Storms keep city snowed under

Officials hoped for a warming trend as Westland was hit with several more doses of snow this week on top of what was already on the ground. A snow emergency was declared to give plows room to get through.

A new Westland snow emergency loomed Wednesday as city work crews battled new accumulations this week, in the aftermath of storms that started Jan. 2.

Westland Public Services Director Richard Dittmar warned all residents to heed a snow emergency that he said would start Wednesday morning and possibly last 48 hours or longer.

"Keep cars off the street," he said.

City road crews have received mostly favorable comments about their snowplowing efforts - aside from a few isolated complaints.

Dittmar held out hope for a warming trend and an end to wintry weather that has plagued the city this month.

"Our guys are tired. Our equipment is tired," he said Tuesday as more snow fell.

Even the Westland public library - a place where it seems residents could escape winter by delving into a good book - has had problems.

The library reopened Friday after closing for two days due to a faulty radiator control valve that spewed hot water and steam in the front lobby, Library Director Sandra Wilson said.

"We had to close for two days," she said.

Water and chemicals spewed and ruined two benches and left a black

Snowplows hit 3 cars; city to pay for repairs

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER
dclem@oe.homecomm.net

The city will pay for repairs to three vehicles hit by snowplows during street-clearing efforts prodded by snowstorm 1999.

"We hit three vehicles," Westland Public Services Director Richard Dittmar said. "We will pay for the repairs."

That came as welcome news to Patrick Derrig, who said his 1987 Cavalier Z-24 suffered an estimated $1,200 to $1,800 in damages on the night of Jan. 6.

A snowplow that hit his car on Parkwood kept going, and it apparently was the same truck that hit Wade Crall's company van about the same time - just a few houses away.

The owner of a third damaged vehicle didn't contact the Observer.

Dittmar said no city drivers notified him of the accidents, but he said the snow trucks are so heavy that employees might not have even noticed they had sideswiped the two vehicles on Parkwood.

Derrig and Crall said other family members looked out of windows after hearing loud noises and saw a city truck leaving the scene around 10 p.m. Jan. 6.

Dittmar said the damaged vehicles shouldn't have been parked on the street because a snow emergency had been declared, but he conceded that

Disabled man plagued by leaky apartment roof

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER
dclem@oe.homecomm.net

With two legs amputated and one arm rendered useless from a stroke, Tommie Thomas said he faces a grueling snowstorm problem.

A leaking roof at his Westwood Village apartment has dumped an estimated 300 gallons of water into buckets that he struggles to empty.

"It's almost a steady stream of water," Thomas, 59, said Tuesday.

He claimed that Westwood Village's management has failed to address a bedroom water leak that has plagued him and his 69-year-old wife since last Thursday.

"They haven't been doing nothing for me," Thomas said, adding that his wife is aging and can't effectively lift buckets of water, either.

Help may be coming soon, the Observer finally learned Tuesday, but getting an answer wasn't easy.

One man who answered an office phone simply laughed at the inquiry about Thomas' problem and suggested calling back after other workers returned from a morning break. He said to ask for Bob or Martha but didn't provide last names.

When reached later, a man who said he was Bob - again, no last name - refused to cooperate.

"I've got no comment, sir. Goodbye," he said.

WinterFest melts down to kids' activities program

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER
dclem@oe.homecomm.net

In its fifth year, Westland's WinterFest will be scaled back dramatically from past events that included sleigh rides, dances, ice sculpture displays, pancake breakfasts, musical performances and running competitions.

Organizers estimated last year's attendance at a disappointing 800 to 1,000 people, and they said events such as musical performances drew embarrassingly small crowds.

"I don't see a big outcry out there for the WinterFest," co-chairwoman Sharon Scott said Monday.

The festival that started as a three-day event in 1995 isn't dead yet, but this year's WinterFest will be reduced to a mere five hours - from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 7, at the Bailey Recreation Center.

What's more, organizers are gearing the entire festival toward children's activities.

"We tried to do a lot of different things last year and it just didn't work," Westland Parks and Recreation Director Robert Kosowski said. "We're seeing that the kids are what we really have to aim at, and we're really looking to put on a show for them."

Organizers say the success or failure of 1999's WinterFest may determine whether the city will even bother with an event in 2000.

Among this year's attractions:

- Large, inflatable slides and other playthings will fill the Bailey Center gymnasium.
- Max the Moose puppets will lead children in a sing-along.
- A yo-yo exhibition will show children an old hobby that is seeing renewed popularity.
- Skits will be performed by Westland All Stars.
- Magician Randy Shaw will perform.
- Children will get to see a show featuring live birds, snakes and other living things.
- Youngsters will attend an arts and crafts show to create their own keepsakes.
- Food such as pizza and popcorn will be sold.

By appealing to a younger crowd, organizers hope

Click. The phone slammed down: Thomas had said it wouldn't be easy getting answers from management at the apartment complex on Joy Road between Newburgh and Hix.

Finally, however, some help came from Richard Wade, property manager for Paragon Properties, which operates Westwood Village and apartment complexes in nine communities.

Wade apologized for office staff members whom he said have been under a lot of storm-related stress, and he said Paragon Properties hired a roofer to try to address leaking problems at all of its apartments.

Roof workers just hadn't gotten to Westwood Villa as of Tuesday afternoon, but Wade said they should be arriving soon and that Thomas' apartment would be "one of the first" to get repairs.

Wade said ice has formed a dam of sorts on the outer edges of some buildings, blocking areas where water would normally drain and causing indoor leaks.

"But roof workers have proceeded at a snail's pace" because of treacherous working conditions, he said.

"I'd like nothing better than to have wings and get up there with some heat device," Wade said. 'The landlords are stuck between a rock and a hard spot.'

Richard Wade
-property manager

He diverted much of the blame to building codes that he suggested may be inadequate during situations like snowstorm 1999. He said engineers and builders follow the codes - then landlords face problems when situations such as ceiling leaks occur.

"The landlords are stuck between a rock and a hard spot," Wade said.

He also noted that the snowstorm has been among the worst in recent history.

"This is unheard of for the lower part of Michigan," Wade said.

"Every day the list (of problems) grows," he added. "We're doing what we can."

In the meantime, Wade said Paragon Properties has offered to clean or replace Thomas' carpet and to offer him a reduction in his rent, although he didn't specify how much.

confusing information had appeared on local cable TV.

Derrig and Crall said they just want their vehicle repairs paid by the city, although early on it appeared they might face some hurdles.

The two men filed separate police reports and talked to City Hall employees who initially indicated that they might have to wait several weeks for results of insurance claims.

Derrig said he considered the incident a hit-and-run and vowed to file a lawsuit if necessary.

"If I hit a car and left the scene of an accident, I would be held responsible," he said. "I think the city should, too. It's a double standard."

Crall made a similar statement.

"When they hit my van, they should at least have had the decency to come to the door and tell me," he said.

Derrig, who works for a retail chain and has a master's degree in business administration, said his Cavalier was damaged all down the driver's side.

"The right rear panel had a huge, gaping hole," he said. "It knocked off the molding on the driver's side and scraped all down the side. It knocked off my mirror and my window fell down."

Derrig said his mother saw a city truck leaving the scene, "and she's willing to take a polygraph test or whatever."

He criticized the initial treatment he received by city employees.

"It's the arrogance of the city," he said Monday. "If I treated a customer like that, I'd be out of a job."

By Tuesday, Derrig had received encouraging news of the city's willingness to pay for his repairs.

"It looks like the city is going to work with me at this point," he said.

Crall, a maintenance technician, said the company van he drives suffered close to $3,000 in damages on the driver's side based on three estimates he received.

Derrig and Crall said other vehicles were parked along Parkwood at the time the car and van were hit, indicating that they weren't the only ones unaware of a snow emergency.

On Tuesday, Dittmar announced that a new snow emergency would be declared for Wednesday morning so that city workers could clear new snow from streets.

He urged residents not to park on city streets until they are sure the emergency has been lifted.

to boost attendance at WinterFest.

"We decided that we would try something different," Scott said. "Unfortunately it hasn't been as popular as I would like it to have been in the past."

"We'll see how this works out this year," she added. "I'd like to see it take off. If it doesn't, we may have to look at revamping it or canceling it."

Most of WinterFest's responsibilities have fallen each year on the same organizers, and some say they would welcome new planners.

"I'd like to see a whole group of people come in," Scott said.

Westland City Council members have allocated $20,000 for WinterFest 1999, but Scott predicted that little more than $4,000 will actually be spent.

Festival organizers have had their share of weather-related bad luck in past years.

Early on, WinterFest suffered due to subzero wind chills that Scott said kept many people in the warm comfort of their homes. And one year temperatures rose too high and caused ice sculptures to melt away.

"I think the weather has prohibited it from being successful," Scott said.

film in the front lobby area, prompting cleanup efforts.

"Everything was dripping wet," Wilson said, although fortunately the problem occurred in a lobby area away from library books.

Last week's closings followed a shutdown on Jan. 3-4 that Wilson blamed on heavy snowfall.

Library employees had to wait for city work crews to clear parking areas before opening for business in the wake of early-January snowfall.

Across the city, residents and officials alike have voiced repeated frustrations with seemingly endless snow that has fallen through much of January.

Dittmar has labeled the series of storms among the worst he has seen in his 27 years as a Westland city employee.

Planned adult playground draws neighbors' concerns

BY LILLY A. EVANS
STAFF WRITER

Some Haggerty Road residents aren't willing to welcome a high-tech adult playground into their neighborhood, for fear of more traffic jams.

At a recent Canton Planning Commission meeting, concerned residents said their piece about the possibility of increased traffic at Haggerty and Ford roads to accommodate Electropolitan, an entertainment destination for metro Detroiters planned by the owner of the Electric Stick in Westland.

The commission tabled the recommendation for approval to have coin-operated amusement at the proposed site on Haggerty Road between Ford and Cherry Hill roads until the Michigan Department of Transportation and the township completes traffic analysis. Discussion will continue at the Jan. 18 meeting.

Owner George Marvaso hopes to have 80,000 square feet comprised of arcades, billiards, a restaurant, a lounge, comedy club, theater, wide-screen televisions, waterfalls, fireplaces and high-tech light and sounds. The hours of operation would be 11 a.m. to 2 a.m.

Marion Stanton, who lives off Haggerty Road in Bedford Villas Condominiums, across the street, said she is opposed to the once-residential area becoming a place for adults to frolic into the night.

"It already takes 15 minutes to get to Ford Road and why do we need adult entertainment in Canton?" she said. "There's a school down the street, kids will be skipping school to go there."

Resident Linda Condash of Bedford Villas said she doesn't want to see traffic at 2 a.m.

Carol Ferenc, also of Bedford Villas, said she doesn't want the complex in her neighborhood and she will do everything in her power to stop it.

"I think they should build it on the east side of (the I-275 freeway) or a different location," Ferenc said. "I will get up a petition and go to every business and residence in the area and convince them that it's a bad idea."

Owner of the only house adjacent to the proposed site, Ted Robinson said he wasn't opposed to Electropolitan. He came to the meeting to see if they were going to discuss site plans.

Ferenc, though, cited Robinson's potential to profit by the sale of his home to developers.

Another resident said that since the Super Kmart opened on the northwest corner of Ford and Haggerty roads in 1997, it has become the worst intersection in Michigan.

Attorney Bryan Amann, representing Marvaso, added that Canton is lacking entertainment; people won't have to travel to Royal Oak or Ann Arbor if it's offered.

Amann suggested the commission grant conditional approval of the traffic survey.

Amann said he was disappointed the commission tabled the recommendation for approval of the coin operated amusement devices because now him and his client can't move on to the next step.

Commission Chairman Vic Gustafson said he was for tabling the issue because he said this is a vast project and he wants it to go through correctly.

Marvaso also owns Electric Stick billiards in Westland. He said that billiards are going to be a very small part of Electropolitan.

"I have traveled the United States to come up with something as unique as Electropolitan," he said.

An optimistic Bennett launches 2nd term

BY SCOTT DANIEL
STAFF WRITER
sdaniel@oe.housecomm.net

Loren Bennett was used to feeling the heat long before he became a state senator.

As a teenager, he worked in the painting booth of the Fisher Body Plant at Willow Run. It was good money for a young man trying to work his way through college, but it wasn't easy.

"I painted cars for a summer," said Bennett, now 47. "It was a tough, tough job. The heat, the fumes. It was hot. I was right outside the ovens where cars would go in to have the paint baked."

The job didn't last. But the lifetime resident of Canton never lost his desire to tackle a tough job.

Bennett is beginning his second term as 8th District state senator. The Republican handily defeated Wayne Mayor Kenneth Warfield in November to win reelection.

Besides excellent family support, party backing and hard campaigning, Bennett credits a positive attitude for his victory.

"We all have our ups and downs, but I always try to look for the bright side of things," he said. "We've got to look for the positive in people and the positive in everything."

"You've got to be positive, you've got to be upbeat. That's part of the secret for success."

Bennett's success in politics is a first for his family. His parents both worked for Wayne County, but never held an office. Neither of his older brothers, John or Sandy, had interest in politics.

While his father didn't hold office, he did have a strong party affiliation.

"He was a staunch Democrat," said Bennett. "He never voted for a Republican in his life."

Later start

Unlike many in the legislature, the township native didn't have a lifelong desire for political life.

The impetus for his career, in fact, came from a Canton Board of Trustees meeting in the late 1970s. As part of the Jaycees, he went to the meeting to help get an approval for an upcoming haunted house event.

"I sat there for the entire meeting hoping to be impressed," Bennett said. "I said to myself, 'This is my township board, I want to be impressed.' Well, I left feeling not impressed because of the bickering that was on the board and the way certain members treated people with a lack of respect."

"It was at that meeting that I decided, 'I can do this and I can do it better.'"

His quest to improve local government began by running for township trustee. Bennett was one of four new members elected to the board in 1980.

"I was a bit overwhelmed," he said. "It was like, 'You've worked so hard, now what?' I can remember studying every book, reading everything the township sent me."

He won the seat at age 29. "Everyone seemed much more experienced than I," Bennett said. "They had all served on the township board at one time or another. I was the only true novice person. I felt I had a lot of catching up to do."

He remained a trustee for eight years, then became Canton's clerk in 1988. Bennett described the job, which he held until 1994, as one he "absolutely loved."

He would've been content to remain clerk, but the Republican Party came calling in 1993. Bennett was asked to run for state

Senate

"I was so happy where I was at," he said, "I wasn't sure I wanted to do it."

Family affair

So Bennett sought the advice of his top aides — daughters Wendy and Cindy. He gave both girls veto power over his decision to run for the office.

Wendy told her dad to go for it. Cindy wasn't so sure, though.

"My youngest daughter said 'I'll get back to you,'" Bennett joked. By December of 1993, Cindy had "signed off" on his bid. His campaign began in earnest in April of 1994.

"A month before the election, (Cindy) wanted to change her mind about signing off," said Bennett. "She had had quite enough of campaigning."

Fortunately, Loren convinced his daughter that they should finish what they had started. Bennett won the state Senate seat by 1,700 votes.

His first term in Lansing proved to be a learning experience for himself and his family. Bennett said it also paid dividends when Wendy began college at Michigan State University in the fall of 1997.

He and his eldest daughter were able to meet for dinner, an ice cream cone or a walk around campus about once a week.

"It helped her with the transition and it helped me as far as just being able to spend time together," said Bennett. "It was one of the greatest experiences I've had."

While time is scarce between his work and the daily commute to Lansing, Bennett still finds time to be a soccer dad. He's extremely proud of Cindy, a 14-year-old Belleville High School freshman.

"She's our soccer star," he said. "She's in the Olympic Development Program. She is, for her age group, one of four goalkeepers for the state of Michigan."

The teenager, he says, plays constantly and works with a trainer once a week on skills and techniques.

"She has worked very hard and played soccer since she was 5 years old," Bennett added.

The job of being senator is important to him as is the job of Canton clerk to his wife, Terry, who was elected to fill the post in 1994. But the positions aren't top priority.

"Our two daughters are absolutely the most important things in our lives," said Loren.

Loren and Terry, an Ann Arbor native, were married in 1973 when they were both in their early 20s.

"By the standards of the early 1970s, we waited a long time," the senator said. "A lot of people I graduated with got married a year out of high school."

While Terry will remain clerk for the foreseeable future, Loren's time in the Senate will be up in four years. Bennett isn't sure what he'll do after leaving the Michigan Legislature. He knows what he doesn't want to do, however.

"I don't want to run for Congress," he said. "I see people going off to Congress and not a lot happening. I see so much that needs to be undone on the federal level and they seem always to be so paralyzed by politics. That's my perception, that they are paralyzed by politics."

Bennett said politics are put aside for the business of the people at the state level once election season ends.

"I just don't see politics as much of an issue on the state level," he added. "On the federal level, it seems like that's all there is."

Blanchard won't rule out run for Senate in 2000

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER
trichard@oe.homecomm.net

An "aw, shucks" look comes over Jim Blanchard's face when President Bill Clinton calls him "the best ambassador to Canada we ever had."

"That's Bill Clinton," shrugged Blanchard, who was ambassador from 1993-96 after four terms as a U.S. representative from Oakland County and two terms as governor of Michigan.

But retired Northwest Airlines executive Arch Yawn agrees with Clinton. "Northwest got the greatest benefit from his 'Open Skies' agreement. He (Blanchard) was good to us. All U.S. airlines benefited," said Yawn, now a resident of Kennesaw, Ga., but visiting the Dearborn Hyatt Hotel Jan. 11 to hear Blanchard address the Detroit Economic Club.

Blanchard, 56, boosted his book, "Behind the Embassy Door: Canada, Clinton and Quebec," saying the role of ambassador is more than sending faxes to the White House and pouring champagne at diplomatic receptions.

He put his own stamp on relations with the U.S.'s and Michigan's largest single trading partner in the "Open Skies" deal signed in February of 1995 to open up commercial airline flight paths between the two nations' largest cities.

"Within the next three years, U.S.-Canada passenger traffic increased 37 percent," Blanchard wrote in Chapter 6, "over 40 new pairs of cities received direct service for the first time, and traffic levels between many old markets such as Toronto-New York or Vancouver-Los Angeles increased dramatically.

Cities linked

"The combined net economic gain for both countries in activities and jobs was estimated in the billions of dollars, and all the airlines entered into creative joint ventures that resulted in better customer service and higher company profits."

Before that deal, Blanchard noted in 1993, "we had to fly from Baltimore because there was no direct Washington-Ottawa flight linking our two capitals."

His book is among the top 10

"Canadian readers are very interested in what Americans think about them, at least if the writer has a reputation for caring about them and spending some serious time with them," he said.

Running in 2000?

Any clues about a future political race, such as against Republican U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham in 2000? A few:

■ "I saw the job (as ambassador) as building a career rather than capping it," he wrote.

■ He had a lot of encouragement, and gave serious thought, to run in 1994, but decided he wanted to do the Canadian job first. Besides, 1994 was a bad year for Democrats.

■ "I don't have any plans (pause) to run for office (pause) at this time. To tell the whole truth - which some people have trouble doing occasionally (chuckling) - it's still too early

... I don't rule anything out," he said in a news conference.

■ Blanchard has had book signings in Brighton, Birmingham, Ann Arbor, Flint and Kalamazoo as well as in Washington and many Canadian cities. Grand Rapids, Traverse City and the Upper Peninsula are on his spring schedule.

■ His time is allocated to 60 percent to Michigan (his home is Beverly Hills), 20 percent in Washington (where he's a corporate lawyer in trade negotiations), and 20 percent on the road, mainly in book promotions.

The bad side of politics, he went on, is "raising money - spending more time raising money than learning issues, more time raising money than with their families, more time raising money than getting acquainted with the voters."

That, he said, is worse than the common notion that politicians sell their votes when

County offices closed Monday

Wayne County offices will be closed Monday in observance of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday, except for those departments providing essential services, such as the Wayne County Sheriffs and, if it snows, the county road crews.

Westland will be closed, but the nearby Wayne County Sheriffs facility on Henry Ruff will remain open that day.

All county offices are scheduled to open on Tuesday.

The closings affect those offices at the Wayne County Building in Detroit, including the county executive and the county commissioners, and the City-County Building, such as the county clerk's office. Wayne County Circuit Court will be closed at the Frank Murphy Hall of Justice.

SC may get 2nd chance at grant for tech center

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER
trichard@oe.homecomm.net

Schoolcraft College may have a second chance at state Jobs Commission money for advanced information technology training, said CEO Doug Rothwell.

Schoolcraft wasn't one of the eight finalists when the $30 million was passed out Jan. 12. Oakland Community College's Auburn Hills Campus and Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn got $5 million grants.

"Because of the number of strong applications received," said Rothwell in a press release, "there is also the possibility that additional capital funding will be made available to build more centers."

"Once the centers are open and fully operational, we expect about 30,000 students to be trained annually. And by providing more funding, even more Michigan men and women will be prepared to take the high-wage, high-skill, high-demand jobs of the 21st Century."

Rothwell, a heavy-hitter in Gov. John Engler's administration, heads the agency that includes parts of the old Commerce, Labor and Education departments. Engler in 1998 proposed and got a total of $50 million - $30 million for plant and equipment, $20 million for scholarships.

The Jobs Commission had planned to award five grants. Instead it awarded eight, said Christine Smiggen, an education and training consultant for the department. And she said other sites may get M-TEC certifications. This held out hope for institutions such as Schoolcraft, Focus:HOPE in Detroit and Macomb Community College which had competed stiffly for grants.

Other winners besides OCC and Henry Ford: Kalamazoo Valley Community College, $5 million; Northwestern Michigan Community College near Traverse City, $4.4 million; Lake Michigan College near Benton Harbor, $4.1 million; Grand Rapids Community College, $3 million; Bay de Noc in the Upper Peninsula, $2.3 million; and Kellogg Community College at Battle Creek, $683,000.

Schoolcraft proposal

Schoolcraft had proposed a $6 million 32,000-square-foot technology center addition to the Waterman Campus Center.

The center is designed to be a hub where business, students, faculty and the community can access and apply information technology.

The proposal outlined six major goals for the multiphase project:

- To increase information technology competencies as applied to local and regional manufacturing operations;
- To increase the number of workers with information technology skills in the current and future workforce;
- To redesign instructional methods in an effort to offer open-entry, open-exit learning;
- To create a state-of-the-art facility focusing on certified skill set instruction in information technologies;
- To improve the ability of companies and organizations to compete locally, nationally and globally;

■ To provide a central location for a variety of community and business services conducive to the economic health of the region.

The Michigan Jobs Commission visited Schoolcraft in October. During the visit, Schoolcraft officials received some positive feedback from Michigan Jobs Commission officials, who dubbed the plan a "strong proposal."

"We at Schoolcraft continue to believe that the focus, the delivery methodology and the value added business approach of our project is sound," wrote Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell to Cindy Ballard of the Michigan Jobs Commission.

"I sincerely hope that should the Governor be successful in securing additional funding, that Schoolcraft will receive strong consideration," McDowell wrote.

OCC plans

Because the Jobs Commission was slow picking through the 26 proposals, OCC won't meet a June 2000 target for completing construction. "We'll start classes before the building is up," said Cheryl Kozell, who wrote OCC's grant. "We're not gonna wait for that building to open."

Goal: to train 16,000 students over five years for work as personal computer support technicians, applications technicians, network technicians, database systems technicians, and operating systems technicians.

Court blocks tax on county building

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

A Court of Appeals panel has blocked the city of Detroit's effort to levy property taxes against the Wayne County Building at 600 Randolph in Detroit.

On Dec. 28, the appeals court said the issue has already been decided by the state Tax Tribunal, which ruled against the city in 1992 for the 1991 tax year.

Court of Appeals Judges Peter O'Connell, Roman Gribbs and Michael Talbot signed the opinion.

The city of Detroit sought to tax the building for the 1992-97 tax years on the grounds that it was "property owned by, or being acquired pursuant to, an installment purchase agreement" by a county. In the mid-1980s the county sold the building, the buyer renovated it, and the county is leasing it back.

After the Tax Tribunal's negative ruling, Detroit attempted to tax it for 1991. The Tax Tribunal declined to hear the case, applying the legal doctrine of res judicata — the question already has been decided.

Detroit had argued that "res judicata" does not apply to Tax Tribunal decisions, but the appellate judges disagreed. "The Tax Tribunal is a 'quasi-judicial agency.'"

"Because by its nature the appeal process does not contemplate a new, original action, decisions of the Tribunal are clearly intended to be final decisions on the merits."

The court added: "Indeed, public policy would be poorly served if, in the face of unchanged circumstances, taxing authorities were at liberty to renew annually the assessment of taxes against a taxpayer who had won recognition of a right to avoid those taxes."

Mary Nassar, Wayne County assistant corporation counsel, said the county's argument that the statute allows property to be exempt when it is in the process of being purchased by the county.

John Ronayne, an attorney from the Detroit firm of Kasiborski, Ronayne & Flaska who represented the city of Detroit, could not be reached for comment on whether Detroit would appeal the ruling.

Snow won't stop Plymouth ice fest

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

rechtinaw@oe.homecomm.net

We've all had our fill of snow, and now it's time for the ice.

The Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular continues through Monday in Kellogg Park.

Ice show organizer Mike Watts and Plymouth Municipal Services Director Paul Sincock say the snow won't hinder the show or block access to parking.

"I think we'll be fine," Watts said. "There's a lot more stress than we'd like, but that's what we're here for."

Sincock said city crews and private contractors are clearing streets and parking lots and hauling the snow to the parking lot at a ball field at Plymouth and Haggerty roads.

The annual event is the oldest and largest ice carving event in North America and usually draws more than 500,000 visitors to see hundreds of artisans transform 400,000 pounds of block ice into works of art. Admission is free.

"Most people who are into ice carving want to come to this event," Watts said. That includes carvers from Canada, Japan, Norway, Russia and Switzerland.

The event is composed of displays and competitions. The competitions are sanctioned by the American Culinary Federation. More than $10,000 in prize money, scholarships and awards will be given away.

Many of the carvers are culinary arts students from area community colleges.

Expected to participate this year are students and chef instructors from Schoolcraft College, Henry Ford Community College, Oakland Community College, Macomb Community College and Monroe Community College.

Chef Dan Hugelier will bring 20 students from Schoolcraft College and help them build a City of Atlantis scene.

HFCC will be represented by the Ice and Snow Sculpturing Club and chef Richard Teeple. They will carve a "Star Wars" scene out of 30 blocks of ice this year with Darth Vader engaged in a light saber battle with Luke Skywalker as R2D2 and C3PO look on.

Oakland Community College culinary arts students will contribute a group of carvings representing characters from the movie "A Bug's Life."

Chef Jeff Wolf plans to bring 16 culinary arts students from Macomb Community College to the Plymouth ice show. They intend to build Noah's Ark and several pairs of animals from 48 blocks of ice.

A team of engineers from Virtual Engineering of Plymouth plan to build a working clock with nothing but ice.

Children will enjoy the Farmer Jack Fantasyland, located in the Gathering. This year's theme is "Insects Inside" and features displays of wild and crazy bugs. Electric trains will complement the Fantasyland display, weaving in and out of the sculptures.

The ice spectacular is open 24 hours a day, and some say the best way to beat the crowd is to go after the 11 p.m. news when the sculptures are lit for your viewing pleasure.

Languages needed

Blanchard touched on a subject he raised in 1985 as governor - the need for foreign language instruction in public schools at elementary, middle and high school levels. It was recommended by his blue-ribbon commission.

Canada officially is bilingual - English and French. All store products are in two languages. In Quebec, the "language police" yanked kosher products off the shelves because labels were in Hebrew rather than French, he recalled.

Blanchard still believes foreign languages - notably French (the diplomatic language) and Spanish (for Mexico, Central and South America), and perhaps Chinese - are important. His two years of high school

French got him into Michigan State University, but he admitted he could only "communicate, not converse," in French now, even after State Department coaching.

Three things are unlikely to happen, he predicted:

- Quebec's separation. In a direct election, it would go down "2-1."

- A common currency, like the European euro, for Canada, the U.S. and Mexico, the three partners in NAFTA. "We're not ready for that. The value of the Canadian dollar is 64 or 65 cents in our money. It's not workable at this time," he told the Economic Club audience.

- U.S. adoption of the metric system. "Political suicide," a senior congressman advised him - even though manufacturing, drug and liquor companies use it.

Jail crews to shovel snow

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano will extend the use of jail work crews to shovel and remove snow from community locations throughout the county.

Priority service will be extended to senior citizen housing complexes, schools, community centers and other locations where the snow poses a safety risk.

Seniors can contact the Sheriff's Department for assistance at (313) 224-2233 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Celebrations Take time to honor King

He had a dream that lives on — and Westland residents will have a couple of chances to celebrate the life of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. next week.

We hope residents will take the opportunity to celebrate the life of a man who truly had vision in his work for civil rights. Two local events are planned — one during the morning and one during the evening — offering opportunities to fit most schedules.

■ In honor of the slain civil rights leader's birthday the city will host its second annual march to begin at 9 a.m. Jan. 18 at the Wayne-Westland school district's Dyer Center on Marquette and continue to the senior citizen Friendship Center on Newburgh. The march route has changed. Last year, marchers walked from the city's Bailey Recreation Center to the Westland public library.

■ Another celebration will begin at 6 p.m. at the Westland-based Salvation Army, 2300 Venoy, where church choirs and student skits will honor King.

The keynote speaker will be Col. Franklyn Thompson, divisional commander of The Salvation Army.

The morning march will move west on Marquette from the Dyer Center and then north on Newburgh to the Friendship Center for a variety of activities.

A performance by the John Glenn High School Singers and a recitation of King's much-celebrated "I Have A Dream" speech by the Rev. George Johnson, among other activities, will be featured.

The Friendship Center program will be led by master of ceremonies John Franklin, a longtime Westland political activist.

At 6 p.m. The Salvation Army celebration is expected to draw participants from Westland, Inkster, Wayne, Romulus and other cities.

The Salvation Army program will include church choirs and Adams Middle School students performing skits recalling the civil rights movement.

King's work and leadership with the civil rights movement continue to be felt today. Events marking his birthday will be held all across the nation and the local celebrations offer us the opportunity to get involved near home.

While the city was tardy in implementing a King celebration, the idea of making the King birthday a city holiday is still being considered. Even as that issue is debated in contract talks, Monday's celebrations offer a chance to pay tribute and to remember a man who made a difference.

Attending local events not only help us in remembering King and his message, they help us realize how far we've yet to go in furthering civil rights in this country.

New breed of judges on bench

Ri-i-ight face! Forward (we hope) march!!

Gov. John Engler is using his power of appointment to put an interesting new face on Wayne County's judiciary.

He elevated Court of Appeals Judge Robert Young Jr., a member of the Federalist Society, to the state Supreme Court.

He elevated Circuit Judge Brian Zahra, a member of the Federalist Society, to a 1st District Court of Appeals vacancy.

He elevated Washtenaw Judge Kurtis Wilder, a member of the Federalist Society, to another 1st District Court of Appeals vacancy.

Late last year, he promoted Redford District Judge Daniel Ryan, a member of the Federalist Society, to the Wayne Circuit bench.

Also in the last year or so, he promoted Wayne Circuit Judge Michael Talbot, a member of the Federalist Society, to a 1st District Court of Appeals vacancy.

In 1997, he promoted Appeals Judge Clifford Taylor, a Federalist Society member, to the Supreme Court.

In 1998, he engineered the nomination of Appeals Judge Maura Corrigan, a Federalist Society member, for the Supreme Court and helped get her elected.

More than mere Republicanism is involved here.

The Federalist Society was founded, we are told, at Harvard University in the early 1980s. Its members — lawyers, judges and the likes of U.S. Sen. Spencer Abraham — believe judges should apply the law (statutes and constitutions) as written. They abhor substituting one's personal view for the written law. It sounds close to the "strict constructionist" philosophy.

Well, we shall see. It would be unfair to judge the judges before they have done a year or two of judging.

We can note, however, that Taylor and Corrigan were reversed when the state Supreme

■ One can agree intellectually that judge-made law is suspect. We would point out, however, that the U.S. Supreme Court's school desegregation decision was judge-made law; that its Miranda decision regarding use of confessions was judge-made law; and that its Gideon decision, regarding appointment of lawyers for indigents facing prison terms, was judge-made law.

Court decided a renters' civil rights case in favor of the renters. Taylor and Corrigan were sharply reversed by the Supreme Court in a lost-pay case for a wrongly fired janitor.

Those cases were decided prior to Jan. 1, when Corrigan joined the court and in which Taylor took no part. So the court has changed sharply as of 1999. It can be expected to be tougher on plaintiffs in civil rights and labor cases.

One can agree intellectually that judge-made law is suspect. We would point out, however, that the U.S. Supreme Court's school desegregation decision was judge-made law; that its Miranda decision regarding use of confessions was judge-made law; and that its Gideon decision, regarding appointment of lawyers for indigents facing prison terms, was judge-made law.

So judge-made law is far from all bad.

We hope the Federalist Society members, as they apply the written law, will also recognize Americans' great reverence for common-sense decency. We remind them of the question the late U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren used to ask attorneys during oral arguments: "Yes, yes, but is it fair?"

Blizzard of '99

Was the great Blizzard of '99 a message from God? I say yes. Which is pretty scary, since I'm usually an agnostic on religious matters.

During the blizzard, we got a preview of what I call the economics of chaos. With roads impassable, many of us were trapped in our homes with minimal provisions hoping the electricity would stay on.

Others were in long lines at the supermarkets. Still others were seeking out snow shovels and snow blowers, at any price. But was all this merely a preview of bigger things to come?

Consider: Washington is trapped in a totally loony impeachment trial. And Wall Street is like an old friend exhibiting increasingly psychotic tendencies. Manic one day, depressive the next.

Meanwhile, Bill, Monica, Saddam and the starving millions of Russians seem like Hollywood central casting's selections for Book of Revelations, The Movie.

And, later this year, the Y2K computer bug is threatening many aspects of life as we know it — like the electrical grid, the banking system and air travel, to name only a few.

Finally, our beloved U.S. dollar is being attacked from Asia by the Kamikaze Japanese yen, and from Europe by a blitz from the newly minted European euro.

If 1999 is going to be the year of the great blizzard, then maybe it's time for us to remember the old Boy Scout motto: Be prepared.

port public education and hundreds of thousands more to send their children to schools where they knew they'd get a better education?

■ Does "they" refer to the increasing number of parents who, while they still pay taxes for public schools, have become so turned off by public schools that they'd rather teach them at home?

■ Does "they" refer to people who have children in public schools, but worry about lack of discipline, lack of academic standards, and would like to be able to choose another public school?

■ Does "they" refer to people who would like to use their own tax money to support their own children's education.

■ Does "they" refer to people who feel that they should have choices where to spend their own tax money for education like they have choice in what cars to buy and where to live?

Getting past that first word, I found out that "they" referred rather to the radical right who pay no taxes and use gimmicks and propaganda to cover up their real motives of destroying public schools. Turns out that Tim Richard is as perceptive as Hillary Clinton, who also warned us about this group.

I just finished reading Tim Richard's article regarding state aid for private schools. And as much as I've tried to understand what he had to say, the very first word "they" stuck in my throat. OUR MISSION: "Because we publish community newspapers, we think about community journalism in a fundamentally different way than our bigger competition. They consider themselves to be independent from the stories and communities they cover, swooping in to write the unusual or sensational and then dashing off to cover something else. We regard ourselves as both accurate journalists and as caring citizens of the communities where we work."

POINTS OF VIEW

Are airport, county officials just offering a snow job?

My almost 4-year-old granddaughter learned a new word last week: "canceled."

Her Jan. 4 Northwest flight from Boston to Detroit was "canceled," she told me sadly over the phone. "I can't get home and I miss my cats." "Guess what," I told her with false brightness from Juno Beach, Fla. "Papa's and my flight was canceled, too."

That, of course, was our Jan. 2 Northwest flight from West Palm Beach, as well as our rebooked Jan. 4 flight that also did not fly.

She and her parents finally got home in the wee hours of Jan. 6, after their rebooked flight was delayed more than three hours and their baggage for two.

We finally got home by standing by for a Jan. 6 Northwest flight, which was reputedly overbooked. As it turned out, even after the standbys had been boarded, 10 seats flew empty to Detroit.

Like many, ours was a story of inconvenience caused by the largest winter storm to hit metro Detroit in 20 years. Meryl Rackley of Birmingham tells of taking her daughter to the airport on the afternoon of Jan. 3, after her morning flight back to college in Minnesota had been ... you guessed it, canceled.

They kept an ear to the radio, and continually called Northwest. "It took a lot of maneuvering to get there — and four hours out of our day. If they could only have announced not to bother coming to the airport," she says.

Because as they approached through the glassed-in passageway between the parking deck and the Northwest Terminal, "It looked like Dante's Inferno," Rackley describes. "People were writhing around."

Once they entered the terminal, "The check-in was a five-hour wait, people were angry, tempers were short, most of the people in line had been stranded," Rackley recounts. "It looked like a homeless shelter with families lined up against the wall."

Rackley saw, and then heard, the difference between inconvenience and real hardship. Because before they headed for home — daughter Alison finally got out on Jan. 6 — they ran into one of Alison's former Seaholm High School classmates, who had been there for 27 hours trying to get to Philadelphia. In retrospect, Rackley couldn't be sure whether that included his eight hours on a runway.

Perhaps he'll decide to join the class-action lawsuit filed a week ago against Wayne County and Northwest Airlines. I can't say I blame those who were confined to a plane immobilized on the runway without food, water and adequate bathroom facilities for up to eight hours.

It shouldn't have happened, but when it did, good sense and good manners demanded more than a mere apology from Northwest. Immediately awarding each wronged passenger a sizable number of miles of free air travel in 1999, plus a year's free entrance to their airport clubs, might have dispelled such a lawsuit.

My personal experience is that a lawsuit takes on a life of its own, regardless of common sense. And, as we've all seen with the magnification of President Bill Clinton's sexual dalliance into a full-blown constitutional crisis, it's nearly impossible to stem the legal process once it is set in motion.

Northwest and the Wayne County officials who run Metro first blamed one another for the catastrophe. But as rumors of the lawsuit took hold, they put up a united front without further recriminations. It was reported that they agreed to "tweak" the airport's snow removal process, including putting an airport representative in the airlines control tower during snow plowing, and to think twice about landing planes in Detroit unless assured they can be accommodated.

We'll have to wait to see whether their public unity is a whiteout primarily designed to subvert legal action or a real effort to plow through the drifts of poor cooperation and planning.

Meantime, here's another cancellation: the notion of Detroit Metro as any (air)port in a storm.

City's King event offers chance to reach out to others

It's January and I'm snowed in, so I might as well put away holiday decorations and set my goals for 1999. As I read the holiday cards for the last time before recycling them, I'm struck by the frequency of the greeting "Peace on earth and goodwill to all." None of the cards said "Goodwill to those who think, worship and look like you," but they said "Goodwill to all." So I stop packing decorations and explore what this means to me.

As I look around Westland, I realize how rich we are in diversity. I see it in the variety of religions and places of worship, the ethnic restaurants, grocery stores and other shops and the new faces in our schools, neighborhoods and stores.

Communities such as Westland are not composed of people with similar styles and tastes, or even of people who necessarily like and understand each other. They are built of people who feel they are part of something that is bigger than themselves, and that "something bigger" is the responsibility of teaching future generations respect through what we say and the way we act toward each other, whether we are a parent, neighbor, mentor, teacher, employer, relative or friend. As parents, our values are constantly called into question by our children who ask the most embarrassing questions about the way others dress, look, speak or act. As parents and role models, we have to figure out how to respond in a way youth will understand what it is we believe; then we have to live what we say.

My beliefs and experiences indicate that Westland has entered a new phase of unity-building among racial and cultural groups. On Jan. 18, the city of Westland will be sponsoring the second annual Martin Luther King Jr. program. It will be held at the Friendship Center at 9:30 a.m., preceded by a walk from the Dyer Center on Marquette at 9 a.m.

It is my hope that this event will inspire us to learn more about the ethnic, cultural, religious and racial groups present in Westland. Studies indicate that prejudice, stereotypes, mistrust and fear are the result of a lack of one-to-one contact with people we perceive as different. As we approach the new millennium, wouldn't it be exciting if each person or family in Westland reached out to at least one other person or family of a different race, culture, or religion in an effort to really listen to and learn from each other and to establish a relationship?

Returning to my holiday greetings of "Peace on earth and goodwill to all" I'm reminded of a Chinese proverb: "If there is right in the soul, there will be beauty in the person. If there is beauty in the person, there will be harmony in the home. If there is harmony in the home, there will be peace in the world." My goal for 1999 is peace and harmony.

Religion has role in our culture

By my count, most Michigan stores started taking down their Christmas decorations at midnight on Dec. 25. Everybody knows — especially kids — that the post-Christmas sales start on Dec. 26.

By biblical count, it took 12 days for the wise men to travel to Bethlehem to pay homage to the infant Jesus. Although relatively few know it, that's the origin of the "12 days of Christmas," which ended last week on Jan. 6.

Score a small one for the progressive secularization and commercialization of our society.

More insidiously, consider the kids at Scotch Elementary School in West Bloomfield. Holiday decorations in the school halls this season consisted of Dana, the unisex plastic foam life-sized snowperson, who collects donations for needy families.

According to a story in the Detroit Free Press, Donald Cohen, director of the Michigan Anti-Defamation League, says, "It's best for schools not to focus on religion or any one particular holiday at this time of year. The only reasonable way to deal with the holidays at school is as a secular or seasonal activity."

Score a big one for the progressive purging of values from our culture.

Holidays are tough for schools. School officials are afraid of offending parents. They don't want to exclude children who don't celebrate mainstream holidays. And they are scared of being sued by violating the constitutional separation of church and state.

When I was growing up, schools without a second thought wholeheartedly embraced Christmas as an accepted holiday of a majority Christian culture. I learned the verses (all of 'em) to the Christmas carols in school, and I'll bet most readers my age did, too.

After people realized there were others than Christians in our nation who might want their particular holidays and culture recognized, schools tried to celebrate a variety of holidays — Christmas, Kwanzaa, Hanukkah. But such attempts at inclusion have fallen afoul of the culture police.

This year, the Anti-Defamation League sent a letter to Detroit metro area school superintendents reminding them that "religious neutrality is essential in our public schools."

Last year, schools in Farmington adopted a district policy on religion. Public holidays such as Christmas can be recognized with parties and parades, but not observed. The policy says that observance would "commemorate or instill commitment to the values and beliefs represented by the holiday."

Score yet another big one for the progressive value-free secularization of our culture.

PHILIP POWER

If schools are not going to help "instill commitment to the values and beliefs represented" by religious holidays, how is it going to be done? "By the family," answer progressives, probably rightly in theory. But anybody who has tried to raise kids these days knows full well there are lots more influences on the development of culture in a young person than solely the warm family hearth.

Answer me this: Does Mattel Corp., the company that makes all the toys, have as much to do with the culture assimilated by young people as family discussions around the dinner table? Does watching MTV have as much impact on forming a kid's cultural norms as high-minded discussions of ethics on PBS?

As long as we purge religious understanding from our schools, we cut ourselves off from one of a diminishing number of sources by which a culture of values can be communicated throughout our society.

I'm not about to go whole hog with the religious right and claim that we must bring prayers back to the schools. I must admit those folks have a point when they talk about the progressive secularization of our culture, the elimination of values and ethics from our schools, the substitution of the common for the sublime.

As a society, we seem to be in the midst of letting the entertainment industry define our national culture because we can't find a good way to communicate values beyond the commercial and the secular without supposedly offending somebody with quick access to a lawyer.

At a time when our political system is has been brought to chaos by considering whether to remove a president who has debased his office through prosecution by the House of Representatives that has debased the Constitution, that's a sorry state of affairs.

State tax checkoff will help children

As hundreds of thousands of Michigan State Income Tax Forms are arriving in mail boxes, another major campaign to prevent child abuse and neglect across the state begins. The tax season is also the biggest season for donations to the Children's Trust Fund, a nonprofit organization that funds child abuse and neglect prevention in local communities and across the state.

The money raised through the Michigan State Tax Form Check-Off campaign will fund essential child abuse prevention and neglect services to local program grant funding.

"Over the years, CTF has provided funding to programs that have touched the lives of over 2.7 million children and 600,000 families. So much has been accomplished, yet so much needs to be done," said Candace Sorensen, Children's Trust Fund chairwoman.

According to Sorensen, there are three ways that you can make a difference for children with CTF:

■ Donations through the Michigan State Income Tax Form Check-Off.

■ By making a direct check or money order donation to CTF at P.O. Box 30037, Lansing, MI 48909.

■ By participating in CTF's local fund-raising activities.

Parents need to connect with schools

By now, the fall parent/teacher conferences have come and gone. Many parents are exasperated by what the teacher has said about their child; many students are feeling defeated and tired of trying.

These children have not only started complaining that school is boring, they complain of headaches and stomach aches and may even say out loud that, "The teacher hates me."

Not knowing quite what to do, the parent often does nothing.

Numerous studies have proven beyond a shadow of a doubt that the parents who get very connected to their child's school will have children who fare better academically.

Preventive measures start when parents do three things:

■ First, introduce yourself to the teachers during the first few weeks of school. Staying in touch with them by phone or notes lets them know that you care about your child's school experience.

■ Second, let the teachers know when you are available. It gives the teacher permission to share with you their observations about your child and possibly preempt potential problems.

"I've noticed that Megan has seemed really sleepy in school. Can you think of any reason why she would be tired?"

Together, you and the teacher can problem solve before it becomes too much of an issue.

■ Third, make a point of telling the teacher about changes at home that may affect your child. Teachers can be more helpful to children when they understand what may be going on at home.

Children can become consumed with their parents' divorce, or a new baby, causing them to pay little attention in school. Often, kids who seem to have wandering minds have something of importance on their mind.

But let's say that you have not gotten involved at school, and you are faced with a cranky child who now doesn't want to go to school. What do you do?

It's time to understand what might be going on.

■ Check with other parents to see how their kids feel about that class. If other children are experiencing the same symptoms, you and other parents may want to lobby for some changes.

■ Call the teacher and ask if you can sit in on the class. This will give you a better perspective on how your child interacts with the rest of the class.

You may discover that your child is too social in the class and doesn't get any of the work done. You may find that they are intimidated by the teacher raising his or her voice and your child is very sensitive to it.

■ Involve your child in the solution. Together with your child, meet the teacher after school and talk about what's gone wrong as well as ways that your child can do better.

Ask your child in front of the teacher if they're happy about the way things are - for example, their grades, their stomach aches, the teacher being angry with them. Rarely is there a child who thinks that the situation is just fine the way it is.

To engage them in the solution, have everyone tell what they could do to help the situation. The teacher may offer to send a note each week, indicating the homework assignments that aren't finished. You could say that you will spend time each evening going over the assignments with your child.

■ Last but not least, your child must offer up what they will do to change. If they shrug their shoulders and just sit there, prompt them with statements like, "It sounds like you get yourself in trouble every time you are around, Timmy. How could you change that?" or "It seems like you

That's 'eeee': Stefan Jackel of Germany has been an au pair for less than two months and already is teaching Nancy Malone's 4-year-old son Jonathan the alphabet by showing him tricks with each letter.

Foreign flair

Families turn to au pairs for care

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER
cfuoco@oe.homecomm.net

A single mother of three children, Nancy Malone was having panic attacks trying to balance her family, her Canton home and her work as a home care physical therapist.

She didn't realize that other parents weren't staying up all night trying to finish housework and other odds and ends around the home.

Noticing Malone's fragility, one of her friends suggested that maybe she should get an au pair to help out.

"I had three kids; they're all very active and I was running all the time. I started to have panic attacks," Malone explained. "I'm busy all the time. I needed someone to take the kids to school and back."

Soon, the panic attacks subsided and she had more time for her children - all thanks to the au pairs that she has had.

"You never have a snow day. You know if they're sick. They're taking three weeks' vacation and you know what their vacation is," she said.

Kim Wisniewski of Canton was in situation similar to Malone. She and her husband, Dave, were constantly on the run with their four children - Michael, 7, Matt, 5, Taylor, 3, and Zachary, 16 months.

When a friend came over to help out for a day, Wisniewski realized that maybe she needed help. She is on her second au pair and hasn't turned back since.

"I love it," she said of having an au pair. "I could do without this one," she added as a joke about Britta Reiss, 20, of Germany. "It really helped a lot. I don't think I could do it by myself and be as involved with the kids as I am."

"The other benefit was that even though I'm an at-home mom, I felt the kids weren't getting enough attention. This way I can take one of the kids out to lunch, or do something special with one of them. I have a lot more quality time with them."

Sharing a book: German au pair Britta Reiss, 20, reads to Zachary Wisniewski, 15 months, and his sister Taylor, 3, at the Wisniewski home in Canton.

Family affair

Malone's goal with her au pairs is to make them part of her family. When a foot of snow was recently dumped on the area, her latest au pair, Stefan Jackel of Germany, stepped right in.

"You saw him shoveling; he didn't have to do that," Malone explained. "He wasn't even working. One of the other au pairs wouldn't do that. But it's their job to be part of the family. When it all comes together, it's wonderful."

And that sums up his kindness. Although Jackel only came to the United States from Germany nine weeks ago, Malone said he's fitting in nicely.

He takes her 4-year-old son, Jonathan Malone, swimming at the Summit, and plays basketball with her 14-year-old son, T.J. Winowiecki. Danielle Malone, her 11-year-old daughter, teases Jackel like a younger sister would harass an older brother.

"It's pretty cool; I have someone to play with who's older. We play basketball. I try to work up to his level," T.J. explained shyly.

But T.J. has the upper hand - literally.

"He's a lot taller than me," Jackel said jokingly.

In a family of boys, Danielle was especially close to the family's first au

Coordinators make au pair program work

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER
cfuoco@oe.homecomm.net

Kim Wisniewski has only been involved with au pairs for a short time, but she has a few recommendations for those interested in hiring an au pair.

"I think the most important thing is to find a coordinator that you feel comfortable with," Wisniewski said.

She and Nancy Malone went through Au Pair USA and coordinator Deb Martin, who agrees with Wisniewski.

"I think people should choose an au pair program for two reasons - the way the program matches and how it does their screening," said Martin who can be reached at (248) 645-0386. "They also need to make positively sure that the coordinator is someone they feel comfortable with. That way if the family needs support, there's someone locally they can count on."

The United States Information Agency designs and regulates the au pair programs. It does not allow au pairs to care for infants younger than 3 months. If the child is younger than age 2, the au pairs must have 200 hours of documented infant care experience.

It also regulates that au pairs are between the ages of 18 and 26, high school graduates, proficient in conversational English and hold international driver's licenses. The au pairs come Red Cross safety and CPR certified, according to Martin.

Au pairs don't come cheap. The application fee for Au Pair USA is $250. When the family accepts an au pair, the placement fee is $1,750. The $2,320 program fee includes airfare, paperwork, medical insurance and the four-day training session in New York. Once au pairs move in with their host families, they are paid $139.05 per week.

"Our program costs are a little less than most programs," said Martin, who has been an au pair coordinator for six years. "The $139.05 is standard. That only changes if minimum wage changes."

The au pairs also arrive with J1 student visas which requires them to take up to six credit hours of study within 12 months. The host families pay up to $500 of the au pairs' tuition.

With seven au pair organizations - EF Au Pair, Au Pair USA, Au Pair Care, Au Pair in America, Euro Au Pair, Au Pair Programme USA and Au Pair Intercultural - to choose from, Malone and Wisniewski would recommend Martin for two reasons.

Wisniewski was impressed that dossiers for each au pair included background information and references.

"Some organizations send the dossier to three or four families; I didn't like that," she said. "Before we looked at Britta's, we turned one down. She was a smoker. A lot of Europeans smoke."

Malone turned to Martin when she hit a trouble spot with one of her au pairs. She preferred not to disclose the problems.

"I was done then; I didn't want to go through that again," she said.

Shopping with daughters: Skip the conflict

BY ALICE MCCARTHY
SPECIAL WRITER

Ask any mother and her adolescent daughter if they're looking forward to shopping for clothes, and they'll most likely say "no."

Ask them when they had their last big fight, and it may well have been when they shopped for back-to-school clothes or even the daughter's latest pair of blue jeans.

Why can't moms and growing daughters shop in peace? According to the newsletter, "Daughters," some of the pressure comes from girls themselves. Adolescent girls often worry about a shopping trip weeks before it happens. They feel pressure to be the "right" size - a size that's considered pretty or popular.

By the time an adolescent girl enters the dressing room, she may be feeling miserable about her appearance. She's likely to be judging her body with an incredibly critical eye. She's hardly in the mood for a warm mother-daughter moment.

Some of the pressure can come from parents, too. If a mother or a father is worried about a girl or feels she/he is losing touch with a daughter, that anxiety is likely to play itself out in the clothing department.

"Daughters" has a few pointers for parents to try and see if they make a difference the next time they shop with their daughters:

■ Establish a shopping list and a budget before you go. Once there, let her make her own decisions as much as possible. (Her mistakes will teach her lessons. Bite your tongue when you have to.)

■ Avoid triggers. Ask your daughter to tell you one thing that you do when you're shopping together that drives her crazy. Then resolve to try not to do it. Ask her to refrain from one shopping behavior that upsets you, too.

■ Put yourself in her shoes. Remember that being inside a rapidly changing, adolescent female body can be frustrating, even frightening. If your daughter becomes angry when you shop, the source of her anger may be uncertainty about her changing shape.

■ Call the designer a dork. When clothing doesn't fit or flatter, criticize the clothes, not your daughter. Concentrate on buying things that fit, not things that will fit if she changes body size or shape. Try, "We can have it altered, if you change sizes."

■ Remember that she doesn't see her clothes the way you do. In classrooms, "segregation by wardrobe" is common. Girls tend to be either hip-hops, preppies, grunge girls or PIBS (primarily in black). In other words, a girl is not simply shopping for clothes - she's shopping for identity. (The parent who takes a moment to reflect on his or her love beads and bell-bottoms will be more tolerant of a daughter's shopping agenda.)

■ If you and she end up in a conflict, ask, "What am I really worried about?" Sometimes parents yell about a girl's short skirt or her grungy clothes when they're really worried about choices she may be making in other parts of her life. Be certain you've talked openly about your expectations and her safety.

■ If you become locked in a conflict, be willing to go home empty-handed, talk things over and try again.

■ If you can't make peace with shopping together, try using a personal shopper. Many department stores and discount stores offer this free service. A shopper is trained to help your daughter find clothes that fit, flatter and work together.

au pair, Kjersti Paulsen from Norway.

"She always had her bedroom door open for the kids," she said. "When she was off work, I would many days find the kids laying on her bed with her looking through her scrapbook or just talking and laughing. She became Danielle's sister."

"I want to be her au pair," Danielle said about Kjersti.

It's not all fun and games in the Malone household, however. One au pair taught the energetic Jonathan how to count, another taught him shapes. Jackel is working on teaching Jonathan the alphabet. To accomplish that, he teaches him little tricks about each letter.

"For some reason, Jonathan thinks this looks like a hair spray. If you get hairspray and go see," Jackel said pushing on the top of the letter E. "You have to be tricky, otherwise it's not interesting."

Reiss' forte is arts and crafts. She taught the Wisniewski kids German and showed Zachary how to play peek-a-boo in German.

"She's nice. She plays with us. She pushes us on the swings," said 5-year-old Matt.

Reiss sings songs with toddler Taylor and made an Advent calendar for the kids with papier-mache balloons. Taylor and Matt are so proud of their artwork that they take guests on tours of the home, showing off their accomplishments.

Two-way street

The learning process is a two-way street. The au pairs learn to clean, dust, cook, handle difficulties with the kids, handle a checking/savings account, do laundry and drive a car in all kinds of weather.

"Stefan keeps a diary of new words that he learns every day," Malone said. "After his first three days here, he came up and said very proudly that he had learned T.G.I.F., bug off and disgusting. You can tell he lives in a family of teenagers."

In their free time, Reiss and Jackel both enjoy going to Windsor, the movies and parties.

Reiss is amazed at how Americans drive everywhere.

"The life here in America, you have to drive so many times with a car," she said.

One thing that fascinated Jackel are fast-food restaurants.

"The fast-food restaurant you get free refill here; you don't get it in Germany," he explained.

The naivete is charming, according to Malone, especially the innocence of their former au pair, Jerome Fontaine from France.

"We went up north for a few days and we were eating at a restaurant with an antique shop attached," she said. "Jerome had gone into the antique shop to look around. When I came in, he was holding up a portable phone and saying, 'Nancy, (look) free phone calls. This antique phone, I pick it up and dial my mom and she answer. Free phone calls.'"

It wasn't an antique phone. It was the storekeeper's portable phone that she had momentarily put down.

Like the other au pairs, Reiss and Jackel have the opportunity to learn more about the United States. Au Pair USA hires the au pairs for 12-plus-one months. The 13th month is a paid vacation.

Au Pair USA coordinator Deb Martin meets with the au pairs twice a month and takes them on ski trips, vacations and canoe trips.

"My first trip ever in my life to New York was with 40 au pairs. There are pictures of me sleeping with my mouth open on a bus all over Europe," Martin said with a laugh.

"I want to give them the whole experience for what it's like to be in the United States."

Wisniewski admitted that there's one downfall: "Sometimes I find hard that Zachary and Taylor really took to Britta. A lot of times when they are hurt or upset, they go to Britta even though I'm here."

For the most part, however, it's been a satisfying experience.

"After you've experienced some bad moments and good times with each other, the bonding to the kids happens and the love begins," said Malone. "That is the best part of this whole experience."

"These kids come over and it's a big deal for them. To send them back, I didn't like to do that."

The most extreme case was that of English au pair Louise Woodward convicted of second-degree murder in the 1997 death of Matthew Eappen, the child of the family for which she was working. The verdict was later after her reduced to manslaughter and she was sentenced to time served.

"We definitely saw a response to the Louise Woodward case.

The au pair applications in Sweden dropped," said Lynn Kuessner of EF Au Pair, which can be reached at (800) 333-6056 or at aupair@ef.com "We noticed nothing here in metro Detroit."

Wisniewski said her au pairs told her of the torment that others received overseas. One au pair was asked if she killed babies, another was afraid to admit that she was an au pair.

"I think the Louise Woodward case gave au pairs a bad name," she said.

always race out of the house after school, claiming there's no homework. But from what Mrs. Smith says, homework isn't getting turned in. What could you do about that?"

Setting up small action steps and holding everyone to them, will not only help raise your child's self-esteem, but will improve their grades and their attitude about school.

The important thing is to nip the problems now before second semester begins. Your child will only spiral downhill if no one intervenes now and helps make changes. Children rarely know how to stop an out-of-control train. But thankfully, we do!

on individual lives. These "foolosophies" transcend age, race and culture and become the unlikely vehicles for sharing the Christian experience.

Berky first began performing with The Two Penny Circus, a New England touring theater. He has performed and taught at schools for the deaf, public schools and colleges in the United States and Canada.

Members sought for foster care board

The State Court Administrative Office of the Michigan Supreme Court is seeking volunteers to serve on the Wayne County Foster Care Review Board.

Established in 1984 by the state legislature in an effort to improve children's foster care programs, the board is comprised of citizens who reflect a broad cross section of their communities. Minorities and men especially are encouraged to apply.

The board is seeking volunteers who have demonstrated leadership in other settings. Employees of the Family Independence Agency, family court or private child placement locations are prohibited by law from serving on Foster Care Review Boards.

Volunteers selected for the board must attend a two-day orientation training in Southfield on March 25-26. The training is required to serve on the board. Board members also attend yearly training held in different locations throughout the state. Expenses for training are reimbursed.

The five-member board meets one day each month to review a representative sampling of cases of children who have been removed from their homes and placed in foster care due to abuse or neglect.

At the reviews, board members interview parents, foster parents, caseworkers, attorneys and other interested parties who may be involved in planning for the child.

The purpose of the review is to ensure that all agencies, including the court, have established a plan for the child and that progress is being made toward achieving permanency in his or her life.

Advisory recommendations are formulated and sent to the court, child welfare agency, prosecuting attorney, parents and other interested parties.

Citizens interested in volunteering for the Wayne County Foster Care Review Board can call (517) 373-1956 for an application. The deadline for applying is Jan. 31. Interviews with prospective candidates will take place in February.

Information sought about preschools

In 1985, just 5 percent of 3-year-olds attended preschool or nursery school. Today, more than 41 percent of 3-year-olds attend a center-based program, and nearly 80 percent of all children have attended some type of formal program (preschool, nursery school or child care center) before entering first grade.

With an increased number of working mothers, there has been an increased need for preschools for 3-, 4- and 5-year-olds. And that need has created the parental search for quality care for their children.

The Observer Newspapers' Community Life Section is preparing a story about preschool programs and a roundup of preschools, nursery schools and day care facilities (center- and home-based) in the Livonia, Redford, Westland, Garden City, Plymouth and Canton communities.

Programs interested in being part of a story can complete the following form and send it by no later than Friday, Jan. 22, to Sue Mason at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Ocelots crack top 20 in NJCAA

Earning their first-ever national ranking, the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team pounded host St. Clair on Saturday, 116-61.

Schoolcraft is now 12-0 overall and 2-0 in the Eastern Conference of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

When the initial NJCAA Division I ratings came out in December, Schoolcraft was honorable mention, but now the Ocelots have climbed into the top 20, moving all the way up to the No. 15 spot.

Barton County (Kan.), 16-0, and Indian Hills (Ia.), 17-1, garner the top two positions.

Schoolcraft, however, does lead all NJCAA teams in points per game (109.4).

"Our goal is to crack the top 10, but in order to do that we have to keep winning games," SC coach Carlos Briggs said. "The national ranking is a good thing, but we can't get complacent and we can't start overlooking teams."

SC certainly didn't overlook St. Clair, roaring out to a 69-26 halftime lead.

The Ocelots forced 35 turnovers and shot 45 of 78 from the floor (57 percent), including 13 of 28 from three-point range.

Derek McKelvey, the 6-foot-3 guard from Adrian headed to Tennessee-Martin, led the Ocelots with 18 points and six assists.

Eastern Conference Player-of-the-Week Lamar Bigby (Detroit Northern), added 17 points and eight rebounds.

Other standouts for SC included Dashawn Williams, 14 points and eight rebounds; Quentin Mitchell, 12 points and seven rebounds; Mike Murray, 11 points and five steals; and David Jarrett (Westland John Glenn), eight points, six assists and five steals.

O. Segede led St. Clair with 18 points.

"The first half was the best basketball we've played all season," Briggs said. "We shot the ball well, played with intensity on defense and pushed the ball up the floor."

The best news, however, wasn't Schoolcraft's first-ever appearance in the top 20, it was the team's overall cumulative grade-point average of 2.66.

Every player on the current roster remains eligible.

"The LAC (Learning Assistance Center) deserves a lot of the credit for helping all the kids," Briggs said.

SCHOOLCRAFT 76 (WOMEN), ST. CLAIR 70: Schoolcraft College's women's team remained perfect in MCAA Eastern Conference play, thanks to balanced scoring and a strong second half Saturday at St. Clair County CC.

The win pushed SC's record to 10-3 overall, 2-0 in the conference. St. Clair is 5-9 overall, 2-1 in the conference.

The Lady Ocelots trailed 39-36 at the intermission, but outscored the Skippers 40-32 in the second half. Stacy Cavin led SC with 18 points and seven rebounds; Samantha Thelsen added 14 points and five boards; Esther Ross scored 12 points. Jackie Kocis had 10 points and six rebounds, Kim Washnock (from Farmington) had seven points and six boards; and Jamie Lewandowski collected four points, five rebounds and six assists.

Rockets hand Harrison 1st setback

BY BRAD EMONS

bemonsoe@homecomm.net

Westland John Glenn wasn't exactly at the crossroads of its boys basketball season.

But the Rockets were hoping a victory Tuesday against Farmington Hills Harrison could be used as a springboard to bigger and better things.

Behind Ty Haygood's 19 points and 16 rebounds, Glenn handed the visiting Hawks their first defeat of the season, 65-55.

Glenn is now 2-3 overall and 1-1 in Western Lakes Activities Association, while Harrison is 4-1 and 1-1.

The Rockets led most of the way and withstood fourth-quarter foul trouble from starters Eric Jones and Stephen Woods.

The win also helped erase some of the sting from Friday's 66-61 loss to unbeaten Walled Lake Western, a game where the Rockets squandered a 17-0 lead to start the game.

"The other night we played hard, but we deserved to be beaten," Glenn coach Mike Schuette said. "We had no excuses. Western outplayed us and we just came up five points short."

"We played just as hard tonight. We had to convince them they could win. That was the hardest part. We were hoping they would start believing in themselves and play with a 'finish-off' attitude instead of taking what happens."

The teams traded baskets for much of the first quarter, but Glenn forged ahead, 20-14, on Haygood's basket just before the buzzer.

The Rockets then opened up a 34-20 second-quarter lead, only to get reeled back in by the Hawks after a costly technical foul.

Harrison went on an 11-0 spurt just before the half to pull within three, 36-33.

"Harrison wasn't going to let a 14-point lead sit there," Schuette said. "I told them at the half that was as good a shot as they could come up with and they came up three short. We just had to keep playing hard and answer it in the second half."

Harrison was 16-of-30 from the field in the opening half but cooled off with a 8-for-29 stretch over the final 16 minutes.

"We stood around on offense, especially in the first half and defensively we were not a whole lot better," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said. "The first half it was one pass and a jumper. The second half we were rushing and not paying attention to the layup."

"We panicked. We wanted the 10-point play and it doesn't exist."

Glenn outscored the Hawks 14-8 in the third quarter to take a 50-41 lead.

Harrison got as close as three, 53-50, on a rebound basket by Lemar Wilson with 3:13 to go.

But the Hawks made four critical turnovers down the stretch, and the Rockets took advantage, making eight of 10 free throws in the final 2:31. They also got a big inside shot from 6-foot-4 Haygood with 1:01 remaining to clinch the win.

If only it could have been snowed out again.

Any sense of relief in getting the twice-postponed Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference women's basketball game between Aquinas College and Madonna University finally played could only have been felt by the visiting Saints. The snow-plagued ride they endured from Grand Rapids to Livonia seemed worthwhile after they grabbed a 104-95 overtime win over Madonna.

Aquinas evened its WHAC record at 1-1; its overall mark is 6-9. The Lady Crusaders fell to 11-6 overall and 0-2 in the WHAC with their second-straight league loss at home.

"I don't have an answer," said Madonna coach Marylou Jansen when asked what had happened to the team that had entered the WHAC season with such high hopes. "This is not what we were expecting. It's frustrating — and we have one day to fix it (Madonna played at Concordia last night)."

The final seconds of regulation best defined the Crusaders' plight against Aquinas. It had been close most of the evening, with neither team's lead ever reaching double figures.

With the clock ticking down and the score tied at 90, Madonna had possession. Kathy Panganis drove from the wing toward the paint, where she was fouled by Julie Murray. But even as Panganis drained both free throws to put the Crusaders up by two with just 12.9 seconds remaining, the feeling was tangible:

Too much time left.

That suspicion was accurate. It took the Saints only 10 seconds to dribble the entire length of the floor and get a game-tying layup from guard Lindsay Simmon, off a dish from Jolene Loomis.

From that point on, it was the Carmen Brown show. The 5-foot-7 senior guard was playing in just her second game this season (she sat out the first semester), and she made the most of it. After a somewhat slow start, she caught fire in overtime, scoring six-straight points that allowed Aquinas to

Misfiring Patriots fall in nonleaguer

Livonia Franklin's basketball team just can't get away from snow.

It snows outside, and it snows inside. Not literally within the gymnasium, but it sure must seem that way to Coach Dan Robinson of the Patriots.

Livonia Franklin got caught in a blizzard of points Tuesday night and lost to Milford, 57-34. The Patriots are still looking for their first victory of the season.

Franklin is winless in six tries while visiting Milford improved to 3-4.

"I can count 10 missed layups," Robinson said. "We'd work hard to get a shot, then miss it."

"But we have a young team. We have to play with more emotion."

Milford stormed out to an 11-4 lead after one period and increased it to 29-11 at the game's midway point.

Ryan Mekal scored 13 points for Milford and Mike Tobin had 10.

Derek Schema paced Franklin with 10 points and sophomore Joe Ruggiero contributed eight.

•WILLOW RUN 57, WAYNE 50: A solid second half still wasn't good enough to get the Zebras their second victory of the season.

Willow Run started out with an 11-6 lead after one quarter Tuesday night and was ahead, 26-20, at the half.

Wayne Memorial played the Flyers even in the second half (outscored by one) but that wasn't enough to prevent the Zebras from dropping to 1-6 this season, which includes a 1-2 mark in the Michigan Mega Conference Red Division.

Willow Run, which got a game-best 22 points from junior guard Josh Allison, is 4-2 overall and 1-0 in the Mega Red.

Senior guard Jamar Davis paced Wayne with 15 points while Rod Burge scored eight and had nine rebounds and freshman center Jeff Longwood scored eight and added eight rebounds.

•CRANBROOK 49, CLARENCEVILLE 38: Turnovers might sit on your stomach real well but they don't do a thing for a basketball coach.

A double-dozen turnovers Tuesday night doomed Livonia Clarenceville to a defeat at the hands of visiting Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook in the Metro Conference game.

The Trojans overcame a 10-7 first quarter deficit to take a 19-18 halftime lead in their conference opener but giveaways and good free throw shooting down the stretch by the Cranes made the difference.

"We made 25 turnovers," Coach Bill Dyer said after his team saw its record fall to 1-4 overall. "We made too many unforced errors."

"We let it slip away from us. They hit a lot of free throws down the stretch and didn't miss hardly any of them. So we couldn't catch up."

Cranbrook improved to 2-4 overall and 2-1 in the Metro Conference.

The Trojans did not have a single player score in double figures.

n't want to be out hustled, outscored or out-rebounded," Schuette said. "He wants to be the best he can be and hold the other team down."

Woods, who was saddled with four fouls, added 12 points, while Bill Foder contributed 11. The Rockets also got key efforts off the bench from Ben Harris (seven points) and David Collier (five points).

Andrew Burt, a senior, led Harrison with 13 points. Wilson contributed 11, but no other Hawk was in double figures.

"In the third quarter, we were poised to make a run, but then we missed four 'puppies' in a row," Teachman said. "It was a complete team effort — we do one good thing and one bad thing."

"And Haygood hung around the basket enough to score."

Harrison returns to action Friday at home against Livonia Stevenson, while Glenn travels to Plymouth Canton.

"It seems there's a lot of equality in the teams this year," Schuette said. "Every team we play is going to be tough."

Massey effort wasted in loss

COLLEGE HOOP WRAP

A short-handed Madonna University men's basketball team couldn't keep pace with host Aquinas College Monday in a Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference contest, although the Fighting Crusaders didn't make it easy for the Saints.

With just seven players available — injuries and academic woes benched Nick Hurley (from Plymouth Canton), Mark Mitchell and Narvin Russaw; Ian Wincher and Matt Martinez have left the team — Madonna came up short, 68-63. The loss left the Crusaders at 0-2 in the WHAC, 4-13 overall; Aquinas is 8-8 overall, 1-1 in the WHAC.

Mike Massey carried most of the offensive load for Madonna, connecting on 10-of-18 shots from the floor including 5-of-10 three-pointers, while scoring a game-high 29 points. Mike Maryanski added 13 points, eight rebounds and three blocked shots. No other Crusader scored more than seven.

Aquinas got 21 points and three steals from NaShune Hickman, 12 points from Courtney Norman and seven points, 11 rebounds and five assists from Mike Jackson.

The Saints enjoyed a 31-22 rebounding edge.

Last Saturday, Cornerstone poured it against visiting Madonna, walking away with a 114-63 triumph in the WHAC season-opener for the Crusaders. Cornerstone, ranked 10th in the NAIA, improved to a school-best 17-3 overall and to 2-0 in the WHAC.

Alan Gortmaker nailed 10-of-12 floor shots while scoring a game-high 30 points for the Golden Eagles; he also had three steals. Mark Zichterman collected 25 points and three steals; Mike Long had 18 points; Brad Tilma totaled 17 points, nine assists and five steals; and Brian Robinson got 11 points and four assists.

Madonna, which trailed 55-28 at halftime, was paced by Mike Maryanski with 20 points and Chad Putnam with 15. Again, the Crusaders had just seven available players, and three of them had fouled out by game's end.

•CORNERSTONE (WOMEN) 60, MADONNA 67: Last Saturday, the host Crusaders were dominated on the boards (Cornerstone 51 rebounds to Madonna's 34) and the scoreboard in losing their WHAC opener.

The Golden Eagles improved to 6-9 overall and 2-0 in the WHAC.

Chris Dietrich provided most of the point-production for Madonna, scoring 30 points. She also had six rebounds and two steals. Kathy Panganis added 13 points, six rebounds, four steals, and Carissa Gizicki netted 10 points. Katie Cushman, who averages 12.6 points and a league-best 5.75 assists per game, was limited to four points and one assist. She did have six steals.

Cornerstone got 22 points and 10 rebounds from Julie Vogelzang; 19 points and five assists from Laura Yonkers; 14 points from Delana Burnett; and 10 points, four assists and three steals from Sarah Haney.

Madonna, which trailed 38-35 at halftime, allowed the Golden Eagles to pull away with a 10-3 start to the second half. The Crusaders twice narrowed the gap to three, but could never overtake Cornerstone.

pull away from a 95-95 tie with 2:15 left in the extra period.

"It was huge," said Saints' coach Linda Nash of the road win. "We've really been struggling putting 40 strong minutes together. It was a heckuva battle."

Brown finished with a team-high 22 points; she also had five rebounds, four assists and six turnovers. Nicole Mielhke added 20 points, 12 rebounds and three blocked shots; Simmon had 15 points, 10 boards and two blocks; Julie Murray totaled 14 points, eight rebounds and five assists; Mary Bond collected 12 points; and Loomis had 11 points and seven assists.

Panganis topped Madonna with 31 points, nine boards and three steals. Chris Dietrich collected 26 points and five assists, while Katie Cushman contributed 20 points and seven assists.

Dissect this Crusader performance and all sorts of reasons for their loss appear: poor defense in general, but in particular around the basket; bad rebounding at both ends (Aquinas had a 51-38 advantage, including a 16-9 edge on the offensive boards); terrible bench support (points off the bench — Aquinas 37, Madonna 7).

It's tempting to factor in some key personnel losses, too. Power forward Mary Murray's knee injury that has sidelined her for the season is starting to take its toll, certainly; also missing Monday were back-up point guard Carissa Gizicki (ear infection) and guard Jennifer Dumm (academics), leaving Madonna with just nine available players.

But do that, and it must be remembered that the Saints had traveled 150 miles in a snowstorm to play the game, and were facing a similar return trip.

Anyway, Madonna did have opportunities to take control.

Its first-half offense was outstanding; after a Brown three-pointer put Aquinas up 16-15 with 13:27 left, the Crusaders went on a 12-2 run to open up a 27-18 lead with 9:40 remaining.

They stayed in front for the next nine minutes, but the Saints kept chipping away. Madonna's strong offensive display through those initial 20 minutes melted away in the final 1:05, with Aquinas scoring the final eight points in that span — six of them on layups.

"That's been our downfall, our weakness," said Jansen of her team's inside play. "Our post defense has been poor. We're not a big team."

Madonna converted 16-of-33 first-half shots (48.5 percent), including 8-of-11 three-pointers (72.7 percent) — and still trailed by three, which made the Aquinas' coach's comments to her team midway through the half seem prophetic.

"There's no way they can keep up their torrid shooting," Harris said to her team during a timeout. She was right; in the second half, the Crusaders made just 15-of-38 from the floor (39.5 percent), and only 4-of-13 threes (30.8 percent).

The biggest lead of the second half for either team was a mere six points (Aquinas 67, Madonna 61).

But offense wasn't the Crusaders' problem.

It's really as simple as this: better defense plus better rebounding will equal a better outcome.

ONTARIO HOCKEY LEAGUE REPORT

Plymouth goes 3-for-3 in whale of a weekend

When a team is angling for a championship, every victory will produce a different hero. Such is the case with the Plymouth Whalers.

True, the first half of the season seemed to be dominated by a few Whalers in particular: Harold Druken and Adam Colagiaco in particular. But last weekend, facing a three-games-in-three-days stretch, various Whalers stepped forward each night to propel them to three victories.

In Sunday's 3-2 triumph over the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds at Plymouth's Compuware Arena, Mark McMahon poked in the game-winner with just nine seconds left in overtime to lift the Whalers; on Saturday against the visiting Belleville Bulls, Eric Gooldy's hat trick and Shaun Fisher's unassisted goal with 4:43 to play propelled Plymouth to a 5-4 triumph; and on Friday, it was Damian Surma's three goals that carried the Whalers to a 5-3 road win over the Guelph Storm.

Plymouth improved to 30-8-3 overall, first in the Ontario Hockey League's West Division.

In the OT win over the Greyhounds Sunday, the Whalers never trailed but could never pull away, either. Gooldy — who had four goals over the weekend — scored first on a power play with 1:45 left in the first period. McMahon and Jason Ward assisted.

The 'Hounds (21-14-4 through the weekend) knotted it at 16:01 of the second period on a goal by Adam Nittell, but the Whalers regained the lead four minutes into the third on a goal by David Legwand, his 20th of the season. Nikos Tsellos and Troy Smith assisted. Ryan Jardine's goal with 4:14 left in regulation tied it for Sault Ste. Marie and forced OT.

McMahon's game-winner was his second goal of the season; Gooldy and Legwand assisted. Robert Holsinger made 29 stops in goal to improve his record to 16-6; Jake McCracken had 27 saves for the 'Hounds.

Gooldy, Legwand and Paul Mara paced the offense in Saturday's victory over the Bulls (21-14-6 through the weekend). Gooldy and Legwand each scored first-period goals; Gooldy made it 3-0 for the Whalers at the 6:37 mark of the second. Mara assisted on both Gooldy goals.

Belleville battled back, getting second-period scores from Kris Newbury and Kevin Baker, then tying it at 4:37 of the third on a goal by Chris Stanley. Gooldy's third goal restored Plymouth's lead at 11:05 of the period (Legwand and Mara assisting), but Stanley again tied it just 1:10 later. Fisher got the winner three minutes after that.

Rob Zepp made 30 saves to get the victory; Cory Campbell had 28 stops in goal for Belleville.

Surma's three goals, which boosted his season goal count to seven, and Druken's goal and two assists were keys to Friday's key win at Guelph (26-13-2 through the weekend), the Midwest Division leader and the team that eliminated the Whalers from the OHL playoffs last season. The Storm took the early lead on a first-period goal by Charlie Stephens, but Surma's first two scores put Plymouth ahead to stay.

Tselios made it 3-1 with a power-play goal 33 seconds into the third period; Surma's third marker with 9:16 left countered a goal scored by Guelph's Kevin Mitchell, making it 4-2. Another Mitchell goal narrowed the Whaler lead to one with 3:25 remaining, but Druken clinched it with an empty-netter with 39 seconds left.

Colagiaco finished with two assists for Plymouth; Holsinger made 27 saves in goal, compared to 30 by Guelph's Chris Madden.

HIGH SCHOOL HOCKEY

Shamrocks win again, eye date with Trenton

Perhaps because of his team's perfect record through the first 11 games, Redford Catholic Central senior right winger Erik Hawkins can laugh about his lack of good fortune around the net.

Hawkins, a CC captain, had his first five goals this season disallowed by the referees for one reason or another.

"Either the net came off the post, someone was in (the goal) crease or the whistle had blown (before the puck crossed the goal line)," CC coach Gordie St. John said. "He's been a hard-luck kid. When he breaks out he's going to be tough."

Hawkins finally scored a goal that counted in a 12-1 win over Wyandotte Roosevelt on Jan. 6 and, ironically, he didn't get to enjoy it.

"He fired the puck at the net while coming around for a line change," St. John said. "He didn't believe the guys when he scored because he didn't see it."

Though he failed to score on Saturday, Hawkins played another steady game in the Shamrocks' 6-1 victory over Allen Park Cabrini at Redford Arena.

CC, which led 3-0 after one period and 4-0 through two, improved to 8-0 in the Metro Hockey League and 11-0 overall.

Six different players scored goals for the Shamrocks: Matt Van Heest, David Moss, Jim Spiewak, Brad Holland, Brandon Kaleniecki and Todd Bentley.

Bentley had three assists and Sean McGowan, Derek Genrich, Moss, Ryan Yost, Keith Rowe and Spiewak had one each.

The last two CC goals came on the power play.

"Cabrini didn't have its best night and we played OK," St. John said. "They have a young team and were a little nervous coming up, playing in our place."

St. John said Hawkins and fellow captains Rowe and Van Heest are "natural leaders. They all have their good nights. Keith is playing real well for us right now."

The Shamrocks outshot Cabrini 46-16 and the only goal allowed by CC goaltender Ben Dunne came on the power play by Nick Nomura at 1:16 of the third period to cut the deficit to 4-1.

Dunne has played well when tested, according to St. John. It's not the most exciting position to play on the CC team.

"It's not hard to stay interested but hard to focus," St. John said. "When you have the puck down in their end so much and all of a sudden someone busts out with a breakaway, and we've had that happen. He's a good goalie and getting much better."

The Shamrocks, who have won two Class A state championships since 1994, and defending state champion Trenton renew their rivalry at 8 p.m. Saturday at Redford Arena.

"I'm worried about Trenton, they're a good team," St. John said.

Suburban statistical leaders

John May of Livonia Stevenson was the Suburban High School Hockey League scoring leader through his team's first seven games.

May, who played six of the seven, had 12 goals and eight assists for 20 points and a healthy lead over Dearborn's Brent Hohnicki, who has 14 points in eight games.

Hohnicki had seven goals and seven assists, one more point than teammate Joey Virga and Livonia Franklin's Tony Saia. Virga had four goals and nine assists while Saia had the reverse.

Ranking fifth in SHSHL scoring was Dave Sellin of Redford, who had 11 points on six goals and five assists. Six players were tied for sixth with 10 points.

They were: Dan Cieslak of Stevenson (8 goals, 2 assists); Tim Allen of Stevenson (6 and 4), Dan Cook of Churchill (6 and 4), Shane Jackman (5 and 5) and Derek Lipps of Dearborn Unified (4 and 6), and Mark Nebus of Stevenson (2 and 8).

Undefeated Stevenson boasted the two leads in goals-against. Kevin Marlowe had allowed an average of .5 per contest over four games while Chris McComb had played three games and allowed an average of 0.67 per contest.

Redford Unified's Eric Pagel was third with a 2.31 average, Brad Spencer of Dearborn fourth at 2.91 and Ryan McBroom of Churchill fifth at 2.99.

JULIE HARRIS has winning hand in

'GIN GAME'

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER
hgallagher@oe.homecomm.net

New York Times theater critic Ben Brantley has hailed Julie Harris as "the greatest American stage actress."

It is an accolade earned over nearly 60 years on stage, a record five Tony Awards and a record 10 Tony nominations.

And it all began growing up in Grosse Pointe.

"I grew up near Detroit and my parents were great theater fans," Harris said in a telephone interview. "They admired Noel Coward, Gertrude Lawrence, Helen Hayes, Katherine Cornell, great actors like Alfred Lunt."

Harris is now part of that illustrious theater hall of fame and will join another esteemed stage veteran, Charles Durning, for a week's run of "The Gin Game," Jan. 19-24, at the Music Hall.

It was another, now long closed, Detroit theater that first introduced Harris to the stage.

"We went to Broadway shows on stage at the Cass, and it was the most wonderful atmosphere I'd ever seen," she said. "We were also great movie fans and loved Jimmy Cagney, Bette Davis and all the others."

Harris said she had wanted to act since she was 10 or 11 years old. She won her first notice playing a 12-year-old when she was 24 in Carson McCuller's "A Member of the Wedding," which she later repeated memorably on film.

D.L. Coburn's "The Gin Game" was first produced in 1977 with stage legends Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy as nursing home residents Weller Martin and Fonsia Dorsey, who engage in increasingly antagonistic games of gin rummy.

The current production by the National Actors Theatre under the direction of Charles Nelson Reilly opened on Broadway in spring 1997 to rave reviews. Harris received her 10th Tony nomination for her performance as Fonsia.

"When the Cronyns first saw the play it was in production in Hollywood and at the end of the play Weller kills Fonsia, and they said they couldn't have that so they asked Don Coburn to change the ending, and it became very successful and won the Pulitzer Prize," Harris said. "The Cronyns took it to Moscow and London. It has had a long and happy life."

The revival, now on national tour through May, is also having a long and happy life and offers some changes of its own, thanks to an inspiration from Harris.

"When Tony Randall decided to produce it, it was because he had

WHAT: "The Gin Game" with Julie Harris and Charles Durning

WHERE: Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts, 350 Madison Ave., Detroit

WHEN: 8 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, Jan. 19-23, 3 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Jan. 23-24.

TICKETS: $25-$46.50 at the Music Hall Box Office and all Ticketmaster locations. For more information, call (313) 983-2366. To charge tickets, call (248) 645-6666.

done 'Inherit the Wind' with Charles Durning and George C. Scott. He asked Charles what play he'd like to do and he said "The Gin Game" with either me or Ruby Dee, and I guess Ruby likes to work with her husband Ossie Davis so I got the part," Harris said.

Harris had worked with Durning twice before and with director Reilly 11 times, including her acclaimed performance as Emily Dickinson in "The Belle of Amherst."

"I said to our director Charles Nelson Reilly, wouldn't it be wonderful if we had a scene where Weller asks Fonsia to dance," Harris said. "We're sitting on the porch of this nursing home and there are noises from magicians and televisions and radios coming from the inside and we have Weller ask Fonsia to dance."

Harris said Coburn's first reaction to the suggestion was an emphatic "No."

"Then he thought about it and said what a wonderful idea. After all Charles Durning is a champion ballroom dancer. He did 'Queen of the Starlight Ballroom' with Maureen Stapleton on television. It's a touching moment and makes our production a little different than others."

Reviews of the play always mention the final dance as a character defining high point.

Harris said there is a strong rapport between Durning and herself. This is their second two-person production, having appeared in Hugh Leonard's "The Au Pair Man" for Joe Papp's Lincoln Center Theatre.

"I love and adore Charles Durning and I think he feels pretty good about me. He's really wonderful to work with," Harris said.

She has similar admiration for Reilly, known to most people as a giddy comic actor who has frequently graced celebrity quiz shows. But his credentials as a director include such serious drama as "Paul Robeson" with James Earl Jones and Harris in "Belle of Amherst" and "Death of a Salesman" and several opera productions.

"He doesn't have preconceived ideas for a part," Harris said. "He works to use what you bring him, which is wonderful. He leaves it to you to strike out ... He's also full of fun, which is great."

When asked to name her favorite roles, the list is long as are the accolades that go with them, including performances as Joan of Arc in "The Lark" and Mary Todd Lincoln in "The Last of Mrs. Lincoln." Her film work includes her unforgettable performance with James Dean in "East of Eden." On television she has won Emmys for "Little Moon of Alban" and "Victoria Regina" and won popular following for her work on "Knots Landing."

At 73, Harris shows no signs of retiring. Following her work in "The Gin Game," Harris is planning to perform in Claudia Allen's "Winter" at the Victory Garden in Chicago. She says wistfully that it's "another play about people at the end of their lives."

She said a producer has also expressed interest in a play she did last summer in Seattle about South Africa, Lisette Laicat Ross' "Scent of Roses."

Last December she filmed "The First of May," which is seeking a distributor and in addition to starring Harris and featuring Charles Nelson Reilly also has a cameo by ailing Yankee legend Joe DiMaggio.

Finally, there are plans for a tour in 2000 of "The Belle of Amherst" and Harris' reaction to that sums up her ongoing love for her craft.

"I love the play and I love Miss Dickinson, so it's no chore at all."

MUSICAL THEATER

Rev. preaches the 'The Gospel at Colonus'

BY HUGH GALLAGHER

When the Rev. Earl Miller was asked to replace Morgan Freeman for the 1985 Arena Theatre production of "The Gospel at Colonus" he didn't have to worry about being "right for the part." After all, Freeman used Miller as a model for his portrayal of a Pente Costal preacher.

In 1983, Lee Breuer was developing his idea of retelling Sophocles' "Oedipus at Colonus" in the setting of a black Southern Church at St. Catharine's College in Minnesota. He took Freeman and fellow actor Carl Lummy to Miller's church in St. Paul.

"They came to my church and observed the style of a black preacher and service," Miller said from his office at the Progressive Baptist Church. He will be performing the narrator's part Friday through Monday at the University of Michigan's Power Center.

Miller was attracted to the play because of its theme.

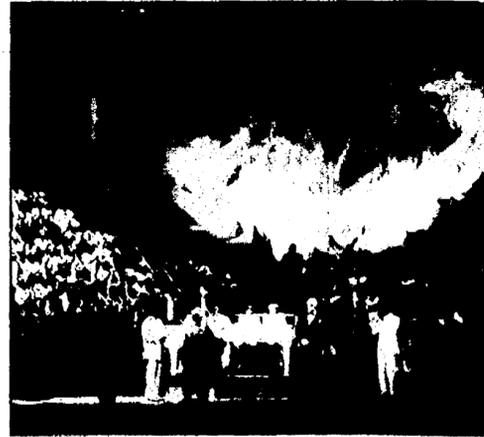

"There is redemption which is the same as for the Christian faith. It's from the Greek theater, but the ultimate theme is redemption," he said.

Breuer conceived the idea of telling the story of Oedipus through the preaching and music of a black church with music composed by Bob Telson. The production at U-M will feature Clarence Fountain and the Blind Boys of Alabama, J.D. and Jevetta Steele, the Original Soul Stirrers and the Detroit-based Duke Ellington Centennial Choir.

Despite his early involvement with the play before it opened at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in 1983 and the involvement of J.D. Steele, Progressive Baptist's choir director, Miller was reluctant to take an acting part when it was offered.

"I got involved when the production went to the Arena Stage in Washington, D.C. At that time

It's easy to imagine Tanya Harding as one of the Pink Ladies in "Grease," but Nancy Kerrigan as a brunette Sandra Dee is harder to envision.

"She's the girl next door, she's very sweet," said co-director and choreographer Barry Lather who taught her all the right moves in "Grease on Ice" opening Saturday for three performances at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit. Still, some people will be asking "why" and thinking about the whack on the knee that Kerrigan suffered on Jan. 6, 1994 during the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Detroit. An associate of Harding's was later charged with the crime.

Kerrigan recovered from her injury and won a silver medal at the 1994 U.S. Olympics. "She's way past what happened in Detroit, but it's still there," said Lather. "The role of Sandy is good for her. She's pretty much an all American girl."

Married and the mother of a son, Matthew, Kerrigan said

'She was under a lot of pressure, her back was up against the wall to learn, and did really well. She's used to going on the ice and being Nancy Kerrigan, not Sandy. She had to capture the role and learn Sandy's body language and how to move to the music. It's a lot to learn. It's not just a dance show, you have to tell a story.'

Barry Lather
choreographer for 'Grease'

"Grease on Ice" was an "opportunity I couldn't pass up - I grew up loving the dancing, the music and the energy of 'Grease.'"

"The music is undeniable, the songs are great, and there's a boy meets girl love story," said Lather who is known for his award-winning music videos with Janet Jackson and Paula Abdul. Choreographing "Grease on Ice" was a challenge. He had worked with skaters before, including Kristi Yamaguchi and Kerrigan, but never did a 90-minute production.

"I played hockey growing up, but I never figure skated," he said in a telephone interview from St. Paul Minneapolis. "I've been dancing all my life." With the help of his assistant, Jaimie Isley, an accomplished skater, Lather worked to create a high energy blend of skating and dancing with a rock n' roll edge in "Grease on Ice."

"This was a tough job," said Lather. "I needed a great skating assistant to communicate what I wanted to the skaters. If it was a move the skaters had seen before, I didn't want to do it. I wanted to create fun moves that compliment the music of 'Grease,' I wanted it to be a great show."

The cast doesn't stand still long in "Grease on Ice" there is only a couple of ballads, but lots of high energy songs including "Greased Lightnin'" and "We go Together."

"They have to totally act out their lines through body language," said Lather about the cast of 28 skaters who lip-sync their lines. "They're got to be able to project. You've got to over-act. It's not like doing the show on a Broadway stage, you've got 12,000 to 13,000 people in an arena."

Lather said some of the dance stuff was hard on the skaters, but he pushed knowing that they could do it. Before the show opened on Nov. 20, Lather and his cast practiced six days a week, 12 hours a day beginning in early October.

Kerrigan met Lather in 1995 when he choreographed a number for a Disney special she was in. They shot the commercial for "Grease on Ice" before the show opened. "She had a tough job," said Lather about Kerrigan. "She was able to rehearse with us for only eight days. She was under a lot of pressure, her back was up against the wall to learn, and did really well. She's used to going on the ice and being Nancy Kerrigan, not Sandy. She had to capture the role and learn Sandy's body language and how to move to the music. It's a lot to learn. It's not just a dance show, you have to tell a story."

Lather said he was impressed by Kerrigan's can-do attitude. "When you want to show her something she wants to know it now. She wants to work, work, until it's done. I really like that. She just came in and learned it."

"Grease" was first presented on a small stage in Chicago in June 1971. After sitting through the five hour production, New York producers, Allan Carr and Robert Stigwood encouraged the playwrights, Jim Jacobs and Warren Casey, to trim the show to two hours.

"Grease" quickly became a hit off-Broadway, and on Broadway where it remained for almost seven-and-a-half years.

In 1978 Stigwood and Carr released the film version starring John Travolta as Danny Zuko and Olivia Newton-John as Sandy.

"Grease on Ice" is presented by Feld Entertainment and The Troika Organization.

'Classics on the Lake' features love songs

Love will be the theme of "Classics on the Lake" 3 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 24, in the shrine chapel at St. Mary's College at Orchard Lake and Commerce Roads in Orchard Lake.

Lyric tenor David Troiano and soprano Valerie Yova will perform a program they call "Sweethearts" featuring operatic arias and Broadway duets. Tickets are $15 and $25, call (248) 683-1750.

One segment of the concert, "Love Across the Waters," will feature arias in German, Spanish, Polish and Italian. Another,

"Love American Style," will spotlight Troiano and Yova in a number of duets from Broadway.

Troiano and Yova will be accompanied by pianist Joseph Gurt, a graduate of the Julliard School of Music and a professor of music at Eastern Michigan.

Morgan Freeman was selected to perform a role in "Driving Miss Daisy" off Broadway and Lee Breuer called me," he said. "I had been working with him and he asked if I would substitute for Morgan but initially I hesitated. The reason I hesitated is that I had never played church, it's been a serious thing to me. Then thinking about it and praying about it, I accepted the opportunity."

Miller said the story of Oedipus wanderings after he discovers that he has murdered his father and married his mother is a powerful lesson. Oedipus, who has torn out his eyes in shame, is reduced to the lowest depths before finding redemption in the town of Colonus.

Breuer got the idea for the show after Telson took him to see a performance by the Five Blind Boys of Alabama.

Miller said once he did the part, he loved it.

"The audience seemed to be pleased by it, uplifted by it. It seemed to bless people night after night," he said. "The people responded enthusiastically. My spirit was high. I couldn't have gotten through the production without a spiritual high."

Miller went on to perform for six weeks on Broadway.

"The Gospel at Colonus" has won audience and critical favor, winning the off-Broadway Obie for Outstanding Musical, nominations for a Pulitzer Prize and Tony Award, a Grammy and an LA Inner Circle Critics Award. It has been performed around the world and has been broadcast on PBS "Great Performances."

"I play the part of the messenger. It's a church, a black church setting," Miller said. "I come and do a first sermon which sets the tone and pace for the whole production. My part is the part that holds the whole thing together."

The musical groups act like a Greek chorus, emphasizing the theme with the driving rhythm of black gospel music.

In an interview with the Salt Lake Tribune, Telson, who is white, describes how he was inspired to write the music.

"One thing that I've always been impressed with in the black church experience is that there seems to be a lot of emphasis on love. There's a mixture of joy and love and tragedy - the wide range of emotions we have in our lives," Telson said.

Miller's congregation has responded favorably to the play's portrayal of their church and the performance of their pastor.

"It came here last year and they loved it," he said. "They feel good about me doing it. They appreciate the adulation their pastor receives."

Actors' Company intense in 'Agnes of God'

The Actor's Company presents John Pielmeier's riveting drama "Agnes of God," 8 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays through Jan. 23 at Trinity House Theatre, 38840 W. Six Mile Road, between I-275 and Haggerty, Livonia. Tickets are $14 with group discounts available, call (248) 988-7032. BY SUE SUCHYTA SPECIAL WRITER

The Actors' Company's presentation of the gripping psychological drama "Agnes of God" is an intense and well-performed serious drama. Director Michael Gravame of Madison Heights assembled a talented cast and produced a tightly paced show, an element crucial to the success of a heavy drama. Theater lovers will enjoy the well-performed show, but it's not what you'd want for a light evening out, and the content is inappropriate for preteens.

"Agnes of God" is the story of a court-appointed psychiatrist, Dr. Livingstone, sent to determine the mental competency of a young nun, Agnes, to stand trial after her newborn is found dead in a wastebasket. Agnes, young, naive, and the product of childhood abuse, has blocked everything from her conscious mind. Dr. Livingstone becomes obsessed with the case and with Agnes, and with both the resistance and help of the Mother Superior begins to unravel the truth behind the devastating discovery.

The talented three-woman cast is a strong tour-de-force, and their chemistry makes the show click. Rae McIntosh of Beverly Hills as Dr. Martha Livingstone mixes an aggressive, take charge personality with the touch of vulnerability needed to lend depth and likability to her character. Although she stumbled over a few of her lines opening night, she had an otherwise strong performance and stage presence. Her soliloquies tied the scenes together, giving the show a sense of progression.

Tania Velinsky of Royal Oak captured both the naivete and terror of Agnes, the young innocent who has endured too much emotional torment in her young life. Even her face reflected a tranquil, innocent quality so essential to the role's believability, and her voice conveyed a childlike lilt and cadence. She was equally effective portraying Agnes' physical agony when under hypnosis as she relived scenes of childhood torment and the traumatic birth of her child.

Charlotte Leisinger of Detroit was a natural to the Mother Superior role, with a no-nonsense and seasoned approach to both the character's serenity and stubbornness. Leisinger and McIntosh played well off each other in their head-to-head scenes.

The set was intentionally simple, with a series of raised platforms and straight-backed chairs. Subdued gray banners flanked the wings, complementing the costume colors: Dr. Livingstone's tailored gray pant suit, the Mother Superior's gray habit, and Agnes' symbolically pure white robes. The musical selections interspersed throughout the production were well-chosen, non-intrusive, and subtly reinforced the mood.

Ridgedale's 'The View From Here' worth a look

Ridgedale Players presents "The View From Here," 8 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays, Jan. 15-16 and 22-23, and 3 p.m. Sundays, Jan. 17 and 24 at the playhouse, 205 W. Long Lake Road, (1/4 mile west of Livernois) Troy. Tickets $11, $10 seniors/students at Sunday performances, call (248) 988-7049.

BY HELEN ZUCKER SPECIAL WRITER

The Ridgedale Players production of Margaret Dulaney's "The View From Here" is wonderfully acted. Directed by Kent Martini and Vicki Hagle with special assistance from Jim Rink, the cast fine-tunes Dulaney's fiercely tender lines and keeps the play afloat.

"A View From Here" is the kind of play that can easily denigrate into sitcom, but in the hands of the Ridgedale troupe, it never does.

Laura Kerr is totally believable as Fern, the agoraphobic who watches babies for a living. Fern hasn't been out of the house since 1992, yet she's in hourly contact with her mother, her sister, her neighbors, and the world via TV. Kerr gives us a Fern who's very funny, very wired, and deeply sad. Kerr's physicality gives her an edge; she does Buster Keaton flops over the couch, falls on her knees to thank the Lord in all directions, lifts weights and seems to be made of rubber. Kerr makes us believe that winning a microwave from the Super Kroger may be the beginning of a cure, and "Arnold Palmer," the golfing neighbor, may be the cure itself. Kerr's keen mind shines through Fern's dizzy lines.

Julie Fuller is superb as Maple, Fern's sister who has been trying to have a baby for 12 years. Fuller has a remarkable ability to move from the depths of depression (no speech) to full, tearing rage in seconds. Maple is a creature of general sweetness, meant to nurture babies and cuddle her man who is in the "silly house," still trying to make a baby with Maple at play's end. Whether she's wearing wigs, cooing to "Arnold's" child, or trying to talk sense to her sister, Fuller gives us a Maple who is rooted in hope in a disappointing world. Fuller and Kerr make us aware that these sisters will survive.

Pam Heath is hilarious as Carla, a neighbor with big hair, big bags and a very big mouth. Carla comes equipped with every crime story and strange event that ever made its way into the tabloids. Heath wears a wonderful bikini shirt, and gives us a Carla who drives men away with her table manners. Yet Heath makes the little girl who is afraid of cars, and of life, peep through the racket Carla makes.

Gary Sekerak, in his harlequin trousers, as "Arnold" whose wife has left him with an infant, is soft spoken. Arnold is thankful for goodness where he finds it, tells his infant daughter she leads a "charmed life," and we believe it despite his straits. Arnold finally gets Fern out of the house. Sekerak ends the play on the right note; life has its hassles, but it has its grace notes.

Linda Martini's costumes are clever; the props by Helen Gach, Valerie Simkus, Carolyn Church, set construction by Mike Flum and set decoration by Dawn Hooper, especially the portrait of Elvis, blend into the words.

Village Players 'Deathtrap' suspenseful

Birmingham Village Players presents "Deathtrap," 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Jan. 15-16 and Jan. 22-23; 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 17 at the theater, 752 Chestnut, Birmingham. Tickets $12, $10 children age 18 and younger, (248) 644-2075. BY MARY JANE DOERR SPECIAL WRITER

The Village Players latest theatrical suspense thriller "Deathtrap" is enough to give anyone a severe case of what playwright Ira Levin calls "thrilleritis malitiosa."

Suspense permeates the air from the minute Bob Overmyer steps on Bob Carington's striking English tutor living room set as the seemingly casual Sidney Bruhl. Sally Savoie is Bruhl's uptight wife Myra.

The scene might be pleasantly appealing except for the wall decor of murderous paraphernalia; all sorts of cross bows, daggers, guns, and Houdini handcuffs. Blatantly apparent is why Myra has stress related syndrome and heart disease, which Savoie clearly projects with acting skills. Anybody would be nervous who was living in the Connecticut countryside with an aging playwright with writer's block in the middle of a mid-life crisis. Sidney is insanely jealous of a promising young student, Clifford Anderson, in his seminar class on mystery writing. Matt Rafferty is natural and straight forward as Clifford, completing this trio of diverse characters: the jealous, the neurotic with the cold-hearted.

Sidney might be affable except that Overmyer's smooth portrayal leaves the audiences in little doubt of Sidney's malicious intentions beneath his mellifluous conversations with the fearful Myra. As Sidney heads for the railroad station to pick up Clifford who is bringing the only copies of his first play, everyone understands Myra's concern that Sidney's intentions are murderous.

The "Bruhl-ha-ha" of this mystery thriller is that it while the actions follow the pattern of the mystery Angel Street, just as we figure out the plot, there is an unexpected twist. No matter how many times we see the movie with Christopher Reeves, the freshness of a live stage performance makes the shocking murders even more surprising.

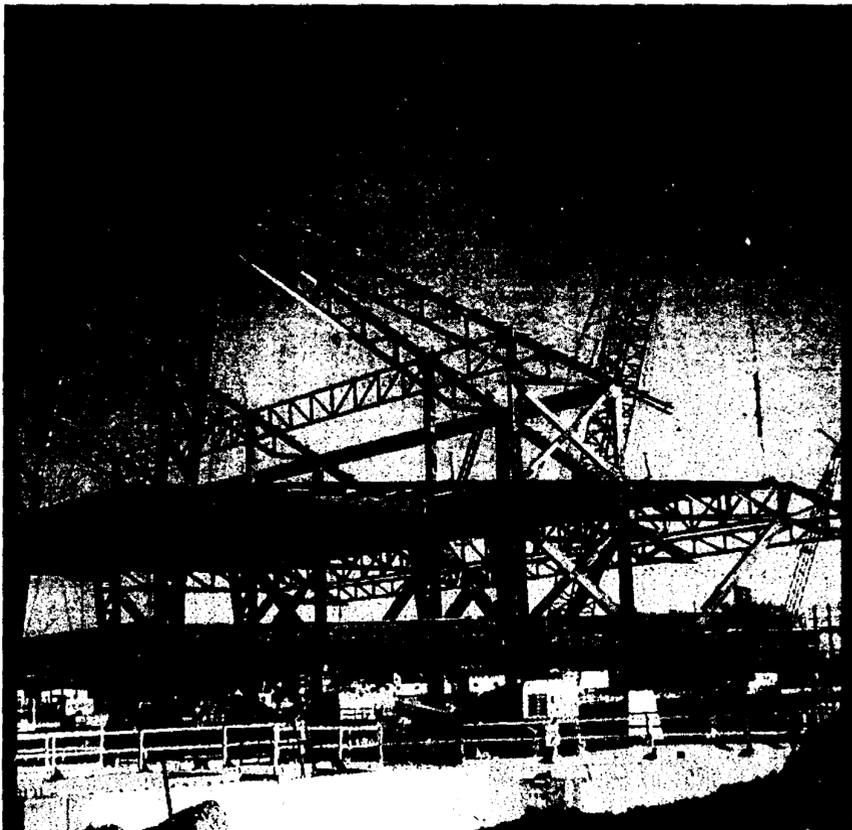

This Ira Levin classic mystery thriller is filled with not only witty lines but humor. The highly experienced Joan Reddy captures that humor as an adorable psychic Helga Ten Dorp. She knows how to get the laughs with clearly spoken, well-timed lines despite the necessarily heavy accent.

Perhaps Wayne Yashinsky is a lawyer in real life or has been. He plays the part of Porter Milgrim with such believability and a classy reality that brings some reality to the surreal plot.

Bill Haycock directs the play with his usual professional tightness and effectiveness along with help from Jay Peterson, Maureen Cook, Keith Lepard. He doesn't try to update the piece with updated electronic equipment to replace the manual typewriters.

"Deathtrap" may seem like play that incorporates the death wishes of two eccentric mystery writers who have crossed the line between "murder on paper" and the real thing. While Sidney never does beat Clifford to death with a Roget's Thesaurus as he threatens, the murders, who commits them and when and why, is the fun that is enough to turn Ira Levin's fictitious disease thrilleritis malitiosa into thrilleritis malignus.

'The Thin Red Line' is an event worth watching

By HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER
hgallagher@oe.homecomm.net

Terrence Malick's "The Thin Red Line" is the second of two major film reassessments of World War II. It shares with Steven Spielberg's "Saving Private Ryan" grim battle scenes and fierce male bonding but is a very different kind of movie. Where "Saving Private Ryan" was a straightforward and simple story about a platoon sent to rescue a soldier after D-Day, "The Thin Red Line" is more complex, more philosophical and impressionistic. In addition to reflections on courage and camaraderie, it is also a meditation on nature under fire, the fragility of love, the destructiveness of ambition and much more.

But it never quite attains the authority, immediacy or importance of "Private Ryan."

"Thin Red Line" marks Malick's return to directing after 20 years. He was, with Martin Scorsese, one of the most promising and talented young directors of the 1970s. But after two extraordinary movies, "Badlands" and "Days of Heaven," he dropped out of the Hollywood scene. He had originally intended just to write the screenplay for this movie but was persuaded to return to the director's chair.

Based on a novel by James Jones, one of the finest chroniclers of the war in the Pacific, and author of "From Here to Eternity," "Thin Red Line" shares many attributes with Malick's last film, the richly atmospheric "Days of Heaven." It is beautifully photographed, under the direction of John Toll, with carefully chosen, deeply symbolic images. Shot in a remote area of Australia, the scenery is lush, vivid, idyllic until destroyed by advancing road graders followed by bombs and guns.

Ideas are carried over through voice over - in the earlier film a young girl provided a knowing and painful narration, here the thoughts of several soldiers give us a variety of images and understandings. The language is elevated, poetic, vivid. Each character's voice is the voice of his inner soul. The pace is slow, in this case too slow. Points are made and made again. The images become plodding no matter how beautiful.

But any Terrence Malick film is an event and there is much in "The Thin Red Line" worth watching. He is the foremost impressionist among American film directors and his films have a fuzzy beauty quite different from Steven Spielberg's clarity of storytelling and vision.

The movie opens in paradise. AWOL soldiers frolic in a native village on Guadalcanal. Private Witt (Jim Caviezel) is sure that this is what life should be like as children play in the clear water and the people go about their lives in peace. He wonders how we ever got so far from "glory."

It is this paradise that will become a bloody battlefield, a pivotal, decisive fight to wrestle an airstrip from Japanese control. Though it is less the history of Guadalcanal as it is the shifting images that matter to Malick.

Private Witt is brought back to Charlie Company by his cynical, tough-guy sergeant (Sean Penn) and soon they and the rest of the company are on their way to mortal combat.

The characters are less rigidly defined than in "Private Ryan." On the other hand, they are also much less distinct. The idealistic Witt and his attempt to balance his conflicting emotions is probably central but many other characters have important roles though none takes a true center.

Nick Nolte gives a ferocious performance as an arrogant, angry, ambitious Army lifer colonel who is willing to sacrifice lives for his own glory. This is a stereotype character that becomes anything but in Malick's handling and in Nolte's nuanced performance. Nolte makes Lt. Col. Tall much more than a power crazy Custer.

Penn's Sgt. Welsh has seen and heard it all. This is another standard war movie character that gets an infusion of humanity and complexity.

Elias Koteas is the sensitive, caring Capt. Staros, who finds his concern for his men getting in the way of the colonel's plans. Here again, we are shown that as fine as the captain is, he is also full of doubts, scared and, in the end, eager to flee to safety. That sort of duality is rare in American war movies.

That duality is also present in John Cusack's performance as the truly heroic Capt. Gaff, who follows Tall's orders even as he fully understands how vain and dangerous his colonel is.

The dreamy quality is strong in the character of Private Bell (Ben Chaplin), whose memories of his young, ethereal wife provide yet another version of lost paradise.

Malick doesn't take the easy way when examining how war destroys paradise. "Thin Red Line" suggests that nothing is simple, nothing is exactly as it seems. There are poignant images of faith, brotherhood, fear and anger on both the American and Japanese side.

The battle scenes are loud and bloody, but not as galvanic, searing and personal as those in "Private Ryan." In Spielberg's film, viewers are actually immersed in the fighting, sharing the confusion and violence of Tom Hanks and his platoon. In "Thin Red Line" we are observers, more removed though no less aware of how horrible war can be.

"Private Ryan" ends on a note of mixed triumph and despair, while "Thin Red Line" ends as it began: on a note of wonder that humans can be so foolish - a soft, poetic sadness.

John Travolta braves the water in 'A Civil Action'

By JON KATZ
SPECIAL WRITER

"Water, water everywhere, Nor any drop to drink" - S.T. Coleridge

Poet Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner" looked out over the ocean and realized that it could not sustain him. For the residents of Woburn, Mass., the Aberjona River water was just as deadly. It had a horrible stench. It tasted so awful it had to be mixed with Tang. It corroded kitchen pipes. And between 1965 and 1980, it allegedly caused 28 cases of childhood leukemia and 16 deaths in the Boston suburb.

Jonathan Harr chronicled the case in his 500-page best-seller, "A Civil Action." Brought to the screen by writer/director Steven Zaillian ("Schindler's List"), it is a powerfully told and acted motion picture, but one which might turn a whole generation off to the legal profession. Not because lawyers are what every comedian makes them out to be, but because the process itself is so downright dull.

The case of Anderson et al. versus W.R. Grace and Beatrice Foods dragged on for eight years. It can be argued that there were no winners. There certainly were losers. This is a story of losers. American filmmakers don't generally like losers.

Jan Schlichtmann (John Travolta) was a "bottom feeder," an ambulance chaser at the top of his game. The Italian suits, the Porsche, the radio show, the expensively appointed office; these were the spoils of war, and it is made clear to us through Travolta's narration that lawsuits are war. Personal injury law firms float their own money to fight their clients' battles, taking huge fees out of the settlements they literally bank on. "Trials are a corruption of the process," we're told. "Only 1.5 percent of civil suits reach a verdict; the whole idea is to settle."

Thus, when Schlichtmann and his partners got drawn into rep-

Showdown: John Travolta stars as attorney Jan Schlichtmann, who stakes his practice, professional reputation - and everything he owns - in a celebrated personal injury case in "A Civil Action."

resenting eight families against two huge corporations accused of dumping toxic chemicals into the Woburn water supply, they envisioned a quick and substantial score. Instead, they were out-lawyered and out-funded. Schlichtmann as a 20th century David simply ran out of stones to put into his slingshot.

Travolta is on a decade-long roll of hits, and is well up to the challenge of playing flawed leads who are considerably less than heroic.

"I don't run away from bullies," he assures the parents. And yes, the character changes mid-stream from out for himself to out for the truth. Despite his success, however, Schlichtmann is portrayed as a pretty lousy lawyer. He conducts depositions clumsily - and they're about as action-packed as O.J. trial sidebars and fools no one when he attempts to bluff the other side into settling for major bucks.

The one you'd want on your team is the remarkable Robert Duvall as Jerry Facher, Grace's lead counsel. Never far from a transistor radio broadcasting his beloved Red Sox, he plays the old fool while Schlichtmann plays right into his hands.

"You've been around long enough to know that a courtroom is no place to look for the truth," he tells his opponent in the film's most quotable line. Duvall is that rare master who, like Sox legends Ted Williams and Carl Yastrzemski, always gets good wood on the ball, whether it's in a supporting role like this or a lead like "The Apostle."

William H. Macy ("Pleasantville") is another can't-miss actor who the camera just loves. As the firm's bean counter, he stares helplessly amidst a roomful of overflowing file boxes while the repo men wheel out the office furniture. Dan Hedaya (TV's "The Tortellis") is notable as the tannery owner morally responsible for the dumping, and Kathleen Quinlan and James Gandolfini convey the working class frustration of townspeople who only sought an apology. We lost count of the number of times someone says "It isn't about the money."

You'll find symbolism galore in the many water-themed shots, and the wordless scene with a Woburn mother pouring water for her six children at the dinner table is a stunning indictment. Never mind all those depositions and motions; they should have just given the judge a glass of the stuff. Case closed.

Blackman and Arnold celebrate new 'gypsy jazz' CD

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Sean Blackman and John Arnold are the mutts of the Detroit jazz scene. The duo has dabbled in rock, classic rock, folk and world beat, all of which led to the "gypsy jazz" sound of Blackman and Arnold.

"We do things authentically. In terms of gypsy, a gypsy to me is someone who just wanders. Their whole being is made up of all the different experiences that they've had," Arnold explained.

"Musically we've drawn from all types of places. Lately we've been calling it 'acoustic world jazz.' It's acoustic music with world sounds and a jazz context."

That sound is best explained on "Illuminata," Blackman and Arnold's sophomore CD. They will celebrate its release with a party and performance at the Magic Bag in Ferndale on Saturday, Jan. 16.

The duo, who performs under the name Blackman and Arnold, is usually joined by percussionist Dennis Sheridan. A few of their friends will stop by for this one.

"Usually if people have seen us play before, we play as a trio. At the record release party we're going to have a six-piece band on stage."

Arnold spent his formative years wandering around the Midwest with his family. The first five years of his life he lived in Detroit before moving to Farmington Hills, Chicago and Troy. He graduated from Troy High School in 1990 and earned a degree in jazz music from Wayne State University five years later.

He has been playing music for 12 years.

"It's funny. I started out playing classic rock music - Zeppelin and Van Halen. Bands like that that you'd hear on (WCXS-FM) 94.7. Then I started getting into heavy metal and playing stuff like Metallica," explained Arnold, who now lives in Royal Oak.

Feeling he had explored those genres fully, he dove into folk music, jazz, rhythm and blues and funk.

"I got bored with certain areas and started to move on. I'm really into electronic music and jazz."

Two years ago, Arnold founded Jazzhead, an amalgamation of funk and jazz.

"I hang out at a lot of dance clubs. I really wanted to put together a band that emulated what the DJs were doing but with a live group," he explained.

"With Jazzhead, we actually do some Led Zeppelin when James Wailin' comes and sings with us. I'm starting to rock out a little again," he said with a shy laugh.

Sean Blackman, an Oak Park native, also grew up playing rock music.

"When he heard Neil Young that really got him into playing acoustic music. He saw his acoustic show live and that changed his whole thing. He started playing acoustic music," Arnold explained.

Then world music called upon Blackman.

"He started listening to flamenco and different music from around the world."

Blackman and local vocalist Stefanie Dillard are working on an acoustic jazz/folk CD.

Blackman and Arnold have been working together for about nine years, although they started their duo three years ago.

"I don't think either of us was in the mindset of doing this kind of thing until that time. We were playing folk music," he explained.

It wasn't until Arnold was hired at Hear Music in the Somerset Collection that he was turned on to world music.

"I got an acoustic guitar and I was really getting into guitar players like John McLaughlin, Al DiMeola, Paco de Lucia, who were all doing this great acoustic world-sounding music."

For Blackman and Arnold's first album, "Self Portrait," released in 1996 on Complex Records, the duo recorded the guitars first and then brought in musicians to play their parts over it.

"Illuminata," however, was recorded live last August at the White Room studio in Detroit.

"It was cool. There was more of a natural feel to it. It was challenging because when you kind of piece things together, it's easier to make things perfect. When you do it live, there's always going to be a mistake or two. That's usually interesting, especially with improvised music," Arnold explained.

The ballad "Emi" is Arnold's baby of the album. It was inspired by "a long-term girlfriend that I broke up with. I was super emotional. I had to get it out somehow."

A week after Blackman and Arnold wrapped up "Illuminata," Arnold returned to the studio to record Jazzhead's eponymous CD which was released in November.

Blackman and Arnold play several venues around the area including Woodruff's Supper Club in Royal Oak, and Fiona's Tea Room in Detroit. But his heart is at Woodruff's, where the duo plays from 9 p.m. to midnight Thursdays.

"It's just a cool setting for jazz. We've played in every type of situation you can imagine. We've played restaurant gigs where no one paid attention. But there the stage is on top of the bar. We're building this little scene there."

Arnold hopes that, no matter where he and Blackman play, that people appreciate it.

"If I were to watch us play, the first things I would want to pay attention to would be the improvisational aspects of the music. That's what jazz is about to me. I hope they're aware of that," he explained.

"We play with a lot of emotion. I would hope that would come across. I want people to feel that as well."

Blackman and Arnold, with special guest Pena World Beat, celebrate the release of "Illuminata" with a party and performance Saturday, Jan. 16, at the Magic Bag, 22920 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. The cover charge is $6 for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (248) 544-3030 or visit the Web site: <http://www.themagicbag.com>

The duo also performs: 8 p.m. Thursdays at Woodruff's Supper Club, 212 W. Sixth St., Royal Oak. (248) 586-1519; and 8 p.m. Fridays at Fiona's Tea House, 945 Beech, Detroit. (313) 967-9314.

Jazzhead performs at 9 p.m. Mondays at Fifth Avenue, 215 W. Fifth Ave., Royal Oak. (248) 542-9922; 9 p.m. Friday, Jan. 15, Copper Canyon Brewery, 27522 Northwestern Highway, Southfield. (248) 223-1700; and with Jazodity, 9 p.m. Friday, Jan. 22, Alvin's, 5756 Cass Ave., Detroit. $5. 18 and older. (313) 832-2355 or <http://www.alvins.tcom.com>

Lively arts can chase winter blahs away

BACKSTAGE PASS

ANN DELISI

We may blame it on the fact that we're stuck in traffic for the umpteenth time. Or a forecast that suggests we'll be breaking out the snow shovel again. How about that once a year cold that just won't go away? No one seems immune from the winter blahs.

I guess when a bad mood strikes, we just have to ride it out. While I don't mean to infringe upon your right to deal with the malaise in your own way, allow me to offer some upbeat ways to relieve the symptoms.

If you're looking for activities that are fresh, fun and hopeful, the next edition of Backstage Pass on Detroit Public Television has some ideas.

Let's begin with the freshness of the Detroit Institute of Arts newly reinstalled 20th-Century galleries, which encompass 20 galleries of modern and contemporary art, presented in a way that is more accessible and enjoyable for visitors. According to Marsha Miro, who takes Backstage Pass viewers on a tour of the museum, visiting the DIA is a much more exciting and provocative experience since the galleries reopened in November.

"The DIA achieved its goal of changing the flavor of the museum. You really feel like you're walking into the 20th Century as you enter the new reinstalled galleries," says Miro.

The current exhibit, "A Passion for Glass: The Aviva and Jack A. Robinson Collection," is sure to build on the DIA's reputation for presenting outstanding contemporary glass art.

For fun, you may not be able to top "Tony 'n' Tina's Wedding," the off-Broadway comedy smash at Pontiac's Baci Abbracci Theatre. It makes me wonder how an audience participation play that is mostly unscripted can be so consistently hilarious. Humans do seem to thrive on silliness and surprises. You've undoubtedly heard a friend rave about this latest good time event in Pontiac's growing art and entertainment district. We'll wing it with Tony and Tina at the theatre and again in the Channel 56 studios.

Sometimes hope springs from a most unlikely source. Who expected it from Wayne Kramer? The headbanging guitarist who made revolutionary rock & roll in the late '60s and early '70s with the MC5 serves up a message of hope in his new album, Citizen Wayne.

"I lost years to drug abuse and years more to prison. Believe me, the chance to put together a band, make records and play my music for people every night is not something I take lightly. As far as I'm concerned, 'Doing the Work' is a love song," says Kramer. The irrepressible Kramer attitude appears throughout the album, and we're looking forward to an upcoming performance on Backstage Pass.

Pianist/composer Jeff Haas, the son of German Jewish immigrants, grew up in Detroit in a home rich with music in the Judaic and European tradition. As a teen, Jeff discovered his sister's copy of "Thelonious Monk and John Coltrane: Live at the Five Spot," and his passion for jazz was born. Now, his work is inspired by Detroit's rich musical heritage and Haas' personal experience of growing up where Jewish and African-Americans communities had tremendous impact on the city's development.

The Jeff Haas Trio and Friends with legendary trumpeter Marcus Belgrave perform an original jazz suite at the Museum of African-American History on January 21st. Haas and very noteworthy musician friends are also featured on a mood-elevating edition of Backstage Pass airing Sunday at 7:30 p.m., and repeated Thursdays at 5:30 p.m. and Friday at midnight.

OK, I'm feeling better now. Can somebody help me push my car out of this snowbank?

Sisters make pierogi just like mom's at Jennies

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER
kwygonik@oe.homecomm.net

Theresa Remski, her sister Mary Sokol, with help from mom, Jennie Kochan, and their staff at Jennies Pierogi, make pierogi, beet and cabbage soup to go.

Pierogi are Polish style dumplings filled with cheese, vegetables, meat, or fruit. If you've never eaten them before, picture a big ravioli, a little over three-and-a-half inches wide, filled with sauerkraut, mashed potatoes, or plums.

Ravioli like pierogi are boiled, but some people, like to brown them in a little butter with onions before serving. Pierogi are traditionally served with a dollop of sour cream, not tomato sauce, although you could serve them with tomato sauce if you like.

Once a delicacy you learned how to make from your grandmother, mother, or a Polish American neighbor, pierogi are now part of our American menu. You can buy them frozen at most grocery stores, and at some delis, but like most things, homemade is best.

"My mom has a magic touch with her dough," said Remski, a resident of Plymouth. "It's not thick, all you can taste is the flavor of the ingredients, plus a little bit of dough. People really like it. We've had so many customers say they taste just like mom's, and that's a compliment."

Jennies Pierogi
Two locations
■ Garden City - 6659 Middlebelt, (734) 523-0911
Open: 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday; 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday. Closed Sunday
■ Warren - 31100 Hoover, (810) 983-5256
Open: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday; 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday. Closed Sunday and Monday Menu: Fifteen varieties of pierogi including sauerkraut, potato, cheese, meat, and fruit. Beet and cabbage soup available by the pint.
Cost: Pierogi sold by the half and whole dozen. Cost ranges from $5.50 to $7 a dozen. Soup $2 a pint.

Making pierogi at home is labor intensive. "It's a two day operation," said Remski remembering when her mom and dad made them in the basement of their home while she was growing up. "Customers say I'm so glad you guys are here. We appreciate it."

After getting numerous requests from family and friends for Jennies pierogi, Theresa and her sister, Mary decided to go into business. They opened their first store on Warren Ave. in Detroit, and moved their store to a bigger space in Garden City four years ago.

They opened a second store in Sterling Heights two years ago. Their business has grown mostly by word of mouth. The pierogi are made at the Garden City store. "The Sterling Heights store is strictly a selling store," said Remski.

Jennies Pierogi is a family-run and operated business. "It's not making us rich," said Remski,

"but I still enjoy doing it. We've got really good help. I enjoy coming to work. It's like a family."

Remski likes to pan fry her pierogi in a little margarine with sliced onions until they're "nice and brown." You can also dip pierogi in boiling water to warm, and then brown slightly in a frying pan.

In addition to the traditional sauerkraut, potato, potato & cheese, mushroom & onion, and meat filled pierogi, you'll find Mexican pierogi, which are filled with jalapeno peppers, potatoes, and Cheddar cheese. "I like to put salsa on top of them," said Remski, "they've got a nice bite."

Jennie's also offers fruit filled pierogi - prune, plum and cherry.

Pierogi can be frozen for up to three months. If you're hungry for a bowl of hearty soup, try the cabbage or beet, which are sold by the pint.

Family business: Mary Sokol (left to right), Jennie Kochan and Theresa Remski offer up to 15 varieties of pierogi, beet and cabbage soup to go at Jennies Pierogi.

I'm in a hurry, make my dinner to go

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER
kwygonik@oe.homecomm.net

Eating out isn't just for special occasions anymore. Now you can go to almost any restaurant and order your meal to go.

The trend is toward more carryout, and we're not just talking Chinese and pizza. The recently renovated Bill Knapp's Restaurant at 16995 Laurel Park Road in Livonia has a "Knapp's in a Snapp" take-out area. You can call or fax your order in, and pick it up without having to go into the dining area.

Grocery stores, recognizing our growing appetites for something home-cooked without the fuss, now offer whole barbecue and roasted chickens to go, ribs, and even complete dinners.

At the new Farmer Jack in Ypsilanti Township, customers can order ready-made foods via the Internet through "Cyber-meals" online ordering. There's also an express checkout in the deli department where customers can pick up ready-made meals and pay for them at the counter. Check out the Farmer Jack web site at www.farmer-jack.com

According to the National Restaurant Association, more than 40 percent of consumers report they feel cooking at home is a hassle. More and more restaurants are catering to consumers who want to purchase freshly prepared food.

Households consisting of only a husband and wife spent the most on food away from home. Among husband and wife households with children, restaurant spending varies according to the age of the oldest child. The proportion of the food dollar allocated to food way from home, increases as the age of the oldest child in the household increases.

If the trend toward eating out more continues, we might start trading carryout menus the same way we trade recipes. Instead of asking someone - "do you have a good recipe for pierogi?" We might ask, "Where can I get some pierogi to go?"

My answer, would be Jennies Pierogi. It's one of my favorite places for Dinner to Go (see related story). What are some of your favorite places for Dinner to Go? If you're a restaurant owner, what do you offer customers who want their Dinner to Go? We're looking for something out of the ordinary, after all, we all get tired of eating the same old stuff.

Send menus and suggestions for Dinner to Go to Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150. To fax, call (734) 591-7279 or e-mail kwygonik@oe.homecomm.net

Send recommendations for our new Dinner to Go dining feature to Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc. 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, fax (734) 953-2105, or e-mail kwygonik@oe.homecomm.net

If you're a restaurant owner, send your carryout menu for consideration in Dinner to Go! Along with a phone number and the best time to return a call to you. Remember, we're hungry for something different. Include a note indicating specialty dishes that are available for carryout.
