Water meter project about to begin

Commercial units will be replaced first, then residential

By LeAnne Rogers
Staff Writer

In a matter of weeks, a two-year program to replace water meters at all Westland homes and businesses will be getting underway.

The Westland City Council recently got an update on the nearly $10 million project, which will replace approximately 36,000 meters, including 26,000 residential units. Plans call for commercial meters to be replaced first, followed by residential work.

The project is a significant investment for the city, which will be replacing meters that are past the end of their useful life, said Wayne-Westland Department of Public Services Director Ramzi El-Gharib.

"We can't get parts for the meters from the manufacturers anymore," he said.

The exterior reading devices are also being replaced as part of the project. The faulty readers are causing the city to estimate or do re-reads on about 7,000 water bills per month, El-Gharib said.

"This is a state-of-the-art system. It has been tested. It works," he said, adding Livonia, Canton, Taylor and Birmingham are among the communities already using the system.

The new meters are digital, have no moving parts and come with a 20-year warranty, El-Gharib said. Any faulty meters will be replaced at no charge during the first 10 years and on a pro-rated basis during the second 10 years.

"The meters have been tested and are very reliable. We're getting the cream-of-the-crop system," he said.

Remote reading

The new water meters will be read remotely, automatically sending data to towers at the Westland Police Department and at Middlebelt and Annapolis.

Etna Supply is the contractor providing the meters and remote readers, while Van-

Superheroes fighting to end cancer kick off Relay for Life

By LeAnne Rogers
Staff Writer

With decorations featuring the Hulk, Wolverine and Spider-Man, it was a gathering of superheroes as Westland-Wayne Relay for Life officially kicked off.

"Thank you so much for joining us and other superheroes," said event chairperson Carol Nelius, speaking to the crowd gathered at Westland City Hall.

Last year over 440 people participated in the American Cancer Society event, raising nearly $77,000. With an $80,000 goal this year, the Westland-Wayne Relay is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 6, in the Farmers Market Pavilion.

Along with supporting cancer patients and caregivers, Relay remembers those lost to cancer and features a special lap for survivors.

A nearly five-year breast cancer survivor, Kathy Graham recounted getting her diagnosis at her regular annual examination.

"I was told to return for an ultrasound of a suspicious mass. I never suspected cancer," Graham said. "They called me into a conference room and were talking about a biopsy, getting a surgeon and a plastic surgeon. They asked if I had any questions. I think you go into shock when you hear it (the diagnosis)."

During the time since she was diagnosed and undergoing treatment, Graham said she lost several family members to cancer.

Wayne Rec offering refunds, discounts on memberships

By LeAnne Rogers
Staff Writer

A couple weeks after the aquatic center was closed, the Wayne Community Center is offering pro-rated membership refunds and discounted memberships.

The recreation and fitness areas are open at the community — the ice arena has been closed since last year. The meeting and banquet rooms are also still available for rental.

For those wanting a membership refund, Wayne Interim Parks and Recreation Director Juan Bradford said the refund will be pro-rated based on when the membership was purchased and when it expires. The refund will not be based on a percent credited due to the pool closing.

At last week's council meeting, Bradford announced a March Madness discounted membership program. A one-month membership — which is $25 for Wayne and Westland residents, $30 for non-residents — would be discounted $5.

The one-year memberships — $225 for residents and $260 for non-residents — would be discounted $10. A $15 discount is offered for a husband/wife annual membership at $396 resident/$470 non-resident rate. The discounts are available through March 31.

"We will have the same price for memberships (without a pool). We are trying to keep business coming through the doors," Bradford said.

The council will have to make decisions regarding the budget deficit in the current year and the projected shortfall of more than $2 million in upcoming year. Those decisions include the recreation center, which runs at a large deficit.

Mayor James Hawley questioned whether any council members had a problem with selling memberships in light of the decisions council will need to make that could further impact the community center.

2 Westland voter precincts forced to move for primary

Voters in two Westland precincts will have to cast their ballots at a new location but only for the Aug. 4 primary election.

Hayes Elementary School in the Livonia School District houses Westland precincts 30 and 31.

However, for the primary election the school will be closed for renovations.

As a result, the two precincts will move to Cooper School, 28550 Ann Arbor Trail, for the primary election.

For the general election in November, the precincts will be back at Hayes, located at 30600 Louise.

"Two and a half years ago, Livonia Public Schools approved millage to work on their buildings," Westland City Clerk Eileen DeHart Schoof said.

"Last year, Cooper (pre-incts) went to Hayes. This is the opposite."

As required by state law, precinct 30 and 31 voters will receive new voter identification cards for the single election, Schoof said, and again for November as they return to their original precinct.

Westland woman, 22, dies after traffic accident

A Westland woman was killed Tuesday in a traffic accident in Commerce Township.

McKenna Rae Kreischer, 22, was driving a 2003 Ford Ranger southbound on Welch Road near Stony Lane just after 2 p.m.

Kreischer lost control of her vehicle on a slushy roadway and went left of the center line, according to the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The truck slid sideways into the path of a northbound 2009 Chevrolet Silverado driven by a 45-year old White Lake man.

Kreischer was treated at the scene by the Commerce Township Fire Department and Community EMS. She was transported to Huron Valley Hospital where she later succumbed to her injuries.

The driver of the Silverado was also transported to Huron Valley Hospital and is listed in stable condition.

Alcohol does not appear to be a factor, according to the sheriff's department, and seat belts were worn by all parties in this crash.

The accident remains under investigation.

guard Utility Service has been hired to do the installations.

The city would be divided into six sections — two commercial and four residential. Once the commercial meter installation is complete, El-Gharib said work would begin at homes in the northeast part of Westland.

Residents would be sent post-cards asking them to call and set up an appointment for the meter installations, which are mandatory. If the resident doesn't respond, door hangers would be left and an installer might knock on the door.

Installers would not only have marked vehicles, uniforms and photo identification, but customers would also be able to look on the city website to see a photo of the installer. The police department could also do the same type of verification.

Westland's website will provide information about the meter replacements, including frequently asked questions, online installation scheduling and a map showing where in the city the installers are working.

Accurate, reliable

By providing the city with more accurate and reliable meter reads, Finance Director Steve Smith said the system will mesh with the new billing software.

"The more you estimate, the less accurate the bill. When the bills go out estimated, we get calls to schedule reads," Smith said. "DPS goes out and manually reads the meter, then puts it into the computer. That causes uneven billing (periods)."

On the next water bill following the new meter/reader installation, Smith said there will be a line reflecting the final read on the old meter plus the reading from the new meter.

Commercial water customers should be getting installations by the end of the month or early April.

Westland has done bond sales to generate $17 million that will, in part, be used to pay for the city-wide water meter replacement program. Other projects will include improvements to the Inkster Road and Middlebelt lift stations.

"I don't see any problem. I like to go up there (to the community center)," Councilman Albert Damitio said.

Councilman Anthony

Miller commented that he was concerned the city was sending out mixed messages regarding the community center because it wasn't clear what will happen with the facility.

"We're not up here thinking we will close the community center. It's a viable operation there," Damitio said. "We will keep operating it. We don't want to send mixed messages that we are closing it. We will be dealing with a lot of issues."

"Maybe we should stop picking up trash. We've got to make a deci-Damitio and James were among the council members who didn't support closing the pool.

Community Choice Credit Union breaks down banking barriers with new Member Center

By Karen Smith
Staff Writer

It used to be customers had to go to two or three people to take care of their financial transactions when visiting Community Choice Credit Union in Livonia, stopping at the teller window to make a deposit and then meeting with another employee if they wanted to open a new account or take out a loan.

Now, they can go to one personal advisor, who can handle everything for them.

Community Choice held a ribbon-cutting ceremony Thursday for its newly renovated Member Center at 15420 Farmington Road.

"It's very innovative for this industry," said branch manager Holli Kerkhof, adding that Community Choice is the first financial institution in Michigan to break down the physical barriers of traditional banking in favor of a more relationship-focused concept with low-profile kiosks.

The Livonia Member Center, which underwent seven months of renovations, is one of three Community Choice locations debuting the new concept this month. The others are in Milford and Northville.

"Most members aren't going to their credit union to deposit a check or make a transaction anymore — that's all being done online or on a smartphone app," said Philip Cooper, executive vice president and chief operating officer of Community Choice Credit Union. "Instead, they're coming to us for personal financial advice. Our new Member Centers pro-note this type of relationship-focused environment."

Kerkhof said the turnout for the ribbon-cutting ceremony was great. "We had incredible support from the community," she said, including visits from many from the business community.

In addition to self-serve kiosks, customers can help themselves to free coffee and, on some days, free popcorn.

Community Choice invites the entire community to an open house from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, March 21. The day will include food, prizes, giveaways, as well as several promotions, including $100 for new members who sign up for checking and direct deposit and $100 for financing a vehicle with Community Choice.

Livonia school chief a semifinalist for state superintendent job

By Karen Smith
 Staff Writer

Livonia Public Schools Superintendent Randy Liepa is one of six semifinalists for state superintendent.

The state board of education last Tuesday narrowed a field of 54 applicants for a successor to State Superintendent Mike Flanagan, who will vacate the position by July 1.

Liepa is expected to be interviewed this week.

Liepa said becoming state superintendent has not been a long-term goal of his.

But the job opening is an opportunity that would give him more of a voice in Lansing on education policy — his passion.

“That’s what this is all about,” he said.

Liepa

As LPS superintendent, Liepa has advocated in Lansing for funding for all Michigan students. Last spring, he was instrumental in the “Classrooms and Kids” budget proposal that would have redirected more money into classrooms without raising taxes.

Livonia Public Schools board president Colleen Burton said she is not surprised Liepa is one of the semifinalists.

“I would have been shocked if he weren’t,” she said, citing his accomplishments at keeping LPS “in the black through a nightmare of school funding.”

She said she found out just recently he was going for the job and has mixed emotions about it.

“On one hand we would be thrilled to have a gentleman of his caliber leading the state,” she said. “At the same time, he would leave enormous shoes to fill because he has set the bar so high.”

She said if he gets the position, Livonia students will still benefit “because he can continue to do terrific things for Livonia and all kids.”

Liepa said he is honored to be one of the semifinalists, but he remains as dedicated and committed to Livonia as he has always been. “This is my home. I’m happy to work here until retirement,” he said, if the LPS board allows.

Liepa has been with LPS, one of the top 10 biggest districts in the state, since 1994. He has been superintendent since 2003. The board in December extended his contract by another year to June 30, 2018.

Before coming to LPS, Liepa was Wayne-Westland Community Schools assistant superintendent for business and operations after joining that district as supervisor of accounting. From 1984 to 1987, he was a Public Accountant for Plante and Moran.

The other candidates are: Randy Davis, superintendent, Marshall Public Schools; Alan Ingram, deputy commissioner, Massachusetts Department of Elementary and Secondary Education; Vickie Markavitch, superintendent, Oakland Schools, intermediate school district for Oakland County; Scott Menzel, superintendent, Washtenaw Intermediate School District; and Brian Whiston, superintendent, Dearborn Public Schools.

Authors introduce their new book at Edison Elementary Family Night

By Sue Mason
 Staff Writer

Three years ago, Joe Kelley and Nick Rokicki introduced their first children’s book, Pete the Popcorn. The authors were at Edison Elementary School in Westland on Monday to introduce their latest work, The Ideaparnockolis, to kick off March Is Reading Month.

Kelley handled the PowerPoint, while Rokicki read the book to students and their families who had gathered at the school for a family reading and game night. The evening included the story telling, cupcakes and prizes in the cafeteria and literacy games provided by the Family Resource Center in the library.

“This was a very good turnout for an evening program,” Swanson said. “It was a big nighttime event and a big turnout. It was truly a community event with families coming from throughout the district. We had at least 70 kids and 50 families. We had a high number were from Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth-Canton.”

Kelley is a Westland native who attended Edison and identified himself as “an Eagle,” the school’s mascot, while Rokicki lives in Toledo. They have collaborated on 10 children’s books, the latest being The Ideaparnockolis and their first chapter book, The Trashy Hootenanny, which they released simultaneously on March 2 “to reach as many children as possible.”

“This is our first time reading this out loud to kids with adults in the room,” Rokicki said.

Kelley told his audience that “creativity is cool and art is your imagination.” The two men have read their stories to 100,000 children in 25 states. Their latest book is a “fantastical picture book in the style of Dr. Seuss. The Ideaparnockolis is the story of “imaginary creatures who store ideas inside coconuts.” It was inspired by a friend of Kelley’s who works at a Starbucks in Naples, Fla.

“A woman with bags that he thought was homeless would buy coffee and pay with a $50 bill,” Kelley said. “She’d say she was going to take her brain and put it in a coconut and put it in a non-coconut tree.”

The pages of their books have “secrets” on them. The images that lead youngsters to their other books, including Gilbert the Grasshopper, which transitions readers to chapter books and their “first full-fledged, 14,000-word chapter book, The Trashy Hootenanny.”

Joining Kelley and Rokicki for the program was Megan Jurek, a seventh-grade middle school student from Toledo who illustrated Hootenanny. She told students she practices drawing every day and that it wasn’t hard to work with the authors. The challenge, she said, was finding a picture of maggots and drawing them.

“It feels great to do the illustrations,” she said. “I was shocked when they asked me to illustrate the book.”

Pete the Popcorn deals with bullying, and the authors knew they had hit a chord when they started visiting schools and teachers and parents would come up to them.

“At P.D. Graham (Elementary in Westland), a mom came up crying because her son was overweight,” Rokicki said. “We always try to weave personal stories into our books.”

Rokicki admits that he thought Pete the Popcorn would be a “one-time hobby,” but once it was published, “everything snowballed from there.”

Carrie Jamrog was there with her daughter Midori to buy copies of the books, especially Gilbert, which features her grandmother, Cindy Stewart, as the little girl. Kelley went to school with Stewart and they’re good friends, he said.

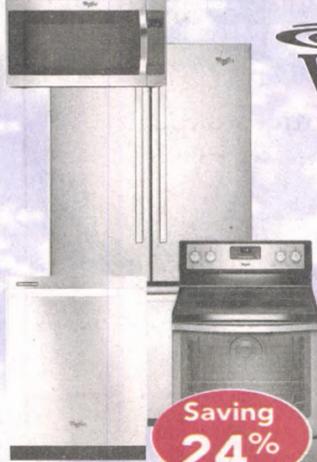

“She (Stewart) was very excited to have that happen to her,” Jamrog said.

Midori likes to read books with her buddy at school and picked out a story about animals. Her favorite animal is a cat, she said.

Livonia students raise hundreds for Blessings in a Backpack

Blessings in a Backpack-Livonia has some very hard-working friends. Last month, two Livonia fifth-graders, Natalie Wilson and Rayna Olver, were each given $20 and challenged by their church group to increase the money and do something good with it for others.

According to the mother of one of the girls, Jan Wilson, the girls discussed several ideas, and finally settled on having a Penny War at their school, Riley Upper Elementary, to support Blessings in a Backpack-Livonia.

Flyers went home to parents of students in four fifth-grade classes. Pennies were counted as positive, while silver coins and bills were negative.

This clever method challenged the students to bring in money other than pennies to put in other classes' containers in order to decrease their total amount. It was, after all, a competition among the classrooms. And in two weeks they raised $750. Natalie and Rayna, the two girls who started it all, each put back in their $20, plus another $150 that they earned. "It was a great experience," Jan Wilson said.

Blessings in a Backpack-Livonia is a community-based program run by volunteers to address the problem of weekend childhood hunger in the Livonia Public School System. Each week backpacks are filled with six meals, consisting of foods such as tuna, chicken, peanut butter, macaroni and cheese, oatmeal, fruit juices, soup, beef ravioli, canned fruit and granola bars, by volunteers and distributed Fridays to the participating "at-risk" students at Garfield Elementary. Recruits who successfully complete recruit school will graduate on July 24.

In order to be selected to attend the 128th Trooper Recruit School, recruits had to pass a stringent selection process that included a physical fitness test, background investigation and hiring interview.

Since 2011, the state police hired 430 state troopers, bringing the total number of troopers statewide to 1,023. The MSP is actively recruiting for future recruit schools.

Community Opportunity Center celebrates 50th year

Randy Lewis, a national trailblazer in providing jobs for adults with special needs, will be the keynote speaker April 18 in Livonia at the 50th Anniversary Celebration of Community Opportunity Center (COC).

COC, a Livonia-based nonprofit organization that provides housing and support for persons with developmental disabilities in Western Wayne County, will celebrate its 50th year of service beginning at 6 p.m. Saturday, April 18, at Laurel Manor Banquet & Conference Center in Livonia.

Lewis is author of No Greatness Without Goodness, a book named by Fast Company as one of the "Ten Books You Need

To Read This Year," which describes how a father's love changed a company and sparked a movement to employ persons with disabilities, many of whom had never been offered employment.

Under Lewis' leadership as senior vice president, Walgreens grew from 1,500 to 8,000 stores. During that time Lewis introduced an inclusive model in Walgreens distribution centers that resulted in 10 percent of its workforce being staffed by persons with disabilities — employees who are held to the same standards as those without disabilities and receive the same pay and benefits.

"The success of this initiative has changed the lives of thousands of people and serves as a model for other employers in the United States and around the world," says Lewis, whose program serves as a model for other companies in the United States and abroad including large employers such as Proctor & Gamble, Lowe's, UPS, Marks & Spencer in the United Kingdom, Natura in Brazil and Ica in Sweden.

The dreamers who helped form COC 50 years ago when the institutions were closing and emptying its rooms, creating a critical need for housing for persons with developmental disabilities, also will be honored at the April 18 celebration.

A dinner of filet mignon and chicken del signore will be served. Non-alcoholic beverages are included in the ticket price of $40 per person and a cash bar will be available. After the program there will be dancing to the music of The Relic Band, a classic and modern rock band.

"This is an exciting event as COC celebrates this very special milestone in serving adults with developmental disabilities," says Denise King, executive director of COC, which is headquartered in Livonia. "We look forward to the opportunity to recognize those citizens who stepped forward and helped provide a very important need — housing — when it was such a critical need."

COC has homes for almost 90 persons with developmental disabilities in Plymouth, Livonia, Garden City, Redford plus apartments and other residential settings in Westland, Canton and other communities in Western Wayne County.

Among those expected to attend will be Pat Babcock, who was state director of mental health at the time of COC's founding, and helped lead the reform movement to end the institutional living style relegated for special needs citizens and offer them the opportunity to live in residential settings with the comfort of home. COC's Plymouth House was one of 24 group homes initially opened in Michigan under Babcock's leadership.

Community Opportunity Center was founded in 1965 and began with one home. Today, COC comprises almost two dozen homes in northwestern Wayne County, including houses and apartments owned by COC, rented or leased homes, and a condominium owned by a family member for the benefit of a loved one. COC's primary aim is to encourage greater independence for each individual.

She did what? Area firefighter climbs Ren Cen stairs — fast

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Canton Firefighter Maureen Stoecklein climbed 70 flights of stairs to the top of the Detroit Renaissance Center in just 13 minutes and 49 seconds.

She did it wearing 70 pounds of firefighter gear.

That placed Stoecklein first among 25 female firefighters — and 33rd among all 350 firefighters across southeast Michigan — who climbed Detroit's tallest skyscraper during the Fight for Air Climb charity event for the American Lung Association.

"I work out quite a bit, but I didn't really know what to expect," said Stoecklein, a Westland resident. "It was hot because we had our gear on. I just put my head down and went. I knew a slow, steady pace would be the way to go."

Stoecklein was among a team of eight Canton firefighters who climbed the Renaissance Center last Sunday, posting an average time of 24 minutes.

Canton raised $2,415 for the American Lung Association. Jessie Jimenez-Schlicht, development director for the Madison Heights-based chapter, said area firefighters were among some 1,600 participants who raised over $344,000.

From Canton, Stoecklein joined Firefighters Duane Lowe, Ryan Molina, Jim Harrison and Brian Switzer, Cpts. Nick Lombardi and Kevin Henderson, and Deputy Fire Chief Chris Stoecklein, Maureen's husband. "I'm incredibly proud of all the participants,"

Fire Chief Joshua Meier said. "They worked hard. They trained hard and they did it for charity."

Meier commended Maureen Stoecklein's strong showing in the event.

"That's a huge accomplishment for her," he said. "The department is incredibly proud of her efforts for achieving that."

Stoecklein, in her 15th year as a Canton firefighter, formerly worked as a dietician for a cardiac rehabilitation facility. She understands the importance of staying healthy.

"I work out every day and do yoga," she said. "More recently I've been doing strength training. I feel it's important for me in this job as a firefighter to stay physically fit."

"The climb was great camaraderie for our department," Stoecklein said, "and I am proud to represent Canton and the fire department with such a great group of coworkers."

File an amended tax return when errors are found

Q: Dear Rick: I just had my 2014 tax return prepared and my tax preparer noticed a mistake on my 2013 return. It dealt with the sale of a mutual fund that I had owned for years. My preparer used the wrong cost basis so as opposed to reporting a gain I reported a loss. My tax preparer recommended that I immediately file an amended return. My thoughts are that since I have not heard from the IRS, why do anything. If the IRS contacts me in the future I will deal with it then.

A: It makes sense to file an amended return. As a taxpayer it is your responsibility to file fair and accurate returns. As a result, when you discover an error, whether it's in your favor or not, it is your responsibility to correct the error. The fact that the IRS has not discovered the error does not mean that it won't — particularly in your situation, where the issue was with the basis. In the past, basis was not reported to the IRS and the likelihood of discovering an error was minimal. However, that is no longer the case. Over the last few years, basis has been reported to the IRS. The IRS will discover the error. It is always better for you, the taxpayer, to correct the error before the IRS gets involved. If the IRS discovers the error, in addition to interest that you would have to pay, there is a greater likelihood that they will assess penalties. If you voluntarily report an error to the IRS, you have a greater chance of avoiding any penalties. In addition, if the IRS discovers the error, there's a chance it will look at past years' tax information, which could lead to audits.

Trust me — no one wants an audit from the IRS. When it comes to mistakes on tax returns, the issue isn't whether or not a taxpayer should file an amended return, but rather, what are their chances of being caught. That is a difficult question. However, over the last few years more information has been reported to the IRS. The chance of the IRS discovering the error is much greater than it was in the past.

I believe it isn't whether the IRS will catch you, the real issue is your responsibility as a citizen — to file fair and accurate returns and to correct any errors that are discovered. When it comes to taxes, those that play by the rules tend to sleep better at night. Good luck.

Rhino wrestles at VFW fundraiser on March 12

It has been 20 years since the man known as Rhino made his first professional wrestling match. Starting off using the name Terry Richards before becoming more widely known as Rhino, the Dearborn Heights native worked his way through local wrestling promotions on his way to national prominence and the WWE Hardcore Championship. Rhino is still wrestling and winning all over the country, appearing most recently on TV for the WWE's NXT division. His 20-year anniversary as a wrestler will be recognized at a pro wrestling exhibition to benefit the VFW on Thursday, March 12, at the Sgt. Romanowski VFW Hall at 28945 Joy, east of Middlebelt, in Westland. Doors will open at 7 p.m. with matches starting at 7:30. Admission is $5. Rhino's 20th anniversary match will be the main event, with his opponent being Tyson Dux, another seasoned competitor who has also performed in the WWE and with the national Ring of Honor promotion. Rhino has asked Gary Woronchak, chairman of the Wayne County Commission, to accompany him at ringside for his milestone match. One of Rhino's first matches when he was starting his career 20 years ago was for a wrestling promotion that Woronchak ran in Taylor. Ringside manager Truth Martini will accompany Tyson Dux at ringside.

The tag-team co-feature will match the Scarboni Brothers, who are also managed at ringside by Martini, against the team of D.B.A. and Malcolm Monroe III.

Detroit Metro Airport holds volunteer recruitment fair

Want to learn how to become a Detroit Metro Airport customer service ambassador? How about sharing extra time with Wayne Main Street, the American Red Cross, Gleaners Food Bank, the Detroit Institute of Arts, the Karmanos Cancer Institute, Detroit Riverfront Conservancy or Ann Arbor and Detroit Convention and Visitor.

On Friday, March 13, from 10 a.m. to noon, Detroit Metropolitan Airport will be hosting a first-of-its-kind volunteer recruitment fair to provide information on how individuals with a little extra time can find a worthwhile passion they enjoy, and help give back to their community.

The recruitment fair will be held at Detroit Metropolitan Airport's NOMADS building at 10100 Middlebelt, Romulus.

"We have a strong history of great partnerships here," Airport Authority CEO Thomas Naughton said. "The airport is a community, and we pull in travelers, customers, employees, and volunteers from all over. The nature of what we do is helping facilitate connections — what better place to illustrate that we are stronger when we work together and that there are tremendous opportunities to give back and help contribute to many worthwhile causes throughout our region?"

Twenty-five local organizations will be participating in the recruitment fair, and each will have a table and representatives on hand to answer questions from potential volunteers. Attendees will have the opportunity to hear from the groups listed below, understand more about their organizations and learn about volunteer opportunities and how to get involved.

In addition to Wayne Main Street, the other organizations include the Airport Ambassador Volunteer Program, American Red Cross, Ann Arbor Convention and Visitors Bureau, the AYUSA - Academic Year, U.S.A. - nonprofit Foreign Exchange student program, Charles H. Wright Museum of African American History, Romulus Animal Shelter, Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Metro Convention and Visitors Bureau, Detroit Riverfront Conservancy, Detroit Zoological Society, Fish and Loaves Community Food Pantry, Ford Piquette Avenue Plant, Freedom Center, Friends for the Dearborn Animal Shelter, Gabrielle's Angels, Girl Scouts of SE Michigan, Gleaner's Food Bank, Karmanos Cancer Institute, Old Newsboys Goodfellow Fund of Detroit, Paws With a Cause, RSVP - Retired Senior Volunteer Program, Stop the Violence, The Parade Company and the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service/International Wildlife Refuge Alliance.

"We are always looking for opportunities to recruit new volunteer customer service ambassadors here at the airport," DTW Customer Service Manager Fran Wood said. "Finding passionate and committed volunteers is our challenge; but there wasn't a shared local venue or platform to find new recruits, so we thought we would create one. Many of the organizations we have worked with over the years thought it was a great idea as well, and the response has been wonderful."

Relay For Life of Livonia kicks off, wins award

The American Cancer Society Relay For Life of Livonia held its 17th annual Kickoff Party on Tuesday at One Under Banquet Hall in Livonia.

The program honored cancer survivors and caregivers and featured the Society's mission to save lives from cancer.

It also celebrated Relay For Life of Livonia's success as winner of the Southeast Michigan, Territory B, Pack the Track Challenge. Relay For Life of Livonia had the largest percentage of growth in participants signed up online between Jan. 26 and Feb. 3, growing from 70 participants to 251 — a 259-percent increase.

Guest speaker Jennifer Nagy, a cancer survivor who started the very first Relay For Life of Livonia in 1998, talked about the American Cancer Society's Cancer Resource Center at St. Mary Mercy Hospital in Livonia.

million people participated in more than 6,000 events worldwide in 2014.

Last year, 400 people participated in Livonia's event and raised more than $111,000.

"The Relay For Life movement unites communities across the globe to celebrate people who have battled cancer, remember loved ones lost, and take action to finish the fight once and for all," said Liz Evans, the American Cancer Society's community manager for the city of Livonia. "This is our community's opportunity to fight back against cancer."

Residents react to Ford Road traffic solution

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Linda Long remembers Haggerty as a dirt road when she and husband Amos bought their Canton home 35 years ago.

Now, traffic congestion has gotten so bad, she said, they have to take detours driving from the I-275 interchange to their home off Haggerty, south of Ford Road.

"We're right in the thick of it," Long said.

Most times, the Longs don't even try to turn left from westbound Ford onto Haggerty. It's too frustrating, too dangerous. So, they use the IKEA parking lot as a detour and circle back to southbound Haggerty.

Linda Long was encouraged Wednesday evening after she learned of $8.7 million in road improvements that the Michigan Department of Transportation and Wayne County plan to make this year to one of the state's most accident-prone areas, used by 50,000 motorists a day.

Specifically, Long supports plans to lengthen the left-turn lane from Ford onto southbound Haggerty and to have what Mike Bellini, Longtime Canton resident Linda Long is hopeful the Ford Road work, intended to ease traffic congestion, will make it easier to get to her home.

MDOT transportation engineer, said will be a continuous third lane along westbound Ford from Lotz to Lilley.

"I think it will help," Long said, as MDOT and Wayne County formally unveiled a plan to help ease traffic woes during a public meeting at Summit on the Park. "I think it's an awesome idea. It's a huge plus."

Canton resident Ron Fisher Jr., among 50 people who came out to see project drawings and talk with transportation officials, said he welcomes the plans, but ideally he would prefer a new interchange at I-275 and Cherry Hill or, at a minimum, a service drive along the interstate.

"I pretty much liked everything I saw," Fisher said.

And while he realizes it's a separate issue, he said he remains worried about deteriorating conditions of subdivision streets in places such as Parkview Estates, off Palmer between Lilley and Sheldon, where he lives.

One major component of the latest road work involves paving Lotz, between Ford and Cherry Hill, and giving motorists another north-south route to pull traffic away from the Ford-Haggerty area. The $5 million county project is expected to begin in June and end in November.

Ronald Agacinski, Wayne County director of engineering, said the effort includes building a three-lane paved road, smoothing-out curves, installing sidewalks and eliminating roadside ditches.

"All the ditches are going away," he said. "It's a safety hazard."

Bellini said MDOT's $3.7 million project along Ford could begin as early as April and be completed by late August. He said motorists can expect detours and sporadic, staggered closings of I-275/Ford ramps on weekends.

According to MDOT, the Ford Road work involves the following:

» A continuous, third westbound lane from Lotz to Lilley, which Bellini said should help to ease traffic congestion.

» Resurface the stretch of Ford between Lotz Road and Marlowe Street, which is west of Morton Taylor near the Rusty Nail Lounge.

» Convert right-turn-only lanes for eastbound and westbound Ford at the Haggerty intersection into a shared turn/through lane by modifying pavement markings, signs and traffic signals.

» Extend the right-turn lane for eastbound Ford at Haggerty.

» Extend the left-turn lane from westbound Ford onto southbound Haggerty, hopefully easing traffic problems for residents such as the Longs.

» Add pavement markings to improve turn lanes from the northbound and southbound I-275 exit ramps onto Ford.

» While having three through lanes on westbound Ford, also maintain a dedicated lane for westbound Ford motorists to enter the loop ramp onto southbound I-275.

» Add sidewalks along eastbound and westbound Ford Road to connect those already there, improving access to places such as the I-275 Metro Trail that runs alongside the interstate.

» Provide an optional second exit lane at the southbound I-275 exit ramp to Ford Road, allowing motorists to more easily exit the interstate.

MDOT officials say long-term fix to Ford Road woes on hold

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Funding appears elusive for a massive, long-range plan to ease traffic problems by converting Ford Road into a boulevard in Canton, officials say.

Michigan Department of Transportation officials have called the boulevard plan the best fix for traffic congestion, though they say smaller-scale efforts to improve Ford Road this year should provide some relief.

Gorette Yung, manager of MDOT's Transportation Service Center in Taylor, said Ford, eventually, could be transformed into a boulevard from the I-275 interchange west to Sheldon — a plan officials have singled out among several earlier proposals.

The plan would separate opposing lanes of traffic with a median, eliminate left turns at major intersections, install boulevard-style turnaround lanes and improve intersections and lanes.

The problem for Ford, much like roads across Michigan, comes down to money.

"We don't have the money for it," Yung said.

Her remarks came Wednesday evening as MDOT and Wayne County had a joint meeting in Canton to unveil first-phase Ford projects this year, such as having a continuous third lane on westbound Ford from Lotz to Lilley and lengthening turn lanes near the I-275/Ford interchange.

Earlier Wednesday, Canton Township Supervisor Phil LaJoy mentioned the first-phase improvements during his State of the Township address, but he voiced frustration over a long-term fix that local officials have sought for more than a decade.

Though grateful for this year's work, LaJoy said the bigger fix has proved frustrating, despite two MDOT studies he said have totaled nearly $1.5 million.

Moreover, he said Canton officials have been rejected six times by federal officials for Ford-fixing grant money from the TIGER, or Transportation Investment Generating Economic Recovery, program.

"We are not giving up," LaJoy said, citing yet a seventh round of applications for TIGER money.

LaJoy said federal transportation officials have allocated over $4.1 billion for the first six rounds of TIGER money. Canton has sought $20 million or more for Ford Road.

"We are determined to get our hands on some of those funds," LaJoy said.

He recently went to Washington, D.C., with a delegation from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and, while there, pushed for a Ford Road fix with legislators. He said he was assured by U.S. Rep. David Trott, R-Michigan, that Canton's traffic problems and potential solution "are a top priority" for him.

After six rejections, LaJoy and others are hopeful the latest TIGER round will be the lucky seven.

"As they say," LaJoy said with a shrug during his State of the Township address, "the seventh time's the charm."

WHEN PART IS MORE THAN WHOLE
Everyone has heard the adage that 'the whole is greater than the sum of the parts.' However, in arthritis it is possible that the part is greater than the sum of the whole.

To illustrate: doctors will see patients who ache throughout their body, have a difficult time arising and moving about in the a.m. and who are always fatigued. A person hearing such a story might believe that the patient is experiencing fibromyalgia. But doctors do physical examinations; that evaluation often reveals why the patient hurts so badly and is fatigued.

Ambulation reveals the patient has an impaired gait. Either a hip or knee is arthritic; at times the ankle or foot is at fault. It is the disturbance in gait, putting strain on the back, pelvis and even into the shoulders and neck that causes the patient to ache all over and always feel tired.

Then, the doctor's role is to establish which joint that is impaired i.e. the hip, knee ankle or foot. Then he must obtain information by x-rays, MRI, joint fluid analysis or a trial of medication to determine the arthritic condition and its extent.

When the impaired joint again becomes whole, then the physician can re-access the patient's total pain. In most instances with knee or hip replaced, the patient finds the body has resolved its pain or it is minor enough to live with.

The same sequence holds for shoulder problems. Pain radiates down the arm, the patient assumes the cause is a pinched nerve in the neck when the impairment comes from a shoulder needing replacement. With successful shoulder surgery, the neck pain ends.

DTE Energy, Consumers Energy sound alarm on impending energy shortfall

The state's two major electricity incumbents have told a House panel that the forced shuttering of coal-fired plants is creating a costly energy shortfall that could hit the wallets of those in the electric choice market the hardest.

Impending federal clean-air regulations and old age are forcing nine Michigan power plants to be mothballed in 2016, meaning DTE Energy and Consumers Energy will need to buy more power off the "grid."

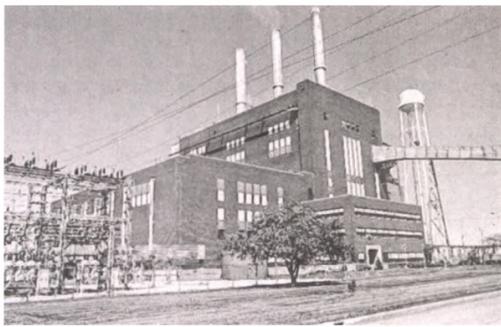

Tim SPARKS, vice president of energy supply operations for Consumers Energy, and Irene Dimitry, vice president of business planning and development, compared the situation in the Lower Peninsula to the energy concerns facing the Upper Peninsula.

From their standpoint, Consumers and DTE are planning to have capacity for its existing companies, according to the Michigan Press Association's weekly Michigan Capitol Press Report.

But the 10 percent of Michigan electricity users who purchase power from one of the roughly six or seven choice providers are on their own if the price of power purchased off the regional pool — called the Midcontinent Independent System Operator or MISO — spikes from lower production and higher demand, they said.

As it stands now, MISO is trying to encourage operators to provide electricity for the grid to prevent potential spikes, Sparks said.

"These issues are real. They are urgent. And the time to address them is now," Dimitry said.

State policy

The comments in front of the House Energy Policy Committee kicked off discussion about a likely rewrite in the state's electricity policy in 2015 that will center around the future of the 10 percent cap on electric choice providers.

As in prior energy-policy discussions in 2008 and 2000, the two incumbent utilities claim the more the electricity market is opened up to competitors, the less certainty they have in the market and the less likely they'll invest in more electricity generation.

The choices, as the incumbents see it, are either getting rid of the state's electric choice program or creating a mechanism where choice customers — startled by the spiked rates from their provider — could return to the incumbent at a cost or not be allowed to return at all.

"We'll have resource issues because we're not planning for them to come back," Sparks said.

Wayne Kuipers of Energy Choice Now and former vice chair of the Senate Technology and Energy Committee said the "scare tactics" the incumbent utilities are using are not new. If they truly are not preparing themselves for different alternatives in regards to the future of energy production, the aforementioned attitude is "dumb in every sense of the word."

The fact Michigan had one of the country's oldest generation fleets is not a big secret to anyone, and if federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) regulations didn't shut down these aged plants in 2016, they would have gone away soon due to old age, Kuipers said.

"It's like crying fire in a crowded theater multiple times," Kuipers said. "At some point, people don't listen. The unfortunate thing is that with term limits you have some lawmakers who haven't heard this before ... there's nothing new here."

The truth is monopolies don't react well to change, Kuipers added. What needs to happen is if the Michigan Public Service Commission believes more electric-generation is needed, all companies should be allowed to put in electric generation bids. If Consumers and DTE can produce electricity at the best price, they should have nothing to worry about.

"We need to explore our options here and try to provide the citizens of Michigan with the cheapest energy we can in a reliable fashion," he said.

Shortfall is 'significant'

Dimitry said the power shortfall coming in 2016 is significant. The three-gigawatt shortfall projected for 2016 is enough to provide power for 2.1 million homes for a year. That's about three times the size of the city of Detroit.

The shortfall will come through the estimated retirement of about 100 coal-fired generation units by spring 2016.

Alternative energy is an option, they said, but in a limited way. For example, all of the utility's wind turbines were at full capacity Feb. 24 due to the gusting winds. But that doesn't help anyone in July and August when the wind is still and something needs to power the air conditioners.

The future is not coal-powered production, but natural gas.

House Majority Floor Leader Eric Nesbitt, R-Lawton, the chair of the House Energy Policy Committee, said he believes that as a peninsula state, Michigan should be energy independent. The best way to make that happen is to go back to a completely regulated market, he said.

"I think that will provide the long-term investment that is needed here in Michigan to make sure we have the right energy capacity," Nesbitt said.

The House energy chair pointed to Great Britain, which went to 100 percent retail choice in the late '90s and are now in a situation where they only have a 2-3 percent reserve market because no one is building new generation. The ideal reserve market is 14-17 percent.

Let market decide

But Rep. Gary Glenn, R-Midland, the vice chair of House Energy, said he isn't going to presume the two incumbent utilities have the exclusive right to address the upcoming energy capacity shortfall. Rather, he asked about a competitive bidding process for all electric providers and let the market decide what is a "competitive" electric rate, not what is an "affordable" rate, which is determined by what they "believe it costs them to do business."

"Both utilities insist they would win these competitive bid processes," Glenn said. "If that's true, then why would they not support an open competitive bid process?"

As it stands, Michigan has the highest residential electric rates in the Midwest and the country's 11th highest, Glenn said. That's why he'd like to explore opening up the market to multiple providers to compete and whether that process would be better for ratepayers.

"You can not fault the utilities for wanting to maintain the system or go to a completely regulated market," he said. "Who can blame a business for wanting to have the government guarantee them a customer base for the next half century?"

Stevenson dominated play for most of Wednesday's contest and out-shot the Chargers 47-19. Nevertheless, Churchill remained close most of the way and trailed just 3-1 until a late second-period burst gave the Spartans some breathing room.

The game's tone was set immediately, as Stevenson used an aggressive forecheck to maintain possession in Churchill's zone for long stretches of the opening period. None of those extended possessions resulted in goals during the

The fuse that lit the Livonia Stevenson girls basketball team's championship performance Friday night against Livonia Franklin was approximately 20 feet long and it stretched in a rainbow arc from the fingertips of Arryn Dochenez's right hand to the nylon net at the south end of the Spartans' gymnasium.

Following a shaky first-half shooting performance when Stevenson made just 7 of 30 shots, Dochenez's straight-on, back-spinning three-point swish in the opening seconds of the third quarter turned out to be the catalyst in the Spartans' 49-27 victory in the Class A district title game.

"Arryn came out and put us on her shoulders in the second half," said Stevenson head

"Franklin mirrors us in a lot of ways. They're aggressive and they work hard. They run and they cut. They're not a pattern team, but they make what they do work. We're better when we're running. In the second quarter I think we were

Wayne harriers set to conquer bigger trails

Four Zebras officially commit to WHAC programs

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

Just a few months after leaving several sets of history-making footprints for their high school cross country program, a quartet of Wayne Memorial harriers revealed their plans for the next level Thursday afternoon in the school's media center.

Surrounded by family members and coaches – both current and future – Zebra seniors (and twin brothers) Devin and Michael Gibson signed letters of intent to run competitively beginning in the fall for Madonna University.

In a joint signing ceremony, Wayne seniors Malik Jordan and Uriel Figueroa forged their commitment to compete at the college level for Southfield-based Lawrence Tech.

Madonna and Lawrence Tech are members of the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference.

In the fall, the foursome led the resurgent Wayne cross country program to its first division title when the Zebras captured the highly-competitive KLAA South.

Wayne head coach Tom Gibson, whose is the father of Devin and Michael, said the college-bound runners made as big of an imprint off the trails as on.

"The biggest thing with these four guys was the leadership role they accepted and how they grew as leaders of the team," said Gibson. "They really took the bull by the horns and ran with it."

"They not only gave me guidance of how the team was feeling, but they taught the younger kids the strategies of running a race, how and when to push themselves and when they needed to take it easy, and why. To get four kids running in college from a program that's only had one in its history prior to now says a lot about how hard these guys worked."

sons. "I liked the atmosphere there, along with the staff and the students," said Devin Gibson, who was the Zebras' pace-setter for most of his senior season. "When I hung out with the guys on the cross country team, it felt like a family."

Devin Gibson, who has a 3.4 grade point average, is planning on pursuing a degree in sport management.

Michael Gibson, who has a 3.67 GPA, has his sights set on earning a psychology degree at MU.

"The guys on the team and the coaches were very welcoming," said Michael Gibson. "I like the fact that it's close to home, too, but far enough away that we'll be living on campus. I visited Madonna several times for middle-school trips and always liked it."

Both the Gibsons said they enjoyed running in high school for their father.

"He treated everybody like they were his son; he didn't favor my brother and I," said Michael Gibson. "He was very understanding, too. If we had a hard practice one day, he'd go a little easier on us the next day."

Figueroa, who is the son of Fernando and Brenda, said Lawrence Tech was his No. 1 college choice during his sophomore year at Wayne.

"The No. 1 reason I liked Lawrence Tech is because they offer the major I want to pursue – architectural engineering – which few schools in Michigan do," he said.

"The fact that they offered me a scholarship to run made my decision easy."

Jordan, who was the Zebras' No. 2 runner behind Devin Gibson, said Lawrence Tech's outstanding reputation in academics appealed to him.

The owner of a 3.3 GPA, Jordan plans to study business and ultimately own his own video-gaming company.

"I tried out for the track team my sophomore year and at first I wasn't real good at it," Jordan said. "But after a while, I realized that it's what I was best at, so I kept going."

Jordan is the son of Sheila and Marcus.

Livonia Franklin sophomore Nathan Atienza and Westland John Glenn freshman Mike Mars were one victory away from earning individual state wrestling titles following Thursday and Friday's intense MHSAA Division 1 individual championships at The Palace of Auburn Hills.

Atienza (52-3) pinned Robbie Keyes in a first-round match before winning a 15-4 major decision over David Joyner.

Atienza advanced to the title match with a 3-2 decision over West Bloomfield's Matt Gudeanu and was scheduled to face Grand Ledge's Dylan Steward in Saturday's final match.

Mars improved to 53-2 heading into Saturday's title showdown against Elijah Weaver (32-3). Mars opened with an 8-0 victory over Oxford's Ryan Miller before sidelining Nick Freeman of Walled Lake Central, 9-2. He earned a title shot with a convincing 15-6 triumph over Ann Arbor Pioneer's Rayvon Foley.

Among the local grapplers who were still alive to place heading into Saturday's action was John Glenn's Chase Spanos, who won his first two matches at 125, 15-9 over Tyler Mack of Berkeley and 18-2 over Port Huron's Doug Ferrara, before dropping a 3-0 decision to Romeo Riley.

Livonia Churchill's Baker Hadwan pinned Logan Shadaig in the first round of his initial match before getting nipped, 3-2, by Jake Ellis. Hadwan bounced back nicely with a 4-1 decision over Dakota Powers.

Lutheran Westland's Thomas Krueger was the lone area Division 4 wrestler still battling for a state placing as he overcame an opening-round loss to Charles Rodriguez by pinning Spencer Bruce and decisioning Josh Jackson, 6-3.

SPARTANS

first 17 minutes, but the Spartans finally got on the board when junior defenseman Adam Olson grabbed a loose puck at center ice, deked two defenders to break in on Churchill goalie Drew Broyles, then scored on a backhand to give the Spartans a 1-0 lead at the 9:10 mark.

Stevenson put plenty of pressure on Broyles for the remainder of the period, but the sophomore made several sharp stops to help keep the game close.

The Chargers, who were coming off of a triple-overtime victory over Livonia Franklin on Monday, still brought plenty of energy to the contest and had a chance to tie the game in the final minute of the first period.

"Churchill had some opportunistic chances tonight," said Stevenson coach David Mitchell. "They have some guys on that team that can score some goals. And a lot of their chances were good-quality scoring chances ... and Cullen Barber did a very good job of keeping them limited tonight."

Many of the Chargers' best chances came on the counterattack, as they tried to turn the Spartans' aggressiveness against them.

"We definitely wanted to clog up the neutral zone, look for opportunities to turn the puck over and get a fast break," said Churchill coach Jason Reynolds. "Credit to Stevenson – they've got a lot of speed, they're very aggressive. So it was a challenge for us. But overall I'm proud of the effort the boys put together."

Churchill began the second period with another counterattack opportunity, but after Barber made the initial save, Churchill's Justin O'Brien pushed a backhand wide. Several minutes later the game opened up with three goals in a 1:47 span.

With the game still in doubt, Stevenson finally broke things open in the final two minutes of the period. First, junior Joe Alcantara backhanded in a rebound with 1:35 left, with assists going to Olson and Leonard. Just 21 seconds later, senior defenseman Andrew Nowak pounced on a loose puck at the top of the right faceoff circle and fired a high slap shot past Broyles for a 5-1 lead.

The Chargers got another last-second chance at the end of the period when Hodges broke loose, fought off a check from Allen and drove to the net, but Barber knocked his backhand away. Allen was called for a hooking penalty, allowing Churchill to begin the third period with its first power-play chance.

"We try, no matter when a goal is scored – whether it's our team or another team – we try to have a bump-up shift," explained Mitchell. "We try to bring energy. No matter who scores, we try to make sure to bring a lot of energy to the next shift."

The Spartans' energy soon led to a goal as Leonard knocked down an attempted clearing pass and fired the puck home for an unassisted goal. Olschanski capped the scoring with a break-away goal at 9:42, from Josh Denomie and Nick Beers.

"They capitalized on our mistakes," summed up Reynolds. "There were times over the course of the game (when) we showed our youth a little bit. We're a very young team."

Saturday's regional final is scheduled to face off at 7 p.m., with the winner advancing to the state quarterfinal on March 10 at Ann Arbor's Yost Ice Arena.

COLLEGE RECRUITING

Social media vital in Spartan's next-level quest

Stevenson junior Ackman utilizes YouTube to catch coaches' eyes

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

In her pursuit to someday play soccer in college, Livonia Stevenson junior mid-fielder Paige Ackman has caught the attention of next-level coaches by being active on the pitch and proactive off it.

With the assistance of her dad, Blair, a hand-held Sony video camera and the Windows Movie Maker program, Ackman has exposed her vast soccer skills to a broad array of collegiate soccer coaches, who due to recruiting-budget constraints, might otherwise not be aware of the talented Spartan.

When Ackman participates in the Jefferson Cup showcase event in Richmond, Va., later this month, she'll be more than just another face in the crowded midfield thanks to a four-minute YouTube video that she adeptly marketed to next-level coaches.

"Paige wants to play college soccer somewhere on the East Coast, and with college soccer coaches restricted by recruiting budgets, we thought it would be a good idea to make a highlight video and distribute it to the programs she was interested in playing for," said Blair Ackman. "Some of the coaches who saw the video were so impressed that they've contacted her [via e-mail] and told her they're very interested."

The video-making process was painstaking at times, but ultimately worthwhile, the Ackmans agreed.

"We probably spent close to 15 hours just editing the game tapes," Paige Ackman said. "Originally, we had an 11-minute highlight video, but we figured a coach isn't going to have that much time to watch it all, so we cut it down to four minutes.

"Since my dad and I had never really used Movie Maker before, we struggled a little bit at first, and we probably deleted things we didn't mean to delete, but after we used it a while, we got pretty good at it."

"We've been told that you really need to grab the coach's attention in the first 20 seconds of the video, or they may not bother to watch the rest," said Blair Ackman. "We made sure to include highlights of her trapping the ball, how she moves without the ball - all the skills that would make a college coach interested."

After the Ackmans created a YouTube file of the finished product, Paige authored letters to the coaches of the soccer programs that were high on her list, incorporating the YouTube link in the letter.

Within a few weeks after distributing the letters, coaches from several schools - including Wagner College, Loyola University Maryland and Sacred Heart University - responded with glowing emails.

"Basically, they told me they liked my skills, they were interested [in potentially signing her], and they would watch me closely at the upcoming showcases," she said.

In the wake of her marketing success, Ackman has become somewhat of a recruiting consultant for her friends and teammates.

"They'll ask me what they should put in the letters, what they should do if they don't hear back right away from a coach, things like that," she said, smiling. "It's been a fun experience."

An outstanding student with a 4.2 grade-point average, Ackman's interest in playing for an East Coast school was ignited by her love of history.

"Even before I had an interest in playing college soccer, we visited Boston last summer and I loved it," she said. "I'd like to major in history and eventually get into law."

DISTRICT SEMIFINAL

High-energy Spartans topple Churchill, 45-32

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

Zippering around the court like Energizer Bunnies, the Livonia Stevenson girls basketball team's trio of high-motor guards short-circuited a very talented Livonia Churchill team Wednesday night in a Class A district semifinal game played at Stevenson.

Sparked by the relentless efforts of back-court dynamos Arryn Dochenetz, Grace Lamerson and Diane Senkowski, the Spartans handed the 13-win Chargers a 45-32 setback to advance to Friday's 7 p.m. final against crosstown rival Livonia Franklin.

Churchill upended Stevenson by 15 points in the two teams' first encounter back in December.

Led by the 17-point performance of Dochenetz, the threesome accounted for all but 14 of their team's points, but it was at the defensive end of the hardwood that the slender spark plugs really showed their heart as they took turns clamping down on Churchill sharp-shooter Natalie Spala, who finished with just seven points (on 2-of-11 shooting) - eight below her season average.

Overall, Churchill made just 13 of 45 field goals (28.8 percent) and misfired on all 10 of its shots in the pivotal third quarter when the Spartans turned a 16-14 halftime deficit into a 25-17 lead.

"They beat us pretty badly the first time we played them, so this feels good," said Senkowski. "We've been working hard at practice on switching on every pick, and Churchill sets a lot of them for Natalie Spala. There wasn't one of us who was in charge of guarding her; it was a team effort."

Senkowski's all-out hustle was never more evident than late in the third quarter when she sprinted across the court and into the corner to chase down a missed free throw by Lamerson.

The 5-foot-7 sophomore then threaded a pass at the top of the key to Dochenetz, who calmly drained a triple to up the hosts' lead to 23-17.

"Matt [McCowan] did a great job of changing up his defenses on us tonight," said Stevenson head coach Tim Newman. "They ran a lot of triangle-and-two, which meant we needed a third guard to step up tonight, and Diane definitely did that. She had a great game."

"We decided we were going to switch on all screens tonight and I was very proud of how the girls handled that and prevented back-door cuts. We go as our guards so, and tonight they were going hard."

Stevenson sealed the deal with a 20-point fourth quarter, despite making just three of five field-goal attempts. After struggling at the free-throw line in the first half, Dochenetz was money down the stretch, finding twine on 8 of 10 tries.

The senior leader also connected on two three-point daggers in the third quarter that got the Spartans' mojo in motion.

"Churchill switched to a zone, but they were coming out and guarding the three pretty well," Dochenetz said. "Coach Newman tells that even if we're not wide open - if we have a little bit of space - take the shot."

The Chargers stayed in the game for three quarters and some change thanks in large part to Anne Yost, who scored a team-high 12 points and grabbed 12 rebounds.

Junior guard Molly Pummil made all three of her field-goal attempts - including a left-wing three - to finish with seven points.

Although she struggled with her shot, Spala played hard all night and finished with three steals and five rebounds.

Audrey Staharr was the winners' most productive post player as she racked up five points, six rebounds and three steals.

Leading 25-17 after three quarters, the Spartans opened the final stanza with an 8-3 run to grab a double-digit lead they'd never relinquish.

ville.

The Panthers, who outscored the Trojans 19-16 over the final 16 minutes, finished with an 8-14 mark. Henry Ford improved to 13-7.

"Being a young team and playing on a big stage like we were, I think nerves got too us a little bit in the first half," said first-year RU head coach Scott Purdy. "We had 16 turnovers in the first half alone. We were doing OK against their pressure, but passes were going right through our hands. And we missed 13 layups in the first half, so emotions got the best of us."

The game was the high school finale of RU senior Renee Reed, who scored a team-high 15 points. Sophomore guard Shae Smith netted eight points while senior post player Alana Ray-Davis closed out her career in style by grabbing 15 rebounds and blocking four shots.

"We moved Alana down low a few games ago, and now I wish we would have done it sooner," said Purdy. "We usually only get one or two blocks a game, but we had 10 tonight."

Trailing at one point in the second half by 26, the Panthers showed their character by storming back to within seven with a minute to play.

But Henry Ford drained four free throws down the stretch to seal the win.

Prior to Friday's game, RU had held opponents to 40 points or less in eight straight games, including the first two rounds of the district tournament when it beat Detroit Community, 57-17, and Detroit CMA, 43-26.

"I'm very proud of this team," said Purdy. "I told the girls after the game tonight that they should hold their heads high because they played as hard as they could."

Purdy said the last time an RU girls basketball team won a district championship was 2003.

GIRLS DISTRICT SEMIFINAL

Cramton-led Pats outlast Garden City

Seniors spearhead Franklin's run to championship game

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

Could March be a magical month for the Livonia Franklin girls basketball team, which won just four games during the 2014-15 regular season?

It's definitely off to a good start following the Patriots' wall-to-wall 55-49 victory Wednesday night over never-say-die Garden City (8-13) in a Class A district semifinal game played at Livonia Stevenson.

Thanks to a spirited effort at both ends of the court against a team that refused to give in, the now 5-16 Patriots punched a ticket to Friday's 7 p.m. final against the host Spartans, who surprised Livonia Churchill, 45-32, in Wednesday's first game.

Fueled by a 19-point, 10-rebound performance by senior catalyst Sarah Cramton, Franklin never trailed after seizing a 17-13 first-quarter lead - but at the same time, the Patriots were never able to relax against a Garden City team that needed just over two minutes to chop an 11-point deficit down to 51-46 when junior guard Amber Swisher converted and-one lay-up off a mid-court steal with 56 seconds left.

But the Patriots closed the door on the Cougars' late heroics when senior guard Becky Giacobbi scored four points in 20 seconds - two on a pair of free throws and another deuce with a lay-up off a steal.

"I thought we passed well tonight and we ran our offense like we're supposed to," said Giacobbi, who scored 12 points and swiped three steals. "I tried to cut down the middle of the lane more than I have been lately, and then either shoot or get the ball to an open teammate."

Cramton was rarely open, but it didn't matter given the senior's lightning-quick release and dead-on shooting accuracy. She ignited her team's 17-point first-quarter surge with eight points.

Senior forward Tyonna Tate also excelled for Franklin, nearly notching a double-double with 10 points and nine rebounds.

"Tonight was one of Tyonna's best games of the season," said Franklin head coach Jim Milican. "She was tough around the basket, she rebounded well and she ran the court."

Milican also praised the effort of senior Erin McNally, who spiced up her four-point night with seven rebounds and several hustle plays that didn't reflect on the stat sheet.

When the Cougars are tossing in threes at a steady clip - they often drain at least 35 percent of their three-point tries - they're tough to beat, but Wednesday wasn't one of their Stephen Curry-like showings.

The Cougars found twine on just three of 19 shots from beyond the arc and they missed the first seven of their long-range rainbows.

"I thought Franklin came out and played us tough right from the start, and it didn't help that we weren't making our threes," said GC head coach Michele Tyree. "Once we realized we were off a little from the perimeter, we started driving, but then we had a tough time finding a handle on some very good, catchable passes underneath."

"Our kids played hard; they never gave up. We were down 10 at halftime and got it down to five, so they kept battling."

Forward's Lindsay Michalak and Aalea Montgomery helped keep the Cougars in the game. Michalak scored 15 points and grabbed 11 rebounds while Montgomery came off the bench to pump in seven points and grab five caroms.

Garden City's Aalea Montgomery has her path to the basket blocked by Franklin's Sarah Cramton during Wednesday's Class A district semifinal game.

Hannah Vera-Burgos, the Cougars' most-dangerous three-point stretch, finished her high school hoops career with seven points and four rebounds.

The Patriots complicated matters for GC by shuffling up their defensive formations throughout the night.

"We wanted to switch things up as much as we could to keep them guessing," said Milican. "We went from a half-court man to a full-court press to a 3-2-one and even some box-and-one. I think that helped stop some of their three-point shooting."

Friday night's district championship game will be a rematch of a Feb. 19 KLAA cross-over game that Stevenson won 64-50. The Patriots actually led that contest 48-47 with 5:29 left before the Spartans reeled off a late-game scoring spree.

BOYS BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Patriots win first on senior Keith's last-second drive

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

With just a few seconds separating the Livonia Franklin boys basketball team from a winless regular season, Charles Keith made a play he and his teammates won't soon forget Thursday night against Waterford Kettering.

Keith's full-court dash and layup as the seconds on the fourth-quarter clock expired gave the Patriots a 44-43 victory over the host Captains.

Both teams entered the KLAA cross-over clash with 0-19 records.

The Patriots were bolstered by a balanced scoring ledger that was topped by Joe Chinavare's 10 points. Freshman Mark Mettie scored nine points while Keith and David Milican added eight points each.

The Captains were paced by Noah Holly and Justin Bonner, who both scored 15 points.

Franklin shot a sold 14-for-20 from the free-throw line. The Captains made 13 of 19.

The Patriots open Class A district action Monday at 7 p.m. at home against Livonia Churchill.

Spartans triumph

Livonia Stevenson closed out its regular season Thursday night with an impressive 53-47 road win at Lakeland.

Senior guard Noah Campbell led the winners with 18 points. Senior Jacob Dollar added nine points.

The Spartans led 9-2 after one quarter and 23-14 at the half before the Eagles stormed back to take a 36-33 lead with eight minutes to play.

Warriors tumble

Lutheran Westland will take a 10-10 record into next week's Class C district tournament following Thursday's 68-24 loss at Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Kingswood (13-7).

"We played tough tonight, however, they just had too much firepower for us," said LW head coach Jim Hoef. "They outmanned us in the post and we were unable to defend the perimeter. Our intensity was fine tonight, but we made too many mistakes. You just can't commit this many turnovers and expect to win against anybody. Give them credit, they have a good squad."

The Warriors were led offensively by Zach Anger and Luke Smith, who scored six points a piece. Zach Burk added five points for the visitors. Anger led his team with five rebounds.

LW hit four of seven free throws, but converted just 10 of 43 shots from the field.

Cranbrook led 17-7 after one quarter, 31-11 at the half and 48-19 with eight minutes to play.

Spartan senior Matt LaPorte touched first in the 500 free, out-stroking Northville's Matthew Scahfer by just under 4 seconds.

walking the ball up a little bit too much."

With her team securing a precarious 23-17 lead at the break, Dochenetz emerged from the locker-room after halftime with an eye-of-the-tiger look, as she scored nine points in the pivotal third quarter, which the Spartans won 17-6 while holding the Patriots to just one basket on eight shots.

Dochenetz led all scorers with 24 points. Audrey Stahrr also played brilliantly, adding seven points, 10 rebounds, three steals and a block shot, as did Paige Ackman, who scored just one bucket, but contributed nine boards and four thefts.

Although the Spartans struggled to win the first half of the season, they jelled like a well-oiled machine down the stretch.

"This feels incredible," Dochenetz said. "Honestly, I thought anyone had a chance of winning this district. Crazy things happen this time of year. Novi beat Northville, which I didn't expect, so we figured if they can do that, we can beat Churchill and Franklin."

Stevenson's defense was sticky good all night as they forced Franklin into 31 turnovers while limiting the Patriots to a 7-for-32 shooting night.

To their credit, the Patriots attacked the basket and were rewarded with 38 free throws, but they could only knock down 13.

The Spartans' third-straight Class A district title improved their record to 10-12 and catapulted them into Tuesday's regional semifinal game at Southfield High School against 19-4 Farmington Hills Mercy.

Senior Tyonna Tate led the Patriots with eight points. Becky Giacobbi added six.

Franklin's season-long scoring leader Sarah Cramton was held to just five points by a series of Stevenson defenders, most notably sophomore Diane Senkowski.

Cramton rarely had an open look at the basket as she drained just one of eight field-goal attempts.

"Unlike against Churchill, we weren't switching on picks tonight," said Dochenetz.

Newman said the Spartans grew progressively better as the season wore on, particularly over the last half of February.

"At the beginning of the season, we really didn't have an identity," he said. "We had some big kids and some good guards, but we weren't playing consistently well together. The last three weeks we started turning it on, which is good for the young players who will be coming back next year."

Tipton Academy will hold Open Enrollment in grades Kindergarten - 7 for the 2015-16 school year on March 16-31, 2015. The school is located at 1615 Belton Rd. in Garden City.

MU spring softball trip ends on sour note

They'll certainly miss the sun and the 74-degree temperatures as the Madonna University women's softball team returns home with a 9-4-1 overall record following a triple-header Thursday at two different Florida sites.

The day started at Chain of Lakes Park in Titusville with a 6-3 triumph over Southeastern (Fla.) as Nicole Salloum (Livonia Churchill) paced MU's 10-hit attack going 2-for-4 with two RBI.

Combs

Emma Cook and Kasey Trierweiler each added two hits and an RBI, while winning pitcher Bree Crampton scattered five hits and four walks while striking out six over seven innings.

The loss dropped Southeastern, a team that received votes in the inaugural NAIA Coaches National Poll, to 11-6 overall.

The Crusaders then moved to finish off their spring trip at Hancock Park in Clermont falling in the middle game to Point Park University (Pa.), 7-4, and Saint Thomas (Fla.) in the final game, 5-0.

Five MU errors and four-run fourth inning enabled Point Park (3-4) to earn the victory. Gabi Vogt went 3-for-4 with two RBI, while Alyssa McMurtrie added two hits, including a solo homer for the victorious Pioneers.

Winning pitcher Kate Reese went the first 5½ innings before Hannah Harley came on to pick up the save retiring the final five MU batters in order while striking out three.

Losing pitcher Erin Combs (4-2) allowed one earned run on seven hits and three walks.

Morgan Kaiser and Combs each collected two hits, while Emma Cook hit a solo homer and Breanna Keethler added an RBI in a losing cause. And in the nightcap, Saint Thomas (2-6) received a five-hit shutout from pitcher Carson Catusas. She also helped her own cause going 2-for-3 with two RBI. Teammate Christina Horton also went 3-for-3 with an RBI.

Crampton, roughed up for four earned runs on nine hits in four innings, dropped to 5-2 on the season. Relievers Paige Montague and Erika Randall (Livonia Stevenson) each pitched a scoreless inning in mop up duty.

MU is scheduled to return to action with a pair of double-headers Friday-Saturday, March 13-14, in Kentucky against No.4 Lindsey Wilson and Campbellsville.

Canton Township woman seeks financial help for volunteer trip abroad

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Meghan Montgomery Jones has never met a kiwi bird, but she'll spend a few weeks this summer safeguarding its habitat.

"I am passionate about the Earth and I do my part with recycling and I garden," said Jones, a Canton resident and a junior at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti. "The kiwi is the national bird of New Zealand. They are endangered. I'm happy to get to work with them."

After a representative from International Student Volunteers (ISV) spoke at her college last year, Jones, for whom volunteering has been second nature since childhood, researched the organization, spoke with her parents and jumped at the chance to volunteer abroad. Initially, she considered working with elephants in Thailand through ISV, but discovered the weather would be too hot in July, when she plans to travel.

"I have to think of my health," said Jones, who has lupus and arthritis. "In New Zealand, it will be winter there when I go. I tend to do better when it's cooler out."

Lupus kept her from traveling with her church youth group to Spain and with a school group to England a few years ago. She has the OK from her doctors to volunteer in New Zealand this summer, but she could use financial help for the trip. She has raised $390 of her $1,000 goal through an online crowd-funding site, volunteerforever.com.

"I'm paying for most of it myself. I have two jobs and have been saving. And my parents are helping. I'm fundraising for transportation."

Jones offers perks, ranging from a thank you letter and postcard sent from New Zealand, to a personal video and a souvenir, to her benefactors, for various donation amounts.

Books, volunteering

Jones, a 2012 Salem High School graduate, calls herself an "eco geek" and "book nerd" who has always loved reading, volunteering and working with children. She's studying children's literature and drama for children at Eastern, and plans to make a career in publishing where she hopes to diversify the content of children's books.

"I liked books when I was younger, but when I was 11 I became hard core. I realized I loved reading. My childhood was volunteering at the li-

She spent so much time at the Canton Public Library, she asked if she could help. She shelved books and joined a book club there, later volunteering at the Plymouth District Library, where she also served on a teen advisory board.

"I will read anything, fiction and nonfiction. I read three to four books at a time. I just read The Secret History of Wonder Woman, which was so good. I'm reading If You Could Be Mine, about two girls in love with each other in Iran," she said. "And I'm reading a book for fun about children's literature and the history of it."

Writer, activist

She writes for the SPARK Movement at sparksummit.com. SPARK is a coalition of organizations training teenage girls and young women to become "media activists and leaders in the fight against sexualization" of girls, according to its website.

"I run an online book club via that. We have an app that just came out, we partnered with Google, and it will help you find the history of influential women near you," she said. Her own idols are Helen Keller and Mother Teresa.

She also writes for a website that focuses on book-to-film story adaptations and is managing editor of pulpzine.com, a website that celebrates "girl power" along with music, fashion, and other topics.

She volunteers as a Brownie troop leader in Canton, and works as a supervisor at an after-school program administered by the YMCA at Achieve Charter Academy.

"I just love anything that's structured, as far as a place for kids to grow. I've always loved after-school clubs, anything creative that allows someone

New water heaters will be bigger, more difficult to install

After April 15 when you have a hot water heater installed it will cost you a lot more money — and this is no April Fool's joke.

The protector of energy standards in Washington, who continues to modulate the savings of products, has done it again. The new water heater will be much larger and have added components to ensure they operate on the new energy standards set forth by the U.S. Department of Energy. Now we have a water heater that will not fit in the current space you have and because it is going to be more complex, you might not be able to install the heater yourself.

It was not so long ago that because of new energy standards the water heater was changed in design and here we go again. The water heater with new energy standards became a burden to homeowners and a boon to the plumbing industry. They had to be vented to the outside; you couldn't simply change the thermocouple when the pilot wouldn't stay lit because the thermocouple was no longer sold in the hardware stores for $10-$15.

It had a screen at the bottom which had to be kept clean and sensor to smell anything that could explode and the list goes on. But, keep in mind that the average life span is seven to 10 years and that won't change.

I believe that there are only five manufacturers of hot water heaters in this country and they produce many brand names and from what I read and hear, they are all the same. My heater is 11 years old and it is a shame to replace something that still works perfectly fine, but this news is food for thought.

Garage refrigerators

Cookie writes: "I would appreciate your advice. I have a 25-plus-year-old Kenmore refrigerator. We have used it in our unheated garage for many years. It now needs to be replaced as the freezer is no longer working well. I have heard that new refrigerators don't do well in a garage as the compressor does not hold up in the cold. Is this true and if so is it all brands or are there any that do work in that environment? We depend on both the refrigerator and freezer compartment to supplement our indoor refrigerator."

Reply to Cookie: I would like you to wait until the outside temperature warms up (one of these days) and see what happens. When the temperature in the garage is colder than the setting on the thermostat control, food will start to thaw in the freezer section. This is a normal condition. If you purchase a refrigerator/freezer for a garage it probably will be made by Whirlpool and be very costly. Buying a regular refrigerator and placing it in an unheated garage can be very costly if the compressor should fail. Especially in the first year of ownership. The warranty reads that the refrigerator must be installed inside the home and a compressor replacement is over $600.

Some 20 years ago, I found an old Philco refrigerator, (1948 model) with the rounded door and a door handle that moves and latches shut. I replaced a little wiring around the compressor and this refrigerator has never quit running. It uses less energy than the energy-saving models of today and keeps the pop and beer colder than Alaska. I'll bet money that I'll be in appliance heaven before it gets there. I only wish that appliance manufacturers would build a product that could last as long as some of the hot water heaters and refrigerators that were made years ago. The new technology of today which is all set according to new energy guidelines is only costing the end user a lot more money in repeated purchases of the same products. Stay tuned.

Agency helps job seekers hone skills

Women and men who've been out of the workforce awhile can sign up for help with resumes, job interviewing and related topics through Women to Work, a program of JVS. The sessions have been held at the JVS Southfield office for many years, with the next beginning in April.

"We are now also offering the program in Detroit," said Judy Richmond, Women to Work coordinator for the agency, which in the past was known as Jewish Vocational Services. "Typically they're women who have not worked in awhile or have worked sporadically."

The free job-seeking help is available to men as well and to those of all faiths. Advance registration is needed and should be done by contacting Richmond at 248-233-4232 or jrjrichmond@jvdsdet.org.

The Detroit-based Women to Work will also begin in April. There is an information session needing advance sign-up through Richmond, set for April 7 for Southfield participants and April 8 for Detroit participants.

Sessions will start at both locations the following week in Southfield from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays and Thursdays for five weeks. In Detroit, they will be held from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays and Wednesdays for five weeks.

Health research: New study indicates nondrug method best for calming dementia patients

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

A University of Michigan clinical trial starting next month will test a nondrug approach to dealing with dementia symptoms.

The computer program, called WeCareAdvisor, will help families and other caregivers prevent or mitigate the triggers for common dementia symptoms such as repetitive questioning, pacing, irritability, aggression, and apathy. Triggers can be anything from a loud telephone ring to clutter in the home to an argumentative caregiver.

"The WeCareAdvisor will have two parts. It will be installed on an iPad and one part is a survival guide with a myriad of resources for caregivers in one place," said Helen Kales, M.D., head of the U-M Program for Positive Aging. Participants will have at their fingertips information on understanding dementia, legal advice, financial resources, and more.

The other part of the program is based on a nondrug approach to addressing dementia called DICE. The model encourages patients, doctors and caregivers to "describe"

GETTY IMAGES/ISTOCKPHOTO
A U-M researcher says a nondrug approach called DICE is more effective and less risky than medication, for calming dementia patients.

situations where behavioral problems occur, along with their context; to "investigate" medical problems, such as urinary tract infections or other physical factors that might lead to behavioral problems; to "create" a plan to prevent or respond to behavior issues; and to "evaluate" how the plan is working and if it needs to be changed.

"The caregiver comes to the WeCareAdvisor tool with a symptom — for example, maybe the person is agitated and aggressive during bath time — the tool walks (the caregiver) through the DICE process, so at the end they get a tailored prescription to mitigate that symptom. "We're taking the DICE approach and combining it with technology. We've built 1,000 tips and strategies into it. We're really excited about it."

DICE, not drugs

Kales and Laura Gitlin, Ph.D., and Constantine Lykets, M.D., both from Johns Hopkins University, are working with the U-M Center for Health Communications Research to launch the clinical trial, which is funded through the National Institute of Nursing Research.

The DICE approach came out of an expert panel, including nurses, pharmacists, social workers and other health professionals that Kales, a geriatric psychiatrist, Gitlin and Lykets convened in 2011.

Kales and her two co-authors recently published a paper in the British Medical Journal, asserting that nondrug approaches, like DICE, work better and are less risky than drugs in addressing dementia behavior symptoms. They reviewed 20 years worth of research in comparing drugs, such as antipsychotics and antidepressants, with nondrug approaches to reach their conclusions. They found that caregivers trained to identify and stop behavioral triggers, can be more effective than drugs in treating dementia symptoms.

"Medications do work on some people," Kales noted. "There are scenarios where they would be used as the first line of treatment — if someone is depressed and may be at risk of suicidal thoughts or actions. Or if someone is aggressive to the point they put others or themselves in danger. Medication may be necessary in the short run.

"But in many other cases behavioral and environmental (intervention) should be used first."

Key factors

She said caregivers need to be trained in identifying and then mitigating the triggers of behavioral symptoms. They need to look at the patient, themselves, and the environment.

"Things may be going on with the patient themselves. They may have developed a urinary tract infection, they may be dehydrated. The caregiver is a factor. They may be stressed, frustrated and angry," she said, adding that a caregiver's "negative reaction" can trigger symptoms.

"The environment is a huge factor in all this. If they are over-stimulated — too much noise, clutter, people coming in and out of the house — that can set off agitation." She pointed out that medication may sedate a dementia patient but doesn't fix the trigger that causes behavioral symptoms, such as anger or agitation.

"The issue and the challenge is that our health care system has not incentivized training in alternatives to drug use, and there is little to no reimbursement for caregiver-based methods," Kales noted. She said the U.S. can take a cue from Japan, which has a high rate of dementia among its elderly population and "as a society has made a decision to deal with it."

"They are developing community health-focused centers for people with dementia. They're training people to be dementia supporters. They're training transportation workers," she said. "We can learn something from looking at their culture. As a society, it's important we speak about these issues."

Caregivers interested in joining the clinical trial can email Kales at kales@umich.edu.
