Flooding problems swamp residents

A growing number of Westland homeowners are becoming increasingly angry with an administration and council that they believe have ignored their flooding problems.

Jon Reno fears he will die and leave his wife, Carolyn, to face basement flooding problems he blames on the city of Westland. "I've got heart problems, cancer problems and high-blood pressure," Reno, 63, said Monday afternoon, standing in his basement.

"My wife's in good health, and she's got a long life," he said. "I can't have her getting swamped out of here and forced out of here."

Reno and several of his neighbors on Parkwood east of Merriman suffered basement flooding during a Feb. 17 rainstorm, but he said the problem has plagued his house since 1985.

Reno said the city should use some of the tax dollars he and other homeowners pay to Water woes: Jon Reno stands by the place where the city pumps out water to help alleviate basement flooding on Parkwood. He says the city needs to buy more pumps and respond faster to problems.

Birthday celebration

A good read: Channel 50 weekend weather person Leslie Lobue reads, "The Cat in the Hat" by Dr. Seuss. She is reading to second- and fifth-graders at Nankin Mills Elementary School in Westland.

Listening: Sarah Machowicz and Stephanie Knight listen to state Rep. Eileen DeHart read "Green Eggs and Ham" by Dr. Seuss.

Pupils, teachers let loose on birthday of Dr. Seuss

There were cats in hats all over the place.

On Monday, students and staff at Nankin Mills Elementary School in Westland donned outfits of their favorite Dr. Seuss characters in honor of the children's author's birthday. The all-school read-in also marked Read Across America.

With painted or glued-on whiskers, long black socks for tails and the trademark tall, striped hats, students and staff alike paid homage to the title character of Seuss' "Cat in the Hat."

The school was dressed up as well, with the halls lined with drawings of Dr. Seuss characters.

Other characters were represented in costume, including Thing One and Thing Two. Kyle Springstead, a Council urged to give voters say on pensions

Westland voters should be allowed to decide whether Westland City Council members should receive pensions, a resident declared Monday.

"Let the people decide this issue about whether you people should get pensions," taxpayer Mike Kelly told the seven-member council.

"And don't give me a bunch of hogwash about we're going to study it," he added. "Let the people decide."

Kelly and other pension critics oppose a system that allows part-time council members to qualify for retirement pensions as high as $49,000.

'And don't give me a bunch of hogwash about we're going to study it.'

Mike Kelly
Westland resident

His call for a ballot question drew support Monday from only two of seven council members.

Councilmen Glenn Anderson and Richard LeBlanc said they would support a ballot proposal, although LeBlanc said the council should have the courage to decide the issue.

Anderson and LeBlanc have previously suggested eliminating pensions for part-time council members, but they haven't won support from their colleagues.

A move to eliminate pensions wouldn't affect current council members — some of whom say they don't believe they should wipe out pensions for future elected officials.

Sandra Cicirelli, council president, said Monday that any ballot proposal for eliminating pensions might have to be worded as a city charter revision.

Kelly's remarks revived an issue that exploded earlier this year with Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin defending his pension. He is expected to receive about $49,000 if he retires when his current two-year term expires Dec. 31, 1999 — and more if he is re-elected.

In mid-January, Cicirelli appointed a three-member council committee to study possible pension alternatives and to report its findings to the full council.

As of Monday, committee chairman/Councilman Charles Picker-

Official paper

Westland residents who read the city's legal advertisements will need to turn to the Westland Observer, rather than Michigan Community Newspapers, following a Westland City Council vote on Monday. The seven-member council unanimously named the Observer the city's official newspaper for printing legal ads.

Eagle Scout

Michael J. Anderson, 16, of Westland recently has been awarded the Boy Scout Eagle Medal. He is a member of Dearborn Troop 1148. Anderson, the son of Karen Beleski and Steve Anderson, is a student at Livonia Franklin High School. For his Eagle service project, he coordinated a volunteer program to assist the Dearborn Historical Museum's Rendezvous on the Rouge event, a three-day encampment of French and Indian War re-enactors on the banks of the Rouge River.

His hobbies include paint ball and contact sports. He plans to work toward a career in firefighting.

Master Contractor Award

A Westland company has received the 1998 Firestone Master Contractor Award, given to Firestone's top licensed commercial roofing contractors. Advanced Commercial Corp. of Westland has been named a winner for the fifth year, Firestone announced in a press release.

The award recognizes Advanced Commercial Corp. for its "commitment to providing consistent, quality installations of Firestone roofing systems during 1997," Firestone announced. The winning company is located at 1055 Manufacturers Drive.

kindergartner, proclaimed that there were two Thing Ones and one Thing Two in his class. Reading buddies made the doctor's stories come alive for kindergartners and sixth-graders alike. "One of the most fun things you can do in your life is read," state Rep. Eileen DeHart of Westland told a group of kindergartners and sixth-graders in Audrey Pleasant's classroom.

She urged them to ask an adult if they have trouble while they are reading. "Have you ever eaten green eggs and ham in a tree?" DeHart, who read "Green Eggs and Ham," asked the students, who all replied "no." "No, I haven't either," she said. Other readers included Leslie Lobue, a weather reporter at TV Channel 50, who read "The Cat in the Hat."

"Hop on Pop," "One Fish, Two Fish, Red Fish, Blue Fish" and "There's a Wocket in My Pocket" were among the other Seuss books featured. After the readings, students gathered at an assembly for songs and a performance by the Franklin Players. Later, students had a birthday treat in their classrooms.

ing hadn't scheduled a meeting, although he has said he hopes to resolve the issue by April. However, Pickering on Monday did ask his council colleagues LeBlanc and Justine Barns - who serve on the pension committee - to notify City Clerk Diane Fritz of times they could meet to discuss the issue. Fritz, in turn, will try to arrange the session.

Former Personnel Director Kent Herbert has said Pickering stands to receive a pension of about $32,000 for time he has already served. Pension critics oppose a pension system that gives full-time pension credit to part-time council members - if they ever held a full-time city job.

Among current council members, the system particularly benefits Pickering and Griffin. Both formerly served as mayors, and Pickering also worked full time for the parks and recreation department.

Most council members have never held full-time city jobs; they qualify for pensions typically less than $3,000.

address flooding that occurs when sewers become overloaded. But he said Mayor Robert Thomas won't even return his telephone calls.

"Westland is a terrible place to live," Reno, a grandfather of 13, said. "It is not the place to be - not this section, anyway. It's the place to stay away from."

Reno and a growing number of Westland homeowners are becoming increasingly angry with a city administration and council that they believe have ignored their problems. At least 125 homes across Westland suffered basement flooding Feb. 17. During a Westland City Council meeting Monday night, some homeowners threatened to retaliate by ousting city officials when they come up for re-election.

"I believe at election time we need to clear this board and get somebody who knows what they're doing," Rahn Street resident Cecil Benton said.

During the latest flooding, he said, "I stood and watched raw sewage come up through my bathroom floor."

"You people should be impeached," Somerset resident Carol Boettger told the council.

Boettger's house has been surrounded by water, and she said indoor flooding has left mold and fungus that are making her sick.

Council concern

Some council members also are angry, and they blamed administration officials for failing to schedule a study session months ago to discuss flooding problems.

"It has been sat on basically for six months, and nothing has happened," Councilman Glenn Anderson said, suggesting the council act if the administration won't.

Councilman Charles Pickering called the delay "a travesty."

Mayor Robert Thomas was reportedly sick and didn't attend Monday's meeting. But Richard Dittmar, public services director, cited several developments:

■ Four more city pumps have been bought to free overloaded sewers of water during rain storms, bringing the total number of pumps to 10.

■ City officials are studying a possible relief sewer along Meriman that would connect with a county interceptor, possibly moving water out of the city faster.

■ City officials are seeking talks with the county to discuss sewer flooding problems that also have affected other communities.

■ A study session between administration officials and Westland City Council members will be scheduled the week of April 20, although a specific date hasn't been decided.

"We should have had a meeting months ago," Pickering said. Anita Gronas, who lives on Wildwood, said she was discouraged to learn from the city that she is responsible for correcting problems with sewer lines that go from her house, under the street to the municipal system on the other side.

"By ordinance that is correct," Dittmar said Monday, although he added later that the city tries to share some of the costs for sewer problems.

Gronas said she has received estimates as high as $5,000 for waterproofing her basement.

"At this point I want to sell my house and move out of the city that I was once proud of," she said.

Development factor

Some residents questioned whether new development is overloading the sewer system. Some critics Monday opposed a new Wildwood Manor subdivision proposed for the old Wilson School site on Wildwood - a project that the council postponed for further study.

"When you keep developing in low-lying areas, more and more people are going to be flooded," resident Vickie Maple told the council.

Some residents said their property assessments continue to climb despite flooding that makes it impossible for them to sell their homes. Assessor James Elrod suggested they appeal their assessments to the city's Board of Review.

Jill Runkle, city purchasing agent, said homeowners can take pictures of flooding damage and fill out claim forms with the city, although she said "we do not believe at this time that it is our fault."

To get a form, call 467-3204 or pick one up at City Hall on Ford Road between Wayne and Newburgh.

Council watcher Dorothy Smith, who lives on Julius, said she has suffered basement flooding for 42 years.

"I'm trying to figure out what do we pay taxes for - (city) salaries and benefits?" she asked Monday.

"You're going crazy," she told the council. "The balloon's going to burst ... We pay enough taxes here, but you don't direct them in the proper route."

Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin suggested cutting other spending areas in the city's next budget to begin to address sewer problems.

Councilman Pickering said he won't support Mayor Thomas' proposal for a new city complex on Central City Parkway because the city needs to address more pressing problems such as flooding. He and many residents have dismissed administration claims that recent flooding was "an act of God."

The latest flooding came one year after raw sewage flooded more than 400 north-end houses - flooding blamed on a 6-foot sewer pipe being improperly sealed.

The city still faces lawsuit claims from dozens of homeowners who suffered damages last year. City officials have said the latest flooding shouldn't be compared to the 1997 sewer backup.

Westland police officers, passenger hurt in wreck

Three people, including two Westland police officers, were injured in a two-car collision on Ford Road in Garden City early Saturday.

The patrol car was traveling east on Ford and passed through a yellow flashing light at Harrison, said Garden City Police Deputy Chief Michael Bertha.

A pick-up truck driven by a Garden City woman was traveling south on Harrison, which has red flashing lights, then came through the intersection striking the patrol car at the left rear quarter.

The Westland officers were taking a prisoner to the youth home when the accident occurred. The impact sent the patrol car into a spin causing it to hit a pole and a tree in the easement.

Westland Police Deputy Chief Daniel Pfannes identified the injured officers as Steven Bachand and Joseph Abdella.

Both officers were taken to Garden City Hospital - Abdella for a concussion and Bachand for a mild concussion and torn ligaments in his shoulder, Pfannes said.

Abdella has been a Westland officer only four months; Bachand for seven years. Both were treated and released after a few hours.

"They're doing very well," Pfannes said, but neither has returned to work because they remain under medical treatment and have to return for follow-up visits.

The prisoner, a 15-year old Garden City girl, suffered facial lacerations in the accident and was admitted to Garden City Hospital. All three injured people were treated at the scene by Garden City Fire Rescue. The other driver was not injured.

"This is still under investigation. It doesn't appear that alcohol was a factor," said Bertha.

The Michigan State Police investigated the accident and will be submitting a report along with Garden City's report.

Skating workshops set

The Westland Figure Skating Club is planning a "Skate with the Team" precision workshop. The workshop will teach the correct holds, footwork, and technical maneuvers need to skate on a precision team. The workshops will be held on March 11, 18 and 25 at the Westland Sports Arena, 6210 N. Wildwood in Westland. Forms are available at the arena concession stand. Call (734) 729-4560 for information.

Scouts and skates team up at party

Girl Scouts and their families took to the rink for some family roller skating recently.

More than 500 skaters turned out on a recent evening at Skateland West in Westland.

And more than 1,800 items such as cleaning supplies, kitchen items and children's supplies were collected to benefit the First Step Domestic Violence Shelter in Westland.

This is the second year for the Family Skating Party, according to Diane Browning, service unit manager for the north service unit, which includes troops from Edison, P.D. Graham, Patchin, Wildwood, Cadet troop 218 and Senior troop 512. Also included this year were scouts from the east service unit, including Kettering, Hamilton and Elliott elementaries. The scouts went out on the rink and did a ceremony on Girl Scout Thinking Day, when scouts think about Girl Scouts around the world.

"Everyone had a really good time. It is nice to see all the families together," Browning said.

Man charged with arson in girlfriend's car fire

A Westland man is charged with arson after starting a fire in his girlfriend's car while she was driving him home early Saturday, a police report said.

No one was seriously injured during the 12:15 a.m. incident, but the woman's 1989 Chrysler was destroyed, police said.

Michael Joseph Mujadin, 35, is expected to learn whether he will face trial when he appears in Westland 18th District Court for a preliminary hearing March 12.

He could face four years in prison if convicted of starting the fire.

Judge Gail McKnight arraigned Mujadin on an arson charge Monday and ordered him jailed in lieu of a $50,000 cash bond.

According to a police report, a 33-year-old Westland woman was driving her boyfriend home when he pulled a bottle filled with flammable liquid from a coat pocket and splashed it on the dash area, setting it afire with a cigarette lighter.

The woman stopped the car on Bayview near Wildwood, jumped from the vehicle and ran to a nearby house to ask a resident to phone Westland police, the report said.

The suspect fled the scene only to be arrested later. He contended that he didn't start the fire and that he didn't intend to hurt anyone, the report said.

The incident occurred after the suspect allegedly made earlier threats against his girlfriend's daughter, police said. That argument prompted the woman to drive the man home, police said.

Vehicle break-in

A Westland woman reported that her 1998 Mercury station wagon was broken into about 11:30 p.m. last Thursday in the 32500 block of Hively, near Cherry Hill and Venoy.

She told police that a $300 cellular phone and a $175 camera were taken. The victim told police that someone broke out a passenger-side window to get to the items.

Wallet stolen

A Plymouth woman reported that her wallet containing $35, credit cards and a phone card, among other items, was stolen from a diaper bag she had placed in a shopping cart at Toys R Us at Warren and Wayne roads. The victim confronted a possible suspect but backed down when the suspect became verbally abusive, police said.

FOR YOUR INFORMATION
The Information Access Center and Online Computer Library Center's First Search are two databases now available at the library. These two databases provide library patrons with access to more than 1,000 magazines, newspapers and indexes. Sponsored by the Access Michigan program, which is a program for providing information to Michigan residents, the library of Michigan has contracted with the database to provide access to Michigan public libraries at no cost.

Library Hours
The library has ordered 15 new periodical titles for 1998. These will increase the number of periodicals the library receives to 365. The periodical section and reading room are located on the east side of the library behind the Reference Desk.

Student attends leader conference

Joshua Spohr of Westland, a student at Wayne Memorial High School, has been selected to attend the National Young Leaders Conference in Washington, D.C., this week. The conference is a leadership development program for high school students who have demonstrated leadership potential and scholastic merit. Spohr will be among 350 national scholars attending the conference. The theme of the National Young Leaders Conference is "The Leaders of Tomorrow Meeting the Leaders of Today." Spohr will have the chance to interact with key leaders and newsmakers from the three branches of government, the media and the diplomatic corps. Highlights of the program include welcoming remarks from the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives and a panel discussion with journalists at the National Press Club. The scholars will visit foreign embassies and receive policy briefings from senior government officials. Students will also participate in leadership skill-building activities including "If I Were President," a role-playing exercise in responding to an international crisis. The conference ends with a "Model Congress," in which scholars assume the roles of U.S. representatives by debating, amending and voting on proposed legislation dealing with juvenile justice. The National Young Leaders Conference is sponsored by the Congressional Youth Leadership Council.

Resident questions wetland 'trade-offs'

Bill Craig, a Livonia resident who regularly attends meetings of the Wayne County Commission's Committee on Environment, Drains and Sewers, said he opposes a wetlands preservation fund's use in the hands of Wayne County.

"The biggest flaw is (the county) using parks property," Craig said. "It's trading one habitat for another."

Craig believes the county could "trade" a baseball diamond - to be developed as new wetlands - for an old established wetland to be revamped as a buildable site, paved and used for development.

Craig is also active on an advisory council overseeing the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan to clean the river and is active with the Friends of the Rouge, but he said he was critical of this wetlands program "as a citizen."

"It's a risky business," Craig said. "It's banking. There is a risk involved; even with the best technology and all the experience and education in creating wetlands, it's still a man-made project and it might not succeed."

Some of the plants and animals lost in one area of wetlands turned into development may not thrive or survive in a new wetland area, Craig said. "Maybe plants won't grow there, maybe soils won't support (wetlands)."

—Livonia resident*

"It ends up being on the high end of biology and hydrology. It's trading a Cadillac for an Escort with 150,000 miles on it."

Craig was asked whether he believed Crosswinds Marsh, a county wetlands mitigation project and nature preserve that opened last year, was a success story. "Not yet." The cattails, fish and storks have the makings of a lasting wetlands, but they need to "fit together" with the ecosystem, soils and hydrology of the preserve by standing the test of time, Craig said.

"That's why it takes five years to achieve a level of success. It might be 10 years."

Crosswinds will need intensive monitoring to help ensure that the program is a success there, Craig said.

Wetlands control Commission examines proposed fund

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara wants to start a fund to help preserve wetlands near the Rouge River, to aid in improving water quality and acquire lands for recreational activities.

McNamara and Cameron Priebe, assistant county executive and director of Wayne County's Department of Public Services, submitted to county commissioners a proposed resolution and a draft copy of a proposal to be sent to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality.

Commissioners have sent the proposals to the commission's Committee on Environment, Drains and Sewers for study. It may be discussed at the committee's next meeting, tentatively scheduled for 1 p.m. Tuesday, March 10.

Funds for wetlands

Under the program, the wetlands fund or "bank" will generate mitigation credits that the county can use or sell to the developer "to offset in advance the unavoidable loss of wetlands."

Revenues from the sale of the credits will be used by the county, in part, to purchase or otherwise acquire land for the creation and maintenance of public parks. That money would be placed in the wetlands preservation fund and reported to the MDEQ by Wayne County.

The MDEQ must issue a permit for any wetland construction.

The county would use those proceeds to first repay costs of construction and then reimburse the county for operating and maintenance costs of the wetlands.

"The remainder of the funds will be used as determined by the Board of Directors to acquire upland properties for public parks, for economic development activities to benefit the citizens of Wayne County and the surrounding areas, and to finance the further expansion of the mitigation banking program," according to the county's draft proposal.

Under the proposed county resolution, a board of seven to 11 members would manage the fund. The resolution also allows the board to accept donations of land to be included in the bank; they may select properties currently owned by the county or acquired by the county to be included in the bank.

Commissioners react

County commissioners have questions about the proposal because the fund will be managed by seven county officials - directors of public services, environment and jobs and economic development, chief financial officer, a representative chosen by the county executive, a county commissioner and parks division officer.

For the most part, commissioners want to see more information before voting on

Judge sues to stop court reorganization

An Oakland County circuit judge has filed a lawsuit against the state of Michigan challenging the constitutionality of the reorganization of Wayne County's court system, following a similar legal argument in a lawsuit filed last year.

Oakland County Circuit Judge Richard Kuhn, his attorney Larry Bunting and two registered Wayne County voters filed the complaint Feb. 23 in U.S. District Court, challenging a 1996 law that abolished Detroit Recorder's Court and transferred 29 Recorder's Court judges to the Circuit Court.

The merger and reorganization approved by state lawmakers forces the removal of divorce and child custody cases from the circuit court docket, and removal of juvenile delinquency cases from Probate Court. A new family division in Wayne County Circuit Court was created to handle divorce, child custody and juvenile delinquent cases.

But Kuhn, a delegate to the 1961 state constitutional convention, challenged the state law and has requested an injunction.

"For the Legislature to appoint someone from recorder's to circuit court is a violation of the constitution," Kuhn said. "The only other means of filling a vacancy under the Michigan constitution is the appointment by the governor and by election."

"We have the separation of powers." People want their judges to be elected, Kuhn said, adding that nowhere in Article 6 of the Constitution does it say anything about the Legislature appointing circuit judges. Last year state lawmakers passed the provision governing the court reorganization without a constitutional amendment, and a vote from Michigan's electorate.

"It's a legislative fiat," Kuhn said.

Kuhn said lawmakers could not get the two-thirds legislative vote to put the question on the ballot. "They were so hell-bent to do something about it, they just violated the Consti-

It's plain and simple." Wayne County Chief Circuit Judge Michael Sapala, who is overseeing the court reorganization, would only say the lawsuit was "wholly without merit." A motion is expected to be filed next week by the office of the state attorney general calling for the judge to expedite the case.

U.S. District Judge Averil Cohn will hear the case.

A similar case has been filed with the Michigan Court of Appeals. A ruling in that case is expected at anytime, Sapala said.

In that case, Wayne County Circuit Judge Robert Colombo Jr. denied Kuhn's request in September 1997 for an injunction and sided with the defendants because Kuhn "lacked legal capacity to sue."

SC trustees to review architectural firms for Waterman project

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees expects to select on Wednesday, March 25, an architectural/food service consultant team to design the expanded Waterman Center.

A study session is set for Sunday, March 22, to discuss the bids, previous projects completed by the teams and references.

Trustees spent Saturday interviewing the three teams for 40 minutes each. Once they completed the interviews, they wanted more information, so they advised Butch Raby, Schoolcraft's vice president of business services, to check on references and previous work completed by the architects and food consulting firms.

Last Wednesday, Raby told trustees he would check on the last couple construction projects. "We will actually check with the clients, that these projects finish on time," Raby said.

Originally Raby contacted about 15 firms, then narrowed that field to three firms, each with a food service consultant.

BEI Associates/Stephens Bangs, DiClemente-Siegel Engineering Inc./T.Kenneth Rohlfing and Ghafari Associates/E.F. Whitney were the final three teams. Bids for the teams range from $430,000 to $650,000.

Raby believes the center may cost about $10 million.

Civil rights warriors

Fraser, others honored for activism by Detroit Urban League

Douglas Fraser, a former UAW president, will be among four people honored as "Distinguished Warriors" for their civil rights activism at a salute sponsored by the Detroit Urban League on Thursday, March 19, in the Westin Hotel, Detroit.

Fraser, a Northville Township resident, will be honored for his work as a member of the United Auto Workers International Executive Board and UAW president. Fraser was instrumental in bringing about changes in the workplace to improve conditions for union and non-union workers in the United States.

Other honorees include: ■ Sidney Barthwell, a registered pharmacist who established the largest chain of African American-owned drugstores in the United States. He also established the Wayne State University School of Pharmacy endowed scholarship fund for minority students.

■ U.S. Court of Appeals

Judge Damon Keith, a member of the federal judiciary since 1977, has defended the constitutional and civil rights of people throughout his career.

■ Morris Gleicher (posthumously), the former president of the Metropolitan Detroit branch of the American Civil Liberties Union. Gleicher was an organizer and officer of Michigan Friends of the South, an interracial body that supported and encouraged financial personal election assistance to register and protect citizens who wanted to secure their 16th Amendment right to vote.

More than 1,300 people are expected to attend the Detroit Urban League's 1998 "Salute to Distinguished Warriors" dinner, which is the organization's largest fund-raiser.

Since 1980, the Detroit Urban League has recognized the contributions of more than 100 individuals who have devoted most of their adult lives to the struggle for human and civil rights. "The mission of the Detroit Urban League is to enable African Americans and other persons of color to achieve their greatest potential," said Detroit Urban League president N. Charles Anderson. "The lifelong contributions of our honorees have earned them the designation of 'Distinguished Warriors.'" Chairing the 1998 dinner is John Rakolta, chairman and CEO of Walbridge Aldinger, a Detroit-based company. "The Detroit Urban League serves more than 40,000 clients annually with more than 20 specialized programs; this dinner supports the programs," said Rakolta. "I am very excited about the event and look forward to striving to reach its $200,000 fund-raising goal." The Detroit Urban League's "Salute to Distinguished Warriors" dinner starts at 6:30 p.m. in the Renaissance Ballroom of the Westin Hotel. Tickets for the dinner are $100 per person; a portion of the contribution is tax-deductible. For additional ticket information, call the Detroit Urban League at (313) 832-4600, Ext. 29, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Before you have a baby, talk to a woman who's had more than 1000.

The female obstetricians and certified nurse midwives of Providence Hospital and Medical Centers have delivered thousands of babies between them. And they've had a few of their own, as well. So if you think a woman's touch would make your birth experience a better one, then you've come to the right place.

Of course, no matter which gender you prefer (for your doctor, that is) all of Providence's obstetricians and certified nurse midwives are highly skilled and experienced. And they work in some of the most accommodating, comfortable, family-centered birth facilities in Michigan. Providence Park in Novi and the New Life Center in Southfield offer the comforts of home, with the reassurance of state-of-the-art equipment standing by. For low-risk births, the Family Birthing Center in Southfield offers a safer alternative to home birth, providing queen-size beds, Jacuzzi tubs and sleeping accommodations for family members.

For your birth experience, Providence has all the choices: the medical professionals, the accommodations, the technology. Just ask any woman who's been there—even just once. For more information, call 1-800-968-5595.

Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, opposes it in its current form, because he believes it undermines local control.

"Notice all of these persons (directors of public services, environment, and jobs and economic development and chief financial office, plus a representative of the county executive, county commission and parks division) are already appointees of the county executive except the one county commission representative. And, all are potentially non-elected, and therefore, potentially less than accountable to the public appointments."

Patterson also wondered why money was earmarked for recreation. "Why shouldn't these be targeted to the stormwater watershed problem that is being fought out in federal court?" he asked.

Commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, and Edward Plawewski Sr., D-De-born Heights, who also represents Redford Township and a part of Livonia, want to review the ordinance before commenting on it.

"I want to hear why the county has to do it," McCotter said.

Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, was out of town at a conference on Monday, but an aide said she has concerns about the proposal.

Schoolcraft's open house is March 22

Schoolcraft College is planning an open house from noon to 3 p.m. Sunday, March 22.

Participants can tour the campus and explore the range of programs available to persons of all ages. As the community resource for lifelong learning, the College's various divisions will present information for graduating high school seniors, for adults who have not attended college or have some college but have not completed a degree, for those seeking personal enrichment classes and for parents interested in summer enrichment courses for their children.

Visitors may drop in anytime between noon and 3 p.m., take guided tours of the campus and talk with current Schoolcraft students. Prospective students can learn about admissions, financial aid, career planning, tutoring, student activities and athletics, weekend college and distance learning, and Continuing Education Services.

The event includes free informational materials, and faculty members will answer questions and give hands-on demonstrations to acquaint visitors with their degree programs. Public Safety will display the police, fire and EMT vehicles; Culinary Arts will have a table display; Computer Assisted Drafting will demonstrate software; and Continuing Education Services will have material on its Talented and Gifted Program for children.

Gubernatorial candidate wants salary cap

BY HEATHER NREDHAM
STAFF WRITER

One of the first things Edward T. Hamilton wants to do when he is elected governor is keep his own salary from getting too high.

Seeking legislation to cap the governor's salary at $90,000 is just one of many things Hamilton, a Troy resident and 1998 Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, wants to do if he is elected governor Nov. 3.

"I want to put our state government on a kosher diet — no more pork," Hamilton said Tuesday, while addressing the Westland Democratic Club.

Hamilton, 55, is a new vehicle and new product launch manager for the Chrysler Corp. He was part of the original team that launched the company's first minivans in the late 1970s. He also is an executive committee member of the Oakland County Democratic Party.

He is married to Silvia, and has two children, Adam, 15, and Krystle, 13. He has lived in Troy for more than 20 years.

He said he wants to apply the cost-cutting strategies he's learned in his 20-plus years experience at Chrysler to make state government more efficient.

He hopes to accomplish that by eliminating the state employees' profit sharing plan unless they eliminate billions of dollars in taxpayers' money wasted annually and by instituting a prison industry to help pay for the state's prisons; the state's second-highest budget item. A prison industry also would help prisoners develop valuable work skills, he said.

"My theme is to push for a low-cost, high-quality compassionate government," Hamilton said.

Hamilton says he is the only conservative Democratic candidate in the governor's race — and represents a choice voters need.

"I consider myself part of the new Democratic coalition," under the new Democratic majority sweeping the country. The new Democrats are "more modern, more pragmatic and less dogmatic," Hamilton said.

"I believe in hard work and family first," he said, though "we're a vanishing breed."

Hamilton claims to be the only high-profile Democratic candidate who supports term limits, something he says is vital to keeping fresh voices in government.

"Too many legislators think it takes 20 years to learn how to be a good legislator," Hamilton said. "It doesn't take 20 years."

Unlike many of his Democratic brethren, Hamilton opposes increasing gas taxes, as well as many other taxes.

Running for office was a logical step for Hamilton, who said he was inspired to take part in politics after volunteering as a youth in a John F. Kennedy election campaign.

"Running for office is the highest form of citizenship," Hamilton said.

His most recent bid for public office was in 1996 for Oakland County executive. Though winner L. Brooks Patterson outspent him by a 100-to-1 margin, Hamilton garnered 200,000 votes — more votes than Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer received in the 1997 election.

This time around, his main Democratic competitor, Larry Owen, has backing by the UAW and the Michigan Education Association, the state's teachers' union; Hamilton isn't scared by Owen's big money, though. A recent Detroit News poll shows him to be in a "statistical dead heat" with Owen, he said.

The first chance Michigan voters will have to pick their governor is in the Aug. 4 primary election. To date, Democrats who have filed in the gubernatorial race are Hamilton, Owen and Doug Ross.

Republican incumbent Gov. John Engler also has announced his re-election bid.

Miss Michigan appears at scholarship dinner auction

Miss Michigan 1997, Kimberly Stec of Rochester, will make a special appearance at Madonna University's 10th annual "Around the World Scholarship Dinner Auction."

The auction begins at 5:30 p.m. Friday, April 24 at Burton Manor in Livonia.

Items up for bid include Northwest Airlines tickets to Hawaii and other destinations throughout the continental United States; a seven-day Caribbean cruise; vacations spots in Baden Baden, Germany, and seven days in a villa at the Orange Tree Golf and Country Club in Orlando, Fla.

Numerous collectibles up for bid include a replica of the Olympic Torch and pins; signed sports memorabilia from the Red Wings, Tiger Woods, Ted Williams and Ted Lindsay and a wide selection of new and retired Beanie Babies.

A 1998 Cadillac Catera from Don Massey will be awarded in a raffle. Only 750 raffle tickets will be sold at $200 each.

General admission ticket price is $65 and includes dinner, open bar and the live and silent auction. Gold Inner Circle Seating tickets are $100 and allow special seating near the center stage.

For more information call (734) 432-5588 or 432-5421. Madonna University is located at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Parenting exposition scheduled for Saturday

A parenting exposition, complete with demonstrations, brochures and speakers, will be held 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, March 7, in the Atrium (first floor) of the Wayne County Building.

Open to the public at no charge, the event is sponsored by Wayne County Commissioner Jewel Ware, D-Detroit. Commissioner Ware also introduced a proclamation declaring March as "Parenting Awareness Month" in the county.

"We're all so busy now and we've got to make time for our children. We need advice and tips on how we can give our children quality time and the guidance to make them tomorrow's leaders," Ware said.

Several service agencies and vendors will be speaking and distributing information throughout the program. Refreshments also will be served.

The Wayne County Commission Building is located at 600 Randolph Street in downtown Detroit. For more information, contact Ware at (313)224-0916.

Local host families are needed for summer exchange students

ASSE International Student Exchange Programs is seeking local host families for boys and girls from Scandinavia, France, Germany, Great Britain, Holland, Italy, Poland, Portugal, Spain, Switzerland, Czech Republic, Slovakia, Japan, Thailand, Mexico, Brazil, China, Taiwan, the Newly Independent States of the Soviet Union, Canada, Australia and New Zealand, 15 to 18 years of age, coming to this area for the upcoming high school year.

Exchange students speak English, are bright, curious and anxious to learn about this country by living with their newly adopted host family.

Students are sponsored by ASSE, a non-profit, public benefit organization, founded by the Swedish Ministry of Education.

The exchange students arrive from their home country shortly before school begins and return at the end of the school year. Each ASSE student is fully insured, brings his or her own personal spending money and expects to bear his or her share of household responsibilities, and included in normal family activities and lifestyles.

The students are screened and qualified by ASSE. Families may select the youngster of their choice from extensive student applications, family photos and biographical essays. Students and families are encouraged to begin corresponding before a student's arrival.

ASSE is also seeking local high schools students to become ASSE exchange students abroad.

Students should be between 15 and 18 years old and interested in living with a host family, attending school and learning about the lands and people of the countries mentioned above, with the exception of the Newly Independent States of the former Soviet Union.

Students should have a good academic record and a desire to experience another culture and language through living with a warm and giving volunteer family. Academic year and shorter term summer vacation programs are available.

Those interested in obtaining more information about becoming a host family or becoming an exchange student should contact ASSE's local representative, Jessica Stauffer, at (734) 459-7646 or call 1-800-736-1760.

Scholarships offered for study abroad

The Metro-Detroit chapter of American Field Service Intercultural Programs is offering $1,000 in scholarships to students who want to live and study abroad for a year, semester or summer departing in 1998.

AFS is a worldwide, nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting peace through understanding by sponsoring high school student and teacher exchanges.

AFS is the world's most experienced high school student exchange program with over 50 years experience. It is the second largest volunteer organization in the world with over 150,000 volunteers worldwide.

More than 250 colleges and universities recognize the value of the AFS experience through preferential admissions and special scholarship awards.

In addition to traditional summer, semester and yearlong homestay programs, AFS offers intercultural learning opportunities during the summer focusing on the environment and ecology, international community service, language study and adventure programs.

AFS offers semester and year service and university level programs for high school graduates with more than 100 programs from which to choose.

Scholarship awards are based on merit and financial need. Candidates must have at least a 2.8 grade point average on a scale of 4.0 to apply for semester and yearly academic programs, are between 15-18 years of age and be curious about the world around them.

For more information and a catalog, call Ann Steglich at (248) 540-0144 or 1-800-AFS-INFO.

My Health.
 My Needs.
 My Hospital.

"The women's programs at St. Mary Hospital meet all my needs."

My doctor said I needed a few tests, and told me about St. Mary Hospital's new Marian Women's Center. It's close to home, and the staff is committed to keeping women healthy. I found a warm, caring atmosphere designed to help women feel comfortable.

The Center provides education and support programs for women of all ages. Diagnostic testing like mammography, radiology, and ultrasound are also available, as well as a complete breast health clinic.

The Marian Women's Center, adjacent to the new Miracle of Life Maternity Center, provides family services like childbirth education, a breastfeeding program, and even pre- and postnatal exercise classes. We're planning to start a family soon, and all the programs I need are now available close to home.

My mother was interested in the Marian Women's Center menopause support group, which educates women and removes some of the mystery about this time of life.

And, if I want more information about health topics concerning women, I can attend specialized seminars throughout the year.

The Marian Women's Center cares about women. That's why St. Mary Hospital is my hospital.

Scale down SBT, business urges panel

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Don't junk the single business tax. Just scale it down so Michigan is competitive with other states. That's what small business owners told the House Tax Policy Committee in a public hearing earlier this year in Southfield. "The message is that the tax is too high," said committee chair Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti. "There's talk of going to a corporate income tax. But that would require a 16-20 percent rate (to raise the same $2 billion plus in revenue). "Perhaps the SBT is too high. We're grabbing so much now, we'd scare the heck out of everybody (by replacing SBT with a corporate income tax)," said Profit. "It's still a barrier to growth," said Dan Nemus, a certified public accountant in Bingham Farms representing the Small Business Association of Michigan. "Firms have a strong incentive to suppress sales and earnings." Nemus urged the panel to eliminate health care expenses

HomeTown VP wraps up lively newspaper career

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

His turning point came when he was a 26-year-old Chicago cab driver sitting in a Halsted Street bar with a pal. The pal advised John Reddy to go to college.

"I'll be 30 by the time I get out!" Reddy objected.

"You're going to be 30 anyway," said the friend, and that settled it.

"I went down to the University of Illinois at Navy Pier. I majored in journalism," Reddy recalled. "Why? I had a difficult time expressing my opinion and communicating with people. I truly enjoyed knowledgeable and stimulating people. I would have to offer them something of interest in return."

At 30, married and with one child, Reddy earned a U-I degree and got a job on the Sterling (Ill.) Daily Gazette. The one-time Navy carpenter and cab driver had launched his career in people-oriented journalism.

The working part of his career will end March 31 when he retires at 65 as vice president for editorial of HomeTown Communications Network Inc., the company that owns this and more than 60 other weekly and semi-weekly newspapers in Michigan, Ohio and northern Kentucky. He'll spend the month of March breaking in his successor, Jeanne Towar.

Why readers griped

Reddy wanted to make a difference. Many agree he has.

"I used to get the bulldog edition of the Chicago Tribune. People always bitched about papers," he said.

"Many Republicans thought that flaming young liberals were running the (suburban) papers. My view was that anyone has a right to have a position fairly and well represented."

Rich Perlberg, now general manager of the HomeTown Newspapers headquartered in Howell, was among many who absorbed Reddy's message. "There is one overriding dogma of John's," said Perlberg. "When someone is upset about our news coverage or editorial position of a particular issue, we should be able to ask, 'Was your position fairly and accurately reported in the paper?'"

"If we are doing our jobs, the answer has to be 'yes.' And most fair-minded people, even if they disagree with our overall coverage, will eventually concede that we have done our job if we have hit that standard," Perlberg said.

Next, Reddy became a community editor in Palatine, Ill., for Paddock newspapers in the northwestern Chicago suburbs, then moved to the Chicago Sun-Times' suburban and city desks. He was impressed by the fact that the woman who interviewed him for the job had helped make journalism - and film - history by spotting a cleaning woman's classified ad that said "Call Northside 777." The paper's investigation freed an innocent man from prison.

"I came here (to Michigan) 30 years ago this month. The National Newspaper Association put my resume in the hands of Henry Hogan (then publisher of the Birmingham Eccentric). By then I had changed my mind about looking for a new job, but Hank said, 'Don't say no until you come over and look.'

"Joan (his wife) encouraged me. We drove over here with four kids and looked. There was a sense of community here.

"That was the time of the fair housing ordinance fight (following the 1987 Detroit riot). I told him he had to support the fair housing ordinance or I wouldn't come. Hank was very supportive of the editorial department and of me as an editor.

"I was managing editor. We created the Troy edition, then West Bloomfield, Rochester and Southfield. I was managing editor while all that went on.

"Then Hank bought paper in Cincinnati and needed someone to run it. I was there from 1972 to '75," he said.

Reddy deprecates his own work as a general manager, but others don't. HomeTown's Perlberg recalls how Reddy stepped in as manager of that group of six weeklies after Rollie Peterson's sudden death on Christmas Eve of 1989.

"Rollie's death was traumatic," Perlberg said. "John walked into a shell-shocked division and provided the leadership and guidance necessary to keep operations stable.

"He wisely let those with experience lead the way when appropriate, but he was far from a caretaker GM. He implemented marketing strategies and directed operations. Then he helped the new GM during a 90-day transition period and gracefully stepped aside."

But that's getting ahead of the saga.

Heading the merger

In 1975 Reddy was brought back from Cincinnati to be executive editor of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, formed a year earlier by the merger of Hogan's Eccentric group with Phil Power's Observer group.

"When John was in charge," said board chair Power, "the company's newspapers won more state and national awards for editorial excellence than any other group of community newspaper in the country."

Reddy likes to tell reporters - young and old - to observe people browsing in a bookstore. "If they see dialogue, they'll read it. If they see long, gray paragraphs of prose, they'll skip it or put it down. Dialogue is people." The moral: Use direct quotes to tell a good news story.

Another lesson is to make use of graphics - charts, pictures and graphs that tell the "what" of a story. "That frees up the writer to explain the why and how and the implications."

While media critics often deplore USA Today as "McPaper," Reddy praises it for use of charts. "Charts were slow to come into newspapers because no one is driving it. It takes senior management and well-trained young professionals to drive it."

So part of the business is listening to people.

More than boosters

And part is building communities.

"We're building communities, not as blind boosters (a 19th century term used on papers that flacked for real estate interests), because they suffer from failed credibility.

"There's an implied social contract. We have to fulfill our readers' expectations," he said, only hinting at the heck an editor will catch if he or she fails to display changes in the trash pickup schedule on page 1 or the rites of passage such as marriages and deaths.

The reward: "They (readers) will give you license to talk about the prickly things that disturb their consciences and make them uncomfortable. The single most important distinguishing characteristic is its editorial page and its editorial voice."

Oh, and a good paper should be "predictably unpredictable."

At O&E Reddy moved up the ladder to general manager (1977-82) and corporate vice president for editorial (since 1982), with fill-in stints, as Perlberg noted, managing various divisions.

Reddy is blunt about the sometime adversarial role of editorial and advertising people within newspapers.

"There are not enough good editorial people in senior management. The reason is that they refuse to learn anything about management. The only way you can have a free press is to have an economically sound press.

"There's really a strong need for senior management to have an advocate for the editorial department. It's easier for them (management) to remember that if it's personified in their midst.

"I'm not sure how well I did, but at least they had to look at me before they walked all over the editorial department."

Power is sure Reddy did well. "He used the position as a bully pulpit from which to preach the special role and notable successes of community journalism.

"We will miss his constant wise counsel and his unfailing attention to making our craft as community journalists better," Power said.

A playwright?

And soon retirement. "I saw a couple of people retire, and they were like fish out of water. That's not going to happen to me," vowed Reddy, relating how he arose at 4 that morning to practice on the piano (Albeniz and Chopin).

"Joan has always wanted to go on an archeological dig. I can sit and do water colors while she does that.

"My goal is to write some plays. It's an extension of (a reporter's use) of quotes. There needs to be a chemistry between the playwright, the director and actors. You have to construct it so they (director and actors) have some ownership in a way that won't distort it."

So far he has written three vignettes, but details must wait until opening night.

There was something he failed to appreciate as an 18-year-old in the Navy that he has been correcting - foreign travel. This year he and Joan will see the cave art in Spain.

After studying Spanish in high school and French in college, he is working on Chinese. "I'm listening to tapes. If anybody wants to help me talk Chinese, I'd be glad to hear from them," he said.

It's more than just knowing the words. It's understanding how other people think because, said Reddy:

"I truly enjoy knowledgeable and stimulating people."

from the SBT base. "Taxing the health care benefit is bad public policy and bad tax policy."

Nemus also asked that the threshold for paying SBT be raised from the current $250,000 to $500,000 of business earnings. "And a simplified form would help," he added.

Profit appeared to like that idea, noting that 66 percent of those who pay SBT produce less than 1 percent of its revenue. "A whole lot of effort for so little return makes no sense," the chairman said.

Raise threshold

"Small business is the economic engine of growth," said Linda Jolicœur, a member of the Farmington Chamber of Commerce. "Many small businesses are above the $250,000 threshold. A more appropriate method for small business is profit."

"SBT is the closest thing to a value-added tax," said Harvey Bronstein, who teaches small business courses at Oakland Community College. "No other state has a VAT, nor does the federal government.

"It's a stable source of revenue, but it has disadvantages. If you hire someone or give them a raise, you have to pay added SBT. The biggest negative is that you can be taxed at a significant amount in a year after you've lost money in the previous years.

"And it's unfair to small and medium Michigan businesses that operate in Ohio and Indiana."

SBT, passed in 1975, replaced eight other taxes, including the corporate income tax, corporate franchise fee, savings and loan tax, and domestic insurance company tax. It taxes 2.3 percent of a business' value added - basically payroll and earnings. There's also an alternative profits tax of 2 percent a business can elect to pay.

But because of SBT's complexity, many small businesses must hire an accountant, who must figure the firm's tax two ways - at the employer's expense, said Harry D. Pevos, a Southfield CPA.

Pevos, representing the Detroit Regional Chamber of Commerce, called for updating some of SBT's provisions to account for inflation.

Burden lighter

Charles Owens, Lansing spokesman for the 23,000-member National Federation of Independent Business, praised lawmakers for recent years' steps to lighten the SBT burden to 4 percent rates," Owens said.

"In the past, our polls showed 'Yes, repeal it.' Now it's a guarded 'Be careful what you get.' They (NFIB members) want a look at what replaces it. There are a lot of mixed signals in the small business community."

Democrat Profit praised Republican Gov. John Engler on the SBT issue. "This governor has been very good in saying we don't have to raise revenue to match spending. This governor has been very good to taxpayers. "But we're still not in great shape. We're still third or fourth highest in the country on the business tax burden."

City's future Westland needs clear plan

So far this year, proposed city projects are popping up like plants in spring in Westland. A proposed new city hall and recreation center, and a plan to spruce up aging commercial corridors along Ford and south Wayne roads, are some of the projects under discussion.

While we don't want to prune anyone's plans to improve the city, we do want to urge caution in pursuing all these projects at once unless there is clear direction for the city. We also urge the city to first attend to problems, such as basement flooding from sewers, that leave longtime citizens pleading for help.

Under a proposed extension of an existing Tax Increment Finance Authority district, a plan is being discussed to build a new city hall and an upscale recreation center. Those plans could also include a district court and a new police station as part of a new city government complex.

It's too early to say whether the use of TIFA money for a city hall and a recreation center or other city projects is a good or a bad idea, but new buildings may not improve the city's image if problems such as basement flooding begin to drive longtime residents out.

Also, the proposal could involve moving city buildings to another site in the city, leaving the current city hall site for other purposes. If this move is made, we hope there are concrete plans for the current city hall and Bailey recreation sites. As for the idea of building a new courthouse and a new police station, there are many factors to consider including cost and the need to have those two buildings located near each other.

Meanwhile, the DDA plan to make improvements along the three-mile stretch of Ford Road and the southern strip of Wayne Road from Ford to Glenwood could include landscaping, low-rise brick walls, banners, new signs, trees and street lights.

Flood victims are sure to question all these new plans when the city hasn't even found ways to keep sewer water out of basements during heavy rains. The city may need to rethink its priorities.

While these commercial areas need attention, it also leaves us wondering how the DDA plans will fit in with the commercial corridors that aren't in that district. Will one part of the city begin to feel like a separate entity from nearby commercial corridors in the city such as Westland Shopping Center? Is there any way to bring some unity to other commercial corridors in the city?

We are also left wondering where plans to upgrade fire stations and other public safety issues fit in with the city's plans. We realize special taxing districts are set up to pay for certain areas and projects and can't be used in other areas. But is any planning on the horizon for Westland's public safety improvements?

It's refreshing to see that so many seeds for improvement are being planted in Westland. With planning and cooperation all these plans can come together in a way that will enhance the city.

We just hope our city officials are taking a look at the big picture. If they ignore the problems of neighborhoods, they may face a population loss that will leave fewer people to enjoy the new Westland.

With no winter we can't spring

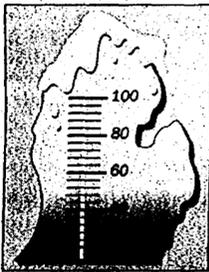

Snow blowers are sitting unused in western Wayne County garages next to snow shovels, skis, snowshoes, all gathering dust for the lack of use during our disturbingly warm winter.

Blame it on El Nino, a term coined by Peruvian fishermen to describe a change in ocean circulation off the coastline that leads to poor fishing.

While the Peruvians have had some fishless days, the warm, wet weather in the Midwest has made us forget what winter in Michigan usually means. Gone are the bone-chilling temperatures, north winds out of Hudson Bay and snow up to our knees.

Some may be enjoying the balmy March. But others are waiting for the other snow-storm to drop.

Michigan residents proudly endure our winters, trudging through snowdrifts in our boots and four-wheel drive vehicles. We even turn winter into a sport. Anglers trudge onto windswept lakes, snowmobilers race along two-track roads, skiers schuss down hills, and snowshoers walk quiet back-country landscapes.

Turning suffering through winter into a sport is almost a spiritual experience for us Michigan residents. It builds character. We're not wimps like those folks in Atlanta who think a winter storm is 2 inches of snow.

That's why a mild winter produces some guilt in us. We're supposed to be suffering during January and February. We should be staring at the ice and snow building up on the roof and worrying it's doing some damage. Instead, we're washing our cars outside with the hose.

It's just not right. We all know this. We're going to pay for this, we know it in our hearts. Winter will arrive, finally, in April and will last through June. It'll warm up for a few days in July, we'll plant a few flowers and they'll freeze solid in August.

We've got a few weeks yet to have a winter. Bring on the snow, and some cold weather. It'll help us get rid of our guilt. Only then after some true winter suffering can we fully enjoy spring when it arrives.

Governor's visit success

Thanks to our director, Sylvia (Kozorosky-Wiacek), and her staff, the visit of our Gov. John Engler, and Sen. Loren Bennett, was a great accomplishment for our senior citizens and our city of Westland. Engler seemed impressed and answered many questions, even staying overtime.

The luncheon put on by Bennett and his staff was great. Looks like our city is getting popular with our President Bill Clinton and Engler, and the many visits of Bennett.

Bennett's assistant, Bill Case, attends our Commission on Aging meetings and we appreciate Bill. A big thank you to all who in any way helped to make this possible.

As a community, you have entrusted us with your children and now the resources to improve our schools. Since assuming the superintendency and during the many bond presentations, I pledged to you that my administrative team and I will deliver on the promises made. I personally will direct all my energies and abilities toward continuing to enhance the reputation and quality of education of this fine district. Working together we can provide the very best possible educational programs for all students within the Wayne-Westland Community School District.

Special place

After reading your article about the family of Dane Jardine who keeps finding items placed on the grave gone or destroyed, I just had to pass on my way of dealing with this type of problem.

I set up a corner of my yard with a favorite flower, token of special feelings and a bench of some sort. This way, I can visit whenever I feel the need without the concern of what mess I will find once I arrive at the cemetery.

I have shared this suggestion with many friends and they feel it a blessing.

If you feel it may give the family some peace, please pass this suggestion on to them.

Thanks for your support

On behalf of the Wayne-Westland Community Schools Board of Education, administration, students and staff, I would like to take this opportunity to express my deep sense of gratitude to the residents of this community who supported our Feb. 17 bond issue.

Your continued support will provide our students with the educational opportunities they deserve and a learning atmosphere necessary to increase achievement. The long-term impact of this successful bond issue will allow the district to effectively upgrade our educational programs and enhance our entire school community. The amount of pride this community has in our students and schools is clearly evident, and your role as citizens is extremely important to the Wayne-Westland team.

Please be assured that I am looking for:

Wrongheaded policies

Bill Clinton's socialist policies are much more damaging and much more to be feared than his naughty, nasty miscreant behavior. He wants taxpayers to pay for the child care two non-stay-at-home parents would like to have on the cheap. When mom and dad want a higher standard of living and suggest their neighbors pay for their children's keep, we have more than a right to say "no." We should insist that one parent stays home or they pay in full for any care given their offspring.

When Clinton maintains that allowing 55- to 62-year-old seniors to be included in the Medicare program will not add one dime to the deficit, all he is saying is that the programmers of such legislation will get to the trough before the other pig-barrelers. The deficit is determined by subtracting revenues from total expenditures. No one expense or expenditure accounts for the deficit.

POINTS OF VIEW

Peggy's journey toward death shows true courage

BY DAVID BEVINGTON
GUEST COLUMNIST

If you want someone to change the topic quickly, just talk about death. But there are some people who are positive even about this subject. One of them is a resident of Angela Hospice, Peggy. The story you are about to read concerns her.

Peggy was born in New Jersey, but her parents moved to the Detroit area when her father needed employment. What better place for a tool and die worker?

Peggy grew up in Michigan. She did secretarial work in various offices of Tamaroff Buick. When asked about her admission to the care unit of Angela Hospice, she said, "I left Tamaroff Buick on Friday and entered Angela Hospice on Monday." Peggy has been a patient in the unit for more than seven weeks.

When probed about her favorite activities, Peggy said she enjoyed photography, making porcelain dolls and collecting anything that related to Disney. Her room was filled with Disney memorabilia. Things have been thinning out a bit, though, since she has been giving things away.

Some people think of the services offered by hospice as a "last-ditch effort." Frankly, they wait too long to get the services provided because they don't understand the benefits that are available, including pain management, medication, nursing care and spiritual care.

Peggy didn't wait. She entered Angela Hospice Care Center with a positive attitude and a big smile on her face. She thought of life, not death. Her positive attitude and her affirmation of life have helped her cope with her impending death.

When asked about the care she received, she said without hesitation, "It felt like home the first night." It had not been easy for her to deal with her deteriorating physical condition. She shared her anxiety prior to her admission to the hospice program. How did she deal with her feelings? She talked freely to staff and friends.

"What about the staff?" I asked Peggy. She said she was impressed with the positive attitude of those who cared for her. Both physical and spiritual care had been offered. Her needs were being met. An example was her lack of appetite. The staff asked her what foods she really enjoyed, then made those foods available.

Peggy remarked that hospice was different from staying in a hospital. In hospice, she received care according to her needs.

As chaplain, I know how despondent and frightened some patients become at the prospect of their death. The unknown terrifies them. "Are you frightened, Peggy?" I asked her. "Not really," she replied. "I've enjoyed life ... and I am so grateful that I have been free of pain." Pain management is one of the "plus" factors of hospice care.

Peggy has done many of the things people put off until retirement. She has traveled to Paris and Japan to visit the Disney facilities. She has studied Japanese. She has blessed the lives of her friends. Her years of employment brought satisfaction.

Getting back to her feelings, I said, "Peggy, how did you react when you were told you were terminally ill?"

She said that at first she could not deal with her feelings. She withdrew into herself. She was angry, and she did not share her problems with anyone.

A fringe benefit of hospice was the freedom to visit with her friends, and the opportunity to share her feelings with a caring staff.

My final question was, "What impresses you about this care unit?" Without hesitation she said, "I have complete comfort here." In a nutshell she shared the philosophy of the hospice program, to help persons face their death, to die in dignity, free of pain, to die in the presence of someone who cares ... not alone or in pain, but in the best of circumstances.

If you are in a situation where you need this kind of help, give Angela Hospice a call at (734) 464-7810.

David Bevington is a chaplain with Angela Hospice in Livonia. Margaret (Peggy) Mensch died on Feb. 5, following about two months in hospice.

State tax cuts: There's more to them than meets the eye

In an election year, we can expect a governor's budget to be as much a political document as a spending plan. The journalist, however, is under no obligation to make a case for or against incumbent Republican John M. Engler. So here are some random reflections:

■ Engler may indeed beat Democrat Jim Blanchard's job creation record by year's end. Blanchard boasted 600,000 new jobs during his tenure (1983-90). Engler, after seven years, boasted 550,000, and his economic outlook predicts 51,000 more jobs during calendar 1998. That would add up to 601,000 new jobs on his watch.

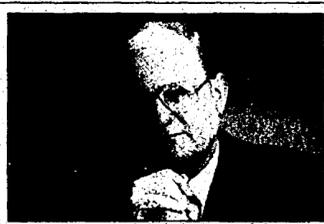

■ Headline on Engler's news release: "FY 99 Budget Reflects Twin Goals of Tax Relief and Spending Priorities." He now counts 25 tax cuts, including some that you won't see until 1999 and one you won't see until 2000 that hasn't been enacted yet. "Tax burden continues to tumble," says the text in Chapter A.

Meanwhile, the fine type in Chapter O gives us the other side of the coin. "Oil and gas regulatory fee increase. Wetlands permitting fee increase. Air quality fees - eliminate sunset. Court fee fund ... Diesel tax increase," the last with this footnote: "FY 98 initiative not yet enacted; passage built into budget assumptions for FY 99."

Sorry, there's no detail about how much new revenue he expects to collect from the fee hikes and diesel fuel tax hike. Just don't be fooled about the tax-cut talk when there are many, many fees that are still governmental revenue.

■ Big winner in Engler's budget, as many media have pointed out, is the Department of Corrections, up 4.2

percent to $1.45 billion. Prison population is 42,000, and the governor expects to expand it by 5,420, or 13 percent, in just four years.

Engler's message concentrates on locking 'em up and throwing away the key: "Now is no time to retreat. If you're serious about getting tough on violent criminals, then you'd better get serious about building the prisons to lock them away," said he.

His data: In 1989, we put away 51 percent of prisoners for violent felonies for an average of 7.2 years. Today, 60 percent are being committed for crimes of violence, and the average sentence minimum sentence is 8.1 years.

Parole is harder to get. In 1991, under the civil service parole board system, inmates had a 54 percent chance of being released after their minimum sentence. Today, their chances have shrunk to 42 percent.

I looked in vain for any mention of English as a second language (Spanish-speaking inmates need this) or more job training (it's practically nonexistent). Remember, most of these guys and gals will be back on the streets at some time, even if Engler wins a third term.

■ State elected officials had little to applaud. Engler's budget proposes 0.5

percent for the executive office (his or his successor's), 0.5 for the Legislature and 0.4 for the judiciary. This is in an era where his economic forecasters see 2.3 percent inflation.

■ Overall, Engler's general fund is up 18.5 percent since fiscal 1992, the first one for which he was totally responsible, to $8.77 billion.

■ Total state spending, which includes federal aid and non-discretionary funds like transportation and school aid, has soared more than 54 percent, from $20.7 billion to $32 billion. The transportation fund is fed by our new 4-cents-a-gallon fuel tax. The school fund is fed by our increased 6 percent sales tax.

Those tax cuts aren't all they seem, are they?

Tests make sense

The debate over our schools keeps taking fascinating twists and turns.

Released last week, the results from the most comprehensive and rigorous international comparison of performance in science and math revealed that American high school seniors score among the industrial world's worst. "This study has burst another myth," said Michigan State's William H. Schmidt, who coordinated the American part of the study. "Our best students in mathematics and science are simply not world class."

In January, the Detroit Free Press published an enormous series on the MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) tests that have become the main basis for comparing student achievement between schools. Relying on complex regression analysis, the Free Press concluded that simply comparing numerical scores between districts was inherently unfair because other factors - the number of single parent households, unemployment, students eligible for free lunch and school per pupil revenue - had a big effect on the results.

Quite possibly in response, The Detroit News last month ran its own analysis of the effects MEAP test results of per pupil spending, hiring more teachers and raising teachers' salaries. The News concluded that the relationship was "minimal," observing that schools scoring "in the top half statewide on MEAP exams and HSPTs differed little from schools that scored in the lower half."

So a House Education subcommittee now holding hearings on the MEAP test has a lot to think about.

First question: Is the test as now designed a useful indicator of how our kids are doing in school?

Not entirely, says Ernest Bauer, a consultant for Oakland Schools, the countywide intermediate service agency. There appears to be a disconnect between the scores kids actually get on the MEAP and the scores required to get a "proficient" ranking.

"The latest fourth-grade reading results showed that just under 50 percent of the students were 'satisfactory,'" Bauer told the subcommittee. "Most educators and parents are amazed that the most common score in the state for those same fourth-grade students on the narrative reading test is 19 out of 20 possible."

Second question: Can the tests be improved? Sure.

When the Legislature passed laws last year on the MEAP, it agreed on a bunch of bipartisan improvements. Time to take the test, for example, was cut from 505 to 370 minutes in 1998. The hated labels of results - "proficient,"

PHILIP POWER

"novice" and "not yet novice" - will be scrapped. New labels, to be set by the State Board of Education next month, will appear on transcripts, not diplomas.

Fine-tuning is required. That's why the Legislature keeps holding hearings on testing.

Third question: Other than the State Board of Education, a few in the Legislature, many school people who administer and are evaluated by test results, does anybody care?

Despite concerns about form and content, test results are turning out to be pretty good indicators of how well students perform in their freshman year at college, according Bauer.

Art Ellis, state superintendent of public instruction, told the State Board last year that it will take up to five years for employers and college admissions officers to ask consistently to see MEAP scores on student transcripts. That sounds about right, given how slowly employers and colleges react to change.

The main point, however, is that students are for the first time being tested to measure what they learn in school. The tests are not perfect, but they are being improved. They are setting a de facto standard of achievement that eventually will be adopted by employers and higher education institutions.

This is the way we will improve our education system. Not by a silver bullet, but row by row, classroom by classroom, school by school.

Liberals can grumble that there are lots of factors other than school effectiveness that affect MEAP scores. Conservatives can complain there doesn't seem to be much correlation between the amount spent on schools and what kids learn. Educators can pick holes at any test design.

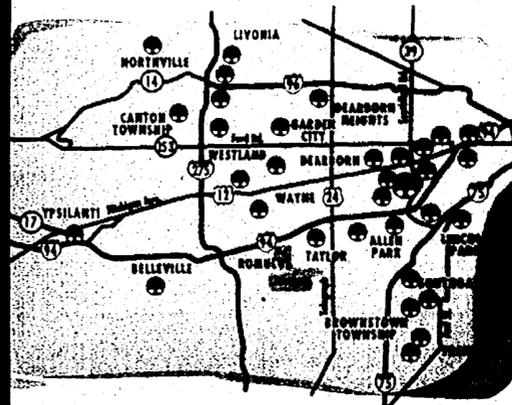

But at the end of the day, the idea of testing kids to see what they are learning is an idea whose time has come and is becoming solidly entrenched in the realities of our schools.

That is the good news coming out of the debate over schooling in Michigan.

Dems chide CMU over report on charter schools

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Oleeful Democrats said "I told you so" as the House Education Committee took up the auditor general's scathing report on how Central Michigan University weakly supervised its public school academies.

"It greatly concerns me," said Rep. James Agee, D-Muskegon, "that CMU claimed the attorney-client privilege 34 times (in holding back documents from the auditors). The people have a right to know. The attorney-client privilege is OK if there's pending litigation (lawsuits), but this is totally ridiculous."

Michael Mayhew of the auditor's staff said using the attorney-client privilege was rare.

Richard Stafford, the administrator who supervised the CMU audit, begged off answering what might be in the hidden papers because "we can't say what the documents contain if we did not see them."

Agee, a former school superintendent, asked about a reported

March 1997 meeting between CMU officials and Art Ellis, state superintendent of public instruction, to discuss the responsibilities of chartering bodies such as universities. "We don't know what happened. Nothing came of it," Agee complained.

The audit report said only that "there had not been any substantive issues resolved regarding oversight."

Public school academies (PSAs), commonly called "charter schools," were part of the 1994 school reform package. PSAs were pushed by Gov. John Engler, many legislative Republicans and conservative ideologues such as the Mackinac Center.

Most Democrats and some Republicans supported the bills only grudgingly, fearing they would be a tool for funneling state aid to former private and parochial schools. They also feared chartering authorities would fail to keep a close eye on the fledgling PSAs.

"Was CMU invited to this meeting?" asked Rep. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester.

"A CMU representative responded, but then she left the job," replied committee chair Sharon Gire, D-Macomb County.

Affects classroom

Rep. Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, sought to defend PSAs by suggesting they were being judged by standards different from public schools. "The charter schools were fighting for survival against the whole public school establishment," said Cropsey, whose brother is headmaster of Noah Webster Academy, a school denied PSA status.

"It (the audit) didn't get to the heart of what students were learning," Cropsey said.

Two Democrats contradicted him.

Rep. Bob Brown, D-Dearborn Heights, pointed to audit findings that:

■ "The PSAs had not obtained criminal records checks for some employees. Also, eight PSAs did not hire some staff as conditional employees pending the results of criminal records checks," as required by state law.

■ Eight PSAs employed individuals to teach who did not have certificates or permits to teach.

■ One PSA "had students with special education needs who had been attending the PS for more than one year without special education services' being provided."

The audit said CMU needed to improve its monitoring of PSA boards for "potential conflicts of interest" — such as being employed by the PSA or doing business with the PSA. CMU "had not timely identified potential conflicts of interest for nine board members."

Field reps missing

"Two PSA boards did not appoint an individual to post meeting dates as required by ... the Open Meetings Act," the audit went on. Seven of 10 failed to file all their board minutes, the official records of board actions.

Asked how CMU officials responded to the auditors' criticisms, Stafford replied, "They took it seriously. They were quite concerned."

But Rep. Rose Bogardus, D-Davison, disagreed sharply. "Here's how CMU responded in a news release — 'it was about file cabinets, paperwork and documentation, not about performance of schools.' CMU is not taking it seriously," she said.

Brown was also bothered that 12 of 13 CMU field representatives did not report attending the required number of PSA board meetings. "Liaisons are a very good control device between management and production," said Brown. "From what I read, these people weren't doing their jobs. They weren't showing up."

Stafford replied that the issue for CMU was whether to use university employees or independent contractors as field reps. "It's a management prerogative — whether to use centralized or decentralized reps," he said.

The elected State Board of Education was prohibited from issuing charters. So far, 68 of the 78 authorized charters have been issued by universities; 87 of the 68 were issued by universities whose boards were appointed by the governor.

In a 1997 executive order, Engler stripped the State Board of Education of supervisory authority over PSAs. State Board members are considering ways the department could oversee PSAs.

CMU has issued 40 of the 68 university-granted charters. Among nearby CMU-chartered PSAs are:

In suburban Wayne County — Academy of Detroit Westland, Thomas Gist Academy in Westland, Michigan Automotive Academy in Taylor, Summit Academy in Taylor.

Nature programs

County parks plan special events

Wayne County parks hosts a series of special events this month including programs for children and a special evening session on birds of prey.

On Wednesday mornings in March programs designed for children ages 3 and 4 will focus on various topics each week, such as animal homes and tracks, birds, reptiles, outdoor hikes and scavenger hunts. The program are held in the Nankin Mills Interpretive Center.

Crafts, games and stories ensure fun for all as children and parents explore the outdoor world. Participating children should be dressed for the outdoors for a part of the program each week.

Parents are not required to stay, but are welcome to if they wish.

The program fee is $20 for all four sessions.

On Friday, March 21 nature lovers are invited to spend an evening at Nankin Mills Interpretive Center to learn about night time birds of prey — the owls.

An indoor discussion is set for 7 p.m. in the nature center. Afterward, the group will drive to the Koppernick section of Holliday Forest and Wildlife Preserve in Canton Township and engage some of the owls "in conversation." The program will end at about 9:30 p.m.

Fee is $1 per participant and the program is best suited for ages 8 to adult.

Participants should dress appropriately for a night hike and can bring flashlights if they wish.

Nankin Mills Interpretive Center is located on Hines Drive just east of Ann Arbor Trail in Westland. Parking is available off of Hines Drive.

For information, contact the Nankin Mills center at (734) 261-1850.

Rivers will host tax forum

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor, will be sponsoring a public forum on "Tax Reform: For Better or Worse?" on Saturday, March 7 from 1 to 4 p.m. in the College Theater of the Literature, Arts and Sciences building at Washtenaw Community College, 4800 E. Huron River Drive in Ann Arbor.

Rivers has invited several guest speakers to discuss proposed changes in the tax code, including the flat tax, the national sales tax and the constitutional issues surrounding taxation. Guest speakers include Professor Gary Wolfram of Hillsdale College, Professor Kyle D. Logue of the University of Michigan Law School, Howard Mason of Citizens for an Alternative

Tax System, and Donald Lubick, assistant secretary of the U.S. Treasury for Tax Policy.

There will be ample time for questions and comments from the audience after the discussion.

For information, contact Rivers' district offices in Ann Arbor (734) 741-4210 or Wayne (734) 722-1411.

Secretary of state mobile unit in Livonia

The mobile branch office of the Secretary of State will visit Livonia on Tuesday, March 17.

The branch office is scheduled to be at the Farmer Jack supermarket at 28107 Eight Mile from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to give branch office services to residents.

Those services include driver's license renewal, change of address on licenses, plates and titles for vehicles, voter registration and information on becoming an organ and tissue donor.

"Customer service is the operative phase of my administration and the mobile branch office has been on the road providing full branch offices services to residents across the state," said Candice Miller, secretary of state. "I am pleased the mobile branch office can be in Wayne."

Since its unveiling last August, the mobile branch office has served thousands of customers at senior events, fairs, exhibitions, and in towns, cities and villages across the state.

How to build kids' positive relationships

Your two young children are in the family room arguing over the TV remote control and your angry teen is laying on her bunk bed pleading for her own "space." Does this sound familiar?

The challenge of building healthy sibling relationships in your home may seem daunting at times. But with a little advice, you can resolve some chronic sibling problems that seem incurable.

Here's a list of tips to help you encourage and develop positive sibling relationships in your own family:

Tip No. 1 - Don't share???

Allow children to have special items and space they do not have to share, as well as community property. Set up clear rules about respecting each other's boundaries and property to alleviate conflict and "forced" sharing.

With rules clearly established, your children may be more likely to share popular items willingly, without your intervening.

Tip No. 2 - Suggest chore time!

Assign activities that encourage cooperation. Believe it or not, household chores work well and teach responsibility. Other activities that help siblings bond include making a birthday breakfast for a parent, helping with yard work, baking cookies or putting away toys.

Recognize how well the activity went and tell your children that you're proud of the way they interacted together.

Tip No. 3 - Watch and wait.

Children need to practice resolving disagreements on their own. To begin this process, you may need to show children how to cool down and explain what they feel happened.

After siblings air their differences, help them brainstorm solutions or ways to avoid the problem from happening again. Eventually, children will be able to practice these skills on their own, and, much to your relief, you won't have to play "the judge."

Tip No. 4 - Call to order.

Regular family meetings allow children to air concerns and conflicts before resentment or hurt feelings build between siblings. Children can be responsible for setting up agendas or leading meetings. This is a great time to applaud achievements too.

Tip No. 5 - Celebrate individuality.

Children are sensitive to sibling differences, so it's important to appreciate and acknowledge each child's unique approach to life. "Fair" doesn't necessarily mean giving children the exact same clothes, toys or attention. Spend equal, but separate, periods of time alone with each child, dedicated to doing activities that he or she enjoys and that celebrate individual interests and strengths.

Tip No. 6 - Tag along?

To help older siblings feel less burdened and resentful of younger siblings, allow older children a choice in how and when they help with younger ones. Discuss the reasons why younger siblings want to tag along.

It's important that older children understand the younger sibling's admiration. Even when a new baby is brought home, point out how the baby watches and imitates older children.

Tip No. 7 - Have fun.

Have fun as a family. Take vacations together for a change of pace and to remove the distractions of home and friends. Allow children to take turns choosing your vacation destination, or where to go for family outings or dinner out.

Also, celebrate each other's accomplishments, big and small. Find ways to enjoy each other and express pride in your children. When children feel good about themselves, they can feel good about others.

Tip No. 8 - Pass out privileges!

Give your children privileges that involve cooperation. Allow them to walk to the corner store together

50 years later, he's still hooked on scouting

■ Fifty years after learning them, J. Kenneth Bourgon still follows the scouting rules - "trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent."

The lives that J. Kenneth Bourgon has influenced in the 50 years he's been in scouting could fill a small city. And as those boys mature, they recognize his selfless dedication.

For instance, Paul Flohr, a 17-year-old Livonia Stevenson High School senior, remains awed by Bourgon's devotion to scouting.

"He's a man who cares about many and does all that he can to bring out the best in people," Flohr said. "Most people really appreciate all the time he donates to help out everybody."

Bourgon has made a similar impact on adults.

He's a very inspirational person, according to Bill McCarley, assistant scoutmaster and Eagle Scout coordinator for Troop 782.

"Someone said at a dinner that was held in his honor recently that he not only inspires boys, but inspires the leaders," McCarley said. "He's nurturing and he has a set of rules and guidelines and tenets set out by Boy Scouts that dictate how he operates the scout group."

In fact, Bourgon lives his life by those same rules, to be "trustworthy, loyal, helpful, friendly, courteous, kind, obedient, cheerful, thrifty, brave, clean and reverent," McCarley said.

While Bourgon has been scoutmaster for Troop 782 out of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Livonia, there have been an amazing 150 scouts who have reached Eagle Scout, the highest rank in Boy Scouting. Only 2 percent of scouts in the country become Eagle Scout. Bourgon, 59, defers some of the credit.

"We have lots and lots of adults who are willing to donate their time and expertise to provide a program that has captured the kids' interest," he said. "They stay because there are always fun things to do. That's what makes a great program, the people who are around me."

Starting young

Bourgon's own experience with scouting began when he was age 9 and a member of Livonia's first Cub Scout Pack RG1, which stood for An Inspiration: Involved with Boy Troop 782 since 1970, J. Kenneth Bourgon's legacy of leadership is being continued through a scouting fund established in his name at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Livonia.

Rosedale Gardens. His family moved to Livonia from Detroit in 1945 and except for his time at the University of Notre Dame, Bourgon has lived his life in the city ever since.

Livonia was a rural community during the 1940s, and there really weren't any organized activities young people could do. And like now, scouting offered opportunities.

"In those days there were 7,000 people in Livonia," he said. "It's what kids I hung around with did. There was absolutely nothing to do. By joining scouts, you went camping and sometimes that meant being by a lake and you could go swimming. And that was great fun."

"There was no place in Livonia, other than gravel pits to go swimming."

As a Boy Scout, Bourgon earned his Eagle Scout rank and went on to work at a Boy Scout summer camp for 12 years.

"I wanted to be a teacher and I thought that would help me working with kids," Bourgon explained.

That dream came true, too. He worked as a teacher at Livonia's Bentley and Franklin High Schools and went on to become director of student activities at Franklin. He became assistant principal at Franklin and Churchill High Schools and currently at Stevenson High.

"My wife (Ellen) and I decided that there really wasn't a better place to live when I got out of college," he said. "We raised five youngsters in Livonia and they all graduated from Stevenson."

Even while he was in college, Bourgon worked as scoutmaster of a Boy Scout troop in South Bend. Back in Michigan he began working with Troop 782 in 1970.

Many experiences

His residence may have remained the same, but his passport and travel experience was always changing.

He's taken his troop to Europe and tries to provide the scouts with as many opportunities as possible.

"For my three boys in Boy Scouting, it meant they got to have worthwhile relationships with a whole group of other men in addition to me and I thought that was worthwhile," Bourgon said. "The kids got to travel all over the United States. They learned all kinds of things about leadership and flying, white water rafting, snorkeling, sailing, canoeing and backpacking in New Mexico."

"We take some kind of trip like that every spring - New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Nashville and Huntsville, Ala."

Even though his children are no longer in the troop, Bourgon continues to donate his time and energy. Last summer, his troop took 70 boys and fathers to New Mexico.

"Sometimes, it's every bit as wonderful for the fathers as the boys," he

Good camping: It wasn't quite weird science, but the Wayne-Westland Day Camp Becca Curtis (left) organized for her Gold Award project let Junior Scouts and Brownies earn different badges. Tommi-Jean Mason kept a scrapbook of her project, a Bible day camp she organized for her church, Westland Christian Union.

Day camps become award-winning projects

Two local girls are poised to receive the highest honor bestowed by Girl Scouting.

Huron Valley Girl Scout Council members Becca Curtis, a John Glenn High School senior, and Tommi-Jean Mason, a 1997 John Glenn graduate, will find out if they earned Gold Awards during a ceremony May 11 at Washtenaw Community College.

The Gold Award is the highest award given to girls in Girl Scouting.

"It is the equivalent of the Boy Scouts' Eagle Award; it represents the highest achievement that a girl can reach as a Girl Scout," Charlotte F. Luttrell, HVSC's public relations manager. "This is a culmination of all their years of Girl Scouting. The Gold Award project must be a significant community service project that reaches out beyond the Girl Scout circle."

Curtis and Mason, both of whom finished their projects in the summer of 1997, are called candidates for the Gold Award until their reports are completed and accepted by the Gold Award committee. The volunteers review the project and decide whether or not they will receive the awards.

Similar projects

For her project, Mason, a freshman studying music education at North Central Michigan University in Petoskey, designed a day camp for youngsters at her church, Westland Christian Union Church. The Bible day camp ran from July 28 to Aug. 1, but she began planning it in October 1996.

"My church hasn't had a day camp in many, many years," Mason said. "It was a lot more work than I expected at first. When the actual project came and all the kids came, it was exciting."

During her Bible camp, Mason concentrated on science projects teaching kids how to make a "tornado in a bottle," as well as crafts like making cement patio blocks using pizza boxes as a mold, and designing picture frames.

Please see GOLD AWARD, B2

In the back yard of her parents' home are colorful cement patio blocks made by neighbors and relatives. As a token of appreciation, the students at the Bible camp gave Mason a scrapbook of their experiences.

Curtis' project was similar. She organized the Wayne-Westland Day Camp, which hosted about 260 girls in July in Central City Park. Themed "Weird Science," the camp allowed girls participating in Junior Girl Scouts and Brownies to earn badges.

"It didn't always fit into the theme," Curtis added.

Brownies, for example, learned about bike safety while the Junior Girl Scouts learned about fingerprinting.

Set to graduate in June, Curtis is a band member, president of the Ecology Club, and a member of the student council, SADD and D.A.R.E. at her school.

She helped build the playscape in Central City Park and has aided with food and blood drives.

Recently, she was accepted to the People to People Student Ambassador Program set up by President Dwight D. Eisenhower as a way to help students learn about different cultures. She will travel to the England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales this summer. The group may also visit Princess Diana's gravesite.

"One of the things I'm looking forward to are home stays," she said. "We stay with a family for three days and see how they live on a daily basis. We get to see their traditions and the type of food that they eat."

"Just seeing how another family lives in another country sounds really cool."

In order to go, Curtis needs to raise $4,000 by April. She is seeking sponsors and donors. Those interested in helping can call her at (734) 595-6011.

Both girls were inspired by their mothers to become Girl Scouts. Mason helped her mother, Gloria, who was a Girl Scout for two years, an adult co-leader for 14 years and a service unit manager, with her troops. The elder Mason organized Girl Scout troops at Kettering, Elliott and Hamilton elementary schools.

Curtis' mother, Judy, is a former director of day camps.

"I saw what my mom had done," she said. "I knew that this is what I always wanted to do. I knew what went on during day camp."

During the award ceremony, Mason explained, she and the other Gold Award candidates will stand up and discuss their projects.

Through her community project, Mason "really learned how to communicate with other people. At first, I wasn't getting my points across correctly. Toward the end of the week, I really pulled everything together."

(when age-appropriate), but not alone. Or allow them to open up a new board game, as long as they'll learn the rules together.

Tip No. 9 - Play games.

Design activities for your children that educate them about cooperation. Disguised as fun games, team activities involve everyone creating a piece of one project. For example, each sibling draws a section of landscape that contributes to a panorama drawing to be mounted on the wall.

Assign tasks based on individual talents and strengths. Discuss with your children how their different approaches made a unique whole.

Tip No. 10 - Model teamwork.

Children observe and emulate how you interact with your spouse, partner, friends and relatives. Remember that you, as the parent, are their first and most influential teacher. By treating others with respect and kindness and by resolving conflicts peacefully, you are giving them the tools to do the same with one another.

Tip No. 11 - Last but not least, catch 'em in the act!

Catch your children being good to each other. Recognize it and applaud it! Your attention and admiration is the greatest reward.

Jeri Lea Lentini works as an outreach therapist with children and parents at Safe Stay Crisis Nursery & Family Respite Care Center, a short-term residential and crisis program for children. The Westland-based program also provides home-based counseling services for children.

said. "It gives them an opportunity to do things with their sons that they would never get to do otherwise. We have an aviation merit badge coming up next month and part of that includes a plane ride."

Longevity seems to run in the troop.

"I have some assistant scoutmasters who have been with me 15 and 18 years, and their kids are long gone and they stay with me, because they enjoy doing things with the kids and other adults who are involved," Bourgon said.

Bourgon is forever planning new excursions. In February, 50 scouts from his troop went to Washington, D.C., for five days.

"I look for new things to do continuously," he added.

And the legacy continues. The J. Kenneth Bourgon Scouting Fund was recently established to promote the goals of scouting under his direction and leadership.

For more information about the fund, contact Bill McCarley at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, 16360 Hubbard Road, Livonia 48154.

History of lacemaking is like a trip through time

HOOKED ON HISTORY

VIRGINIA PARKER

As a child, I was duly impressed when my mother showed me two handmade bobbin lace collars. They were special, she said. My father had brought them back from Belgium at the end of World War II. Years later, I gained a new appreciation for their artistry and elegance while researching 17th-century lacemaking. Throwing myself completely into the research, I seem constitutionally unable to do less. I learned to make bobbin lace. I acquired the necessary equipment: several pillows, a large collection of rosewood bobbins, linen threads - ecru, white and a rainbow of colors - as well as metallic threads, pins, pins, and more pins, plus a handmade maple lacemaker's table. (OK, the table wasn't necessary, but it was fun.) I had three pieces of lace going at the same time. Meanwhile, I continued to research the history. I found that the art of making bobbin lace is centuries old. It was made throughout Europe, spread to Russia, and is still commercially handmade in numerous countries today. Lacemakers wind their threads on wooden bobbins, which is why it's called bobbin lace. In earliest times, the threads wound around bone, so the work was first known as "bone lace." Because it is made on a pillow, people often called it "pillow lace." Hundreds of years ago, bobbin lace was a fashion status symbol for wealthy men, women and children. Even some of the Pilgrims, who left England to seek religious freedom in the Plymouth Colony, were consumers. They disdained pretension, yet the well-to-do among them, like the gentry, wore lace to show their affluence. But, while the rich wore the lace, it was the poor men, women and children who made it.

Trip through time

To glimpse what an English lacemaker's life was like, let's create a mental time machine. We turn the dial back some 400 years to arrive in London in 1622. We learn that some of the English lace is made in the countryside. Farmers make it after their chores, and during the winter, to bring in a few extra shillings. Here in London, we find a woman who earns her living by making lace 12-15 hours a day, six days a week. She is not one of the lucky ones who can work at home. Instead, she produces infinite yards of lace edging in a cold, musty cellar. The dampness is destroying her lungs. It's dark, so she sits on one of the chairs stacked three rows deep around a candle stool. Flasks, filled with water to reflect and magnify the light have been placed around a tall candle. Her eyes strain in the dim glow, and she expects she may lose her sight in time. They say a piece of fine lace is costly, it can cost a pair of eyes. A 7-year-old apprentice sits beside her. The little girl has been making lace with other poor boys and girls since she was 5. Her small hands are learning to twist and cross the threads in endless combinations and with increasing precision. Eventually, she will be able to make a single motif with perfection. It's her destiny to make that piece for the rest of her life. Another lacemaker will sew it together with other motifs into an exquisite collar or train. The girl is surrounded by people, but she feels lonely. She's not allowed to talk with anyone because chit-chat slows their work. Only the melodic clinking of bobbins breaks the tedious silence. The child is chilled; she longs for the warm, bright summer when she can work outside. She also wishes she could run free in the sunshine to stretch her young legs. Instead, they ache, as her back does, from endless hours of sitting in the dark, dank cellar. Her knuckles hurt, too; she forgot and touched the linen threads instead of the bobbins. The master lacemaker smacked the girl's hands with a cane because she will lose money, for her workers' hands soil the lace. The boy in the next seat is worse off. His bare neck was rapped with the cane as punishment for talking. Society approves of the children's employment. It benefits their parents and spares the parish the burden of supporting orphans. Each time these artisans prick the parchment and close a stitch, they weave in a thread of irony because, while their toil creates this beautiful commodity, the lacemakers remain too poor to ever afford a piece of their own lace. We return to 1998 with a sigh of relief that modern society has freed laborers from such appalling sweatshops. When we settle in to catch the evening news - in Brazil, children, working in shacks, breathe fumes while gluing name-brand shoes; in China, women earn pennies to embroider elegant linens for export; in Mexico ...

Roaring '20s

Detroit played huge part in smuggling

Herbert Hoover described the 18th Amendment as a noble experiment. Daniel C. Roper of the Internal Revenue Service expected a few problems with enforcement, but eventually the nation would not know alcohol. Such was not the case with America going "dry" on Jan. 16, 1920, and when Prohibition was repealed 13 years later, many of the people who had campaigned for Prohibition were campaigning to end it. "Billy Simon fought hard for Prohibition," said Philip Mason, a history professor at Wayne State University. "But it was not a decade of peace, it was a decade of war - gang wars. Murders and smuggling was pervasive, and no area was more seriously affected and involved than was Detroit." The author of "Rum Running and the Roaring '20s" (Wayne State University Press), Mason fascinated his Livonia Town Hall audience with a look at the area during Prohibition. The waterways were the battlegrounds, and The New York Times sent reporters to cover Prohibition in what became known as the Windsor-Detroit Funnel, a name well-deserved, considering 80 percent of the liquor smuggled into the United States came through Detroit. "One million cases were smuggled in each week, and a lot stayed here and a lot went to Chicago," Mason said. "Detroit had more registered boats than any other state in the union, and the 30 miles of water between Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair, with lots of inlets and isolated spots, could be crossed in five minutes." Mason became enthralled with the Prohibition after reading "Only Yesterday" and began collecting stories about the era of bathtub gin, blind pigs, speak-easies, the Purple Gang and rum running. "Almost from the beginning, there were organized gangs formed because smuggling was so profitable," he said. "The Purple Gang was an all-Jewish gang that divided the river up into turfs." "Ideal location" In his research, he found that the most notorious of communities in the country was Ecorse. It was an "ideal location" for smuggling because of its many marinas and boathouses and because its residents openly in favor of smuggling. "They would turn out to stop the authorities when they showed up to confiscate a boat," Mason said. "On Jefferson Avenue, the Green Lantern was open around the clock and restaurants openly advertised that they were speak-easies." Detroiters proved ingenious in smuggling liquor from Canada, where all of the provinces except Quebec were dry. And even with Prohibition, the distilleries and breweries still made beer and liquor by order of the Canadian government. There was a $9 per quart tax that the companies got back if they could prove the beer and liquor they sold was going to countries without Prohibition. "There were 19 export docks along the St. Clair and Detroit rivers; anyone could pull up to the docks and say it was going to Cuba and buy it," Mason said. Boats, cars, airplanes, coffins, even chicken eggs were used to bring alcohol across the border from Canada. Gas tanks were divided in half and the contents of eggs drained and replaced with booze. Even hearses were pressed into service to get liquor into the U.S. "One customs agent wrote in his diary that it was the 10th funeral that day and wondered why Canadians wanted to be buried in Detroit," Mason recounted. "He checked the 11th one and there was a casket full of liquor." Under the river Smuggling also went on under the river. Cables were strung underwater between Windsor and Detroit to pull sleds filled with liquor. A torpedo also was developed to shoot across the river. Another distillery installed a pipe under the river that ran to a warehouse in Detroit where the liquor was to be bottled. The operation never got off the ground when a repairman, called in to fix the pump, reported the clandestine operation to police. Liquor could be dispensed for medicinal purposes and thousands of prescriptions were given out by doctors, according to Mason. One prescription, given to the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle, prescribed "4 ounces each night to sleep." Even with Prohibition, there were 5,000 breweries and distilleries in business in 1928, and Detroiters by the thousands made their own, finding what they needed in the local drug

'Evening of Hope' attracts a crowd

Glittering success: Leukemia Research Life Inc.'s annual dinner-dance to benefit childhood cancer research proved to be a crowd pleaser once again, with supporters like Rob and Laurie Goldi of Farmington Hills (top photo at left) hoping to have the high bid on a Detroit Lions football jersey, signed by the honorary chair, Robert Porcher, for their son, Matthew, who has acute lymphocytic leukemia. On hand for the banquet, held at Laurel Manor in Livonia, Porcher (top photo at right) took time to sign a Lions hat for Lisa Robert of Livonia and a miniature helmet for Marcos Torres of Southfield. Lori and Paul Baird of Livonia (bottom photo at right) took a close look at a vase at the silent auction at the LRL fundraiser. Away from the silent auction, Bob Maciasz of Commerce Township, (bottom photo at left) Mark Roberts of Livonia, Chris Upshur of Oxford and Rich Frizzell shared a few laughs before dinner was served.

store. According to Mason, Strohs malt syrup was sold for baking only, but it was next to all the stuff needed to make beer. And a combination of raw alcohol, juniper berries and glycerin, rolled around on the floor to "age," produced homemade gin. "You could get liquor delivered to your door, or buy a shoot for 15 cents out of car when you got off work," he said. "Speak-easies could be found in law offices, restaurants and farmhouses. The police knew about them but didn't close them down unless they were near a church or school, served bad food or had a fight." In 1923, the government sent the State Police into Hamtramck to raid more than 400 ice cream parlors of which only seven actually served ice cream. And 19 fraternities also were closed permanently during Prohibition at the University of Michigan. By the mid-1920s, it was apparent the noble experiment had failed, but Prohibition continued until May 10, 1933. That day, "Julius Strohs poured the first glass of legal beer at the American Legion convention in Detroit. "By the end of the day, the Legionnaires had consumed 900 barrels and 500 cases of Strohs beer," Mason said.

Livonia Town Hall will close out its 1997-98 season on Wednesday, March 18, with an musical interlude provided by members of the Livonia Symphony, conducted and interpreted by Volodymyr Schesik.

Town Hall is held at St. Mary's Cultural Center, 18100 Merriman Road, Livonia. Lecture tickets are $15 each and are available at the door or by calling Joyce Silkworth at (734) 421-4326.

CYO girls cage champs

The St. Genevieve Jaguars of Livonia won the West Division Catholic Youth Organization girls basketball title for fifth- and sixth-graders with a perfect 12-0 record.

Members of the Jaguars, who outscored their opponents, 334-100, include: Marisa DiPonio, Erin Lovell, Natalie O'Keefe, Lauren Michalson, Jennifer Montes, Jamie Rhodes, Christine Williams, Amber Willoughby, Julie Wooten, Nicole Zajac and Lauren Trosell.

The Jaguars, who also won the CYO sportsmanship award, are coached by Linda, Lou and Mark Willoughby, along with Marc Sargis.

Youth soccer champions

The Livonia Youth Soccer Club Rockers, an under-11 team, recently captured first place during the second indoor session at SoccerZone in Novi.

Members of the Rockers, coached by Laura McDougall and Luke Lucero, include: Erik Anderson, Danny Armbruster, Kurt Bonser, Danny Garber, Ryan Graham, John Happ, Tony Housley, Sam Hoyt, Adrian Lucero, John Peitz, Danny Pepera, Jeff Pepera, Rich Simkow, Kenny Vella and Amber Willoughby. The team manager is Don McDougall.

The '87 Brighton Eclipse was recently awarded first place in the Great Lake Soccer League's under-11 girls open competitive division after an appeal through the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association.

Members of the Eclipse, coached by Terry Giles and Bob Anderson include: Traci Anderson, Jill Andrews, Katherine Dzeiken, Tricia Giles, Natalie Grabowski, Jodi Helminen, Theresa Hebert, Nicole Hubbard, Taylor Huyik, Janel Kullunen, Chelsea Lewis, Rachael Mirto, Kristy Penner, Lauren Rentz, Jackie Switala and Britany Walsh.

The Livonia Meteors girls under-10 soccer team completed a perfect 8-0 in the Red Division's second session at the Soccer Zone in Novi.

The Meteors had gone 7-0-1 in the league's first session.

Members of the team are: Christen Biskelonis, Ashley Calvin, Christina Curl, Kristin DiCello, Sara Dolmetsch, Wendy Hoots, Katherine Kelly, Erica Myrold, Jamie Radley, Jessica Theisen, Stephanie Thom, Lauren Trosell and Emma Wojtowicz.

The team was coached by Doug Calvin, with Bob Theisen assisting. Mike Trosell served as the team manager.

Bantam Leafs 2nd

The Livonia Hockey Association Bantam Leafs, sponsored by EJH Construction and McCally Tool, were runner-up to St. Clair Shores in the Sports Weekend End of Year Tournament.

The Leafs, coached by Glen Long, Mike Sartorius and Jason Bruce, reached the final by defeating teams from Mississauga, Ontario and Naperville, Ill.

Craig Lamontagne led the Leafs with five goals and three assists. Brandon Wallace added three goals and four assists, while Eric McNutt chipped in with four goals, raising his season total to 36 in 36 games. Steve Kolasinski also scored in the final game.

Ashley Zeni provided strong goaltending, while the defense was led by George Georvassilis, Mike Colangelo, Gus Nassar, Alex Williams and Andrew Hamee. Solid two-way play was provided by Steve Totten, Brandon Link, Mike O'Neill and Scott Boufford.

D.J. Marderosian, Nick Winter and Brian Nadeau were unavailable for the tournament. The Leafs are managed by John Lamontagne.

Collegiate note

In indoor track, Army freshman Marjorie Brooks (Westland John Glenn) recently took a second in the 5,000-meter run at the West Point Invitational (Feb. 28) with a time of 18:30.

Brooks also finished third in the 5,000 (18:52) in a tri-meet against St. John's, Columbia and State University-New York and third in the Black Knight Quad (18:42).

On Feb. 14, Brooks went 10:47 in the 3,000 at the St. Valentine's Invitational in Boston and was 34th out of 65 runners in the 5,000 at the Boston University Terrier Classic (18:26).

Churchill riding high, 4-1

District triumph versus Stevenson ignites Chargers

PREP HOCKEY

The battle for hockey supremacy in Livonia started with an odd rendition of "Oh, Canada."

But whether it was Joe Louis Arena or Eddie Edgar Arena, Wednesday's Class A district championship game rendered an anthem that was music to the Churchill Chargers' ears.

Trailing 1-0 after one period, the Chargers came storming back for three unanswered goals and put the game away with another in the final period to oust Suburban High School Hockey League champion Livonia Stevenson from the state tournament, 4-1.

Churchill, which travels Saturday to Trenton for the regional final, is now 19-4-3 overall. (Game time is tentatively set for 7 p.m. at Trenton's Kennedy Arena).

Stevenson, meanwhile, bows out at 17-7-2 overall.

Playing before nearly 1,000 boisterous fans at Edgar, the Chargers gained the momentum and carried the action against the Spartans over the final two periods to claim the district crown.

The two teams split their regular season series, but this may have been a more potent Churchill team than the one that skated to a 5-4 win over the Spartans on Jan. 30.

"We came out with a different forecheck than we used in the past," Churchill coach Jeff Hatley said. "Everything was working in the first period, but we weren't converting their turnovers. In the first period we did not play our best."

Jeff Lang, cashing in on his own rebound, staked Stevenson to a 1-0 lead at 3:59 of the opening period.

"Stevenson was the league champ and we knew we had to pick it up to beat them," Hatley said. "We decided to freewheel with our forechecking and forget the 1-2-2."

Frank Furdero tied it for the Chargers just 36 seconds into the second period, burying a shot on the backside of Spartan starting goaltender Chris McComb. Defensemen Brandon Marotta and Matt Wysocki assisted.

Antti Kervinen then tallied what proved to be the game-winner on an unassisted backhand at 1:38.

And less than two minutes later, Matt Grant scored on a four-on-four with Anton Sutovsky and Wysocki assisting to make it 3-1.

"They definitely took it to us the second period," Stevenson coach Mike Harris said. "They were dumping, chasing, forechecking and using the left wing lock — and we just didn't react to it."

"They were also out-muscling us and taking the puck wide on our defensemen. The first two goals we gave up were basically wrap-around plays."

Any chance of a Churchill letdown in the third period never materialized.

German exchange student Felix Jentzmik sealed Stevenson's fate with a goal at 5:12 from Furdero and Adam Krug.

"Our guys tried and we didn't give up, but the puck just didn't seem to bounce our way," Harris said. "Churchill showed us how to play three consecutive periods. I hope they don't have a letdown. I hope a Livonia team goes as far as they can. I wish them well and I hope they get to Flint."

Both coaches changed goaltenders during the course of the game.

Churchill starter Greg Sliwka, who blanked University of Detroit-Jesuit in Friday's district semifinal, was lifted in favor of Dwaine Jones late in the first period.

"Greg just looked like he was fighting the puck a little bit, that's all," Hatley said. "I have a lot of confidence in both goaltenders. These two have given us the best goaltending that we've had here in the last five years."

Stevenson also made a switch when Matt McLeod came on for McComb early in the second.

Churchill outshot the Spartans, 34-

27. "Everybody picked it up when they needed to," Hatley said. "This has been our goal all along. Two years ago we got to the regional final (losing 4-0 to Trenton) and this is where we want to be."

"Winning the league is great, but it doesn't compare to the regional. We'd like to win the league, but Stevenson was just more consistent during the year."

Trenton, sporting a 22-3 overall record, has been ranked in the top five all season. The Trojans finished runner-up to Redford Catholic Central in last year's state championship final.

"We're going to give it all we got and take it one at a time," Hatley said. "The support from our school has been outstanding."

"The (big) crowd made us a little nervous early, but once we got it going, we were tremendous."

Glenn returns for WLAA title shot

Jones pops in 29 in victory

BOYS BASKETBALL

The nickname "E" rings out during the pre-game player introductions for Westland John Glenn sophomore point-guard Eric Jones.

And "E" also stands for errorless basketball, as the host Rockets made just five turnovers in a 69-59 Western Lakes Activities Association semifinal playoff victory over Walled Lake Central.

Glenn, now 13-6 overall, plays top seed Plymouth Salem, 16-3 overall, for the coveted WLAA title beginning at 8 p.m. Friday, at Livonia Churchill.

The third-seeded Rockets ironically were the only team to hand Salem a WLAA defeat. It will be Glenn's first appearance in the WLAA championship since 1996.

"We have a lot of respect for Salem's coaches and players, we're just happy to be in this situation again," Glenn assistant coach Todd DeLuca said. "We did a great job on both ends of the floor and we played smart basketball when we had to. And we were conscious of the fact that we didn't want to turn it over, especially at the end of the game."

Jones, in his best outing of the season, helped his team erase a 35-33 halftime deficit with 15 second-half points as the Rockets outscored the Vikings 36-24 in the second half.

"He's coming into his own and every game he's played this month he's gotten better," DeLuca said. "He's more disciplined as far as what he's doing on the floor. And it's a pleasure to watch."

Ty Haygood, a junior forward, added 10 points, while Stephen Lawson had eight. Jason Crofton and Yaku Moton each contributed seven.

Central, which falls to 9-10, got a team-high 24 points from senior guard Todd Negoshian. Cory Heitsch contributed 16.

Central, shooting 14 of 24 from the floor in the first half, led by as many as seven before Glenn made a late rush to pull within two on consecutive 'threes' by Crofton, Jones and Bill Foder.

Central took a 41-37 advantage with 4:24 remaining in the third quarter on a free throw by Negoshian.

Glenn, however, took the lead for keeps, 42-41, on a rebound basket by Haygood with 2:24 left remaining in the third.

Midway through the third quarter, Central coach Steve Emert went into a semi-deliberate offense.

The Vikings, who were outscored 11-6, took just five field goal attempts during the eight-minute period. And to make matters worse, Negoshian went without a statistically recorded field goal attempt for almost a 10-minute stretch.

"We wanted to make it a short game," Emert said. "We didn't block them out on the boards. That was one thing that hurt us. That was key, along with our defensive execution."

Glenn took control in the final quarter, outscoring the Vikings, who had been sitting in a zone defense most of the night, 25-18.

The Rockets also made eight of 15 free throws during the final 2:33 to help seal the win.

"We had to foul them and they (Glenn) made the free throws, give them credit," Emert said.

Glenn, the quicker and more athletic team, played straight man-to-man defense for most of the night.

"We didn't put pressure on Central as a team," DeLuca said. "But we wanted Negoshian to work hard bringing the ball up and I thought Reggie Spearmon did a great job on him."

Horizontal move: Westland John Glenn's Stephen Lawson (left) glides sideways to the hoop past the Vikings' Nick Hall.

Ocelots ousted in semifinals

One of the most successful men's basketball seasons in Schoolcraft Community College history came to a screeching halt Tuesday as host Cincinnati State rallied from a nine-point halftime deficit to oust the Ocelots in the NCJAA-Region 12 semifinals, 92-87.

Quentin Smith scored 19 of his game-high 30 points in the second half as Cincinnati State improved to 22-9 overall.

Schoolcraft, which bowed out at 24-7 under first-year coach Carlos Briggs, got a team-high 25 points from Derek McKelvey and 22 from Kevin Melson.

•SPRING ARBOR 81, MADONNA 66 (Women): Pinpoint accuracy from the perimeter was never a determining factor in Saturday's Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference women's basketball tournament semifinal between Madonna University and host Spring Arbor.

The regular-season champion Cougars had only to concern themselves with a distance of about 15 feet and in.

Indeed, the Lady Crusaders had nine three-pointers to none for Spring Arbor, and yet it was an easy win for the Cougars, who advanced to the championship game with an 81-66 victory.

Madonna ends its season with an 18-13 record.

Shooting proficiency from the floor wasn't decisive in this game. Madonna made 25-of-62 (40.3 percent) to 27-of-63 for Spring Arbor (42.9 percent). The Crusaders offset Spring Arbor's slightly better shooting advantage by making 9-of-25 triples (36 percent); the Cougars were 0-for-1 on threes.

Rebounding, too, was dead-even (40-40). The difference came in turnovers — 26 for Madonna, 15 for the Cougars — and free-throw shooting (Madonna 7-of-15, 46.7 percent; Spring Arbor 27-of-38, 71.1 percent).

Three starters fouled out for the Crusaders: Chris Dietrich, Dawn Pele and Angie Negri. No one had more than three fouls for Spring Arbor.

Dietrich finished with a game-high 21 points. Mary Murray added 14 points and eight rebounds, and Katie Cushman contributed 11 points, six boards and five assists.

Leading the Cougar attack was Courtney Thompson Jr. with 21 points and eight rebounds. Andrea VanderHorst had 19 points and nine boards.

Chargers snap losing streak vs. North

Livonia Churchill broke its six-game losing streak by holding off North Farmington in a Western Lakes boys basketball game, 60-55.

The visiting Chargers put the game away when George Kithas stole a North inbound pass attempt, drove the length of the court and dunked it at the buzzer.

Churchill took the three-point lead with 30 seconds remaining after Lamar Smith hit a pair of free throws, Smith, who finished with nine points, converted all five of his foul shot attempts in the final quarter.

"We played very well defensively and made the adjustments to what North was doing in the first half," Churchill coach Rick Austin said. "We played out those adjustments and pretty much shut them down in the second half defensively."

Erik Uhlinger paced Churchill (7-13) with 14 points. Corey Cook added 12.

North (11-8) received a game-high 17 points from Emir Medunjanin and 12 from Al Pennala.

"We turned the ball over too many times, played with no intensity and were not sharp," North coach Brian Swinehart said. "We'll have to pick it up and start playing like a team if we want to do anything in districts."

The Raiders led at halftime 30-28, thanks to five first-half three-pointers. The Chargers took the lead in the fourth quarter as they outscored North 16-10.

It was the second time Churchill defeated the Raiders this season. Earlier in the year, the Chargers used a half-court shot at the buzzer to knock off North.

"There's just something about Churchill that makes us struggle," Swinehart said.

•FRANKLIN 68, STEVENSON 41: Livonia Stevenson's long season got even longer Tuesday as the Spartans were routed by their cross-town rivals.

The host Patriots (8-11) broke open a 34-26 half-time lead by outscoring the Spartans 18-6 in the third quarter.

Leading the way for Franklin was senior guard Nick Mongeau, who nailed four three-pointers in the first quarter. He finished with a game-high 18 points, in addition to three steals and three assists. Senior guard Brian Facione was one of seven Patriots with six points. Facione added six assists and two steals.

Brett Koch scored 12 points for the Spartans, who dropped to 0-19 overall.

The Patriots converted 20 of 26 free throws. Stevenson got to the line 13 times, and hit on six shots.

•LIGGETT 81, LUTHERAN WESTLAND 75: The Warriors couldn't play spoiler Tuesday as Grosse Pointe Woods University-Liggett won the outright Metro Conference championship.

Lutheran Westland led 58-53 entering the fourth quarter, but couldn't hold off the Knights as they outscored the Warriors 28-17.

Liggett won the game at the free throw line, where the Knights converted 11 of 16 shots in the fourth quarter and were 24 of 35 in the game. Westland made 11 of 15 of their free throws.

The Knights, who defeated Westland 85-75 early in the season, improved to 15-4 overall and 13-3 in the conference.

The Warriors slipped to 7-12 overall and 6-10 in the league.

Brian Bruenton poured in 37 points to lead the Liggett attack. Joel Parrott netted 21.

Tom Habitz and Brad Woelke scored 16 and 15 points, respectively, for the Warriors.

•ANNAPOLIS 61, CLARENCEVILLE 57: Dearborn Heights Annapolis got 16 points from junior forward Nate Beayers Tuesday to hold off host Livonia Clarenceville in a non-leaguer encounter.

The Trojans received 14 points apiece from senior forward Justin Villanueva and junior guard Albert Deljosevic. Scott Wlon added 10 points and Rick Murphy 10.

Annapolis improved to 13-6 overall, while Clarenceville dropped to 6-13.

•FRANKLIN ROAD 83, HURON VALLEY 38: Southfield Franklin Road Christian had little trouble with Westland Huron Valley Tuesday.

Josh Dubuc and Chris McIntosh scored 20 and 18 points, respectively, for Franklin Road (8-11 overall, 5-3 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference).

Tom Husby's eight points paced the Hawks (6-14 overall, 1-7 in the MIAC).

•REDFORD CC 88, SOUTHEASTERN 69: Senior center Chris Young scored 21 points, grabbed 20 rebounds and blocked four shots as Redford Catholic Central (15-4 overall) won a non-league game on Tuesday against visiting Detroit Southeastern.

Joining the Shamrocks in double figures were Joe Jenna with 18 points, Nick Moore with 13 and Don Slankster with 10.

Aaron Bell scored a game-high 31 for the Jungateers of the Public School League.

Stevenson runner-up to Rocks in fast meet

Transforming a league swim meet, from fast to super-speed, can be accomplished by a couple of individuals, really. They set a couple of new records while winning a few events and onlookers figure, "Wow, it must be a fast year."

At the Western Lakes Activities Association boys swim championships last Saturday at Plymouth Salem, some records were set. And it was considered a fast meet.

But the reasons go a bit deeper than a couple of rare individuals who happen to be tearing up the league. "Our league always ranks as pretty fast," acknowledged Livonia Stevenson coach Doug Buckler. "But this was definitely a bit faster."

Getting such a proclamation from Buckler is no surprise. After all, his team is ranked among the state's top 10, a standing that's well-deserved. His Spartans swam extremely well Saturday, collecting four first-place finishes and setting one of the league's new records.

Getting such a proclamation from Buckler after his team finished second by 74 points, however, does say a bit more.

"I think we swam fantastic," Buckler said without hesitation. "I'm proud of my whole team."

The Stevenson coach knew it would take a super-human effort, and a few slip-ups by Plymouth Salem, for the Spartans to unseat the defending WLAA champs. And that didn't happen.

Stevenson swam extremely well. So did North Farmington and Plymouth Canton and Farmington Harrison, for that matter.

Problem was, Salem was equal to all challenges.

The Rocks racked up their sixth-straight league championship, scoring 504 points. Stevenson was next with 430, followed by North Farmington (360), Canton (351), Harrison (260), Northville (244), Farmington (200), Westland John Glenn (175), Livonia Franklin (158), Walled Lake (148) and Livonia Churchill (129).

"It was a fast meet," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "If you weren't swimming well, you weren't getting in (to Saturday's finals).

"In every event, there was a real quality swim. It felt good winning that type of meet — there wasn't only a lot of quality at the top, but all the way through."

"This was not one you feel you have to apologize for. This was a good conference meet."

There were three double-winners in individual events and two records set. Steve Domin, from Stevenson, was responsible for one of the records. The senior won the 50-yard freestyle in 21.55, and lowered that record to 21.47 with his lead-off leg in the 200 free relay (former record, 21.7, in 1996 by Jeff Sieving of Northville).

Domin also captured the 100 butterfly (52.65).

The other double-winners were Salem's Nick Corden, who finished first in the 200 (1:44.67) and 100 (47.64) freestyles, and Northville's Evan Whitbeck, who captured top honors in the 200 individual medley (1:57.57) and 100 breaststroke (1:01.47).

Other individual wins went to Stevenson's Keith Falk in the 500 free (4:50.50), North's Dan Gabriel in the 100 backstroke (54.15) and Walled Lake's Chris Gawronski in the one-meter diving (474.60 points).

The other new record of the meet belonged to Salem, which won both freestyle relays. The Rocks' Dan Kelly, Andrew Locke, Tim Buchanan and Corden finished first in the 200 free relay in 1:28.25, bettering the former mark of 1:29.09 set by Stevenson in 1992.

Jones, Brent Mellis, Buchanan and Corden also teamed to win the 400 free relay for Salem

(3:17.31), missing the WLAA record by less than .3 seconds.

Stevenson's Joe Boblitz, Mike Nemer, Mark Sgriccia and Domin were fastest in the 200 medley relay (1:39.93).

Coaches throughout the WLAA knew teams like North, Northville and Stevenson all had individual swimmers fast enough to challenge Salem's fastest in most events. What no other team had, however, was the Rocks' depth.

"We knew what we had to do," said Olson. "No other team had at least two qualifiers in every (individual) event. We had at least three (in the top 18) in every event."

There were also at least three state-meet qualifiers in each event, with five in several events and as many as six in one (the 100 back).

Spartan ace Rocky Top-bound

Women's basketball has put the perennial power University of Tennessee in the national limelight.

And the Lady Volunteers soccer program, entering just its third varsity season, hopes some day to duplicate that success.

Earlier last month, Tennessee took a step in the right direction by signing one of Michigan's premier prep scorers in Livonia Stevenson All-Stater Allison Campbell.

Last season, Campbell scored a team-high 34 goals and added 13 assists as the Spartans won the state Class A title.

Campbell, who has 68 career goals, follows another Spartan to Knoxville — Holly Kimble, younger sister of Stevenson head coach Jim Kimble.

Holly, who played two seasons at Schoolcraft Community College before transferring, was a member of the Lady Volunteers' inaugural recruiting class. And after completing her two years of eligibility, Kimble will likely return to school next fall and serve as a grad assistant.

"I like the fact that they give as much money to the women's athletes as they do for the men," Campbell said. "They treat the women athletes first class."

Campbell, who helped lead Stevenson to a 21-0-2 record last spring, visited the Tennessee campus Halloween weekend.

The All-Western Lakes Activities Association pick also considered Michigan, Northwestern and Penn State.

"I was going back and forth," said Campbell, who will most likely remain a forward. "The coach (Charlie McCabe) was a great guy. He used to be an assistant at North Carolina."

"It's a pretty place and you can play outdoors all year-round."

Last season, Tennessee just missed the Southeastern Conference playoffs by one game.

Campbell, who is considering sports medicine, also excels in the classroom, carrying a 3.89 grade-point average.

She began playing soccer at age 4, working her way through the Livonia YMCA club program. She was a member of the Region finalist Michigan Hawks (coached by Paul Dugan).

On Monday, tryouts began for the Spartans, who return all but three seniors off a team which allowed just one goal all season.

"We're going to have to defend our title and it will be tough," Campbell said.

Seder, Rogowski champs at Temperance Bedford

Six area wrestlers are headed to Battle Creek's Kellogg Center (March 13-14) for the Division I individual tournament.

Individual winners from last Saturday's regional meet at Temperance Bedford included Redford Catholic Central heavyweight Casey Rogowski and Livonia Stevenson 135-pounder Dan Seder.

Other state qualifiers included Stevenson's Katsuhiko Sueda (112), second; CC's Mitch Hancock (135), second; Wayne Memorial's William Laramie (heavyweight), third; and CC's John Abshire (189), fourth.

Meyer, a senior heavyweight, also qualified last year with a fourth-place finish at regional. He then impressively took fourth at the state meet.

He qualified for the Division IV championship meet by winning two of four matches at Manchester. To improve on last year's feat, he'll have to make sure he never lets up on the mat, according to his coach Dennis Tuomi.

"He'll have to make sure he remains consistent and never stops wrestling," Tuomi said.

The Division IV state meet will take place, March 13-14, at University Arena in Kalamazoo.

Aiding program: Matt Watroba, an English teacher and advisor of the PCEP Perspective student newspaper at Plymouth Canton High School, will perform Friday, March 20, at the school's Little Theatre. The show benefits Plymouth-Canton's journalism program. Watroba, also the host of WDET's "Folks Like Us" program, plays a free show Friday, March 13, at Borders in Birmingham.

Musician returns to source of inspiration for CONCERT

Matt Watroba remembers the day vividly.

He was sitting in a classroom at Plymouth Canton High School in the mid-1970s when his English teacher played a Tom Paxton album to demonstrate satirical songs.

"Something about it really spoke to me. It was fun to listen to," Watroba said.

The folk legend proved inspirational to Watroba.

"It really wasn't long after that that I went to The Ark to perform. Ironically, I was kind of influenced in the very same room where I teach now," Watroba said.

The 1978 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School returned to the school in 1990 to teach English. In 1993, he became the advisor of the Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools' newspaper, the PCEP Perspective.

Watroba has returned to his roots to pay his respects to those who inspired him. On Friday, March 20, his performance in the high school's Little Theatre will benefit the high schools' journalism program.

His debut CD, released in late 1997, honors the room that launched his folk-singing career. "Live at the Ark" is a collection of some of his favorite songs including "Miss the Mississippi" by

Who: Matt Watroba
What: Performs
When: 8 p.m. Friday, March 20
Where: The Little Theatre at Plymouth Canton High School, 8415 N. Canton Center Road, Canton.
Why: It's a benefit for the Journalism program at Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton high schools.
How: Tickets are $10 for adults and $8 for students. For more information, call Watroba at (734) 416-2922.

He also has two free Borders shows:

For information about Watroba's upcoming shows, write to him at P.O. Box 629, Hartland, Mich., 48353 or MattW41469@aol.com. He can also be reached at (810) 750-3420.

Jimmy Rodgers, "Handful of Songs" by Jerry Rasmussen, and "Home to Me is Anywhere You Are" and "Peace Will Come," both by Tom Paxton.

Watroba chose to release an album of cover songs because writing "doesn't come easily to him.

"Writing for me takes a lot of time. I'm so busy that it doesn't leave a lot of time for me to write. Even if I started writing like crazy, I don't know if I'd record them."

"Plus, there's so many great songs. I'm happy to pass along those songs as well."

Besides teaching and performing, Watroba also hosts the radio show "Folks Like Us" from noon to 3 p.m. Saturdays on radio station WDET (101.9 FM).

In planning the recording of his album, Watroba didn't set his sights on the Ann Arbor venue.

"I thought, 'This is it.' I'm going to go into the studio and record 12 to 14 of my favorite songs. Then it occurred to me, these songs were born and raised for me to sing live in front of an audience."

"It's a good decision I think. The audience on the CD is part of the band. These songs did come alive that night."

Ark patrons act as background singers on "My Sweet Wyoming Home" by Bill Staines whom Watroba considers "one of our country's best songwriters."

Besides the audience, the local folk singer Jan Krist joins Watroba on "The Bramble and the Rose," by Barbara Keith, and

Big band swings OU students

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Swing is on the upswing. From New York and Los Angeles dance clubs to college campuses, young people are listening to the music that reached its peak when their grandparents were young.

"The reason is you always have to return to melody," said trombonist Ron Kishuk. "In big band music you have questions and answers in the music, it's music that makes sense from beginning to the end and that winds up appealing to people. As baby boomers get older, they lean toward that music and when young people get tired of the rhythms they start to listen to it, too."

Kishuk will lead the Oakland University Jazz Ensemble March 7 in a selection of theme songs from the Big Band era, followed by an Alumni Ensemble performing the big band charts of Thad Jones and Dizzy Gillespie under the direction of former OU jazz studies director, Marvin "Doc" Holladay.

Kishuk teaches music at OU and Wayne State University. He has played with some of the biggest names in jazz including Gillespie, Freddy Hubbard and Mel Lewis.

Kishuk became involved in jazz in the late 1970s while a music student at Wayne State.

"It interested me more than other music. It wasn't just reading notes off a page," he said. "It was more fun, more challenging and harder to play than classical music."

Kishuk said that to play jazz you not only have to have command over your instrument but you have to be able to compose on your feet, handle music theory while you play. He said he admires jazz trombonists like J.J. Johnson and Carl Fontana and trumpeters like Freddy Hubbard.

"I like any hard playing, aggressive players on the edge," Kishuk said.

The March 7 performance is part of the university's Celebrate the Century arts festival.

"We're going back to the '40s. We'll do the big band theme songs such as Glenn Miller's 'Moonlight Serenade,' Duke Ellington's 'Caravan,' Charlie

'Dreamgirls' actor plays dreamy uncle in Birmingham

BY JULIE YOLLES
SPECIAL WRITER

Michael Goddard's about to lead a more plush vagabond existence. A product of an Air Force family, Goddard's used to moving around - having already lived in nine places in his 30 years - not counting the 18 cities that he'll have set up temporary residence in within an eight-month period this year. Three days ago, he packed up his clothes, laptop and favorite body pillow in Cleveland and boarded the bus with the cast and crew of "Dreamgirls" and headed to Detroit for a three-week run of the Tony-Award winning musical at the Detroit Opera House.

But this time, Goddard won't be staying in a downtown hotel like his other castmates. Instead, he's campin' out at his big sister Julie Brettschneider's house in Birmingham, along with her husband, Brad and their two daughters, Blair, 9, and Lane, 6-1/2.

In between e-mailing messages to Goddard, including Blair's and Lane's Girl Scout cookie order form, Julie Brettschneider's been busily coordinating ticket sales for "Dreamgirls" with her friends - she's planning on seeing the show at least three times. One of Goddard's and Brettschneider's sisters will also be flying in from Tucson to catch the show. She'll be staying with the Brettschneiders, too.

Goddard's Detroit agenda is getting pretty full. Brettschneider's got him lined up to speak at Quarten Elementary, Blair's and Lane's school. And, of course, there's delivering the 81 boxes of Girl Scout Cookies that Uncle Michael sold by proxy to the ensemble, on behalf of his nieces. In between extra rehearsals to tweak and polish the show for an expected spring of '98 Broadway opening, Goddard has places to go and things to buy, starting with lunch at Pronto's in Royal Oak, Greektown, the Ren Cen, shopping at Somerset and a cast dinner at the Brettschneiders.

Plus, a visit to the Motown Museum for sure. A logical choice, indeed, since "Dreamgirls" takes the audience on a musical behind-the-scenes journey of three young African American singers - The Dreamettes - in 1967 at the famed Apollo Theatre and follows their glitzy rise to stardom over a 10-year period, ultimately blossoming into The Dreams.

Though many are quick to point out that "Dreamgirls" is really the story of Diana Ross and the Supremes, "Dreamgirls" composer Henry Krieger has said

Detroit bluesman Robert Jones helps out with "Amazing Grace/That Kind of Grace."
 "They're two of the finest musicians I know. It was like good friends getting together and making music."
 On the album, Watroba explains the background and the inspiration of the songs. Before going into "Miss the Mississippi," he explains it reminds him of his father and the late Gamble Rogers.

 "My Sweet Wyoming Home," he jokes, reminds him of "the last time Gary and Neil and I got together back when we used to ride the rodeo in the 1930s up in Wyoming."
 He delves into his personal life by revealing that the Tom Paxton song "Home to Me is Anywhere You Are" was sung at his wedding to his high school sweetheart Kim.

 "It was a really cool night. I've only been talking about doing it for 16 years," he said about the recording of "Live at The Ark."
 Watroba explained that he is honored that he's been able to play The Ark since he was 15.

"In terms of folk music, it's the finest acoustic music room in the country. I feel really fortunate that I've been able to play there. People all over the country are dying to play there."
 Since that day in high school, Watroba hasn't strayed from his folk sensibilities.
 "What's kept me in folk music is it's shared music of our people.

The thing that makes folk music different (from other genres) is that it holds on to the tradition that brought it here. It doesn't seem to change like everything else."
 During his career, Watroba has shared the stage with Tuck and Patti, Don McLean, to whom Watroba's voice has been compared, and Donovan.

"He surprised me mainly because I didn't know what to expect. He told me stories for the whole hour and a half between shows."
 Watroba has had a successful career in teaching, radio and performing. But most importantly, he's opened for his hero, Paxton.
 "That kind of stuff is just precious."

Barnett's 'Skyliner.' We're trying to find out the realm of songs you always hear from those bands," Kischuk said.
 Not every number will be played the way you might remember it, either, Kischuk said. The OU group will involve various ensemble, solo and vocal performances. He said some numbers, such as a rendition of Miller's "In the Mood," will follow tradition while others will pursue new arrangements.

 The student ensemble players will include beginners as well as advanced performers who play around the metro area.
 The alumni band will be inviting back several name performers who studied at Oakland University. Holladay, who now lives in South Carolina, was director of OU's jazz studies program from 1972 to 1988 and was a member of the Stan Kenton Orchestra.

Players coming back include Walt Szymanski on trumpet from New York; tenor saxophonist Scott Peterson from San Francisco; guitarist Steve Carryer, director of the jazz guitar program at Wayne State; tenor saxophonist Steve Wood; tuba player

Brad Felt; and percussionist Jerry LeDuff.
 Kischuk points to the big bands of Toshiko Akiyoshi, Mel Lewis, Kenton and trombonist Dimitri Pagalidis as his favorites.
 The big band sound has had cycles of popularity since its heyday in the '30s and '40s. More recent bands led by Thad Jones and Mel Lewis, Akiyoshi and McCoy Tyner have taken new approaches to jazz in a large ensemble setting, which Kischuk said is necessary to keep the music alive.

 "In Detroit you have big bands that can't get arrested and ... you have Top 40 bands that make $5,000 a night. It's not so much economics as selling people that you can play other kinds of music," Kischuk said. "Some people think, 'This is what a big band sounds like,' but bands can play other things. Certainly, that's what Thad Jones was trying to do with his big band."

 On March 7, the vintage sounds of Glenn Miller and Duke Ellington and the newer sounds of Thad Jones will take center stage at Oakland University.

that the Motown sound was not his only inspiration. Krieger's musical influences also included Etta James, James Brown, Aretha Franklin, Dionne Warwick, Burt Bacharach, the Drifters and Ray Charles. "Dreamgirls" won two Grammy

Awards for its Broadway cast album, in addition to six Tony Awards in 1982: Book, Tom Eyen; Musical Actors, Ben Harney, Jennifer Holiday and Clea-wick, Burt Bacharach, the Drifters and Ray Charles. "Dreamgirls" won two Grammy

"Show biz is just show biz, which is the ongoing theme of the show," said Goddard from his hotel room in Cleveland on his one day off. "Everything good and bad that happens to the characters is just because it's show biz - a lesson that's proven in real life. In the end, it's just a business."

U.S. MARSHALS

STARTS FRIDAY!

Goddard, who now lives in New York when he's not on tour with a show, was cast in "Dreamgirls" as The Dreams' Press Agent, Frank, in May '97. Rehearsals began in August, and the first stop was Providence, R.I., in September.

"Frank is a pretty interesting character," says Goddard. "In the '60s, in order for (African American artists) dreams to be heard and presented in the right places - such as stories in newspapers - they needed someone like Frank, a white person, to convey the right things."

Goddard's been conveying his craft quite steadily since 1990, following graduation at Arizona State University, when he turned his lifelong hobby of theater into "a real job."

Ironically, Goddard made his stage debut in "The Music Man" with his sister Julie in 1976 in Tucson when he was his niece Blair's age.

"When Michael was little, he had all these Fisher Price People," recalls Brettschneider. He used to lock himself in his room and create elaborate scenes with his toys. We'd all be listening on the other side of the door and kid him about it later. We were merciless. We knew he'd end up being an actor."

"None of my siblings went into acting. I was the baby of five, so I had to do something to get noticed," Goddard jokes.

At 6-foot-4, the tallest member in the show, the Greg Brady-clone has no problem getting noticed.

"I only like it when people tell me that I look like Greg Brady and they say he's cute - the younger Greg Brady, that is, before he lost his hair."

In fact, Goddard remembers the time that Barry Williams, who played Greg Brady on "The Brady Bunch," was performing in "Promises, Promises" at the Birmingham Theatre in 1988.

"Ever since Julie moved to Birmingham, I always wanted to perform in a show at the Birmingham Theatre," says Goddard. Though that won't happen now that the Birmingham Theatre is a movie house, the play was the thing when Barry Williams was in town. A tennis enthusiast, Williams had his stage manager arrange a tennis game at Franklin Racquet Club. Turns out Williams' partner was Goddard's brother-in-law Brad Brettschneider. Williams won. "You know, customer tennis," says Brad.

Unlike her father, Blair has opted to forgo sports and follow in the footsteps of her Uncle Michael. Her most recent performance was with her sister, Lane, in the Birmingham First Theater Guild's production of "Hansel and Gretel."

"I told Lane to practice her lines," advised Blair. "And if she missees one, or somebody skips her line, I told her that she shouldn't announce it out loud and nobody will know."
 Spoken like a true Dreamgirl.

Ridgedale Players presented a spirited 'Brigadoon'

BY HELEN ZUCKER
SPECIAL WRITER

The Ridgedale Players production of Lerner and Loewe's "Brigadoon" is spirited. Co-directed by Barbara Anne Gowans, Dan and Annette See and Susan Borin, the cast of 12, the female and male chorus and the tech staff manage to make this nostalgic musical stay afloat.

Kevin Branshaw shines as Harry Beaton, the unhappy lover of Jean Maclaren, Beaton, the son of a weaver who "canna" go to Edinburgh to make something of himself, who cannot leave the town of Brigadoon and who has nothing to live for is a square pet. Branshaw conveys a Hardy-esque sense of unearned misfortune, of claustrophobia, especially in the forest scene where he is hunted by the well-intentioned menfolk and carelessly killed.

Megan Hughes is very fine as Fiona Maclaren, the girl who induces Tommy Albright to move from New York to Brigadoon. Hughes has great sweetness and she conveys it when singing "The Heather On the Hill," and "Almost Like Being in Love."

Bob Hagle as Tommy, the fickle lover from the Big Apple who learns to be true in Scotland, is decent, restless, earnest and believable. Tommy walks away from a good job, a girlfriend who's let him call off their wedding umpteen times and his best friend. Tommy is definitely not a man for the nineties. Hagle does a good job with the moving lyric, "There But for You Go I."

Carl Jones as Jeff Douglas, the fashionably drunk best friend who carelessly kills Beaton and gets to leave his bottle in a Scottish forest, does a fine job. Jones handles his wisecracks well.

Rebecca Hyke as the sought-after Jean Maclaren is a graceful dancer. Daryl Ziegelman as Charlie Dalrymple, the lad who gets her (and Edinburgh), brings lots of zest to his role. Roger Nowland as Andrew Maclaren, father of the two lassies, has a great accent and a commanding manner of speech that seems true to 1722, the year "Brigadoon" takes place.

Tania Velinsky is lusty and funny as the dairy seller who is half Gypsy, half Scot and 100 percent man-crazy. Michael Jerries looks the part of Mr. Lundie, the schoolteacher who explains the mystery of Brigadoon. Cheryl Adams does a solemn, graceful turn as Maggie, the sole mourner as Harry's funeral. Frank Gerace is a totally believable bartender. Jules DeWard does a great cameo as Jane.

Costumes by Doris Harmon and crew are good. The kilts are wonderful. The bagpipes before the wedding scene are the best thing about the production. The sword dance is effective; and sorting out the Scottish clan names is fun. The energy exhibited by the large numbers of people involved is awesome.

Funny man producer meets star animator

BACKSTAGE PASS

ANN DELISI

Some weeks this is easier than others. Writing in this space has been one of my favorite outlets since we started Backstage Pass over a year ago now at Detroit Public Television. It gives me a chance to talk to all the great segment hosts he have contributing in the various artistic disciplines. They're all top-notch professionals with real-world experience in their fields of expertise. They hail from respected places like WDET, Wayne State, the Detroit Institute of Arts and the like.

Then there's this week. This week, I'm talking with Jimmy Rhoades.

Jimmy's a tough interview. He's ostensibly one of the show's producers. Ask him what that means and he gives vague answers like, "I sometimes roll around in a big pile of press releases while my voice mail fills up." Then he laughs maniacally.

Jimmy's also an on-air contributor. "Why?" you ask. "What is his area of expertise?" Well, for 8-1/2 years Jimmy worked the road as a standup comedian (this is a self-reported description on his part). So when we have subject matter that we think might lend itself to a comedic touch, we send Jimmy to: a) incise and enhance said comedic offering, b) wring the comedy right out of the thing, leaving a sad, lifeless mess in its place, or c) it's a coin toss between a) and b).

Last week, he filled in for me on the air while I was out of town, and now he's contributing a report from the field. Is he behind the camera? In front of the camera? Apparently, he can't decide, caught in a Jekyll-and-Hyde-like duality that threatens to prevent him from even being a wholly actualized human being, or even from catching up on his filing.

So when we heard that Gallery Animator in Birmingham was bringing in cartoonist Paul Carlson for its exhibition of UPA Studio animation cels, we put Jimmy on the case. "When I was a kid, I wanted to be a cartoonist," Jimmy said, "and Paul Carlson is an example of why I should have done it. He's the nicest guy in the world, generous with his talent, and has absolutely loved his career."

And what a career he's had. Jimmy ran down his history. "Mr. Carlson wanted to be a cartoonist, so when he was 19 he moved to California hoping to get a job at Walt Disney Productions as an animator. They told him he had to have two years of college - he had none - so they turned him away. He told them, 'Call me if you have any openings.' Two months later he started out in the mail room. That was a great start because he delivered mail to everybody, Walt included. He expressed his interest in cartooning to some of the old animators and they took him under their wings.

"His credits at Disney include 'Sleeping Beauty,' '101 Dalmatians,' 'Lade and the Tramp' and 18 'How to Draw' books of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, Goofy, Pluto, Chip and Dale and Jiminy Cricket. He rose so high through the ranks that he was one of the few people who was cleared to sign Walt Disney's name to drawings.

"Mr. Carlson went up to UPA Pictures, who produced cartoons like Gay Purree, Dick Tracy and, of course, Mr. Magoo. He did a lot of work on Magoo, working in all phases of production, including the voice sessions with Jim Backus. He was the voice of Magoo and later played Thurston Howell III on 'Gilligan's Island.' Paul says that Backus was Magoo, that 50 percent of his lines were improvised.

"These animators never knew that these production cels would become collectibles. He says they threw most of the work away! He drew some characters for us, signed and dated them. He just loves to bring a smile to people's faces."

That's all on Backstage Pass, tonight at midnight on Detroit Public Television, repeated Friday at 7:30 p.m.

DINING

Mesquite Creek offers taste of Southwest

EATING OUT IN THE SUBURBS

Eating out is a treat, and if you're hungry for steaks or seafood, comfortable Mesquite Creek aims to please.

Owned by Brian Hussey of Ann Arbor and Mark Laramie of Plymouth, they just opened a second location in Canton and are celebrating their fifth anniversary in Clarkston.

"Brian was my next door neighbor in Union Lake," said Mike Ross, kitchen manager. "We grew up together. He was the best man at my wedding."

After graduating from college, Brian and Mike moved to Texas and ended up working in the restaurant business.

"Brian's dream was to open a restaurant in Michigan," said Ross. "He worked in many different restaurants in Houston."

The dream became reality five years ago when Brian and his father opened Mesquite Creek in Clarkston, which has been enormously successful.

Mark Laramie owned 60 Little Caesar's franchises and left his job as corporate group vice president to become a co-owner of Mesquite Creek.

"We're trying to create a nice warm, comfortable feeling," said Laramie at the new Canton restaurant, formerly the Misty Duck. "We changed the decor inside," said Laramie. "We warmed it up and made it more comfortable, airy and light."

The floor is ceramic, trimmed in wood. Original Southwest prints hang on the walls. There are 16 high back booths at the Canton restaurant, perfect for unwinding, and enjoying dinner.

"We're hometown guys running the show," said Laramie. "Mike's a great guy, and he's real good in the kitchen."

Besides steaks and prime rib, Mesquite Creek "sells a ton of seafood and chicken," said Laramie. "Everything we make comes off the mesquite charcoal grill. It puts magnificent flavor into everything."

They serve Certified Angus Beef, and the fish and chicken are purchased fresh daily, never frozen.

"We start with high level ingredients and keep it simple," explained Laramie. "Prime rib is one of our specialties. On Mondays and Tuesdays we offer Prime Time - prime rib, baked potato and salad for $10.99."

The salsa is made fresh daily from scratch, and served with Entertainment: Canton location - 7-11 p.m. Wednesdays, The Hits plays soft pop rock favorites. They perform 7-11 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays at Clarkston location.

 Banquet room: At Clarkston location, seats 60-70 people.

At your service: Kristy Young, Mike Ross and Steve Palmiere present some of Mesquite Creek's specialty items in the bar area of the newly opened restaurant in Canton.

hot homemade chips. Baked potatoes are huge, and served with your choice of toppings at no extra charge.

Starting with the lunch menu, Laramie pointed to the Spicy Chicken Soup - fresh chicken broth simmered with fresh vegetables and a hot chili puree, topped with a dollop of sour cream. There's also a corn chowder.

"It's made from scratch," he said. "Nothing from a can." Like the soup, you'll find a lot of the same items on the lunch and dinner menu. "There are more sandwiches and salads on the lunch menu," said Laramie. "Fresh seafood is available all day long."

Specialty items include Shrimp Tetonka - six large shrimp marinated in hot spices and garlic and grilled over mesquite is available as an appetizer with bleu cheese dressing or as entree Mesquite Shrimp.

Shrimp Brochette - extra jumbo shrimp stuffed with a sliver of jalapeno and monterey jack cheese, wrapped in thin bacon and mesquite grilled is another favorite. "People are just crazy for Chicken Durango - chicken breast topped with sautéed mushrooms, tomatoes, bacon, chives, and melted monterey jack cheese served with honey-dijon dipping sauce," said Laramie.

Southwest menu items include quesadillas, nachos, and fajitas. For dinner you can tailor your entree to your appetite. Sirloin is available in 8-ounce and 12-ounce sizes. Order prime rib in 8-ounce, 12-ounce or 16-ounce portions. Filet Mignon, New York City Strip, and Porterhouse de Pueblo are also available in different sizes.

Entrees are served with your choice of baked potato, Texas Fries or Creek Vegetables, and dinner salad. Caesar and Greek salads are other flavorful choices. There are also pork chops, lamb chops, veal chops and baby back ribs on the menu.

If you're craving surf n' turf, you'll be happy to know that you can add six mesquite shrimp, three pepper shrimp, three brochette shrimp or a lobster tail to any entree for an additional charge.

Grilled fish is another option at Mesquite Creek, choose from Mahi mahi, salmon, yellowfin tuna or swordfish.

Parents with finicky eaters will appreciate the children's menu, which includes grilled cheese, hamburger, shrimp on a steak, pork chop with apples and Mesquite chicken.

Save room for "Happy Endings" - Pecan Ball, Haagen-Daz ice cream rolled in toasted pecans and topped with Sander's Hot Fudge and real whipped cream, sopapillas, a Mexican pastry, and empanada - your choice of cinnamon apples or fresh sliced bananas and pecans wrapped in pastry and gently fried, served with vanilla ice cream, are among the choices.

"Our biggest claim to fame is that we serve the best quality, and large quantities," said Ross. "We love to see people leave with carry-out boxes. If people get more than what they expect, we expect they will come back."
