School gay stand draws protest

Gay rights advocates were present at Monday's Wayne-Westland Board of Education meeting. They objected to the board deleting references to sexual orientation in district anti-discrimination policies.

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

High school senior Matthew Barton has suffered the indignity and harassment of being openly gay among bigoted peers.

"I've been called a faggot, a homo, a queer, a fairy and many more names that I don't want to mention," he told the Wayne-Westland school board

Monday night.

"But mostly," he said, "I'm human."

Barton attends Novi High School, but he stood up Monday for Wayne-Westland gay students who, according to their supporters, are afraid to speak out because they fear harassment and potential violence.

That fear, activists say, has worsened because Wayne-Westland school board members in August omitted "sexual orientation" from policies aimed at protecting students and employees from harassment.

Students ignored?

"You are ignoring students and their right to an education," Barton warned board members. "You have said you do not care anymore. If you don't care about gay and lesbian students, what's next?"

Barton, whose car tires have been slashed at school, chided board members for abandoning sexual orientation policies following a recommendation from attorney Joseph Bennett, who said the issue could spur lawsuits.

School officials conceded as much.

"We did it because we could leave ourselves open to a lawsuit," board member Martha Pitsenbarger said after Monday's meeting.

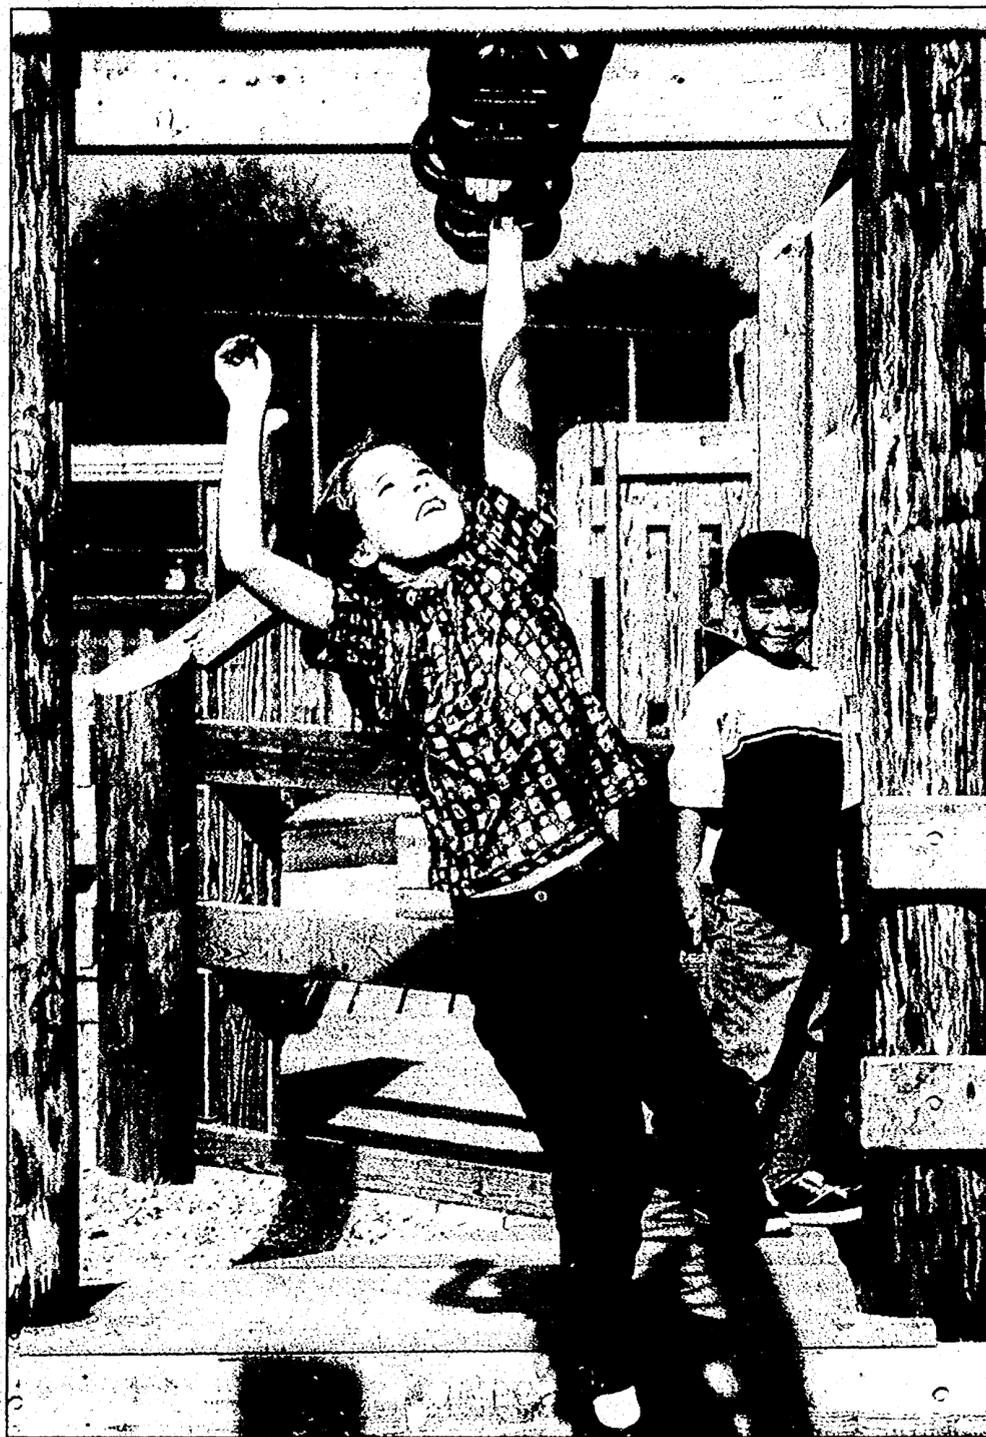

"We were told that it (the policy) opens us up to more liability," Superintendent Greg Baracy said.

Pitsenbarger said the policy change didn't mean the board is anti-gay. "I feel like we've been judged wrong."

School officials dismissed allegations that they are insensitive to gay students and employees, and they pledged

Cable wars heat up

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Cable TV competition in Westland is on the upswing, with Mayor Robert Thomas' announcement Monday evening that Ameritech will soon enter the cable picture.

"We have struck a deal with Ameritech New Media," the mayor said in response to a question from Councilman Richard LeBlanc on retaining a telecommunications attorney.

"We'll be sitting down with the council," Thomas said later in the Westland City Council meeting. A contract with Americast, Ameritech's cable service, would require city council approval.

"At least things are now moving. That was a tough, slow process," Thomas said, adding that council review and approval will take time.

"I'm glad to hear about Ameritech," council President Sandra Cicirelli said, adding that she's unhappy about hikes in prices for movie channels. "I'm glad

Woman pleads in theft case

BY DARRELL CLEM

A Romulus woman faces sentencing Oct. 1 after pleading no contest to charges that she embezzled thousands of dollars from two Westland-based health care businesses.

Sharon Faye Collins, 50, could face a maximum 10-year prison term, but Westland police Sgt. Donald Haigh said Tuesday that she is expected to be placed on probation and ordered to repay the money.

Collins, former office manager of Choice One Nursing Services and Encore Home Health Care, pleaded no contest to four felony embezzling charges, Haigh said. In return, a fifth

No Town Hall

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas has canceled the Town Hall meetings for the remainder of the 1997 calendar year, including the Thursday, Oct. 9, meeting that was scheduled at the William P. Faust Public Library of Westland.

The 1998 Town Hall meeting schedule will be announced as soon as it has been confirmed.

Donation time

A check for $250 will be donated by 7-Eleven to the H.O.S.T.S. (Helping One Student To Succeed) program. An additional $250 will be given to the Westland Playscape project Friday, Sept. 26, as part of the store's grand opening celebration at 31385 Joy in Westland, said Ed Gamble, local 7-Eleven market manager.

"Getting involved with what's important to Westland is part of the way we do business," said Mary Ingram, new 7-Eleven store manager. "Our contribution to the H.O.S.T.S. program and the Westland Playscape project is one way to demonstrate 7-Eleven's strong ties to the community."

The grand opening festivities are scheduled for 10

Members sought

The Franklin High PTSA is looking for new members. Membership is open to those who care about the schools and community, and members need not have a student in the school.

Price is $3 for students, $5 for adults. Checks should be made payable to Franklin PTSA and sent to: 31000 Joy, Livonia 48150.

The fifth annual Fall Remodeling Show will be open Sept. 25-28 at the Novi Expo Center with David L. Inc., Thermal Engineering Corporation and Five Star Air Duct Purification of Westland as exhibitors.

David L. Inc. will display reproduction furniture.

Thermal Engineering Corporation will feature Trane furnaces and air conditioning and Five Star Air Duct Purification will show home air duct cleaning.

For show information, call (248) 737-4478.

Service to homebound

The William P. Faust Public Library of Westland has been awarded a $20,000 grant funded, in part, with a Federal Library Services and Construction Act grant, administered by the Library of Michigan. The grant will fund a program that will provide delivery service of library items to senior homebound residents of Westland. The service will emphasize large print books and books on tape.

Deliveries will be provided by the Westland Senior Resource Center. The library will provide the collection items, a catalog and a monthly newsletter mailed to homebound seniors.

The service will begin in late fall 1997. For information on services or on volunteering, call Joe Burchill, library administrative assistant, at (313) 326-6123.

we're going to see the competition."

The plan could be in place as early as the end of the year, Thomas said after the meeting, but cautioned that it's hard to estimate. Thomas is thinking about a satellite for his own home, so isn't sure he'll sign up for the new cable provider.

"I've thought about that as an alternative also."

Talks have been taking place with Ameritech for more than two years, he said. Current provider MediaOne's exclusive agreement to provide HBO expires Jan. 1 of next year, and that helped to speed up negotiations.

Officials had hoped to be at this point by the end of 1997, so they are pleased with their progress. Thomas believes competition is good for the cable industry and its consumers.

"Absolutely. No doubt about it." There could even be a third cable provider in the city at some point, he said.

MediaOne customers in Westland have long sought a second cable provider; they complained about current service and said that competition would improve the quality of service.

Thomas has been talking about a competitor moving in for the last two years, said Bill Black, director of public affairs for MediaOne. "They don't have an agreement if city council hasn't approved it."

Black said Tuesday he had seen nothing in writing.

"I would hope they would have the courtesy to send us a copy of it. It's premature for me to comment because we haven't seen the agreement," Black said.

Any such plan would go through the local cable commission and city council, he added. Black said he has no problem with competition.

"We have competition in several areas where we're doing business right now." MediaOne has moved into other service areas, he added, including telephone service.

"We spoke to Westland a couple of years ago. We're looking forward to working with them," said Geoff Potter, Ameritech New Media media relations manager. "We're certainly looking at finalizing our franchise."

Consumer response has been great in communities where Ameritech has offered service, Potter said. "We find that everybody wins with cable competition."

Construction could be postponed until 1998, Potter said.

Mayor Robert Thomas

In other action, the city council:

- Approved a bid of $15,447.70 from Network One for police department computers.

- Voted 6-1, with Councilman Charles Pickering dissenting, to hold a closed study session 6:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 29, to discuss a city attorney opinion on the regional incinerator. Holding such a session doesn't preclude also holding an open study session, Cicirelli said.

that other policies are in place to guard against violence and harassment.

"I think our policies as they stand ... are sufficient protection for all students - gay, straight or whatever," board Vice President Mathew McCusker said during the meeting.

Referring to sexual orientation, he said, "those two words don't protect anyone."

Different view

Gays and their supporters disagreed and said school officials should send a message of tolerance by adding sexual orientation to their policies - as they had done in January only to delete the term in August.

Board members reversed their position on sexual orientation after former board president Patricia Brown, a lesbian, lost her re-election bid in June. Brown supported the policies. Some district residents also strongly opposed the policies.

Former Wayne-Westland student Lisa Potter told board members she was "taunted" by anti-gay slurs simply because she was perceived as a lesbian. She attended Schweitzer Elementary and Stevenson Junior High.

"It got vicious," she said. "I was jumped by students, though not on school property."

Westland resident Carol Sharp, who has a gay son, said young people struggle to hide their own identity because of fear.

"We are taking our sexual preference and infringing it upon them," she said.

Westland resident Mike Chiumento, a Plymouth-Canton teacher involved in gay caucuses through the Michigan Education Association and National Education Association, said he receives phone calls and letters from gay employees "who are terrified of being discovered."

Job fears

He said gays fear for their job security and for their personal safety at work. An "inclusive policy" for gays "would do much to dispel those fears," he said.

Chiumento told board members that gay teens have a high suicide rate because of pressures. He told a story of a Utah student who hanged himself earlier this month, although he had "A" grades and was a gymnast.

The Rev. Marjorie Munger of the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church in Canton

Township described gays and lesbians as "persons of sacred worth" and said, "The pastoral heart will not rest as long as the vulnerable ones are at risk."

Oscar Mansour, an 18-year-old graduate of another school district, encouraged board members to restore the sexual orientation policy. Had his district enforced such a policy, he said, "it would have saved me countless days of harassment from other students."

Jeffrey Montgomery, president of the area gay/lesbian Triangle Foundation, said the board's shift amounted not to a change of heart, but "a change to a colder heart."

He said excluding sexual orientation will increase, not decrease, the likelihood of lawsuits. Despite school officials' pledge to protect gay and lesbian students, Montgomery said youngsters will now be afraid to seek help.

"Current and former students have lived through hell in this district," Montgomery said. "We know these students. They come to us for repair."

count was dismissed.

The two businesses are located in the same office complex on the north side of Warren Road, between Wayne and Venoy.

Choice One provides temporary institutional staffing of medical personnel; Encore is a supplier of home health care services, according to a company official.

Choice One and Encore suffered combined losses of $45,832 from money allegedly embezzled last year, according to company allegations against Collins.

Collins had been scheduled for a jury trial on Sept. 8 in front of Wayne County Circuit Judge William Lucas - a trial that was averted when she pleaded no contest to four charges.

Collins had been ordered in May to stand trial following preliminary hearings held in Westland 18th District Court.

Haigh confirmed allegations raised by company officials that Collins:

- Used a company check to buy a computer, a printer and other supplies for personal use, rather than for the company.

- Used a check written from Encore Investment to deposit into a credit card account partly in her name.

- Diverted incoming company checks into her personal post office box, allowing her to embezzle the money for her own use while she acted as an agent or trustee of Choice One and Encore.

- Used a company check made payable to a credit card company to transfer money to a third person.

Children savor Playscape magic

BY JULIE BROWN

Many hands make light work, and many hands contributed to the Westland Playscape.

In addition to the volunteers who built the structure at Central City Park, others contributed financially.

"A lot of people gave us donations," said Bob Kosowski, Playscape chairman and Westland Parks and Recreation director. Last Thursday, Gwen North of North Brothers Ford presented a $5,000 check on behalf of the auto dealership.

"We're just happy that we're offering something to children in the community," Kosowski said of the structure, which measures some 26,000 square feet. It's larger than similar structures in nearby communities.

The Playscape makes the park complete, he added. "Really, we didn't have enough equipment

"The rain really hurt us the last couple days," he said last Thursday. Organizers set a goal of being done by approximately 5 p.m. Sunday, and finished up the bulk of the work around 7 p.m., with the Playscape available for kids to play on.

Kosowski described the project Sunday evening as 98 percent done. Just a few details - a small car, a donor board for those who gave $500 or more and landscaping work - remained.

He was pleased that more than 1,000 volunteers turned out for Saturday and Sunday. "We had a lot of people even though the Michigan game was here."

Finishing up the project, which has been in the works for about a year and a half, was a great feeling for the organizers.

"The best feeling I ever had in my life besides getting married," Kosowski said with a smile.

Westland police warn against fraud

Westland police warn that business owners and residents should be wary of buying merchandise from sellers on the street. A Westland photo shop incident reveals why.

It started at 8 p.m. Sept. 9 when a suspect, accompanied by a woman and young boy, went to a Ford Road photo shop and offered to sell the owner a television and a camcorder at discount prices. The owner didn't want the offer but called a friend who did.

The suspect and the buyer arranged a $1,000 deal for a television and a camcorder, police said. But the suspect said he would have to complete the deal at Meijer, where he supposedly had contacts.

The buyer drove the suspect to Meijer while the woman and child waited at the photo shop. At Meijer, the buyer gave the suspect $1,000 and was told to wait in the parking lot, police said. However, he became suspicious and accompanied the suspect inside.

The suspect told the buyer to wait at the service desk, but the buyer sensed problems, grabbed the suspect and demanded his money, police said. The two then walked outside and exchanged words.

The suspect returned to the store alone, and the buyer called the photo lab to learn that the woman and child who had accompanied the suspect had left the store, police said. The suspect filed a police report for the missing $1,000.

Robbery reported

A knife-wielding bandit was accused of taking money from a Speedway gas station clerk at 110 S. Wayne Road shortly before 4 a.m. Sept. 8.

The clerk told police she was working alone when a suspect walked up to an open sliding window and asked for cigarettes. The clerk said the suspect then reached inside the window, grabbed her left wrist, demanded money and held a knife in a threatening manner.

The clerk told police she used her right hand to take bills from the drawer as the suspect continued to hold her left wrist. She gave him the money, and he fled southbound on Wayne Road, police reports said.

Animal cruelty

A mixed-breed kitten was reportedly killed by a Westland man during a dispute he had with his girlfriend, police reports said. The incident allegedly occurred at 10 p.m. Sept. 3 on Cheboygan.

Witnesses reported that the suspect and his girlfriend had argued and that the suspect picked up his girlfriend's 8-week-old kitten and threw it into a kitchen wall, causing it to go into convulsions and die. The suspect reportedly then took the kitten away from the residence and placed it in a trash compactor.

By contrast, the suspect told police he was tossing the kitten to his girlfriend and that she missed it. Moreover, he said the kitten survived after it hit the wall and that it ran out of the residence. The girlfriend supported the suspect's version.

School lease OK'd

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Livonia school trustees Monday extended the lease for the Lowell Center in Westland to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, which uses the building as a middle school.

The new lease expires in July of 1999.

The district's original lease was signed on July 1, 1981, at a time when Livonia's enrollment was declining and Plymouth-Canton's was growing. The lease has been continually renewed on a two- and four-year basis at $100,000 a year. The previous lease renewal was set to expire Oct. 31.

John Rennels, assistant superintendent for personnel in the Livonia schools, said the district has had an increase in students and is currently doing an enrollment study. They are also looking at options for relocating special education programs.

"It's always been in the lease that if Livonia need Lowell, the lease would expire," said Rennels. If that occurs, the Plymouth-Canton school district would have to evacuate the school by July 31, 1999.

However, Plymouth-Canton officials say students and teachers shouldn't have to worry about being evicted any time soon.

"Livonia does not intend to sell. They feel very bounded by their district and are very careful about their properties," said Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Superintendent Chuck Little at the school board's regular meeting on Sept. 9.

Lowell Middle School, located on Hix Road in Westland, was built as a junior high school by Livonia in 1956.

The Lowell lease is a critical arrangement for the district since the district's other middle schools, all located in Plymouth or Plymouth Township, could not easily absorb Lowell's 750 students, most of whom come from Canton.

Lowell principal Roche LaVictor said the school's enrollment has increased steadily over the past three or four years. Lowell once housed a ninth grade and had an enrollment of more than 1,000 students.

Plymouth-Canton district spokeswoman Judy Evola said it would be difficult for the district to predict a scenario without a continuation of the Lowell lease after 1999. "It would impact the entire district, and the district would involve the community in a process to decide what would be best for the community."

Madonna University students will again receive Catholic Student Awards. Each will receive $800, renewable for four years. Debra Hayden of Westland, a sophomore studying psychology, is among the honored students.

The award is given to incoming freshmen and is for active Catholics who wish to combine a strong quality education with additional Catholic leadership training and experience. Recipients must maintain a 3.0 grade point average.

Rouge cleanup deadline extended

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Since several communities won't meet goals to clean up the Rouge River by 2005, local communities, county officials and the state Department of Environmental Quality are expected to revise a remedial action plan to meet guidelines by 2012.

On Friday, the Conference of Western Wayne passed a resolution calling for the DEQ to immediately begin updating the plan, working with local officials, and recognizing the need for "realistic goals" to restore the Rouge. It was forwarded to the DEQ and the Wayne County Department of Environment.

The CWV is a legislative consortium of elected officials, mostly mayors and township supervisors from 18 communities in western Wayne County. It includes the cities of Belleville, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth, Romulus, Wayne and Westland and the townships of Canton, Huron, Northville, Plymouth, Redford, Sumpter and Van Buren. It is chaired by Westland Mayor Robert Thomas.

"We feel it's time to reevaluate the goal of public health protection by 2005," said Vyto Kaunelis, director of the division of public works of the Wayne County Department of Environment.

The goals of the original plan of 2005 were not "technically feasible" and communities will be asked to pick up more expenses, Kaunelis said.

"It's time to review the planning process," Kaunelis said. "The resolution asks (the DEQ) to get back into the re-evaluation."

Kaunelis was present on behalf of Jim Murray, director of the Wayne County Department of Environment, who was out of town. In a letter, Murray said all Wayne County communities that had responsibilities to clean up combined sewer overflows — which are combined sanitary and stormwater systems — cannot meet the 2005 date.

"Further data collected as part of the Rouge River Wet Weather Demonstration Project clearly documents that even if all of the CSO concerns are addressed, the public health protection goal of 2005 is unreasonable and cannot be achieved," Murray said.

Regulatory decisions based on the recommendations and goals of the current RAP document are no longer "technically achievable or supported at the local level," Murray said.

Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Detroit, Inkster and Redford maintain that the plan of public health protection by 2005 by controlling points of CSO discharge "is not achievable" by them, Murray said.

The first phase of the project have cost nearly $400 million and the next phase is expected to cost $700 million to control CSO discharges.

"Discharges from illicit connections to storm drains, failing septic systems and contaminated sediment and contaminated storm water, all found to be significant sources of pollution to the Rouge River, will also have to be addressed by all communities throughout the entire Rouge watershed if the 2005 date to meet public health protection is required," Murray said.

The original plan was completed in 1989, endorsed and supported by the 48 communities in the Rouge River watershed. "Since it was locally derived, it was felt the RAP process would provide the local support needed to truly move ahead on areas in the Great Lakes Basin that had severe, complex and persistent water quality problems," Murray said.

Canton Township Supervisor Thomas Yack said the resolution "seemed like a reasonable request and a reasonable approach."

Kaunelis said the agreement is expected to be discussed within the next few weeks now that communities have been notified.

Commission to act on land sale

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

County officials expect to officially sell land in Northville Township today, and a partnership of builders from Pennsylvania and Troy, a Southfield-based commercial developer and a Detroit banker may be the big winners in the western Wayne County land rush.

The county placed a 926-acre site on the selling block earlier this year, which housed a former Wayne County building complex between Five and Six Mile Roads, Beck Road and Hines Drive in Northville Township.

Toll Northville Limited Partnership, a partnership consisting of Toll Brothers, Biltmore Properties, Wineman Investments and Don Davis, bid $18.4 million for 605.54 acres designated for detached single family residential homes and golf course. That bid equalled about $61,000 an acre.

Commissioners received information on eight purchase agreements on Thursday. The agreements were placed on today's commission agenda for action. Once the county commissioners approve the sales, developers can review site plans with Northville Township officials.

The site is now a planned unit development, which allows the land to be broken down into various plots instead of one large one.

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, whose district includes Northville Township, said he was still examining the contracts earlier this week, but anticipated that the land sales would be approved. McCotter said he will base his decision on what Northville Township officials want with the property.

"The township board wants it, and they negotiated (the planned unit development) with the county," McCotter said.

The Wayne County Economic Development Corporation released the following information on the bidders:

In Toll Brothers, of Huntingdon Valley, Penn., specializes in selling luxury homes to "move-up" and "empty nester" buyers. The firm designs builds, markets and arranges financing for homes in 13 states. The 13-year-old firm went public in 1986. It has over 1,000 employees and worked in over 140 communities.

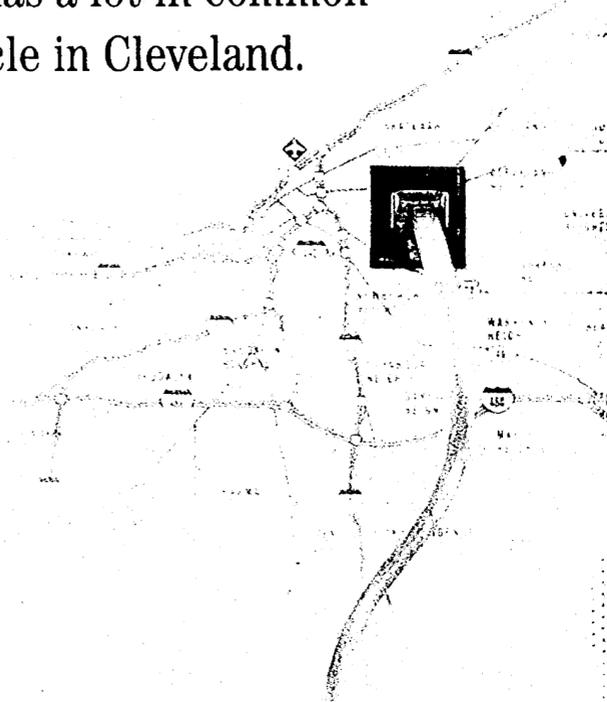

Its average value home settled in 1996 was $360,000. Toll Brothers won an award as America's Best Builder in 1996 from the National Association of Home Builders, National Housing Quality Award in 1995 from the NAHB and Professional

Franklin visitor urges listeners to be prepared

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

The Franklin High community was offered "one enormous challenge" last week.

Change the school's curriculum to teach the types of skills graduates will need in a high-tech and global business world, challenged Willard Daggett, an internationally-known educator and author.

"Our challenge now is to find out what we want to turn out at the end of the 12th grade," said Franklin principal Michael Fenichel, addressing the throng of parents, educators and students who filled Franklin's little theater Wednesday to hear Daggett's two-hour talk.

He spent two days with the Franklin community.

Daggett, president of the International Center for Leadership in Education and author of 12 textbooks, is known worldwide for his work to make schools more relevant and rigorous in math, science, and language arts.

Addressing problems

In his message, Daggett struck at the heart of the nation's educational system as it exists today.

"What's wrong with American education lies not with the educators or the students," he said.

"What's wrong with American education is the system itself, which is fundamentally unable to deliver the skills and knowledge that graduates need today."

Fenichel said students should ask their teachers the following questions: "What is there about what you're teaching me that will help me? Why is this important?"

In accepting Daggett's challenge, Fenichel said Franklin teachers have agreed to answer these two questions when they are asked.

On Thursday, Daggett went into the school and spoke to ninth- and 10th-graders. Franklin staff especially wanted freshmen to get the message that learning in high school is critical.

Brent Accurso, a senior planning a career in medicine, echoed the Franklin staff's concern over ninth-graders.

"The freshman year is the most important year GPA-wise," Accurso said. "If they get good grades in their freshman year, it will carry on through their entire high school career. It builds the foundation."

Part of the challenge Franklin teachers have agreed to take on is to get freshmen "to develop a plan for their life," said Fenichel, adding that parents must take a big role in putting together this plan.

International view

Many students, Accurso said, still haven't heard about the global marketplace.

Daggett stressed this repeatedly last week. He said educated residents of faraway countries are willing to work at a fraction of what the American worker wants.

The problem is compounded, Daggett said, because technology now allows this educated worker to easily hook into American business systems.

"Where this is all going frightens me," Daggett said. "They can now move the work to a worker anywhere in the world. This will be 44 percent of the jobs in five years. And in the next five years, there will be more change in technology than the total amount that has occurred in this century."

"We are doing little in America to get ready for this," he added. "If our students don't prepare, they will wind up on the outside looking in. Our kids don't have a clue as to what communications technology is going to do."

Daggett's talk helped Kerry Nance, a 10th-grader, solidify the type of science courses she will take at Franklin.

She also wondered if high school students can understand the world of business enough to seriously take on its challenges.

Daggett's talk helped Kerry Nance, a 10th-grader, solidify the type of science courses she will take at Franklin. She also wondered if high school students can understand the world of business enough to seriously take on its challenges.

"A lot of kids are confused; it's a hard connection for them to make," she said.

Get competitive

Despite the confusion, Janet Haas, principal of the Livonia Career/Technical Center, said the connection must be made.

"Global competition necessitates that we ask 'Are we teaching the academic skills necessary to be competitive in a global economy?'" she said.

"Business and industry requirements for entry-level jobs support the notion that skills sufficient to earn a good living in 1970 are not good enough today. What are the shifts we need to make in math, science, language arts and world economics as we begin to look at preparing children for the 21st century?"

Listening: Educator and author Willard Daggett challenges students at Livonia Franklin High School to face the future without fear. He is president of the International Center for Leadership in Education and author of 12 textbooks.

A world where technology changes by the minute mandates schools to change, Daggett said. "We are still in the denial stage," he said. "We need new answers, because the best and the brightest kids are now coming back home to live with their parents because they can't get jobs."

Yet, he said, the best jobs are going unfilled. "Both the schools and the public have lost track of what they think schools should do," he added.

"The highest rates of suicide and alcoholism are in the 21-29 age group, people with degrees. These kids played by the rules; they made it. But they were sold a bill of goods by schools, colleges, adults."

"When they got out into the real world, they hit a brick wall."

Teachers trained to surf the Internet

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

Eighty Livonia Public Schools' teachers now have the training — and the secret password — allowing them to surf the Internet in district schools.

No students, except those in Stevenson High's global education program, have the password yet. The district wants to train teachers fully before students are trained to climb on board the Net.

"The goal for teachers is that every teacher have the training to get the password; our goal for students is that, when the use is appropriate, they use the Internet as another instructional tool," said Clare Howell, educational media and technology coordinator for the Livonia district.

The work done by Stevenson's global education project students and the experiences they have had served as a guide for launching district wide access to the Internet.

Every school in the district is now linked to the Internet, with access through password or code.

Included in all installations are such security measures as fire walls, content filters and protections against software virus attacks.

The district has approached the Internet cautiously, making sure it is used for educational purposes and not abused by either students or staff, officials said.

The district also wants to make sure students have a "safe" ride.

"We'll teach them the same safety measures that they would have for strangers," Howell said.

"They must give out no personal information. They must tell their parents if they find information that makes them feel uncomfortable. And they must not get together with anyone they meet on line."

Most teachers with access are either in the middle or high schools. Once they are trained, the focus will shift to the elementary, Howell said.

"Training will continue into next year," Howell said. "I'll be amazed if we train the entire staff this year."

Assault reports rise

BY MARIE CHESTNEY
STAFF WRITER

The number of assaults in Livonia Public Schools has more than doubled in the last year.

"We are getting more incidents with kids being aggressive with each other, incidents where kids say 'He pushed me, grabbed me, threatened me,'" said John Rennels, assistant superintendent for personnel.

In 1995-96, there were 39 threat/weapon/assault-type incidents in the district. In 1996-97, the number jumped to 93, according to figures released recently in a report on building security in the district.

The report, compiled by Mark Schultz, the district's supervisor of public safety, will be discussed Oct. 13 by the Livonia Board of Education.

The report shows a drop in gang activity and suspicious person reports. Reports of larcenies stayed the same. Threats/assaults, vandalism and drug/alcohol situations all showed increases.

In the last two years, gang incidents dropped from 66 in 1995-96 to 42 in 1996-97.

"There has been a continuous decrease in gang activity as a result of police support, increased staff awareness, and a zero tolerance approach by the district," Rennels said.

The number of suspicious person reports also has dropped, from 19 in 1995-96 to 5 in 1996-97.

The number of larcenies stayed the same — 33 were reported both years.

In 1995-96, the number of vandalism reports was 45; in 1996-97, 51. In the same period, the number of drug/alcohol reports nearly doubled, from 16 to 30.

Trustees asked for the report to determine the effectiveness of Schultz, the district's first supervisor of public safety.

Schultz, a former Livonia police officer, has kept close ties with the department and is skilled in investigative techniques.

"Having Mark is essential," Rennels said. "We have to do a lot of our own investigation and we use his background here."

The increase in reports of threats, weapons and assaults is primarily due to an increase in involving Mark's expertise in more situations."

Schultz visits schools to talk to staff and parents on various security issues. Issues include gang awareness, alcohol and drugs, illegal drug identification, the occult, dealing with intoxicated parents, parent custody issues and workplace violence.

"All large organizations need a heightened awareness of the risk of violence in the workplace," Rennels said.

Livonia students can be expelled for seriously hurting another student, for weapons violations or for attacking a teacher or another adult in school.

The district's only expulsion last year involved a student who threatened another student with an iron bar, Rennels said.

County courts

Family court is part of state's plan for merger, reorganization

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County residents can expect to see a new family division in Wayne County Circuit Court to handle divorce, child custody and juvenile delinquent cases.

Wayne County's Circuit and Recorder's courts will be merged, and Probate Court reorganized. The changes are effective Oct. 1, but case reassignment will occur between that date and February 1998.

The merger and reorganization approved by state lawmakers in 1996 forces the removal of divorce and child custody cases from the circuit court docket, and removal of juvenile delinquency cases from Probate Court.

"It's a real challenge," said Michael Sapala, new chief executive judge of Wayne County Circuit Court who is overseeing the court merger and reorganization. "But we want to be sure that if people walk in with a custody case or divorce, we want to make sure we can do it."

An estimated 300,000 cases, many of which are divorce cases, will be reassigned to the family division, Sapala said.

Efficiency is goal

Sapala hopes Wayne County residents can access and obtain efficient court action with the merger of the Third Circuit and Recorder's courts. In essence, the Recorder's Court system has been abolished, though the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice still will house criminal trials for the time being.

Sapala calls the reassignments of cases — and judges and employees — a massive undertaking for the courts with relocation of clerks, judges and other employees. "It is gut-wrenching for 1,000 employees," Sapala said.

Seven judges — five from circuit court and two from Recorder's — will be assigned to the new family division. The Michigan Supreme Court appointed Judge Kirsten Frank Kelly to lead the Domestic Relations Section in the family division of the merged Third Circuit Court, while Judge Freddie Burton Jr. will lead the juvenile section.

Commissioners want council to coordinate court services

Two Wayne County commissioners want to create a local court management council to coordinate the delivery of court services under a reorganization of the Wayne County Circuit, Probate and Recorder's courts effective Oct. 1.

Commissioners Ken Cockrel and George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, introduced a resolution earlier this month that would create a seven-member Wayne County Court Management Council.

Commissioners referred the resolution to the Committee on Judiciary and Public Safety, which Cockrel chairs, and the Committee of Ways and Means, which Cushingberry chairs.

The commissioners want the following seven public officers to serve on the council:

- the chief judge of the combined courts, who is Judge Michael Sapala;

- a judge designated by the chief judge of the combined courts;

- chief of the Probate Court, who is Freddie Burton Jr.;

- Wayne County Clerk Teola Hunter;

- County Executive Edward McNamara;

- Chairperson of the Committee on Judiciary and Public Safety, or Commissioner Ken Cockrel;

- and the chairperson of the Committee on Ways and Means, Commissioner Ken Cockrel.

In August Cushingberry introduced a plan to convert the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice into a parking garage and erect a new building to house the county's court system. Stephen Kirk, vice president and director of facility economics with the architectural firm of Smith, Hinchman & Grylls Associates, has estimated that a new building with 87 courts, and 994,000 gross square feet at $165 a square foot would cost $164 million. With parking and site work, it would cost a minimum of $220 million.

That measure was sent to Cushingberry's Committee on Ways and Means for study and has yet to be returned to the 15-member commission with recommendations.

Cushingberry could not be reached for comment earlier this week on the resolution or his courthouse proposal.

INTRODUCE THE BRIDE-TO-BE TO HESLOP'S BRIDAL REGISTRY—THE BRIDAL REGISTRY OF CHOICE

SOMETIMES BEING LOW IS THE WORST.

SOMETIMES IT'S THE BEST.

THE GREAT RATE HOME EQUITY LOAN
8.99% APR
With Automatic Payment

Yearning for the perfect loan? Don't look high and low—just look low. It's our Great Rate Home Equity Loan, with a rate well within your reach. You can use the equity in your home for anything at all—home improvements, debt consolidation or college expenses, for example. There are no points, no closing costs and no application fees. The interest could even be tax deductible.

All it takes to get the Great Rate is to choose automatic payments from an NBD checking account. But it's for a limited time. So visit any branch or call 1-800-CALL-NBD toll-free to apply now for the loan you need at the rate you want. That's like having your pie and eating it too.

8.99% Annual Percentage Rate (APR) for loans of $15,000 to $49,999 with terms of 65 to 120 months, with automatic payment from an NBD checking account. Assuming a $25,000 loan for 120 months, your payment would be $316.33 per month with automatic payment or $319.95 per month without automatic payment (9.24% APR). Owner-occupied 1-4 family property in Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Florida only with up to 80% Loan-to-Value. You must apply by October 31, 1997 and the loan must close by December 31, 1997. Rates subject to change. Call us for our great rates available for other loan amounts, terms and lines of credit. © 1997 NBD Bank, Member FDIC

- Biltmore Properties, of Troy, and its affiliated companies have developed over 20,000 residential lots. Biltmore has built and sold more than 10,000 single-family homes and condominium units.
- Biltmore developed and constructed the Somerset Park development in the city of Troy, which contains 2,226 rental apartments surrounding a nine-hole golf course, the Somerset Mall and Somerset Plaza.
- Wineman Investment Co. of Southfield is a joint venture partner in the development of a number of shopping centers in the metro Detroit area, including Summit Place Mall in Waterford, and owns residential and commercial lands in the Detroit area.
- It received The Engineering Society Outstanding Achievement Award for building design and construction for 1988 and 1991.
- Don Davis, of First Independence National Bank in Detroit, has supported Detroit by funding commercial and residential developments. Davis is a general partner in the development of the Cultural Gardens Townhouse Development, located in Detroit's cultural center.
- Here is a summary of the remaining bids according to land use, recommended by an evaluation committee of county officials and the county's Economic Development Corporation:
- Commercial: The Toll group also offered to purchase 13.5 acres for $1,746,180 for commercial property. No other cash offers were received on this property that met the minimum price of $1.75 million.
- Research and development: Hayes Wheel International, Inc. of Romulus, bid nearly $1.6 million for 13 acres, plus a one-year option for an additional five acres for $653,400 for a corporate headquarters and research and development facility. Hayes Wheels International designs and manufactures steel and aluminum wheels for passenger car and light truck manufacturers in the United States and Europe, including General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, Japanese automakers Mazda, Nissan, Honda and Isuzu and European automakers.

- Apartments: Lake Village of Northville Limited Partnership, a joint venture between the Silverman Co. of Farmington Hills and Painia Development Co. Silverman has developed and built single and multi-family properties, while Painia has developed "housing alternatives" in property management and marketing. Silverman and Painia will pay $4.1 million for 40 acres of property, or $12,700 per unit.
- Adult living community: Robertson Brothers, of Bloomfield Hills, has offered to purchase 26 acres for about $1.9 million, or $72,600 an acre, for senior residential housing. Robertson's current projects include single-family communities, detached condominiums, attached master-planned communities and single-family homes.
- Senior residential: Waycor Development Co. of Detroit bid $1.2 million on 11.5 acres or $108,000 an acre. That entity will consist of Don Barden of Barden Companies and Bob Gillette of American House. Barden Companies in Detroit operates in real estate development, broadcasting and entertainment industries. American House of Birmingham has developed 14 adult congregate living centers — including Westland and Livonia — with 1,100 units since 1979.
- Public and recreational facilities usage: Northville Township bid $1 million on 45 acres.
- Single family residential: St. John's Golf Club, Archdiocese of Detroit, will purchase 10.58 acres to expand the current golf course for $370,000.

the civil division and 24 other judges, six who are moving from Recorder's Court at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice to the City County Building. About 5,000 civil cases need to be reassigned.

Judge Vera Massey Jones will lead the criminal division and 32 judges. Six circuit judges will move to the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice from circuit court in the City County Building.

Diverse bench

"The silver lining is we will have a more diverse bench," said Sapala, meaning that African-American judges will hear more cases of Wayne County residents. "There are more African Americans sitting countywide."

Juries will consist of the same demographics of Wayne County's population, close to the 55 percent white, 45 percent black makeup.

"Jury pools will be the same proportion," Sapala said. "The effect on cases — and my speculation is not better than anyone else who is familiar with the court — is I don't see any changes in jury decisions (based on racial makeup)."

Suspects who have been arrested and charged with felonies in Detroit prior to Oct. 1 currently receive a jury of Detroit residents while suspects arrested outside of Detroit receive an outcounty jury, but that will change. "It will mean a Wayne County jury hears the case, whether it is a Detroit or a Dearborn case."

Sapala was to meet with court employees today to hear some of their concerns. He hopes the transition can be as smooth as possible.

"None of us had any idea how complicated this process would be," Sapala said.

Circuit Judge Sean Cox will be moving from the 10th floor of the City County Building to the sixth floor of Frank Murphy Hall of Justice. Cox, who lives in Canton Township, will hear criminal cases for all of Wayne County, a change from his current civil cases and outcounty felony cases.

"I'm going to enjoy it, I think," Cox said. "I think it's good because it gives us diversity in the criminal and civil division."

Judges in Recorder's Court who switch to the Circuit's civil division will have to move from criminal to the multiple areas of product liability, medical and environmental laws. "Every Thursday night, I would be up late reading motions for Friday motion call," Cox said. "There's a lot of reading to do."

Bryan Amann, an attorney who lives in Canton Township and a former deputy county clerk, assistant county executive and county commissioner, wonders how efficient the court will be in the early going, particularly with a criminal judge handling liability cases.

Amann likened it to when he moved to Canton. One of Amann's children complained that he didn't have to worry about a new job or making new friends like the children did.

"(The court reorganization) will be a little like arriving at a new school," Amann said. "Some judges know which attorneys are responsible and which ones are jerks."

Those judges eventually will learn about attorneys on the new dockets, Amann said.

Cox believes the merger should run smoothly with Sapala as chief judge, who Cox said was "doing an excellent job."

"A year from now, no one will even know there was a move."

STATE CAPITOL CAPSULES

Parks complaints

Rep. Tom Alley is fishing for complaints about the State Parks campground reservation system, and he expects to find them Wednesday, Sept. 24.

His House Conservation Committee will hold a public hearing at 10:30 a.m. in 424 Capitol Building, Lansing. He has the room until 2 p.m. and expects a lot of comment.

The system, operated by a private contractor, offers a toll-free telephone number, 1-800-44-PARKS. The caller pays in advance by credit card for camping plus a $5 reservation fee.

The system has "crashed" several times this summer, and an estimated 3,600 reservations have been lost, said Alley.

The 1996 contractor, DPCS of Livonia, was replaced this year by Consolidated Market Response Inc. of Charleston, Ill., whose operators reportedly have no home-town knowledge of Michigan parks.

to challenge the Great Lakes Fishery Trust and tribal interest to support the $18 million in state hatchery renovations Engler recommended.

Meanwhile, attorney general Frank Kelley said he has filed a motion in federal court in western Michigan to "clarify the limits on commercial tribal salmon fishing" in Grand Traverse Bay.

The Grand Traverse Band of Ottawa and Chippewa Indians issued 1997 tribal regulations more than doubling the allowable salmon take from 40,000 to 90,000 pounds. The tribe also expanded the areas where permit holders may fish for salmon in Lake Michigan and raised the amount of nets and number of commercial fishing permits it will issue.

Kelley says the tribe's actions violate a 1985 consent order that limits areas and amount of fish tribal permit holders may take.

Bigger shares

Local governments are "big winners" under the a new general government appropriations bill signed by Engler.

They will get $66.1 million more for a total of $1.4 billion in state general revenue sharing payments, up 4.7 percent. It plunks $10 million into a state community policing program and $5 million into special censuses for local units of government.

The $2.3 billion bill contributes $18.6 million to the budget stabilization ("rainy day") fund.

DNR bill signed

The Department of Natural Resources will operate next fiscal year on a $218 million budget, as signed by Gov. John Engler.

It will allow DNR to replace employees who elect to take early retirement on a 1:2 basis. Other departments are being allowed to replace only one in four early retirees.

Highlight of the budget bill is creation of a $750,000 Great Lakes Fishery challenge grant

Get pneumonia, flu shots at local sites

For the first time ever, the Wayne County Health Department is offering pneumonia shots along with flu vaccinations at 18 locations during its annual fall immunization drive.

Health Department officials urging people 65 and older and those persons with certain chronic conditions who want to avoid illnesses linked to pneumococcal pneumonia to get immunized.

"Pneumonia infection causes as many as 40,000 deaths a year in the United States," says Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, medical director of the Wayne County Health Department. "Our goal is prevention, but it's a tough battle because so many strains of bacterial pneumonia have become resistant to antibiotics such as penicillin."

The pneumonia vaccine can help prevent pneumonia, bronchitis and a bacterial infection of the blood called bacteremia. A $10 donation for the pneumonia shot is requested, but indigent residents may receive a fee waiver.

Flu shots offered

Flu shots will be offered by the Wayne County Health Department for a $5 donation, but no one will be turned away due to an inability to pay.

Senior citizens, adults and children with chronic illnesses are also candidates for the flu vaccine. "A good time to get protection against pneumococcus pneumonia is when you are getting your flu shot," Lawrenchuk said. "In general, if you're at increased risk for the flu, you're also at risk for the pneumococcus pneumonia."

The 1997-98 trivalent influenza vaccine has been developed to protect against certain strains of viruses. The typical influenza season runs from November through April, but the maximum protection provided by the vaccine occurs when it is given early, before the flu season starts.

For additional information, call the Wayne County Health Department Disease Control Division Office at (313) 467-3325.

Water, Gas, Electricity, Broadband. Broadband?

Yes, Broadband. You see, very soon Broadband will become one of your home's most vital, most essential connections. It's the way the future will find its way to your house. ☉ When water, gas and electricity came to our homes, they fundamentally changed the way we lived. Our lives were made easier. We had more time to pursue our dreams, to take that next step. We believe Broadband will have that kind of impact. This one connection will fundamentally change the way you use your television, your computer, your telephone.

Broadband will give your computer the power to be as entertaining as your TV. Your TV will become as smart as your computer. And you will be able to communicate in ways you never thought you could.

☉ Broadband is simply a wire with enormous capacity, a wire with two-way capabilities. The wire you now think of as bringing you cable

TV is being transformed into something that can literally bring you the future. Right now Broadband is allowing people to download from the Internet up to 50 times faster than ordinary telephone wire. ☉ Broadband's unique two-way capabilities make the word

"Interactive" take on an entirely new meaning. You will no longer simply receive the world's greatest movies. Broadband gives you the power to send your own home movies through your computer.

Broadband will not only connect your family to the world of ideas.

Our digital TV service will give you the best connection to the world of entertainment. With flawless reception and all the movies, sports and entertainment you want, there's no better way to hook up to a whole lot of fun. ☉ In time, much like water, gas and electricity,

Broadband will become such a powerful connection, such an integral part of your day-to-day life, that it will be hard to imagine life without it. For more information, please call 1-313-277-8750 or

Madonna, area groups to sponsor video, discussion on prejudice

Madonna University in Livonia and the People of Livonia Addressing Issues of Diversity (PLAID) along with ACORD of Northville and the Lilly Endowment Grant are sponsoring a video presentation on discrimination titled "Blue-Eyed" on Thursday, Sept. 25 at Madonna University in Room 2409.

The event will be held at 6 p.m. and is free of charge.

The video follows Jane Elliott, one of America's most celebrated and dynamic diversity trainers, as she conducts an exercise with a group of adults attempting to teach them about discrimination and prejudice.

Elliott, who spoke at Madonna University's campus in January, is the creator of the Eye-Color discrimination experiment. In 1970 Elliott, then a public school teacher in Riceville, Iowa, divided her all-white class of third-graders into blue- and brown-eyed groups for a lesson in discrimination. On successive days, each group was treated inferior and subjected to discrimination.

Through this video presentation, many white people become acquainted with the feeling of belonging to a condemned group. They experience the feeling of being discriminated against, in the same way that society today discriminates against women, people with different skin color or the disabled.

Following the presentation will be a discussion period.

For information call Madonna University's Office of Multicultural Affairs at (313) 432-5541.

U-M forum to focus on Metro Airport

The University of Michigan will focus on the expansion of Wayne County's Detroit Metro Airport and nearby development opportunities at the university's annual real estate forum on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 13 and 14.

Wayne County will host the first day of the forum at Metro Airport.

In addition to presenting expansion plans at the airport, the Department of Jobs and Economic Development will also present the Airport Area Development Plan. The plan focuses on development opportunities in areas surrounding the airport, including the communities of Romulus, Taylor and Huron Township.

The forum annually attracts hundreds of professionals in the fields of real estate, urban planning and architecture — a key target audience for the department as it aggressively markets the airport area.

For registration information, call (313) 764-4276.

Madonna to sponsor blood drive

The American Red Cross will accept blood donations 2-8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 7 and Wednesday, Oct. 8 in Madonna University's Take 5 Lounge.

To make an appointment, call the office of student life at (313) 432-5428. Walk-in donors are also welcome.

Eligible donors must be at least 17 years old and may donate every eight weeks or no more than five times a year. The Red Cross will distribute all donated blood to 75 area hospitals in southeastern Michigan.

Madonna University is located at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Pedalfest '97

Fund-raiser to benefit Rouge projects

People who want to support efforts to educate the public about the Rouge River can participate in Pedalfest '97 at the Nankin Mills Picnic Area in Westland on Saturday, Sept. 27.

People can ride bicycles, roller-blade, run or walk on Hines Drive to support environmental education and stewardship programs of Friends of the Rouge, a 12-year-old non-profit volunteer community organization.

The route begins and ends at Nankin Mills with 10-, 20- and 50-mile rides offered to bicyclists along westbound Hines Drive and continuing onto Seven Mile and Beck roads with a turnaround offered at Maybury State Park. The 50-mile ride continues to South Lyon, where riders turn around to return to Westland.

The 50-mile ride and registration begins at 8 a.m. The 20-mile ride and registration starts at 9 a.m. The 10-mile ride registration begins at 10 a.m. Five-mile fun ride, bladders, runners and walkers register at 10 a.m.

Bicyclists can start until 11 a.m., others until noon. The Pedalfest finish closes at 4 p.m.

Individual participants must pledge a minimum of $15. Families must pledge a minimum of $25, while teams (three to 10 members) must pledge $30. Pedalfest t-shirts and Sports Authority water bottles will be available for everyone who registers.

For more registration information, call Friends of the Rouge at 961-4050.

Posthumus, Ross spar over how to regulate charter academies

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Two gubernatorial hopefuls sharply disagree over the purpose of public schools and how to regulate charter academies.

Republican Dick Posthumus, the state Senate majority leader, focuses on parents. He wants to meet parents' needs and give parents "more options... more ability to determine what their children ought to do."

Democrat Doug Ross, former state and federal Labor Department official, focuses on students. He wants kids to be better prepared for the future world of work by meeting high state assessment standards.

To Posthumus, 47, of Alto, the "basics" means "providing parents with the ability to provide their children with the best education."

To Ross, 54, of West Bloomfield, the "fundamentals" means "defining performance" of students and getting "results" from classrooms because "suddenly we have to educate everybody to a much higher level."

Allow parochial?

Ross, onetime consumer lobbyist and a state senator from 1979-82, is flatly opposed to amending the Michigan Constitution to allow vouchers and parochial aid. "I don't want to put my money into Michigan Militia High or Skinhead Intermediate where they're teaching racial or religious hatred. Under the constitution, you can do it, but not with my money," he said.

Posthumus, who has worked 14 years in the shadow of incumbent Gov. John Engler, didn't directly answer the parochial question. "I won't support taxpayer dollars for religious education," he said, indicating a line between supporting parochial schools when they teach academics but not when they teach religion.

Dick Posthumus

The pointed but polite exchange will be broadcast Sunday on Channel 7's "Spotlight" public affairs program. The sole topic was issues in public education.

Posthumus is known to be itching to succeed Engler as governor and may be the lieutenant governor running mate in place of Connie Binsfeld, now 73, next year, though Engler has made no announcement.

Ross has announced he is seeking the Democratic nomination - an uphill "citizens' campaign" because rival Larry Owen has locked up many key labor endorsements a year before the primary.

They differed on public school academies, or "charter schools."

Under Michigan law, state universities are granting contracts to groups seeking to set up specialized schools with state money. Charter schools get the same $5,500 per pupil but do not operate with voter-elected boards.

Low MEAP scores

They were asked about the low MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) scores in science and writing that three-fourths of charter schools turned in compared to regular public schools, even in urban areas.

"The idea behind charter schools," said Ross, "was that they were places within the public school system where you could innovate and experiment. It's a worthwhile objective."

"My biggest objection is that Michigan is one of the very few states that allows money to go to pre-existing private and religious schools that convert themselves to charter schools. It's like vouchers. It's siphoning dollars from public schools for private and parochial schools," Ross said, adding:

"I think what the governor and Sen. Posthumus are trying to do is replace public schools with a voucher plan."

Replied Posthumus: "We brought charter schools into being for a couple of reasons. We need to provide parents with an option. When their local public school wasn't doing the job, we needed to provide another public school alternative - charters."

He added, "Fifty percent of kids going to charter schools today are minorities."

"That means we're meeting the needs of parents who felt their local school wasn't safe for the child or wasn't providing for its academic needs. If that parent decides it (charter school) isn't doing the job, they'll take their kids out."

Plug loophole

Ross wants to amend the charter school law so that private and parochial schools can't qualify for charter status.

Replied Posthumus: "That can only happen if a public entity - like a university or community college - charters that school. That can only happen if it (charter applicant) meets public school academic requirements."

"We have to stop bashing teachers," said Ross. "This governor has declared war on virtually everybody connected with our kids' education."

Posthumus said legislative "listen-ins" show teachers favor Republican policies even if teachers' unions are opposed.

Justice delayed Sewer victims seek a solution

Sandy Belisle, Mary Lou and Don Maren-da and their neighbors have been waiting a long time for justice. More than 400 Westland homes were damaged Feb. 20-21 when heavy rains caused a faulty new sewer system to back up into basements. Some residents are still stuck with piles of salvaged belongings, waiting for life to get back to normal. Two lawsuits have been filed against the city of Westland, two contractors and an engineering firm involved in a sewer separation project. Workers mistakenly blocked a 6-foot water main with a concrete wall, leading to the horrendous damage. City Attorney Angelo Plakas reports claims have been resolved for 337 of the 447 residences. Plakas said negotiations are stalled for homeowners involved in the lawsuits. Justice delayed is justice denied. These residents are entitled to fair settlements of their claims. The photographs and story in the Sept. 11 Observer showed just how disrupted life has been for the residents. It's time for all those involved to set aside their differences and help these homeowners get back to normal.

Election tone should be civil

Now that the dust has settled, it's time to look forward to the Nov. 4 general election in Westland, in which Mayor Robert Thomas will face challenger Kenneth Mehl, a former Westland City Council member. Council candidates will also face off. Thomas took nearly 68 percent of the votes, with 4,002 out of 5,945. Mehl was second and earned a spot on the general election ballot with just over 25 percent, or 1,502 votes. Unsuccessful candidate Dixie Johnson McNa had just over 6 percent, or 375 votes. These numbers show overwhelming support for Thomas, although it must be remembered that relatively few of Westland's registered voters, 10.7 percent, turned out for last week's election. Thomas should not become over confident and assume that he faces smooth sailing into November. Both men should strive for a civil tone in their dealings with voters and with each other. Rancor does no one any good. Both Thomas and Mehl should aim to discuss such issues as quality of city services, without sinking to the level of the gutter. Nov. 4 is a ways off still, and we hope that time will be marked by civil discourse among Thomas, Mehl and others involved in the campaign and election.

Wetlands vital part of nature

Two signs of progress, in the early 19th century, were 1) killing the buffalo and 2) draining the "swamps." The buffalo left the woodlands quickly. Draining swamps proved a bit tougher. Today we know better. The buffalo are gone except on a few farms, but the state is protecting "wetlands" because we have learned their value. Wetlands are home to basic fish and waterfowl in the food chain. They filter water running off into rivers and lakes. They prevent too-rapid runoff. Wetlands today are seen as resources and even as things of beauty. Consider the man-made wetlands in Sumpter Township near Detroit Metropolitan Airport - a Wayne County park preserving nature amid burgeoning industry. Consider the wetlands mitigation project on the northwest corner of Warren and Sheldon roads. The job of protecting wetlands fell to the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. Folks who have yet to learn to appreciate wetlands also don't appreciate DNR. It gained a reputation as being foot-dragging and contrary in dealing with permits. It turns out the reputation was false. The evidence comes from an environmental watchdog, Michigan United Conservation Clubs. MUCC, with 120,000 members in 480 clubs, is more than the classical hunting-fishing lobby. It has shared with bird-watchers and nature lovers a fierce desire to protect the environment. "The controversy over wetlands protection is often long on accusation and short on fact," said Richard X. Moore, MUCC's senior resource policy specialist and author of the report entitled "A Review of Michigan's Performance in Wetlands Regulation." Today wetland regulation is under the new Department of Environmental Quality, but DEQ staffers are largely carry overs from DNR. Four laws regulate the environment, wetlands, inland lakes and streams, and Great Lakes submerged lands and flood plains. Basically, a property owner needs a state permit for dredging, filling, or altering structures on bottom lands; creating, enlarging or diminishing a lake or stream; building a marina; connecting an artificial waterway over bottom lands, and creating artificial lands. As MUCC points out, many permit applicants have little experience in the area of environmental changes, and professional staff judgments are involved. So the process is ripe for misunderstandings. Nevertheless, MUCC found: ■ 75 percent of permit applications (275 out of 368) were granted. Firm denial was the result in 24 cases, or 6.5 percent. The others were either withdrawn or otherwise closed. ■ 64 percent were processed to final resolution in 90 days or less, many in less than 30 days. ■ 18 percent took 151 days or more to process, but more than half were granted though mostly in modified form. In the 1984 and 1995 studies, processing time was quicker. Did the agencies routinely deny permits, depriving owners of reasonable prices of their properties? "Clearly, no," said the MUCC study. Are the time frames for deciding reasonable? "Not so clear," said MUCC. Many files took longer than 90 days to clear because more information was needed. Often the delay occurred "because the department was willing to work with the applicant to resolve disputes." Did DNR ask irrelevant or unnecessary information? MUCC "did not uncover a single instance" of an unreasonable state request.

Speed kills

Attempts to blame photographers for the death of Princess Diana are seriously misplaced. Diana and her companions were killed by high-speed reckless driving, pure and simple.

The photographers were "chasing" Diana's automobile with nothing more dangerous than cameras. Their motorcycles were no match for the large Mercedes in which Diana was riding. If there is a lesson to be learned here, it is that celebrities should not overreact to the inevitable presence of photographers. It just isn't worth it.

Any attempt to restrict photojournalists or reporters would be tragic and ill-conceived. A free and aggressive press is our most important right!

Celebrities are well able to protect their privacy if they really choose to do so. Unfortunately, many celebrities choose to play a "cat and mouse" game with the press. But seldom with the tragic consequences that occurred last week.

Photographers are easily controlled by trained security personnel, who are usually present. Besides, only a tiny percentage of celebrities have a serious problem with photographers.

In any event, hitting a concrete wall at 100 miles per hour is likely to be fatal whether you are in a Ford or a Mercedes, whether your blood is red or blue. Speed kills, not cameras!

School concerns

I have some serious concerns about my grandchildren attending school in Wayne-Westland. This district seems to go from bad to worse. I've never seen anything like it in the 30 years I have lived here. My daughter is looking for a new home in Westland and I'm hoping she finds one in the northern portion so that my grandkids can go to Livonia schools.

The lady who runs the meetings is so embarrassing to watch. Her comments in your newspaper and the other daily newspapers are even more embarrassing. In The Detroit News, she was quoted as saying she didn't know what she was voting for last January on a policy. She said in the article "Dumb us."

Well, at least she got that much right. As far as intelligence is concerned, Debbie Fowlkes and the rest of her board cronies fit that description and more. The school district is so important to the future of our community. Anyone interested in running needs to take a hard look at it now. The quality of the individuals is at an all-time low. Next June, I look forward to voting for a new board member to replace Debbie Fowlkes. Anyone would be better than her.

I just hope some intelligent individuals throw their names into the ring and give us some choices. Debbie Fowlkes and her board cronies are destroying this school district piece by piece.

Children as pawns

It's coercion. It's manipulation. It's brainwashing in the Maoist tradition. It's appalling and scary!

The proposal which Sharon Scott has to use the children in Wayne-Westland schools to become "aware" is nothing short of what will be badgering of the parents to participate in a recycle project of the city of Westland. By what right are the children used as pawns to enact two hidden taxes for the city?

The first, what is called a fee for pickup. And the second, profits which rightfully belong to consumers as refunds, being turned over to the city instead.

Now the homeowners of Westland have been victims of end runs around required votes before, so they are watchful for schemes now. Let the costs for recycling come before a

QUESTION:
 Do you agree with the slogan used by some city officials that Westland is "the place to be"? Why or why not?

POINTS OF VIEW

Hometown heroes make communities better

It was an Observerland kind of weekend.

Saturday morning, our friend, Pam Young of Redford Township, called from her job at Eastern Michigan University. She had another commitment and wouldn't be able to visit. We also didn't get over to Livonia, to see my in-laws on Munger Court.

We did, however, get to the library in Plymouth, in search of good books. I chose "Plum Pie" by P.G. Wodehouse and my husband, Mark Rembacki, looked through a baseball uniform reference book.

I noticed that the library is seeking donations in honor of its 75th anniversary and move into its new building next to City Hall next year. I thought such a donation would be perfect for my parents' 50th wedding anniversary later this year.

From the library, it was on to the Coffee Studio for some decaf and conversation with Scott Lurain, owner. We'd just had major plumbing woes at our Plymouth Township home. Scott could relate, having had to deal with the road project just outside his business along Ann Arbor Trail.

Sunday morning found us at Geneva Presbyterian Church in Canton Township, where I am a member. We saw the hard-working Sunday school teachers, instructing their young charges just as they do week after week.

After a walk through our neighborhood, it was time for a barbecue, the second of the weekend (burgers on Saturday, chicken and corn on Sunday). The evening saw us stopping by Central City Park in Westland to check on the progress of the Westland Playscape.

Chairman Bob Kosowski was pleased to report that work was 98 percent done, and the Playscape would momentarily be available for kids to play on. He credited the large number of volunteers who turned out, particularly on the weekend.

The Westland project reminded me of the similar structure at Plymouth Township Park and of others in neighboring communities.

From Central City Park, it was off to Wayne Bowl on Michigan Avenue, for some league bowling with the Geneva group.

Our partners, Ben and Nola Bonandrini of Canton Township, were in fine form and our bowling skills hadn't gotten too rusty over the summer. Nola and I discussed her concerns about animal care and welfare, and what the newspaper could do to help animals. She volunteers at the Michigan Humane Society shelter in Westland.

It all got me to thinking about what great communities these are to live and do business in. The dedicated Sunday school teachers, the enthusiastic businesspeople, the motivated volunteers who put the Playscape together and aid all sorts of people and causes all deserve a round of applause.

Without their efforts, it's hard to imagine what these communities would be like. They'd certainly be a good deal less livable.

The death of the Princess of Wales and others in her car, tragic event that it is, has put great emphasis on Diana's contributions. I couldn't help but think, however, that there are many more who make equal or greater contributions but don't get the limelight.

Let's hear it for our hometown heroes!

Gasoline tax lawsuit comes down to fairness issue

More people have expressed bewilderment over the gasoline tax lawsuit than any other court case in recent memory.

What, they ask, is all this stuff about a two-thirds vote in the Legislature?

First, I am frankly sympathetic to hiking the fuel tax to fix roads. Govs. Jim Blanchard and John Engler were both derelict in not endeavoring to do it earlier than 1997.

Second, at times like this, I miss Earl Warren, chief justice of the U.S. Supreme Court in the 1950s and '60s. Warren, famed for his civil rights decisions, would listen to a lawyer pontificate about intricate legalisms and snap: "Yes, but is it fair?"

So let's look at the Aug. 1 fuel tax hike for fairness.

The law began life as House Bill 4872, an appropriations bill for the Department of Transportation. Its sponsor was Rep. Clark Harder, D-Owosso, a member of the House Appropriations Committee. The bill was referred to the Appropriations Committee.

On June 26, the House passed it 70-35. A bill usually doesn't become law until 90 days after the Legislature adjourns - about April 1 of the following year. But the state fiscal year begins six months earlier, on Oct. 1.

So the state constitution requires that, for a bill to have "immediate effect" (or i.e.), both chambers must give it a separate two-thirds vote. This the House routinely did on June 26.

The bill went to the Senate but never went to a committee - Appropriations or otherwise. The Senate did a lot of amending, producing S-8, the eighth Senate version.

Moreover, the Senate amendments included adding a four-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline. On July 10, the Senate passed it on a 20-16 vote but also gave it a two-thirds for "i.e."

One could raise an eyebrow at the lack of Senate hearings, committee work and the transmutation of a spending bill into a taxing bill. But that's beyond our scope here.

The constitution also says both chambers must pass exactly the same version of a bill for it to become law, so HB 4872 found itself before the House again on July 16 for "concurrency in Senate amendments." This time, however, there was a donnybrook, and the bill barely squeaked by, 56-48.

Some members, led by gadfly maverick Rep. Dave Jaye, R-Macomb County, petitioned for a roll call vote on "i.e.," but Speaker Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, didn't take it. Engler signed the bill July 24, and we started paying Aug. 1.

So a group of anti-tax folks called Michigan Taxpayers United asked Ingham Circuit Judge Lawrence Glazer for an injunction to prevent collection of the tax. Defendants are Engler and state treasurer Doug Roberts. MTU argued there should have been a separate two-thirds vote for "i.e." on July 16, or else the tax couldn't take effect before next April 1. That would be a $134 million revenue loss to our roads.

Glazer said the tax was properly passed and refused an injunction. I don't have a written opinion from Glazer, but I have Attorney General Frank Kelley's written brief on behalf of Engler and Roberts. It said:

"Plaintiff's assertions, although technically correct, are not legally significant because well-established Supreme Court authority clearly indicates that the bills do not have to be exactly the same but in fact can have 'substantial difference in both content and impact.'"

Wow! An appropriations bill gets an "i.e." vote and then is turned into a tax bill. That's more than a "substantial difference." In the world of commerce, that's called "bait and switch." But in the world of legislative politics, it's OK.

Earl Warren's ghost would ask, "Yes, but is it fair?"

The case isn't over. The anti-tax people are likely to appeal Glazer's ruling. There are other questions, such as whether the state has reached its tax limit without requiring a vote of the people. I leave those for the lawyers and courts.

But I know unfairness when I see it, and the anti-tax people, with whom I have a healthy policy disagreement, were treated unfairly in the Michigan House.

Merian's Friends seeking solution to tough question

What is it about the debate over physician-assisted suicide that brings out the worst in everybody?

Grimacing and capering on one side we have Dr. Jack Kevorkian, whose original contribution to our civic life was to force the matter into public discussion but whose subsequent antics have cast grave doubt on his credibility. Two weeks ago, for instance, he attended the suicide of a 43-year-old Texas woman who was chronically - not terminally - ill with multiple sclerosis and, according to her family, emotionally unstable.

Grandstanding on the other side we have various politicians who believe, apparently sincerely, that passing a law banning physician-assisted suicide will forever put an end to the practice. State Sen. William VanRegenmorter, chair of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has been holding a series of emotional hearings on such legislation, eliciting in some cases interesting testimony from people who fear that confirming the right to die will instead morph into responsibility to die.

In the middle we have the doctors who, in the old days, dealt with exquisitely terrible issues of bringing life to a close in the responsible intimacy of the family circle. In today's supercharged and confused public policy environment, however, physicians are deterred from exercising their ethical obligations to their patients by threat of lawsuits and public exposure.

All of this leaves the countless numbers of Michigan folks who are trying to struggle responsibly with the pressing dilemmas of life and quality of life and death of immediate family members with no clear way to resolution.

There is a way out of this mess that is simple, logical, reasonable and responsible. It is to put on the ballot a proposal that authorizes physician-assisted suicide, with carefully drawn safeguards. And then let the people decide.

That's why some 1,400 volunteers are out circulating petitions to get enough signatures (250,000 are required, but they're shooting for 350,000 just to be safe) to get exactly such a proposal on the 1998 ballot. They're working for an organization called Merian's Friends, headed by Ann Arbor physician Ed Pierce.

The proposal legalizes physician-assisted suicide, but it would limit proactive termination of life to terminally ill patients who request it themselves. Both the attending physician and a specialist in the patient's disease must certify that the patient has no more than six months to live, and a psychiatrist must certify that the patient is a mentally competent adult, acting neither from depression nor mental illness. "Many of the patients Dr. Kevorkian has assisted would not qualify under our proposal," says Dr. Pierce.

Perhaps that's one reason the proposal is receiving broad public support. A recent statewide poll that described the proposal indicates that some 59 percent of Michigan voters support such a measure, while 33 percent are opposed. The poll also found that a whopping 75 percent of respondents feel that current Michigan laws dealing with the rights of terminally ill patients are not working well.

A lot of decent and thoughtful people are supporting the drive, including former Michigan Gov. William G. Milliken, who is an honorary co-chair of Merian's Friends. (To set the record clearly, so am I.)

We believe that now is the time to get the debate out of the quagmire of egotism, politics and passionate ideology that so far has characterized this issue and put a simple, carefully drawn proposal on the ballot for a public vote. This is a public policy initiative that is long overdue and deserves to be addressed at the ballot box by the voters of Michigan.

Getting enough signatures to put a proposal on the ballot is tough and expensive work. Merian's Friends is looking for volunteers. Their toll-free telephone number is 1-888-217-0700. I urge you to call and help out.

Who might you think are the people who end up in the medical clinics having invasive procedures done to determine why they are having stomach and chest pains? I used to think that it was the people who did not eat properly, exercise enough or who smoked and drank excessively. Much to my surprise, I found out I was wrong. Happiness is celebrating 70 years

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

"Oh goodness, no," says Leona Stephens, a sentiment shared by her husband Glenn, although he admits he thought he might live to be 100 years old until hip replacement surgery a year ago.

The answer is in response to a question about their marital longevity. At ages 92 and 94 respectively, the Livonia residents recently celebrated their 70th wedding anniversary.

The Stephens exchanged vows on Aug. 11, 1927, in Ironwood, Mich., one of the places they stopped at once a trip through the Upper Peninsula. Serving as their witnesses was her parents who had come along for the ride.

"I stayed in good with her father until he died and then with I stayed in good with her stepfather," Glenn recalled. "When I told her mother we planned to get married, she said fine. Her dad told me she could never come home and say you were mean to her."

Glenn and Leona have known each other for most of their lives. They grew up in Prescott, north of Bay City. He lived on a farm 2 miles outside of town; she lived on a farm in town. They both worshiped at the Baptist church and attended Prescott School.

Their memories of the early years are special. Glenn recalls his family buying a gramophone and on a clear night putting it outside and aiming it at the neighbors a half mile away.

The Stephens' farm had an out-house, no running water and used oil lamps for light, while the Currie farm in town had electricity. In fact, it and germs in check. Dr. Williams' work also concluded that the working moms in his study had levels of epinephrine and norepinephrine that rose during the day, but, by contrast, men, did not decrease in the evening as they did for men.

I sadly remember a period of time when my father worried or ruminated over a potential directorship he thought he was going to get at a major university, and how he stressed himself out because of the politics surrounding the appointment.

After two years of uncertainty and tension, he finally learned that he was not going to be appointed director, and simultaneously (and coincidentally?) also found he had lymphoma, dying a short time later. There have been studies that have shown the link between a stressful event (divorce, death, loss of a job) and a two-year window before a person then comes down with a major disease.

My sister-in-law told me one time, "Get your stress under control because stress can kill you. We all have to harness it and not let it eat at us." She should know because she works in the section of the hospital where patients are admitted for procedures for gastrointestinal disorders. She puts the bulk of her patients into one category ... under too much stress.

And what creates stress? Worry, tension and anxiousness about the future. Do we have too much on our plates? Are there relationships that are strained? Unhappy at work?

A study out of the International Center for Health and Society in London tracked 7,372 people from 1985 to 1993 to discover that their feelings of little or no control at work put them at a 50 percent higher rate for heart disease than others. Any of the daily pressures we experience can be the source of one's stress. But you already know all this ...

WHERE ARE THE ANSWERS?

One of the answers is easy - it's motion. When you get moving, for example exercise, the endorphins in your brain kick in and give you a great feeling of peace. I just wish I could activate those endorphins on those nights when my eyes pop wide open at that miserable hour of 3 a.m. You probably know those nights. They're the ones that make the next day drag on and on because you've spent a couple of fitful hours perseverating over the stress currently haunting you. The experts say that if you don't get up in the middle of the night and do something, at least get the worries written down on paper next to your bed. I keep a flashlight on the night table and when the "worries" hit, I scribble them down. Surprisingly, just getting them out of your brain and onto the paper is a good stress reliever.

Other stress busters:

- Slow down ... must we race out of work to race into our homes to make dinner or do laundry? Get other members activated to do some of the jobs.

- Sit ... sit in the tub, in front of the fire, on the front porch with your feet up. Just sit and do nothing for 15 minutes - bet you can't do it.

- Read ... 12 minutes a day of reading something you enjoy, can bring the blood pressure and pulse down. Or better yet, sit and read while you're in the bathtub (my all time favorite).

- Do something constructive other than eat ... plant flowers, play an instrument, call a friend, organize a tool bench, cupboard, garage. Try praying.

- If your marriage is strained, do something about it. Seminars, counseling and books help us to view our marriages differently. (See related story on the Sept. 27 seminar, "It's All in the Way You Say It.")

Our kids live in a very stressful world today. Outside (and sometimes inside) our homes, children are barraged with unpleasant things, from violence to media overload. If kids don't see some peace and tranquility in the home, where will they see it? It is our responsibility to provide that place for them where they can feel safety, comfort and security. But remember, it can't happen for them when they "wear" the tension we feel. Kids are extremely perceptive and when you're hurting and stressed, they feel it and don't know what to do with it.

As George Bernard Shaw said, "People are always blaming their circumstances for what they are. I don't believe in circumstances. The people who get on in this world are the people who get up and look for the circumstances they want, and, if they cannot find them, make them."

wasn't hooked up to the water system until 1952, according to their daughter, Gladys Smith of Livonia.

They dated for several years, meeting at family-style socials at the Macabees Hall and in town on Saturday nights, before taking the trip up north that included stops in Gaylord and Mackinaw City before taking the ferry to the UP.

"Saturday night was a big night for the town," said Glenn who worked in one of the stores. "On Saturday night, the people would go to the show and then do their shopping. All the little farms are gone now and that's what made the town."

At age 16, Glenn packed up and headed for Detroit to work on the railroad. He did that for four years, but had to return home in 1922 when he became sick.

In 1924, it was a good year, if you made $2,400 for the year," said Glenn. "Now these guys are making what we made in a week in a day and more."

At the time they married, Leona was a liberated woman for the times. She taught first, second and third grades at Prescott School and drove a 1926 Chevrolet.

Glenn again left for Detroit to work for the Michigan Central Railroad, leaving Leona in Prescott to complete her second year of teaching.

Leona followed Glenn to Detroit in 1928 and a year later their first child, Arthur, was born.

"I can remember going to see her and having to leave at 4 p.m. to get to work by 10 and just making it," Glenn said. "It was two-lane solid traffic on the Dixie Highway."

Glenn started out as a fireman, working trains between Detroit and Bay City and Toledo, the Windsor train tunnel and on the switch engines in the yard before the Depression took hold and they were forced to leave Detroit and return to Prescott, where Gladys was born.

"It was a lot of hard work," said Glenn who worked his way up to an engineer before retiring after 47 years. "The local between here and Bay City was called the Cannonball, and I'd shovel 12 ton of coal one way."

After the Depression they returned to Detroit, where their third child, Donald, was born, and Glenn resumed working for Michigan Central, working on passenger trains, one in particular that left him with a bit of presidential notoriety.

Called to be the engineer on Dwight D. Eisenhower's campaign train, Glenn was told not to rely on whistle signals, but hand signals during campaign stops.

The plan worked in Bay City and Saginaw, but in Lapeer, the signal came early and the train pulled out, with Glenn at the controls, before Eisenhower had finished his speech.

The Stephens still have a newspaper clipping about the faux pas and a letter from the 34th president of the United States saying he understood the mixup.

The mixup also is grounds for a good laugh related to a telephone message Leona took for Glenn - an invitation for the couple to go to New York and appear on a television show. In her excitement, Leona forgot to ask which show and now, more than 30 years later, neither still can't recall which show.

The Stephens lived in Detroit until 1970 when they moved to Livonia, where they now live with their son Don.

Aides and therapists help the father and son care for Leona, who is confined to a wheelchair because of a stroke.

Glenn, who does much of the talking, has slowed down since he broke his hip last December. He no longer drives a car or climbs up on the roof of their house to shovel off the snow.

They have seen a lot of changes since they were married, the most important, they say, were the Apollo missions to the moon.

They've been witness to good times and bad times and have taken them in stride.

In fact, they credit their longevity to realizing that "everyone has their ups and downs," advice they offer to people marrying today.

'Way you say it' is focus of 'WHY' Series workshop

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Do you wonder why you get so frustrated with your wife or co-worker? Why they don't listen to you, can't hear what your saying or can't change?

Getting what you want or what you need can be tricky? Be too aggressive, and you can turn people off. Be too passive, and you could be ignored. Say it just right, and you can succeed.

And that's the point of the latest "WHY" Series workshop, "It's All in the Way You Say It," presented Saturday, Sept. 27, by Dr. Gail Majcher and Jacques Martin Downs.

"The goal is to improve relationships," said Majcher, a licensed clinical psychologist and certified marriage counselor. "People will learn how to have realistic expectations about themselves and about others."

"If you can become successful in getting what you need without being aggressive or passive," said Martin Downs, prevention director of Hegira Programs in Livonia. "And that's what this is about. It's all about finding the right balance."

"In not having a happy relationship, everything suffers - the family, work - so we hope to give them specific tools they can use instantly ... on their way home in the car."

The workshop will be 9-11:30 a.m. in Suite 455 of the east building of Seven Mile Crossings, 38701 Seven Mile Road, Livonia. The cost is $30 per person and includes a continental breakfast.

The workshop can accommodate up to 80 people, but registration must be in advance by Tuesday, Sept. 23. There will be no registration at the door.

Interested people can send their name, address, telephone number and a check, payable to Gail Majcher Inc., 38705 Seven Mile Road, Suite 435, Livonia 48152.

The workshop is for spouses, co-workers, parents and teens, partners or siblings, even single people. It will look at personality styles, or temperaments, how they clash or blend, and how communication styles can break people apart as well as provide new tools to get the point across and get needs met.

There also will be some voluntary role playing and laughter with a healthy dose of knowledge, according to the women.

"We give people the opportunity to blossom, to become secure with their personalities," said Martin Downs. "It does something to their self-esteem when they understand the personality and other's personalities."

"It will not only be educational, it'll be fun," said Majcher. "There'll be a lot of laughter. It's cheaper than a therapy session and educational."

Majcher and Martin Downs teamed up in January to offer the "WHY" Series, conducting workshops on communication and the different ways of communicating, every few months. Both had been doing similar programs independent of each other for about four years before combining their talents.

It was Martin-Downs's husband Doug who alerted Majcher to the fact that his wife did the same thing she did after attending one of Majcher's seminars. But it was through a mutual friend that the two women met and decided to join forces.

Majcher has been in private practice for more than 19 years, focusing on healing broken relationships. She also specializes in communication training for groups, businesses, families and couples.

She also is the author of the recently published "A Worthy Woman," available at Little Professor Bookstores, which chronicles her escape from domestic violence to a successful life as a wife, mother and professional.

Also in private practice at the Northville Counseling Center, Martin-Downs's focus is on parenting education. A columnist for The Observer Newspapers, she has hosted a radio show on WCAR, a cable television show, "One Kid at a Time," and authored "The 10 Best Values Every Child Needs," available through Hegira Prevention, 15100 Hubbard Dr., Livonia, for $5 per copy.

Martin-Downs and her husband also conduct workshops on remarriage and blending families.

"One of the reasons we work so well together is that sometimes people struggle to be center stage, but we don't," said Majcher. "If one of us is talking, that's OK with the other."

"Where one leaves off, the other picks up," added Martin Downs. "And we adlib a lot ...

N'ville Town Hall offers variety

Pat Vivo, an author and nationally known speaker, will kick off Northville Town Hall's 37th season on Monday, Oct. 13.

The first-born child of deaf parents who could sign before she could speak, Vivo will blend humor and thoughtful inspiration in relating her experiences as the wife and mother of popular politicians, the mother of eight children, career woman and author.

A resident of Youngstown, Ohio, she is the recipient of many awards for her work with the deaf and her talks on cancer prevention. The title of her talk is the same as her 1991 book, "Turn Right at the Next Corner."

The Nov. 10 Town Hall program the Michigan Opera Theatre's "Broadway Babies and Phantoms" show, a popular adult, cabaret-style revue of songs from Broadway's greatest composers.

It will feature sopranos Maria Cimarelli and Betsy Bronson, tenor Karl Schmidt, baritone Mark Vondrak and pianist Kevin Bylsma. Musical highlights include selections from scores of Jerome Kern ("Show Boat"), Cole Porter, George Gershwin, Rogers and Hammerstein, Andrew Lloyd Webber and newer Broadway shows.

Larry Hedrick will speak about "The Crown in Crisis," an authoritative analysis of the British monarchy on March 9. He will discuss how the Windsors plunged from dignity to notoriety with humor, wit and photographs.

Hedrick has traveled extensively throughout the British Isles and has produced commentaries on royal figures, ranging from King Arthur to Prince Charles. The author of 1993's "Rogues Gallery," Hedrick's forthcoming book is called "The Last Royal Family Album."

A former Air Force intelligence officer stationed in London, his shorter works have appeared in such magazines as "World Monitor," "Woman's World" and "Harvard Magazine."

Closing out this year's Town Hall series on April 20 is "The God Squad," featuring Rabbi Marc Gellman, a Jewish Chief Rabbi from Dix Hills, Long Island, N.Y., and Msgr. Thomas Hartman, a Catholic priest from Elmont, N.Y.

show "The God Squad," the duo have co-authored two children's books while each heads his own synagogue or parish.

They crack jokes, poke ribs and behave generally in a most un-clergy-like manner yet the duo's mission is serious.

They aim to reshape the way mass-culture-fed Americans view, absorb and accept religion in the late 20th century.

"The God Squad" has appeared on "Good Morning America" and on Don Imus's syndicated radio program.

All of the Town Hall programs begin at 11 a.m. and are held at Holiday Inn West, 17123 N. Laurel Park Place Dr. N., Livonia.

Tickets are $100 for gold patrons, $25 for contributing members, $15 for sustaining members, $90 for season lecture and luncheon, and $40 for season lectures only. The individual luncheon price is $15.

Payments can be mailed to Northville Town Hall-Tickets, P.O. Box 93, Northville 48167-0093.

For more information, call ticket chairwoman Carmen Kukenbecker at (248) 349-7227.

Funeral home hosts grief series

Vermeulen Funeral Home in Plymouth will host a five-week grief recovery program

Thursdays, Oct. 23-Nov. 20. The group will meet 7-9 p.m. at the funeral home, 46401 W. Ann Arbor Road, west of I-275. A professional facilitator will lead the group, limited to 20 enrollees.

The program is designed to help grieving people find hope and healing through group interaction.

Participants will learn the characteristics of grief, how to share feelings and receive support from others who have experienced similar losses.

The program is free of charge and open to the community, however, registration is required. To register, call (313) 459-2250.

Felecian Sisters sponsor rally

"As it journeys towards the great jubilee of the year 2000 ... the Church feels the special need of Mary's intervention to give new vitality ... to our task of evangelizing the world."

Inspired by the words of Pope John Paul II about the approaching end of the Second Christian Millennium, the Felecian Sisters will hold a Marian Rally Sunday, Sept. 28, on the grounds of the Provincial House, 36800 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia.

The rally will begin at noon with a Eucharistic celebration at the Presentation Provincial House Chapel. The Rev. Ronald DeRosiers of the office of religious studies at Madonna University will be the celebrant and homilist.

The Rev. Dan Zaleski, associate pastor at St. Theodore Parish in Westland, will preside at a devotional service at the Czestochowa Shrine at 1:30 p.m.

The Rev. Michael Daly, chaplain at Presentation provincial House, will lead the rosary during the procession to the Fatima Shrine, while the Rev. Gary Michalik, pastor of Our Lady Queen of Apostles Parish in Hamtramck, will preside at the devotional service at Fatima Shrine. A student from Our Lady Queen of Apostles School will crown the statue of the Blessed Mary at the service.

Programs, refreshments and rest stations will be available on site. Parking will be available at the Provincial House and Ladywood High School.

For more information, call the Felecian Sisters at (313) 591-1730.

techniques. Registration cost is $10 per workbook ordered. For more information, call Bob D'Ambrosio at (313) 522-6830.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The radio series, "What is This Christian Science and Who Are These Christian Scientists?" is being broadcast at 1:30 p.m. Sundays of WQBH-AM 1400. The topic will be "Why don't you go to doctors?" on Sept. 21.

"The Christian Science Sentinel-Radio Edition" also can be heard at 9:30 a.m. Sundays on WAAM-AM 1600. The conversational program discusses current public topics as well as shares healing through prayer from people all over the world.

HOW GREAT IS GOD?

The Rev. Luther Werth of Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church, Livonia/Canton, will begin a series of messages on the theme of "How Great Is God," beginning Sunday, Sept. 21. The messages will focus on our relationship with God and how he empowers us through life. The six-week series will be at both the Livonia Campus, 14175 Farmington Road, at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services, and the Canton Campus, 46001 Warren Road, at the 9:30 a.m. service. For more information, call the church office at (313) 522-6830.

HOME COMING 1997

Fair Haven Baptist Church will celebrate Homecoming 1997 Sunday, Sept. 21, at the church, 34850 Marquette, Westland. There will be a old-fashioned parent meeting with special services for all ages, preaching, gospel singing and dinner, beginning with the Homecoming service at 10 a.m.

Brother Stan Kruse will be the guest preacher at the morning service, with Brother Robert Winecoff providing special music. Dinner will be served immediately following the service, with Brother Kruse's Gospel Band performing.

The evening service will be at 6 p.m.. Pastor Robert McDonald will deliver the message with special music by Brother Winecoff and Crimmon. For more information, call the church at (313) 728-4549.

BEIT KODESH SISTERHOOD

The Congregation Beit Kodesh Sisterhood will have its kickoff meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 23, at the synagogue, 31840 W. Seven Mile Road, Livonia. Diane Allen will speak about the High Holidays. Guests are invited. Refreshments will be served.

WITHOUT VIOLENCE

Violence comes from gang, domestic abuse, guns, even from the television programs that parents and their children watch. That's why the the Aid Association for Lutherans branch is hosting Without Violence at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 24, at Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church, 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia. For more information, call Dave McNeill at (313) 522-6830.

SPECIAL PRESENTATION

The Rev. Joseph Esper will speak n "Instruments in God's Symphony of Grace" at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 24, in Berry-Ryan Hall of Our Lady of Loretto Church, Six Mile and Beech Daly roads, Redford. Find out how one person can make a difference in today's world, in today's church and in the climactic struggle of good versus evil taking place all around people. Admission is free.

Canton church hosts leaders seminar

Canton Community Church will host a one-day seminar on "Becoming an Authentic Church Leader" 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20, at the church, 41600 Ann Arbor Trail.

Dan Webster, recognized as one of the nation's top ministers to students during his 16 years at Willow Creek Community Church in South Barrington, Ill., and the Crystal Cathedral in Cedar Grove, Calif., will teach the seminar, which starts with registration at 8:30 a.m.

There will be four sessions throughout the day. The first two sessions - "Where Leadership Begins (discovering the 'Core Life' of the leader)" and "Leading From Quiet (learning to detach and manage your life from quiet)" - will start at 9 a.m., followed by lunch and the third and fourth sessions - and "Intercepting What Sinks Leaders (how to catch entropy early)" and "5 Keys to Unlocking Personal Impact" - starting at 1 p.m.

The seminar costs $25 and includes the seminar workbook, lunch and break refreshments. Reservations can be made by calling Beverly Bubb at the church at (313) 455-6022.

The seminar is for members involved in ministry at Canton Community Church, leaders of ministries at area churches and organizations, people who want to be impact people in their leadership in the marketplace and those searching for ways to improve their leadership and impact in their ministry and their family.

The seminar will outline the characteristics of effective leadership and help participants develop leadership styles that begin on the inside of their lives and work outward.

Webster received a degree in communications and his secondary level teaching credential from Biola University in LaMirada, Calif.

He also did his graduate work at Fuller Theological Seminary in Pasadena, Calif.

His ministry at Willow Creek included more than 1,500 students from 24 different campuses, and since 1989 has been a visiting professor at graduate schools in Illinois, South Dakota and Canada.

After spending two years establishing a church in western Michigan, he launched Authentic Leadership Inc., focusing on training and inspiring leaders to live authentic lives of great impact.

Married and the father of three sons, he now lives in Holland, Mich.

Chinese adoptions explored

The Great Wall of China Adoption - Michigan Branch, a non-profit agency dedicated to finding a loving home for the thousands of orphans living in China, will sponsor a free workshop 2-4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 21, at the Farmington Community Library, 23500 Liberty St., Farmington.

The workshop will focus on how people can help through adoption.

The adoption program is open to single men and women and couples ages 25-60.

For more information or to make a reservation, call Wayne or Diane at (616) 669-5348, or write the Michigan Office at P.O. Box 791, Jenison, Mich. 49429-0791.

OBSERVER SPORTS SCENE

Larson named coach

Madonna University hasn't dragged its feet. Its first-ever women's soccer program will open next fall (1998), and the coach has already been hired: Rick Larson, currently the assistant men's soccer coach.

Larson has a long, and successful, coaching record. A Central Michigan University graduate, he guided the Madison Heights Bishop Foley girls soccer teams to Class B-C-D state championships in 1995 and 1997. His teams also won three Catholic League girls titles.

Larson doesn't limit himself to coaching soccer, either. He is currently the boys varsity basketball coach at Livonia Clarenceville.

His early hiring for the Madonna position — women's soccer is the seventh NAIA sport offered by Madonna — should be very helpful in getting the program off on a firm footing. Larson will be able to recruit next spring during the girls high school season and will have a year to put together a schedule.

"I'm excited about starting a women's soccer program at Madonna," Larson said. "I think the team will have great potential to be extremely successful in this area."

"The academic programs Madonna has to offer and the tremendous soccer talent in this area should make for a successful mix right away."

Twisters pull upset

The Wayne County Twisters rolled up 437 total yards to earn a 21-14 Lake Shore Football League victory Saturday over the highly-regarded Findlay (Ohio) Lightning Boosters.

It was the Twisters fourth straight win.

Quarterback Brian Kutch (Redford) hit 12 of 27 passes for 300 yards and two touchdowns. He connected on scoring passes of 19 and 55 yards to Andy Coburn (Canton). Coburn had four catches for 102 yards.

Kevin Kutch also added a 12-yard TD run, for the Twisters, who were ranked 13th in Division A of the American Football Association.

Bill Davey (Canton) recovered a Lightning fumble with only four minutes remaining to set up the game-winning TD catch by Coburn.

Kutch also hit Scott Harris (Livonia) for the two-pointer and Pat Nagy booted an extra point. Jim Bowie (Wayne) was the Twisters leading rusher with 49 yards in nine carries.

Findlay, rated No. 7 nationally in the AFA, were led by the backfield duo of Napoleon Lattimore and Kelly Gibson.

But Twister defense, which held Findlay to 139 yards rushing and three of 17 passing (29 yards), was led by the linebacking corps of Bob Pensari (Westland), Aaron Brothers (Inkster) and Dan Kanaan (Canton) with six tackles each.

Defensive linemen Tony Zanolungo (Farmington), Jason Hagelthorn (Westland) and Mark Johnson (Wayne) had four tackles apiece, as did the Garden City secondary tandem of Ken Kroll and Damon Frenedo.

The Twisters, now 7-2, will wrap up the regular season at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 27 against the host Toledo Tornados at Northwood High School.

Race car sponsorship

Brian Conz, a 1984 Livonia Bentley High graduate and ARCA Bondo/MarHyde Super Car Series driver, along with his brother Clyde, are seeking sponsorship for their next race to be televised on ESPN, Saturday, Oct. 11 at the Talladega (Ala.) Speedway.

For $5, the Conz brothers are offering space on his race car and a chance to sign your name. For each $5 donation, $2 will go to the VFW Children's Home.

Brian, the Rookie of the Year in both the Late Model Division at Flat Rock Speedway and in the Iceman Series at Toledo Speedway, will have his car on display and sign autographs from 2-4 p.m. Friday at Advance Novelty Co., 29199 W. Six Mile, in Livonia.

Chargers sputter past Franklin, 2-1

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Livonia Churchill is off to a 1-0 start in the Western Division boys soccer race in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

But the Chargers, who are expected to battle with Northville and defending WLAA champion Plymouth Canton for the divisional crown, found the road a bit bumpy Monday night against rival Livonia Franklin.

The visiting Patriots, with only one senior listed on their roster, put up quite a battle before falling 2-1.

Churchill entered Wednesday night's game with unbeaten Plymouth Salem at 4-0-3 overall. The loss dropped Franklin to 3-6.

First half goals by George Kithas (25:06 from Mark Sicilia) and Rob Bartoletti (30:20 from Joel Stage) staked Churchill to a 2-0 lead.

But the Patriots made things interesting in the second half when Dave Moldovan cut the deficit to 2-1 on an assist from Ross Bohler with only eight minutes to go.

But the Chargers, with Mike Skolnik in goal, held on for the win.

"Franklin has improved 100 percent over last year," Churchill coach Chad Campau said. "And Dave (Hebestreit) has done a great job coaching that team. They're young and they should be good in the future."

The Churchill coach, however, is concerned about the way his team finishes games.

"It's that killer instinct," Campau said. "They have to come out with the same intensity and enthusiasm no matter who they're playing."

"We started off real well at the beginning. We were passing well and set-

Warriors continue to march past foes

With four games in five days, it appeared the Lutheran High Westland boys soccer team would be dog tired.

But the Warriors came away with a 3-1 victory on a hot Tuesday afternoon over Metro Conference opponent Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest.

The win increases Lutheran Westland's overall record to 8-2. The Warriors are 2-0 in the Metro.

"We went a hard 80 minutes on Monday and our kids came back and really sucked it up and played their hearts out," Lutheran Westland coach Rich Block said. "Overall I'm really happy with our start. We expected good things this year and we came into camp in the best shape we've ever been."

"But we know we still have a lot of work to do. We still have Liggett, Hamtramck, Cranbrook and (Lutheran) North lurking around."

Senior co-captain Brad Woehlke, a center-midfielder, had two goals and one assist for Lutheran Westland. Senior forward Ben Heiden also had a goal.

On Monday, Royal Oak Shrine pulled out a 2-1 win over the visiting Warriors as senior captain Andrew Nabors scored twice. Shrine is 8-2-1 overall.

Woehlke scored on a 35-yard free kick from Scott Randall to give Lutheran Westland a 1-0 lead, but Nabors tied it right before the half on a penalty kick. The shots were 8-8.

"That took the wind right out of us," Block said of the penalty kick. "But we had some good chances late in the game."

In the Westland Huron Valley Lutheran Tournament final Saturday, host Lutheran Westland won the title with a 2-1 win over previously unbeaten Saginaw Michigan Lutheran Seminary as Woehlke and Randall scored goals for the winners.

The Cardinals (5-1 overall) were out-shot, 17-4.

In first-round action Friday, Lutheran Westland dumped Canton Agape Christian, 6-0, as Randall had two goals and two assists.

Woehlke, Adam Voigt, Chris Broge and Matt Shumard (penalty kick) also tallied goals for the winners. Clint Gowen contributed two assists and goalkeeper Brad Nollar preserved the shutout over the final 75 minutes.

Michigan Lutheran won the other first-round game, 5-0, as brothers Jared Herrmann and Ryan Herrmann tallied goals.

Goalkeeper Jared Ridenour made 11 saves in the loss.

On Saturday, Huron Valley gained its first win of the year with a 3-2 triumph over Agape in the consolation final.

Nick Wisniskie scored the game-winner for the Hawks, who had three goals during the final 14 minutes. Chris Peters and Jeremy Zahn also notched goals for Huron Valley.

BETHESDA 4, HURON VALLEY 1: On Tuesday, Warren Bethesda tallied three second-half goals to topple host Westland Huron Valley Lutheran, which slipped to 1-5 overall.

Zahn scored the Hawks' lone goal from Tom Husby.

Ridenour, a senior, made 18 saves.

DETROIT CC 4, BISHOP FOLEY 2: Andrew Kogut, Matt O'Neil, Gavin Walsh and Bill Scherly scored for the Shamrocks, who are 4-2-3 overall, 2-1 in the Catholic League.

Matt Kessler and Nick Reid split time in net.

Polanski cards 9-hole round of 33 in defeat

Believed to be Spartan school record

Steve Polanski of Livonia Stevenson had his golf game going Monday at Fox Creek.

The junior shot a school-record 2-under 33 for nine holes to take medalist honors, but it wasn't enough as the Spartans lost to Plymouth Canton, 200-208, in a Western Lakes Activities Association dual meet.

Polanski recently played in the U.S. Junior Amateur and was a first-team All-Observer pick a year ago.

He also competed last month in the Independent Insurance Agents tournament where he finished in the top 10.

"That's his low at Livonia Stevenson and it's the lowest in my recollection," Stevenson coach John Wagner said of Polanski's round. "He had a practice round of 32 on Friday."

Justin Allen and Ben Tucker each shot 38 to lead Canton, now 3-0 overall.

Derek Lineberry added a 40, while Brendan Wheeler and Erik Arlen each shot 42.

Sophomore Mike Byberg contributed a 41 for Stevenson. Senior Matt Combs had a 44, while senior Jeff Lang and Matt DiPonio each had a 45.

"We're struggling in the other slots on the team right now," said Wagner, whose team is 1-1 overall. "They just need to get steady."

"But there are more teams with more steady players than ever. It's a strong league right now."

WEEKEND HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL REPORT

Divisional tests

Card features 1st Western Lakes games

BY BRAD EMONS STAFF WRITER

Divisional matchups take center stage this week in the Western Lakes Activities Association. And it appears the preseason football favorites in the Western Division — Farmington Hills Harrison and Walled Lake Western — have solidified their state rankings after two weeks of play.

Meanwhile, in the Lakes Division, state-ranked Westland John Glenn, which is also off to a 2-0 start, appears to be primed for another WLA title run.

The Catholic League has two intriguing matchups. State-ranked Redford Catholic Central (2-0) could get a stiff test this week when Warren DeLaSalle (2-0) comes to play the Shamrocks on Saturday at Livonia Clarenceville.

Another interesting matchup is the Redford Bishop Borgess (1-1) vs. neighbor Redford St. Agatha (1-1) in the first football meeting ever between the two schools, 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Redford Union's Kraft Field.

Perhaps a team to keep an eye on is Redford Thurston (2-0), a member of the Mega Conference's Blue Division. The Eagles are off to a 1-0 divisional start.

As for your prognosticators, Dan O'Meara went 13-2 last week, while yours truly finished 12-3.

O'Meara, 28-4 overall, enjoys a three-game advantage. Emons is 25-7 overall.

Here is closer look at this weekend's games.

haven (1-1, 1-0), 7 p.m.: The Eagles have put two shutouts on the board and have one of the area's most underrated quarterbacks in Nick Dedeluk. Woodhaven, guided by former Bishop Borgess coach Craig James, edged Redford Union last week, 14-13. PICKS: Both believe the Eagles will soar.

Cranbrook (2-0, 2-0) at Clarenceville (0-2, 0-2): The records could be deceiving because the unbeaten Cranes have played the Metro Conference's two weak sisters (Hamtramck and Lutheran Northwest). Clarenceville has lost a pair of heartbreakers and could be ready to break loose this week. PICKS: Both believe Clarenceville rides high on its Trojan horse.

Lutheran Westland (0-2, 0-2) at Hamtramck (0-2, 0-1): This Metro Conference matchup could be even. The Warriors have been outscored 82-14 in its first two encounters. Coach Gary Kamin plans to shake up his lineup this week. Hamtramck is coming off an 18-2 loss to Cranbrook. PICKS: Flip a coin. Emons goes with Rudy Tomjanovich and Hamtramck and so does O'Meara.

Northville (0-2, 0-0) at Churchill (1-1, 0-0): Last year Churchill lost a heartbreaker to the Mustangs. Northville gave South Lyon a go in its season opener and lost 21-3 last week to Plymouth Salem. This is a game Chargers feel they can win. PICKS: Emons sees the Chargers prevail in overtime, but O'Meara rides with the Mustangs.

Farmington (1-1, 0-0) at Westland Glenn (2-0, 0-0): The Rockets were less than sharp offensively in last week's 16-0 victory over Plymouth Canton, but Glenn coach Chuck Gordon was pleased with junior quarterback Nick Hudson, who filled in admirably for the injured Justin Berent, hitting nine of 11 passes. Berent will start this week. Farmington, which won its season opener against Novi, found the going tough in a 50-12 loss to defending Class AA champion Westland Lake Western. PICKS: Glenn tees off on the Falcons.

W.L. Western (2-0, 0-0) at Ply. Canton (0-2, 0-1): Canton will conclude its brutal three-game stretch against one of the state's fastest teams, led by quarterback Frank Stanford and full-back Dave Johnson. The Chiefs made it respectable last week against Glenn. Can Canton do it again? PICKS: No doubts here. Western gets two affirmative votes.

Ply. Salem (1-1, 0-0) at W.L. Central (1-1, 0-0): The Rocks got over 100 yards from running back Tony Bernhardt last week and their defense held Northville down. Central, which is expected to challenge Glenn for the Lakes Division title this season, laid an egg in last week's crushing 48-28 loss to Farmington Hills Harrison. PICKS: Central finds a way to win.

Wayne (0-2, 0-1) at Belleville (2-0, 1-0): The young Zebras gave state-ranked Dearborn Fordson a tussle last week before losing 12-6. Meanwhile, Belleville has posted wins so far over Salem (20-7) and Southgate (35-14). Quarterback C.J. Grantham, who returned a punt last week for a TD is a dangerous runner. PICKS: The Tigers take a big chunk out of Wayne.

Dbn. Fordson (2-0) at Garden City (0-2): Who came up with this matchup, the Mega Man himself like Griffin? No wonder GC Bob Eisinger unexpectedly left to become defensive coordinator at Ann Arbor Pioneer. The state-ranked Tractors, who struggled last week to beat Wayne after thumping Dearborn Divine Child in the opener, should have all the parts in place this week against the Cougars. PICKS: It's going to be a long night for GC.

Redford Union (0-2, 0-1) at Ypsilanti (1-1, 1-0): The Panthers showed improvement in last week's 14-13 loss to Woodhaven. Ypsi, a newcomer to the Mega's Blue Division, lost its season opener to state-ranked Lansing Eastern (30-0) and came back last week in the final 1:27 to edge Highland Park (21-20). PICKS: It's Ypsi all the way.

SATURDAY'S GAMES (all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Franklin (1-1, 0-0) at F.H. Harrison (2-0, 0-0): The Patriots' defense has been solid for the most part, but the offense has been inconsistent. This week's opponent has all the pieces in place for a state title run. All Harrison coach John Herrington has to do is remind his team that an undermanned Patriot club nearly pulled out an upset on the Hawks' field just two years ago. PICKS: Harrison will make life miserable for the Patriots.

Liv. Stevenson (1-1, 0-0) at N. Farmington (2-0, 0-0): Stevenson got a boost last week when quarterback Ryan VanBelle came alive in the final period to pull out a last-second victory over Franklin. North, led by tailback Kirk Mondrous, could be the Lakes Division surprise this season if it can get by the Spartans. PICKS: Stevenson makes it two straight, both agreed.

Bishop Borgess (1-1) vs. Redford St. Agatha (1-1), 7:30 p.m. at RU's Kraft Field: Agatha travelled last Saturday to the upper peninsula and spanked Pickford to the tune of a 34-14 win. (Any snow up there yet?) Meanwhile, Borgess, which routed Ecorse in its opener, 58-0, came back down to earth when North Adams-Jerome pinned a 48-20 loss on the Spartans last Saturday. PICKS: The Aggies get two votes.

Redford CC (2-0) vs. Warren DeLaSalle (2-0), 7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville: Could be the best game of the weekend. CC continues to go to the air with quarterback Adam Tubaro, who has thrown over 100 yards in back-to-back games (check the record book Tom Mach). DeLaSalle opened its season impressively with a 37-34 win over Detroit Public School League contender Detroit King and followed that up last week with a 34-0 shutout over Holt. PICKS: CC is ready for the challenge with a solid effort.

Trojans' Ragland rushes for 198 yards in loss to North Macomb Lutheran North ran its football record to 2-0 Saturday with a 20-14 Metro Conference triumph over visiting Livonia Clarenceville.

The Mustangs scored all 20 points in the first half then held off a Clarenceville comeback in final two quarters. The Trojans will try for their first victory Friday at home against Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Kingswood.

"It'll break for us," coach Chuck Donaldson said. "We haven't quite put it all together yet. But we're very close."

A first quarter Clarenceville miscue led to Lutheran North's first score last Friday. The Trojans fumbled a Macomb punt at their own 5-yard line. Lutheran North recovered and ran it in a couple of plays later to make it 7-0.

The Mustangs made it 14-0 early in the second. North's Dan Morley returned a punt 60 yards for a touchdown.

At halftime, Donaldson told his team not to get down in the dumps.

"I just told them to come out strong," he commented. "The kids came out and showed some character in the second half."

Indeed. Clarenceville got on the scoreboard with its second possession of the third quarter. Starting from their own 30-yard line, the Trojans moved the ball over midfield behind the running of Walter Ragland.

Then quarterback Craig Rose hit Justin Villanueva with a 47-yard touchdown pass. Clarenceville converted a two-point attempt to make it a 20-8 game.

"We came out and played like we were a wounded football team," Donaldson said. "We felt like we could win the game. We had momentum going." Clarenceville shutdown Lutheran North's power running in the second half. The Trojans used their linebackers to fill holes the Mustangs ran through in the first two quarters.

"They did a lot of damage between the tackle and tight end," Donaldson said.

Ragland had an 88-yard TD run for Clarenceville in the fourth quarter to cut North's lead to 20-14. The junior rushed for 198 yards on 16 attempts.

About nine minutes remained on the clock after Ragland's score. But the Trojans couldn't find the end zone again as a pair of drives stalled on fourth down.

"We couldn't get anything generated," Donaldson said.

LIGGETT 41, LUTH. WESTLAND 8: For the second straight week, Lutheran High Westland found itself on short end of another lopsided Metro Conference defeat.

On Saturday, visiting Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett rolled up 372 yards total offense to topple the Warriors.

The Knights, coming off a season-opening 27-26 victory over Livonia Clarenceville, rushed for 235 yards on the ground as Kevin Espy led the attack with 129 yards in 14 carries, including TD runs of 53 and 5 yards.

Quarterback A.J. Stechecki, who was six of eight passing for 137 yards, threw three TD passes. Brian Branton had two touchdown catches.

Lutheran Westland, which had only 23 yards rushing in 27 carries, averted the shutout in the final quarter when quarterback Gordie Engel connected with Ryan Moser on a 39-yard scoring pass. Nick Ruest ran in for the two-pointer.

The Warriors had only 91 yards total offense, but it's defense which first-year coach Gary Kamin is even more concerned about heading into Friday's game at Hamtramck (0-2).

"We gave up too many big plays, a lot of them on third down," Kamin said. "Tackling is still an issue. We're going to move some people around this week."

Bob Fox, Mike Fisher and Chris O'Brien each had seven tackles in a losing cause. Jake Hatten had an interception.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Blazers stop Woodhaven

Ladywood hands Warriors 1st loss; Chargers clip GC

Turnovers will ruin a good winning streak just about every time.

Livonia Ladywood forced a flock of turnovers Tuesday night and went on to hand visiting Woodhaven its first girls basketball loss of the season, 58-33.

"We forced them into 20 turnovers," Blazers' coach Andrea Gorski said. "That was the difference in the game, our full court pressure."

"We anticipated their passes, and our traps were pretty effective."

"In the second half we were able to hit more of our layups. Plus we did a nice job overall on the def boards. We played a real aggressive game."

Sarah Poglietti led the way with 12 points for the host Blazers, now 2-3. Ladywood jumped out to a 21-11 lead after one period and was up, 29-16, at the half. It was 40-25 after three quarters.

Woodhaven, 3-1, was led by Loriann Tschirhart's 13 points.

Jenny Lachapelle scored 11 points for Ladywood, Erin Hayden had nine plus 11 assists, Kelly Jeffery scored eight and Sheryl Wroblewski had eight plus eight steals.

Ladywood went 13-for-23 at the free throw line while Woodhaven made nine and missed 10.

•CHURCHILL 55, GARDEN CITY 43: Balanced scoring and good team play were a key to the Chargers' win on Tuesday.

"We got an early lead again," Coach Dave Balog of Churchill said, "and we didn't lose it."

"Our bench came through with quality minutes, 10 of them, and we had eight different scorers. We played well defensively and we were running the ball pretty good."

Kersten Conklin scored 21 points and Stacey Supanich netted 16 for host Livonia Churchill.

The Chargers (3-1) more than doubled up the Cougars, 15-7, in the first quarter Tuesday night and raced out to a 28-16 halftime lead.

Host Garden City (1-4) got 18 points from Sarah Talbot and 10 from Missy Bako.

Andrea Galindo, Dominique Betancourt and Lauren Ruprecht scored four points apiece and "well defensively," Balog said. "And Karen Kramer came off the bench in the third quarter and sparked us defensively. She made a couple of key steals and knockaways."

Garden City cut the gap to three points in the third quarter but never got closer. Churchill made nine-of-16 free throws and Garden City knocked down 11-of-18.

•STEVENSON 44, REDFORD UNION 33: Sophomore forward Cassie Ehliend-and freshman guard Lindsay Gusick played key roles in the Spartans' victory Tuesday at RU.

Ehliend scored 12 points and added six rebounds while Gusick got eight steals, five rebounds, three assists, blocked two shots and helped hold Kasia Mathena to six points.

Junior forward Stephanie Dutz had seven points and 12 rebounds Tuesday night to help Livonia Stevenson improve to 5-1 and drop RU to 1-4.

It was 8-2 after one quarter and 18-9 at the half as the Spartans' strong defense controlled the game.

"Giving up nine points in a half, that's obviously good," coach Wayne Henry of visiting Stevenson said. "They only had six until right near the end of the half."

"We really did a nice job of shutting them down, and an exceptional job on the boards in not giving them easy second shots. Again, we had hard work all over the court like we've had all year."

Junior forward Laura Hillson paced RU with eight points, as did senior guard Katie Thompson.

Stevenson got one player back, Carolyn Courtright, but lost another to an ankle injury, Melissa Backus.

"It was a big game for Cassie Ehliend," Henry said. "She's one of the hardest working defenders so it was nice to see her get the bonus of being the leading scorer."

•FRANKLIN 63, DEARBORN 33: The host Patriots put three players at 14 points or better Tuesday night to square their record at 3-3.

Lori Jendrusik scored 19, Julie Warner 15 and Tera Morell 14 to help Livonia Franklin hand Dearborn its fourth loss in four games.

Jane Heffernan, Andrea Juszczyk and Kelly Dolan each scored five points for Dearborn, which trailed 13-8 after one quarter and was outscored 27-8 in the second period.

"We played more aggressive basketball," Coach Gary Warner of Franklin said. "We came out and played harder than we have in other games."

"But our true test will come tonight (against Plymouth Salem)."

•FORDSON 50, JOHN GLENN 36: The Rockets won the free throw contest, 15-9, but a shortage of baskets helped keep them winless. Both teams went to the line 27 times.

Nazek Mroueh scored 19 points Tuesday night to lead visiting Dearborn Fordson to its second win in five games.

Westland John Glenn is now 0-5.

Samantha Crews scored 11 points and Lacey Catarino contributed seven to the John Glenn cause. Fordson jumped out to a 10-7 lead and increased it to 23-14 at the half.

•NORTHVILLE 51, WAYNE 30: Natalie Garrison scored a dozen points and Tonya Crawford had nine Tuesday, but the visiting Zebras fell short for the third time in four outings.

However, outscored 27-10 in the first half. Wayne came back with a strong second half which it lost by only four points, 24-20.

•LUTH. NORTH 54, CLARENCEVILLE 22: Playing Tuesday at home, Macomb Lutheran North outscored Livonia Clarenceville by 21 in the second quarter Tuesday to take an easy Metro Conference victory.

The Mustangs (2-3) took a three-point lead after the first quarter, but then outscored Clarenceville 25-4 in the second to take a commanding lead. Two Lutheran North players scored in double figures.

"We're still making too many turnovers," Clarenceville coach Rosie Marano said. "We're not sticking to our fundamentals."

Rachel Sundberg led the Trojans with seven points. Danielle Siedz added six points, six rebounds and two blocks despite playing on a tender ankle.

Clarenceville (2-4) hosts Plymouth Christian tonight.

•BAPTIST PARK 37, HURON VALLEY 32: Amanda Koenig scored 21 points Tuesday to lead visiting Taylor Baptist Park (2-3) to the win at Marshall Middle School.

Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (3-2) led at the half, 18-15, and was up 27-23 after three periods but a cold fourth quarter decided the game.

Stevenson dunks Northville

Livonia Stevenson posted five state qualifying cuts Tuesday en route to a 124-62 girls swim victory over Northville in a dual meet held at Livonia Churchill.

Julie Kern earned state qualifying times in the 200-yard individual medley (2:15.84) and 100 butterfly (1:00.71). Adrienne Turri also qualified in the 100 freestyle (55.75) and won the 50 freestyle (25.9).

Jessica Makowski earned a state cut in the 100 backstroke (1:02.14), while the foursome of Turri, Jordyn Godfroid, Marti McKenzie and Meghan Lesnau added a state cut in the 200 freestyle relay (1:43.26).

Stevenson also captured the

■ GIRLS SWIMMING

200 medley relay as Lindsay Dolin, Godfroid, Kern and Turri finished in 1:54.33. The Spartans' 400 freestyle relay quartet of Kern, McKenzie, Makowski and Godfroid also was victorious (3:49.09).

Other Stevenson individual firsts were garnered by Becky Noechel in the 200 freestyle (2:05.35) and Laurel Dolin in diving (202.10 points).

Stevenson is now 2-0 on the year.

COLLEGIATE SOCCER REPORT

Crusaders find WHAC to their liking

It's almost too easy. Madonna University played its third soccer match in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference Monday, and for the third-consecutive time the Fighting Crusaders emerged with a relatively easy triumph. On Monday, the victory came against a team expected to challenge for the WHAC championship. "I thought they would as well," was Madonna coach Pete Alexander's reply when asked why his team wasn't challenged. The Crusaders put four goals on the board in the first half, then scored two more off corner kicks in the second for a 6-1 win over Siena Heights at Livonia Ladywood. The win pushed Madonna's WHAC record to 3-0; the Crusaders are 3-3 overall. Siena Heights is 4-2 overall. "We're really starting to come together," said Alexander. "Right now, nobody can challenge us in our league — nobody." At present, Madonna and Cornerstone are the only two unbeaten teams in WHAC play. They won't meet until Oct. 4, at Cornerstone. If Alexander seems to be bordering on over confidence, consider this: Against the Saints Monday, six different Crusaders scored goals. Three of them — Seamus Rustin, Eric Stoecklein and Charlie Bell — got a goal and an assist. First-half goals were netted by Christian Emert (from Stoecklein), Rustin (from Andy Makins), Stoecklein (from Bell) and Scott Emert (from Brock Becker). The Saints managed a brief stay of execution when Ryan Lucia scored, making it 4-1 six minutes into the second half. But Madonna quickly re-assumed command, getting goals from Jerome Beeler (from Rustin) and Bell (from Ryan Mollien). The last two were both on headers following corner kicks. Dave Hart started in goal for Madonna. Mark Zathe played the second half. Last Saturday, the Crusaders went against WHAC rival Spring Arbor at Ladywood HS and, despite giving up the first goal, they were again more than equal to the task, recording a 3-1 victory. The Cougars (2-2 overall, 0-1 in the WHAC with the defeat) got a goal from Erik Martinson to open the scoring, but Scott Emert tied it (from Bell) and then assisted on the go-ahead goal pumped in by Rustin. Zack Wilkinson got an insurance marker for Madonna (from Makins). Dave Hart went all the way in goal for the Crusaders, making four saves. John Hunter (from Redford Union) made nine stops in the Spring Arbor goal.

Lady Ocelots get 1st win of season

Finally, a win. They didn't even need a full team to pull it off. Schoolcraft College's injury-plagued, short-handed women's soccer team paced itself in its match Sunday against visiting Hillsdale College. The result: a 1-0 triumph, the first this season under new coach Bill Tolstedt. The Lady Ocelots are now 1-5-1. "I thought we dominated that game," said Tolstedt of Sunday's victory. "We played a little smarter in terms of our pace, and that helped us to be able to run." SC had just 10 players for its games Saturday, at Central Michigan University — the Ocelots lost 4-0 — and Sunday at home against Hillsdale. Injuries had taken starting keeper Samantha Swinkey (torn ankle ligaments), Melissa Antieau, Christy Worley, Angela

SCHOOLCRAFT

Pfeiffer (Livonia Stevenson) and Lisa DeShano (Livonia Franklin) from the lineup. But the Lady Ocelots managed. "Quite honestly, I thought (Central Michigan) out-executed us most of the day (Saturday)," Tolstedt said. "We were competitive in terms of effort, but we just didn't execute." It was a different story the next day against Hillsdale. The game was scoreless until the second half, when Lisa Tolstedt slipped a pass through to Jenny Worley, and Worley got it to Julie Majewski (Plymouth Canton) who knocked it home for the only goal of the match. Pfeiffer has returned to the lineup, and DeShano should be back in another week. With the rest, it's not so certain. Tolstedt has managed to pick up three more players, who could help: Sarah Cappucciti (Plymouth Canton), Kelly Melnick (Garden City) and Mandy Davis (Garden City). "I told the team that the thing I look forward to most is yelling 'Substitution!'" the SC coach said. The Lady Ocelots play at Michigan Tech Saturday and host Kellogg CC Sunday. SCHOOLCRAFT (MEN) 1, CUYA-HOGA 1: Schoolcraft College's men's team battled back from a 1-0 halftime deficit to forge a tie against Cuyahoga CC Saturday at SC. "They're good, but it should have been 5-1," said Ocelot coach Van Dimitriou. "We're having trouble putting the ball in the net against better teams." Kevin Fritz salvaged a tie for SC midway through the second half, punching a pass from Jim Bullock (Livonia Stevenson) into the net. Eric O'Neil (Stevenson) was in goal for SC. "We had our chances," said Dimitriou. "We just didn't finish." The Ocelots play at Orchard Lake St. Mary's at 1 p.m. Saturday, then host Madonna University at 4 p.m. Monday.

Authors flock to library

Michigan-based mystery authors will flock to Westland for "A Night of Mystery" 6:30-9 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 1. The event, featuring a panel discussion by four mystery writers, will be in the Community Room of the William P. Faust Public Library of Westland, 6123 Central City Parkway.

William X. Kienzle, author of "The Rosary Murders" and a number of other Detroit-based mysteries, will be joined by Tom Grace ("Spyder Web"), Lee Meadows ("Silent Conspiracy") and S.E. Schenkel ("In Blacker Moments").

Free tickets for the event are available at the library. Seating in the Community Room is limited and a ticket is required for admission.

The program is sponsored by the Friends of the Library and Murder Mystery & Mayhem, a mystery bookstore in Farmington.

Kienzle is the author of the nationally-renowned Father Koesler series. Kienzle is a former Catholic priest and has written a number of best-selling mysteries.

He spent 20 years as a parish priest and was editor-in-chief of The Michigan Catholic for 12 years. After leaving the priesthood, he became editor of MPLS magazine in Minneapolis and later moved to Texas, where he became director of the Center for Contemplative Studies at the University of Dallas.

Kienzle and his wife, Javan, live in Detroit. His first novel, "The Rosary Murders," was released as a motion picture in 1987, starring Donald Sutherland as Father Koesler. Kienzle's most recent work, "The Man Who Loved God" (Andrews and McMeel) is his 19th Father Koesler mystery.

Shirley Schenkel began writing at age 48 and had her first book published in 1994. She describes herself as a missionary, mom, grandma and mystery writer, and intends to continue writing as long as possible unless another career taps her on the shoulder.

Kienzle

Schenkel

Tom Grace studied architecture and landscape design, structural engineering and computer systems design at the University of Michigan, graduating with a master's degree in architecture. As an architect in private practice, Grace has worked on a variety of projects, including renovation of historic structures; the Corvette Museum; urban renewal in London, Boston and Chicago; commercial and industrial facilities and others.

As a senior architect with the University of Michigan Medical Center, Grace designed the first Human Applications Laboratory for Genetic Therapy. He is an architect in private practice and lives in Michigan with his wife and two daughters.

Lee Meadows' "Silent Conspiracy" is an investigation of the 1955 murder of a white woman named Swan in Detroit. It has several other themes, including the disappearance of The Sentiments, five talented African-American singers, which coincides with the crime.

Meadows, who earned a Ph.D., is a native Detroit currently living in Ann Arbor. He is at work on his second Lincoln Keller mystery.

Murder Mystery & Mayhem will sell copies of the authors' books for autographing and other mysterious trinkets during the Oct. 1 event; part of the proceeds will support the library.

The event will begin with music from a chamber wind trio. Panelists will speak and then answer questions from the audience. The evening will wind up with more music. Punch and cake from Mary Denning's Cake Shop will be served.

Young Madonna spikers post 4-1 record on Florida swing

Of the 14 pre-Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference matches Madonna University's volleyball team played through last weekend, four ended in defeat.

Only two of those losses were three-game sweeps.

Which means that, for a team searching to replace two All-Americans and four key starters from last year's team, the Lady Crusaders are doing pretty well.

At last weekend's Converse Invitational, hosted by Florida Institute of Technology in Melbourne, Fla., Madonna played five matches — winning four and losing the other in five sets.

On Friday, the Crusaders defeated West Georgia State 15-5, 15-8, 15-7, then lost to Francis Marion (S.C.) 10-15, 15-8, 15-4, 5-15, 15-11.

On Saturday they rebounded for victories over Lenoir-Rhyne College 15-2, 15-4, 15-11 and Florida Tech 15-11, 15-9, 9-15, 15-13.

Leading the way for Madonna in the tournament was Karin Sisung with 48 kills, 17 digs, 10 solo blocks, 13 block assists and four service aces.

Brandy Malewski (from Redford Thurston) added 31 kills, six service aces, eight solo blocks and 22 block assists; Erin Gregoire had 30 kills, 15 digs, six aces, two solo blocks and two block assists; Deanne Helsom chipped in with 122 assists to kills, eight kills, 14 aces and six block assists; and Nicole Scharrer had 17 kills, one solo block and nine block assists.

Madonna rips Tri-State

The Lady Crusaders opened their very first WHAC season in style, sweeping Tri-State University (Angola, Ind.) 15-12, 15-6, 15-3 Tuesday at Madonna.

The win improved the Crusaders' record to 11-4 overall, 1-0 in the WHAC. Tri-State is 4-3 overall, 0-1 in the WHAC.

The offensive force for Madonna against Tri-State was Erin Cunningham, with 11 kills (a .353 average), five digs and two block assists; Sisung, with nine kills (.533), two service aces and 14 digs; and Malewski, with seven kills (.357), two aces and five block assists. Helsom totaled 32 assists to kills, two aces, two kills, four digs and two block assists.

Ocelots: Down, and up

At last weekend's Muskegon Tournament, the Lady Ocelots opened with a loss, won their next three, then finished with a defeat — all of which left them at 6-6 for the season.

SC opened with a 15-10, 0-15, 15-10 loss to Lake County CC Friday. After that, the Ocelots beat Morton CC 15-3, 15-1 Friday.

Which put them on the up-beat for Saturday's competition. SC defeated both St. Francis 15-4, 15-7 and Vincennes 15-11, 15-6, before losing to Henry Ford 5-15, 20-18, 15-7.

Leading the Ocelot attackers in the tournament were Megan McGinty (from Livonia Churchill) with 45 kills, eight service aces, 33 digs, two solos and six block assists; Sarah Gregerson, with 38 kills (.385 percentage), three aces, 30 digs, four solos and six block assists; and Kimberly Washnock (Farmington), with 30 kills (.344), three aces, three solos and five block assists.

Setters Stacey Campaign and Amber Wells (Plymouth Canton) both performed well. Campaign totaled 11 kills, five aces, 67 assists to kills, 33 digs and six block assists; and Wells had 14 kills, 51 assists, 14 aces and 25 digs.

Chicago Symphony

MAKES A HOME AT UM

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

On Sept. 25, 26 and 27 the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will take up residency at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

The orchestra will perform overtures, concertos, symphonies and chamber works. Orchestra members, conductor Christoph Eschenbach and guest violinist Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg will spend Saturday giving master classes at the UM School of Music. Students on virtually every orchestral instrument will participate in 12 workshops.

This is the essence of the University Musical Society program. It is at once an educational program for university students and the most ambitious concert series for the general public in southeastern Michigan. This year's series (see schedule) features opera singers, choral ensembles, dance troupes, a guitar summit, American and world symphonies, klezmer music with Itzhak Perlman, jazz, tango, a celebration of "Beethoven the contemporary" and the world premiere of a new work by Wynton Marsalis.

"It's fun to have an audience of students, knowledgeable students and academics," said Eschenbach from his office in Houston. Eschenbach is the director of the Ravinia Summer Music Festival (the Chicago Symphony's summer home) and the Houston Symphony. The German born maestro also serves as a guest conductor around the world and is a noted classical pianist.

"I consider myself under the general label 'musician,'" he said, allowing that 95 percent of his time is devoted

The program for the residency was selected through consultation with the university.

It covers a range of musical styles within the standard repertoire. Eschenbach will play and conduct the Mozart Piano Concerto No. 23 on Thursday and conduct Berlioz Roman Carnival Overture and Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 6. On Friday Salerno-Sonnenberg will join the symphony for Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto in D Major and the orchestra will also perform Dvorak's Carnival Overture and his Symphony No. 9 (From the New World). Saturday night will be a program of chamber music by Schumann and Beethoven.

"These are major works of the 19th century repertoire and also very strong pieces for the Chicago Symphony," Eschenbach said.

Eschenbach had praise for Salerno-Sonnenberg, "She's always searching for the personal approach. She electrifies music in her high tension and compelling performances."

Eschenbach said the recent decline in classical recording is more a problem for the record industry than the symphonies. He said the advent of the CD and the extensive backlog of recordings of all classical standards has made record companies reluctant to record. He said unlike vinyl LPs, CDs don't wear out.

"I don't believe in doom and gloom over the reception of classical music," he said. "There are so many young people, more than ever before and I see talent coming up and it's amazing. This provides me with optimism."

Eschenbach is looking forward with "curiosity" to meeting some of these talented young musicians at a master class Saturday. He said his job is to "wake up" the talent in the student.

"I don't believe in criticism that is not constructive. It's a very delicate matter a master class, you can do more harm than good," he said. "I've seen students go out crying."

Eschenbach said he expects to be inspired by UM's music students and inspire them in return.

Virtuoso violinist: Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg is known for her aggressive approach to violin playing.

Violinist's style brings young fans to classical music

STAFF WRITER

On Saturday, Sept. 27, the University of Michigan plays Notre Dame and violinist Nadja Salerno-Sonnenberg has her ticket.

"I'm a huge Wolverines fan," she said in a telephone interview from her Manhattan apartment.

Salerno-Sonnenberg is part of a residency weekend with the Chicago Symphony as part of the University Musical Society series. (The series opens Sunday, Sept. 21, with a performance by mezzo-soprano Cecilia Bartoli)

On Friday, Sept. 26, Salerno-Sonnenberg will perform Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto in D Major, Op. 35 at Hill Auditorium. The concerto, the orchestra and Ann Arbor - "The circumstances both geographically and musically are spectacular," she said.

Salerno-Sonnenberg said she enjoys playing college towns and the University of Michigan is her favorite college.

"The last time I was there I got an autographed picture of Bo Schembechler and he got one of mine, and I got a tour of the stadium," she said.

She enjoys the college audience as well.

"Your audience tends to be younger and there's a different feeling about playing a college town," she said.

Attracting younger audiences has been a hallmark of Salerno-Sonnenberg's sometimes controversial career.

Born in Rome, Salerno-Sonnenberg, 36, emigrated to the United States to study violin at Philadelphia's Curtis Institute of Music when she was 8. She was the recipient of the prestigious Avery Fisher Career Grant and winner of the Walter W. Naumberg 1981 International Violin Competition. She debuted with the Chicago Symphony shortly after winning the award.

Salerno-Sonnenberg has played with many noted conductors and leading orchestras in the United States and throughout the world. She currently records for Nonesuch and Angel/EMI and has a recording, "Humoresque," due out in early 1998.

Plymouth Theatre Guild begins 51st smash season

Mary Lynn Kuna of Plymouth is a seamstress, not an actress, and was looking for something fun and creative to do when she joined the Plymouth Theatre Guild four years ago.

She grew up around creative people. Her mother was in professional opera in Chicago, and Kuna missed all the excitement.

At the Plymouth Theatre Guild she found a dynamic, enthusiastic group of people who share her love for theater, and an appreciative audience for her costuming skills.

This year she's serving as president of the group, which presents its shows at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of the Northville Psychiatric Hospital in Northville.

It's not polite, but you can't help but wonder how they feel about having their theater on the campus of a psychiatric hospital.

"The venue doesn't hold us back," said Kuna adding they shy away from plays like "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest."

From the outside, the Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild playhouse doesn't look like much. In fact, I drove right past it on my way over.

"Don't feel bad," said Blanche Graham of Redford, executive director for the past three years. "You'd be surprised how many people don't know where we are. The firefighters who work across the street didn't know we're here. They bought tickets to a show and couldn't find us so they went to the fire station to find out."

Sandwiched between a dentist and a plumber's office on busy Beech Daly Road, the playhouse is easy to miss for the first time. It's just south of Five Mile Road, across from Redford Township Hall. If you pass the hall, you've gone too far. Turn around, and come back toward Five Mile Road, you won't be sorry.

Inside this plain storefront is a theater, which seats about 100 people. Black curtains on either

JOHN MONAGHAN

To meet Curtis Hanson, director of "L.A. Confidential," I come armed with a slightly musty copy of "Confidential" magazine, the infamous '50s predecessor to our modern-day "Stars" and "Enquirers."

"I had piles of these around my office when we were making the movie... they were part of my inspiration," he says, flipping through the yellowed, pulpy pages, which scream headlines like, "Those Whispers About Tab Hunter" and "Meet the 'Joe' Who Got Monroe."

Period details, along with a complex story and characters, have made "L.A. Confidential" one of the year's best-realized films. Hanson, a veteran director

'Chinatown' was a kind of Revisionist look at Raymond Chandler's private detective out doing his thing. Our movie has different aims.... I'll agree inasmuch as it's the kind of rich, complex narrative that people just don't see so much in movies anymore.'

Curtis Hanson
"L.A. Confidential" director

probably best known for the recent "The Hand That Rocks the Cradle" and "The River Wild," says this is the first picture on which he has been given full creative control.

The movie, which opens Friday, focuses on three members of the Los Angeles Police Department, circa 1953, who find themselves at the heart of a citywide conspiracy. James Ellroy, who wrote the original novel, has praised Hanson for doing the impossible: paring down his book's 130 characters and eight distinct plots for the screen.

Hanson, who co-wrote the script with Brian Koppelman, wasn't sure at first read that he even wanted to try. "As I met each of these characters in their individual chapters, I didn't like them because they were doing such bad things," Hanson remembers. "Bud (Russell Crowe) is by most accounts a mindless thug. Ed Exley (Guy Pearce) is a political opportunist masquerading as a do-gooder, and Jack (Kevin Spacey) is kind of on the take with this magazine. He's exploiting people's unhappiness for his own aims.

"Yet I found as I kept going that I got drawn in to each one of them to different degrees. As the story went along I became emotionally involved with each of them and their personal struggles with their inner demons."

Danny DeVito plays Sid, publisher of "Hush-Hush" magazine, which thrives on catching Hollywood with its pants down. He employs Jack to help him during his elaborate drug busts, slipping him $50 and increasing his clout as consultant on a "Dragonet"-style television series.

In the early days the fan magazines were all controlled by the studios, creating these very idealized images to feed to the public, Hanson notes. "These new magazines said, 'let's peel back that veneer and see what's going on underneath,' because it was so false, so phony."

And that is the theme of the movie: the difference between the phony image and what is going on beneath, the difference between how people appear and how they really are.

"L.A. Confidential" has been a long time coming for Hanson, who began his career in the early 1970s making pictures like "The Dunwich Horror" and "The Arousers" for producer Roger Corman. He later worked as scriptwriter on Samuel Fuller's "White Dog" before scoring his first great notices as a director with 1990's "Bad Influence," a creepy psychological thriller starring James Spader and Rob Lowe.

"L.A. Confidential," which has enjoyed rave reviews since premiering at Cannes, has been favorably compared to Roman Polanski's "film noir" tribute "Chinatown." Hanson takes it as a slightly wary compliment.

"Of course there are similarities," he says. "They're set in L.A. and both period. But 'Chinatown' was a kind of Revisionist look at

MERRICK MORTON

Crime drama: 'Celebrity cop Jack Vincennes (Kevin Spacey) in "L.A. Confidential."

Raymond Chandler's private detective out doing his thing. Our movie has different aims.... I'll agree inasmuch as it's the kind of rich, complex narrative that people just don't see so much in movies anymore."

He says that he hired "Chinatown" composer Jerry Goldsmith, "despite his work on that film," but fails to recognize the melancholy saxophones that distinguish both scores.

He also won't agree that both films share a cynical edge. "I would not describe our movie as cynical," he says. "To look at the darkness beneath the image is not a cynical thing. I find cynicism to be an attitude that is an excuse not to do anything, whereas our characters are all struggling. They're not resigned. They're struggling."

The "film noir" feel of "L.A. Confidential" also extends to the character of Kim Basinger's Lynn, a high-class prostitute surgically altered to look like movie star Veronica Lake. She even plays clips from "This Gun For Hire" while servicing her latest clients.

Hanson's recent box office success gave him power to cast Australian actors (and relative unknowns) Pearce and Crowe as the very American police detectives. "I wanted actors who the audience might not like or be that surprised to see dead in 30 minutes," Hanson says.

"With Kevin Spacey, he's of course much more known. To a wide moviegoing audience, he's known for playing these weirdos in 'Seven' and 'The Usual Suspects.' So to have him play Hollywood Jack, he's almost like a stranger for the audience, but he also has that charisma to be a movie star among cops."

Hanson notes the peculiar timing of the movie's release. By having the birth of tabloid journalism as its backdrop, "L.A. Confidential" makes an unintentional statement about the brand of celebrity stalking that may have led to the death of Princess Di.

"Of course I didn't see that specific coming," Hanson says. "But the movie is, in a way, about everything that led to it. It begs this question about what are the limits to this whole cult of celebrity and the tabloids."

"That's the interesting thing about L.A. 1953: that those things that were starting there are still so much with us today."

Singer Johnny Little brings sound home to Plymouth

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Whatever Nashville producer Gene Breeden touches turns to gold, according to Plymouth country singer Johnny Little.

The 1995 graduate of Plymouth-Salem High School is hoping Breeden has the same effect on his debut album "Johnny Little" on the producer's Nashville label RAM Records.

"The first country album he did turned gold. Then he went to jazz and that went gold, which is unheard of. Pretty much everything he gets his hands on, he knows what to do with it," Little said of Breeden who has worked with Tracy Lawrence, Deana Carter and Capitol Records.

This year marks a series of firsts for Little. Besides releasing his first album, Little will play his first headlining show Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Plymouth-Salem High School auditorium.

"I'm kind of nervous about it. I hope it turns out good and I get a lot of people in there," Little said.

Early start

Little only recently took up

Debut performance: Country singer Johnny Little of Plymouth.

songwriting but he has been singing since he was 6 at home and at his church. Five years ago he took up country music because the music touches him.

"Most of the songs that are played you can relate to the real life experiences. That's how I write and things that happen to me I just put it in a song. Hopefully somebody else can relate to it," Little said.

"Most of the songs that I write come from old relationships and stuff like that - basic country songs. It's hard for me to write fast songs or happy songs."

Traditionally, high school athletes and band/choir members aren't the best of friends. But during his years at Plymouth-Salem High School, he was able to successfully meld the two.

"I was the first football player/singer ever at Canton and Salem," Little said with a laugh. "Football players, the chorus, band, a lot of them don't really get along. When I first walked in there it was a Thursday and I was wearing my game jersey."

Classmates looked at him and groaned but, Little said, "it was cool. I got along with everybody."

He honed his vocal skills while serving as a karaoke host at the former A.J.'s at Plymouth and Eckles roads, and Charlie's Too on Ford and Merriman roads in Westland.

"I would sing if nobody else would get up there. Basically they would come to see me sing. At the beginning of the night I would tear it up and then toward the end of the night it don't matter what you do because they're pretty much drunk. This show (at Salem) is completely different. They're coming to see me."

In 1996 Little moved to Nashville in pursuit of his dreams.

"I went down there to visit for a week and then I came back for a week, left a pretty good job and moved down there," said Little who drove a truck for a contractor.

In Nashville Little performed during open mic nights where any singer can get a chance to play.

"A bunch of different singers go in and sing, all chasing the same dream that I have. It made it more intimidating for people to go down there for the same purpose as you. You run into people who are better than you, and people who aren't so good. But the people that are better than you give you more incentive to try harder," Little said.

Breeden discovered him during a gig at the Broken Spoke bar in Nashville.

"I just sang out one night. I was approached and he said, 'You have a good look to you. You're a good singer. I'd like to work with you."

Before recording the album, Little was offered about "20 tapes with 20 songs each" from which to choose. Little, who co-wrote one song "Blue Skies," culled songs from a variety of writers including Joel Swisher and Jason Richey of Westland ("Outta My Mind"), and his cousin Jamie Spaulding Jr. of Troy, Tenn., ("Sarah," and "Can't Live Without You").

Little said that he searched out songs that were catchy.

"It's the song that really makes it. There's guys who can't sing worth anything but have a good song and it flies. I was looking for something I can listen to over and over and over again and not get sick of it," Little explained.

For "Johnny Little," he picked a variety of songs from classic country ("Can't Live Without You" and "Love Don't Get Any Better") to rockin' country ("Mama Made a Gentleman Out of Me"). Ballads like "Can't Live Without You," "It's You," and "Blue Skies," are predominant.

"It has everything. I like different. The only person who does that is probably Garth (Brooks) because everything he does is different. You can listen to the whole album and you don't skip over any songs. You don't get bored with it," said Little whose vocals are reminiscent of John Michael Montgomery.

The 20-year-old truck driver for Office Depot is living once again in Plymouth to build a fan base in his hometown. Little, whose band includes Dawn Marie Turner, a 1996 Plymouth-Salem High School graduate, as back-up vocalist, feels positive about his career and his producer Breeden.

"Anything he touches he does great things with. It's just the kind of person he is. He's a good Christian guy. The kind of guy who does anything for you."

Johnny Little performs 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 20, Plymouth-Salem High School auditorium, 46181 Joy Road, Canton. The $7 tickets are on sale at Repeat the Beat, 770 Penniman, Plymouth, (313) 416-9291, and Plymouth stores at 44730 Ford Road, Canton Township, (313) 459-3666 and at 833 Penniman, Plymouth, (313) 459-3355.

Fund-raiser set for planned film on Jessie White

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Delta blues pianist Uncle Jessie White has been a Detroit music legend since he moved to Michigan in 1950. Soon, Michigan's secret will be out.

In the works is a documentary about the 77-year-old Mississippi-bred White's music and life by Doug Drummond Jr., a free-lance Madison Heights corporate film and video producer, and his future sister-in-law Canton resident Anne Marie Graham, White's part-time manager.

"Uncle Jessie's kind of music deserves to be documented," Drummond said. "He's one of the few original Delta blues performers still around. Today's performers tend to 'dress up' the blues. Jessie's style is a true African-American art form. We're determined to get his music - and his life - on film."

Delta blues, he said, "is in danger of losing itself and having no identity with all these older statesmen who are gone. We wanted to get it on tape and on film and with the cooperation of the Detroit Blues Society, a non-profit organization, we've been able to raise a little bit of money."

The film has received partial funding from the Detroit Cultural Affairs Department and the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs, however, funds are still short. On Saturday, Sept. 20, Uncle Jessie White along a host of local blues acts will perform a benefit concert hosted by Sweet Claudette Harrell at the Attic Bar in Hamtramck from 4 p.m. to 2 a.m.

White will perform with his band, the 29th Street Blues Band, 9-11 p.m., and with special guests 1-2 a.m. The bill also includes: The Detroit Dobro and Back Porch Blues Project 4-6 p.m., Jeff Grand 6-7 p.m., Motor City Josh 7-8 p.m., The Rhythm Bone 8-9 p.m., the Sidewinders 11 p.m.-midnight, and Johnny "Yard Dog" Jones joins the Sidewinders midnight to 1 a.m.

The $10 cover charge can be tax-deductible by making checks payable to the "Detroit Blues Society, Jessie White Consortium." For more information about the show, call the Attic at (313) 365-4194. Drummond will be filming White's performance to be used in the film.

This will be the second fundraiser for the film. The first, held July 5 at the Attic, was cut short due to severe thunderstorms.

"We're deeply grateful that the Attic has opened its doors to us again," Graham said in a written statement.

Graham and Drummond began work on the film in late July and hope to wrap it up in the spring. With the benefit and the donations, Drummond, 30, said he would like to raise $50,000.

The two plan to visit Terry, Miss., White's birthplace, and to travel to Europe with White if his tour plans are confirmed.

Proceeds from the film's distribution will be used to help White find a new home.

"We'll also work with the Detroit Blues Society to establish an education fund that will support blues-related learning programs for children," Graham said.

Backstage spotlights exciting area theater season ahead

ANN DELISI

The days are getting shorter. It's been rainy and gray. Soon it will be cold and snowy ... All right!

No, we haven't gone nuts. We're excited because the beginning of the season for the arts - and the premiere of the second season of Backstage Pass, which begins full, original production on Oct. 2 at 9:30 p.m. on Detroit Public Television.

So fall starts the season at many area venues. What better time to preview the upcoming artistic spread? I started by calling on our trusted Backstage Pass theater correspondents, Gary Anderson and Blair Anderson.

Gary, artistic director at Detroit's Plowshares Theater, clued me in to an interesting trend: more local theaters are mounting musicals this season than in years past. "You have 'Falsettos' at the Jewish Ensemble Theatre, the first-ever musical for them. 'Thunder Knocking on the Door' is a Meadow Brook-Plowshares coproduction that will be the first blues musical produced in Detroit. And 'Scott Joplin' will be the first musical in a long time at the Detroit Repertory Theatre."

Gary explained that musicals have long been the domain of big, traveling productions, so this spate of local musicals signals a new trend. "For local companies, the expense of mounting musicals had always been prohibitive. You've got the royalties for the show, the royalties for the music - which are separate - and you usually have a large cast, an orchestra or some kind of group of musicians that you've got to pay ... That gets very expensive for a house with fewer than 500 seats, unless ticket prices are $65."

So, why are local companies producing musicals now? "There are smaller cast musicals. 'Thunder' is a cast of five. 'Falsettos' is only eight. Plus, the tours come through Detroit because there's an audience for them here. We'd like to bring that audience into

As for the news at Gary's Plowshares Theatre, he's excited about their new digs in the beautiful new home of Detroit's Museum of African American History. "Part of our mission has always been to present African American life, trends and traditions on stage. That's why it's a match: we present the drama of history."

Blair, from Wayne State University's Theatre Department, noted other twists in the upcoming year. "Meadow Brook is opening its season with a show that didn't have success in New York, which is unusual. The play 'Over the Tavern,' tells the story of a Polish-Catholic boy's coming of age. "It's really funny, a real clever piece, not unlike a youthful Neil Simon piece."

She has won praise for her passionate playing and criticism for her unorthodox dress and performance style. But she dismisses her reputation as a "bad girl" of classical music as "old clippings." In fact, more recent coverage of Salerno-Sonnenberg speaks of her as "mellowed."

"I do my thing," she said. "It's not a rock star attitude, but I draw a rock star audience. I think this all started out by the effect I had on the audience and critics and media. But it was nothing I did to create it, but I found myself in the middle of controversy. The way I played, the clothes I wore were all questioned. I just wore what was comfortable for me."

Ann Arbor composer William Bolcom praised her difference. "Sometimes she's rough, but immediately you're impressed that she doesn't sound like everybody else."

Justin Davidson writing in Newsday said, "(Sonnenberg's) performance of Shostakovich's Violin Concerto No. 1 could not have been more unbuttoned. She played the moody music with electric verve, making every aching note pulse. She may have overloaded some passages with pathos, but she also played as if she had never experienced a moment's boredom in her life."

And Salerno-Sonnenberg doesn't apologize for the impact she's had on bringing young people into the concert hall.

"I am an ambassador to bring in the younger audience to concerts. I happily took that title," she said. "I've seen a difference in concerts I play as to who comes to the concerts. It's great to have the power to bring in a younger audience. Certainly the music needs it."

The music, according to numerous press reports, is in trouble, especially in the recording end. Several major orchestras have recently been dropped by record companies, including the Detroit Symphony.

"Classical recording is in just such a disarray, it's practically gone," Salerno-Sonnenberg said. "Everybody is scrambling to find a solution to make it work. It's an awful, awful situation."

Salerno-Sonnenberg's personal solution has been to branch out. She's recently recorded with rock musician Joe Jackson, done klezmer music with Mandy Patinkin and recorded an album of Brazilian folk songs with Brazilian guitarists.

"I find myself remaining organic and true to my playing. I cannot do anything else," she said.

"The need to reach out to new audiences and play in several different venues has created a hectic life for the violinists, but it's something she wants to do."

"The classical repertoire for fiddle or piano is vast. I could never learn it all and that could take up all my time. But I feel like doing these other things," she said.

And as soon as the master class is over - it's tailgate time. Go Blue!

side hide props and costumes. The theater is air conditioned, and the furnace was replaced two years ago after the old one died.

Owning their own building gives the Theatre Guild an advantage, they can present plays whenever they want to, but the building, paid off in 1977, has to be maintained, and that can be costly. Raising money to replace the roof is their next project.

Matthew Ripper of Redford discovered The Theatre Guild by accident a little over a year ago. "I was walking by and went in to see what was going on," said Ripper who was involved in theater in high school in North Carolina. He moved to Michigan with his family and is studying to be a teacher at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

"I absolutely adore the set-up," he said. "It's very community oriented. It's a little more lax, they don't care about your resume, they're very friendly, and always wanting people to help. I can't keep away from theater, I want to be involved. Once the bug has bitten it's hard to stay away."

"This is in-your-face theater," said Peter Sonnenberg of Southgate who is directing Agatha Christie's classic mystery, "The Mousetrap," opening the season this Friday. "You're much closer to the stage, this is very intimate theater."

Sometimes the theater is a little too intimate for actors. "We took out one row of chairs because some people were putting their feet on stage during the show," said Graham.

- "Pure as the Driven Snow" - 8 p.m. Thursday, April 30; Friday and Saturday, May 1-2 and 2 p.m. Sunday, May 3.

It's not that Livonia-Redford Theatre Guild members don't know how to have a good time, they just prefer to wait until after the show to party.

Actors are always sought, but that's what auditions are for. Volunteers make a community theater successful, and the Guild needs more of them. They're the ones who redesigned and upgraded the set, which makes the setting for "The Mousetrap," more believable. Right now they're looking for someone to help with publicity, and experienced light and sound technicians willing to donate their time.

The Theatre Guild is also seeking individual and community sponsors.

Their mission is "to enrich the cultural life of the community, to provide worthwhile entertainment and to encourage interest and active participation in all phases of theater through professional instruction, dramatic productions and other related activities."

The Theatre Guild offers adult and children's workshops, and has a partnership with the Creative and Performing Arts program at Churchill High School in Livonia.

"It allows the students to work in a more professional surrounding," said Graham.

CAPA students present a show at the Theatre Guild's playhouse every year. They're doing "Pure as the Driven Snow," by Paul Loomis, an old-fashioned melodrama, which invites the audience to boo, hiss and cheer, and join in the singing of old-fashioned songs, in the spring.

The third annual Festival of One-Act Plays in March shows cases works written and directed by local playwrights. Deadline for entries is Dec. 1. Contact Thom Hinks, Theatre Guild president, (313) 295-1691 for more information.

A six week "Introduction to Creative Dramatics" workshop for students in kindergarten through ninth grade begins Saturday, Oct. 4. Students will learn about different acting styles, improvisation, audition and, at the end of the course, present a show for their parents. The cost is $45, call (313) 531-0554 for registration information.

In December, the Theatre Guild will present "Silent Night, Lonely Night," by Robert Anderson, a bittersweet adult comedy set in a New England town on Christmas Eve.

Auditions are 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 5, and 7 p.m. Monday, Oct. 6, at the playhouse. Jennifer Jones is directing the show, which opens Friday, Dec. 5.

To help raise money for that new roof, the Theatre Guild is hosting a pre-Halloween costume sale, 1-6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 11 and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 12 at the playhouse.

Players Guild of Dearborn presents 'suite' evening of Neil Simon

Players Guild of Dearborn presents "London Suite," 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Sept. 19-20; Sept. 26-27; and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 28 at the playhouse, 21730 Madison, (on the southeast corner of Monroe and Outer Drive) in Dearborn. Tickets $10, students (under 18) $8 on Sunday only. Call (313) 561-TKTS. For directions, or other information, call (313) 277-5164.

client whose money has been sorely mismanaged (to put it politely) by a crooked accountant. With the help of a little finagling and a not-so-little gun, the resolution is anybody's guess. Garry Sekerak and Gary Oberto do a fine job as the dueling pair. Except for the initial low volumes of the actors, they are soon picked up as the argument turns to a rather heated discussion, unfolding lies and laying things out on the bargaining table.

The second act opens with "Going Home," a story about a mother and daughter on holiday in London. Mother is a lonely widow, who has charmed a native Englishman on the plane. When he requests a date with her, it's the beginning of a bitter-sweet mother/daughter bonding.

Robin Blesner does an admirable job as mother. She is sweet and sensitive, much like that amiable portrayal of her daughter played by Jeanine Matlow, whose talent shines in the third act.

As Diana, a complex and troubled woman, Matlow gives a touching performance. Still in love with now turned gay ex-husband, her path to maintain includes pills and booze.

The finale act, "The Man On The Floor," provides the decisive and winning touch. Vacationers with lost Wimbledon tickets, as well as a slew of miscommunication and some bad backs, prove to be a hysterical scenario.

Kudos to Don Andres in his portrayal of Mark Ferris, the agitated husband with the sorest of bad backs. He kept the audience in stitches. Annie and Dr. McMerlin (not to be confused with the magician), played by Trisha Ali and Linda Bondar provide delightful performances. And certainly not to be left out is Scott Joel Gizicki as the bellhop.

Director Camilla Lunsford and assistant/producer Jeff Bartos have helped the Guild to revive another Neil Simon play. They've captured Neil's true fervor. Audiences of Simon will be pleased.

Caught in the act: Diana (Jeanine Matlow) and Sydney (Gary Sekerak of Bloomfield Hills) share a special moment reflecting on their past in the third of four one-acts in Neil Simon's comedy "London Suite."

"We're receptive to what the community wants to see," she said. "A script committee reviews plays, but we accept suggestions too."

Centrally located in western Wayne County, Water Tower Theatre ordered new signs to help direct our audience to the theater," said Kuna.

"There's a lot of commitment to putting on a good show," said

Kuna. "People consider us almost professional. There's a lot of dedication."

In October they'll begin interviewing directors, choreographers and music directors for "Sweet Charity," which the guild is presenting in February.

"Our people get good experience on our stage," said Kuna. "We are always looking for new members, and people who can offer technical help. We're open to new ideas."

Last year Plymouth Theatre Guild celebrated its 50th anniversary. This year they're working on making some internal changes that will make the group stronger in years to come. Regular membership is $25 a

Trinity House to present mystery

Trinity House Theatre opens its season next Friday with "An Inspector Calls" by J.B. Priestly. Curtain 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Sept. 26 to Oct. 18; and 4 p.m. Sundays, Oct. 5 and 12. Tickets $8, call (313) 464-6302. Trinity House Theatre is at 38840 West Six Mile Road in Livonia, on the northwest corner of I-275 and Six Mile Road.

Directed by Laura Gumina.

"An Inspector Calls" is set in 1912. The Birling family is celebrating the engagement of their daughter Sheila when a knock is heard at the door. A police inspector is calling. It seems just two hours ago a poor woman died in the infirmary.

Gumina said this suspenseful tale of responsibility and revelation puts an interesting twist on the traditional "whodunit."

Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe offers a slice of home

BY KEELY WYGONIK

Mary Denning who is celebrating the fifth anniversary of the opening of Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe Inc. in Westland says she'll never be rich, but oh what a difference she makes.

"I like to give back to the community," she said. "Everyone knows I'm a soft touch."

Denning is one of more than 60 restaurant, beverage distributors and specialty food makers participating in the Culinary Extravaganza, 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 21, at the McDowell Center on the campus of Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

"This is the fourth year we're participating," she said. "It gives people an opportunity to taste what we do, and our employees can see what's going on in the world. It's a fun day."

She's also helping organize a benefit for the Leukemia Society of America noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 27, at Oak Plaza mall with her other mall neighbors.

"The community's been so good to me, I want to give back," said Denning adding the Sept. 27 event is a joint effort involving everyone in the mall. "Everyone's been so nice about participating

Coming Event
Leukemia Society of America Benefit - noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 27, Oak Plaza Mall, 8020 N. Wayne Road, (next to Wendy's). Day of fun at for the family to benefit the Leukemia Society of America. Activities include David Nadeau "The Magic Man," "Prof the Clown" and her fancy balloons; Cake Walk; Limbo Contest; Laser Shoot-Outs, Face Painting, Pizza Eating Contest, and photos with your favorite mice. Raffle tickets to win a variety of prizes including gift certificates for dinner donated by Cleopatra's Restaurant, which is also participating in the event; Ernesto's and Water Club Grill in Plymouth.

Since opening on Oct. 5, 1992, Denning has doubled her bakery by expanding into the building next door. There are eight tables where you can unwind, sip coffee, and enjoy one of Denning's mouth-watering pastries including cakes, muffins, coffee cakes, and cookies. She also offers low-fat muffins.

Tuesday was a slow day so Denning decided to introduce Copper Country Pasties made with beef, rutabaga, and potatoes, just like her mother made.

"I'm from up north, I grew up in Hancock," explained Denning. "We started doing pasties on Tuesdays, but then we started making them everyday because of the demand. People wanted me to make a chicken pasty, but my mother would come back to haunt me, so I started making chicken pot pies, which are available on Wednesdays." She offers seven different flavors of premium coffee, including Mary Denning's own special blend, a variety of specialty teas, hot chocolate, and Ocean Spray slushes.

On Saturdays almost every table is filled with future brides and grooms looking at books to pick out the perfect wedding cake. Denning also rents space to local crafters, and their reasonably priced wares are attractively arranged on shelves that invite browsing.

She now has two ovens, a talented team, and even gets a day off. Bakers work on one side of the bakery, cake decorators on the other.

"Everyone thinks I do everything, but I don't. I have people to help me. My staff all wants to change their name to 'Mary.' They're all very loyal and dedicated."

Still, Denning admits she's different from a lot of bakeries. "We're all scratch," she said. "We do things like you would at home. I trained people to do things my way. The decorators have to decorate cakes to look like I did it. That's what customers expect."

welcome and everyone smiles a lot. After all, stressed they remind people is just "desserts" spelled backwards.

"We want everyone to feel like they're home, and part of the family," said Denning. "Our customers start out with a wedding cake, then we see them for a cake for the baby shower, and then birthdays. We're growing up with them, and celebrating all the holidays."

Schoolcraft College presents Culinary Extravaganza Sept. 21

Schoolcraft College's sixth annual Culinary Extravaganza 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 21 in the McDowell Center on campus, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia, offers a taste of 60 of metro Detroit's most popular restaurants, beverage distributors and specialty food producers.

Tickets are $40 per person, or two tickets for $75. Raffle tickets are $5 each or three for $10. Call (313) 462-4417 for more information.

The event, which raises money for student scholarships, will feature three floors of food and beverage samples, a silent wine auction, a raffle drawing, and mini seminars on food-related topics. Food purveyors from A.H.D. Vintners and Baron's Steakhouse to the Water Club Seafood Grill and Zingerman's Delicatessen will tempt the most refined palate with their wares.

Diners can begin with smoked salmon and caviar on wafers from Tribute in Farmington or marinated smoked salmon from MacKinnon's in Northville. They can sample pearl in the woods bisque from the Michigan Star Clipper Dinner Train or compare the tortellini with tomato basil sauce from Edwards Cafe & Catering in Northville with the herb pasta and with tomato basil sauce from Mama Mucci's Pasta Company in Canton.

Main courses to savor include Maine lobster and rock shrimp from Morels in Bingham Farms; smoked tenderloin with dried cherries from the Capital Grille in Troy; grilled ginger chicken over couscous from Excalibur in Southfield; Black Angus pot roast from the Innkeeper at Metro Airport, or seared jump sea scallops from Pike Street in Pontiac.

There will be samples of breads from the Great Harvest Bread Company of Northville, specialty coffees from Detroit's Cadillac Coffee Company, wines from A.H.D. Vintners in Detroit, and assorted beers from Central Distributors of Beer.

Desserts will be offered by Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe in Westland, Charley's Crab in Troy, Zingerman's Delicatessen in Ann Arbor, or Kathy's Cakes in Livonia.

Participating restaurants represent a large area in southeastern Michigan. In addition to those already mentioned, they include: Allie's American Grill at the Livonia Marriott, Bushwood Golf Course & Restaurant in Novi, Cafe Bon Homme in Plymouth, DePalma's in Livonia, Emily's in Northville, Forte in Birmingham, Golden Mushroom in Southfield, Kyoto Japanese Steak & Seafood, Macaroni Grill, Old Mexico Restaurant in Livonia and West Bloomfield, R. Leone Imports, Rocky's of Northville, Station 885 in Plymouth, and The Plymouth Landing. Guitarrist Vaughn Klugh will entertain diners throughout the day with live jazz artistry. To take a break from the gourmet food, participants can attend one of several free mini seminars on topics such as pastries and desserts, champagne and dessert wines for the holidays, or how to work with chocolate. For those interested in fine wines, more than 100 bottles will be on display for the wine auction.

The first prize winner in the raffle will receive a framed jersey from this year's Stanley Cup champions, the Detroit Red Wings, signed by team captain Steve Yzerman. The second prize is the lease of a Jaguar for two weeks from Jaguar of Plymouth. A diamond and amethyst ring from Orin Jewelers is the third prize, and the fourth prize is a trip to Las Vegas for two at the Imperial Palace from Livonia Travel.
