three-day music festival Labor Day weekend in Brooklyn, Mich.

Common place: In the common hallway of the Club of Faith, members of various groups congregate outside Bent Lucy's suite, including club founder and Bent Lucy guitarist Robin Miller (in black T-shirt), bassist Kirk Bleau (leaning against wall), and drummer Michael Brasic (sitting down with hat).

His events, Miller said, offer more than what run-of-the-mill clubs do.

"We can offer them a cool place. It's not a bar. They can bring their own stuff. They'll see bands. It's not a bar where they're going to get hassled," he said.

It also allows the bands to play in front of a more attentive crowd than those at clubs where bands rank second to the dance music, he said.

"It immediately gets them some exposure and we're hoping in the long run that we'll have the upper hand on the clubs and lead our own way with it," said Michael Brasic, Bent Lucy's drummer.

Johnny Angel, lead singer of the band Substation ,agreed.

"We're going to take this thing to the point where they (club owners) are going to be coming to us," said Angel, who also runs his recording studio, Tone Zone, out of the Club of Faith loft.

"It's a power of numbers. Now you're part of a family that's always on the move," he added.

Apparently, he's correct. Out of the 27 bands in Club of Faith, about a quarter have had record label interest, Bent Lucy being one of them. (Substation recently signed with RCA Records.)

Concurrent with forming Club of Faith, Bent Lucy has been able to generate some hype for itself. They, along with Blue Nation, the Rainbirds, Psycho Cafe and 17 Reasons Why have been accepted to play at Soundcheck, the Yamaha Music Showcase on Tuesday at the State Theatre in Detroit. The group was also featured in the July issue of Rip magazine.

Although Bent Lucy is only a year old, it brings along a host of talent. Brasic, a 21-year-old Farmington Hills resident, moved from Grand Rapids to Seattle when he was 17 to play with Kevin Wood, the brother of Mother Love Bone's deceased lead singer Andrew Wood. After the band broke up, he returned to Michigan while Kevin and Brian Wood formed the Fire Ants. Being in Seattle prior to the musicial onslaught taught Brasic the ropes of the industry.

"I saw a lot of it in the making and that was schooling in itself," Brasic said.

Miller is a former member of Concrete Rattle and vocalist Matthew Ruffino toured with Megadeth as a guitar understudy.

"Collectively, we probably got about 70 years experience playing out at a young age. It might not mean much but it's a lot of time in a short period." said Miller, a Livonia Franklin High School graduate.

All this knowledge, Bleau said, will help the Club of Faith turn record company representatives' focus toward Detroit.

"What happened for Seattle is good for Seattle, but it's the same thing going on here. It's a matter of time before they get some recognition."

For more information about Club of Faith, call 730-5855. Bent Lucy performs at 8 p.m. Tuesday, June 15, at Yamaha's Music Showcase "Soundcheck" at the State Theatre, 2115 Woodward, Detroit. Call 961-5451 for more information. They will also perform Friday, June 25, at Lili's, 2930 Jacob, Hamtramck (875-6555); Saturday, June 26, at the Marquee, 8139 E. Seven Mile Road, Detroit, an Earthfest fundraiser. (366-2437); Wednesday, June 30, at The Ritz, 10½ and Gratiot, Roseville (778-8404); Friday, July 2, at The Gallery, 22759 Van Dyke, Warren (757-6060); Saturday, July 24, at Finney's Pub, 3965 Woodward, Detroit (831-8070); and Saturday, Aug. 14, at EarthFest at the State Fairgrounds (886-7860).

Coolness comes to The Del-Kats

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

When a friend asked Jeffrey Lee if he wanted to buy his stand-up bass, he didn't imagine he'd be playing it on stage one day. He had other plans for it.

"I thought it would look cool hangin' on my wall," he said, taking a drag on a cigarette.

But the more he looked at it, the more he was intrigued.

"I started takin' a couple pointers from friends," he said. Now, Lee and his bass are an integral part of The Del-Kats cool live show. Sometimes, it's not because of his talent either.

"I think I have more fun jumpin' on it," Lee said.

Although his baby blue bass takes a lot of beating, he's still quite close to it.

"It's cooler than girls, cooler than cars, and cooler than my friends — some of them," said Lee to appease the rest of the foursome.

That laid-back fun sort of feeling is what comes across during shows by The Del-Kats. Rhythm guitarist Johnny Loveless thanks the audience for most of the band's live talent.

League tours Michigan theaters

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

■ MOVIES

The ambitious renovation of downtown Detroit's theater district has attracted the attention of more than just suburbanites. This week the League of Historic American Theatres will visit these and other Michigan theater sites during their 17th annual conference.

More than 100 League members will board three buses for the June 15-19 event, which begins on Mackinac Island and concludes at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor. Along the way, the theater preservationists will tour such Detroit-area theaters as Orchestra Hall, The Gem, The Fox, State Theatre, Grand Circus, Music Hall and Redford Theatre.

"Michigan has done well," said Mary Margaret Schoenfeld, executive director of the league. "For an organization like ours, the downtown restorations are especially exciting. We're looking forward to seeing them all."

The league, based in Washington, D.C., began as a non-profit organization in 1976. The group is comprised of theater enthusiasts, restoration and design experts and theater management professionals.

Schoenfeld pointed out that members don't visit theaters eager to peddle services or gain lucrative restoration contracts. They will, however, offer advice if asked.

"We don't descend on a place and say, 'you're doing this wrong and this and this and this,'" Schoenfeld said. "Each restoration is unique. We don't know what their goals are for the physical restoration and how they're going to operate. There's more than one right way to restore and operate a theater."

The league visits a different area or state for their annual summer conference, most recently Ohio, Florida, South Carolina, Georgia and California.

Membership in the league does have its price — $50 for an individual membership and between $195-$300 for an organization. Members receive a bi-monthly newsletter and a magazine keeping them up-to-date on restoration projects throughout the country. A large percentage of members hail from Michigan.

For Schoenfeld and others who have only seen pictures, the circa 1928 Fox should prove a highlight.

"It fascinates me to think of the money they put into these theaters . . . the Chinese, Byzantine, Egyptian influences all blended into one. It's just hilarious," Schoenfeld said.

Scheduling conflicts and just plain logistics will prevent the group from touring The Calumet Theatre, the Upper Peninsula's grand old opera house in copper country. They will walk through Pease Auditorium in Ypsylanti and Rackham Hall, Hill Auditorium and the Mendelssohn Theatre in Ann Arbor.

The theater tour comes on the eve of a sad story locally, as the Berkley Theatre on 12 Mile Road in downtown Berkley may soon house a drug store. Though not an architectural masterpiece, The Berkley is one of the few neighborhood movie theaters that has preserved its primary purpose and not split (or twinned) into two or more screens.

Schoenfeld sympathizes, but noted that "with smaller theaters, it's an especially tough business."

A night with the living Deadheads

Out on the road today I saw a Deadhead sticker on a Cadillac. A little voice inside my head said, "Don't look back. You can never look back . . . "

— Don Henley
"The Boys of Summer"

■ 'A Deadhead is one who follows The Dead, who follows the show or the spirit of the show, who likes to mill around and experience the atmosphere.'

Jason Mueller

BY EILEEN OXLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

Every year the Grateful Dead go on tour, you can get your old bell-bottoms, love beads and sandals out of the trunk and become a Deadhead.. Or you can go straight from work in your Brooks Brothers suit, dress up in your flashiest trash, or wear the clothes you garden in.

"You can come as you are; it doesn't matter what you are . . . It's an attitude," said Rabbit, 21, a Deadhead from Minneapolis, who, along with his friends Fiona, 19, and Brian, 22, were at The Palace of Auburn Hills last year to hear their favorite band, The Grateful Dead.

The band's double gigs at The Palace last week were a repeat of last year's experience.

Although the Palace parking was closed until 4 p.m., "a lot of folks start showing up at noon and pile up along Lapeer Road," said Palace marketing assistant Chris Williams.

The group's phenomenon is that it has spawned a second generation of devoted followers since its birth as a hippie rock group in the '60s.

Like "Brigadoon," a time warp magically appears every time the Dead are on tour. That tour brings together a nomadic band of followers from all parts of the United States as a temporary Woodstock Nation.

Homeless-looking hippies hitch down the highways or follow the group in their trademark VW vans, looking like caravans of cars behind the hearse in funeral processions.

But the group itself, unlike that metaphor, is very much alive.

Their trademark song, "Touch of Gray," nonchalantly croons lyrics like "We will get by; we will survive," beckoning to these 20- to 40-year-old devotees still faithful to the Dead's laid-back messages.

"They bring back the old American ideal — gypsies," said Fiona, who showed up makeupless and dressed in a large floppy purple hat, faded blue jean jacket, long shapeless parsley dress and earth shoes.

Basically, there are no requirements to be a Deadhead. You can be educated or illiterate, professional or blue-collar, white or black, drug users or abstainers, rich or poor.

Kim, a 38-year-old carpenter from southern California, brought his wife and baby with him to The Palace last year.

"We've been to 19 out of 20 shows this month. (The Dead's tour began on March 1 last year). We save our money all year and take our vacation with them," he said.

A college graduate with a bachelor's degree in philosophy, he thinks the Grateful Dead are an art form, saying that different people hear different things when listening to their music.

"Depending on where you're coming from you can hear about mundane realities, coarse sexuality or ethereal things," said Kim, his face mellow as he drank a can of beer. "But most Deadheads just find an affinity with the music."

And indeed, inside The Palace when the concert begins, barefooted Deadheads start spinning or dancing in circles on the concourse and down the aisles, some closing their eyes, smiling saintly smiles, and waving their hands in the air.

Some chant along with the lyrics and some look as though they're praying.

"There was this one guy spinning for half an hour," said Cindy Pardington, 34, a suite captain for The Palace. "After he stopped, I asked him what he was doing. He said, 'I'm praying.' I asked, 'To who?" He said, 'To whomever I want to.' "

That's exactly the kind of vague but simple response you get from Deadheads. They're not bothered by complexities. They trust everyone, a testament to this fact being they leave their shoes, their money and their backpacks in heaps along The Palace concourse. Happy wayfarers, nomadic wanderers, flower children, who reek of Patchouli oil and body odor and coo "make love, not war" for a few days each year.

According to Allyson, 21, a rosy-cheeked girl from Tennessee, "it's everybody's own definition." Her friend Nikki Gouln, 20, thin and thoughtful, followed with, "You need to know who Jerry Garcia is." Garcia is the band's leader and guitarist.

Sitting close to the stage were Jason Gibson, 20, Keith Parker, 21, and Jason Mueller, 21; three quiet young men from Fort Wayne, Ind., who bore witness to the fact that a Deadhead can look any way he or she wants. All of them had neatly clipped short hair, jeans and sweatshirts like college kids who have B averages and are on the track team. Mueller wore a baseball cap.

"A Deadhead is one who follows the Dead, who follows the show or the spirit of the show, who likes to mill around and experience the atmosphere," said barefooted Mueller, dressed in a typical tie-dyed T-shirt and jeans. "It's a beautiful person who has a keen sense of adventure, and adventure is the key word."

When asked why so many Deadheads don't like to give their last names, he doesn't miss a beat of his spinning.

"It doesn't matter, 'cause we're all the same," he said.

At least for a few days each year.

"When you're an entertainer/performer, you feed off the energy of the audience," he said.

Lead singer/guitarist Gino added: "We want everyone to have a good time. We don't want them to be thinking about everything on the news or anything."

They'd also like the audience to forget about comparisons — to Elvis and "Beverly Hills 90210."

"We remember the days of all the Elvis comparisons. Now with '90210' and the sideburns . . . I don't know which people to hit now," Lee said.

The Del-Kats also dodge comparison to fellow rockabilly band Stray Cats.

"That's why we don't play any Stray Cats songs. People say, 'You're trying to be the Stray Cats.' So be it. They're a great band but we're not them," Gino said.

The Del-Kats recently finished a short tour which included shows with Goober & The Peas and 1950s legend Ronnie Dawson. Although playing out of town is fun, The Del-Kats find performing in the Detroit area challenging.

"Playing in town is tougher. People have expectations and we have a reputation to live up to," said drummer Adam.

The Del-Kats will perform Sunday, June 27, at the Phoenix Center Amphitheatre in Pontiac during Clutch Cargo's 11th anniversary concert. Call 334-1999 for more information. The Del-Kats are also looking for local bands to start a softball league. For more information, call 548-5468.

Richard Jeni is serious about comedy career

BY BOB SADLER
SPECIAL WRITER

■ COMEDY

Upon engaging Richard Jeni in conversation, one quickly realizes that this is a man who is genuinely serious about his craft. He is not one to put on some kind of stage persona in the hopes that people will like it.

His approach is simple, yet jarring. Jeni lays himself out every time he steps to the mike, unafraid of exposing that vulnerability some people reserve only for their closest friends.

"I don't want to be a one-dimensional person on stage,"Jeni said in a recent interview from his home in Los Angeles. "Sometimes that can be a marketing tool for comedians, if they're known for one thing. The Stupid Guy. The Fat Guy. The Dirty Guy. That way it's easy for the people who produce television shows and movies to know exactly who you are.

"A part of me has always resisted that because I am a hodge-podge kind of person. Like most people, I contradict myself."

Lately, Jeni has used the metaphor of the platypus to describe himself. His most recent HBO special, which aired in February, was even entitled "PlatypusMan."

"The platypus is an animal with all the contradictions," Jeni explained. "It's a mammal, but it lays eggs. It swims like a fish, but it walks like a dog. The idea or hook of 'PlatypusMan' is that there is no hook. Like everybody else in the '90s, he's searching and groping for his own identity. This is a serious subject to be getting into, and I wanted something that was deliberately silly to soften it."

Comedy fans have responded to Jeni in a big way. "PlatypusMan" was both a critical and ratings success, much like Jeni's previous two cable specials on Showtime, "The Boy from New York City" and "Crazy from the Heart."

To top it off, Jeni took home the title of "Best Male Stand-Up Comic" at the 1993 American Comedy Awards. The winners in both the male and female categories were selected by the watchers of cable's Comedy Central network, who dialed in their choices via a 900 phone number. Jeni had been nominated in the same category five consecutive years before winning, so comparisons to Susan Lucci have been rendered moot.

"It's somewhere between the Academy Award and a bowling trophy," Jeni said of winning.

Jeni's career is now in that transitional phase when he has graduated from the club circuit and moved on to performing at larger theater-style venues (like the Royal Oak Music Theater where he appears this week). More television exposure has come in the form of hosting "Caroline's Comedy Hour" on cable's Arts & Entertainment network and commercials for Certs. A series pilot, filmed for ABC, was just recently shelved but Jeni currently negotiating with NBC on another idea. He wants more creative input in any new show than he did on the pilot.

"Premises (for television) are a dime a dozen," Jeni said. "It's all in the execution."

While waiting for the right television or film project to come his way, Jeni will continue to take his award-winning stand-up routine on the road.

"Ultimately, it's about the jokes," Jeni concluded. "I can only commit to material that I personally find funny. I just try to give people an honest portrait of who I am."

Richard Jeni will appear Wednesday, June 16, at the Royal Oak Music Theater. Tickets are available at the theater box office, all TicketMAster outlets, or by calling 645-6666.

■ Attention Boosler boosters ... Comedy under the stars at Meadowbrook? Yes, indeed. Elayne Boosler brings her brand of humor from the female perspective to the outdoors on June 19. Tickets are available at all TicketMaster outlets or by charge card at 645-6666.

■ Aprill in June ... If you have a middle-aged uncle who loves to tell jokes, you may be reminded of him when you experience Al Aprill. Bearing a passing resemblance to Al Lewis, the actor who portrayed "Grandpa Munster" in the old television show, Aprill will keep you in stitches at Chaplin's West June 22-26. Call 533-8866 for information.

■ Comedy without a net ... Improv and other sketch-oriented humor is the order of the night when the Stunt Johnson ensemble plays at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle in Royal Oak June 22-26. Call 542-9900 for reservations.

■ Bubba bashing alert ... Nothing in Washington is sacred when the Capitol Steps gang takes the stage. If you're curious to see what the group thinks of the latest goings-on in the nation's capital, catch them - appropriately - on July 4 at the Power Center in Ann Arbor. Tickets available at TicketMaster outlets or by calling 645-6666.

DAM art director Gerry Craig who curated the show says that Cho, gathering pine needles and sticks from the woods, collaborates with their inherent form, never imposing so much of her will that the material is destroyed or broken.

"It is simultaneously a portrait of herself and nature, a symbiotic relationship which respects and integrates each component."

Cho plans to continue creating her art while working as a studio assistant at Architectural Fiber Works in Pontiac.

"I think Michigan inspires me to help people to see more in nature," Cho said.

■ 'I work very spontaneously. I gather many things. It's an evolution.'

County gets first new parkland in 40 years

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

Today Wayne County will officially dedicate a new parcel of protected park land — the first acquisition for Wayne County parks in more than 40 years.

The William P. Holliday Nature Preserve will grow by nearly 40 acres thanks to the efforts of the Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy, the Wayne County Department of Public Services, Department of Parks and the Department of Natural Resources.

"It was a really great cooperative effort, and county funds weren't used at all," said Dan Navarre, deputy director of parks.

The 38.65-acre portion of land is near the Koppernick entrance of the preserve and is considered a transitional meadow. Old apple trees, tall grasses and saplings cover the parcel.

This portion of the preserve will be called "Foxlands" as it is considered to be one of a very few remaining breeding grounds for red fox in southeast Michigan.

"The additional property will increase the continuous line of undisturbed land and make it a good habitat for the fox," said Bill Craig, president of the Holliday Nature Preserve Association.

There are five known fox dens in the immediate area of the new park land, Craig said.

"The fox is a top-of-the-line predator and helps with rodent control as well as maintaining the natural order of things," Craig said.

Meadowlarks are also known to breed there.

"This was really an essential piece of property for the future of the preserve," said Jack Smiley, president of the Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy.

The preserve is known to be home to some rare birds, wildflowers and is a good example of a climax forest. The preserve is unusual because it is a true bit of forest located in a highly developed area.

"There's not much of a deer population in the preserve any longer because of the development," Craig said. "The deer pass through, but they don't breed and live within the preserve any longer."

The Holliday Nature Preserve is a 500-acre stretch of land that runs through Westland and Canton Township. It was set aside in trust to the county in the 1950s when William P. Holliday died.

The Holliday Preserve Association was formed about six years ago when development was threatening the property. Members work to educate the public on the significance of the land and fight off development as it gets closer to the preserve.

The Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy was born from that effort on the premise that money should be collected to buy property in southeast Michigan and protect it from development. Since its beginnings five years ago, the conservancy has bought 200 acres of property and is negotiating for the purchase of 120 acres in Superior Township.

The Land Conservancy bought the 40-acre parcel adjacent to the Holliday Preserve about five years ago from an individual and has been working with the county for the past two years to negotiate a sale.

The land was valued at nearly $370,000. The county worked with the state to get grant money covering a portion of the cost and the Land Conservancy contributed approximately $200,000 to get the acquisition in place.

"The whole process took longer than we had hoped," Smiley said.

Craig said it is important to understand the distinction between a park and a preserve. The nature preserve does not have swings and slides and public restrooms and shelters. The trails are natural ones and are not cleared with wood chips or asphalt.

"It is our mission to keep the area as natural as it can be for the only true inhabitants," Craig said. "We do some clearing so that school groups, and residents can walk through and get a real sense of walking through the woods."

Darnell TKO'd in 9th

Westland professional light heavyweight fighter Steve Darnell lost on a ninth-round technical knockout Monday to South African Garry Ballard in Africa.

The bout, scheduled for 10 rounds, was stopped when Darnell's trainer and manager Bradd Lally threw in the towel in the ninth round.

Despite the loss, Darnell, 26-4-2 overall as a pro, remained ranked ninth in the North American Boxing Federation. Darnell also lost on a ninth-round TKO in his last bout in February.

"Nine seems to be an unlucky number for him," said Lally.

Darnell is 1-1-2 since returning to the ring after a brief retirement. He hopes to return to the ring later this summer.

"I definitely thought I could beat that guy (Ballard)," Darnell said. "My last two fights I've lost to top-notch fighters. If I didn't think I was improving, I'd call it quits. I have to step up and beat one of these guys and prove I'm worth something. If I can't, I'm out of here."

Rockets orbit into final 8

Regional champion Westland John Glenn will meet Southgate Anderson in the state Class A quarterfinals Tuesday at Chelsea. The Rockets ousted Brighton and Salem.

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

Nobody is really talking about it, but you get the sense that the Westland John Glenn baseball team is playing with the determination and conviction of a group that knows its days are numbered.

It's as if they got together and decided that, "Hey, if this is going to be the last year of athletics at John Glenn, then we are going out as champions."

No. 4-ranked Glenn, which could lose its athletic programs if its millage fails today, played near-perfect baseball Saturday, winning its second straight Class A regional championship beating No. 10 Brighton 1-0 in the semifinal and host Plymouth Salem 7-2 in the championship.

Glenn (26-4) made two errors on the day and allowed just three hits to each opponent. It advances to the quarterfinals on Tuesday at Chelsea and will play the winner from the Temperance-Bedford regional.

"I really think this is the best team I've ever had," said Norm Hoenes, who's been coaching baseball at Glenn for 27 years. "I've had some real good teams but this group has more good players on it than I've had. And most of them are sophomores and juniors (including six starters). It would just be a crying shame if we lose our program and can't keep this group together."

Ironically, two of the juniors who did most of the damage against Salem in the championship game, twins Derek and Bryan Besco, could end up playing for the Rocks next year. The Besco family has hinted that it would move into the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district if there are no sports at Glenn next year. A computer would eventually determine whether the twins play at Canton or Salem.

"If I were their parents and our programs were shutting down, I would move," Hoenes said. "Those kids are too good to sit."

Salem will vouch for that. Bryan Besco, a dart-throwing left-hander, overpowered the Rocks batters, allowing three hits and striking out seven. Both runs were unearned. He is now 8-1 on the year, with an eye-popping strikeout-to-walk ratio of 94-18.

Then there was brother Derek. All he did was change the entire course of the game with one swing of his bat in the first inning.

Some background, please: Salem has been one of the hottest teams in the state the past few weeks. After starting out 6-9, the Rocks had won 15 of its last 19, including a thrilling 7-5 victory over No. 8 Ann Arbor Pioneer in the regional semifinal.

They had touched Bryan Besco for a run without the aid of hit in the top of first and had Mike Marsella on the mound, fresh off his no-hit performance against Livonia Franklin in the district final.

The Rocks, to say the least, were flying high.

Enter Derek Besco: Marsella walked the first two batters, but he slapped two quick strikes on Besco. He then buzzed Besco with a high, inside fastball on the 0-2 pitch. Salem coach John Gravlin and Marsella both figured Besco was ripe for an outside breaking ball. Wrong.

"He threw me two high fastball in a row, so I figured he would try to get me on a curve," Derek said. "I was definitely leaning out looking for the breaking ball."

What he got was a split-fingered fastball that just spun out over the plate, which Besco promptly sent flying over the 355-foot marker in left-center field.

"Bad pitch," said Marsella (7-4). "It didn't drop."

Short-handed Blazers ousted by Pioneer, 9-7

SOFTBALL

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

It was a Nike and Reebok kind of day all wrapped into one for the Livonia Ladywood softball team in Saturday's Class A regional semifinal at Plymouth Salem.

The Blazers just couldn't do it, discovering that life is short even when you play hard, as Ann Arbor Pioneer spoiled their state tournament run, 9-7.

Ladywood, which bowed out with a 22-12-1 record, barely resembled the team that posted the area's biggest upset only a week earlier in the district finals against No. 2-ranked Plymouth Canton, 1-0.

The shoe just wouldn't fit for Blazers, who committed seven errors and numerous mental mistakes.

First-year coach Lisa Parsons was forced to juggle her lineup when she learned that Tara Wasiak (shortstop) and Jennifer Charnley (third base) would both be absent because of commitments to take the ACT test.

"It hurt because we had a lot of people out of position," Parsons said. "I think it kind of hurt team morale. We were nervous to start out with.

"Tara is one of our leaders on the field. She keeps the kids up, but for kids school comes first and I can't blame them. We tried to get the starting time changed. It's just unfortunate the test was today."

Mary Jo Kelly, Ladywood's ace pitcher, might have sued for non support. She was roughed up for four runs in the opening inning.

Sarah Middlemas ripped a two-run single, but four subsequent errors led to two more runs.

Pioneer jumped out to a 7-0 lead in the second, one run coming across on a Mary Heburn single, another on a wild pitch and a third on a groundout.

Ladywood got on the board in the third when sophomore catcher Melissa Campeau doubled in Kelly Stokes.

Gibraltar Carlson eliminates punchless Shamrocks, 3-2

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Actually, John Salter's prediction was right on the money.

Knowing that, however, won't make Saturday's 3-2 loss to Gibraltar Carlson in the Temperance Bedford Class A baseball regional semifinal any easier to take.

Prior to the regional, the CC coach noted that his team had pitching and defense, but offensive production had been an ongoing problem.

Brian Paluk, a 10-game winner, started against Carlson, but he wasn't as sharp as usual.

But that's not what lost this game. CC's defense let down at a critical time, and its offense failed to appear.

The Shamrocks managed just two hits off Marauders' starter Jason Johns, a right-hander. One resulted in both of their runs. But they stranded seven runners and, in what proved to be the pivotal inning (the fifth), they loaded the bases with no one out and failed to score.

"We had our big chance," said Salter. "(Brian) Hicks hit the ball hard. If he hits it a few feet either way, it drops and we score a couple.

"But that's baseball. We had a great chance."

The fifth . . . Although Johns didn't give up many hits, he did walk five. With his team clinging to a one-run lead, he started CC's end of the fifth by walking Andy Slankster.

Salter immediately went for a sacrifice bunt, which Mike Brusseau executed. Second baseman Dan Rossow, charging on the play, threw to second but the ball got past shortstop Mark Taylor.

Now it was Juan Sanchez's turn. His bunt went back to Johns, and he tried for the force play at third. His throw, however, hit Slankster in the back.

The bases were loaded. No one was out. The meat of the CC lineup was coming up.

No. 3 hitter Jeff Gutt hit a grounder to short, and Taylor threw home to get the force out on Slankster.

Hicks was coming to bat — the same guy who went 5-for-7 in the district tournament a week earlier.

He had grounded out to second twice earlier; this time he hit the ball on the nose. But it went straight to center fielder Jason Shallow. He threw to Johns near the mound, and Johns relayed to catcher Tom Humbert, who tagged out Brusseau to complete the inning-ending double play.

In retrospect, it might be said that Hicks hit the ball too hard. Brusseau broke toward home on the drive; by the time he backtracked and tagged up, the Marauders had a shot at him.

All-City squads local

10-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

The Greater Detroit Bowlers Association and the Detroit Women's Bowling Association recently announced its All-City teams.

Once again, Observerland bowlers are very well represented, perhaps even dominant, as the top three men in the area reside in Canton, Westland and Farmington.

Meanwhile, the women's All-City teams have bowlers from Westland and Redford.

In order to be honored, a bowler needs to amass the most possible points. These points are recorded from regular league high averages, tournament wins or high finishes, and honor scores.

For example, Ken Kossick of Canton led the men with 94½ points. He totaled seven for a tie in the GDBA doubles (with Paul Grauzer); 3½ for a tie for seventh in GDBA all-events; 25 for winning State Association Doubles (with Grauzer); 12 for second in the State Association singles; 23 for first from the Association; second overall in State all-events; three for a 300 game; six for a pair of 800 series; and 15 for averages of 227-226-217 in league competition.

Second place went to Westland's Grauzer with 75 points, which included six for a pair of 300 games; two for a 299;, six for a pair of 800 series; and 15 for averages of 224-220-211.

Lee Snow of Farmington Hills took third place honors with 62 points, including a first from the GDBA; 3rd overall in the State singles (23 points) and league averages of 221-217-211.

The "Snowman" is currently holding on to first place in the Peterson Classic (Chicago) and has to sweat it out for a few more weeks. The Peterson doesn't count toward All-City points, only money, and lots of it.

■ As for the women bowlers, Westland's Tina Barber made the first team, scoring 161 points, while Cheryl Stipcak of Redford took second team honors with a total of 99.

The ladies use a different scale for figuring points, but it's basically the same.

Barber recently returned from a stint on the Ladies Professional Bowlers Tour, traveling to such states as Louisiana and Texas.

■ Speaking of the Pro Bowlers Tour, the next local event will be in October at Taylor Lanes. This is a great chance for bowling aficionados to meet the top pro stars on the men's tour. The Pro-Am will be Friday-Saturday, Oct. 22-23.

This year, each bowler who enters the Pro-Am will receive a Brunswick TEAL Rhino Pro Ball. No, this is not a misprint, it's the hottest selling ball of the year, and it costs far more to buy in the pro shops than the entry fee itself. There will be eight squads with $1,000 in prize money for each team. Early bird entries can save money too. For more information, call 946-9092.

Gabriel Richard takes out Clarenceville

■ SOFTBALL

BY BOB STEBBINS

Livonia Clarenceville gave state-ranked Riverview Gabriel Richard a scare Saturday before falling to the Pioneers, 7-4, in a Class C regional baseball semifinals at Erie-Mason.

Gabriel Richard, rated No. 3 in the latest Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association poll, broke a 4-4 deadlock with a run in the third inning. The Pioneers pushed across a pair of insurance runs in fourth before holding on for the victory.

Clarenceville coach Mark MacDonald was impressed with the play of his young troops.

"The kids played a good game," said MacDonald. "I'm quite proud; they hung in there against the third-ranked team in the state."

The Pioneers struck first, using three walks and a pair of hits to push across two runs the in opening inning against losing pitcher Robby Ashton.

Clarenceville tallied all four of its runs in the top of the second. The key hit in the inning was a bases-loaded single by second baseman Ali Nehmeh. Left fielder Ryan McEwen added a sacrifice fly.

The Pioneers, without the benefit of a hit, evened the score with a pair of unearned runs in the bottom half of the inning.

Richard notched the game-winning run in the third inning. Shortstop Jason Gombos led off with a single and eventually scored on a groundout to second by Vince Jesue.

The Pioneers completed the scoring in the fourth, once again scoring without the benefit of a hit.

Gabriel Richard lefthander Terry Hayden allowed only one hit over the final five innings. The University of Detroit-Mercy recruit gave up four hits, while striking out six.

Ashton, a freshman, worked the first four innings, allowing three hits and six walks.

Reliever Carl Holston held Richard scoreless over the final three innings.

Gabriel Richard (27-10) advanced to the regional championship, but lost to another another state-ranked team, No. 7 Detroit Country Day, 6-0.

Clarecéville, led by freshman catcher Brian DeCaire's two hits, finished the year at 12-16.

"There is a good future for the baseball program at Clarenceville," said McDonald. "This was the first baseball district ever won at Clarenceville; just getting here is an accomplishment."

Huge Aquinas inning sinks Lutheran Westland

BY BOB STEBBINS
STAFF WRITER

Southgate Aquinas exploded for 10 runs in the sixth inning to oust a gritty Lutheran High Westland team, 14-4, in the Class C Regional softball semifinals Saturday at Erie-Mason High School.

Lutheran Westland hung tough during the first five innings with the game deadlocked at 4-4.

The Raiders then busted loose, sending 15 batters to the plate in the bottom half of the sixth inning to win the game, halted because of the 10-run mercy rule. Aquinas tallied all 10 runs after two were out.

Lutheran Westland coach Ron Gentz pointed out that the Raiders did not "pound the ball" during their outburst.

"They didn't hit the ball hard," said the Warriors' coach. "The only hard hit was a single through shortstop, but bloopers will kill you."

Also hurting the Warriors' cause were bases on balls. Westland pitchers walked a total of 12.

Before the Aquinas rally, it appeared the Warriors were going to dash the Raiders' state playoff dreams.

After Aquinas scored twice in the opening inning off Westland starter Amy Gentz, the Warriors replied with four runs in top of the fifth to take a two-run advantage. Leslie Turgeon delivered the key hit during the surge with a RBI triple.

Aquinas answered with a pair of runs in the bottom of the fifth to tie the game before exploding for 10 in the sixth to put the game away.

Despite the loss, the Lutheran Westland coach was pleased with the effort of his club.

"We had a pretty good season (16-11 record)," Gentz said. "We played Aquinas tough for five innings and then couldn't find the strike zone."

Becky Beheler was the winning pitcher for Aquinas, while Shannon Wasil, who was inserted in the game in the fifth inning, took the loss.

Ida defeated Aquinas (17-19) in the regional final.

Pioneer made it 9-1 in the fifth on an RBI single by Tara LaSavage and an RBI sacrifice fly off the bat of Molly Grimes.

Ann Arbor pitcher Jenni Pieper, meanwhile, was cruising along like the Pied Piper until the sixth, when Ladywood mounted a furious rally.

Campeau led off with a triple, Kelly doubled and Stacey Judd singled to make it 9-3.

Pieper then walked Katie Wright and Christie Soter reached base safely on a fielder's choice to load the bases.

After a strikeout, Stokes singled in a run and Amy Kliber walked with the sacks filled to cut the deficit to 9-5. Soter scored on a wild pitch and Liza Rozum's groundout scored Stokes, but Pieper got out of further trouble with a big strikeout.

"They made us play the ball whereas we sat up there (at the plate)," Parsons said. "We didn't make it happen ourselves. Finally in the sixth (inning) we got aggressive."

Kelly, who held Pioneer scoreless in the top of the seventh, led off the bottom of seventh with a walk.

But the senior standout was thrown out by catcher Kia Boychuck, trying to steal second on a botched hit-and-run play. Pieper then closed out the victory with a strikeout and groundout to second.

"That was her (Boychuck's) biggest throw of the year," Pioneer coach Kim Waddell said. "It was a gutsy call on Lisa's part."

Said Gravlin, "If there was one pitch I wish I could have called back it was that split-finger that didn't split. I'll take the credit for that one. Usually he gets that pitch to break down. But that's not what beat us. We walked four guys and all four scored. Take those away and it's anybody's game."

Nah, it still would have belonged to the Bescos.

"I felt good about (the home run) because we really needed it," Derek Besco said. "We were down 1-0 and the way (Marsella) was pitching, we didn't know if we were going to get many runs. That opened it up pretty nice."

Besco later plated an insurance run with a long sacrifice fly to the fence in left.

"John Glenn was the better team, no question," Gravlin said. "They are just outstanding on the mound. Those two kids are major-college pitchers."

The other pitcher Gravlin referred to is senior Aaron Scheffer, who blanked Brighton on three hits in the semis. Scheffer (7-3) fanned seven and walked one. His strikeout-to-walk ratio is 74-13.

Scheffer, who had a pair of hits against Salem, also knocked in the lone run against Brighton, scoring Jarrod Hura with a groundout in the second inning.

"The way Aaron was throwing and knowing how well Salem had been playing, I felt a lot more comfortable with our 1-0 lead against Brighton than I did with our two-, three- and four-run leads against Salem," Hoenes said.

"We are really confident right now," said Derek Besco.

CC scored first, getting two runs courtesy of Dave Susalla's RBI triple and Eric Justice's RBI sacrifice fly.

In Carlson's third, Taylor opened with a single and Humbert walked. Shallow tried to sacrifice, but Paluk's throw to third was low, an error that loaded the bases with none out.

Scott Swearengen followed with a grounder to Justice, who got the force at second, one run scoring. Paluk then fanned Eric Caldwell, leaving runners at the corners with two down.

He couldn't extricate himself from the jam, however. He walked Johns to reload the bases, then uncorked a wild pitch. Humbert scored, and when Hicks' throw to Paluk at the plate got past him, Swearengen came home with the go-ahead run.

Paluk was relieved by Susalla to start the fourth, and the junior left-hander was superb.

ALL-AREA GOLF

Franklin tandem headline squad

By Steve Kowalski
Staff Writer

The girls golf coaches from Observerland gathered recently to pick the best players for the All-Area first and second teams.

Although there was no superstar, such as Livonia Stevenson's Megan Johnson of last year's graduating class, seniors lead the 1993 first team.

Farmington Hills Mercy, the Catholic League champion, has three players on the first team. Livonia Franklin also had a fine season and placed two on the first team.

Presenting the 1993 All-Area girls first team:

FIRST TEAM

Nancy Noechel, Liv. Franklin: Noechel closed out her career by making a repeat showing on the first team.

Noechel, the medalist in six of 14 dual matches, averaged 49 per nine holes. The Franklin Athlete of the Year finished seventh in the Western Lakes Activities Association meet and tied for seventh in the Class A regional with a 93.

Noechel is a four-year letter winner and a member of the national honor society.

"Nancy's a fine example of a leader," Franklin coach Darlene Marohnic said. "Nancy never gave up, and she's an excellent thinker on the golf course."

Amy Schulkins, Mercy: The sophomore recovered from a shaky Class A regional to shoot 96 in the state meet. She was ninth place in the Oakland County Meet and took third in the Catholic League with a nine-hole total of 50.

Schulkins' averaged 51.4, improving by four strokes in the last year, according to coach Vicky Kowalski.

"Amy is very easy to get along with and to work with," Kowalski said. "She always encourages the other team members to do their best. She's well on her way to being a top golfer in the county and the area."

Dana Deshaw, Mercy: A repeat performer on the first team, Deshaw took first place in the Catholic League (48) and was second at the Oakland County Meet. She was third in the Monroe Invitational, fifth in the regional and shot 93 in the state final.

Deshaw is a two-time captain and has been on the varsity four years.

"Her leadership will be missed," Kowalski said. "She was a good competitor to work with and to motivate the other team members."

Erin Quinn, Stevenson: Quinn took third place in the WLAA meet and was the medalist at the '93 Stevenson Invitational. Quinn placed 13th at the regional, had a 51.9 average and led the Spartans to a 7-2 dual match record.

"Beyond her skill as a golfer, Erin set an example of determination and as a positive role model to her team," Stevenson coach John Wagner said. "Her work ethic and enthusiasm in spite of a preseason and lingering injury was a factor of obvious importance in relation to the success of our team this year. She's a quality athlete that will be missed next season."

Nancy Meehan, Franklin: The four-year varsity letterwinner placed fifth in the WLAA and shot a 106 in the Class A regional.

"Nancy was very competitive and inclined to get the entire team going," Marohnic said. "Woods are the strong part of her game."

Kyle Wisne, Mercy: Wisne, who has played three years for the Mercy varsity, placed ninth in the Catholic League and helped the Marlins to second place in the Monroe Invitational and third in the Class A regional. She had identical rounds of 108 at Monroe and the regional.

"Although Kyla does not garner many individual awards, she is an integral part of the team," Kowalski said. "Kyla is the spirit of the Mercy team, and her enthusiasm will be missed next year."

Jim Solak also belted a two-run homer during the surge.

Ingham Co. judge wants contract from Hickman

By Richard Epps
Special Writer

An Ingham County Circuit Judge said Wednesday he wants to see the contract ex-Michigan State University basketball player Parish Hickman says his former school has violated.

Judge Michael Harrison said he must study the exact wording of the contract before ruling on Hickman's charge that MSU is guilty of breach of contract.

Hickman's attorney, Paul Rosenbaum, told Harrison MSU did not give Hickman a hearing before suspending him from the university in the spring of 1991. Hickman was arrested at MSU's Hubbard Hall on April 8, 1991, on a charge of attempting to sell artificial cocaine to undercover Drug Enforcement Agency officers.

Hickman was then suspended from the university until the outcome of his trial. He was acquitted of charges of cocaine conspiracy in November 1991.

Hickman, a former all-stater at Redford Bishop Borgess, said in the suit that MSU failed to release his transcripts, revoked his scholarship and wrongfully has billed him $1,421 in tuition and fees.

Rosenbaum said he will present the contract to the judge within a week.

"He has a 2.5 grade point average and 117 credits toward a criminal justice degree," Rosenbaum said. "Now isn't it a shame that we have no record of it? Isn't it a shame that he doesn't have his transcript so he can get on with his life?"

Hickman had reached junior status at MSU before his suspension but had to enroll at Liberty University in Lynchburg, Va. as a freshman because MSU would not release his transcript, his lawyer said.

Michael Kiley, MSU's attorney, said he is confident when Rosenbaum comes forward with the contract, it will prove there was no breach of contract by the university.

Kiley said Hickman is not eligible for his scholarship because he violated the part of the contract that specifies players not participate in conduct which requires severe disciplinary action.

Rosenbaum said Hickman could not come onto campus for a hearing because he was banned from stepping onto MSU grounds and faced arrest if he did go.

But MSU public relations spokesman Terry Denbow said Hickman was invited back onto campus for a hearing, but chose not to go.

"We agreed going into this that this was a frivolous charge, and we still believe the charge will be dismissed," Denbow said.

Kiley said would have been able to return to campus without the threat of being arrested.

Interest in Hickman's suit was rekindled by a front-page story in Sunday's Detroit News, which reported he and former MSU player Jesse Hall allege they received money from boosters and were paid for jobs they did little or no work at.

Both actions are violations of NCAA rules. The NCAA is the governing body for collegiate athletics. If the charges are proven by the NCAA, the university will be subject to penalties. Hickman said Fred Tripp, a longtime MSU supporter and friend of head coach Jud Heathcote, gave him "golden handshakes" of $20 to $50 after most of MSU's games.

Hickman also claims Joel Ferguson, the chairman of MSU's Board of Trustees and a wealthy Lansing businessman, employed him and Hall at an apartment complex owned by Ferguson and paid him for doing minimal work.
